Three firms submit bids on 2 courts

Council may award work before end of this week

Three bids, ranging from $6,390 to $8,242, were submitted Tuesday for the paving and grading for two tennis courts to be erected adjacent to the site of Mountainside's municipal pool. Low bidder was Peters Construction Co. of Madison. D. & L. Contracting Co. Inc. of Rahway submitted the high bid and Union Paving and Construction Co. of Union was the third bidder with a figure of $7,336.

Borough Engineer Robert Koser said Tuesday that he expected the Borough Council to award the contract very shortly, possibly this

A May I completion date for the project is set in the specifications which were prepared by

Bids on the fencing for the courts will be accepted next Wednesday at 3 p.m. in Borough Hall. Specifications and bids, prepared by Koser, are on file in his office on the second floor of Borough Hall on Rt. 22.

The fencing specifications also set a May I deadline for completion of the job. This means, Koser said, that work on the paving and the fencing must be carried out concurrently.

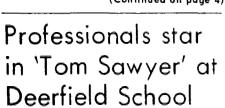

A THIRD PART of the project, the final top coat and the painting of the lines on the tennis courts, will be started as quickly as possible after the other work is completed. This portion of the work does not have to be put out for bids.

The courts are expected to be ready in time for the opening of the pool on Memorial Day. They will be for the use of all residents of the borough, not just members of the pool.

The permanent bathhouse at the pool site is also expected to be ready for use on the opening day. The Borough Council awarded contracts totaling $90,538 for the construction of that building last month.

The building, designed by Eggers and Higgins, a New York architectural firm, will be one-story high, approximately 30 x 74 feet, and will have a sun deck on the roof. Showers and locker rooms will be installed in the building. Notices that their membership fees are due are going out this week to all residents who

Highway building involved 2 times in auto crashes

The Western Exterminating Co. building on Rt. 22 was involved in two automobile accidents this week---but it didn't get extermin-ated. One of the autos did though; its complete front end was demolished. The driver of that car, James M. Cloney of Berkeley Heights, narrowly escaped death when the steering wheel was driven through the seat of the car, hours earlier, Monday at 2:30 a.m., a car driven by John P. Mullin, of Short Hills also struck the building, which is located on an island in the middle of the highway.

Volley ball games scheduled for 8th graders and parents ball games scheduled this month under the sponsorship of the Mountainside Parent-Teachers Association, according to the PTA president, Mrs. John Hechtle. Next Monday at 7:30 p.m. eighth grade boys and their fathers will join in the gymnasium of Deerfield School for a game; the following Monday night the eighth grade girls and their mothers will turn out at Deerfield gym for a game.

Only boys and girls accompanied by their parents, or another adult (of the proper gender), will be allowed to play, Mrs. Hechtle said. If the response to these two games is good the PTA may institute a series of monthly games for students and parents in the 1967-68 school year.

Charles Carson and Miss Jeanette Sektberg, gym teachers at Deerfield, will be in charge of refereeing. Mrs. William Gutman and Mrs. Harry Nash, PTA vice-presidents, assisted Mrs. Hechtle in planning the programs. Notices will be sent home this week inviting parents of the eighth graders to "join the fun," Mrs. Hechtle said. Other members of the families and all interested citizens are urged to come and cheer from the sidelines.

successful three night run,

The play took place in front of four basic settings, the two major ones being Higgins study and a street in the poorer section of London. The many, varicolored volumes of Higgins' library and the detailed, bricked structures of London's streets showed much painstaking effort on the part of the scenery

As Valerie Klein, portraying Eliza Doolit-tle, moved from the squalor and cold of the London poor to the warm, rich society of Professor Higgins and his mother, her clear, well-projected voice assured all that it 'would be loverly."

Rick Wilhelms as Professor Higgins and Paul Dimmick as Col. Pickering acted so spontaneously, and with such natural enthu-siasm, that the scenes passed all too quickly. The stage crew added to the spontaneity with quick and exact scenery changes.

