$1 Million Budget, 3 Seats On Board At Stake Tuesday

Three seats on the school board and a school budget of $1,007,179.50 will be at stake next Tuesday when Mountainside voters go to the polls for the annual Board of Education election. Voting hours will be from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. All districts will vote in Deerfield School.

Six candidates are vying for the three seats which only one out-going incumbent, Walter H. Rupp, is seeking to retain. Other candidates are Mrs. Mary K. Rosenquest of 285 Timberline rd., Robert H. Briton of 3 Mountainview dr., Charles Dickinson French of 1217 Wyoming, dr., Sydney H. Reiter of 3 Clearview rd. and John A. Wroblecky of 1120 Saddle Brook rd.

Voters will be asked to approve only that portion of the budget which must be raised by taxes, including $734,095 for current expenses and $8,910.01 for estimated capital outlay. The total figure represents an increase of $63,008 or 6.67 percent over the 1964 budget of $944,171.

Approval of the budget is expected in most quarters, an opinion which is bolstered by the quiet pre-election days during which none of the six candidates had any criticism of any part of the budget. Only 14 residents, including the five new entries in the school race, attended a quiet public hearing held Jan. 14 in Deerfield School.

Mountainside's school budget was defeated twice in the last five years. The budget was knocked down in 1961 when 1,361 voters went to the polls, a defeat that was repeated in the second election on March 1 of that year when 1,340 residents voted. The budget was voted down twice again in 1962. Two thousand three hundred and twenty-one voters cast their ballots in the first election that year and 16,88 in the second election.

In both 1961 and 1962 the budget went to the Borough Council. The school budget was approved in 1964, 1963 and 1960. Four hundred and eighty-two voters went to the polls in 1964, 321 in 1963 and 140 in 1960.

Since election night coincides with the monthly meeting of the Board of Education, a program on team teaching will be presented for the benefit of parents awaiting the results of the election.

The program will be included in the board meeting which opens at 8 o'clock in the all-purpose room of Deerfield School by Mrs. Ingrid Singer and Mrs. Joan Krystow. Mrs. Singer and Mrs. Krystow are currently conducting a team teaching pilot program for two third grades in Echobrook School.

Somerset Strike Hits Commuters; Cars Take Over

Many Mountainside women were left carless this week as their commuting husbands, stranded by the strike of bus drivers on the Somerset Bus lines, appropriated the family cars for the trip into town.

Traffic reports showed unusually heavy traffic on Rt. 22 on the first day of the strike.

Commuters headed for New York City were in somewhat better straits than the Newark-bound workers. An interstate bus (No. 150) operated by the Public Service stops in Mountainside on its way from Allentown, Pa., into New York. Stops in Mountainside during the commuter hours are 7:33, 7:45 and 8:35 in the morning. The No. 150 bus leaves the New York-Port Authority Building at 5:25, 5:35 and 7:30 in the evening.

However, due to interstate restrictions, the No. 150 cannot pick up and discharge passengers within the state limits, a Public Service spokesman said. Since Public Service does not operate any other line in the borough, borough residents who work in Newark were left without any direct means of public conveyance to their destination.

The bus strike, threatened for Monday morning, became effective Tuesday morning after a before-dawn meeting at which the drivers voted to reject a company contract for two years.

The vote, in effect, spurred a company offer of a 10-cent raise the first year to $2.95 an hour and an eight cent raise the second year, plus increased fringe benefits.

Also offered was a plan to boost charter duty pay from a flat rate of $2.45 an hour to $2.95 an hour for the first six hours and $2.55 thereafter.

The drivers are members of the Amalgamated Transit Union, AFL-CIO, Division 1478.

The division president, James Petrucciello of Piscataway, was reported to have said that he was "at a loss to understand" the contract rejection and that was the only indication he received that the "men just were not satisfied."

Petrucciello was also reported to have said that, as of Tuesday, he had no word from the union.

Parents Form Puzzled Set In New Math Class

MYSTERIES OF NEW math are dissolved for a group of Mountainside parents by Miss Marianne Beckers, standing, who is currently conducting a series of classes for adults in that puzzling subject. Miss Beckers is using a teaching machine with an overhead projector that reproduces and enlarges her writing on a screen behind her. This picture was taken at one of the afternoon sessions held each Thursday and Friday in Beechwood School. Morning sessions are held twice a week in Echobrook School.

160 Parents Study New Math Series So Popular Night Classes Slated

Approximately 160 Mountainside parents are this week attending the seventh week of instruction in "new math," either at morning sessions in Echobrook School or afternoon classes in Beechwood School. Their response has been so enthusiastic that plans are now underway to run duplicate sessions in the evening starting in March for parents unable to attend day classes.

Miss Marianne Beckers, a "helping" teacher who also serves as a "math consultant" for other faculty members, conducts the sessions which are held each Thursday and Friday. The classes are coordinated so if a parent who normally attends the Echobrook classes is unable to make the morning sessions one day she can shift, without notice, to the afternoon class and visa versa.

