The Music Man to be presented at Union College

"The Music Man," the musical starring Robert Preston and Shirley Jones, will be presented as the fourth of five events in the 1970-71 Cultural Arts Series sponsored by the Union College Alumni Association, it was announced this week by Richard P. Muscatello of Elizabeth, president.

The film will be shown in the Union College Campus Center theatre on Saturday at 8 p.m. The Cultural Arts Series is offered by Union College free of charge to alumni and their families as a token of appreciation for the support of the alumni over the years.

"The Music Man" is the story of a salesman who visits a small American town and wins by teaching the children music. Meredith Wilson wrote the score.

Alumni desiring tickets for the event are urged to call the Alumni Office as soon as possible, Muscatello reminded alumni that each previous event in the Cultural Arts Series has been oversubscribed. He expects an equally enthusiastic response for "The Music Man." Seating capacity in the theatre is limited to 500.

An informal reception in the Student Lounge will follow the musical.

The last event in the 1970-71 Cultural Arts Series will be a special program for the children. The film "Heidi" and two cartoons will be presented on Saturday, April 17.

The series this year included "La Boheme," by Enrico Puccini, performed by the Amato Opera Company; "Excerpts from the Nutcracker," staged by the New Jersey Dance Theatre Guild Ballet Company, and "Camelot," the timeless classic of King Arthur's age.

The Cultural Arts Series was arranged by a committee headed by Mrs. Elmer Wolf of Cranford.

FOR THE BIRDS

FOR THE BIRDS

Almost 16 years ago this coming summer, I lay abed in a hospital far out on the eastern tip of Long Island, recuperating from a hard operation. My room was on the first floor. A big window looked out where Gardiner's Bay meets Shelter Island Sound just outside Sterling Harbor. Every weekend Shelter Island Yacht Club held sailing races. I used to lie there and watch sails shiver in the breeze before the starting gun sounded. Until that sharp crack came across the water, the boats wandered, seemingly aimlessly, behind the starting line. Then suddenly they leaped forward, mounted before the wind, faltered as they tacked, and surged on again.

SPRING IS LIKE those boats. South of the Florida-Keys resorts are difficult to discern. There is no real spring except in the hearts of the people and the internal clocks of the migrating birds. Winter Haven, Winter Springs, on the Atlantic Coast, gets its start in the Everglades. Here, summer and winter ebb and flow daily like the tides of the nearby sea. Even before the sun has reached that precise point in the heavens when the ancient astronomers marked the vernal equinox spring rolls northward, falters and surges forward again.

Spring advances northward at an average speed of 15 miles a day. From Cape May to High Point is an eleven day, two hour and 24 minute journey. Spring rises from the valleys to the mountain tops about a hundred feet a day. As it rises from a swamp, so one of the first signs in the Great Swamp is the appearance of skunk cabbage holding its head above the water.

EACH SPRING BIRDS COME BACK to their nesting homes where their families will be raised in the same order. Pintail ducks are one of the first waterfowl to move north. Blackbirds and redwings lead the parade of songbirds. Robins are as early in the spring as they are early risers in the morning.

The Pintail is the most graceful and slender of our pond ducks. It prefers northward from as far south as Central America as soon as ponds are free from ice. Then, already mated when they arrive, selecting territories north of us up into the Arctic while chill winds still blow, Pintail seldom are seen in deep-water reservoirs. They prefer stopping off on marshy ponds and lakes and thousands may be seen in Troy Meadows regularly as the middle of March.

Bluebirds, with the blue of the sky reflected on their backs and the brown-red of the spring earth on their bellies, are rare in New Jersey.

John Burroughs, the naturalist, at first seems a more wandering voice in the sky; one hears its call or caral on some bright March morning but one is uncertain of its source or direction; it falls like a drop of rain when no cloud is visible; one looks and listens, but to no purpose.

* * *

THE BURBLE OF the male redwing sounds and the brilliant red epaulets shine in the last two weeks before the female appears.

Migrating robins appear as earthworms come to the surface. As soon as the temperature of the ground reaches 55 degrees earthworms migrate from their winter quarters below the frost line to the surface where they leave their casings. Robins cutting up first on a spring raine. Since rain the ne ground does not take back moisture of the soil, as soon as you find this evidence of earthworms, you'll spot a robin looking for a gourmet treat. Robins appear with the 35 degree isotherm.

With Robert Frost, we beseech March,
"Bring the singer, bring the nester;
Give the burled flower a dream."

Survey shows UC students are no drug experts

A survey at Union College indicates students think they are knowledgeable about the drug scene, but the results are not well informed.

Seventy-seven percent of those who responded considered themselves "informed" on the medical, legal and rehabilitative aspects of drug abuse in a questionnaire developed by John Sarvay, pharmacist and director of Health, Welfare and Housing for the City of Elizabeth, and distributed to Union College students by members of PLEASE (People's League for Education, Action, and Service). Sarvay is assisting the planning of the highly successful drug abuse seminar held recently at Union College, Cranford.

However, according to Miss Robin Baker of Elizabeth, who evaluated the questionnaire, "the only thing the students were really aware of was an increasing use of drugs among the population for non-medical reasons.

"What worries me," explained Miss Tucker, "is that the attitudes and beliefs expressed by the students would drive them to probably an accurate reflection of the public's viewpoint. In other words, we face as much about drugs today as we think we know the score, but few of us really do."

Miss Tucker found the students were full of misconceptions and distorted facts. In more cases, the students' answers were based on their own personal experiences rather than medical evidence.

* * *

FOR EXAMPLE, STUDENTS were evenly divided on the question of whether marijuana could leave a feeling of exhilaration and excitement or a feeling of depression.

The survey showed many students lacked a clear perspective on the harder drugs, such as heroin, and knew little or nothing about the influences of the "prescription drugs," such as barbiturates or amphetamines. A large majority of the students answered incorrectly on the chief dangers of glue sniffing, which according to Sarvay, destroys red blood cells in the bone marrow.

So uninformed were some students that they said that "turning on" with DO stimulated body aches, instead, were relaying that DO stimulant Dairy Queen ice cream.

With the several misconceptions or true and false questions, Miss Tucker realized many persons wouldn't necessarily be "experts" or "informed" on the effects of drugs. She also concluded that students were generally unaware of alarming trends for some hallucinogens, the effects on perception and alertness, and the several types of rehabilitative treatments.

The drug abuse seminar which was conducted in mid-November featured lectures, workshops, and exhibits on the complexities of the drug abuse problem. It is just known how overall effect, Miss Tucker maintains that it was that most people who attended realized that the most popularly discussed topic neighbors the young people know the least about.

Dr. Wright's talk to wind up UC 'awareness week'

As the finale of "Black Awareness Week," Dr. Nathan Wright, nationally known author and syndicated columnist, and chairman of the Afro-American history department at the State University of New York, will visit Union College, Cranford, tomorrow to conduct a series of afternoon seminars and to deliver a special lecture on "Black Genocide" in the evening.

The seminars will begin at 2 p.m. and will cover numerous topics pertaining to the place of man and his role in contemporary society. Discussions centering on education, welfare reforms, black power, politics, capitalism, problems of identity, and the Black Panthers will be included. High school students in Union County and the surrounding communities are especially invited to attend the seminars which will be held in the Campus Center.

The same evening, in the gymnasium at the Campus Center, Dr. Wright will discuss the various social forces and developments which he asserts could lead to the extermination of the Negro race. His lecture entitled "Black Genocide" will begin at 8 p.m.

J. Harrison Morson, dean of students, indicated that the seminars and evening lecture are free with a Union College Identification card and $2 without a card.

Dr. Wright's visit is being sponsored by the Society for Modern Reconstruction, a group of black students. For two weeks, SMR is conducting "Black Awareness Week," consisting of numerous films, exhibits, and discussions to acquaint the average individual with the black experience in order to promote understanding between the races and overcome racial prejudice.

The recipient of five earned university degrees, including a doctorate from Harvard University, Dr. Wright served as executive director of the department of urban work of the Episcopal Diocese of Newark, and this year was a government witness on alleged corruption in that city.

Dr. Wright was featured speaker at the New York NAACP annual convention and was chairman of the 1962 and 1963 national and international conferences on "black power."

A consultant to the City of Newark on civil disorders, Dr. Wright is a former member of the planning committee for the White House Conference on Children and Youth.

Chamber of Commerce forms business ethics committee

Carl W. Broeker, president of the Eastern Union County Chamber of Commerce, announced this week, the formation of a business ethics committee. The committee, under the chairmanship of Vincent Timirinello of Apex Television Co., will include Carl Lelinee, vice president Raymond W. Lelinee's, public affairs department. Lelinee is a vice-president of National State Bank.

Other members of the committee are Harold C. Bensing, National State Bank; Ralph Denson, Associated Building Maintenance; Ralph Bornstad, Natelson Brothers; Mrs. Mary C. Kanane, Union County stenographer; Mrs. Bert Lubas, Morey LaRue Laundry Co.; R. W. Lade, Dillion-Heck Manufacturing Co., and Earl W. Seitz, Regina Corp.

The first project of the committee will be to update and improve the chamber's Consumer Complaint Service, according to Timirello. "We want more businesses and consumers to know that this service exists," he said.

The committee will also consider recommending a business-consumer relations code sponsored by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Timirello said that the chamber's Consumer Complaint service is a service of a local Chamber of Commerce when there isn't a Better Business Bureau. Complaints are received in the form in Eastern Union County only. Complaints against Westfield and Union are referred to those chambers as they are full-time operations.

He said the chamber has no legal or enforcement powers and "only hope to make a better business climate by bringing both the customer and business persons together."

He emphasized that the chamber "will not accept verbal complaints or verbal replies to the complaints. Everything must be written.

"We distinction is made between member and non-member firms," he said. "Neither the chamber is unassisted in bringing both parties together, the Elizabeth consumer is advised to seek further help from the Office of Consumer Protection at City Hall and all others to contact the Union County Small Claims Court or the Better Office of Consumer Protection in Newark."

Regional board backs referendum on May 4

BLIZA, MY LOVE — Jeffrey Kampf as Freddy Eynesford-Hill proposes to Susan Dunner as Eliza Doolittle as Mitchell Fidell, playing Eliza's father, Alfred P. Doolittle, watches. This scene is from the Alan Jay Lerner-Frederick Loewe musical, "My Fair Lady," which will be presented by the music and drama departments of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield, tomorrow and Saturday at 8:15 p.m. in Halsey Hall.

Candidates to appear at forum tonight

3 from Springfield seeking school posts

Candidates' night for the Regional High School Board of Education election will be this evening at 8 at the Edward Walton School. There will be a roundtable discussion by the candidates, followed by audience questioning. Moderator for the evening will be Mrs. George Walker of Westfield, second vice-president of the League of Women Voters of New Jersey.

The three Springfield candidates running for election March 30 to fill one available three-year term are William T. Doerrler, Sonya Dorsky, and Robert W. Halsey.

Candidates' night is sponsored by the League of Women Voters, the PTAs of the Caldwell, Chatham, Gaullmer, St. James, Sandmeier and Walton schools and the PTSA of Dayton Regional High School.

Mrs. Harold Farman, president of the Springfield LWV, and Mrs. Jerry Rosen, the LWV voters' service chairman, jointly stated, "We strongly urge all voters to attend candidates' night. This evening is the one opportunity the voters of Springfield will have to hear the regional board candidates discuss the problems facing our high schools."

Mrs. Farman, president of the League of Women Voters, this week also reminded local voters that this Monday will be the last day to obtain absentee ballots for the Regional School Board election.

Mrs. Farman added, "A new state law enables registered voters to apply for absentee ballots—for school elections—if they will be unable to vote at their regular polling places because of the nature and hours of their employment."

Absentee ballots may be obtained at the Board favors proposal by 6-to-3 edge

Price tag for expansion trimmed to $4.7 million

By ABNER GOLD

The Regional High School Board of Education Tuesday night authorized a $4,730,000 expansion bond proposal to be presented to the voters on May 4. The plan would provide additional facilities in the four Regional high Schools, serving six communities.

Board members backed the proposal by a margin of six to three in a meeting which was tinged with personal bitterness. Voting in favor of the plan were Mrs. Natalie Walds and Dr. Benjamin Josephson of Springfield, Edwin Little and Dr. Fred Hagedorn of Berkeley Heights and Manuel Dios and John Cullen of Clark. Opposed were Dr. Minor G. K. Jones of Mountainside, Charles Schneermann of Kenilworth and John E. Conlin of Garwood.

Several board members clashed over aspects of the plan. They included Dr. Josephson and Dr. Jones, Dr. Josephson and Schneermann, Dr. Hagedorn and Dr. Jones and, particularly, Cullen and Little.

The $4,730,000 figure represents a sharp cut from the expansion bond proposal defeated by the voters last spring. The price tag on that plan was nearly $7 million.

The new figure includes construction work at all four high schools. Estimated costs for each school are:

Jonathan Dayton Regional, Springfield, $1,902,000; Arthur L. Johnson Regional, Clark, $1,683,000; Gov. Livingston Regional, Berkeley Heights, $590,000, and David Brearley Regional, Kenilworth, $595,000.

As part of its planning, the board approved a set of "educational specifications for fulfilling the needs of the Union County Regional High School District through the mid-70s."

The preface to that statement reads as follows:

"In order to continue to have a quality educational program in the Regional district, and in order to improve that program to its maximum, it is imperative that much thought be given to the construction and reconstruction of our existing school plants.

"As we move toward the last quarter of the

AFS chapter seeks a family as host for exchange student

The Rev. James Dewart, president of American Field Services International Scholarships, Springfield Chapter, this week appealed to Springfield residents for a family to be host to a foreign student for the 1971-72 school year at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School.

Mr. Dewart stated, "We have been privileged to have Vanya Cavalcanti of Brazil, Keiko Tanagawa of Japan, Alexandra Dilkstra of the Netherlands and this year Marina Francini of Italy, as our international student, thanks to the generosity of the chapter members, adults and students, and to the gracious hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Weisman, Mr. and Mrs. James Klohr and now Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Neidlich, and their families.

"Whether or not we again have a student from another country for a year's stay in Springfield, and are able then to send our own student abroad, depends on the availability of a host family."

According to Mr. Dewart, Springfield has been fortunate not only to be host to students from other nations, but also to send Bernie Dewey to Germany, Pat Kelly to Ireland, Valerie, from which she has just returned, and presently Judy Cohen to South Africa. "The continuation of the American Abroad program, sending our youth to other lands, is contingent on our participation in the other part of the AFS purpose, bringing students to U.S. communities," he added.

The scope of the program was evidenced at a recent meeting of the adult chapter when Miss Weisman told of her experiences in Argentina, and Miss Francini, student from Italy, recounted her activities she and Julie Neidlich enjoyed on a recent ski trip in New York State with a group of black and Puerto Rican students from Hoboken High School in New York.

Mr. Dewart stated that families interested in being host to a student next year, beginning in August, should contact him immediately at 376-6595 or 376-1940. He will provide them with information concerning the responsibilities of the host family. The Weismans and the Neidlicks are also available for information.

Math problem expanded to all township schools

The Springfield Board of Education Monday night voted to extend the Individually Prescribed Instruction (IPI) mathematics program from its experimental status of the past two years to all fourth, fifth and sixth graders and some youngsters in grades 3 and 7.

The meeting, attended by a dozen interested citizens at the Florence Gaudineer School, also included introduction of a new plan to guide staff members in dealing with real or suspected cases of drug abuse. Final action will be taken on this policy change at the April 19 meeting, Robert Johnson, vice-president, presided in the absence of the board president, Canio Casale.

Michael McIntyre, new board member and chairman of the finance committee, reported on progress of the lunch policy instituted this year to permit more youngsters to eat lunch at the elementary schools.

His proposals, approved by the board, were:

1. Cooter from the lunch facilities of children who misbehave.

2. Additional teacher aides at all schools to supervise lunchrooms and playgrounds, with a short training period for now aides.

3. Lunch period to remain one hour, but moved forward from 11:45 a.m. to 12:45 p.m.

4. Teachers or principals to share duty in the schools in the noon hour.

* * *

THE REPORT on the IPI math program was submitted by John O. Berwick, superintendent of schools. He declared:

"Skills in the mechanics of instruction has been a major concern of the teachers of Springfield for a number of years, various methods have been explored and tried and researched by the mathematics committee. During the pre-evaluation phase of investigation, the committee was specifically interested in the Individually Prescribed Instruction (IPI) program developed by Learning Research and Development Center at the University of Pittsburgh. Information was gathered through attendance at professional meetings as well as

Senior citizens get added exemptions in payment of taxes

Springfield Township will deduct $160 this year on tax bills sent out to those eligible for senior citizens tax exemptions, Township Tax Collector Marie Smith announced this week.

Those now eligible for exemptions will have to apply.

She said the deduction will be made under the new law signed by Gov. William Cahill which raises senior citizens exemptions from the former $80 to $160, with the state reimbursing the municipality for the additional $80.

The exemptions are available to those 65 years of age and over if the joint income of husband and wife, exclusive of Social Security is not more than $5,000.

Mrs. Smith pointed out that the clause excluding Social Security payments in determining income ceilings is a welcome change, making possible for senior citizens whose Social Security benefits push their income past the $5,000 mark to be eligible for the exemption, she noted.

Senior citizens now receiving the allowance need not reapply, Mrs. Smith said.

Those who are eligible but were not now receiving senior citizens exemptions should file with the assessor's office at the Municipal Building, she said.

Proof of age and income must be shown when making the application. An income tax form may be used as proof of income.

To be eligible, senior citizens must live on the property for which the exemption is claimed and must have been residents of New Jersey for at least three years.

Antique auto show to be on March 28

The Springfield Recreation Department will sponsor its first annual antique Automobile Show at the Municipal Swimming Pool parking lot on Sunday, March 28, from noon to 2:30 p.m. Rain date is April 4. The owners of the cars, many of whom are members of the New Jersey Region Antique Automobile Club of America, will engage in a half hour of driving field event games.

Don Meyer, president of the New Jersey Region and a resident of Springfield, will offer "all kids under 85 years of age" free rides in his 1937 American LaFrance Fire engine. He will also have his 1931 Rolls Royce Fairton II present. All are welcome to view the show, he added.

Extinguisher fight to cost parents of 5

Five Springfield youths, ranging from 12 to 18 years old, were picked up March 7 at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School by Springfield police for discharging fire extinguishers. The boys were playing basketball in the school and allegedly decided to have a fight using the extinguishers, according to Sgt. Don Tompkins of the juvenile division.

Sgt. Tompkins said the youths' parents will pay the expenses for refilling the extinguishers and for the labor of cleaning up. They were released in their parents' custody and juvenile complaints are pending.

Two 12-year old Union girls were picked up for allegedly shoplifting two mascara wands, worth 87 cents, at a Newberry's Saturday. The girls were apprehended by the store manager who turned them over to Sgt. Tompkins. They were released in their parents' custody and juvenile complaints are pending.

Board meets Tuesday at Brearley Regional

The regular monthly meeting of the Union County Regional High School District Board of Education will be held Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the cafeteria at the David Brearley Regional High School, Kenilworth.

Series probes for answers to drug problems

What hire the schools doing in the way of drug education? What can I as a parent do to help the communication gap with my children?

These are two of the questions that people in Springfield are asking.

The answers to these and other questions, hopefully will be answered beginning next Monday evening in the first of three programs designed to focus on drug related problems in the community.

"Drugs: A Turning Point," being sponsored by the Springfield Mayor's Commission for the Prevention of Drug Abuse and the Union County Regional Adult School, in cooperation with the Springfield Council of PTAs, will attempt to supply some answers "because we already know what the problem is."