As the curtain opened on the second scene the viewer first became acquainted with the well-picked cockney chorus. The harmony of Michael Spring, Bob Osborn, Jim Dehls, and Steve Morse as they accompanied Eliza in "Wouldn't It Be Loverly" completely filled the auditorium. Here also, George Shulman as Mr.Doolittle was introduced. George's easy, bantering style of delivery and natural talent for improvisation aided him in his excellent portrayal of Eliza's father. The cockney chorus, which also sang and danced to 'Get Me to the Church on Time", sounded richly vibrant, with all parts coming through to create a full, big sound. The orchestra, accompanying all numbers and playing between

Rhode Island band meets Highlanders for gala weekend

The "Hurricanes," the Veterans Memorial High School Band of Warwick, R. I., will join the Highlander Band of Governor Livingston Regional High School in a concert to be presented March 18 in the auditorium of the Berkeley Heights school. The concert will open at 8 p.m.

The "Hurricanes" have performed in the past at the Tournament of Roses Parade in California, inauguration parades in Washington, D. C. and the Music Man Marching Band Competition Festival in Mason City, lowa. They will be a "real challenge to the local band," according to a spokesman for the regional school's Band Parents Organization, which is sponsoring the concert.

Tickets are now available from all members of the Highlander Band, including the Girls Pipe and Drum unit, the color guard and the twirlers. Tickets, at one dollar for adults and 50 cents for students, will also be sold at the door the night of the concert.

The concert is one of the main events in a gala weekend planned by Governor Livingston's Highlander Band. Under the "band exchange program," the "Hurricanes" will arrive in town at noon on March 17. They will be entertained at a party that evening and spend the next day seeing the sights in New York City. After the concert, they will attend a dance sponsored by the Band Parents Organization.

Members of the Band Parents Organization and the Highlander Band will house and feed the members of the visiting band for the weekend. The Warwick band will reciprocate on the week-end of April 5 when the Highlander band will travel to Rhode Island for a gala weekend.

The visit and the trip have been financed by a candy sale held last November and a dance in

PTA execs okay code for students

A code of dress and behavior for students in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades at Deerfield School was unanimously approved by the executive board of the Parent-Teachers Association Monday night. The code, already adopted by the Student Council of Deerfield, will now go to the Board of Education for action, according to the PTA president, Mrs.

The PTA executives have also forwarded a letter to the school board urging adoption and "strict enforcement" of the code which attempts to establish guide lines for dress, hair styles (particularly for boys) and de-portment. Copies of the code, drawn up by the school principal, Herbert Brown, were sent home a few weeks ago with the children. Parents and students were asked to sign a slip included in the copy indicating they had read the code and were ready to comply with it. Most of the slips have been returned, signed as complying.

A panel discussion on the proposed code was held at the February meeting of the borough's PTA. Mrs. Hechtle is expected to announce its adoption formally by the PTA board at tonight's meeting of the general membership in Deerfield School.

ACCORDING TO DR. LEVIN B. HANIGAN, School Superintendent, the code is already in operation. Action by the school board, which may take place at next Tuesday night's meeting, would merely stress that body's support of the code and the "recognition of its importance" in the operation of the school, Dr. Hanigan said,

The School Superintendent emphasized that the new code is an addition to disciplinary and behaviorial codes already in effect.

THE NEW CODE recognizes in its recommendations for dress that "American youth have been 'fad conscious' for generations' and attempts to make allowances for that tendency by permitting the boys to go tieless and to leave the neck buttons on shirts un-fastened. However it stipulates that other buttons on the shirt must be fastened and shirttails must be tucked in. It also suggests that boys do not wear tight-fitting trousers as "they inhibit body movement,"

Dungarees of any color or type for boys and tight-fitting clothing for girls, particularly sweaters and skirts, are labelled "taboo," Girls are not allowed to wear culottes, extremely short skirts or slacks and tee shirts and athletic ishirts are out for boys. Boys are also required to wear belts unless trousers have a continental waistband.

The code does not bar mini skirts, as such but does suggest that girls wear clothing which will enable them to "sit comfortably --- in a ladvlike manner."

