Teens can mean 3 Ds--drugs, disappearance, destruction

EDUCATIONAL COMPLEX--This eagle's-eye-view shows the Deerfield School at right and the Our Lady of Lourdes Church and School, left, providing a central location for much of Mountainside's educational activity. The Borough Council is considering plans for a road to link the two school parking lots, so that school buses can avoid rush hour traffic on Central avenue, lower left. (Echo photo by Bob Baxter)

2 groups working to find alternatives

By JACK PIANNF
Deep summer sets in tomorrow, July 4. There will be picnics and fireworks followed by two months of a relaxed tempo.
But for at least nine persons here this year, the onset of deep summer means there are only 50 days until fall--the beginning of another school year in which the use of narcotics by teenagers in Mountainside could soar, as could the number of runaways and the incidents of vandalism.
This is the task to which these persons are addressing themselves: To confront the ferment among youth in Mountainside which, according to police here, manifests itself in these three problem areas, drugs, disappearance and destruction.
The nine are members of two committees, one old and one new.
THE FIRST, the older one, is a three-man "investigative" committee composed of members of the Recreation Commission. They are Edward Moore and board president William Ditzell, both of Stony Brook lane, and Edward Ghidlo of Woodland avenue.
The second and newest committee has six members and is tentatively named the Mountainside Advice Committee on Youth. It was formed recently by Councilman Robert Ruggiero, who is also borough police commissioner, at the request of Mayor Frederick Wilhelms Jr. and the Borough Council.
The committee chairman is James Keating of Ridge drive. The other members are the Rev. Raymond Aumack of Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Mrs. William Gutman of Short drive, Harold Nelson of Ridge drive, Tom Spina of Creek Bed road and Milton Faith, a professional worker with the Youth and Family Counseling Service in Westfield, which is a member organization of the Mountainside Community Fund.
There will probably be nothing concrete coming out of these two groups this summer, although the Recreation Commission came close to the experimental opening of parts of Echobrook School six evenings a week as a youth-requested, youth-run meeting place.
The lack of money, about $3,600, complicated by a subsequent drop in interest by the group of teenagers with which the committee had been dealing, stopped the project.
The Mountainside Advice Committee on Youth, nicknamed MACY by Councilman Ruggiero at the last meeting of the Borough Council, is still in a raw, formative stage. Only two organizational meetings have been held. The third is scheduled for Monday, July 14.
"IT'S STILL A BIT premature to comment on the committee," MACY chairman Keating said. "We'll assist the mayor and council on youth guidance, but our role is still loosely defined. We don't know yet what we want to do, but there are three areas in which we are definitely interested--vandalism, runaways and the dope problem."
And of the three, according to Keating, the matter of narcotics will get top priority.
The police are cooperating with the committee and will make available case histories of registered addicts from Mountainside so committee members can "get the feel of what could be done to help other kids... to prevent the social manifestations" which cause drug use.
Keating emphasized that under no circumstances will the names of those persons on whom the case histories have been compiled or the names of their families be released to the committee members. He made it clear that they would remain strictly anonymous.
While MACY is still "goal setting," the apparent second area of concern is runaways, who according to the police, Keating said, are reported three or four times a month.
He said that these are not simply cases of overnight disappearances where a youngster goes to his friend's house to sleep, but incidents in which the juvenile is missing more than 48 hours.
"WE DON'T KNOW of anyone disappearing in a hippie community yet," Keating said. "It's more like when we were kids and longed to hop a freight train, only these days they get their hands on their father's check book and take a jet plane."
Keating said that MACY may also look into the possibility of a meeting place for borough teenagers, but warned that there is an element of controversy here. "Some people think that they (the youngsters) should be home studying at night," Keating said.
However, the youth meeting place, as a real, physical fact, could be more than just a place for students to meet and socialize. It could be the point around which parents and children rally and become allies instead of adversaries.
The frustrations of setting up something which seems so simple are disheartening, though, even for the most effervescent teenagers and sympathetic adults, as is borne out in the tale of the rise and demise of the Recreation Commission's summer evening program at Echobrook School.
ABOUT 50 STUDENTS jammed Borough Hall for the April meeting of the Recreation Commission, petitioning for a place where they could meet in the evenings.
It was a noisy gathering, and the board members asked the teenagers to form a representative committee which would then come forward with their requests. The youths formed the committee that night and a meeting was set up one week later, at the beginning of May, between the board and the committee.
The meeting was held, and the board agreed that there should be a meeting place.
The students demanded that they run the meeting place themselves. The board agreed, but insisted there be adult chaperones present. The students debated the point, but then reached a compromise with the board--the chaperones would be adults but the students themselves would pick the chaperones. Older brothers and sisters were mentioned prominently as chaperone choices.
A letter was subsequently sent to the Board of Education asking for permission to use the gym, parking lot and men's and women's rest rooms at Echobrook school from June 16 to Aug. 30 from 7 to 11 every evening but Sundays.
The request was approved. The Board of Education agreed to let the Recreation Commission use the Echobrook facilities at a rate of $7.06 an hour (custodian, etc.) or for $1,863.84 for the summer, based on 264 operating hours. The Recreation Commission then estimated that the total cost of the program would be $3,600, the additional money going for the costs of paying the chaperones.
As one member of the board said, "You can count on plenty of volunteers at the beginning" to act as chaperones; but in the end "you have to buy help."
Another meeting was held between the Recreation Commission and the youth committee. The youngsters asked why the town couldn't pay the fee. The board explained that no money had been earmarked in the budget for the program. It was decided that a borough-wide fund raising campaign similar to the annual Little League drive be held. The meeting broke up and the youth committee--composed of six or seven students--returned to report to their peers.
ANOTHER MEETING was called by the Recreation Commission.
This time, only two teenagers showed up, and they were disheartened. The board members asked them to accelerate their promotion of the fund drive and added that the adults would be receptive to any other ideas the teenagers in town had. "And that's how it stands," a spokesman for the board said. "The kids haven't come back to us to tell us what they want."
Meanwhile, June 16 slipped by unnoticed. "You know," the spokesman said, "a lot of kids are just like their parents; they want to enjoy but not to work."