Two local educators will open the series next Monday at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School with a discussion of what the Springfield public schools and the Regional District is doing in the way of drug education.

The featured speakers will be Mrs. Lucille Wenger, health and physical education teacher at Florence M. Gaudineer School, and Gerald Rittenberg, health educator at the Jonathan Dayton school.

The program will get underway at 8 p.m. in Room 19.

The local members are Ruth Force, Jackie Herzlinger, Dan Kalem and Dave Wolnstolt.

Under Wanted: Very much

Every once in a while, a newspaper turns down an advertisement, or on occasion, because the information makes a better newsitem. This happened last year, when Sgt/8 Bonnie M. Lynch went on "APB," telling Joanne La"Rosa of 6 Albert ct., Springfield, that absence indeed made his heart grow fonder.

This week, he sent in the sequel: "Joanne, it's been a long year, but thanks for your love I've made it and will soon be home again with you!" We expect to continue the story in the future, but on the social page.

DANGEROUS PLAYTHINGS: Common analgesic-type (pain killer) compounds which are found in practically every home are responsible for most childhood poisonings, according to a report this week by the are Poison Control Center located at Memorial General Hospital, Union. Story on Page 13.

Science teachers hold workshop at Gaudineer School

The New Jersey Science Teachers Association and the New Jersey Department of Education sponsored an elementary science workshop at Florence Gaudineer School, Springfield on March 6. During the workshops, elementary teachers, science supervisors, and curriculum coordinators had the opportunity to work with environmental educational materials.

The workshops, each emphasizing particular grade areas covered a variety of topics.

"Education for Survival," the first workshop was presented in two sessions. David F. Moore, executive director of the North Jersey Conservation Foundation, and Kenneth T. Kellers, chief naturalist for the Monmouth County Park Commission, provided a background of plant and animal ecosystems during the first session. The second session, based on a teachers' curriculum guide published by the Foundation and developed by David Moore and Dr. Gertrude Tempe, demonstrated the interweaving of ecological concepts into the curriculum.

"The Great Wide World Outside," presented by Naomi Cory, specialist in science education, stressed using the senses to discover and explain, at the child's level, all phases of life in the environment in which he lives.

Christopher Ross, in the workshop "Water Ecology," provided teachers with techniques for studying the interaction of animals, plants, weather, soil, and water. Emphasizing the food-energy chain, he showed how to relate all forms of life around a water source.

Slide-making and staining were two of several topics covered in the workshop "Basic Microscope Techniques." Consultants to this workshop were Robert Simmons and Daniel Bauer.

Ken Morrow, supervising the workshop "Water Pollution," allowed participants to conduct experiments and investigations related to water quality which they can later perform with their own classes.

Using techniques developed at Newark State College by the School of the Outdoors Foundation, Carolyn Crowell demonstrated in the workshop "Air Pollution," how to involve students in inquiry into and discovery of controls for the problems of air pollution.

Boys and girls from the Summit Area YMCA swim teams, known as the "Summit Y Seals," will represent the local Y at the YMCA national championship meet to be held at the Swimming Hall of Fame in Fort Lauderdale, Dale, Fla., April 21 to 24.

Approximately 50 swimmers will be selected by qualifying trials from among the other Summit team members. They will compete against teams from all over the United States.

All 200 members of the Summit Y swim teams and their parents will cooperate in fund-raising efforts to help finance the trip for the representatives.

The weekend of March 27 and 28 will be designated "Seal Weekend" at which time there will be a "white" elephant sale held at the Y auditorium, and a two day "Swimathon" to be held in the pool.

In addition, bumper stickers will be sold bearing the message, "Send the Summit Y Seals to YMCA Nationals."

Every swimmer regardless of his ability will be able to contribute laps toward the project. The public will be invited to see the "Swimathon."

Joseph Dunn of New Providence is in charge of fund raising activities, with Mrs. Calvin Doonan of Summit in charge of the White Elephant Sale.

The tenth annual state-wide art exhibition sponsored by the Westfield Art Association will open on Sunday in the Campus Center at Union College, Cranford.

The exhibit of some 200 original paintings by artists here or living in New Jersey will be open to the public without charge through March 27 from 1 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. and March 28 from 1 to 5 p.m. More than 4,000 people visited last year's exhibit and a larger attendance is expected this year.

The exhibit will open formally on Saturday with a reception for participating artists, members of the Westfield Art Association, Union College officials and guests from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Student Lounge of the Campus Center. Awards totalling $1,200 will be presented at that time.

Judges will be Ernest Briggs and Theodores Stamos of New York, both men are nationally recognized artists and critics. Briggs is also on the faculty of Pratt Institute.

The judges, according to Mr. Harold Gian of Mountainside, exhibit chairman, represent both the contemporary and traditional approach to painting. Briggs is considered a traditionalist and Stamos is known principally as an abstract painter.

The top award is the $200 Elizabeth Tomasello Award for best in show. The Pinter-Stamos of $100 recognizes the artist's exploration in concept and materials. The $50 Herald Hizlock Award will be presented for the "most small realistic oil, 12" by 16" or less."

Other awards for oils include: the $100 Louis J. Dugit Award; $75 Donors Award; $50 Award in memory of Morton Dowd Cook; $50 L.A. Frame Co. merchandise award, and an M. Grumbacher Artists Material Award.

Awards for graphics include: the $50 Felice Award for first place; $30 Patrons Award and Darry's Frame Shop Merchandise Certificate.

The four awards to be presented for works in watercolors include: the $100 City Federal Savings & Loan Association Award; a $75 Combination Award; the $50 Jane Smith Award, and $50 John Franks Award.

For paintings involving mixed media, awards include: the $100 Hugh M. Long Memorial Award; the Westfield Art Supply Merchandise Certificate, and Socour Artists Colors, Inc. Award.

BRIGGS, A NATIVE of San Diego, Cal., studied at the Schaeffer School of Design in San Francisco and is a graduate of the California School of Fine Arts, San Francisco. The 47-year old painter has exhibited his work in galleries and museums from Maine to California, including the Museum of Modern Art and the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York, the Allan Frumkin Gallery in Chicago, the San Francisco Museum of Art and the Dallas Museum of Contemporary Art.

His awards include the Albert Bender Grant and the Anne Bremmer Memorial Prize for Painting. His teaching assignments have taken him to the Yale University Graduate School of Art and the University of Florida. He has also been visiting critic at a number of colleges and universities, including the Philadelphia College of Art and Johns Hopkins University.

February wetter and warmer than usual, UC reports

February was warmer, but wetter than normal, according to data provided by Harold D. Dollock, meteorologist at the U.S. Coast Guard station, Union County Park, Cranford, in his monthly meteorological summary to the National Weather Service.

Temperatures for the month ranged from 63 degrees on Feb. 27 down to 3 degrees on Feb. 3. The average temperature of 33.8 degrees, was 1.7 degrees above normal, according to Dollock.

The thermometer reached 40 degrees or above on 14 days during February and dropped to 25-or below on 14 days. The coldest day in February on record was Feb. 13, 1967, when minus 4 degrees was recorded.

Precipitation for the month totaled 5.18 inches, which is 1.11 inches above normal. The greatest amount of rain within a twenty-four hour period, 1.06 inches, fell on Feb. 7 and 8.

Red Cross offers film and speakers to groups in county

A film showing the American Red Cross at work and the services of a Speakers Bureau are available to clubs and organizations, a spokesman for the Eastern Union County Red Cross noted this week.

Miss Genoveve Pascale, chairman of the public relations committee for the chapter, made the announcement as she pointed out that March is being observed as Red Cross month.

"During the month, we are even more anxious than ever to spread the word and tell the story of the American Red Cross," Miss Pascale said. "The film is educational, not fund-raising in nature. Anyone wishing further information on it may call the Red Cross at 353-2500," Miss Pascale added.

"The Red Cross is more than coffee and bandages. The American Red Cross is the instrument chosen by the Congress to help carry out the obligations assumed by the United States under certain international treaties known as the Geneva or Red Cross Conventions. Specifically, its Congressional charter imposes on the American Red Cross the duties to act as the medium of voluntary relief and communication between the American people and their armed forces, and to carry on a system of national and international relief to prevent and mitigate suffering caused by disasters.

"All the activities of the American Red Cross and its chapters support these duties.

"Nationally and locally the American Red Cross is governed by volunteers, most of its duties are performed by volunteers and it is financed by voluntary contributions. Red Cross expenditures are audited annually by the Department of Defense.

"Your American Red Cross helps people — members of the armed forces, veterans and their families, victims of disasters and emergencies, those who need blood, those who need books in Braille or a hospital bed or a wheelchair or crutches, those who need instruction in baby and nursing care and those who want training in first aid and water safety. Your Red Cross is more than doughnuts and hot soup. You may want to help other people, too, by serving as a Red Cross volunteer."

Serving on the Speakers' Bureau are: the Rev. Robert Scott, Westminster Presbyterian Church, Roselle; Mrs. Gerard Hillside; Roger Dean Ashe of Elizabeth; Wesley C. Hick of Cranford; Ralph W. Jones of Elizabeth; Charles Fanchar of Elizabeth; Miss Alice Holland of Roselle Park; the Rev. Walter Gale of Elizabeth, and Anne Perceval of Elizabeth.

Two hikes are planned

Two hikes are scheduled this weekend for members and guests of the Union County Hiking Club.

On Saturday, Lillian Deeno of Piscataway will lead an eight-mile hike along the Raritan Canal from Griggstown to Princeton. The group will meet at West End avenue and Route 22, North Plainfield, at 9 a.m.

On Sunday, Donald McNeil of Westfield will lead a nine-mile hike from Popolopen to Turkey Hill in the Bear Mountain Reservation, New York. The group will meet at the Bear Mountain inn parking area at 9:30 a.m.

Further information concerning the hikes is available from the recreation department of the Union County Park Commission.

Heart Association to present 'Industrialist-of-Year' award

The Union County Heart Association will present its first "Heart Industrialist-of-the-Year Award" to the Schering Corporation of Union and Kenilworth, it was announced this week by State Sen. Matthew J. Rinaldo, chairman of the Union County Heart Association's annual fund drive.

He explained that the award, which will be presented annually to a Union County firm that "helps the cause of heart in an extraordinary manner," will be given to Schering during the Heart Association's dinner next fall.

"Almost from the inception of the Heart Fund in this county, Schering has gone out of its way to help," Rinaldo explained. He added that the pharmaceutical company has generously placed its cafeteria facilities in Union and at its White Pharmaceutical plant in Kenilworth at the disposal of Heart Association volunteers.

"Schering has also encouraged one of its employees, Robert Thompson, to serve as president and fund raising chairman for several years," Rinaldo continued. He noted that Thompson has also served six years as a member of the Union County Heart Association's board of directors.

Rinaldo also pointed out that "Schering's policy of hiring rehabilitated cardiac patients was another factor in the firm's selection.

"Schering has discovered through experience that cardiac patients can make excellent employees," he said.

As examples, Rinaldo cited Robin Todaro and Theodore Hoover, two Schering employees who have successfully undergone heart surgery. Miss Todaro, a Rahway resident, is a file clerk in Schering's Kenilworth plant. She had her heart surgery seven years ago. Hoover, a records control clerk in the company's accounting department, is a Millburn resident who twice underwent heart surgery.

"For its cooperation with our drives and its foresight in hiring the handicapped, the Union County Heart Association will honor this fine company," Rinaldo concluded.

Top cop backs college for cops

"I think I'm a good cop, but I'm sure I could have been a better one if I'd had a college education at the beginning of my career," Police Chief George Shelbourne of Hillside said this week.

The 23-year veteran of the Hillside Police Department wasn't merely speculating about the value of a college education to a law enforcement officer. Chief Shelbourne is better than halfway through the law enforcement program at Union College and about a year away from an associate in arts degree in law enforcement.

Chief Shelbourne is so convinced that a good officer can improve 100 percent with a college education that he's worked to upgrade the requirements for recruits in the Hillside Police Department. All applicants, he said, must now have 30 college credits applicable to an associate degree in law enforcement.

Union College's law enforcement program was established in 1969. It was developed at the request of the Union County Police Chiefs Association and in cooperation with the New Jersey Police Training Commission. Originally offered only in the evening classes and only to those already in law enforcement careers, the program will be extended to the day session in September and will be open to all those interested in pursuing a career in law enforcement.

Day session classes will be held at the college's Plainfield campus. Its two year curriculum includes English composition, U.S. history, mathematics or science, psychology, sociology, public administration, and several courses in law enforcement, including police organization and administration, contemporary problems in law enforcement, police management, patrol administration and the role of the police in the community. The program also provides for guest lectures.

Family crisis' is conference topic

The Union County Mental Health Council will be one of the sponsors of the ninth annual Mental Health Conference to be held Tuesday, March 30, at the New Jersey State Hospital, Marlboro.

The theme of the conference will be "The Family Faces a Crisis." The panel will discuss the changing pattern of family life and its impact on the home, children and personal and social relationships.

The members of the planning committee include Mrs. Gerhard Walsch of Union County. The members of the panel are: Dr. Michael R. Simon, clinical director, Marlboro State Hospital; Professor William Neal Brown, Graduate School of Social Work, Rutgers University, moderator; Franz W. Hunzeri, director of child psychiatry, Monmouth Medical Center, and Dr. Rocco Magliozzi, pupil personnel service, East Brunswick public schools.

Dr. Weiss named to association unit

Dr. Nathan Weiss, president of Newark State College, Union, has been named a member of the committee on policies and purposes of the American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

The committee of college presidents will plan and supervise programs of the association, which has members from 276 state-supported, colleges and regional universities in 46 states, the District of Columbia, Guam and the Virgin Islands.

The association is a vehicle for coordinated action and research programs and a clearinghouse for information. It is a cooperative mechanism by which member institutions can work together to improve and advance higher education.

Through its Washington headquarters, it also serves as a voice speaking for low-cost higher education available to all students who can benefit from it.

Stamp catalogues will be discussed

The Stanley Gibbons Stamp Catalogues will be the center of interest at a meeting of the Westfield Stamp Club at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Westfield Rescue Squad Building, South avenue and spring street.

Peter J. Dutton, manager of the New York office of Stan Gibbs Ltd., will discuss the various phases of the stamp catalogues issued by Stanley Gibbons, Ltd. with emphasis on their assembly, composition, use and value to the stamp collector. This will be an opportunity for the members to receive answers to some of the catalogue questions with which they have been concerned and to obtain a better understanding of their use.

The program will be followed by refreshments and a trading session in duplicate stamps.

Industrial personnel attend safety classes

Union County Technical Institute, Scotch Plains, is conducting a 10-week Basic Electrical Safety course for industrial personnel.

Topics included in the course are: accident prevention, safety protective equipment, care of electrical test equipment, and electrical fire prevention and control.

Classes are conducted Tuesdays from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Technical Institute, 1776 Raritan rd., Scotch Plains. The course opened on Feb. 16 and will continue through April 20.

Women's group voices opposition to the draft

The Union County Chapter of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom has endorsed a statement opposing extension of the draft. The statement said:

"We oppose the Selective Service's decision to advance the date of the vote to this month on the extension of the draft. We feel this was done to prevent public protest against the continuance of the Selective Service Act. We urge all citizens to protest this tactic immediately by writing to Senators Case and Williams and request that they vote for repeal of the draft."

League issues information sheet on candidates for Regional board

The Springfield League of Women Voters this week released the annual information sheet on candidates for election to the Regional High School Board of Education on March 30. There will be a candidates' night forum tonight at 8 at the Edward Walton School.

Each candidate asked to familiarize himself or her background of community service and to answer two questions: "In your view, how effectively does our Regional structure meet our students' needs?", "What changes, if any, would you attempt to bring about within the present system?"

THE CANDIDATES PROVIDED the following responses:

SONYA C. DORSKY

247 Millburn rd., Occupation, high school teacher, Educational background-New York University, School of Education, bachelor of science degree, Children: Bob-Sophomore at Jonathan Dayton Reg. High School; Steven-Graduated from Jonathan Dayton, June, 1970.

Experience in education, administration and community activities:

Vice-president, Springfield Board of Education 1970-71 (also vice-president several years ago); member, Springfield Board of Education 1967-71; board of education committees: membership, chairman and member school government committee and school advisory committee; chairman and/or member of supplies committee, lunchroom committee, recreation representative, building and grounds committee; representative, Union County School Boards Association; member, New Jersey School Boards Association; member, National Education Association; New Jersey Education Association; commissioner, Union County Education Services Commission.

Prepared, coordinated and presented-to the Springfield Board of Education, for adoption, its first policy book; member, executive board, Parent-Teacher-Student-Association of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, also chairman of education committee for PTSA.

Have attended Regional High School liaison committee meetings as member of Springfield Board of Education; teacher at Columbia High School, Maplewood-South Orange, since 1966; substitute teacher at Jonathan Dayton 1960-1966.

To evaluate whether or not the Regional structure meets the needs of the Springfield students, it is necessary to determine if the following objectives are met:

1. The school should be staffed with superior teachers and administrators.

2. Textbooks should be up-to-date and sufficient in quantity.

3. The library must be stocked, staffed and utilized.

4. Our tax dollar must be effectively and efficiently used.

5. Foreign language labs should exist and should be fully utilized.

6. The staff should be encouraged to be imaginative and innovative.

7. Class size should permit proper planning and teaching.

8. There should be sufficient course offerings for a four-year high school program.

9. Science labs should be properly equipped.

10. A learning atmosphere should be encouraged.

11. Courses of study must be up-to-date.

12. Advanced placement courses should be offered.

13. The guidance department should do an effective job with vocational and college guidance.

14. Articulation should exist between the Regional and elementary school district.

15. The school should reflect the needs of the community.

Changes should take place when the structure interferes with the establishment and maintenance of these goals.

ROBERT WARREN HALSEY

22 Dunham rd; living in school district 22 years in Springfield (38 years in Regional district). Occupation: representative of Mutual of Omaha. Educational background: graduate, U.S. Merchant Marine Academy; graduate, Rutgers University, School of Business Administration; post-graduate work, Columbia University (management). Children: none.

Experience in education, administration and community activities: administration: financial planning, long-range and operational; review financial performance; develop and implement policy for line operations; management analysis; personnel selection, Education: management development programs.

Community activities: member and former president, of Springfield Library trustees; former troop committee chairman, Boy Scouts of America; member, Springfield Lions Club member, Dayton Boosters Club.

In my opinion, the Regional organization has, in most respects, functioned effectively in meeting the students' needs. That doesn't mean that community organization cannot offer beneficial-in the form of an integrated program of education. However, it is not a panacea for educational ills. More important for our students is sound development, implementation and administration of educational activities.

I believe in strengthening recruitment, selection and motivation of personnel. With this foundation, I think it essential to improve communications between administration, teachers and students. Finally, I'm a believer in evaluating performance and programs; then taking action based on the results of the evaluation.

Springfield Public Library reports on newest books for local readers

By DIANA CONSTANTAN

The Springfield Public Library lists the following titles among the books recently acquired.

ANTIQUES

"Antiques in Miniature," by Kathrine McClinton. This book is concerned with what may be termed—medium-sized antiques, those too large for dolls' houses and not big enough for children's furniture. These antiques are suitably scaled for cabinet shelves. The book includes furniture, silver, pottery and porcelain and glass.

"The Collector's Book of Boxes," by Marian Klamkin. Marian Klamkin does for boxes what Kathrine McClinton does for miniatures. There are 182 photographs. This book concentrates on boxes from around the world which may be available to the collector and explains where to look for them.