Extreme hair styles or long hair are out for boys. If the hair "interferes with vision" the boys will not be allowed to use power machinery during industrial arts classes. Too-long hair may bar a boy from participation in athletic activities, according to the discretion of the coaches. Boys must not carry hair brushes and combs are "limited to a fre-inch length."

Girls' hair gets much less attention in the code. They are not allowed to wear bangs that fall below the eyebrows or halr clips or curlers

Smoking on any part of the school grounds is forbidden. Damage to school property may ber of the school personnel will not be tolerated.

The code also spells out other conduct requirements, sets penalties for offenses and rules governing attendance and academic responsibilities of the students.

Board to adopt salary guides Tuesday night

The new salary guide for teachers, administrators, office personnel and custodians is expected to be officially adopted by next Tuesday night's meeting of Mountainside's Board of Education, Although funds for the new guide were included in the school budget submitted to the electorate last month, the school_board delayed official adoption until after the budget was approved by the voters.

The new salary guide for teachers will give them raises that average out to about 10 percent. It will increase the starting salary for teachers with bachelor degrees from $4,500 to $5,900. Teachers with bachelor's degrees will earn a maximum of $10,200 after 16 years, compared to the current maximum of $9,800

Teachers who hold master's degrees will start at $6,400 annually instead of the present $5.800. They will reach a maximum of $10.700after 16 years instead of the present $10,200,

Those with 30 credits towards a doctorate will start at an annual salary of $6,700 instead of the present $6,100 and reach a maximum of $11,000 after 16 years. Three or four faculty members are in that cate-

According to figures supplied by the Board of Education at the public hearing on the school budget, the present scale places Mountainside near the bottom quarter for salaries paid to beginning teachers with bachelor's degrees. The board study also showed that 19 of the 21 communities in Union County paid teachers with 12 years service more than the Mountainside did, according to the old salary guide.

Dear Neighbors:

Just like in the years past, we again are ready to take care of your shade and ornamental trees. Because this year the destructive scale insects appear to be more plentiful than in the past we urge you to let us spray your oak trees well in advance of first spring leaves. For an early spray during this month, we can then use high viscosity spray oil which is most effective and yet absolutely harmless to humans as well as our birds. The scale insects infect trees which will decay beyond any means of help later on. Don't let this happen to your trees that are the source of enjoyment year after year. They provide you with cooling shade in the summer time, they beautify your home and, ves, then enhance the value of your very home as if they would want to thank you for

Livingston man to appeal 10 year revocation, fine

10 year revocation of his driving license and a $300 fine imposed upon him in Mountainside's Municipal Court on a drunken driving charge, According to Court Clerk Elmer Hoffarth the stiff penalty was imposed on John J. Doyle by Magistrate Jacob Bauer because this was Doyle's second offense on the same charge. His license had been revoked in another community in 1949 for two years, Hoffarth said.

The charge which brought the stiff penalty against Doyle was made by Officer William Ayres on Dec. 3, 1966, when Doyle was driving on the eastbound lane of Rt. 22. Ayres and State Trooper M. Blahut testified at the hearing.

A lesser charge-driving while "impaired" due to the consumption of alcohol-lifted the license of Louis E. Fasulo of Springfield for six months and cost him $55 in fines. Fasulo refused to submit to the drunkometer test or to be examined by a doctor after he was involved in an accident on Rt. 22 last Oct. 12. He pleaded guilty to the "impaired" charge last week in the local court.

In the same court session H. E. Lewis of Plainfield, John H. Lawson of Brooklyn, N.Y., Walter A. Williams of Newark and Joseph Durbin of Philadelphia were fined $205 each for driving while on the revoked list, Emma C. Lewis of Plainfield, owner of the car the Plainfield man was driving, was fined $15 for not having the vehicle inspected. Durbin also paid $15 for not producing his registration when asked to do so by Patrolman Wayne Martin.

Erik Jansson is known to all who visit our tire shop on Rt. 22, Union. Erik comes from Sweden, and very few of our visitors know that he's as adept with skis on his feet as he is with a mechanic's tool in his hand. Erik asked us to quiz our readers this week on his sport - skiing.