Although Mountainside youngsters have been struggling with the new math on various grade levels for several years, each year a new crop of parents is introduced, through homework assignments, to its mysteries. Many of them find the mysteries unfathomable.

Miss Beckers' classes were set up to help pierce the veil of mystery for parents. Miss Beckers uses both an overhead projector and an overhead projector to get her message across. With the overhead projector, she can face her adult students while the problems she is presenting are projected on the large screen behind her.

The classes, which were originally scheduled to run six weeks, have been extended two more weeks to enable Miss Beckers to "crum" in at least a basic knowledge of how to use new math in solving "fractions" and "story problems. The first week's classes covered addition, the second, subtraction, the third and fourth, multiplication and the fifth and sixth, division.

The original plan called for lessons in the six-week course which admittedly cannot give full and complete grasp of the new methods to anyone, adult or child. The course was not set up with any such ambitious goal but merely to make parents aware of the new terms, to attempt them to acquaint them, with some of the basic methods their children are employing in their arithmetic work.

RATHER TO HER surprise, Miss Beckers is also learning from the parents' questions many of the points which might be apt to confuse their children in the classrooms.

March 5 Hearing For Wilson Case

The case of A. A. Wilson versus the Borough of Mountainside will be heard on the morning of March 5 in the chambers of Judge Milton Feller in Elizabeth.

Attorneys for both parties, Nicholas St. John LaCorte, representing the borough, and Melvin Koestler of Elizabeth, representing Wilson, appeared in Judge Feller's chambers last Friday morning. It was learned that the hearing was called for a review of papers filed in the case in which Wilson asked the court to set aside the local Board of Adjustment's refusal of his application for a variance to erect a garden apartment and furniture store on his property on Rt. 22. Wilson owns a building and property fronting on the westbound lane of the highway which was formerly owned by the Newark Orphan-Asylum Association.

Judge Feller reserved decision on the case when it came before him last fall. The further delay was given, it was learned, because of a change in lawyers. The former Borough Attorney, Irvine Johnstone, who had originally handled the case for the borough was replaced in that post on Jan. 2 by LaCorte.

Answer Is Filed To Court Action Brought By PBA

An answer has been filed by the Borough of Mountainside to the prerogative writ filed by the local branch of the Police Benevolent Association protesting the procedures used in the promotion of Walter Betyeman to a sergeant on the local force.

The next step, it was learned, must come from the P. B. A.

John Zamboni, president of the local P. B. A., said the association's lawyer will continue working on the case. He also indicated that the P. B. A. is still firm in its decisions to carry on the legal fight.

Betyeman, who had been a patrolman since 1960, was appointed to the sergeant's post last Dec. 28 at a special meeting of the Borough Council. Mountainside Police Chief Christian Fritz and Henry F. Wester, then Police Commissioner of the borough, said at that time that Betyeman was appointed because he placed first on the promotional examination held Dec. 21 in Deerfield School.

The P. B. A. writ, filed in the Superior Court, asked that the examination be ruled null and void. Zamboni said at that time that the suit was based on the fact "that certain sections of local ordinances were bypassed" and that the Council in making the appointment "did not take into consideration seniority, service record and general qualifications."

ECHO PROFILE - Miss Marianne Beckers

Miss Marianne Beckers, who is currently conducting "new" math classes for Mountainside parents, has varied duties in the school system. She is a "helping" teacher, assisting in trouble spots where needed. She is the school system's part-time social worker. She is a mathematics consultant for faculty members in Echobrook and Beechwood schools.

And at the beginning of each school year, she is a blessing to new teachers in Echobrook and Beechwood. During the first six weeks of each school year she is their right arm, their source of information, their tower of strength. According to Dr. Levin Hanigan, Superintendent of Schools, she conducts something of an orientation program for the new teachers.

It is Miss Beckers who helps iron out minor crisis, it is she who answers the "small" questions that sometimes seem big to the young teacher, it is she who acquaints the new members with the routine of the faculty.

Trim, gray-haired Miss Beckers majored in Latin back in the days when she was day-hopping to St. Elizabeth's College in Convent Station. She did graduate study in social work in Fordham University and picked up her elementary teaching credits from Newark State College.

Miss Beckers came to Mountainside six years ago as a fifth grade teacher. She had previously taught for one year in a Garwood school.

In the years between her graduation from St. Elizabeth's and her teaching assignment in Garwood she had varied experience, as a social worker, an executive director and a saleswoman.

Ira Walker, 37, of Jersey City forfeited $100 in bail for failure to answer three summonses — $50 on an unlicensed driver charge, $25 on an inspection violation and $25 for failure to have name and address on a commercial vehicle.

Franklin T. Marrow, 26, of Somerville was fined $205 for driving while on a revoked list, $20 for careless driving resulting in an accident Jan. 16 on Rt. 22 at New Providence ave. and $15 for showing an expired license.

Parents Study

(Continued from page 1) Missions in division a parent confessed to being confused in the step-by-step introductory method used in dividing two into ten by the new method, which essentially breaks down into subtracting two from ten, two from eight and so on down to two from two, equaling zero and then counting the two-steps.

