PUBLIC OPINION SOUGHT

Citizen Questionnaire To Affect Master Plan

The Planning Board has expressed a desire to be guided by public opinion in drawing up a Master Plan for further development of the community.

It informed residents by mail this week that when recommendations have been received from Herbert H. Smith Associates of Trenton, planning consultants, public hearings would be held and a questionnaire would be drawn up and sent to citizens for their "guidance."

"The consultants will advise the Planning Board and provide the technical assistance necessary to analyze alternative planning proposals and recommendations. The final decisions and the community objectives upon which these decisions are based will, however, come from the Planning Board itself with the guidance of the citizens of Mountainside," the Planning Board letter reads.

A questionnaire has been prepared in response to public interest in progress to date, but the Board "decided to wait until after receipt of recommendations" from the consultants.

It was explained that the five reports received from the consultant so far "consist primarily of factual data relating to population studies and trends in the metropolitan area, social and economic characteristics, traffic flow and municipal facilities surveys, comparative cost and income to be derived from various types of land use. The sixth and final report will consist of recommendations and will be delivered some time this month.

Preparation of the Master Plan may or may not include the recommendations of the planning consultant, it was explained, but will be the responsibility of the Planning Board after carefully assessing the preferences of the people.

The Board expressed a desire to acquaint the public with its progress and said it would be "happy to receive views and answer any questions on the subject."

Meanwhile the five reports of "factual data" prepared by the consultants are a mirror to the Borough of Mountainside, where by it can view the bloom of its new growth and detect approaching wrinkles in its development.

The documents were financed through an urban planning grant from the Housing and Home Finance Agency under a provision of the Housing Act of 1954, a state appropriation under terms of the Expanded State and Regional Planning Program, and local funds.

Frontier Phase

Mountainside passed through what the planning consultants call the "frontier suburban development" when it grew from a small community to some 2,000 residents in 1950 to a suburb of over 8,000 in 1960 and has been almost completely developed with one-family homes.

The pattern of "outward expansion" from the New York City area, they said, predicts a second phase that will include pressures for a "more intensive type of development" from the growth of industry within the borough and the expanded market for other housing types.