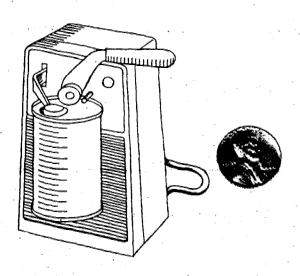

. . . Our quiz concerns the man who put his adopted country, the U.S., on skis. He was the world's greatest performer. At age 19 he arrived in America from Norway. The year was 1939, and from the moment he set foot in this country, he started a career which span-ned only six years. But he did more to popularize skiing than any other person. His spectacular jumping feats made America ski conscious.

On March 3, 1945 while leading an American ski patrol against the Germans in Europe, he was killed by enemy fire. At age 25 he was dead, his life given for his adopted country.

His name was Torger Tokle, a name never to be forgotten when the sport of skiing is discussed.

`Values to Hold... Worlds to Explore'

For those who are about to throw in the sponge and join the cynics who see little hope for the future, the week of March 12 to 18 may come as a reminder that youth, hope and high ideals are everpresent. These seven March days are officially designated Girl Scout Week. The theme of the Girl Scouts' 55th birthday is: "Values to Hold--Worlds to Explore". The values are still those instilled by the founder of the Girl Scouts, Juliette Gordon Low. The young ladies of the Scouts now, as then, represent the highest ideals of character, conduct; patriotism and service. The worlds they explore involve the home, community, nation, other cultures and other lands.

In this day when skepticism and materialism are rampant and many young people are rebelling against restraint of any kind, the importance of such organizations as the Girl Scouts takes on a new meaning. The three million Girl Scouts represent a mighty force among American youth -- a constructive force that may come up with some meaningful answers to today's problems for all young people.

The Girl Scouts and Girl Scout Week deserve the unqualified endorsement and. support of every adult U.S.

A MUSING from the desk

"Beware the ides of March," This quotation, from the Rome of Julius Caesar, by way of Shakespeare's England, still holds a warning for us in the present day, when ides are few

At this time of the year, as winter sloshes and sniffles to a sorry end, human resistance is at its lowest, to microbes or to ideas. As the trees prepare to bud all around us, our minds begin to seethe and germinate with grandiose projects for the sunny days, anything from digging up the entire lawn to paint-ing the house on a do-it-yourself basis. This way lies disaster, and it all started on the same old ides of March.

The month traditionally enters like a woolly little lamb and exits like a roaring lion. In

THIS IS ALSO the season when many organizations appoint nominating committees to select officers for the coming year. As anyone can attest who ever served on a nominating committee which tried to persuade all the members to take the hard jobs when they wanted the easy ones, March is a month when even the birds have too much sense to come back.

For high school seniors, March is the center, either apex or nadir, of the period for college acceptances. Alas, too many college deans have come to bury Caesar.

The sports pages at this season are over-flowing with glorious reports from the base-ball spring training camps. They all say the same thing, that this is the year the Mers will make it to eighth place. This, too, is a delusion, brought on by the expense accounts delusion, brought on by the expense accounts lavished on sportswriters.

The social pages, too, are devoted to spring training, with triumphant engagement announcements heralding June weddings. The same prophets who warn of the ides of March predict, sadly, that this will be a long, hot summer for June brides who thought that the kitchen was just a handy short-cut to the back

Every cloud, however, does have a silver lining -- a little tarnished, sometimes, but containing some sterling. Once we reach the ides of March, we are a mere formight away from April Fool's Day, when most of us will

ELIZA. UNDER HIGGINS' excellent instruction, finally achieved the correct form of English pronunciation. After a joyous celebra-tion to "The Rain in Spain", Mrs. Pearce, played by Laura Whitehead, and the servants ushered Eliza off to bed singing "I Could Have Danced All Night". This small group was also well chosen, harmonizing beautifully n "Poor Protessor Higgins," as well as You Did It."