The two-by-two step, the confused questioner felt, made six "2's" rather than five in the solution. (The last step was her downfall.)

Miss Beckers noted that this was a point that could very easily puzzle a child. This and similar puzzling points brought up by the parents will be included in her presentation next Monday when she conducts a "math teaching" class for faculty members, Miss Beckers stated.

Other luckier parents have found "happy similarities" between the new math and the old methods they learned back in less complicated school days.

"It's like casting out nines," one such fortunate shouted happily during a multiplication session.

However, the great percentage of parents are getting a working knowledge of the new methods, enough to let them act fairly intelligent when attempting to assist their grade-schoolers in their home work.

Such mathematical certainties as "all numbers ending in 5 or 0 are divisible by 5, numbers ending in 0 are divisible by 10, numbers ending in two zeroes are divisible by 100" stand firm, unassailed by new methods. However most of the parents in the classes added to their total knowledge of mathematical certainties when they learned, in Miss Becker's class, that if the sum of the digits in a number is divisible by three, the number is divisible by three; also that if the last two digits in a number are together divisible by four, the number is divisible by four.

Today's child must learn basic principles and structural properties that can be applied to any and all situations to prepare him to live in the world of the future, a world of unforeseeable changes.

However, Miss Becker cautioned the parents, the new methods will not free the child from the discipline of learning. The acquiring of an understanding of the concepts of mathematics does not release the child from the burden of memorizing the times tables. The changing of the traditional addition methods to the use of an algebraic equation does not eliminate the drill which leads to the mastery of the fundamentals, she says.

Essentially new math, the parent-students are learning, has added an understanding of the "why" to the "how to."

One-hundred-and-sixty parents have learned some of the "whys." Scores more are expected to duplicate that accomplishment when the evening classes open.

Property Values In Borough Jump Over 3 1/2 Million In '65

The pay increase will not effect, the Mayor said, the three new full-time employees of the Borough Hall, Mrs. Helen M. Dunn, who two weeks ago replaced Mrs. Marguerite Becker who resigned as Assistant Borough Clerk, Mrs. Alyce Psemanski, who was appointed secretary to Koser to replace Mrs. Jane Mays whose resignation became effective Monday, and Mrs. Gladys Robinson, who was appointed last month to the newly created post of clerk-stenographer in Hoffarth's office.

The increase was in response to a request submitted last December by Hoffarth, Koser, Mrs. Carson, Mrs. Becker and Mrs. May for a raise "comparable" to the $400 across-the-board raise and the longevity benefits granted last September to all members of the Police Department. The police raise became effective Jan. 1.

The Borough Council has been meeting weekly on the budget, Wilhelmis stated, and in addition has been making "considerable progress on matters that have been hanging for a long time." He defined those matters as the work on storm sewers, action on proposed subdivisions, the space study of borough facilities and others.

The Council will be ready "shortly," he said to sign the contracts with Killam Associates for preliminary plans for storm sewer work. The report on the space study of borough facilities and preliminary floor plans and sketches, submitted by Kauffman and McMurray, Elizabeth architects, will shortly be released, he indicated. The architects' report and sketches are "well within the scope of the $3,000 allocated to the project last summer, Wilhelmis stated.

Questioned on whether the architects' report calls for a new building or the renovation of an existing one, Wilhelmis said it outlines "the ideal one, the one most desirable for the community—we start from there—then we chop it down, cut the cloth to fit the money."

The mayor also had words of praise for all the Council members who are working together "with willingness and a spirit of cooperation" and acting according to their "best judgment and best conscience," he said.

Study Of Embryology Begins With Buying Of 2 Dozen Eggs

Miss Dorothy Phillips, a fifth grade teacher at Echobrook School, Mountainside, buys her eggs from the poultry husbandry department in Rutgers University. The Rutgers' eggs cost 75 cents a dozen, a little higher than the neighborhood market, but these eggs are rather special. They are destined for higher things than the breakfast table—they are, Miss Phillips devoutly hopes, kindling in her students a lively interest in science.

The eggs, now in the classroom, housed in a specially made incubator, are the focal point of interest not only for Miss Phillips' students but those in other grades who make repeated calls to "see if the chickens are born yet."

Such interest is exactly the goal Miss Phillips had in mind when she asked for volunteers to build the incubator from plans she had obtained. Lisa Christoffers volunteered her father, an electrician, who built the device complete with thermostat, thermometer—and all the other equipment needed to protect the embryo fowl.

An introduction into the study of embryology is part of the fifth grade science course. The incubator was installed to bring the children into direct contact with the life science, to stimulate their interest in and enthusiasm for science, Miss Phillips said.

Does it (the incubator) take 21 days to hatch them, just like the mother hen? The children wanted to know.

"They were surprised to learn that they themselves by turning the eggs several times a day are duplicating one of the duties performed instinctively by the mother hen when she scratches the eggs. This turning prevents the eggs from drying out.