AUTOBIOGRAPHICAL

"Involuntary Journey to Siberia," by Andrei Amalrik. This first detailed account to reach the West about life as an exile on a collective farm is written by a resolute non-conformist. This autobiographical account is absorbing on several counts. To begin with, the author is an accomplished writer with an original mind. In addition, he reports without bias, without illusion and resentment and with total fearlessness.

• • •

"Drug Abuse and Addiction," by Barbara Milbauer. This text book for parents, teenagers, and young adults is a most complete analysis of medical, psychological and legal facts. Read every drug contributing to today's problem.

• • •

ART

"Social Radicalism and the Arts, Western Europe," by Donald Drew Egbert. In this brilliant, exhaustive work with 1000 illustrations, Egbert examines analyses and criticizes the ways in which the political and social convictions of Western European artists, from the French Revolution to the present, have affected not only their lives but also their creations and their society. Here is a comprehensive portrayal of the artistic, literary, musical, architectural, and philosophical environment of Europe in the past two centuries.

Letters To Editor

Letters to the editor must be received no later than noon on Monday of the week they are to appear. They should not exceed 350 words in length and should be typed with double spacing between lines (not all capital letters, please). All letters must be signed. The writer's name will be withheld only at the editor's discretion, and never if the letter is of a political nature. This newspaper reserves the right to edit or reject any letter.

TEEN GYM TIME

I would like to ask you about the athletic program in Springfield. Every weekend we look for a place to play basketball.

I am a student at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School and, of the two gyms in our school, not one is open. The Gaudineer School has leagues on Saturdays and uses their two gyms, our boys' gym and the gym at the Caldwell School.

Out of the two gyms at the high school, the boys' gym is used and the girls' gym is absolutely wasted. There are five gyms in Springfield and we are not allowed to use one.

Gaudineer uses four gyms. We should be able to use at least one. Even the men in our town are allowed to play basketball at the Caldwell School one night a week.

Every Saturday after the Gaudineer leagues are finished, the men play a half-court game. We asked permission to use the other half and they refused. They gave us no reason why the one half was just wasted while we watched.

I am asking you to publish this so people will know how it is. I would like to have one gym open on Saturdays and Sundays.

JAMES RAGUCCI
23 Colonial cr.

(Ed. note: Teen basketball is scheduled every Saturday evening from 7 to 9:30 at the Gaudineer girls' gym, and also Wednesday evenings at the same time and place.)

PEACE MARCHER

On April 24 there will be a massive demonstration in Washington, D.C., to demand the immediate withdrawal of all American forces from Indochina, and the immediate end of the draft. If we could get at least 40 people from Springfield who would like to go, we could charter a bus from the New York Peace Action Coalition, and have it leave from Springfield. The trip would cost at most $10 per person, round trip.

If we could get 49 people to go, which is the maximum number that one bus can hold, the cost could be brought down to $8.25. The absolute deadline for chartering a bus is April 17, but I strongly urge anyone who is interested in going to act as soon as possible.

If you are interested in going, please feel free to contact me at 376-8281, any weekday after 9:30. The war won't end unless we work at it. Let's do it!

THE FUTURE LOOK

I am concerned with what Springfield is going to look like this summer.

I walk from my home to Mountain avenue and see paper and trash all around. Is that what Springfield is going to look like soon?

I think that something should be done about people throwing paper and garbage on the streets. I try to remember when I have paper in my hand to throw it in the trash cans that have been provided. If everyone would throw his or her piece of paper in the trash can, Springfield would look clean.

All I can say is to provide more trash cans around Springfield and fine people if they litter the streets.

Have you been around Mountain avenue lately? Go there and see if anyone has you son.

Report from Trenton

By State Senator Matthew J. Rinaldo

Two recent hearings of a joint New Jersey and New York legislative committee studying the Port of New York Authority's role in mass transit have convinced me that the Port Authority's reaction to Governor Cahill's call for more active involvement in this area is shameful.

After having questioned Port Authority Executive Director Austin Tobin at the hearing, I came away certain that the behemoth agency has no intention of voluntarily performing the major role it is uniquely equipped to play in this vital area. Tobin made it quite clear that his agency has not altered its negative attitude toward mass transit. He also indicated that the Port Authority would do anything Governor Cahill and Rockefeller want — so long as it is profitable and within its own peculiar, parochial concepts of its role.

In other words, even if the states of New York and New Jersey enacted identical legislation giving the Port Authority responsibility for a mass transit plan, the agency conceivably might ignore the legislative mandate unless the plan recommended by the agency promised enough profit to wished to get into its own.

• • •

IN RECENT YEARS, the Port Authority has used its justification for shunning unwanted projects 1962 laws enacted by New York and New Jersey that gave bondholders assurance that the agency will not be forced into any mass transit projects involving deficits that exceed an amount computed under a complicated formula. Since the Port Authority has issued bonds that do not mature until 2000, it should be clear that Governors Cahill and Rockefeller and the legislatures of the two states are engaging in exercises in futility in hoping that the Port Authority will get involved with mass transit. By agreeing to study four of Governor Cahill's excellent proposals, the Port Authority is buying at least two more years of time to which to continue shirking what I regard as its duty to take meaningful action on mass transit.

Those familiar with the Port Authority's evasive tactics will recall that the agency went into the mass transit program feet-last nearly a decade ago, but when it finally permitted itself to be dragged in, the agency won approval of the laws in New York and New Jersey that effectively give it veto power over any future forays into mass transit that might be mandated by the two states.

• • •

NEW YORK ATTORNEY Theodore Kheel has called on to overturn that law in the state. A similar suit has been filed in New Jersey. Kheel seeks to nullify the 1962 law that he contends is Port Authority abuse of its justification for refusing to spend more than one-percent of its bonded indebtedness on railroad projects unless they carry freight or are profitable. As Kheel so aptly put it, during a news conference, "If it's profitable, why needs the Port Authority?"

A victory in the courts for Kheel could be a milestone in the battle of the States of New Jersey and New York to force the Port of New York Authority to take a more active role in mass transit. However, should Kheel fail to prevail, the Cahill and Rockefeller administrations should support legislation to repeal those most unusual laws that the Port Authority has used as a shield to keep it out of mass transit on a large scale.

Whether the laws are overturned in court or by legislative action, they must be removed from the books so the States of New York and New Jersey can tell the Port Authority what to do in the field of mass transportation and not wait for any more "studies."

PROFILE--Mrs. Sonya Dorsky

Mrs. Sonya Dorsky is concerned that high school students receive the best possible education. This is one reason she is running for the Regional High School Board of Education.

She said, "I had no intention of running but an opening became available, plus a peculiar set of circumstances. I felt I was qualified for the job. I tried to ignore it and couldn't. Besides, I have one kid in Jonathan Dayton Regional High School and one who graduated.

"I was a substitute at Dayton for four or five years. I had the opportunity to be in almost every class — from English on. When you get in and out of the classroom you get an inside picture of the school and how it functions. You get opinions. It's a marvelous background.

"I was on the Springfield Board of Education for nine years. It takes a while to become effective as a board member. You learn the board's policy and how it functions. Once you learn you can put right to the problem.

"Any new job is a learning process. If you don't learn how to function you're ineffective. This town cannot afford this. I just could not turn away from my responsibility.

"I feel I can contribute experience and an understanding of the school and its problems. A board member should be able to receive the backing of this community. This can be done by getting them interested, by informing them of what is going on. A board member should be able to receive the advice of the community.

"You have to get people's ideas so you can know how to represent them. The people should know what you as a board member are doing.

• • •

"YOU SHOULD KEEP the door of communication open by keeping the public informed and getting their ideas. You should also keep in contact with the teachers so you can exchange ideas."

Mrs. Dorsky believes in getting the most out of anything, especially when it comes to education. She commented, "I feel the board has to demonstrate excellence. Anything less should be tolerated. The people are paying enough to demand that they receive the best representation. If we don't give our best it isn't fair to the kids. They will become restless, bored and disenchanted with education. Anything less is to cheat them."

Individualism in schools, even within the Regional District, is important to her. Mrs. Dorsky explained, "I think individuals have the right to be individual, just as people are individual. The school is individual even though it is a part of a larger structure. It should not be put into the same exact mold as the other schools in the district."

"When you force a school into a mold you rob it of its ability to be innovative, the ability to function to what is pertinent for today and for a teacher to be innovative and original. A school should not have to conform to a definite time schedule. It should have the right to function as an individual unit so it can utilize what it has."

Mrs. Dorsky said her life seems to be "one-dimensional" because she is so deeply involved in education. For the past five years she has taught at Columbia High School in Maplewood.

• • •

THE SPRINGFIELD Board of Education had her services for nine years, including several terms as the board's vice-president. Mrs. Dorsky is a member of the New Jersey Education Association, the National Education Association, the New Jersey School Boards Association and the Union County School Boards Association.

Last year she received an appointment as a commissioner to the Union County Educational Services Commission. This organization was formed to meet the special needs among others of small groups of children in local communities, such as those who are bedridden, so they can receive all their educational needs. The commission provides services only if any specific town does not have enough students to qualify for its own special education program, Mrs. Dorsky explained. It also aids local boards in other ways.

She was born in Manhattan where she went to high school. She received her bachelor of science degree in education from New York University. But she received her MA degree before obtaining her bachelor's.

Married 21 years, she and her husband, Larry, have two sons. Steven, 19, is a freshman at Rutgers University, New Brunswick. Bob, 16, is a sophomore at Dayton Regional. They live at 247 Millburn rd.

From N.J. Taxpayers Association

TAXES TAKE LION'S BITE OF AMERICANS' WORK DAY

It is no consolation to taxpayers struggling with their federal income tax returns for April 15 report, all taxes will consume six minutes less of their working day this year.

Nevertheless, observes the New Jersey Taxpayers Association, Americans on an average will spend two hours and 37 minutes each eight-hour working day to meet federal, state and local tax obligations in 1971. Last year it took two hours and 43 minutes to satisfy demands of the army of tax collectors throughout the nation, similar calculations prepared by the Tax Foundation, a national research organization, show.

While part of the six-minute saving was attributed to federal tax reductions, a "short fall" in revenues at all levels of government due to the economic recession will have an effect, according to the Tax Foundation. It estimates that it will take more than two and one-half hours of taxpayers' toil for government this year, one and three-quarter hours will go to federal taxes and the remainder to pay state and local governmental units.

The total tax dollar this year will be more than demands of food, housing and clothing upon the family budget. The breakdown of the eight-hour working day shows the following allocations:

ITEM
Taxes	2 hours, 37 minutes
Food-Tobacco	1 hour, 3 minutes
Housing	1 hour, 1 minute
Transportation	38 minutes
Clothing	25 minutes
Medical	23 minutes
Recreation	19 minutes
All other	1 hour, 34 minutes

Temple Sharey Shalom to present special 'creative service' tomorrow

Rabbi Howard Shapiro, spiritual leader of Temple Sharey Shalom, Springfield, will conduct a special "creative service" at the Sabbath evening service tomorrow at 8 p.m.

The service, entitled "New Windows on an Ancient Day" will feature music by Ron Brown, music director of the synagogue, "poems of prayer by Maria Mosch and dedicated to the memory of Dr. Samuel Glueck.

Dr. Glueck, who died on Feb. 12, was the president of the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion, and leader of Reform Judaism. In speaking of Dr. Glueck, Rabbi Shapiro stated: "He was a committed Jew and Zionist, a forward looking man of the spirit and deed. His life was one of love for Israel, and service to her cause. The service in his memory is both new and old. It reflects his love and concern for Israel, the Jewish people and all mankind."

The "creative service" was formulated by Rabbi Richard S. Levy, and is currently being considered by the Central Conference of American Rabbis for inclusion in a new Reform prayer book.

In describing the new service, Rabbi Levy explained: "It is hoped that the words, music and participants involved in this service will help the worshipper transcend the literal meanings of ancient prayers and find his own understandings behind the common words he desires to retain as a reminder of his bond with his people, with our common past and with God.

"The service is based on the assumption that the majority of worshippers will come to it with three basic questions: 1) Is religion of the value of prayer in their lives; 2) Ignorance about the meaning of the Jewish prayer service; 3) anger that public worship too often forces them into the role of passive spectators, accompanying the cantor when they feel the life rather than helping them to overcome it.

"THE SERVICE DEALS with these feelings in the following ways:

"Doubt: Some prayers consciously articulate doubts frequently found among our worshippers. These readings encourage the worshipper, by voicing his doubts aloud in a chorus of fellow worshippers, to eliminate much of the guilt about his doubts. Further, new interpretations of some problematic prayers are intended to help the worshipper to participate wholeheartedly in a service which both recognizes doubt and encourages a struggle toward overcoming it. The service aims to overcome from an atheistic doubt, what right have we to sit praying when the world around us is in flames? The concluding portions of the service express an important Reform view that the end of worship is not only in itself, but as well in the ethical actions to which the worshipper should feel impelled after he has left the prayer room. The reader may wish to make that impulsion specific by scheduling a discussion or an action workshop at the conclusion of the Kiddush.

"Ignorance: The service retains the traditional structure of the Jewish prayer service and includes much Midrashic interpretation of prayers, as well as contemporary interpretations. Each traditional section includes sufficient interpretative material to enable a worshipper who has participated in this service several months to read the understandings internalized here into a 'regular' service, with the Union Prayerbook or the siddur. The traditional interpretive material in the service also enables it to be utilized as a text for the study of Jewish prayer.

"Anger: Doubt and ignorance are the cause of much of the anger felt by many of our worshippers, but another is the sense of alienation often produced by the very convenience of worship in a mass group. The many opportunities for silent prayer encourage the worshipper to explore his own thoughts and yearnings, and the several invitations to share those private thoughts with others specifically intend to break down the sense of isolation from other worshippers engendered by most large-scale worship. Another factor often promoting the alienation of worshippers is the sense of remoteness of the rabbi and others on the pulpit. Through participation in the introductions, discussions, and the concluding blessing of the neighbor, the reader can come down from the pulpit and show that he is, after all, but another worshipper, creating a moment of an isolated, rigid observer, but of a participant free to reach out to fellow worshippers, and from them to God. The strolling cantor with his guitar should provide a similar model."

March 31 windup for United Fund

Harvey A. Schramm, chairman of the Springfield United Fund, has announced plans for the closing of the 1970-1971 campaign of the United Fund. Schramm stated that March 31 would be the termination date of the current campaign.

The Springfield United Fund did attain its goal of $15,000, falling short by $3,000. Schramm issued an urgent plea for donations from Springfield who have not yet made their contribution for the current campaign to do so before the closing date of March 31.

Campaign would begin in October this year.

Police arrest four in two incidents for possession of drug

Four persons were arrested last week by Springfield police and charged with possession of drugs in two separate incidents.

Police said Dennis G. Cannerella and Charles Clark, both of Elizabeth, were arrested last Thursday afternoon after police stopped them for questioning. The car's driver reportedly could not produce the registration. Upon searching the car, the investigating officer reportedly found marijuana on one of the men. The man then allegedly admitted they had been passing it back and fourth. They were released on $50 bail each and are due in court April 5.

Seth Leonard of Port Washington, N.Y., and David Bell of Sands Point, N.Y., were arrested last Wednesday morning, police reported. They allegedly were driving on Rt. 22 at 4 a.m. when police reportedly noticed a piece of marijuana in the back of the car which they suspected to have been stolen. Upon investigation it was discovered that the furniture belonged to the mother of one of the men.

However, police said the driver was unable to produce the auto registration. Upon searching the car, the investigating officer allegedly found marijuana on one of the men. The man allegedly admitted they had been passing it back and forth. They were released on $200 bail each and are due in court Monday.

Five persons suffer injuries in Springfield auto accidents

Charles L. Wong of Orange was given a summons Saturday afternoon for careless driving even though he was not behind the wheel, according to Springfield police. His car, operated by Kwok Sau Mai of Newark, who was driving on a learner's permit, was involved in a collision. The accident involving Wong's car and a truck driven by Peter P. Smith of Cranford happened at the intersection of Shunpike road and Mountain avenue.

Police said the truck, owned by the Crefer Vault Co., Garwood, had stopped at the intersection and was waiting for the light to change. Mai was approaching the light and accidentally put his foot on the gas pedal instead of the brake.

Three persons were slightly injured Friday night in an accident on Rt. 22 West near Stern avenue, police reported. The two drivers, Robert E. Hedrick of West Millington and Janet D. Barton of Cranford, and a passenger in the Barton car, Robert D. Debermardine of Brooklyn, were taken by the Springfield First Aid Squad to Overlook Hospital, Summit, where they were treated and discharged.

According to police, Hedrick was traveling west on the highway when the Barton car pulled out from Pizza Town USA. There were about 100 feet in skid marks from Hedrick's vehicle, police said. Both cars had to be towed away.

Angelino Bastle of Union was slightly injured last Thursday afternoon in a three-vehicle accident at the corner of Morris avenue and Center street, police said. The Springfield First Squad took her to Overlook Hospital where she was treated and discharged.

The police report said the Bastle car and a vehicle driven by William L. Servider of Newark were going west on Morris avenue. The Bastle vehicle struck Servider's car, his car was pushed into another car that left the scene before police arrived.

A car driven by Ong J. Karasa of Berkeley Heights was allegedly responsible for an accident involving cars driven by Roberto J. Parvin of Union and Delzon Kingert of Somerville on Rt. 22 West by the Echo Plaza Shopping Center, police said. Parvin, who was slightly injured, told police he would see his own doctor.

The police report said the Parvin car and Kingert's vehicle, owned by Magnetic Decoration of Somerville, were traveling west on the highway when the Karasa car suddenly pulled out of the shopping center. The Kingert car struck Parvin's car in the rear. Mrs. Karasa was not involved in the collision. She drove on but returned to the scene after a witness caught up with her and told her what had happened.

Curtis M. Brittle of Chatham was given a summons by police last Thursday morning for driving without glasses after his car was struck by a vehicle driven by Daniel Scarano of Millington, police said. The accident occurred at the corner of Morris and Short Hills avenues.

According to police, Scarano was traveling east on Morris when a car driven by Diane Rice of Chappaqua, N.Y., pulled out of a driveway on Morris avenue and cut him off. The Scarano car was forced to cross the center line and collided with Brittle's vehicle that was going west on Morris.

Union youth, 20, turns himself in

Albert Peters, 20, of Union was arrested Friday by Springfield police in connection with a break and entry Thursday night at the Kaufman Carpet Company on Rt. 22. He is charged with breaking and entering and petty larceny.

Police said Peters allegedly entered the store by breaking the glass in a side door and reportedly took an undetermined amount of cash. He allegedly returned the money and turned himself in to authorities, police added. He was released in the custody of the manager of Kaufman Carpets.

Anthony Zito of Newark and Robert John Roberts of Bloomfield were arrested Friday by police and charged with trying to give a good account of themselves. In addition, Zito was charged with possession of stolen property because he allegedly had stolen prescription blanks from Maitland Medical Center, Newark. In his possession, he also was charged with obtaining amphetamines with an invalid prescription.

Roberts was released on $200 bail. Zito is being held in the Union County jail in lieu of $5,000 bail.

Dr. Ernest Gordon, dean of the chapel at Princeton University, and author of "Through the Valley of the Kwai," will speak at Jonathan Dayton and David Brearley Regional High Schools on Monday.

Three summonses issued to motorist

Robert Balzano of North Plainfield was given three summonses by Springfield police Monday night after he was involved in an accident on Farm road by Rt. 22. They were for not having his driver's license in his possession, driving while under the influence of alcohol and leaving the scene of an accident.