In preparation for the Embassy Ball, which was to be the test of Higgins' success and transformation of "a heartless guttersnipe" into "a lady fit to marry a king," Eliza was first introduced to upperclass society at the Ascot Race Track. The beautiful, wellfitting costumes gave evidence of the hard work of the costumes committee, and inspired applause as the Ascot chorus walked onto the stage. These costumes were only a preview of the colorful, and exquisite dresses worn at the Embassy Ball. The vibrant-hues of the chorus dresses provided an excellent background of contrast for Eliza's stunning white gown. As Eliza walked on stage an audible gasp arose from the audience at her radiant beauty. The Embassy Ball was also the scene of introduction to 'that dreadful Hungarian' Zolton Karpathy, played by Harold Shepard, His beard, moustache, and habit of rolling his r's, as well as his enthusiastic greeting of Professor Higgins drew loud applause and

The audience soon found itself on the street where Eliza lives, and learned of Freddy Eynsford- Hill's infatuation with Eliza. Tom Groceman as Freddy, sang "On the Street Where You Live" to an enraptured audience, his smooth, resplendent voice resounding in the auditorium.

All in all "My Fair Lady" provided excellent entertainment. It was well directed, and as one spectator said, "These students actilize professionals. They act so naturally, you think they must be something like the part they are playing. It seems as if they had been playing these parts for years!" Indeed the play did move quickly and smoothly, involving the audience completely in the trials and rewards of Eliza's life. This play was well worth attending and certainly the highlight of the School year.

PROFILE---Robert Ardrey

Robert F. Ardrey, associate administrator Children's Specialized Hospital, Mountainside, is in East Brunswick today, attending a committee meeting to plan the first "Rehabilitation Day" for the N.J. Division of the American Cancer Society.
"Rehabilitation" is not just a clinical phrase for Ardrey; it is almost a battle cry for crusade, a crusade that started for him in 1954 when doctors told him he had cancer of the larynx.

Then administrative manager of American Type Founders in Elizabeth, Ardrey knew what an operation for removal of the larynx, even if completely successful, would mean --- loss of his voice.
"At first I was afraid I would never speak proper training and a strong desire I would speak again." A quietly determined man, Ardrey recalls that he did "learn to speak" again three months after the operation. His wife and his son, then a junior at Lehigh University, were great morale builders, he remembers.

again. But the doctors assured me that with

'They made a pact not to do anything for me unless I asked---though they didn't hold too strictly to that during the first few weeks." Ardrey describes the method by which he learned to "speak" again as "esophageal speech." Operations for removal of the larynx, the so-called voice box, are fairly common, he

"By proper training in the use of throat and other muscles, the individual can master the technique of "esophageal speech" and be able to carry on perfectly all his normal speech functions socially and in the business world,' he says.

Proof of his own success was his return to his position at American Type Founders, a position that demanded he use his voice not only in the home office but on frequent trips to branch offices and factories spread around the country. He has logged a total of over 700,000 miles of air travel, most of it in connection with his former job.

He and his wife, the former Ethel Joy, enjoy an active social life and have done extensive travelling, by plane and motor, throughout this country, Canada and Mexico.

Profoundly grateful, not only for his recovery but for the emotional and psychological support given him by members of the Cancer Society, Ardrey pledged himself, as soon as he was well enough, to doing something to aid others afflicted with the same illness.

SEVERAL YEARS AGO, working through the Union County Chapter of the Cancer So-ciety, he founded a Speech Clinic in the Elizabeth General Hospital for people who had lost their voice boxes.

Only two of the patients who came to the Clinic during the past eight years failed to master "esophageal speech," Successful students have included people in their early 20s and a determined grandfather in his 90s, Ardrey says.

"They just need the training and the desire," he insists.

Still serving as an instructor at the Clinic, Ardrey tries whenever possible to see his pros-pective students before they undergo their operations. He visits them in Elizabeth General, St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Alexian Brothers and Overlook Hospital; he gets his message of hope across to them just by being there, just by talking to them. "Who is in a better position to convince them than 1?" he asks.

Whenever possible he tries to give the first three or four lessons to each new student so he can incorporate counselling on rehabilitation in the training. Two therapists are on the clinic's staff. Ardrey himself went to school to learn the delicate art of teaching laryngectomees to speak. He is one of only 41 qualified laryngectomized instructors in the world.