Interchange foes meet Wednesday

The Committee to Preserve Mountainside will meet Wednesday evening at the Beechwood School.
The committee, which is in its formative stages, seeks an alternative to the state's plan for a New Providence road overpass across Rt. 22 and a cloverleaf interchange at the intersection.
At the meeting, residents will have the opportunity of meeting Ed Kuebler of Deer Path who, at the last session of the group June 24, was elected general chairman. Kuebler, an attorney, was a member of the original committee created by Mayor Frederick Wilhelms Jr. to investigate the State Department of Transportation's plans for the interchange and for widening the highway in the borough.

Progress report by Hanigan cites 'separation' experiment

A progress report on the local experiment of separating boys and girls in the lower elementary grades was issued this week by Dr. Levin B. Hanigan, Mountainside superintendent of schools. The report, part of his final comment on the year, was made in his June bulletin to parents.
Hanigan declared: "As we approach the end of the 1968-69 school year, we look back and say that it has generally been a very satisfactory one. The Middle School opened in September with some minor inconveniences, but they rapidly disappeared. Then, the building provided badly needed space for children in grades six, seven and eight.
"The big problem with that part of the school system has been the heavily loaded sixth and seventh grades. Additional staff members have been hired to ease the problem somewhat.
"The separation of boys and girls in the first grade at Deerfield has provided information that confirms our knowledge about the differences in learning, growth, and maturation of boys and girls. For the slower and faster boys, the separation proved to be highly beneficial, but the average boys performed about as well as they would have in a mixed class.
"In looking at this situation, one must remember that we generally have few problems with girls in terms of school progress. It's the boys that generally have the problems, because schools have developed standards that best apply to girls. The continued separation of boys and girls above the first grade level does not seem to be possible, because of the unavailability of male teachers who would willingly accept this teaching responsibility. We will, however, have the first grade boys and girls separated at Deerfield Elementary School for 1969-70.
"ANOTHER HIGHLIGHT of the year was Mrs. Aletta Bork's teacher mini-grant award from the state ($1,000 for special supplies and equipment) for her project on individualized instruction.
"Throughout the school system as a whole, I believe the teaching staff has done a good job. 1969-70 will probably see more teacher proposals for improving the educational program, and I'm looking forward with pleasant anticipation."