The temperature must be carefully watched to see that it stays between 100 and 103 degrees, a heat necessary to duplicate the body temperature of the hen (plus a few variables).

The children's yen to "crack a few" is restrained when they learn that this would kill the baby chickens before they are born. Some ambitious attempts to appropriate the breakfast eggs for storing in the incubator were discouraged with the explanation of the need for fertilization. (Another lesson learned.)

The eggs, if the time table is correct, should be ready to hatch early next week. They will live in the incubator for 48 hours after, feeding on the yolks of their own eggs.

They will be transferred into a prepared cage. Two weeks ago several of the girls in the class asked if they could serve on the "feeding committee" when the chicks are ready for feedings.

So everything is in order. Even the mothering instinct.

ECHO PROFILE

sociated Catholic Charities much of her case work involved children. She served as executive director of both the Washington Rock Council and the Plainfield Council of Girl-Scouts.

Even her business experience, as an advertising saleswoman for Cosmopolitan magazine, was in a youth-related field. Her advertising "beat" was with private schools and summer camps.

Long experience with children has given Miss Beckers a healthy respect for the abilities of the young, abilities which she feels are many times not taxed to their fullest. Many times while conducting math classes in the grammar grades she tells a student who is having difficulty with a problem in division: "If you knew your 15 times table, you could do that easily."

Children, she believes, can and should be taught to concentrate, to "become absorbed" in what they are doing.

PARENTS CAN HELP teach this concentration to small ones in early years by requiring and encouraging them to pay close attention to some small task, not allowing their minds to wander or their small restless bodies to dash away too soon and too heedlessly, she says.

Although she has never married, Miss Beckers has had considerable close association with young children in her home life. She had lived for many years with a married sister and always thought of her five nieces and nephews as hers.

When her sister died a few years ago, the children became even more closely and dearly hers. She speaks of them as "our a'kchie," "our boy," "our youngest" and love echoes richly in each word. She serves as the mother, the homemaker in the household.

The three oldest, all girls, are now attending St. Mary of the Woods College in Terre Haute, Ind. Her nephew is a junior at Westfield High School and the youngest is in the second grade at Holy Trinity Grammar School.

The children are growing up fast, only the little one now needs close attention. And that Miss Beckers gives in warm abundance.

Report From Trenton

by State Senator Nelson F. Stamler (R-Una.)

When the Bi-State Waterfront Commission was created in 1953 by governors Driscoll of New Jersey and Dewey of New York, the two commissioners representing these states on the newly formed agency were each compensated $17,500 per year for their services.

In 1953 the Commission's foremost goal was to root out entrenched labor hoodlums and thus rid our waterfronts of wage kickbacks, loan sharking, pilferage, quickie strikes and other inequities that had painted a bleak picture for a number of years. The first commissioners and the appointees who proceeded then really earned their salaries. Some of their efforts in the '50's were spectacular. Under their supervision take-home pay and job security of longshoremen were strengthened. Their adoption of a rigid set of hiring practices brought fair play to the docks and the term "hoodlum" generally became an echo of a past era.

Then, in 1956, this statement was made by an outgoing commissioner: "The next man to get this post should be determined to end the job, not embark on a career."

But the job was not ended in 1957 or 1960 or 1962, and it is still bringing in $17,500 per annum in 1965 to two commissioners who do little more than devote part-time duty to over seeing an agency with few opportunities to initiate reforms that have not already been initiated and acted upon.

"A $17,500 salary is a handsome sum for part-time service, considering as an example, that the Superintendent of the New Jersey State Police who works a full-week schedule, makes only $16,000 per year.

Perhaps cries of waste and abolishment from New Jersey taxpayers, have been slow in coming because that $17,500 giveaway does not come directly from their pockets. The Waterfront Commission by law is supported from payroll assessments levied on the stevedore and steamship industries at an annual cost of about $2,000,000. Representatives of these industries might hint that the Commission is policing an industry at the expense of an industry unwilling to bear the burden, but nevertheless, they continue to pay for the operating expenses, services and salaries of the Commission.

However, the cash-outlay by shippers does eventually affect us all, although in a more subtle fashion than direct taxation. The prices of the commodities these seagoing companies handle often reflect the assessments, and the average shopper feels the bite. While the Commission has proved to be a valuable necessity in years past, it seems to me that that time has come to draw the line, and a good place to start is that $17,500 salary which brings with it little and little else in the way of work requirements.

For these reasons I have voiced objections to the latest appointment to the Commission made by Governor Hughes, that of former Elizabeth Mayor, Steven Berdik. I find no argument with Mr. Berdik's qualifications, but rather the need for anyone to fill the Commissioner post, at least at the current salary figure. As I noted earlier, the line must be drawn somewhere.

27 Young People Appear As 'YES' Operation Opens

Twenty-seven teenage students showed up at Deerfield School Tuesday on the first general registration day for the newly-formed Mountainside unit of Youth Employment Service.

