Clovers Perform At Ball

Newcomers Bill Dancing Headliners

By RITA ZEISS

The Mountainside Newcomers Club will be entertained by a dance team from their own membership at its "High Society Ball" scheduled March 19 in the Suburban Hotel, Summit.

Most of the Newcomers are well acquainted with the husband-and-wife team. Neil and Marie Clover, who moved to their home at 1097 Sylvan lane in October, 1964, have entertained at less formal affairs for the local group. They also conduct classes in ballroom dancing for a limited number of club members.

Although paens of praise have been sung locally about the young couple's terpsichorean ability many of their admirers do not realize they have gained wide recognition as the tops in their field.

In 1949 when he was a senior in Irvington High School he didn't go to his class prom — because he couldn't dance.

After graduation he learned to stumble around a little, but didn't even attempt to learn how to dance well until about a year before he entered the Harvest Moon Ball.

He took lessons for the express purpose of entering the competition — "If I was really going to dance I wanted to prove I could be the best."

"Save your papers for Linda" — Boy Scout Troop 76 urges all Mountainside residents. The troop members will conduct their first borough-wide pick-up of newspapers, magazines and cardboard this Sunday. All proceeds will be donated to the Linda Clark Fund. In case of heavy rain, pick-up will be postponed until the following Sunday.

The Troop, which is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, asks that newspapers, magazines and cardboard be placed in separate stacks at the curb. Pick-up will begin at 12:30 p.m. Deerfield School will be the collection station. Those who wish to assist the Scouts may deliver their contributions directly to the trucks in the school's parking lot.

Board Presents Expansion Costs To PTA Thursday

School Plan Effects On Taxes To Be Aired At Deerfield Meeting

Cost estimates for the building program proposed by Mountainside's Board of Education will be presented to the public for the first time at next Thursday night's meeting of the Borough PTA. The probable effect of the building program, if carried out, on the tax rate will also be discussed.

Dr. Edward Nolan, a former member of the board, will chair the meeting which will open at 8:15 p.m. in the gymnasium of Deerfield School, Central Ave. All residents of the borough, whether PTA members or not, are invited to attend.

The expansion program, which calls for the eventual abandonment of Echo Brook School for educational purposes, would include additions to both Deerfield School and Beechwood School and the purchase of additional lands at both those sites. It would also include the acquisition of a third site, on the south side of Rt. 22, as a replacement for the Echo Brook building and land which are to be offered to the Borough of Mountainside before considering other disposition.

Meet To Discuss

Two board members, Walter Rupp and Bernard Seligman, have been meeting with the Borough Council for preliminary discussions on the possibility of such a transfer.

According to announced plans, the third school site would be acquired to allow for possible increase in the school population over the next two or three decades. Present plans call for no building on the site.

The expansion would divide Deerfield School after the addition is added, into two separate educational units, one a complete elementary unit for kindergarten through the fifth grade, and the other a Middle School. The Middle School would accommodate all the sixth through eighth grade classes in the borough.

Beechwood would be a complete elementary school. The students now in Echo Brook School would be assigned to one or the other of the schools, with the elementary students being divided on a geographical basis.

Enlarge Library

The addition to Deerfield would include 10 classrooms, a shop, a home economics room and a cafeteria. Six classrooms and a large group instruction room would be added to Beechwood School and the library there would be enlarged for storage and work space.

The presentation of the plans will be made by Dr. Levin B. Hanigan, School Superintendent, and members of the Board of Education. Slides, drawings and charts will be used in the presentation.

Thursday night's program will be opened to questions from the audience. Mrs. Herbert Soidel, PTA program chairman, will introduce Dr. Nolan.

The proposed plan culminates more than two years of study by the Board of Education, members of the school staff and several educational experts from outside the borough.

The plan is expected to go to the voters sometime this year.

'Medicare' Meeting

Borough residents aged 65 or over are reminded of the "Medicare" enrollment meeting scheduled Saturday at 8:30 p.m. in the Florence M. Gaudineer School, Springfield. All persons 65 or over who have not already enrolled for the new health insurance provided under Social Security may do so at Saturday's meeting. Transportation, if needed, will be provided by the League of Women Voters of Springfield and can be arranged by calling 376-5115 or 376-1897.

Hearings On Budget And 300G Pool Set Tuesday In Echobrook School

450 Families Enrolled In Pool; 200 More Members Needed

Four hundred and fifty Mountainside families have signed up for membership in the $300,000 municipal pool which, according to present plans, will be ready for use by July 1.