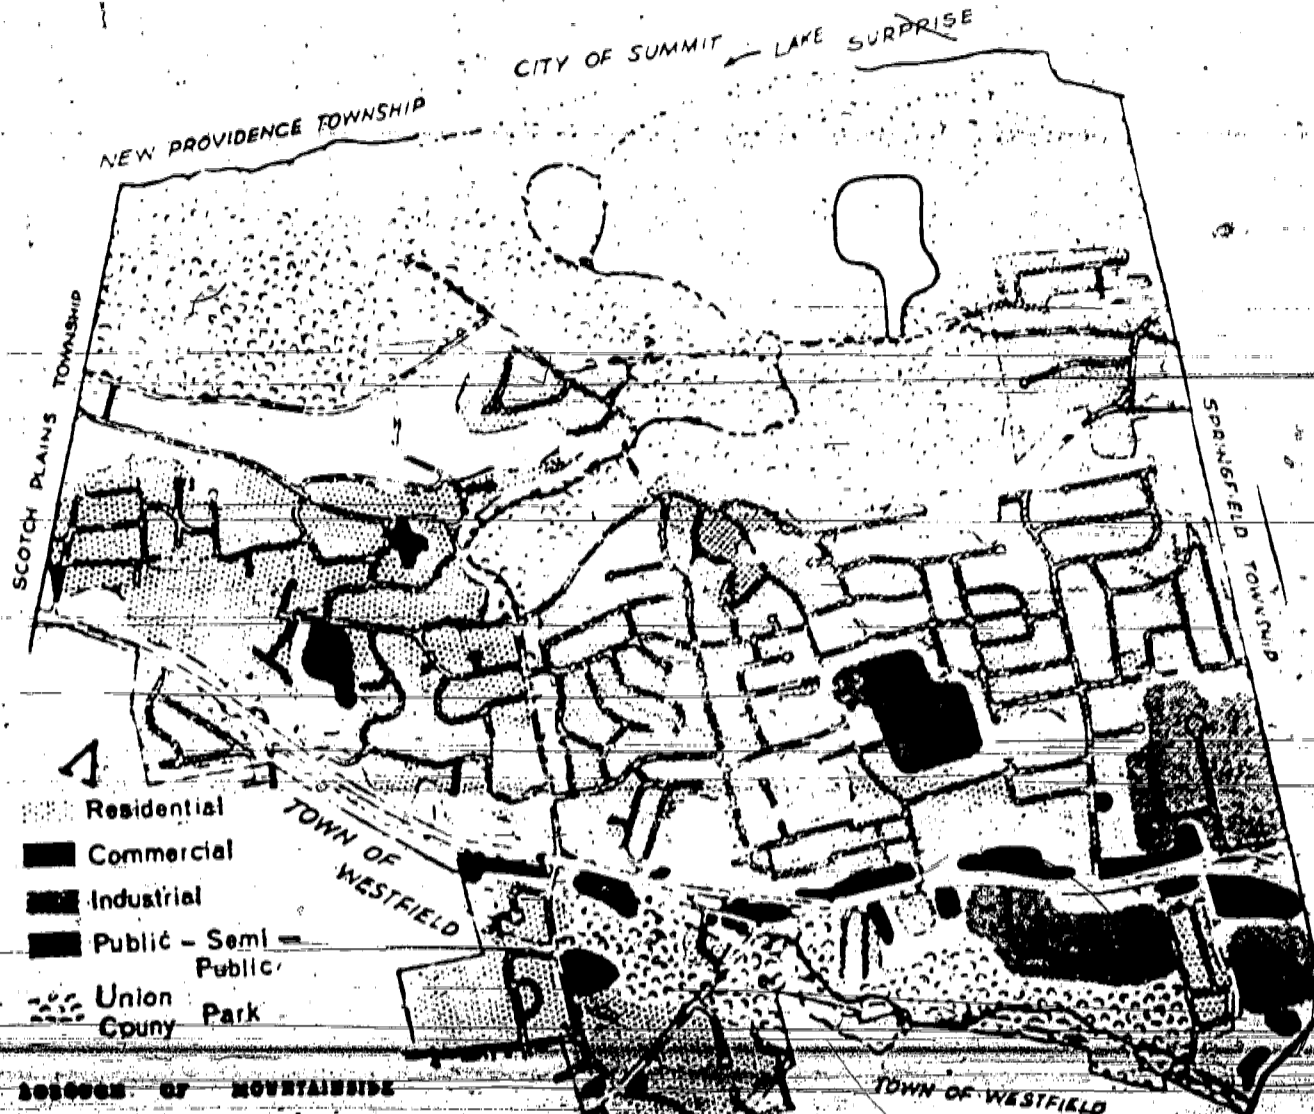

The Borough's proximity to New York City and Rt. 22 would indicate that the future role of the borough within the region, while it has served basically as a residential suburb in the past, will be one of increasing importance for light industrial and research operations as well as other higher intensity types of development, they said.

Forty-six percent of the total area within the borough is developed as residential property, and 31 percent is devoted to park and recreational use. Commercial establishments comprise two percent, industry, four percent, and public uses, such as schools and other community services, over two percent. Over eight percent of Mountainside is vacant land.

The original core of residential development lay south of Rt. 22 in the flat area of Mountain and Woodland aces. But recent development has spread to the sloping terrain north of the highway. There are now approximately 2,000 one-family homes with a median value of close to $30,000, "one of the highest for any community in the state."

"Amount of deterioration was described as 'virtually none.' That which does exist, the firm said, is 'in conjunction with a mixed land use pattern along Rt. 22 in the eastern area of the community, or in residential areas isolated by non-residential use."

Initial Alphabet Mountainside Summer School To Be Experiment With First Grade

By MARIAN BROWN

In line with his penchant for innovation Dr. Levin B. Hanigan, superintendent of Mountainside schools, plans an experimental reading program to be launched in the fall.

The program is called the Initial Teaching Alphabet or ITA program and is part of an experiment by Dr. Robert Chagnov of Newark State College, whereby the traditional 26-letter alphabet is replaced by a 44-symbol phonetic alphabet.

With the new system every sound has its own phonetic symbol. Seven books written with the phonetic alphabet are used the first year. By the end of this year students should be reading on a third year level using the traditional alphabet, which they will easily substitute for the phonetic alphabet, it was explained.

The program will be taught by Mrs. Virginia Fritz at Deerfield School and Mrs. Mildred Herron at Beechwood. Each will teach two classes of students with carefully matched ability — one of them by traditional methods and one by ITA. Groups will be checked three times a year to compare their progress and assess the relative effectiveness of both methods.

Mrs. Diana Oberlin, psychologist, is working now to establish classes of matching ability to insure the validity of the experiment.

Mountainside Summer School Expands Educational Frontier

By MARIAN BROWN

Although the 330 youngsters attending summer classes at the Deerfield School may consider the session as simply "more school," they are participating in a unique educational venture.

Mountainside has the only elementary school summer program which extends down to the first grade in the state, and Dr. Levin B. Hanigan, superintendent of schools, says he knows of no other anywhere.

The program, now in its third year, was launched by Dr. Hanigan to put into practice his belief that a child's academic life is patterned in his early school years.

It is directed this summer by Herbert Brown, recently appointed principal of the Deerfield School and the summer program.

The curriculum embraces courses for children in grades one through seven in areas of "enrichment" and "strengthening."