Police said a car driven by Marcella Boyle of Montclair was heading towards the highway on Farm road. She saw a car, allegedly Balzano's, coming in the opposite direction that was half way on her side of the road. Series to conclude with French movie at Sharey Shalom

The last in a series of film plays sponsored by the social action committee of temple Sharey Shalom, Springfield, will be shown at the Temple this Monday evening at 8. The film will be "La Guerre Est Finie."

Speaking of the film, Lawrence Leeber, chairman of the social action committee, stated: "When the war against fascism is finished, what does a professional aid Alain Resnais, director of Hiroshima Mon Amour, examines the life of a tired Spanish Civil War veteran who continues to risk his life by crossing the border from France to organize resistance to the Franco government.

"But his work seems more and more meaningless as he is confronted by the realities of his personal life and the challenge of a very different political student. Yves Montand, Ingrid Thulin and Genevieve Fujold star in this story of the ways time and age effect political action."

Following the showing of the film there will be a discussion led by Jonathan Platt, film reviewer/lecturer and professor in the cinema arts. Tickets for the film can be purchased at $2.25 per adult and $1 for students.

"(1) Currently, certain educational trends are apparent.

"(1) There will be much more individual, independent study than has been true in the past—based solely on the past.

"(2) There will be a much greater use of large-group and small-group instruction, and various types of scheduling.

"(3) Guidance will assume a larger position in the educational scene.

"(3) There will be much greater use of the library—and concomitantly of other instructional materials including dial-access master tapes, and instructional television.

"(5) Learning for leisure, viz., the areas of the arts, humanities, arts, music, etc., will assume a new dimension.

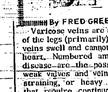
"(6) The schools will, increasingly, be used by adults in the community. School buildings will be used more hours per day and more days per year, by more different groups than ever before.

"(7) Our areas of special education will increase.

"(8) We shall furnish educational services which are now only on the drawing boards of the most imaginative thinkers of today.

"This as we build, we must build for a future, not for the present. With the maturing of all of the communities of the Regional District, there may be the last opportunity for changes which will assist us in the development of a new look at education. Let us build well."—

The remainder of this statement will be printed next week.



THIS WEEK'S HEALTH NEWS

Issued By FRED GREENBERG, R. P. Inc.

Varicose veins are a misnomer. The veins of the legs (primarily) are affected. These veins swell and cannot return blood to the heart. Numbered among causes of the disease are the possible inheritance of weak valves and veins, severe coughing, straining, or heavy lifting, occupations that require continuous standing, pregnancy, phlebitis. Consult your physician. There are many medical treatments available for the condition. Cost-effective but not excessive exercise. Walking and swimming greatly aid in stimulating circulation in the legs, because the gentle muscular action has a squeezing effect on the veins.

of drug education," noted Dr. Joseph Tamburo, assistant superintendent in the Springfield public schools.

He noted that both the local school district and the Regional District have been aware of the problem and have been spurred to do even more in educating the students.

"Mrs. Weiss and Rotenberg, both highly qualified educators and involved in drug education, will be able to answer any questions parents—and other members of the community might have," Harry L. Linkin, director of adult education for the Regional District, said.

"We are offering the three programs at no cost as a community service. Based on the results of a survey we took here in preparing on drug abuse last fall, members of the community felt it would be a good idea to hold similar programs. The community expressed good ideas of what the problem is. It is now looking for some answers. Perhaps they will find them in those three programs," Linkin said.

The second program will be held Monday evening, March 29, when Dr. Carl Rinhorn, a psychologist, will lead an open discussion on developing better understanding between parents and their children.

The last program on April 5 will be an audience participation discussion with presentations by a panel of speakers, including school administrators, school students, a former drug users and a psychologist.

"Audience participation will be stressed. We know there are many questions. These programs are designed to help answer them," Dr. Tamburo said.

Regional Board of Education office, Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, between 8 a.m. and 8:15 p.m.

Mrs. Forman has also announced two League meetings next week at which LWV members will reach consensus on the statewide study of New Jersey's fiscal policy.

The first meeting will be held Tuesday morning, March 23, at 9:15 at the home of Mrs. Leonard Zucker, 516 Ashwood rd. The same topic will be discussed at a second meeting, next Thursday evening, March 25 at 8:15 at the home of Mrs. Richard St. John, 9 Sharon rd.

Mrs. Robert Kimmel, membership chairman, will present further information at 376-8879.

The League of Women Voters of New Jersey has urged Gov. William T. Cahill to sign Bill S. 748 and remove state restrictions against working women which the U.S. Commission on Equal Employment Opportunity found to be in conflict with Title 7 of the Civil Rights Act.

Mrs. Robert Klein, president of the state LWV, declared: "The League worked for passage of this bill under a long-standing commitment to equality of opportunity in employment for all persons. We agree with the Commission that such state laws, although probably originally intended to protect women, are no longer relevant in terms of women's expanded role in the labor force and with present day technology. The existing N.J. restrictive laws grant many exceptions such as cleaning women, nurses, telephone operators and specific industries, raising a question as to the true motivation behind continued enforcement of such limitations. We find that working women, many of whom are heads of families, are handicapped in seeking and acquiring jobs because they are subject to limitations in employment."

Math problem expanded to all township schools

visits to field-testing schools using the IPI mathematics program.

"After careful research, followed by a recommendation to the Board of Education, a pilot program was established in grades 3, 4 and 5 at the Sandmeier School beginning in September, 1970. During the present school year the pilot program has continued at Sandmeier and has also begun in the Gaudineer School at the sixth grade level for students who had been in the program the previous year.

"There are a number of elements which researchers and educators have developed and incorporated into the program which distinguish individually prescribed instruction from a conventional elementary school program for children which we have found to be true in Springfield.

"It is apparent at the time that evaluation of the program by everyone concerned through a number of avenues supports preliminary recommendations made last fall. Therefore, it is recommended that the IPI program be expanded in accordance with the provisions as stated.

"Certification of the program as it presently exists, with expansion to include all sixth graders, will provide for the present program quality control and evaluation over a longer period of time. Study of the evaluations supports the recommendation—implement and monitor the program at the fourth and fifth grade levels in all schools.

"It is not recommended from the logistic and monitoring standpoint to include third grade in a district-wide basis at this time. However, third-grade pupils at Sandmeier School will be included because of the very strong enthusiasm of teachers involved in continuing in the program. Then, pending the outcome of this third phase of implementation the decision could be made to include third-grade pupils from all schools for the 1972-73 school year.

"In order to prepare for implementation of the program in September, each child presently in grades 3, 4 and 5 but not in the program will be given a placement test in the latter part of this school year. Individual folders will be prepared for each child and will contain an analysis chart of weaknesses and strengths in various mathematics skills. An essential prerequisite will be in-service training for each of the K-5 principals, since they will be expected to assume an instructional leadership role. Future IPI teachers will receive in-service training so that they may have the necessary knowledge to administer placement tests and place youngsters at appropriate levels and also be prepared to begin the program in September.

"Follow-up to the in-service training will be provided in the fall to maintain implementation as a desirable quality."

"b. Report to the superintendent who will contact the proper authorities.

"D. 1. If a person unrelated to school is found to be selling, distributing or exchanging drugs on school property, the matter will be reported to the principal by the observer.

Korea missionary to be guest speaker at church supper

The Rev. Dr. Samuel Moffett of South Korea will be the guest speaker at a covered dish supper to be held by the Springfield Presbyterian Church in their Parish House on Saturday evening, April 3. The suppers for the dinner are being handled by Mrs. Bruce Evans.

Dr. Moffett was a classmate of Dr. Evans, pastor of the local church, at Princeton Theological Seminary and he and his wife, Eileen, have remained close friends with Dr. and Mrs. Evans.

Dr. Moffett grew up in Korea, where his parents were among the first Presbyterian missionaries in that country. He has lived practically all his life there except for a period during World War II when he was a Japanese war prisoner.

At present he is head of the Protestant Seminary in Korea but is in this country on furlough following six months in Cambridge, Great Britain. There are four sons in the Moffett family—three of them are ministers or missionaries and the fourth is head of a mission hospital in India.

The largest Presbyterian Church in the world in terms of membership, is in Korea. According to his 5,741 Presbyterian churches, in all of England there are fewer Presbyterian churches than in the City of Seoul alone.

Diet group names M.D. nutritionist

Dr. William H. Sebrell Jr., director of the Institute of Human Nutrition at Columbia University's College of Physicians and Surgeons, was appointed this week as medical advisor to the international "Weight Watchers" program, according to Lester S. Finn, program director in Livingston.

Dr. Sebrell has been U.S. assistant surgeon general, director of the National Institute of Health and consultant to UNICEF. He is currently a member of the Food and Nutritional Panel on Nutrition to the World Health Organization.

"Dr. Sebrell's appointment has confirmed the linkage between the world of scientific investigation and the group dynamics of Weight Watchers," Fein noted.

Fein also said that Dr. Sebrell's appointment "considerably strengthens the activities of founder Jean Nidetch and two top staff members who have brought greater attention to the Weight Watchers program."

Prior to reference was to Miss Fay Burnett, "Weight Watchers" nutritionist who had been on the staff of Columbia-Presbyterian Hospital, New York City, and France Palumbo, the program's executive chief, who has been in charge of the kitchens of some of the world's most renown hotels.

Fein also noted that Dr. Sebrell's "appointment was enforced the long-standing insistence of "Weight Watchers" that anyone who goes on a weight reduction program should consult and keep checking his progress with a physician of his own free choice.

"Dr. Sebrell's appointment as medical advisor is consonant with the independence on the family—physician now means that Weight Watchers' can completely tailor its program according to the individual health needs of persons seeking our assistance," Fein emphasized.

Turnpike records low accident rate

The distinction of having the lowest accident rate of all major U. S. toll roads logging more than one-billion vehicle miles in 1970 goes to the New Jersey Turnpike, it was announced this week by Turnpike Authority Chairman Alfred E. Driscoll.

Citing figures released this week by the International Bridge, Tunnel & Turnpike Association, Driscoll noted that the New Jersey Turnpike accident rate of 89.3 per 100-million vehicle miles was the lowest of the nine U. S. toll roads reporting more than one-billion vehicle miles.

Despite an increase in vehicle miles from 2.2-billion miles in 1969 to nearly 2.6-billion last year, a reduction in total accidents from 2,272 to 2,135 brought the Turnpike's accident rate down from 102.8 to 89.3.

Because of the increased traffic mileage, the Turnpike's fatality rate of 1.9 did not change in spite of an increase in fatalities from 42 to 46. The rate for all U. S. toll roads is 2.2—making them twice as safe as the national highway average.

Along the 70-mile dual/dual stretch from Interchange 10 to 15, the number of accidents decreased from 772 to 729 despite a jump in traffic of 16.5, and the accident rate fell even more—from 138.7 to 98.4, a drop of 29.1 percent.

Chairman Driscoll attributed the great decrease in accidents to the travel ease provided by the widened 12-lane section with its built-in safety features. On the 20-mile stretch from Edison to Newark was recorded the lowest accident rate on the Turnpike.

"We must also credit the public with an increasing awareness of Turnpike driving and the State Police for their contribution to the overall safety record by their stepped-up activities in enforcing the traffic regulations," Driscoll said.

"The traveling public on the Turnpike," former Governor Driscoll noted, "was able to take advantage of the engineering advances and the traffic protection for them, and the results are indeed encouraging."

based on this dramatically improved safety record, the Authority has authorized preliminary engineering and design studies for the eventual widening of the Turnpike from Interchange 10 to a point below the present Interchange 9 at New Brunswick.

With an accident rate of 89.3, the Turnpike is closest rival in the quest for fewer accidents and greater safety was the Garden State Parkway.

The IBTTA statistics clearly demonstrate that New Jersey has the safest major toll roads in the nation," Driscoll noted. Accident rates for the other billion-vehicle-mile toll roads follow:

- Ohio Turnpike – 100.2
- Massachusetts Turnpike – 102.4
- Florida's Turnpike — 104.0
- Illinois Tollway – 122.5
- New York State Thruway — 140.7
- Pennsylvania Turnpike — 165.9
- Connecticut Turnpike — 189.5

Surveillance warning issued by Rutgers prof

"Unless the American public demands a halt to it, the government will soon have detailed dossiers on every man, woman, and child in this country — even before 1984," a Rutgers Law School professor declared Monday night.

Professor Frank Askin of South Orange made the prediction in an address on "Government Surveillance and Citizen Privacy" before members of the Greater Newark Women's Division Business and Professional group of American Jewish Congress at the home of Dr. and Mrs. I.J. Bernstein of 100 Stone Hill rd., Springfield.

Parkway has lowest traffic fatality record

The National Safety Council posting of traffic fatality rates for 1970 has left New Jersey's Garden State Parkway again the safety leader among all U.S. toll roads with over one billion miles of travel last year.

Chairman John P. Collier of the New Jersey Highway Authority said it was the fifth time in succession in years that the Parkway has recorded the lowest fatality rate among the high-volume toll roads of the nation.

The Parkway's 1970 fatality rate of 1.19 deaths per 100 million vehicle miles, as well as its fatal accident rate of 1.4, was the lowest among the nine U.S. toll roads reporting more than one billion miles of travel on each for the past year.

Other leading fatality rates among high-volume toll roads of the nation, according to separate listings by the National Safety Council and the International Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Association, were 1.5 on the Massachusetts Turnpike, 1.6 for the Ohio Turnpike and 1.8 each for the New Jersey Turnpike and the Illinois Tollway.

Chairman Gallagher noted that among the nine toll roads the Parkway also had the lowest injury accident rate of 31.3 and was second only to the New Jersey Turnpike in total accident rate, with a 93.4 mark.

"While it has to be gratifying to see New Jersey's toll roads in the forefront of superhighway safety," Chairman Gallagher added, "it is not comforting enough when the figures behind these rankings total one million fatalities on the road for about one. There's tremendous need for improvement."

There were 27 fatalities on the 173-mile Parkway last year, resulting from 25 traffic accidents. Sixteen of the fatal mishaps involved only single cars, and six of the total 27 victims were pedestrians either trespassing or out of their parked vehicles.

Accumulated 158,702,000 vehicles used the Parkway last year, traveling an overall average distance of some more than two billion miles.

The total travel mileages reported for the other eight high-volume toll roads last year were:

Connecticut Turnpike, 1,760 billion miles; Florida Turnpike, 1,115 billion; Illinois Tollway, 1,016 billion; Massachusetts Turnpike, 1,127 billion; New Jersey Turnpike, 2,300 billion; Ohio Turnpike, 1,476 billion; and Pennsylvania Turnpike, 2,794 billion.

The Garden State Parkway fatality rate of 1.19 deaths per 100 million vehicle miles of travel was 1.17 for 100-million miles of travel.

Tax tips for home-seller

Savings possible, say realtors

When the average home owner sells his home, says Charles Kramer of Broynell/Kramer Realtors of Union, one of the state's largest realty firms, some knowledge of the simple tax laws involved in such transactions may save him enough for the down payment on his new home.

"Most people," says the veteran realtor, "don't bother to familiarize themselves with the tax laws involved in their own homes. As a result, they often over-pay the taxes and don't take advantage of laws and government regulations which allow for tax postponement."

These reductions and eliminations of out-of-pocket dollars, adds Kramer, can go a long way towards helping the family which is selling one home in order to move into a newer one.

HERE ARE SOME of the areas in which tax savings, reductions and postponements can be effected by the seller of a private home, as noted by the research department of the Broynell/Kramer organization:

-- The sale of a home at a profit is taxable as a long-term capital gain.

-- Deduct all selling expenses from the gross selling price. These include any commissions paid to real estate brokers, attorney's fees and any advertising costs.

-- Deduct all buying costs. When you bought the home, you had such purchase costs as title insurance, closing fees, mortgage service fees and conveyance costs. These can be deducted from the gross selling price.

-- Add any expenditures made for improvements. While it isn't practical to list all types of improvements possible, some in this category include: finished attics, finished basements, new kitchens, porches or patio, outdoor fencing, etc. You may not, however, deduct normal repair and maintenance.

-- Postponing your tax. If you sold a home for $25,000 and after the above deductions, still realized a profit of $5,000, you can postpone the payment of this tax, under the existing federal laws, if you buy and occupy another house that costs $25,000 or more, you do not have to pay any tax on the $5,000 gain; however, you must buy and occupy this other home during the period beginning one year before the sale of your old residence and ending one year after its sale -- or you're not entitled to these relief provisions. Of course, you'll pay tax on any excess from the sale not reinvested in your new home.

-- Non-taxable gains. Persons over 65 who sell a home under certain financial limitations -- even if they do not purchase another home -- pay no tax on any gain. This concession is made with the provision that the home was the family's principal place of residence for five of the eight years preceding the sale.

"IN ADDITION to the above," says Kramer, "we advise families to consult our tax-knowledgeable staff or directly with their local Internal Revenue Service. There are many other laws -- some highly complex -- which take mitigating circumstances into consideration on an individual basis when considering capital gains from the sale of personal real property."

Broynell/Kramer Realtors is engaged exclusively in providing housing for people. Since its founding in 1950, it has provided homes and apartments for more than 60,000 Jerseyans -- equivalent to almost populating a town the size of New Brunswick.

The company, which has been responsible for the sale of more than 12,000 new homes, has five operating divisions -- new home sales, resale, apartment rentals, apartment management and a land acquisition department which specializes in sites for new home communities and apartment facilities.

The firm maintains executive offices at 1435 Morris avenue, Union.

Warning: Look two ways plus

"Cars can come towards you from every direction; so be prepared for them" R.J. Vialle, general manager of the New Jersey Automobile Club—AAA—warned this week.

Vialle, explained: "Looking two ways is not enough. Complicated intersections may bring three, four, or maybe more streets together with all of their cars converging. Also, cars may make a number of unexpected maneuvers, such as U turns."

"While pedestrians are in the most danger while crossing streets, many other crossing situations are threatening," added the club official as he described numerous circumstances demanding alertness. "Cars coming out of alleys and pulling out of parking places, either on the street or in a parking lot, can surprise an unaware pedestrian."

"Of course, the most important thing to do is look. Look—because a car may be going through a red light. Look—because turn signals do not always work. Look—because drivers are sometimes careless."

He concluded by saying: "Drivers, through their cooperation, can help pedestrians by obeying traffic signals and by signalling their intentions of stopping or turning."

Air monitor established at hospital

The most recent addition to New Jersey's air monitoring network has been placed at Ancora State Hospital, according to Richard J. Sullivan, state commissioner of Environmental Protection. This marks the 21st air monitoring site established in the state.

The hospital site in Winslow Township, Camden County, was chosen by the department's Bureau of Air Pollution Control because of its location in a low populated and relatively clean air section of the state (south central pinelands). This station serves as a checkpoint and provides background data for air quality comparisons with the more populous, trafficked and industrial areas.

Sensors located at Ancora continuously analyze ambient air for carbon monoxide, sulfur dioxide and suspended particulates (smoke, shade). The data are automatically telemetered to a control center in Trenton where they are computed, contrasted and collated with information received from stations based in areas with higher concentrations of air pollutants.

New Jersey's air monitoring network presently includes three comprehensive mobile laboratories and 36 satellite stations. These centers have two main purposes: (1) to provide highly reliable data for use in preventing or minimizing air pollution disasters, and (2) to continuously assess air quality. The data received also are used for developing regulations and to help evaluate the effectiveness of such regulations.

Rider alters MBA study

Rider College, Trenton, has streamlined its master of business administration program, eliminating the need for graduate students having to take preparatory course work on the undergraduate level.

Beginning in September, the entire program will be on the graduate level. The present two Credit-hour system will be replaced by a three credit-hour system and 48 hours will be required for the MBA degree instead of the present 32.