Dotto warns public of radiation danger in some color TV

Charles F. Dotto, health officer for Mountainside, has issued a statement in response to inquiries concerning X-radiation from color television sets, recommending that the advice given by the Bureau of Radiological Health in the Consumer Protection and Environmental Health Service of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare be followed.
That is:
1. Have sets serviced only by competent personnel.
2. Have viewers sit no closer than 6 to 10 feet from the receiver and also avoid exposure to the sides and rear of the set when it is operating.
Servicing of the set should include a check for and replacement of defective parts and improper shielding and an adjustment of the high voltage to meet manufacturer's specifications. Owners were advised to call the district office or factory service listing for the manufacturer of their sets in the yellow pages of their telephone directory to ask for the name of a serviceman or company competent to do this job.
Most color television sets in good repair do not give off measurable radiation, Dotto said. However, to assure maximum protection and to minimize the X-radiation potential of color television, set owners should follow the federal recommendations, he added.

Regional schools tailoring courses to challenge disadvantaged students

Suburbia has its disadvantaged, the academically disadvantaged. In many cases they are overlooked or channeled into a program that fails to meet their needs and has little or no relevance for them.

Regional High School District has identified these youngsters and is doing something for them, according to David Carl, social studies teacher and Title I coordinator for the district.

overlooked. "Stress is placed on academic subjects which attempt to prepare the student for college and the slow learner, or academically disadvantaged, is frequently given a dilute form of the academic program, the result is a lack of motivation which many times leads to school dropouts," Carl said.

A PROJECT LEARNING PLAN of teachers and reading and learning disabilities specialists has been mobilized under a Title I grant from the state to provide relevant materials and procedures for helping these students. Carl estimated that about 8 to 10 percent of the district's student population is in the academically disadvantaged category.

The planning team found, Carl said, that the most frequent characteristics associated with the suburban disadvantaged were: Three or more years below grade level in reading; language art skills below expectations, and a "poor self-image" and a "poor opinion of self."

"When we started, the teachers realized they must attempt to motivate the apathetic and alienated student while at the same time try to help in the development of better attitudes and skills necessary for school achievement," Carl said.

Working in the areas of the social studies and English curriculum, an in-service workshop has developed what is considered a flexible, relevant course of study for the students.

Teacher training and curriculum writing projects started in 1967. Other sessions were held in 1968 and this past spring. They have proved so successful that another workshop will be held this summer.

CARE NOTED THAT 54 teachers in the Regional District are currently using the workshop-developed materials. Also taking advantage of the district's work are high schools in other parts of New Jersey, New York and Connecticut.

Carl said the social studies and English curriculum attempts to "promote involvement by stressing problems, issues and decisions which the student faces."

The approach uses games, puzzles, role playing, creative arts and dramatic projects, pull taking and community activities. Each lesson, Carl said, is directed to individualized, class or group work. He also noted that reading and problem solving activities have been adjusted to reading and grade level ability.

Each area of study includes a teacher's guide stating skill and instructional objectives. The guide also lists suggested questions and activities, films, filmstrips, records and tapes that can be used with a particular area of study.

Carl said the approach in helping the slow learner in the suburbs is different from that used in the city.

"Although the slow learners in the suburbs may be below grade level in achievement they are not normally culturally disadvantaged. Thus, materials must be relevant to meet the needs of these students in suburbia."

CHILD PATIENTS MAKE GILTS - Miss Belle Watson, director of recreational therapy at Children's Specialized Hospital, Mountaineer, studies a display of items made by the hospital's young handicapped patients during their arts and crafts periods. Many of the items made are later sent by the children (all of whom are long-term rehabilitation patients) to their parents as gifts.

'Play is therapy,' says aide at local children's hospital

"Play is therapy." That is the philosophy of Belle Watson, director of recreational therapy at Children's Specialized Hospital in Mountaineer.