Registration is scheduled to continue this afternoon in the all-purpose room of Deerfield. Hours are from 3 to 5 p.m. A fourth registration date has been tentatively set up for this Saturday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. in Deerfield School.

Application blanks were distributed Monday, when requested, to Mountainside students attending Governor Livingston Regional High School. Borough teenagers not enrolled in Governor Livingston may obtain application blanks during registration hours today or Saturday.

The Y. E. S. office is scheduled to open Monday in space allotted to it in Borough Hall by the Borough Council. The office will be manned by volunteer workers headed by Mrs. Charles Jerome. The telephone number is 233-4505.

In Mid-February Y. E. S. will distribute flyers advertising its services house-to-house and to all business and industrial establishments. Charles Ivory, chairman of Y. E. S. employers' relation committee, will be in charge of the project.

The Mountainside unit of Y. E. S. was formed some months ago through effort initiated by Mrs. William Gutman of 334 Short dr., president of the Westfield Council of Jewish Women, and the Rev. Elmer Talcott, pastor of the Community Presbyterian Church of Mountainside.

Know Your Government

From N. J. Taxpayers Association

STATE DEBT RECORD
General obligation debt of New Jersey's State Government will reach an historical high of $277,206,000 on July 2, 1965.

This includes recent sale of almost half the $90.1 million higher education and institutional construction bonds authorized by New Jersey voters last November. It also takes into consideration the retirement between now and the beginning of the 1965-66 fiscal year on July 1, next, of older obligations on the State's debt amortization schedule. The figures, compiled by the New Jersey Taxpayers' Association, are based upon official reports.

The 1965 bond sale totaled $45 million, including $25 million higher education bonds and $20 million institutional bonds. These bonds will not be fully retired until 1988 by which time the State will have paid out interest totaling $20,468,000. Earnings on investment of bond funds before the money is fully expended on the various projects will serve to offset some of the interest cost for three or four years.

Net interest to be paid on the 1965 issue is 2.8978 per cent and compares with a net interest cost of 2.7349 per cent on $58 million of green acres and institutional bonds (Series B) sold in March of 1963, and 3.0488 per cent on $42 million green acres and institutional bonds (Series A) in 1962.

The $45.1 million remaining unissued bonds are expected to be offered for sale sometime next year.

British Comedy Films Added To Courses At Adult School

The Bell Telephone Laboratories will sponsor a series of four lecture-discussion-demonstrations beginning March 10. The series will explore the functional organization of the laboratory and how it works to extend the boundaries of communication through creative science and technology. Modern telephone developments along with defense and space communications will be discussed.

The fee for this course will be $3 for the four sessions.

The Computer and You, a discussion of the development of the computer and its social implications, will be conducted by Dr. T. H. Crowley, head of the Computer Research Department, Bell Telephone Laboratories. This course, which will require no mathematical background, will continue for ten Tuesday evenings, at a fee of $3.

Mrs. Hildur Friden, a home economist who received her training in her native Sweden, will offer a course entitled "Creative Sewing. The creation of interior decorations such as drapes, slipcovers, and bedspreads, as well as Crewel embroidery, are some of the topics that will be covered in this ten week, Wednesday evening course.

A course designed especially for those who are called upon to write news releases for their church, club or organization will be "Lively Newspaper Writing." Led by Mrs. Alice Rapp, a local free-lance journalist, class members will be taken from the who, what, where and when lead, through newspaper lingo, printers' symbols and headline writing to detailed reporting and clever features. The 10 week Wednesday evening course will be offered at $15.

Walter Rapp, the other half of the husband-wife teaching team, will conduct a course for those wishing to practice German conversation. Contemporary German, its problems, politics, economy and literature will be some of the areas to be given on ten Tuesday evenings at a cost of $12.

Registration for all the above and other courses given at the Governor Livingston Regional School was held Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. However registration may be made Tuesday or Wednesday evening of next week on the night the course registrants are interested in opens.

The first in a series of four panel discussions on the "Push and Pressure On Life" will open this Sunday evening at 8:30 in the blue room of the Community Presbyterian Church, Meeting House Lane, Mountainside.

According to the pastor, Rev. Elmer Talcott, the series will attempt to explore the pressures placed on parents and youth today and to analyze how these pressures "push" people and affect their sense of values.

Sunday's meeting will consider "The School, Church and Community." Panel participants will be Dr. Warren M. Davis, superintendent of the regional high schools, the Rev. J.D. Cole, youth director of Westfield Presbyterian Church and Mayor Frederick Wilhelmus Jr. of Mountainside.

Each of the panelists will present 15 minute summaries of their contacts with youth and the observations they have drawn from those experiences. They will join the other panelists in a one hour session during which they will answer questions from the floor.

The balance of the series, which will run on consecutive Sunday evenings, will study "Dope and Alcoholism" on Feb. 14, "Public Indifference to Crisis" on Feb. 21 and "Values of Life" on Feb. 28.