William Ditzel, chairman of the Recreation Commission, announced the enrollment figure at Monday night's informational meeting held in Deerfield School. Hundreds of residents, undeterred by the heavy, driving rains, jammed the gym. Many of them came carrying their applications and deposit checks. Only 33 had previously registered by mail, Ditzel said; the balance enrolled Monday night.

Ditzel expressed confidence that the 650 families needed to be enrolled by March 15.

Two other members of the Commission, Richard Collins and Harold Nelson, assisted Ditzel in fielding questions from the floor.

Nelson explained that the pool would be financed by a 15-year utility bond issue authorized by the Borough Council. Since the pool will be a self-liquidating project, with the bonds being paid from the membership dues and other revenues, the borrowing capacity of the borough will not be affected, Nelson pointed out.

Ditzel and Collins reviewed the studies carried out by the pool committee over the past 18 months. Their recommendations for the proposed pool were based on those studies, they said.

In considering municipal pools in at least 30 other communities in the state, they said they had found none which had not proven self-sustaining.

Membership in the pool will be limited to Mountainside residents. Family memberships will be $80, individual memberships, $40; and residents 65 or over will pay a fee of only $15 each.

Children of member families who are over 21 will be required to pay $15 each over the family membership.

Forty Mountainside people will appear in "My Kind of Town," which is directed by Aden Lewis, coordinator of music in the borough schools, and Mrs. Frederick Wilhelms Jr.

Proceeds from the show, as in previous years, will go toward enriching the musical program in borough schools and to other community projects.

One of Goff's former films,

'Earth Natives' won several awards, including the Robert Flaherty award, and was shown on television several times. Another of his films, "The Butler Did It," a mystery-comedy, was made in the Goff's home on Sunnyside rd., and stars several members of the Mountainside Music Association. Both were shown at previous MMA shows.

The film, Goff says, is "about an average man living in a town so statistically typical that it is used by pollsters and motivational research teams to test the reactions of the nation."

Humorous drawings by Goff, who is an artist, will be used extensively in the film.

The new assignment is part of expanded responsibility.

Obenchain, a native of Cleveland, is a 1941 engineering graduate of Case Institute of Technology. His most recent position was district manager at Newark.

Obenchain, his wife Jessie and their four children reside at 1021 Highway 22, Mountainside.

The new assignment is part of a reorganization to strengthen Reliance's field sales.

Council Expected To Approve Both, Rezone Swim Site

Mayor Reports Land Negotiations Finished With State

Public hearings on a municipal budget of $628,490.74 and an appropriation of $300,000 for the construction of a municipal pool will be held next Tuesday night at a special meeting of Mountainside's Borough Council. The meeting is scheduled to open at 8 p.m. in Echo Brook School.

The Council is expected to give final approval that night to both measures. Final action on rezoning of the pool site, in the present state-owned bird sanctuary adjacent to the playing field of Echo Brook School, is also on the agenda for that evening.

BY AMY ADAMS

Dear Amy:

I am a 58-year-old widow, work for the state and live alone. I have no relatives and letters mean so much to me. I often think of the servicemen when the mail is delivered and no letters arrive because of no relatives.

Do you have any way of obtaining information regarding service men who might enjoy a letter? I am sure the younger men are the ones I'm dating that evening. I feel that since I now have my M.L.S. license, I know what safe driving is and believe I can pick good friends and that I should be allowed this privilege.

Since I would enjoy writing to such a person giving him news of home, your answer would be appreciated.

Doloris

Dear Doloris:

Bless you, Darlin'. Your letter reflects the thoughts of hundreds that I have received over the last few weeks from teenagers and women in every age group and from every walk of life.

I have made numerous inquiries and have been informed that every local Y.M.C.A. solicits correspondents to write to our servicemen throughout the world. I'm sure the services of all would be most welcome. Volunteer and bring HOME closer home to our men!

Dear Amy:

I am 53 years old and I am interested in a man who lives out of town. His wife has been deceased about seven months and I have known him for years. I want to know if it would be proper for me to write to him, send him a gift, call him, or just wait to see if he is interested in anyone else.

Marie

Dear Marie:

Since this man is now a widower, and you want to renew your acquaintance with him, you may send him a note, nothing more.

If he's interested, he'll do the courting.

Dear Amy:

I am a junior in high school. I will be 17 this month and I have my driver's license.