Dr. Hanigan pointed out that these are not make-up courses for youngsters who "slay back." There are no fall-backs here, he said, emphasizing that youngsters enrolled in strengthening courses are there to reinforce a foundation in basic subjects in order to prevent difficulty in the future.

"A mistake that is often made in education," Dr. Hanigan said, "is that special programs and courses are brought in for children at the junior high school level instead of in the early years."

It should be just the opposite. The general emphasis in Mountainside schools is in grades K through 10, so that we can build good work habits before patterns are set, which happens at the age of 10 or 11."

Strengthening courses are held on a grade level covered by the program in reading and mathematics. The strengthening courses are designed to reach the major ideas originally taught in the previous school year.

Mathematics classes teach the SRA or Cleveland method, one of the several mathematics approaches referred to as "new math." Teachers are

Board Of Health OKs Employee Salaries

By MARIAN BROWN

The Board of Health Monday passed on final hearing an ordinance approving compensation for five part-time employees.

It also approved salaries for the health officer, $3,700; secretary, $750; plumbing inspector, $5 per inspection; dental inspector, 40 cents per student examined at Our Lady of Lourdes School; and medical inspector, $10 for administering the TB testing program and 50 cents per student examined at Our Lady of Lourdes.

Dr. Hanigan pointed out that these are not make-up courses for youngsters who "slay back." There are no fall-backs here, he said, emphasizing that youngsters enrolled in strengthening courses are there to reinforce a foundation in basic subjects in order to prevent difficulty in the future.

Hartung Is Against Multiple Dwellings

By MARIAN BROWN

The planning consultant, Herbert H. Smith Associates, recommended multiple-unit construction for the Borough, as officials predict they will be members of the Planning Board, which is now reviewing the idea of opposing the idea.

Hartung has a public statement putting himself on record as being opposed to the construction of multiple dwellings in an area of Mountainside.

He challenged the plan, but both the planners, that predict a profit in tax income from future multiple-unit dwelling construction and a tax deficit to be borne by the present population through continued construction of one-family dwellings.

Figures involving future residential construction were advanced by the planners in the last of five reports presented to the Planning Board. The sixth and final report, which will contain recommendations, is expected by the Planning Board this month.

Hartung also contended that the sanitary sewer capacity is inadequate for multiple-unit dwellings and that the people of the borough don't want them.

He said that in other communities, unoccupied units have brought about a reassessment of apartment property, which is based by law on income. This trend will increase as the saturation point for excess vacant apartments is reached," he said.

Also, the Smith firm figures show a credit of income to the town from other than tax revenue based on the erroneous assumption that "credit" income (licenses, fees, permit fines, etc.) is proportionate to population increase. You don't prove this assumption to be so, and I believe it to be false.

While engineering recommendations for sanitary sewer construction are based on the premise that maximum at any one time is twice the daily average daily flow, I have found by personal inspection that our average daily flow is 70 percent of our one million gallons allowable by contract with the Town of Cranford. I find that our flow on a dry Monday morning is 85 percent of the capacity of the trunk line.

This means that while we have sufficient capacity in our trunk line for the development of Mountainside as a single family residence community, there is no provision for added flow from multiple-unit dwellings.

Most Opposed by direct contact with the people of our community is that the majority of them are definitely opposed.

Recreation Dept. Schedules Events For Kids, Teens

The summer playground program is getting into action at Deerfield School Monday for the first grade through eighth grade with a special meeting in the school for teens.

The program is sponsored by the Mountainside Recreation Commission, headed by Richard F. Cotton, president. It will extend from 8 a.m. Monday through Friday, an hour out for a day between noon and 1 p.m.

Staffers are Joseph Pucillo, director and team coach, at Rutgers University, and two assistant coaches, Ronald Mizner, Rutgers University, a education teacher and wrestling and tumbling coach, and Patricia Mizner, Deerfield, who is in charge of physical education teacher.

Susan Wendes, Astrea Staeger and Ted Bascfield are junior staffers.

The teen age room is open for music, dancing and talk whenever the playground is in session.

The schedule of special events for tomorrow and next week follows:

Friday — Morning, arts and crafts; afternoon, balloon contest, completion of arts and crafts projects, certificate of merit awarded to winners.

Monday — Morning, league games, arts and crafts.

Tuesday — Morning, tennis.

July 4th Fireworks Draws Large Crowd

Some 4,000 residents braved brisk winds and a shortage of parking space to attend the annual July 4 fireworks display sponsored by the Volunteer Fire Department, according to Capt. Lucian Kilmas.

The aerial display was shot off for spectators watching from the field between Deerfield School and Our Lady of Lourdes Church. Lt. Ernest Kuffer, who headed the project, said ground displays were not purchased in order to concentrate on aerial displays for the benefit of those who watched from home. He was assisted by Capt. Kilmas.