A special waiver examination system, however, will permit graduate students who prove their proficiency in certain courses to reduce required credit hours to as few as 33, explains Dr. Karl O. Mann, chairman of graduate studies at the School of Business Administration.

"The changes are designed to improve the quality of the MBA program," says Mann. "Courses can be taught more effectively with the three credit-hour system."

Mann said that under the present system students frequently must attend undergraduate level classes in the evening school.

The usual eight-o'clock syndrome most students experience is closer to a nightmare for Patrolman Richard Laut of Elizabeth, a freshman at Union County Technical Institute, Scotch Plains.

Laut is a rarity to say the least. While most students have a difficult college time managing their school work, studying, and fitting in some fun, the UCTI student holds a full-time position as the Elizabeth police force and a full course load in criminal science, in addition to providing for a wife and five-month-old daughter.

A 10-year veteran of the police force, Laut works from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. shift five nights a week. Classes begin at 8 a.m. and run through until 5 p.m. in the afternoon, which leaves the young man about five hours sleep most nights.

And that doesn't include studying.

"That's usually a weekend affair," he says. Laut explained that he never anticipated a vacation as much as at the present moment.

And when is his vacation?

"June 15," he replies. "I simply cannot take any time off until then. Between work and school, there is no leisure.

His subjects at UCTI this semester include computer science, accounting, contemporary literature, and mathematics. In his sophomore year, Laut will switch to the computer programming option open to data processing students rather than taking the accounting option.

Laut decided to return to school last year after learning that Union County would be installing a law enforcement data processing center. He would be interested in working there as a programmer or a similar agency involved in law enforcement.

A graduate of Thomas Jefferson High School and a lifelong resident of Elizabeth, Laut lives with his wife, Joan, a former teacher in the Elizabeth school system.

Bloomfield College has new calendar

Bloomfield College will initiate in the fall semester of 1971 a new academic calendar. This will make the institution the first college in New Jersey to incorporate a cooperative educational 4-1-4 curricular program.

Normally, students will enroll in four courses each term. During the month of January, special experimental learning experiences will be offered. The faculty is also discussing the possibility of creating an experimental inter-college at Bloomfield by the fall of 1971.

Throughout his stay at the college, a student must complete successfully one January term for each two years of residence.

This academic calendar change was initiated as the college in response to educational movements across the nation which have been seeking a renewal of the search for knowledge in college education rather than involvement in amassing credit hours.

Through a 4-1-4 program, more opportunities are available for study in greater breadth and depth and class size and the number of sections can be altered to provide greater concentration of learning experiences for each student, by carrying a smaller number of courses, but with greater depth in each.

The faculty and students will be better prepared for this revision, and more time will be available for extra projects or informal discussion sessions.

During the first year of the college experience, recognition is given to students who are preparing to college life and to requirements while also expressed in freshman courses. Thus, since this orientation is an integral part of the student's development, lower-level courses can be structured accordingly, allowing innovative and creative growth.

Having lectured upon subject matter within any course structure, an emphasis will now be placed on the integration of experiences and their meanings in relation to that subject matter. Thus, a student who, at the course level, is introduced to a mode of thinking which results in judgment and decision combined with his courses becomes more expressed in this technique during his upper level courses and is better prepared for his years following graduation.

Some of the possibilities being considered for offering during the January term include in-depth independent study projects, study abroad, an all-college community colloquium, and courses developed by students themselves.

In conjunction with the cooperative education program, under the direction of John Wood, one semester during which the students attend cooperative experiences would encompass the entire year and be staggered throughout the year, on a calendar basis, a greater number of opportunities for cooperative educational experiences would be available in the winter and spring months.

Worth repeating

"You, then, Thomas," said the teacher, "suppose there were five children and their mother had only four apples to share between them. She wants to give each child an equal share. How would she do it?"

Make applesauce."

Family bike hike

New 4-H program

How about a bike hike? It's the thing to do, you know. It's wonderful exercise, produces no air pollution and it's fun for the whole family.

An indication of the growing popularity of the 4-H bicycle program is seen in the enrollment statistics. During 1970 some 135,000 4-H boys and girls participated in the program supervised by the cooperative extension service of state universities.

The program is designed to teach young people between the ages of 9 and 19 the care, maintenance and safe operation of the bicycle and the fun opportunities of cycling. Youngsters learn the rules of the road and ordinances of the community pertaining to bicycles and bicycle riding. And they gain appreciation of these laws for personal safety and courtesy to others.

There is a bonus here, as most of the laws concerning correct bicycle riding also pertain to driving an automobile, enabling these young people to move easily from bikes to the driving of much more powerful pieces of equipment.

But before that day comes, a bicycle is providing more and more young people with fun, mobility and exercise.

Rules of the road are but one aspect of the "learning by doing" 4-H bicycle program. The young people also learn how to repair, adjust and take care of their equipment. They also learn to judge when a bike is too big for them to handle alone and when a reliable serviceman should be consulted to keep their bicycle in safe working condition.

Draft quota ordered for medical men

Col. Joseph T. Avella, state director of Selective Service for New Jersey, announced this week that the Department of Defense has requested Selective Service to furnish the armed forces with 1,531 doctors of medicine, 77 doctors of osteopathy and 536 dentists.

He stated that the New Jersey share of this call is for 59 doctors of medicine, six doctors of osteopathy and 13 dentists.

Specialists on this call will be ordered to report starting on July 1, 1971. All specialists will be offered a commission and if the commission is accepted will not be required to report for induction.

Col. Avella further said that specialists selected for this call will be selected by their random sequence numbers. If under age 26, if a call cannot be filled with specialists under age 26, the remainder of the call will be filled by selecting those 26 years of age and over with the youngest called first.

A sounding-off on noise pollution

NCE sponsors excess acoustics seminar

Noise pollution is becoming an increasingly critical element in American industry and to explore certain aspects of that problem Newark College of Engineering will soon hold a one-day seminar.

Since state and federal legislation has recently been passed to regulate industrial noise, NCE will devote its forthcoming program to the interpretation of those laws and to explore engineers, designers and business administrators will have to take to remain in compliance.

The Newark College of Engineering seminar will be held at the college in Newark on Tuesday, April 13, under the program title of "Occupational Noise Exposure and Control." Featured will be five authorities from government and industry who will devote their comments respectively to legislation, characteristics of noise, evaluation of plant noise, engineering solutions and administrative solutions.

According to an NCE spokesman, legitimate concern for noise pollution developed in recent years as industry found increasing numbers of young people starting work with hearing deficiencies. Various clinical studies, undertaken to investigate the physiological effects of "hard rock" music on youngsters, were extended into the industrial scene, supplementing traditional health-and-hazard studies made in manufacturing locations.

These studies tended to find that familiar noises of great intensity and duration were determental; for those exposed to prolonged intense noise, hearing impairments occurred earlier and more frequently. Reaction to the investigations resulted in the Walsh-Healy Act, which sets forth occupational noise exposure regulations for industries operating under Federal contracts, and has been expanded in New Jersey under the designation of Chapter 173, Occupational Noise Exposure, of Title 12 of the N.J. Administrative Code.

Adoption of these regulations make it imperative that industrial managers and engineers understand the climate of the new laws and the need for additional safeguards, NCE believes.

In the body of the April seminar on occupational noise, Newark College of Engineering will start with an explanation of the Federal and state laws, as presented by James W. Conlon, deputy director of the Bureau of Engineering and Safety, New Jersey Department of Labor and Industry.

A presentation on the characteristics of noise will follow, noting sources, characteristics, types and measurements, as applicable to industrial hygiene occupational. Western Electric Co. will be the guest lecturer on this topic.

Pain killers can be child killers.

According to Dr. M. Michel Belkoff, director of pediatrics and physician-in-charge of the Area Poison Control Center located at Memorial General Hospital, Union, N.J., narcotic medicines are now the cause of the childhood poisonings treated at the Center. Of that number the greatest percentage of cases involve the common analgesic-type (pain killer) compounds for adults and children which are found in practically every home, he said.

The physician's comments were issued this week to focus attention on National Poison Prevention Week which begins Sunday. The Poison Control Center at Memorial General treated 148 cases last year including residents of Union, Roselle, Roselle Park, Kenilworth, Linden, Springfield, Elizabeth, Clark, Westfield and Cranford.

"The most dangerous medicine, in terms of potential childhood poisoning," explained Dr. Belkoff, "is any drug that is consumed by toddlers in the presence of a parent who is taken for granted. The non-prescription compounds, regularly advertised on television and readily available on supermarket shelves, pose a great danger."

When one considers how easily television can add the names of these drugs to the vocabularies of our children – along with the names of foods, toys and household items – one can begin to understand the problem."

The pediatrician pointed out that to a child playing house, ingesting some tablets or capsules "to relieve a nagging headache" would be very much a part of the game.

Many children die from accidental poisoning each year, Dr. Belkoff said, than all the childhood infectious diseases combined. Despite all the Federal Government does through restrictive legislation and protection-al societies do through educational programs such as Poison Prevention Week and manufacturers do through research and development, he emphasized, "the most significant preventative is a responsible parent."

POTENT HANDFUL: Dr. M. Michel Belkoff, director of pediatrics and physician-in-charge of the Poison Control Center at Memorial General Hospital, Union, holds a handful of analgesic-type medications.

The director of the Poison Control Center outlined the following recommendations to minimize the possibility of all types of accidental childhood poisonings:

--Keep all drugs, poisonous substances and household chemicals out of the reach of children.

--Prior to giving a medication, read the label carefully and use as directed.

--Take medicines out of the view of youngsters so that they won't be tempted to imitate.

--Never ask a child to bring you a medication container.

--Turn on the light when giving or taking medicines.

--Store internal medicines separately from other household products.

--Refer to medicine as medicine -- not candy.

--Ask the pharmacist if he has a safety-type closure he can put on the container – and learn how to use it.

--Get rid of prescribed medicines once the patient recovers. Flush them down the toilet; rinse the container, then discard.

"Every parent should anticipate the possibility of an accidental poisoning and should have the telephone number of the family physician, pharmacist and Poison Control Center on hand next to the phone.

Dr. Belkoff warned parents not to force the issue to vomit if the product swallowed contains petroleum, lye or caustic, or if the child is unconscious or convulsing. "Read the label on the container of the ingested substance carefully. Call you physician or Poison Control Center. Prompt treatment if vomiting should be induced if you are not sure," he said.

The Poison Control Center at Memorial General Hospital is open 24 hours a day and may be reached by calling 687-1900.

Resolution urges troop withdrawal by end of this year

A resolution protesting the incursion into Laos and calling for the withdrawal of all American troops from Indochina this year was adopted by the Union County Chapter of the American Jewish Congress at a meeting in Linden.

Copies of the resolution are being sent to Rep. Florence Dwyer and Senators Clifford Case and Harrison Williams. It says:

"We are convinced that our commitments in Southeast Asia can best and most honorably be fulfilled by diligently pursuing a just political settlement for the problems of that area.

"Rabbi Arthur J. Lelyveld of Cleveland, president of the Congress, has said, 'It is imperative that we discourage attempts, whether by elements among our own leadership or among our allies, to substitute bombing for bargaining, force for negotiation.'

"Our objective cannot be other than the expeditious, orderly withdrawal of American troops, the closing down of our participation in hostilities in Southeast Asia, and the arrangements of a permanent cease-fire.

"We must reject any course that threatens to result in still deeper American entanglement in the morass of this war. Certainly, no premier can justly 'opening up' still another front.

"The overriding truth about our country at this moment is that the people are sickened by this mounting escalation of the war and that we overwhelmingly yearn for an end to our country's involvement in these futile and brutalizing military operations."

Summer session to begin June 21

Union College's annual summer session will open on June 21 and run through July 30 at the Cranford campus, it was announced this week by Dr. Bernard M. Solon of Westfield, director.

More than 50 freshman and sophomore courses in liberal arts, engineering, education, physical and life sciences and business administration will be offered in the six-week session. Classes are conducted day and evening Monday through Fridays.

More than 1,000 students are expected to enroll in the summer session, according to Dr. Solon. About half of the students are expected to come from Union College, and the others from more than 150 colleges and universities throughout the country, he added.

Registration for the summer session will be conducted on June 16 and 17.

Researchers look at bone diseases

NCE, N.J. Med professors combine attack

An engineer from Newark College of Engineering and a physician from the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey at Newark have combined their talents in an attack on crippling bone disease through research.

Dr. Ira Stein, a resident of Union, is a hematologist, and Dr. Gerald Crank an expert in applied mechanics are studying the effects of fluorides and various drugs on the mechanical properties, such as the strength and elasticity, of diseased bones.

They hope to discover better ways of treating such diseases as bone cancer, Paget's disease in which bones thicken, soften and become deformed; and a type of rickets known as renal osteodystrophy, still found in people with severe kidney disease.

Their studies center around small bone samples obtained from individuals who have died of various diseases. The samples are tested at Newark College of Engineering in much the same way engineers test building materials such as wood, concrete, steel.

Later, X-rays are taken, the fluoride content analyzed, and other physical and chemical tests performed in laboratories at the East Orange Veterans Administration Hospital.

Until recently mechanical bone testing has been restricted to bones from accident victims, where disease was not a factor, and the bone samples usually were frozen or affected by embalming processes. Drs. Stein and Crank are testing fresh bones where disease was present, requiring considerable innovation and resulting in some novel and unexpected findings.

Dr. Crank is an associate professor in applied mechanics in the Civil Engineering Department of Newark College of Engineering. He received his doctor of science degree from Stevens Institute of Technology in Hoboken.

Dr. Stein is an associate professor of medicine at the College of Medicine and Dentistry and a staff physician at the East Orange Veterans Administration Hospital. He received his M.D. from the George Washington School of Medicine in Washington, D.C.

The two investigators developed their current study as a result of Dr. Stein's interest in finding better ways to treat multiple myeloma, a form of blood and bone cancer. Recognizing the value of mechanical testing, he sought expertise in that area at nearby Newark College of Engineering. Dr. Crank's interest developed and their partnership in the study of diseased bones resulted.

Both researchers, although hopeful of obtaining useful and perhaps dramatic results, feel their studies may take five years or more before final conclusions can be drawn.

Bar okays program for settlements

To attack delays in compensating auto accident victims and in other personal injury cases, the trustees of the New Jersey State Bar Association have endorsed the Early Settlement Program (ESP) now in operation in Middlesex County. They will press for adoption of the plan throughout the state, said association president Daniel L. Golden, who announced the trustees' action in Trenton last week. Several other counties are launching similar programs.

"Since January, 1970, when the ESP was initiated, over 500 cases have been settled, Golden said. "This includes four or five months of experimentation in the early going. Today, with several panels of settlers operating simultaneously, it is not uncommon for 80 cases to be handled on a hearing day. Two-thirds of the cases heard are settled," he said.

"The Early Settlement Program assures to each claimant prompt, full compensation for all of the bitter after-effects of accident-caused losses, such as loss of earning power and disfigurement," Golden explained.

"ESP is a voluntary, non-binding program for disposing of personal injury cases, conducted by attorneys. It is completely outside the judicial system, except for occasional use of an unoccupied courtroom. Cases submitted by a plaintiff's or defendant's counsel, or by an insurance company, are placed on the roster of cases to be heard on a certain date by the committee of attorneys overseeing the program. Then, the committee chooses one lawyer experienced in representing plaintiffs and one experienced in defense, who together will hear the case.

"Each side in the case is represented on the assigned day by counsel. After the case is presented, the two settlers arrive at their recommendation for a settlement figure, drawing on their experience in such cases. Only if the recommendation is accepted and the case settled is there any charge—$5 to help defray secretarial expenses," Golden explained.

The State Scholarship Commission announced this week that tuition and grant and county college graduate scholarship applications are now available.

Applications have been distributed to all New Jersey colleges and universities. The deadline for applying is April 15.

Tuition aid grants range from $200 to $1,000 per year and are available only to students attending private colleges in New Jersey. The amount an applicant may receive depends upon the income and assets of the family that the student charged by the college.

Those who applied for a state scholarship in the fall 1970 need not file a new application. Students who do not qualify for a state scholarship will automatically be considered for a tuition aid grant. Eligibility notices will be mailed to all fall 1970 applicants late this month.

Station Breaks

By MILT HAMMER

"Television is the single largest purveyor of prejudice and contempt toward women in the country," writes TEC Commissioner Nicholas Johnson in the current Playboy Magazine.

This new turn by the firebrand of the Federal Communications Commission appears in the form of a letter to the magazine, written as a kind of postscript to Johnson's article, "The Wasteland Revisited," which appeared a few months back in the publication. In this, the lad accuses the TV industry of bias, venality, callousness and/or insensitivity to the needs and wants of the viewing public, by choice. The article did not, however, touch on television's particular attitude toward women, an omission which he now corrects in his letter.

"Television—in programming and commercials—also has consistently treated women as sex objects to be manipulated, rather than as whole persons," he writes. "With the urging of television, nine-year-old girls are already being told that their worth is limited to 32,000,000 warts of brassiere anxiety."

Johnson complains that TV tells women, "You're guns in love, my baby," and then, contradicts this by portraying them in commercials as helpless, unintelligent creatures who beg their lovers to deter them from brassieres, who order their cleanser from heights on white horses while tending their gardens and who need a man from Glad to help them wrap food in plastic.

"When," he concludes, "we are told that cigarettes are like women, the best ones are those which have been manned up—television's attitude."

Moliere's 'School' gets a superb translation

BY ROBERT LYONS

In the midst of an unparched season a Moliere play at the Lyceum is still as welcome as Vichy water in Tampico.

"The School For Wives" may represent the fleering imagined idea of a man who lives in fear of unfaithfulness. It is funny for probably—never having taken place—even once in all human history.

Arnolphe, middle-aged and wealthy, decided when he was young and wealthy, that he would never wear the horns of a cuckold. So smiting dry the French fanaticism for logic he has placed his young ward, Agnes, in a convent school where she would be educated sufficiently that she would not be able to betray him. But it is her total innocence that backfires his scheme and makes for some of the most beautifully ironic stage literature ever written.

And translated, Adapter Richard Wilbur has rendered the work into sublime rhyming couplets. Don't be put off by the thought of having to actors speaking with the monotony of a metronome. Quite the opposite. Well half the opposite, anyway. You can never really hear the rhyming alone because the words further the action and reveal character, and that has got to take some of your attention. The complete merely provide a sound track accompaniment to the brilliant intrigues of the swaying.

BRIAN BEDFORD in Arnolphe, Mr. Bedford is an actor of gifts, class, skill and dedication. He can mince toward an audience and make a pretty, embarrassed smile just before his front foot oversteps the apron, that acknowledges that he is being observed in his indiscreet. He never asks that you approve of him for playing this outrageously silly part. Some actors like to overplay such a character, but Mr. Bedford is also brilliant hiding in front. His face is hilariously aghast with pain. The smoke are definitely dough. As if he sat in on a class where Fernandel gave lessons to Louis Nye and left early.

Joan Van Ark is an unwrapped cupcake as Agnes. David Dukes plays her swain with an appealingly adroit pink-faced, first-timey dash. Paul Ballantyne disappointed as Crysdale, a man of great practicality. This character has a lot of worthwhile things to say and Mr. Ballantyne says them clearly, but I listened almost entirely to the words and for the moment he called for a monologue seemed lost and as lunch is slightly oozing through his pores. Maybe if his cheeks and nose had some shine. Perhaps it is unfair, but I wanted to see Albert Dekker. The Notary played by George Pentecost could only mutter equipped by Bobby Clark, Peggy Pope played a servant with a face like a cake that would not admit it had fallen.