My problem is that my parents won't let me ride in cars. The only time this rule is broken is when my parents know the complete family history of the boy I'm dating that evening. I feel that since I now have my M.L.S. license, I know what safe driving is and believe I can pick good friends and that I should be allowed this privilege.

Since I would enjoy writing to such a person giving him news of home, your answer would be appreciated.

April

Dear Doloris:

Just because you have your driver's license does not make you chief cook and bottle washer in your house. Your parents have the last say, and if they want to be sure the boy you go driving with is a safe driver, they have every right to do whatever they feel is necessary to find out.

You may think you are right, but they don't want you to be 'dead' right!

Dear Amy:

I am 18 years old and in love with "E". I met him over a year ago and we went with each other for several months. Then we broke up. I've gone with more boys than you could possibly count since then, but none of them seem to compare to "E".

I just had an 8 x 10 oil color portrait made of him by a professional photographer (from a small snapshot), and I was wondering if you think it would be all right if I asked "E" to autograph it for me? It would mean so much to me to have his signature on the photo. I paid $8.50 for it but I think he's worth it. I don't think he cares for me anymore, but I think he knows that I still like him, but he doesn't know to what extent.

Miss J.K.

If you want to ogle over his picture, do so without his autograph. There is no better way to get a guy to dislike you than to throw yourself at him... which is exactly what you're doing.

Wise up. He knows too much, you don't know enough!

Dear Miss J.K.:

Wise up. He knows too much, you don't know enough!

PERSONAL TO RON:

Your neighbor boy is a free-loader and bad mannered in the bargain. But don't take him to heart — there's usually one in every crowd. Find a new buddy.

Dear Amy:

I will soon be a teen-ager but I am small for my age. All of my friends are bigger than I, yet I'm older than most of them. Their parents buy them teen-age clothes and permit them to use make-up. All this helps to make them look older, but I have to stick to little girl's dresses which include lace and bows. To me, the dresses I have to wear are very "kiddish" looking.

Since I am now in junior high, I would like to know how I can keep from looking like a third or fourth grader?

Dear Shorty:

You're too old for ruffles and too young for rouge!

Ask your mother to choose your clothes along more tailored lines . . . and Mother Nature will take care of the rest.

Tips for Today's Homemaker

From Carolyn Yuknus, County Home Economist

Peanuts, potatoes, prunes, rice and eggs are listed as the plentiful foods for March as reported by the U.S. Department of Agriculture:

Take advantage of the beautiful supply of peanuts, peanut butter and peanut oil. Main dishes, puddings and other desserts are just a few ways this protein- valuable product can be used in the menu.

Potatoes and onions remain in the forefront of plentiful vegetables. Both 1965 fall potatoes and the new 1966 winter tubers are expected to rate among the top buys at the market. With regard to onions, we in the Northeast are particularly fortunate in having a heavy supply.

Prunes and prune juice continue on the list, as well. Heavy supplies from last year's California production and large carryover stocks create a favorable situation for the food shopper. Use dry prunes and cooked or canned prunes in salads, pastries, pies and casserole dishes, suitable items for round-the-clock meals.

Prune juice is delicious and nutritious as is, but also goes well in a variety of pleasing drinks and food preparations.

Rice will also figure on the March list. A popular item on the menu, this bland grain adapts to many needs in appetizers, main dishes, and desserts. Rice will be amply available for some time to come because of last summer's record crop. Because the United States is a great rice exporting nation, 1966 has been declared International Rice Year.

The supply of eggs is somewhat below the unusually heavy volume of last year. Prices are likely to be correspondingly higher, although still appealing to food shoppers.

Oranges remain on the plentiful side. It's a very good quality crop, too, and prices this winter have been especially attractive. By all means keep lots of oranges on hand to eat sliced or peeled, in salads, or cooked and baked preparations suitable for every occasion.

A free booklet, "Peanut and Peanut Butter Recipes," may be obtained by contacting the Home Economics Office, 1106 Elizabeth Ave., Elizabeth.

APPRECIATING MUSIC

The ability to enjoy and appreciate music always is of value. This does not necessarily mean learning to play an instrument, although being able to produce music will be an even greater asset.

Anyone who can hear can learn to enjoy music, and many can also learn to sing or play. When you musically educate children, music can play an important part in their lives.

Musical education brings to mind music lessons and practice periods. Let us forget about these now because musical education also means exposing the child to music through singing, rhythmic expression, and listening.