Police Chief James Moran of Westfield and a representative of the Youth and Family Counseling Service of Westfield will serve on the second panel. Mrs. Fern Hyde, director of welfare for Mountainside and a representative of the Union County Psychiatric Clinic will make up the third panel. Mr. Talcott will lead the final session.

PASTOR DEWART OUTLINES TOPICS OF NEW SERMONS

"Questions People Ask" will be the theme of the sermons that the Rev. James Dewart of Springfield Emanuel Methodist Church, Main St. at Academy green, will preach during the month of February. Pastor Dewart stated that these sermons are related to the "merchandise of modern man about many of the fundamental issues of existence." These questions are often the subject of conversations or counseling sessions as people endeavor to relate their faith to life in a meaningful way, Pastor Dewart said.

The first of the series, "Who Am I?" will be concerned with the search for self-identity. This will be followed by "Must Men Hate?" as Pastor Dewart considers the motivations for prejudice and "creative Christian response." "Why Do Men Suffer?" and "Is There A Life Hereafter?" will conclude the series, placing the "merchandise in which man hid himself in an eternal oblivion where suffering and death are viewed through 'eyes of faith'."

A formal Mardi Gras Ball will be held by the Overlook Hospital Twig groups on Saturday, March 6, at the Governor Morris Hotel in Morristown.

Mrs. Robert Urban, Summit, is chairman of the event, with Mrs. John Brundage, Short Hills, serving as her co-chairman.

Mrs. Urban's committee includes Mrs. Jackson Stringer, Murray Hill, secretary; Mrs. William Bejocke, Summit, treasurer; Mrs. Clement Biddle, Summit, seating; Mrs. Kenneth Wulff, Summit, invitations; Mrs. William Sterns Jr., Summit, publicity; Mrs. Roger Hurlburt, Chatham, banquet; Mrs. William Pote, Summit, decorations; Mrs. Richard Hammer Jr., New Vernon, music; and Mrs. Bruce Conlin, Westfield, extra revenue.

Mrs. William Wall, Summit, serves on the committee in her capacity as ways, means and finance chairman of the Women's Auxiliary of Overlook Hospital.

Stan Rubin's 10-piece orchestra will play for dancing, commencing at the dinner hour and playing continuously. Rubin has been playing at the Mark Twain Riverboat Supper Club in New York. His "Tiger Town Five" is well known to party-goers throughout the East.

Mrs. William Pote is following the Mardi Gras theme in her plans to decorate the ball room. Large pink, blue and black masks and balloons will deck the walls, and on the tables there will be center pieces made of face masks on long handles to be used as favors for the guests.

The ball will mark the 15th year since the organization of the first Twig groups at Overlook. Twigs now operate in Short Hills, Cranford, Summit, Chatham, Madison, Florham Park, Berkeley Heights, New Providence, Springfield, Westfield and Mountsideside. Their membership totals 1,800. During this time they have given more than $163,000 to Overlook and served many thousands of hours in the hospital. This past year alone, they chalked up 63,000 hours of service.

The proceeds from the Mardi Gras Ball will benefit the new $6,500,000 "Progress Program for Overlook" to which the Women's Auxiliary has pledged $200,000. President of the Women's Auxiliary is Mrs. David Loudon of Summit.

Tips for Today's Homemaker

From MARY ARMSTRONG, County Home Economist

The birthday of our first president always suggests cherries in the food department. Therefore, it is appropriate that red tart cherries head the list of foods in plentiful supply for February.

The other two fruits along with cherries, worthy of special notice, are apples and dried prunes. For the season, apples are both in good supply and of good quality.

Olives are another fruit-like product on the plentiful supply list in February. The canned ripe olives of mild flavor and texture to casseroles and other combination dishes as well as giving zest as a mealtime accompaniment.

Food peas, an old-fashioned food product, also included on the National list of abundant items, is of more interest in other areas of the country and by those familiar with the British "peas porridge." These dried peas are, however, an inexpensive and filling source of protein which are often enjoyed in pork flavored soup.

Eggs, always an important food in the pre-Easter weeks, are high on the list of plentiful for February. Broiler-fryers, too, are headlined for meals during the next month. This ever popular and nourishing meat dish offers infinite variety and easy preparation. Other meat supplies will be generally plentiful, especially beef, veal and pork. Among the vegetables, somewhat supplies are notably heavy. More winter crops of tomatoes and cucumbers are expected during the next few months. Fresh citrus and fruit juices are in better supply than last year.

Heavy February menus for two days planned in accordance with the anticipated good supply of certain foods are suggested.

CANDY by Tom Dorr

Ask Amy BY AMY ADAMS

Dear Amy: I have two wonderful children and I'm divorced from my husband. There is a man whom I have been dating for almost six years off and on...

called me up and told he to be at her house by one o'clock and that we would go together. At one o'clock I was counting up her front walk when her door opened up and there she stood, still in her night clothes, her hair in curlers, saying goodbye to another neighbor. I was quite disturbed and angry and must have showed because when I exclaimed, "You're not dressed yet!" she said, "So what?" and slammed the door in my face.