STEPHEN PORTER's direction is impeccable. He has his mercurial performers hang around the edge of the stage as close to the audience as possible making as strollers or bench sitters on the street where all the action takes place. The scenery and lighting by James Tilton, a perfect townhouse and some effects that give the show a footlight atmosphere (in-view on-stage footlights) and Nancy Potts' costumes were a lovely blend of lace and leather, and I wish I could have helped make the hats.

Mental health proposals rate association OK

The New Jersey Association for Mental Health, at a recent meeting of the Board of directors, voiced support of the American Psychiatric Association recommendations for changing New Jersey's mental health program.

Dr. Philip Margolis, member of the APA task force, and Garrett Hagedorn, member of the New Jersey Senate Institutions and Welfare Committee (the committee instrumental in obtaining the study), reported on the major recommendations.

One of the key recommendations of the report calls for the separation of the Division of Mental Health and hospitals from the Department of Institutions and Agencies and the creation of a separate Department of Mental Health.

Mrs. Benjamin Ashin, president of the New Jersey Association for Mental Health, commented that she "was pleased the study group considered this recommendation so vital." She continued, "This has been a major recommendation of both the NJAMH and the New Jersey district branch of the Psychiatric Association".

DR. MARY ANN BARTUSS, representing the district branch of the Psychiatric Association, expressed the hope that "the study recommendations would have broad community support" citing such support as "vital to any effort for improving the care and treatment of the mentally ill."

The report covered several areas including the following:

— Patient services in many hospitals do not offer patients respect and dignity.

— There are wide variations in available service and there are fewer for inner city residents, children, adolescents, alcoholics and the elderly.

— In the field of drug abuse and narcotics addiction "needs are just beginning to be recognized and service is not even close to meeting the needs."

— Conditions in some hospitals are "dehumanizing" to employees and patients, especially in Greystone Park, Trenton State Hospital and the New Jersey Neuropsychiatric Institute.

Besides the recommendations to create a separate Department of Mental Health and Hospitals, the report contained other recommendations, such as:

— The head of the Department to be headed by a commissioner directly responsible to the Governor. He is to be assisted by a deputy commissioner and a "stronger staff" including assistant commissioners for youth services, business administration, drug abuse and rehabilitation, legal medicine, community services, medical research, planning, statistics.

— Regionalization of the State's mental health system with at least four regions.

— Greater citizen involvement—at—three levels: an advisory council on mental health, regional citizens' advisory boards.

— Formation of a statewide human rights committee.

— Renewed emphasis on alcoholism and drug abuse problems.

The study also called for more "half-way" houses and more day care centers for emotionally disturbed children.

Graduates seek jobs as economy lags

College placement office is actively helping

How does a college placement office function at a time when the nation's economy is down, the job market is bad, and graduating students are actively seeking jobs?

On the Newark campus of Rutgers University, there are still many ways in which this office can be useful to graduating students and alumni, according to J.S. Obecny Jr., placement director.

Currently, his office at 53 Washington st. in Newark is the scene of hectic activity as students meet for personal interviews with major companies involved in campus recruiting.

Campus recruitment at Newark, as on other campuses, has dropped off considerably this year. The College Placement Council reports a 20 to 25 percent decrease nationwide. Obecny concurs with these figures but predicts that things will pick up, particularly for the 1971 graduate, by the end of this summer. "When employers start rehiring," he says, "it will be more likely that they will hire less expensive personnel—the recent college graduates — as opposed to the more expensive, experienced, individual."

DURING THE RECRUITMENT period, which started Feb. 9 and will continue through March 19, a total of 119 employers will have visited the Newark Campus. Among the diversified areas they represent are banks, insurance companies, merchandisers, oil companies, publishers and the New Jersey Civil Service.

Obecny says that campus recruiting is off because many employers are taking a "wait and see" attitude on hiring, hoping for an optimistic surge in the nation's economy this spring. Also cited as reasons for a drop in recruiting are a decrease in employer turnover and a better selection of qualified graduates from which to choose, as well as a faster acceptance rate by those seeking jobs.

Obecny and his assistant, John Feinler, Jr., do most of their placement work between the three areas: with the College of Arts and Sciences, the College of Nursing and the Graduate School of Business Administration.

Students who use the placement office's services often are unsure of whether they want jobs or want to go to graduate school.

Obecny says his office "recognizes the perspectives and expertise of the academic faculty" in advising students on graduate schools, but he also feels the placement office "can fill out information on career orientation" for students with liberal arts degrees, particularly in the humanities, who have not decided on life careers.

ADDITIONALLY, THE PLACEMENT office has basic references, including Peterson's Guide, that classify undergraduate school programs. These also are available some 300 to 400 graduate school catalogs for student reference, plus information and applications for financial aid. Often the placement office can direct a student to an employer who will subsidize his graduate school work.

For student nurses, Obecny and his staff actually arrange a career orientation program with the Seton Hall School of Nursing. It is easier, he says, to place nurses as there is still a critical shortage of graduate registered nurses. At the program held this past fall, 30 agencies interviewed close to 100 senior students for prospective jobs.

The placement office maintains contacts with employers, lists available jobs and sales recruiting companies to appear on campus. Obecny and his staff initially meet students at a group interview at which they detail available career opportunities and job-hunting techniques. Students then meet individually with either Obecny or Feinler, at which time they discuss the student's qualifications and skills and possible placement in their job choice. Stress is put on this point that students are encouraged to investigate the variety of job areas consistent with their qualifications and interests.

"Our basic responsibility," states Obecny, "is to assist each student in making a self-evaluation, in conjunction with the investigation of a variety of career opportunities." This includes the student's examination of his specific aptitudes, abilities, interests and the successful application of his college education.

"FOR EXAMPLE," he says, "we assume that a history major has high verbal aptitudes, can do research, can analyze and then render judgments, as he pursues his major field of study. The same basic applications will pertain to his career should he decide to become a credit analyst for a bank or an underwriter for an insurance company."

Self-evaluation by the prospective graduate is directly related to campus recruitment—where students test our ability to handle an interview. Because interviewers report back to the placement office, and to the students, Obecny and his staff are able to prepare for the students any further preparation they may need in job-hunting techniques.

This approach, Obecny says, proves successful in job-hunting. While a college placement office, he concludes, provides a means of assisting each graduating student in a meaningful and meaningful pursuit of employment.

Folk singer at museum

Folk singer Judy West will perform at the Montclair Art Museum on Sunday at 4 p.m. in the last concert of the museum's March series.

Miss West comes out of the mountain-music tradition of northern Georgia, but her repertory ranges widely in the folk music world.

Accompanying herself on banjo and guitar, she sings such songs as her own composition "500 Miles," where was recorded by Peter, Paul and Mary, and "Anger in the Land," from a poem by her father, Don West, the poet. The concert is open to the public. Admission is by voluntary contribution.

NSC recital tomorrow

The Music Department of Newark State College, Union, will present a recital featuring senior music majors tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Little Theater in the College Center Building.

Performing will be Miss Dianne De Bartol, flute, and Miss Rosemary Lambariello, soprano, whose piano accompanist will be Miss Diane Cardwell, a junior music major.

Miss De Bartol studies with Dr. Irwin Gruce; Miss Lambariello with Professor Annajean Brown.

The recital is open to the public. There is no charge for admission.

Western Electric sales set record

Western Electric, the manufacturing and supply unit of the Bell System, began its second quarter of operation last year with record sales totaling over $5.8 billion, Charles R. Bergmann, vice president and company spokesman in New Jersey, announced this week.

Western Electric sales to Bell Telephone companies approached $5 billion in 1970—an increase of 21 percent over 1969—in response to soaring telephone company orders for equipment to meet unprecedented service demands.

Museum to feature exhibition of photos

The work of Barbara Morgan, one of America's most distinguished photographers, will be the subject of a retrospective exhibition opening at the Montclair Art Museum on Sunday and remaining through May 2.

The exhibition covers more than 35 years, from the early well-known photographs of Martha Graham, Lucia Chase, Merce Cunningham and other dance pioneers, to her experimental techniques — the dance photographs, which show her ability to isolate key movement and gesture; studies of children and nature; light drawings; photograms; and photomontage.

British education topic of NSC talk by N.Y.C. teacher

Grace Cohen, teacher at The Little Red School House—the Bank Street College of Education, both of New York City, will show slides of British primary schools in Leicestershire, England primary schools during her 1969-70 sabbatical year, next Thursday, at 1:40 p.m. in the Central Lounge, Dowa Hall, on the Union campus of Newark State College.

She will repeat her illustrated lecture from 5 to 7 p.m. in the Campus School South, and be available for informal questions over coffee after each session.

Whether referred to as "The Open Classroom," "Britain's Infant School," "Leicestershire Method," or the "Integrated Day"—the this special approach to teaching has received international attention and is in the experimental stage in a number of classrooms in the United States. Teachers Manhattan schools are trying what they call "The Open Door," so kindergarten, first and second grade classrooms are next to each other in an educational unit in the same corridor. The program leads to sharing and students of all ages, teachers, assistants and student teachers all use the same equipment and pool informally in a variety of activities.

In a recent article describing this program, Fred Hechinger, New York Times Education editor, pointed out that "the open classroom requires far greater interpersonal sophistication of its teachers" and that there is "danger of bandwagon effect—adopting a popular fad without real understanding."

This program has been arranged by Dr. Pearl Greenberg, associate professor of fine arts at Newark State.

CEYLON NEWSPRINT

If you think New Jersey has humidity—meet Ceylon. "We can hardly keep a baby pin more than a week before it rusts," a wife of an Embassy staff member said. "Our shoes mildew and the clothes lines rot away . . . and it is hot.

Nonetheless, Ceylon is a pleasure to visit. The second National Newspaper Association Study Mission arrived in Colombo, the capital city of Ceylon, on a hot and humid afternoon. We knew, after the first visit. And, just as the first time, even the approaching night fall gave no relief to the heat.

We had come to Colombo from Madras via Trichinopoly, would-you-believe, and were approximately three-hours behind schedule, but once in a car, in Ceylon, you might as well forget what time it is. By the time we reached our hotel we were even more than three hours behind schedule.

* * *

THE ROAD WAS MADE OF TAR and RUBBER, because the Ceylon people have found that the addition of rubber, of which they have so much, keeps the road smoother and makes it last longer. But even though the road was smooth and well-paved and smooth, it took a long time to drive the trek between the airport and town, and it was a struggle. The natives of Ceylon, called Sinhalese, (70 percent are Sinhalese ethnically) seem to feel that the road is for men, women and children, AND cattle and dogs—and elephants—and not really for cars. It is a peculiar fact of Ceylon that more people and animals fill the roads, than there are cars. In the city, the road is two lane at most, there is only never one lane; the middle. The rest is jammed with people, and never move out of their never look around. A blasting horn doesn't do any good either. Horses help everyone when a car comes, the opposite way. Each car approaches the other straight down the middle, and they each hold out to the bitter end waiting for the other to give, like two stubborn bulls. A ride in Ceylon, consequently, may be a thing of beauty but it is a joit forever.

On one of the first days in Ceylon which was spent on a long motor trip from the corner of the island to Kandy and back, I became so distraught with the heat and struggle and horn blowing, I felt a little green around the edges. The driver of the car, mistaking the symptoms for a bugger problem, very sympathetically turned around and asked, "Does your stomach pinch you?"

THE HOTEL ON OUR first visit was one of the memorable ones and was called Galle Face. No one could determine what language that might be. Several years ago Sinhala was made the official language but the Hindu family want the Tamil language. Consequently Ceylon has seen years of violence over the matter. But "Galle Face" appears to be neither one of those. I finally asked our driver. "Oh," he said, Galle is a Portuguese name (the Portuguese settled Ceylon first, then Dutch, then English) and there is a fort named Galle. The hotel faces it." So there, Galle Face.

The hotel was large. Large "like" a city block. Not huge—no air-conditioning, no elevator, no bellhops, and the others had ceiling fan-like fans. It sounds old-fashioned and like an old-time movie, and it looked it, but those fans were more effective than you would believe.

The hotel in the city on our second visit was clamoy new. Early Halloween style, but the second night we moved out to the ocean side to Mt. Lavinia and the hotel on the beach. It too was old as the Galle Face is old, and also memorable. But it had all conveniences, a lovely large, high-ceilinged rooms and breathtaking sea views from the large windows. There was no air-conditioning except the ocean breezes, and we ate in an open-air dining-like room. We had rare steak and mashed potatoes and all kinds of cuisine Americana and it was delicious.

The waiters were a delight, too. At the Galle Face they were barefoot and in turbans and white full-length skirts, and were as pleasant and nice as could be. One of the women at our table had been complimented many times on her lapis-brown eyes, but no one had ever heard them complimented the way they were complimented at the Galle Face hotel one night on our first visit. One of the little waiters said to the woman's husband, "Your wife—she has beautiful black hair and beautiful chocolate eyes!"

Reinhardt's Grads to get tuition break

The board of trustees of Upsala College has voted to open its regular day and evening session courses to Upsala graduates at one-third the regular tuition cost.

Tuition for an evening session course for alumni will be $60 and for a day session course $80. All courses will be available to alumni on a "space permitting" basis with priority going to regular day and evening students. Alumni will be limited to two courses per semester. The new program will go into effect for the fall semester next September.

Alumni Director William Foster said a complete listing of courses offerings and appropriate application forms may be obtained at the office of the registrar at Upsala.

Two-thirds of Upsala's alumni are from New Jersey with 50 percent of the graduates coming from the counties of Passaic, Bergen, Morris, Essex and Union.

Art gallery set up at Newark bank

Chair C. Bradley, president of the Broad National Bank, has announced plans for an art exhibition gallery on the mezzanine main banking floor at 508 Broad st., Newark. Bradley emphasized that the project, entitled "New Jersey Artists and their Works '71," will be an adjunct to the architectural and cultural renewal being witnessed in Newark today.

The bank plans to devote an entire section to the artists' works and to change the show a regular basis. The exhibitions will be coordinated by Mrs. Ray Weiner, a director of the Artist and Craftsman Guild of Cranford.

The initial show opened on Monday, March 1, and extends through April 16. It features the works of three New Jersey artists in various media—Watercolor and acrylic collages by Leo Mouit of Cranford; oils by Gerald Liebeck of Cranbury, and expressions in glass and plastics by Kay Weiner of Mountainside.

Mrs. Weiner is a designer craftsman who recently completed a 14-foot divider wall of embedded glass for the new Springfield library. She is a teacher, lecturer and writer on glass as an art medium.

Monti, a member of the New Jersey Watercolor Society, has won over 40 awards in the last five years. His works have been included in state and national travel exhibitions. Liebeck has won awards throughout the state for his triangular landscapes, realistic still life and his dramatic graphics. His versatility is also apparent in his watercolors and abstracts.

The works will be on view during regular banking hours.

Royal Ballet will perform

Two new ballets and one American classic will be presented by The Royal Winnipeg Ballet when it performs tonight at Symphony Hall in Newark.

The Canadian company of 25 dancers and orchestra will make its only New York metropolitan area appearance at Symphony Hall. The program, which will begin at 8 p.m., is one of Symphony Hall's International Dance Series.

A premiere work on the program, is John Clifford's "Concert Fantasy," a ballet danced to Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto No. 2. Clifford, himself a soloist with the New York City Ballet, calls it a "fun showpiece" that is "classical ballet as I know it today—sunny, so pointed, with classical music—as interpreted by George Balanchine."

Also on the program will be "The Sinking People of Leonard Cohen" by Brian Macdonald, premiered in Paris last year by the Royal Winnipeg. This pas de deux is a portrayal of two young lovers dancing to music and the words of poet Cohen.

The third ballet on the program is Agnes DeMille's "Fall River Legend," a dance study of accused murderess Lizzie Borden and danced to the music of Morton Gould.

"Fall River Legend," premiered in New York in 1948, is danced by Royal Winnipeg's leading dancer, Christine Hennessey.

Next on the Symphony Hall schedule will be the Inbal Dance Theatre of Israel on Thursday, April 1, at 8 p.m.

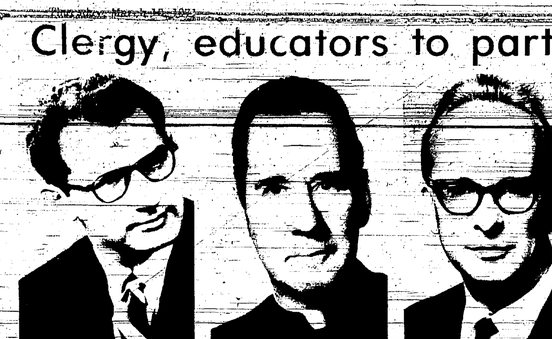
Clergy, educators to participate in interfaith seminar



RABBI MARC H. TANENBAUM — REV. EDWARD H. FLANNERY — PROF. A. ROY ECKARDT

An interfaith seminar for clergy and educators will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Tuesday at Trinity Episcopal Church, Forest and North avenues, Cranford, under the auspices of Trinitarian Protestant and Roman Catholic organizations.

The scholars who will address themselves to the theme, "The Concept of Israel in Jewish and Christian Perspectives," are Professor A. Roy Eckardt, chairman of the Department of Religion, Lehigh University, the Rev. Edward H. Flannery, executive secretary of the Secretariat for Catholic-Jewish Relations of the Bishops' Committee for Ecumenical and Interreligious Affairs, and Rabbi Marc H. Tanenbaum, national director of the Interreligious Affairs Department of the American Jewish Committee.

Professor Eckardt, a graduate of Brooklyn College and the Yale Divinity School, received his Ph.D. degree at Columbia University and his LL.D. degree at the Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion. Prior to coming to Lehigh University in 1958, he served on the faculties of the Department of Religion at Lawrence University and Duke University. From 1964 to 1969 he was editor of the Journal of the American Academy of Religion.

A frequent contributor of articles to various scholarly and professional journals, Professor Eckardt has also written five books, the most recently published being "Encounter With Israel," which he collaborated with his wife, Alice.

Father Flannery, assistant director of the Institute for Ecumenical and Interreligious Studies at Seton Hall University, was educated at LaSalle Academy, Providence; St. Charles College, Baltimore; the Seminaire St. Sulpice, France; the Sulpician Seminary and Catholic University, Washington, D.C., and received his J.D.D. degree from Our Lady of Providence Seminary, Warwick, R.I.

Before joining the faculty at Seton Hall University, Father Flannery served as editor of "The Providence Visitor," a diocesan weekly. His book, "The Anguish of the Jews," is the first history of anti-Semitism by a Catholic priest and has been translated into French, Spanish and Portuguese. He is a leading exponent of Catholic social thought and action, particularly in the field of Jewish-Christian dialogue.

Rabbi Tanenbaum was graduated from Yeshiva University and was ordained and received a master of Hebrew literature degree at the Jewish Theological Seminary of America. Bank helps in selection of colleges

The Broad National Bank has announced a new service, designed to relve the two major problems facing college-bound students and their parents — how to select the right college, and how to pay for it.

To help students with the difficult job of picking the most suitable college, Broad National's college service relies on the facilities of Princeton Educational Consultants, Inc., a private firm that has assembled in a data bank all necessary information on more than 1,300 4-year colleges and universities in the United States.

To use the service, students fill out a form available at any Broad National Banking Center, listing their own academic qualifications and college preferences. Computers match these specifications with all schools in the P.E.C. data bank and make preliminary choices, which are then individually reviewed by professionals.

For a $15 fee, P.E.C. then prepares and mails to students a tailor-made report.