Such musical education may begin almost at birth. Parents can create an atmosphere of music so that the child will feel at home with it and enjoy it. Music is available in any home through radio, phonograph, piano, or TV.

Babies respond to rhythm and soon learn to keep time. Children love to play instruments — rattles, bells, homemade drums. This may sound noisy to parents, but encourage the young ones to perform at times when it will be less disturbing.

They like to sing with their parents or with the family group. They enjoy expressing, through movement, the rhythms they hear in music.

In addition to this action, there should be melodic music for listening, too. Children's joy in music needs to be fostered and encouraged.

Anti-Poverty Staffer Praises Interns In Community Action

"We feel that social work shouldn't be limited to college degree holders," says a Rutgers University staff member—and he means it.

The staff member is Bernard Rifkin, director of the Community Action Intern Training Program in Rutgers' Labor Education Program.

Rifkin isn't knocking college education, but he points out that there are a number of people without advanced formal education who have much to contribute to their society.

Tapping this human resource is the purpose of the Community Action Intern Program, according to Rifkin. The interns are men and women recruited from sections of the poverty population and training for roles in community anti-poverty programs.

The State University program started last July, supported by a grant of some $170,000 for a two-year period from the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity under Section 207 of the Economic Opportunity Act. It has a pioneer group of 20 interns studying and working from Bridgeton and Atlantic City through Middlesex and Union counties to New Jersey's northern concentrations of

Women Legislators Seeking Ban On Jury Discrimination

WASHINGTON — A bipartisan group of eight women in Congress today called for a ban on discrimination against women in the selection of juries in both Federal and State courts.

Joining with Rep. Phyllis Dwyer (R-N.Y.), the women — Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R-Maine), Rep. Edith Green (D-Ore.), Rep. Louise P. Kelton (R-Tenn.), Rep. Shirley Chisholm (N.Y.), Rep. Barbara Jordan (D-Tex.), Rep. Carol Moseley (D-Ill.) and Rep. Patricia T. Heinz (D-Pa.) — told the House and Senate last night that they would support a bill introduced by Rep. John Dingell (D-Mich.) to prohibit discrimination in jury selection in Federal and State courts.

In letters to the President and the Attorney General, the women noted that many Federal and State lawmakers referred to the proposed legislation as "unconstitutional." However, the women's statement said, "We believe that the proposed legislation is constitutional and will propose legislation to establish unavoidable requirements for nondiscriminatory jury selection in Federal and State courts."

Pointing out that only 21 States apply jury selection laws equally to men and women, they also noted that many Federal District courts have failed to give full effect to the provisions of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 which made women eligible to serve on all Federal juries.

"Discrimination in the selection of a JURY," the women wrote, "undermines the very foundation of democracy in the administration of justice, which is based on sex discrimination as a part of the Adminstration's proposed jury selection legislation. A draft bill is understood to be under study currently by the Justice Department. Mrs. Dwyer said.

COMBAT RHEUMATIC FEVER

Start Heart Association Fund As Memorial To Mrs. Stamler

Formation of the Gertrude A. Stamler Memorial Fund has been announced by the Union County Heart Association. The fund will be financed by contributions to the Heart Association in memory of the wife of State Senator Nelson F. Stamler of Union, Mrs. Stamler, who died

Feb. 16 after a heart attack, had been afflicted with a rheumatic heart.

According to Dr. Bernard Rosenburg, president of the Union County Heart Association, the memorial fund will support a primary rheumatic fever prevention program. He explained that the Heart Association already sponsors a rheumatic fever treatment program under which physicians in the county administer penicillin to victims of the disease.

Under the new program, physicians will be provided with materials to take swabs of the throats of all persons suspected of having beta-hemolytic streptococcus — the rheumatic fever germ.

The Heart Association will provide a special analysis of the culture to determine whether the rheumatic fever germ is present. If the germ is found, the physician will administer penicillin over a ten-day period. Dr. Rosenburg said the therapy can prevent as much as 90 per cent of the possibility of the patient incurring rheumatic fever.

Dr. Rosenburg said the Heart Association was "grateful to the many friends of Mrs. Stamler who have donated the money to make this program operative."

Additional contributions to the Stamler Fund can be made to the Union County Heart Association, 617 Pennsylvania Ave., Elizabeth 07201.