Dear Jealous: If he hasn't made his feelings known to you in six years, he never will. If dating is what you're interested in, he'll fill the bill, but if you have marriage in mind, don't waste another six years. Find yourself a live one!

Now, Amy, I have always been very nice to this woman for the favors she did for me. I have bought her small pieces of jewelry and have taken her and her husband out to dinner. I don't think I deserved that kind of treatment. Do you?

Dear Amy: My parents gave me strict orders not to "make out" with boys on the outside. They say if I want to make out, bring the boy home.

Dear Disturbed: No, I don't think so either. Perhaps your friend was annoyed at being held up by her neighbor so your remark added fuel to the fire and she exploded. By now she's probably as sorry about the incident as you are.

I took their advice and brought the boy home. So, guess what? They won't leave the room long enough for us to even "make out" a little. How can I wise them up? I'm 15.

Unless you learn to become your own chauffeur or have hubby run you around, you must overlook a lot, accept even more and complain very little!

Dear Amy: I have a problem that needs prompt attention, please. I'm being married soon and I need help. My parents are divorced. I live with my father and he is paying for my wedding. My mother hasn't done anything for anyone in the family except to bribe us with money and cheap gifts.

Dear Joanne: It's a waste of money for your parents to invest in piano lessons when you dislike it so strongly. Ask them to save their money for a few years until the time that you would like to resume. As you grow older, you may realize the importance of having a talent that can bring you popularity, fun, culture and happiness.

Dear Amy: I love my father very much and I also have some feelings toward my mother.

Dear Amy: I am 15 and have a question in my mind that's bothering me. A long time ago a boy liked me but I didn't like him. Now I don't know if I like him or not—but I think about him all the time. Think everything he does is great, can't wait to see him, get nervous when I talk to him, think everything he says is like music, think he's the cutest boy in school, single when he passes or says hello and I get mad when he talks to other girls.

Dear Amy: We are a one car family and my husband has to use it to go to work. However, I do have a neighbor who offers me a ride every time she goes shopping or to the beauty shop. One day a store downtown was having a terrific sale of breast of chicken (my husband loves breast of chicken), and my neighbor

GOING STEADY "If I go steady I'll be able to go to basketball games and the dance next week. Please say I can go steady," urges teenage Molly.

Molly's parents are concerned about their daughter "going steady" in high school. They don't want her to settle down to one person so early in life.

Going steady worries Molly too. There are other interesting, attractive boys in school whom she wants to date.

However, she likes the boy and finds his company enjoyable. She doesn't want the anxious waiting for someone to ask her to school affairs. The security of going steady is important. Also, going steady solves the problem of the

Mortgage Expert Says Money Plentiful For Commercial And Industrial Needs

Mortgage money for residential, commercial and industrial construction in New Jersey will be in ample supply for the next six to eight months, according to Carton S. Stallard, president of the Jersey Mortgage Co. of Elizabeth.

Stallard, former head of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, declared that at this time, the long term money market is steady. He expects yields to level off in the next six months.

"The commitment position of investors in long term mortgages is heavy," he declared. "If this position continues, it may eventually result in a tightening effect on the short term money market."

Stallard said that recent financial moves by the government and the banks may be expected to have a tightening effect on the short term money market.

Such factors as the inventory build-up in steel, rising capital expenditures and government spending plans together with the worsening of the balance of payment situation putting further pressure on this country's gold supply in the last several months will influence the tightening of this market, according to Stallard.

On the state scene, Stallard anticipates substantial activity in the building of one-family developments and large apartment projects.

The Jersey Mortgage Company president said that housing starts would remain stable, with construction of one-family homes exceeding apartment building in many parts of the country. He said that apartment rentals would remain firm where rentals are held below $45 a month. Stallard stressed the increasing importance of scientific analysis of economic trends.

"More and more we are becoming aware of the need for exact data as a foundation for sound planning. Nowhere is this need more vital than in the construction field where some builders have been inclined to proceed on projects without due regard to conditions prevailing in particular areas," Stallard said.

Thus far, the fact that so many people live in this area has served to furnish a market for homes and apartments, but in many instances, there has been increasing difficulty in renting and selling according to Stallard.

Mortgage companies and investors are taking a closer look at each new project before committing money to it.

"Progressive business and industrial companies assemble all the facts they can from every available source of information before coming to a decision on matters such as expansion or relocation," Stallard declared. "Builders may well follow this example. In this complex age it's a must for the conduct of profitable enterprise."

CARTON S. STALLARD

Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday of next week at 4 p.m. Dr. Harold N. Moldenke, director of Trailside, will conduct one-half hour nature talks for children. The topic selected for the four days is "Local Songbirds." The lectures will be illustrated with color slides and admission is free.

OFFICE BUILDING IS FIRST IN EAST POWERED BY GAS

The new $3,000,000 Elizabethtown Gas Building in Elizabeth will be the first office building in the East to provide all of its energy for lighting, heating, hot water, air conditioning and elevator operation from natural gas by means of gas turbine driven generators located within the building, according to John Kean, company president.