The hour and a half long demonstration was the most extensive display in the four-year history of the event. Firemen and ambulance squad members were on hand to prevent injury to the crowd.

Council And GOP Postpone Talks In Naming Mayor

The Borough Council and Republican Municipal Committee will not sit down again tonight as planned to talk over the question of selecting a replacement for former Mayor Orlin Johnson, whose resignation was effective July 1.

Mrs. Harold Tulaha, Republican Municipal Committee woman, called off the meeting on behalf of Walter Duds, GOP chairman. She said that vacation schedules would make meeting this month improbable.

Meanwhile, Raymond Herrgott, Borough Council president, will continue to serve as acting mayor.

Although making the appointment will be the function of the Borough Council, the Republican Municipal Committee has been asked to participate in the reasons in the hope of finding a replacement the GOP group would consider acceptable to run in the November general election, according to Herrgott.

Three courses of action are available to the Council. It can continue to function without a mayor until the election with the Council president acting in a dual capacity; appoint a Council member as the mayor and replace him from outside the group; or appoint a mayor from outside the Council.

Johnson announced his resignation at the last regular Council session, citing personal reasons for the action. He was appointed to the mayor's post January 1963 to replace Eugene Rau, who resigned, and ran for re-election the following November.

Collecting Degrees Easy Task, Housewife Says, Providing - -

Collecting a bachelor's degree and a master's degree in seven years of part-time study can be a pinch for the average housewife and mother, says Davil Hart of 1251 Poplar Ave., Mountainside, who says not only if she has a strong desire, a clearly defined goal, a cooperative family, dependable baby-sitters and helpful neighbors.

Mrs. Hart, who received her master's degree in educational psychology last month from Rutgers University, New Brunswick, had the strong desire. Anything to get away from housework, she confessed laughingly. Her goal is definite: teaching when her youngest now, four, enters school full-time and a final year of attending a school of psychology.

Her family, she boasts, most cooperative. Back in 1958 daughter Allison postponed her earthly debut until July 2, just so her fond mother insists she wouldn't interfere with final exams.

Her husband, formerly principal of Deerfield School in Mountainside and now principal of Charles H. Brewer Junior School in Clark, in addition to helping out cheerfully and eating casserole dishes uncomplainingly, is his dating spouse save an "absence Pled Piper" with Allison and the other children. Michael, 11, and Ellen, 8, "they do anything he asks them to and happily."

Linda Bauer of 1256 Poplar st. or Mrs. Hart's brother-in-law look over the baby-sitting chores when official duties prevented the "Pled Piper" from doing so.

Planners warned of possible traffic hazards should the linear expansion of commercial land use along Rt. 22 continue. Pointing to "unpleasant aesthetic character" of such development and problems generated by "turning movements" of traffic from the highway, they warned that "without sound standards for discouraging the expansion of such development and without future plans for potential redevelopment of these areas, a serious blighting influence may result."

Borough Hall

Relocation of municipal facilities to the proposed site was termed by the consultants the best alternative solution to problems of space and parking limitations at the present Borough Hall and difficult access to the building from the east.

Education

Pointing to a 1963 K through 8 school population of 1,295 students in 1963 and a 1,300 optimum capacity and 1,400 maximum capacity in the public elementary schools, the Smith firm concluded that "the capacity of existing school facilities has been reached, and future development within the borough will require additional classrooms."

Help Given To Persons Suffering Nerve Deafness

CHICAGO, Ill. (AP)—A booklet explaining the facts about nerve deafness, an almost invisible condition that handicaps and isolates millions of persons of all ages, is being made available to the public free of charge by the Bellone Hearing Service at 8 So. Broad St., Elizabeth, N. J. The booklet explains the facts about nerve deafness, an almost invisible condition that handicaps and isolates millions of persons of all ages. How does nerve deafness interfere with hearing? What symptoms first warn you of this condition? Will surgery help? Will a hearing aid help? Will anything help?

The booklet offered now to the public free of charge by Bellone Hearing Service explains why persons may hear and yet not understand. Can this condition be corrected? Is there any help for this hearing distress—nerve deafness?

"The Inside Story of Nerve Deafness," Bellone's remarkable new booklet, tells you what you can do to combat nerve deafness. If you are in the neighborhood of 8 So. Broad St., Elizabeth, come in for your free copy. Write to Bellone Hearing Service, Phone EL 3-7686.

There is no such thing as a "successful co-existence" with the mosquito, maintains Robert H. Smith, Mountain Side, N. J., chairman of the local Mosquito Commission. The Mosquito Commission is now in the process of distributing to the public a new book containing the information on how to prevent mosquito bites. The book is available to the public at a cost of $1.00. The book is available to the public at a cost of $1.00. The book is available to the public at a cost of $1.00.