'Life At Top' Is Top Filmfare At Ormont

By BEA SMITH

"Life at the Top" for Joe Laramore is not as champagne and roses deal as it would have believed it 10 years ago when he met the boy's daughter to marry him—in the only way a poor social-climbing mills worker could, according to John Grimes' two best-selling novels (published nearly 10 years apart). In "Life at the Top," film (and book) sequel to "Room at the Top," current Cement Theater adult movie attraction in East Orange, Laurence Harvey repeats his role of the grim, ambitious, power-seeking young man.

In this excellent film, Harvey (as Joe Laramore) is seen as a "successful" but restless sales manager of his father-in-law's mills in England, who lives in a beautiful house with a beautiful but unfaithful wife (Jean Simmons) and two children, one of whom is nearly a complete stranger to him.

In a series of rather stark, unashamed, often brutal efforts to escape from the life they have made for themselves (and each other), Harvey and Miss Simmons toss around some rather crude language and cruder activities.

The desperately discontented Harvey attempts to make the break with Honor Blackman as his goal only to find that he is stymied in every way.

Harvey does an exceptionally fine job in a difficult role, and the other performers, including Miss Simmons, Miss Blackman, Michael Caine and Donald Wolfit, are first rate. The picture is sharply directed by Ted Kotcheff, and both director and cast capture the absorbing intense study of emotional conflict.

Some Tips On Home Payments: Definite Rules Just Don't Exist

If you've been looking for hard and fast rules as to how much to spend on a home or what percentage of your income should go toward a mortgage payments, don't feel if you haven't found such a rule, says Charles Kramer of Brodnell and Krammer, realtors of Union.

"Definite rules don't exist in reality," says the realtor, "and, in fact, are not feasible. However, based on our experience we offer a few tips which might be considered in helping you determine your housing expenditures."

Family situations vary greatly within a given income bracket. For instance, your income may be the same as your neighbor's. You may have more family members, insinuating extra or a committed use for a larger proportion of your income.

"You and your neighbor won't be able to spend equal amounts of your income on housing."

"Usually the proportion of the family income spent on the house goes down as the family income increases, but the total amount of money will increase."

"For instance, if you have a below-average income of $5,000 a year, you may buy a house which costs about three times your annual income. Your monthly housing costs may be nearly 31 percent of your monthly income. Housing expenses include mortgage payments, utilities, maintenance and repairs.

"If your annual income is an above-average $7,695 a year before taxes, you may buy a $15,500 house which is a little more than twice your annual income."

Your monthly housing expense would indicate that at least $196 per month was necessary to amortize this monthly payment.

Kramer also pointed out that in today's economy credit—which is in reality the substance of a mortgage—is an important factor to be considered on a personal basis in each case.

As an example, Kramer says that "even if there were several dollars-per-week short of the required level at a particular tract, the purchase might be viewed on a personal basis. If the family's credit background was good, if the earner had been in the same job for several years, and if his employment record showed steady salary increases, he'd be able to buy."

"After all, he is a better risk than someone earning a few dollars more per week but with shaky credit or a history of changing jobs two or three times a year."

In concluding, Kramer recommended that although the Computer Age has reduced an and most of our activities to a series of digits and ciphers, when a family decides to make the single most important purchase of their life, a home, more than a series of charts and statistics must be involved.

Clovers Dance

In 1963 and 1964 he coached a cast of about 40 in a show produced by the Prudential Athletic Association. The group toured with the USO, entertaining at service bases in several states. The troupe was such a hit at McGuire Air Force Base they were called back for a repeat performance. They were also invited by the Air Force to go on a USO tour to Greenland, Iceland, Newfoundland and Labrador. That offer was also turned down since the troupe members were unable to leave work for that long a time.

Clover and his wife had started dancing as a team by then, more for their own enjoyment than anything else. They still appear professionally occasionally but not often enough to interfere with his full time work schedule or with their time at home with their son, Gary, who is now five.

Clover still, on occasion, coaches some hopeful who dreams of dancing on to fame through the threshold of the Harvest Moon Ball. But the lessons must be conducted in his own home.

Many of his former students did win honors in the famous dance competitions. In 1960 two of his students, Betty O'Loughlin and Arthur Gilliam, took top place in the tango competition.

Another of his students, Tex Edmondson, writer of the once famous radio show "The Shadow," Edmondson, whose spooky creation featured breaking doors and a maniacal voice cackling "the shadow knows," won a top spot in another Harvest Moon Ball, a triumph that led to his present job, teaching dancing aboard a cruise ship. The Clovers last had heard from him via a postcard from Cape town, South Africa.

"But why would your teacher be writing ME a note?"