The new building will be Elizabethtown's home office. The utility serves more than 600,000 people in Middlesex and Union counties with natural gas.

Construction began on the Elizabethtown Gas Building in November and it is expected to be completed early next year. It was designed by Vincent G. Kling and Associates of Philadelphia and the contractor is Frank Briscoe Company, Inc., Newark.

Rutgers discovered a neighbor of note recently and almost immediately put him to work.

Charles Jackson, author of the novel "Lost Weekend," which as a movie won four Academy Awards, stopped at the State University library for information one day and, before you could say "er, read — "Tom Jones," he was teaching an evening literature class at the New Brunswick Extension Center.

Jackson's visit had alerted a librarian near the fact that he lived near the University. When the librarian later heard the Extension Center was seeking a lecturer for its literature series, Jackson was suggested as a possibility.

An invitation to teach was readily accepted. The author of five novels and 77 short stories, Jackson had taught previously at Dartmouth and Columbia Universities and remains a love for what he calls "stimulating teaching."

His course, "Enjoying Good Literature," is apparently admirably suited for a lecturer with Jackson's philosophy of teaching.

"The enjoyment of a great work begins after the reading is completed," says Jackson. "Then you discover with others what you have read."

Jackson offers no set rule for teaching a method to enjoy good literature. But, he suggests a teacher can encourage, stimulate and help his students discover facets of the story which they may have overlooked.

His techniques have proven successful with a class of 35 young and middle-aged men and women attending his lively Wednesday evening lectures.

"Many have a prejudice against the classics because of the way they have been taught," he observes. "I suggest that if a novel or work doesn't interest you don't read it."

"Also, for the work to be enjoyed as great literature, the author has to make you believe you are reading the truth whether it is fiction, or fact."

In his first Rutgers class Jackson answered the question raised in his novel "Sunner Side."

"Why do you and others write on such unhappy subjects when people have enough unhappiness in their own lives?"

Jackson replied that he doesn't give a fig for readers who insist on happy themes. He contends the lighter moments of life are not interesting as the less happy ones, and believes with André Gide, "Fine thoughts are what bad literature is made of."

He does say, however, that it is a swing back to compassion by today's writers as a reaction to the existentialism philosophy which finds little meaning in life. In further defense of enjoying literature with unhappy themes, Jackson points out that the writer leads the reader to an inner view of a situation, enabling the reader to extend his insight and understanding.

"There are possibilities for error and sin in all of us. By expanding our understanding, we are uplifted rather than depressed by the experience."

His Rutgers class has had the opportunity to discover, with Jackson's help, what he sees as our great heritage in the stories of unhappy lives depicted in "Pride and Prejudice," "Death in Venice," "A Handful of Dust," "Tender is the Night," "Dubliners," "Anna Karenina," "Madame Bovary," "Billy Budd," "Cheri" and "Portrait of a Lady."

Jackson, whose "Lost Weekend" has gone into hundreds of editions and has been translated into 18 languages, will be increasing his output of publications. A sixth novel, "A Secondhand Life," is due next spring and "The Lady Julia," a short story, will appear in next month's McCall's magazine.

Cite Freeholders For Taking Steps To Tuition Plan

The Union County Board of Freeholders were commended last week by the Elizabeth Chapter of the American Business Club for taking the first step to institute a tuition aid plan for county residents attending Union Junior College in Cranford.

In a resolution, the club said the Union County Board of Freeholders can help ease the crisis in higher education by implementing a recommendation of its Advisory Committee that it establish the tuition aid plan for Union County residents attending Union Junior College.

Under the plan, the county would provide $100 a semester or $200 a year for each Union County resident enrolled as a full time student at Union Junior College. This would be matched by a similar amount provided by the state.

"We agree with the Advisory Committee appointed by the Board of Freeholders that 'Union County should utilize to the fullest extent the opportunity and resource it possesses in the existing and accredited 30-year old Union Junior College by granting financial assistance to the Union County students who attend there,'" the club's resolution said.

This action was taken after former Assemblyman James M. McGowan, who is serving as co-chairman with former Assistant Prosecutor Richard P. Muscatello of the Union County College Opportunity Committee, spoke on the tuition aid plan. McGowan reported that the Board of Freeholders has included $80,000 in its 1965 budget for the program.

3 Weekend Hikes Planned By Club

The Union County Hiking Club is planning three trips during the coming weekend. Miss Irma Heyer of Elizabeth will lead a Saturday afternoon ramble in the Watchung Reservation beginning at 1:30 p.m. from the Trailside Nature Center.

Jack Smith of Rahway will take a group on an eight-mile hike along the hills of the Hudson River near Nayak. Hikers will meet at the Administration Building, Warinanco Park, at 8:30 a.m.

Ms. Lillian Deene of South Plainfield will lead the third group at the Staten Island Zoo. The group will meet at the Park Commission Administration Building at 12:45 p.m.

The Recreation Department of the Union County Park Commission may be contacted for information concerning the hikes.