RETIRED LAST YEAR from American Type Founders, Ardrey began looking for something "to keep myself busy" even before he left the job, Seventeen days after his official re-tirement he accepted the post of associate administrator at Children's Specialized Hospital.

He confesses with a little smile that he thought it would be a "very satisfactory postretirement job ---something to keep me busy a few hours a day."

He's found it a full-time post but one he seems to enjoy. He's a very familiar figure around the hospital, moving lithely and quietly from one department to another.

His long, easy stride, he says with a twinkle in his eyes, is a heritage from his ancestors.

"They were sheep stealers in Scotland; then when they were chased out of that country they went to Ireland, to County Tyrone in Ulster, still sticking to the family profession ---sheep stealing."

His grandfather emigrated to America and Ardrey was raised in Elizabeth and Roselle Park, His name, Robert Fairchild Ardrey, (orginally spelled Ardiergh by the sheep steal-ers), is now proudly worn by his son and his oldest grandson. The younger Ardreys live in Westfield too, close enough so the groud grandparents can visit their three grandchildren quite frequently.

Ardrey earned his degree in business administration at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, His son, his only child, was born before he received his sheepskin after 11 years interrupted study at evening sessions in the state university.

"That was one sheepskin the Ardreys didn't steal," he points out with obvious relish,

He says that if no other protein source were available, it would be technologically possible to use between 15 and 20 per cent of the world's present petroleum production to furnish all the protein need for the world's inhabitants. By the year 2000 the world's population will require annually about 60 million tons of

ENJOYS PROFILES

I have always thought very highly of your "Profiles" in the Echo and, of course, enjoyed the one you did on my husband (Walter Averick, recently appointed to Planning Board).

However, your profile on Mrs. (Herbert) Seidel was outstanding. Knowing her so well, was amazed at how you captured certain of her mannerisms so accurately.

Thank you for your cooperation and especially for doing such an excellent profile. EVELYN AVERICK 18 Wyoming dr.

It is too much for us to live the perfect life. We are constantly met with challenges and with temptations.

There is a highway, de-scribed in Holy Writ in figures drawn from time. We may follow this road, in faith, and with the grace of God, and be somewhat secure in the knowledge that we shall find an open gate when we come near the Celestial city that lies beyond the river of death.

To travel this way, live each hour with a purpose. On this present day, make your way of life along the straight high-way of Christian faith and charity.

Mill's 'A-Warm Body' proves very cold turkey first act that "A Warm Body" begun to be a play at the Paper Mill Playhouse last week. Then this feeble promise failed to materialize in the second act, and, to tell the truth, even Julia Childs with her electronic ovens could hardly resuscitate a very cold turkey.

Thus it is a question as to how successfully this play enroute to New York will stand up to the Gotham critics. I'm inclined to remove my hat and hold it over my heart for this Lon Coleman script that professes to be a comedy but ends up as an opera, soap, that is. The play is about the New York expressive set that has the most interesting jobs, carefully titrates its martinis, and accepts lox and bagels as the obvious sequitur to chow mein and pizza. Everything evolves from Kate's party and Homer's somehow invasion of it.

Homer is the warm body of the play, He notes that cats often jump on your lap and use your body for warmth and comfort. He is often used by women as an escort. He is always available, submissive and continually used.

Coleman's basic premise about the lonely in New York is valid. The Formerly Marrieds and the Non-involveds are a palpable part of the population. Their sociological structure is just now being examined for the first time, Coleman knows the techniques for meeting people. He knows that after 28 or so, the "getting to know you' period is compressed and quickened. He presents his main characters and their emotional problems lucidly enough.

MISS LINDA HEIMALL, Union soprano, made her debut with the New York City Opera Company at Lincoln Center last night as Nella in "Gianni Schicchi," one of the three one-act operas which make up Puc-cini's "Il Trittico." Miss Heimall, who won the role in a contest sponsored by

Maria de Varady, teacher at Manhattan School of Music, also was the understudy for the role in "Suor Angelica," another of the operas in "Il Trittico."