A listing of 3 to 10 recommended colleges or universities, with a data sheet for each showing 21 categories of facts relevant to entrance requirements, composition of student body, curriculum, faculty characteristics, costs, financial aid programs, available sports, etc.

—A full explanation of criteria used in making the selections so that applicants can determine for themselves to which of the recommended colleges they wish to apply.

—An article, "Perspective on Choosing a College," by Dr. Richard Pearson, former president of College Entrance Board.

—Preprinted postcards which can be addressed to colleges to request catalogues and application forms.

To help students and their parents with the equally difficult job of meeting college expenses, Broad National's college service provides a wide variety of savings plans and, if needed, a number of flexible loan programs made to the parents of the students.

Group plans class on egg decorating

The Ukrainian National Women's League of America Branch of Newark, Irvington and vicinity will give instructions on making Pysanky—Ukrainian Easter eggs—at the Ukrainian Community Center, 140 Prospect ave., Irvington, on Tuesday, March 23 and 30, commencing at 7:30 p.m.

7,200 students aided by educational fund

The Educational Opportunity Fund (EOF), state program, is aiding 7,200 low-income, educationally disadvantaged students at 43 public and independent colleges in New Jersey. The program is showing "impressive economic results," Chancellor of Higher Education Ralph A. Dungan said this week.

In advance of releasing a comprehensive report on the second year of EOF operations, Dungan said the state program is successfully achieving its goal of providing educational opportunity for disadvantaged New Jerseyans—largely members of minority groups—who once had little or no chance to secure a college education."

Involvement is subject of NJEA talks

The New Jersey Education Association is arranging a three-day Conference to get high school students more involved in curriculum decision-making.

Teams of students, teachers and administrators from 11 New Jersey school districts have been invited to the conference, to be conducted April 1-3 in Asbury Park's Empress Motel.

Each team will include five high school students, three teachers, the high school principal and one other school administrator. The students will be sophomores or juniors with at least one full year of school remaining after the conference ends.

The participants are being selected jointly by school officials and the local teachers' association.

"Our goal is to bring together a cross-section of ideas and philosophies," says conference coordinator Donald R. McNeely of the NJEA staff. "Although each team will include a Student Council representative, it will also include an outspoken critic of the school system."

NJEA is also asking that teacher representatives include critics as well as proponents of student involvement.

"Student involvement is necessarily inevitable in positive change in education," McNeely says. "The conference is an attempt to make students, teachers, and administrators recognize the rights as well as the responsibilities of the other parties and to get them working together for positive change."

Art of Chinese bookmaking on display

An ancient page written in pure gold, a hand-painted wooden book frontispiece with a drop portion of silk, and an intricate slanting-covered book box whose parts fit together like a Chinese puzzle are among the rare and valuable articles currently on display at Seton Hall University, South Orange. They are part of an exhibit tracing the history of the art of Chinese bookmaking.

The display, which is located in the foyer and main lobby of McLaughlin library, includes some antique book materials loaned from the Princeton University library's Oriental collection and other art objects and books from the private collection of Dr. Fred Fangyu Wang, professor in the Department of Asian Studies and Non-Western Civilization, Seton Hall, who directed the display project under the auspices of Msgr. William Noe Field, University librarian. The Seton Hall exhibit is one of the few occasions when many of the items will be on public view.

Beginning with a section on the evolution of calligraphy from early shell and bone characters to modern brush-written ideographs, the exhibit covers the development of writing, printing and bookbinding. Both ancient and modern examples of calligraphy, such as a recent Chinese newspaper, are used to indicate changes in the written symbols of the language, including simplified forms that are a result of language reform in Mainland China. Dey Wang, an artist and teacher of Chinese calligraphy, who instructs a class in cursive writing at Seton Hall, contributed his own 17th-century edition of the first Chinese dictionary, originally compiled in 100 A.D., to the exhibit. He himself is the editor of a recent dictionary of Mandarin Chinese.

Printing in China started many centuries before Christ, with the use of engraved seals and rubbings from stone. A bronze seal dating from the sixth century is on display at Seton Hall as well as an actual rubbing made from a stone monument dating from the second century. A 13th-century Buddhist Sutra (or book of aphorisms), amply illustrated and with folding pages, represents the development of block printing.

Even before the inventing of paper the Chinese created an early book form handprinted on strips of bamboo bound together with cords by, an example of which is shown at Seton Hall by photographic enlarging forms, and as rolled-scrolls and accordion-folded pages that predated modern sewn bindings, are seen in several fine examples in the Seton Hall display.

One of the rarest items at Seton Hall is an oversized wood slab, elaborately carved and gilded, which was used as a cover on a book containing gold-inscribed parchment pages, one of which is also on view.

Fine book-cases, which are separate covers to enclose either loose leaves or bound volumes, are shown in cotton-covered boards with ivory clasps, carved wood, and embroidered silk brocade. A more modern version, or "tete" elaborate scrollwork, folds around a book in layers. Several of these book cases are part of Dr. Wang's collection.

Dr. Wang, a native of Peiping, China, taught at Yale before coming to Seton Hall in 1966. He is internationally known for his extensive contributions in applied linguistics of the Chinese language, including several books, and is an expert on the multi-media approach to Chinese-language teaching, including computer assisted instruction.

CHINESE ART — Dr. and Mrs. Fred Fangyu Wang of Short Hills unfold the intricately-scrolled cover of a book case that is part of their collection of books on Chinese art. Many articles from their collection are now on display at Seton Hall University, South Orange, as part of an exhibit on the history of the art of Chinese bookmaking assembled by Dr. Wang, professor in the Asian Studies Department at Seton Hall. In the case behind them may be seen a large wooden Tibetan book cover, which is elaborately carved and gilded. It is on loan from Princeton University for the exhibit.

Church fund goals gain endorsements of Cahill, senators

Governor William T. Cahill of New Jersey and U.S. Senators Clifford P. Case and Harrison A. Williams Jr. have given warm personal endorsement to the spring appeals of America's major religious faiths for support of their programs aiding those in need overseas.

These appeals are the Protestant "One Great Hour of Sharing" and the "Catholic Relief Overseas Aid Fund" appeal, both of which will be observed in churches in New Jersey and throughout the nation on Sunday and the "United Jewish Appeal," a continuing effort with special emphasis at this period of the year.

Through these independent but common-purpose efforts, relief and rehabilitation are provided for millions of the world's homeless, hungry and destitute.

The three faiths, through their programs of assistance supported by the current appeals, distribute food, clothing, blankets, medicines and self-help materials to millions in need; give aid to orphanages, assist hospitals, tuberculosis clinics and other health efforts, and carry on resettlement and rehabilitation projects for refugees.

Foundation elects new officer slate

Dr. David Reisner of Brookside, has been elected president of the North Jersey Conservation Foundation, succeeding Charles DeBlasiis of Harding Township.

Dr. Reisner and other new officers of the 2,000-member statewide conservation group were introduced Monday at its annual membership meeting.

Other officers are James Kiss of Chatham, first vice-president; E. Easy Stowell of New Vernon, second vice-president; Russell W. Myers of Chester Township, secretary, and William Smith of Madison, treasurer. Two new trustees are Mrs. H. I. Romnes of Chatham and E. Burke Giblin of New Vernon.

Attended by more than 300 persons, the meeting was also highlighted by the presentation of the North Jersey Conservation Foundation Award of Merit to Dr. Gertrude Tempe of Baldi Lake, curriculum director for the Madison Schools.

Dr. Tempe received the award from Dr. Reisner, as his first official act in recognition of her development of a 12-year environmental school curriculum which has been in use at Madison for the past four years.

The North Jersey Conservation Foundation undertook the development of the curriculum, believed first of its kind to be published in the nation, and announced publication of its second volume, covering grade IV.

David F. Moore, executive director, reported unprecedented requests during last week for the foundation's new publication, "Be Your Own Eco-Activist," which was formally introduced at the meeting. Compiled by the foundation staff, the 32-page booklet lists numerous ways, in which the individual can act to offset ongoing destruction of the environment.

Rt. 22 blaze destroys 2 stores in snowstorm

Union firemen this week were with stamina to spare as they battled a fire that destroyed two business places on the outer island of Rt. 22 in the township just before Thursday's Nor'easter for Center Cinema and Ski Shop, a fire which could be heard and seen in the local community, and what was reported to exterior of the two buildings, leaving both businesses were left unusable by the flames which broke out in the Ski Shop and spread to the Cinema during a snowstorm last Thursday.

The blaze, designated at 8 a.m., forced Route 22 to close all both east and westbound lanes of Rt. 22 during the morning rush hour. Vehicles detoured onto Union side streets, where traffic was directed about the fire scene by Union patrolmen who had been summoned reinforcements to the scene in the township. At the highest, flames were backed up for miles.

Live wires and cables, responsible to the spread of the flames, fell across the highway to block the scene.

When they arrived, they faced smoke and flames spilling from the one-story cinder-block and cement structure, which was a total loss. Damage was done to the Cinema, and only by the luck, and part of the roofing was burned away while the evening program was in progress. The manager had the building and everyone in it evacuated safely.

Firemen attempted to keep the blaze from spreading but received damage from smoke and water as well as flames in the adjacent Fabric Yard, located only about a month ago, in a new building. Fabric Yard was a "grand opening" only when it was destroyed by the fire.

Firemen, under the direction of Chief Thomas Kiernan, had to battle the blaze for more than an hour and a half, with the assistance of neighboring departments.

They were called back to the Center more than an hour later when a small fire broke out again in the building, but they were quickly put out.

We'll Be Back!

On the morning of March 4th, FABRIC YARD's new store on U.S. Route 22 in Union was destroyed by a fire of unknown origin. Although our building was a complete loss, we're grateful that no employees or customers were injured.

Within hours after the ashes had cooled, we began looking for a new location for a bigger, better FABRIC YARD. Because, as unhappy as we were at our loss, we were buoyed by the knowledge that our basic idea was right: Quality Merchandise, Low Prices, and Courteous Service are what YOU want.

We're looking for that new location right now, as you read this. And in a few months, we'll be back with a brand-new FABRIC YARD – bigger, better, and more beautiful than ever! We promise – it'll be worth the wait.

THINK about your shoes. What did you pay for them? Did you pay more than you had to? If you're not all that happy, maybe you should pay a visit to a Thom McAn store. A long time ago Thom McAn figured out a way to give you more for your shoe dollar. This fifty-year-old formula is simple: Make your own good quality shoes. Make lots of them. Sell lots of them. Sell them for less money. Does it sound like the idea is too simple? Then there's something you should know about Thom McAn:

Thom McAn makes and sells more shoes than any other single shoe store brand in all America.

Thom McAn didn't get to be this popular by giving a bad deal. When you make a lot of shoes, your cost per pair is less. When you sell more, the price can be less. This can be done without sacrificing quality. Prove it to yourself. Visit a Thom McAn store soon. Pick up any shoe. Feel the leathers. Inside and out. The leathers and the shoemaker's details are the same as those in more expensive shoes. In fact, everything's the same as costlier shoes except for the price. What makes the shoe good is Thom McAn—not the price.

At Thom McAn, you get more for your shoe money. And considering what's happening to prices these days, we shouldn't spend more money than we have to. Of course, if every other store sold as many shoes as Thom McAn, they could charge less too. But that's their business. Thom McAn sells more shoes and makes a profit with fast nickels instead of slow dimes. But remember they're your nickels instead of your dimes. Think about it.

A. No. Our workers are available to any caller who wants to discuss any problem.

Q. Aren't the volunteers people with their own hangups who get their kicks out of listening to other people's troubles?

A. Our workers are dedicated, sincere people, trying to do their best in helping others. If we're not perfect, it's because we're human too.

Q. Are you trained professionals?

A. No. We have professional guidance, but all the workers are mature, non-paid volunteers. They are selected for good judgment and rapport with people.

Q. Are your mature workers older people?

A. We have some recent high school grads, and some older people who are retired. Most workers are parents.

Q. How many people have you helped?

A. We don't know. Since we make no attempt to identify the caller or to follow-up referrals, we have no way of knowing how effective we are.

Q. What can you tell young people that their parents can't tell them?

A. Not much. However, in many homes there is little communication and therefore it is easier for trained strangers to listen. We have much referral and resource information available to us.

Q. Do you tape your calls?

A. No. Volunteers make notes for statistical purposes only.

Q. Can the police monitor the Hot Line?

A. No.

Q. Why don't you publish the names of your workers?

A. Our service is completely confidential on both ends of the telephone.

Q. Have you received calls related to suicide, alcohol, abortions, as well as drug problems?

A. Yes. All of these and other categories, too.

Q. Why don't you take calls around the clock, instead of just 7 p.m. to midnight?

A. We would expect very few calls at other hours. We may expand the hours in the future if necessary.

'71 season ends in loss by 71 to 60

Regional team reaches state tourney semi-final

BY BRIAN MULLEN

The glory year for the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School basketball team ended Tuesday night when Cliffside Park defeated the Bulldogs, 71-60, in a state tournament semi-final game at Hackensack High School.

The Bergen County pulled out in front with a quick spurt in the second quarter and, with control of both backboards, held a 10-point lead virtually all the way to the final buzzer.

Dayton, under the leadership of Coach Ray Yanchus, closed its season with a record of 21-3, including the Suburban Conference championship.

Cliffside Park, winner in the Bergen League American Division, raised its mark to 22-3. Bloodied winners have one more game ahead of them — the state finals in Cherry Hill. The two teams last met in the state Group 3 semi-finals in 1955, and the result was the same then as it was this year in Group 2.

The last time the two teams were even on Tuesday was when Dayton's Ed Grassale sank a foul shot to make it 9-9 in the first period. Cliffside Park then scored six straight points and, applying pressure in the back court, stayed ahead the rest of the way. The score at the end of the quarter was 20-13.

The Cliffside five then ran six more points to lead, 26-13. Dayton switched to a zone defense and caused four quick turnovers, but could not cut into any of those scores. A basket by Grassale and two by Howie Alexander closed the gap to 26-21, but Cliffside pulled out again at the half, 34-27.

The winners built their lead quickly after halftime to 42-33, then started to play slowdown basketball. The margin after three periods was 54-42.

Alexander and Grassale picked up the game with eight points apiece in the last period, and Dayton went into a fullcourt press. The winners, however, locked up the game with a freeze for almost all of the last three minutes.

Scorers for Dayton were: Alexander, 23; Grassale, 21; Bob Janukowicz, 10; Mark Hollander, 4, and Carmine Bove, 2.

The Dayton basketball team concludes its season with a 20-1 record in the Bergen County Group 1 championship. That is the first time the Bulldogs have advanced to Group II semi-finals in tournament play since 1950.

In the game, played at Westfield High, the Bulldogs have the Colts a 2-0 lead, but came back to grab a 9-2 margin on two jump shots by Gary Pressleaff. Princeton then fought back and was able to tie the game at 9-9. Mark Holander and Greg Spector responded with baskets to give the Bulldogs a 13-9 lead at the close of the first quarter.

Early in the second period, the Bulldogs spurted to a 15-9 lead. After it was cut to 15-13 by the Colts, three consecutive Princeton turnovers enabled the Bulldogs to move to a 25-12 halftime lead.

The Dayton defense tightened up and, throughout the third period, forced Princeton, causing eight turnovers. Center Howard Alexander turned in five of his seven blocked shots in this quarter for the Bulldogs. Meanwhile, Dayton scored eight points to pull ahead, 38-21.

Lead by Grassale and Janukowicz, the Bulldogs held a 40-24 margin at the end of the third period.

The Bulldogs continued their pace throughout the fourth quarter as Alexander connected for seven points and Janukowicz for six.

High man for Dayton was Alexander with 15 points and 12 rebounds while Grassale tallied 13 points and nine assists. Janukowicz finished with 14 while Bove hit five and Hollander four.

Pitching woes may foil Dayton defense of title

BY BRIAN MULLEN

The Jonathan Dayton Regional High School baseball team, which won the Suburban Conference crown last season, is preparing to defend its title this year but Coach Ed Jasinski indicates it will be a difficult task.

The coach points out that this is his first time in his 10 years at Dayton that he has no returning varsity pitchers on his staff. Among candidates include senior Doug Freeman and juniors Jim Schoch and Frank Fillippone. Jasinski may use senior Bob Janukowicz on the mound this season.

Returning veterans in the infield are Dave Minthum at third base and Janukowicz at shortstop. Coach Jasinski feels that "Dave and Bob are the best third-shortstop combination in the conference." The other side of the infield still hasn't been decided.

Coach Jasinski feels, "It is hard to predict what a team will produce but the potential for a good hitting team is there." He also indicates prospects in March are bleak, mainly because of poor weather and boys still in winter-sports, but is looking forward to a productive season this year.

Volunteers needed to assist retarded children in Jersey

A membership drive is under way throughout the state to recruit volunteers to join and work with local units of the New Jersey Association for Retarded Children (NJARC).

March is national membership month for the nonprofit group, which is the state affiliate of the National Association for Retarded Children, of which NJARC is an affiliate.

The 18 units in the state, representing a private, watchful voice of the more than 200,000 mentally retarded children and adults in New Jersey, are opening their doors and programs this month to interested persons who may wish to see what is being done in the community to help retarded people and who may want to help promote that work.

There are today more than 18,000 educable and trainable retarded children in public school classes, and hundreds of parents and other legally responsible relatives who no longer have "to go far institutional care for their dependents.

The Association soon will offer proposed legislation that would authorize state subsidies for long-term reports of nearly 30 sheltered workshops, all of which are operated or assisted by NJARC units.

"During more than [illegible] years, we have organized and administered programs to help educable [illegible] persons. These include [illegible] day care services, recreation and [illegible] programs, independent living programs for the young adult retarded, [illegible] and vocational training.

CHECK TERMITE DAMAGE

Every year at this time, homeowners find winged insects that suddenly fly out and then drop their wings and crawl around the floor. These insects are TERMITES and note that there are still thousands of other termites still eating the house, causing further destruction to the wood in the house.

Keeping students in line

First city schools had ways

Written by the New Jersey Education Association to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the state's free public schools, Although far in advance of most public schools in New Jersey's big cities one could imagine how and those days of problems from tardiness to misbehavior. Before the day of student rights, school officers often found solutions that, while effective, were heavy-handed.

In New Brunswick, reports the New Jersey Education Association, City Superintendent Henry H. Pierce faced a widespread school problem: severe and persistent tardiness among the students. The Recorders produced "all sorts of excuses," Pierce wrote in his report on the report to the state. "Some having been written by parents—and some having been forged by themselves. It was utterly impossible for teachers to detect those which were genuine, and which were counterfeit. It seemed a false course, regarded like allowing a reward for successful deception."

Pierce finally had his way, NJEA reports.

The way he reminded:

1. Each pupil shall, on returning the school, After disposing of such articles of clothing as may be necessary, in the place appointed for that purpose, proceed quietly to her seat and await the opening exercises of the primary school.

2. Drop not on their orders, or, in departure to to their teachers, act in in their intercourse with their fellow pupils are required from every pupil.

3. Communications among the pupils, whether by talking, whispering, sign, or writing during the hours appointed for study, restlessness in their places, or unnecessary noise or disorderly conduct are strictly forbidden.

4. Cleanliness of person and dress, propriety of deportment, truthfulness, and honorable conduct are expected of all.

—Maintaining discipline, says NJEA, has always been a school problem. Although the 1846 statute that created New Jersey's public [illegible] not necessarily [illegible] schools forbade corporal punishment, this prohibition was not always obeyed. Samuel Traxton, local superintendent of schools in the 1871 city report, reported: "Public shame could and possibly [illegible] in the [illegible] instances, [illegible] never tarry.

[illegible] years ago, out of nearly 7,000 enrolled, only two were present every day.