Miss Watson, "English by birth, American by choice," came to Children's Hospital six years ago as a volunteer. It was love at first sight — she for the children and the hospital for Belle.

Today, Miss Watson oversees a recreational therapy program that runs the gamut from basketball and basketball to wood carving, piano playing and typing.

"One can hardly be immune to the sight of children on stretchers or in braces playing ball, or perhaps a youngster in a body cast using her elbow on the pedals to play a piano. But the facilities at Children's Specialized are geared to the handicapped child. When the weather permits, the children play in a large area outside the hospital. Other times, the youngsters play indoors in the recreational therapy room, or in the play school for the younger or brain-damaged children.

THEN, OF COURSE, there is the greenhouse.

"We're proud of that," said Miss Watson. The greenhouse was opened last December with $6,000 raised by the horticultural therapy program of the New Jersey Division of the Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, including the Morristown, Short Hills, and Summit chapters, in association with some 30 branches of the Federated Garden Clubs of North Jersey. "We never could have done it without the help of the volunteers," she said.

"The volunteers are a wonderful group," said Miss Watson. "Most of them are local residents who are proficient in various handicrafts and have a good time helping the children enjoy themselves."

"We try to reach the children through play, and this therapy program is tailored to meet the needs of each individual child. We hope that when they leave here, every child will leave with at least one thing that he can do well, if not on some future job, then for his own personal enjoyment."

anticipation to the new school year. "The most disheartening and discouraging part of the 1968-69 school year has been the vandalism and senseless destruction of school facilities at the Deerfield site and in the new Middle School wing. Some answer to this problem must be found.

"A closing thought: The present world is full of fear, confusion, and tension. To a degree man's world has always been such, but many factors make current life more threatening and disturbing than ever before. We are suggesting that if we would fulfill our privileges and responsibilities well, we must develop a body of principles by which we live in order that peace, strength, peace and personal security may aid us in the great struggle to bring order, logic, reason, compassion, justice and freedom into all areas of this great country and the world. (Adapted from the Croft Teachers Letter, May 15, 1969.)"

Teen plans

July 4 is here and will soon be gone. "These kids don't have a penny in their jeans and we ask them to raise more than $3,500. No wonder they're disheartened."

It's now deep summer and for nine persons there are only 59 days until fall. "You know, it won't be long before these kids are going off to war," the spokesman for the Recreation Commission said.

Rescue Squad, mayor offer pleas

Appeals to Mountaineer residents to drive safely during the summer months and for more volunteers for the Rescue Squad were made at the recent meeting of Borough Council.

Mayor Frederick Wilhelmus Jr. reminded residents school was closing and children would be out of doors all day long. He said that "many of the traffic summonses issued in Mountaineer are to residents of our own community."

Councilman Fred Swingle made a plea for more Rescue Squad members. "The Rescue Squad runs short of members especially during the summer months," Swingle said, "and the squad is forced to double up on its members' schedules in order to cover the borough."

Miss Stonka wins associate degree

Computer course to be given by Gov. Livingston Regional

A course in computer programming will be offered in September to students at the Gov. Livingston Regional High School, Berkeley Heights, it was announced this week by Dr. Warren M. Davis, superintendent of schools. Joseph Sott, the Regional District's mathematics coordinator, said the high school will take part in a cooperative program with Drew University in Madison, through a grant to the university from the National Science Foundation. Students will have access to an IBM 1130 computer at Drew, at no cost to the Regional District.

Council authorizes salary increases for local employes

An ordinance boosting the salaries of all municipal employes other than members of the Police Department or persons employed by the Board of Education was passed on final reading by Borough Council at its recent monthly meeting.

The ordinance also included a new long-term schedule.

Also adopted on final reading was an ordinance to authorize the construction of two tennis courts and a volleyball court and to appropriate $17,000 for the project.

Contracts for the tennis courts were then let to the low bidders, D&L Construction Co., $8,708 for the paving, and Consolidated Steel and Aluminum Fence Co., $7,446 for fencing.

An ordinance to accept a sewer extension constructed by a group of home owners in Deer Path was also passed.

Three other ordinances were introduced. Public hearings on them will be at the July 15 meeting of the Borough Council.