410 DE LING CROSEA

THE PLAY FAILS primarily because of its extraneous plumping out, subordinate characters that do not relate to the play, and because of a subplot between a father and daughter that would not have made it with "Myrt and Marge."

The presence of Dina Merrill as the mature newspaper columnist Kate had none of the snap, crackle and pop expected from a Post Toasties heiress. Miss Merrill is considered one of the 10 best dressed women in the country and is peared in several agreeable vehicles. But whatever she was in those, she is not in this play. Her acting is angular, uncomfortable and lacks convictions. A better role, alas, with more crunch, loops and stax to it would have served her and the entire cereal industry better. Kevin McCarthy, a robust, knowing acto tried desperately hard to infuse a spark of life into a play that he knew was very tired. As an anthropologist in charge of the pygmy section at the American Museum of Natural History, he was an impostor. But as an FM, crushed by the implication of his own inadequacies, he did convey his loneliness a very positive approach to marriage, and a real credibility to his role.

He opens the second act in his underwear, and his assay into whomsy and flit has a jaunty note to it, but this is where a director must be ruthless. Doris Rich as a bibulous biddy, Anne Meacham as Homer's victous second wife, and Evelyn Russell, whose decolletage makes Elizabeth Taylor look like a Mary Petty cartoon, fill out the cast.

Robert T. Williams has created a sanitized and spare set in early neurosis. Charles Bowden directed, and Pepsi Cola products were

The third Barbra Streisand special for CBS-TV will turn back the entertainment clock to the glorious days of American vaudeville at the turn of the century. Taping has been set for April in New York and airing in the fall. Miss Streisand's production company, Ellbar, has signed Joe Layton, who staged both the first and second highly - acclaimed spe-cials, to produce the one-hour colorcast. The program aims to capture the spirft of vaudeville: the songs and slapstick, dance part format of the first two outings. It will be the third Streisand special. From the dozens of standard vaudeville acts, the show will recreate six to eight classic sequences, some including Barbra Streisand, others not. Most of the entertainment will be taped on a specially constructed theater stage, utilizing a live audience of extras appro-priately attired in period costume. Miss Streisand will also solo as headliner of the vaudeville format, singing familiar songs of the era.

Park Service previews new campgrounddesign

WASHINGTON (UPI) - An innovation in design for camping activity will be previewed by the U.S. National Park Service at the second annual Washington International Sports, Camping and Travel Show April 4 through 9.

The "Daisy" Campground is designed for two basic purposes: to provide, at least expense, full facilities such as water, sewers and electricity for trailers, pickup campers and camper coaches while also accommodating tent camping.

the Rutgers College of Arts and Sciences in used the cargo is surrounded by an explosive Newark ought to know. He and two companions, Howard Dyckoff, a student at the Brooklyn Poly-technic Institute, and Fred Wagner, a student at the Academy of Aeronautics in New York City, have built and fired hundreds of such rockets. Most of these rockets are about two or three feet long and are built in the basement of Bob Jones' home in Clark. They are generally made of aluminum, stainless steel or paper-based plastic and go up about a mile.

The main trick with a rocket, obviously, as Jones explained it, is devising a way to get it off the ground.

"An easy way to launch a craft," Jones said, "is to use a solid propellant and have the rocket made of a paper-based plastic, such as the bakelite used to make telephones about 15 years

"To get the rocket up," he explained. "you need a high pressure gas. As the rocket rises the need for all this pressure diminishes and the rocket needs to be less sturdily built. The plastic is desirable because, in combination with other combustibles, it is exhausted with the propellant and the weight of the rocket is

ANOTHER GOOD WAY to launch a rocket, Jones said, is by balloon, When a balloon is

Jersey Rose Society 1 schedules next meeting

The North Jersey Rose Society will hold its next regular meeting on Saturday, March 18 at-2 p.m. at First Methodist Church, Fullerton ave., Montclair.

which is timed to go off when the craft rises to a certain height. When the explosion occurs aluminum fragments or pellets are sent into

These fragments are called "symbolic satellites' because, as Jones put it, 'they have no real scientific value. We just want to prove we could get something into orbit."