At the close of the last year, the names of 80 pupils were read who had not missed a day.

Salem, another of New Jersey's big cities [illegible] reported: "Since school rules in force [illegible] Commemorating the 25 years the New Jersey Division has served the citizens of Ridgewood, it is [illegible] next Tuesday, [illegible] Mary Hill, for the [illegible] Society [illegible] Society volunteers will attend the affair. State totals show poisoning extent Almost 100 New Jersey children under the age of five are accidentally poisoned every day by prescription medicines, household chemicals. And, an estimated 50,000 New Jersey residents are victims of accidental poisoning each year.

The most common type of poisoning cases for children include aspirin, or poison, pesticides, berries (in season), cough syrup and cleaning fluids — particularly cleaning fluids removed from the original container and placed, for example, in a soda bottle. Adults seem to suffer from overdoses of tranquilizers and barbiturates.

These facts were revealed this week by Jack W. Weis, president of The New Jersey Hospital Association, one of the co-sponsors of Poison Prevention Week in New Jersey (March 14-20). The hospital association, the N.J. Department of Health, the N.J. Pharmaceutical Association and the N.J. Safety Council have jointly published Poison Prevention Week since 1961.

Once noted that poison control centers are maintained by 36 New Jersey hospitals across the state on a 24 hour basis. One of the centers is located at Memorial General Hospital, Union.

National Safety Council lists fewer accident deaths in '70

CHICAGO, — The National Safety Council reports that approximately 113,000 Americans died as a result of accidents in 1970, a decrease of ten percent from 1969.

Disabling injuries totaled approximately 10,000,000 including 400,000 that resulted in some form of permanent impairment. The total of accidents in 1970 was approximately [illegible] million.

[illegible] numbered 1,100 [illegible] represents a 5% percent reduction from the 1969 toll of 56,000. In addition, the mileage death rate per 100 million vehicle miles traveled dropped from 5.5 in 1969 to 5.0 in 1970 — the lowest rate in history.

This reduction occurred despite the fact that there were three million more licensed drivers and four million more motor vehicles on the road in 1970 than in 1969.

Deaths from public accidents are leading the decline. Public deaths decreased five percent from 21,000 in 1969 to 20,000 in 1970. The decrease of 1,000 deaths can be attributed to fewer fire and farm fatalities, as well as fewer deaths due to falls and aviation accidents. This was the first fatality-free year in commercial air transportation, as passengers and crew members died on scheduled domestic air transport flights.

Preliminary figures indicate that motor vehicle fatalities increased to 1970, however.

The 1970 death total for work accidents was unchanged from the 14,200 reported by the Council. Estimated [illegible] to be 2,200,000. The cost of work accidents [illegible] was $9 billion. In addition to the 14,200 persons killed at work, 42,200 died in off-the-job accidents.

Since the Council was organized in 1912, the greatest progress in accident prevention has been among children under 15 years of age. All other age groups also showed improvement except for the 15 to 24 age group, which had a seven percent increase in accidents.

NATIONAL [illegible] VITALITY	[illegible]	[illegible]
All Accidents	110,000	116,000
Motor Vehicle	55,000	55,000
Public Non-motor Vehicle	20,000	21,000
Home	29,000	29,000
Work	14,000	14,200

The motor vehicle fatalities include home deaths also included in the work and home totals. Plus duplicated [illegible] to about 2,500,000 [illegible] to 2,600,000 in 1970 [illegible] Safety Council estimate.

Supermarts sued by Farm Workers

The United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, AFL-CIO, last week filed suit against several New Jersey supermarket firms charging infringement of a certification mark. The suit charged that the defendants were displaying the plaintiff's certification mark "adjacent to lettuce which was not picked by members of plaintiff's organization" in such a manner as to indicate that the lettuce had been picked by members of the Farm Workers.

Noting that the Farm Workers are on strike against supermarkets and stating that many people will not buy lettuce from stores who have not signed with the union, the complaint declared, "The defendants have attempted to palm off other's lettuce through the use of the plaintiff's mark."

Defendants in the suit are Wakefern Food Corporation, Inc.; Shop-Rite Supermarkets, Inc.; Consolidated Supermarkets, Inc.; Food-Town Supermarkets, Inc., and Progressive Supermarkets, Inc. The suit was filed by Richard L. Sumner of the New York law firm of Lerner, David and Littenberg.

REIGNING MISS UNION COUNTY, Hela Yunger of Hillside, center, checks contest plans with Bob Johnston, entries chairman of the Miss Union County contest, and his wife, Sally. Johnston is looking for entries for the contest this year, which will be held May 29, to find a successor to Miss Yunger.

Annual search begins anew for county queen prospects

Last year was the fourth time in 13 years a Miss Union County contest winner became Miss New Jersey. She's Hela Yunger of Hillside.

This year, as the contest committee gears up for new contestants, they have their fingers crossed that they'll discover a Miss America.

The Miss Union County Scholarship Pageant will be conducted Saturday, May 29, at the Scotch Plains-Fanwood High school at 8 p.m.

Poise, beauty and talent are the three major ingredients. Each contestant will be judged in evening gown, in swim suit and in the presentation of her talent, a contest spokesman said.

There is a special award for the contestant possessing the best talent, the spokesman said.

Civic and social organizations are urged to sponsor candidates who they know personally, daughters, friends, and relatives should encourage the girls to enter the pageant, he said.

To qualify a young woman must be between the ages of 18 and 28 on Sept. 1 and attendance in school in or a resident of Union County. Official pageant entry blanks can be obtained by phoning the entries chairman, Bob Johnston, at 889-4231 or write him at 422 Evergreen Blvd., Scotch Plains, the spokesman said.

In addition, committeeman John Bradway (233-3641) or Bob Shear (889-5665) can also be contacted for entry blanks. The deadline for submitting your application is Thursday, March 25, the spokesman said.

Bell official named campaign chairman

George M. Zeiny, comptroller of Bell Laboratories, Murray Hill, has been named general campaign chairman for the Commerce and Industry United Fund of Union County, Inc., for the 1971-72 fund drive.

Announcing the appointment, Lewis G. King, president of the fund, said: "Since the birth of the county fund two years ago, we have not only achieved our goal both times but actually increased total contributions by more than 20 percent. These results were made possible through the sacrifice of time and effort by our qualified volunteers from business, industry and labor. Mr. Zeiny can again bring to the fund the quality leadership we need to continue our growth pattern."

King added: "As a United Fund we have the dual responsibility—of raising the necessary funds in our county and also of assessing priorities to assure that those funds are utilized in the most effective manner possible. Our leadership must be one of excellence."

Report form due Apr. 15

Ralph W. Jones, manager of the Elizabeth Social Security district office, said that work that all persons entitled to monthly Social Security checks who worked last year and earned over $1,680 must file an annual report form no later than April 15. The law provides a penalty for failure to file on time.

The report is necessary, Jones said, to determine whether an overpayment has been made and also to assure benefit payments to people who have not received all the checks due them for the past year.

The annual report form is sent by mail with a return envelope. It should be completed at home. However, Jones urged persons needing assistance to telephone their local Social Security office where help is available to answer the questions on the form correctly.

There is no need to visit the district office, Jones said. All questions can be answered or resolved by telephone.

Junior Achievers spend day with management executives

Some 800 teenage boys and girls engaged in Junior Achievement enterprises in Union County spent last Thursday with the top executives, management and supervisory personnel of their parent companies.

The program, called "Project Communicate," is designed to establish effective dialogues between businessmen and youth engaged in the Junior Achievement programs they sponsor.

The youngsters, 15 to 18, were assigned to the offices of their senior counterparts in the various industries to observe business procedures at first hand.

The Junior Achievers already have had an opportunity to learn the values, motivations and rewards of the American free enterprise system by owning and operating their own junior companies, the announcement added.

Adult business and industrial organizations supply these adult advisers to counsel and assist each junior firm in areas of finance, production, sales and administration. The Junior Achievers elect officers, hold stock, purchase raw materials, manufacture and sell a product. They prepare stockholders' reports and are liquidated after about eight months.

Through "Project Communicate," it is expected the youngsters will add to their own experience by gaining a keener understanding of the purpose and objectives, functions and problems of the business world; by developing a knowledge of the importance and extent of community responsibility of business; and by recognizing the opportunities that lie ahead.

The Junior Achievers had an opportunity to discuss business policies and objectives, to observe procedures and techniques, and to see how basic concepts learned in school are put to use in the business world. They will put the lessons learned from the businessmen, the youngsters said, to good use in their own companies.

It's built by one of Europe's oldest custom coachmakers: Karmann of Osnabrück.
Only a limited number are made each day. Mainly because it takes interminably long to shape the body.
The intricate curves of Ghia's lines that machines can't form them. So Karmann employs sculptors to finish the body. By hand.
It's welded, burnished, smoothed, painted, sanded and rubbed. By hand.
And only when it passes hundreds of inspections does it get together with the chassis. Which is a beauty in itself:

Joseph H. Gillian, president, Hermon Savings Bank, Hermon, and member board of directors of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, returned from Washington, D.C., where he was one of a group of savings bank industry leaders who met with ranking officials of the Nixon Administration and with members of the Congress to discuss "savings and housing trends, inflation and other key economic and financial issues."

The meeting in Washington was sponsored by the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks in cooperation with state savings bank organizations.

Its purpose was to give the industry's leadership an opportunity to meet with federal government officials and legislators in off-the-record sessions to exchange views on federal programs and problems of common public interest.

Board continues split on Regional referendum

Regional election on Tuesday

3 candidates are seeking 3-year term

School issues debated at annual LWV forum

Springfield voters will go to the polls Tuesday to name one member to a three-year term on the Regional High School District Board of Education. The three candidates are William T. Doerrler, Mrs. Sonja Dorsky and Robert W. Halsey. (See editorial on Page 4.)

The polls will be open Tuesday from 2 to 9 p.m. Springfield voters living in Districts 1 to 6 will cast their ballots at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School. Residents of Districts 7 to 13 will vote at the Edward Walton School.

Two of the candidates met in the annual election forum last week at the Walton School, under the joint sponsorship of the Springfield League of Women Voters and all local PTAs. There was an audience of some 45 interested citizens.

Taking part were Mrs. Dorsky and Halsey. Doerrler had previously announced that he would not take part because of his disagreements with the LWV on many issues and because he felt the question it had asked the candidates were "biased."

Mrs. George Walker of Westfield, state vice-president of the LWV, was moderator for last week's debate. The two candidates discussed several issues which she outlined, and the latter part of the evening was devoted to questions from the audience and answers by the candidates.

* * *

THE FIRST TOPIC concerned the amount of student participation desirable in planning school policy. Both candidates tended to agree that students should be heard, particularly in evaluating curriculum—but that the young people should have a voice in the decisions and not a vote in the final decisions. Halsey suggested formation of a committee of 10 to 15 students, representing different levels, to join in discussions.

The moderator then asked what aspects of the regional system are most beneficial for Springfield. Both candidates, however, stressed the system's weaknesses, rather than its strong points.

Rutch: than the wide variety of courses which can be offered when several communities share one large school. Mrs. Dorsky said, there are now four separate schools generally duplicating each other's offerings. She declared, "We are not fulfilling the original intent of a regional district."

Halsey commented: "I agree that an improved Springfield school system, running from Kindergarten through the 12th grade would be better. Much of the problem, however, is the not so fine failure of the regional system but to the failure of all of us in not holding accountable the people in the district administration."

Halsey said that a board member should follow business practices, holding administrators accountable for their responsibilities and continually evaluating performance.

Mrs. Dorsky noted, from her experience of nine years on the Springfield Board of Education, "Most superintendents resent what they regard as interference from the board, but board members must give leadership—or fail

Doerrler urging bond issue defeat

William T. Doerrler, whose a Springfield candidate for election to the Regional High School District Board of Education, this week expressed his opposition to the $4.7 million expansion bond plan which the board will present to the voters in its six member communities on May 4.

He declared:

"As expected, a somewhat less expensive expansion program for the Union County Regional High School District has been placed by the Regional Board of Education to be submitted to the voters on May 4. My guess is that it will meet the same fate as the $7,000,000 referendum of last spring.

"Mr. Richard Light of Berkeley Heights, who is opposing Mr. Edwin Little for a seat on the Regional Board (the only other race in the district), and myself are against the new expansion program to be voted on in May. If we are elected, we intend to join the minority three members who voted against the referendum and introduce a motion to postpone the May 4 referendum until the new board can study the needs of the four high schools in the district."

Mayor appoints two new committees to oversee recreation, transportation

Two new committees — one concerned with recreation activities and the other dealing with commuting and transportation—were appointed by Mayor Paul Stokes at a meeting of the Springfield Township Committee Tuesday night in the Municipal Building.

The purpose of the new Mayor's Committee on Recreation, Stokes said, "will be to aid and advise the recreation department in the planning and organizing of programs of athletic, cultural, pool and senior citizens activities."

Members of the recreation committee are Roberta Pomp, 45 Millbrook rd., David Brown of 22 Redwood rd., Robert Field of 40 Newbrook ln., Jack Williams of 30 Redwood rd., and Eugene Becker of 42 Denham rd.

The commuter committee will be an advisory group on public transportation, the mayor explained. It was formed as a result of a recent meeting of interested citizens, he said.

Members of the five-man panel are David Ross of 381 Mountain way, A. J. Spiegel of 12 Briar Hills circle, Donald and Vincent Degaetano of 59 Hawthorn ave. and Alvin Kirsten of 60X Wabenso ave.

THE APPOINTMENT of the commuter committee was anticipated at the meeting Tuesday night, but the recreation group was a surprise.

Mayor Stokes said he had proposed the recreation committee as a continuation of last year's ad hoc recommendation on recreation by Mr. Light, who was present at the meeting Tuesday to speak on behalf of the Regional Board of Education, he said, to work "on the committee."

"The township of Springfield has a broad and comprehensive recreation program," he said, and the "rapid growth of this program in the past few years had necessitated my appointing a Mayor's Committee on Recreation."

Mayor Stokes pointed out that Recreation Director Stephen Maglione would still be in full charge of the program.

In other township business, two proposed ordinances were given their first reading.

One would amend the zoning ordinance to increase the parking spaces required of non-residential buildings.

Under the provisions of the ordinance, off-street parking spaces required of a non-residential building would be determined by measuring the outside dimensions of the building, rather than the inside dimensions.

Mayor Stokes explained that the ordinance may increase the off-street parking areas required for new buildings by as much as 17 percent.

Now, when measuring inside dimensions of new buildings "unusable" floor space, such as hallways and closets, is not included.

The other ordinance calls for the purchase of $10,200 of radio equipment for the fire, police and road departments.

The Fire Department would get a $3,500 two-way mobile radio system. The Police Department, a $2,400 telephone call tape recording system, and the road department, a $4,300 two-way radio system. "no vehicles can be more readily deployed" during work periods, he said.

Also in Fire Department business, the Township Committee authorized the promotion of John W. Rewlins from second-class fireman to first class fireman effective April 1.

In other appointments, Barbara Parsell, wife of Police Chief George Parsell, and former Chief of Police Wilbur C. Seulander, were made special officers.

During a public hearing before a resolution was approved providing for assessment levies on improvements in Caldwell place, several home owners pointed out problems in the wake of the repaving and curbing of the street. They included shoddy grass seeding, non-replacement of torn up trees and the lack of street lighting.

Mayor Stokes told Township Engineer Walter Kozub to investigate the complaints.

Also at the meeting, the township attorney was instructed to prepare defense against a suit against the township by Mid-Atlantic Barden Co., a fast-food franchise operation which was denied a permit to build an outlet in Morris avenue.

Youth hospitalized, LSD is suspected

A 15-year-old Springfield youth was taken to Overlook Hospital, Summit, last week after he allegedly told a teacher at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School that he had taken LSD, according to Sgt. Del Tompkins of the Juvenile Division of the Springfield Police Department.

Police said the boy went to the teacher and told her he had taken the drug. He was reportedly in a trance-like state and incoherent. The teacher took the youth to the school's health office. The school nurse then called police and the Springfield First Aid Squad which took him to the hospital. Charges against the youth are pending, Sgt. Tompkins said.

Reasons for and against plan offered

Cullen stresses amount cut from proposed costs

Differences of opinion over the proposed $4.7 million expansion bond issue, to be presented to the voters in a May 4 referendum, were highlighted at a meeting of the Regional High School District Board of Education Tuesday night at David Brearley Regional High School, Kenilworth.

John J. Cullen of Clark, reporting on the referendum decision made last week, noted that the board had voted six to three for the plan. Those opposed were John E. Conlin of Garwood, Dr. Minor C.K. Jones of Mountainside and Charles Schuezmann of Kenilworth.

Noting that the costs had been cut from $7 million, in the proposal defeated last spring, to the present figure of $4.7 million, Cullen added, "We just can't go too much lower."

He also said that the pupil distribution under the new plan is the same as it was in last year's proposal—with all Mountainside students to attend Jonathan Dayton Regional in Springfield, rather than Gov. Livingston Regional in Berkeley Heights.

Calling for approval of the proposal, Cullen declared, "I wish we just considered the welfare of the kids. We have a pretty nasty problem here—and I just wish the 18-year-olds could vote in this referendum."

Schuezmann, suggesting that he is "not opposed to better education," presented seven reasons for his opposition to the current expansion plan. They are:

1. He opposes the pupil distribution plan, sending Mountainside youngsters to Dayton.

2. He does not want expansion at Dayton until Van Winkle's Creek, adjoining one athletic field, can be relocated.

3. There are too many small classes, with seven to 10 students. He suggested a minimum class size of 17.

4. With several towns talking about possible consolidation of the Regional District, he said, this is a bad time to consider expansion of facilities.

5. A decision should be delayed until after next Tuesday's board election.

6. With two proposals having lost, he added, "The public wants economy. We and they must be convinced there is no other way."

7. The projected enrollment figures, he said, do not justify the expansion program.

HIS REMARKS drew a prompt response from Dr. Fred Hagedorn of Berkeley Heights. Conceding that each board member must follow his own best judgment, Hagedorn noted that any postponement could bring the referendum into conflict with a possible June primary election.

"We are obligated to get our proposal before the voters. It is the people who must decide," and they'll be the same after next Tuesday."

Edwin Little of Berkeley Heights took sharp issue on the subject of small classes. He said there are three basic reasons against putting a floor under minimum class size. Little said small groups are needed for vocational subjects, for slow learners and for higher level courses, such as foreign languages. To do otherwise, he stressed,

Program on drugs Monday to discuss communication gap

The development of better understanding between parent and child, and some practical guidelines to achieve this relationship, will highlight the second of a three-part program, "Drugs: A Turning Point," Monday evening at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School.

The program series is being sponsored by the Mayor's Committee for the Prevention of Alcohol and Drug Abuse, the Union County Regional Adult School in cooperation with the Springfield Council of PTAs.

Monday's program features Dr. Carl Rubenstein, a psychologist, a free to all Springfield residents. It will be held in the high school's Room 19-20 from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

"We urge all parents, who are interested in practical ways to better communicate with youngsters to attend the program," Harry E. Linkin, director of adult education, said.

"Audience participation in these programs will be a vital part of finding methods to better communicate and directly better understand our young people," he said.

On Monday evening, April 5, a panel will lead a community discussion on the problems of drug abuse. It will feature former addicts, a psychologist, students and parents.

"The drug problem concerns all of us. We can't hide it. We must find answers—and perhaps reach that turning point. We hope these programs help," Dr. Joseph Tamburo, assistant superintendent in the Springfield public schools, said. Dr. Tamburo is a member of the program's planning committee.