But something decidedly more ambitious is in the works. The biggest rocket the three stu-dents have constructed to date is about 20 feet tall. It was built in the laboratories at the Academy of Aeronautics but has not yet been

"Needless to say, we hope soon to launch a payload rocket to orbit at about 200 miles up." the State University student said, "We'd like this rocket to help us in measuring radiation in space by using photocells and in studying hazards of micrometeorites, fragments of rocket and fron, to future space travel. No date has been set for this launching."

One of the reasons is the problem of what to use for fuel and accurate aiming. If the rocketeers aim is off as much as two degrees the rocket might not orbit because it would not be absolutely parallel to the earth.

Another problem is that permission is needed for each launching, most of the launchings have been at Fisher's Island in New York where the population is sparse and firing over water makes it easier to obtain permission.

And then there is the question of financing for these ambitious projects. The young space scientists are forced to depend on their own earnings and occasional donations, such as tubing, from local industries, Industry also gives them shoptime or use of their machinery for cutting metals.

SPACE AGE STUDENT -- Robert W. Jones, a junior physics major at the Rutgers College of Arts and Sciences in Newark, has built hundreds of rockets in the basement of his home in Clark and has fired them as much as a mile high. Now, working with two students from New York City, he is planning to launch a payload rocket to orbit at about 200 miles up.

Peace Corps tests for area placement set for next week

Union and Essex County residents have been invited to take the Peace Corps placement test at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, March 18, at the main post office in Newark,

According to a statement this week, the Peace Corps uses the placement test to determine how applicants can best serve overseas. The test measures general aptitude and the ability to learn a language, it does not measure education or achievement. If results show a limited language learning aptitude, the Corps will place the applicant in an English speaking country. The test requires no preparation, and is non-competitive.

According to the Peace Corps statement, the application form, not the placement test, is the most important factor in selection of volunteers. Persons taking the placement test must have previously filled out an application form, and present it to the tester at the time of the test. Application forms are available at local post offices. The placement test takes approximately 90 minutes.

Dear Amy: I am 22 years old and happily married. My problem is my father-in-law who is 45 years old. This man has a little more feeling toward me than just what our relationship calls for ... and he has told me sol

I don't dare be alone with him for fear he might get fresh with me. He has made passes more than once, and I've told my husband and mother-in-law all about him.

Dear Young Stuff:

Your father-in-law is a revolting devil. 'Words' won't change him, but I wager a good sharp hat pin will. Visit as seldom as necessary, stay with the crowd, but be armed and ready to go into action when he does.

Dear Amy:

This friend of mine has been telling me about a little 6 year old girl who lives next door to her, and that her parents treat her like dirt. They keep her locked up in a room which contains no bed. So she has to sleep on the floor with straw, rags, etc. The police have been contacted but will not do anything.

Could you help so we could find a way to get her out of that house. My friend also told me that when the little thing comes over, she smells so terrible because she goes to the bathroom in that room. too.

A couple of times she sneaked out of there and came next door and my friend fed her because she was starved.

Dear Amy:

I have been going with a fellow for 41/2 years. This past year he went to Viet Nam and we wrote the whole year he was gone. He has been sending me all kinds of gifts for the "future" (as my mother puts it), but I'm not sure if I want a future with him. know it's terrible to think this way, but I'm not positive about getting married.

Dear J.M.:

Why go with a fellow for 4 1/2 years if you don't want a future with him? Until you make up your mind, it would be unkind to keep the gifts. Send them back and be honest with the guy. If his absence hasn't made your heart grow fonder, then your heart is your heart gav... waiting for another.

Dear Amy:

I'm asking your advice because I never see my family to ask them. My husband and I have been married four years and all this time we have lived near his family. The last time I saw any of my family was three years ago. My husband's family is not very friendly toward me. When I go over there, I feel like I'm in the way because they make me feel this way. I have asked my husband to move. He uses the excuse we have too many bills, but I know we don't have that many.