On the recommendation of the local Traffic Safety Advisory Committee, an ordinance was introduced to construct a road between the Deerfield School and Our Lady of Lourdes School parking lots.

Mayor Frederick Wilhelms Jr. explained that the road would be for the benefit of school buses which would not have to reenter Central Avenue as they discharge passengers at the two schools.

Mayor Wilhelms added that there will also be a certain amount of traffic repaving in the area this fall to relieve congestion.

Another ordinance was introduced to authorize the construction of a $25,000 storm sewer project on the south side of Charles street.

An ordinance was given first reading to authorize the construction of concrete curbstone along a portion of the west side of Springfield Avenue. The road is to be widened by the county and the curbing was requested before the project can get under way.

In other business at the monthly meeting, it was announced that construction on the second phase of the Nemehegan Storm Sewer Project has gotten under way South of Timberline road.

It was also announced that in May, 14 building permits were issued by the office of the building inspector: four for new residences, seven for residential additions, two for swimming pools and one for an industrial construction start.

Regional schools serve up a new director of cafeterias

Mrs. E. Allen Nesbitt will now be feeding some of the children of parents she's been serving at the Bell Telephone Laboratories.

Mrs. Nesbitt has been appointed cafeteria director in the Union County Regional High School District No. 1, replacing Miss Margaret Mauldin, who is retiring after 32 years in the job.

The Berkeley Heights resident has been restaurant supervisor at the Bell Laboratories in Murray Hill for the past 10 years. Mrs. Nesbitt noted that one of her customers at the Laboratories was Dr. Fred B. Hagedorn, a Bell employe and also a member of the Regional Board of Education.

Another patron was her husband, a research physicist.

"The meals (about 3,500 a day) were more elaborate at Bell," Mrs. Nesbitt said. "But in general, feeding is feeding, no matter what the age group is."

A graduate of the College of St. Elizabeth in Convent Station with a BS in home economics, Mrs. Nesbitt has spent her entire career in the food field. After college, she was a home representative for a Swedish-cooking stove firm. Then came a job as a buyer with the ASP before joining the Nedicks chain in merchandising and planning.

Besides menu planning and the supervision of some 55 full-time and part-time employes, she will coordinate food purchasing and equipment maintenance.

The Nesbitts have two sons, both graduates of high schools in the regional district, the son, Raymond, is a chemist at Allied Chemical Corporation in Morris Township, and Lynn is employed with the Carolina Mirror Company in Wilkesboro, N.C.

Parcel Post limits to go up in July

The parcel post weight limit will be raised to 40 pounds for shipments between first-class post offices after July 1, Acting Postmaster Elsie Shimonis of Westfield announced this week.

The maximum parcel post weight limit will be increased from 30 pounds on shipments between the larger post offices in the third through eighth parcel post zones (more than 150 miles). On packages sent between all first-class offices in parcel post zones one and two, the ceiling has been 40 pounds. The maximum size of packages sent between all first-class offices remains 72 inches in combined length and girth.

The size limit on parcels sent to or from smaller offices, rural or star routes, military post offices, and all Alaskan and Hawaiian post offices stays at 70 pounds, with a combined length and girth of 100 inches, Acting Postmaster Shimonis added.

Public Law 89-593, enacted Sept. 20, 1966, authorized the postal service to increase weight and size limits on shipments between larger cities. On July 1 of 1970 and 1971, the length and girth limits are scheduled to rise to 78 and 84 inches, respectively, on shipments between first-class post offices.

Cooking class has a recipe for helpfulness...

The physically handicapped housewife confined to a wheelchair has received a helping hand from a home economics class at David Brearley Regional High School in Kenilworth, a school that's designed to care for the needs of physically handicapped students in the regional district.

What started off as a class project to enter a menu planning contest ultimately expanded into the areas of developing recipes that could easily be prepared by someone in a wheelchair, and the planning of an efficient kitchen area for the physically handicapped.

"Students at this school are more aware of the needs of the physically handicapped and they thought it would be a good idea to gear the class project to their needs," Mrs. Joseph Falkovich, home economics teacher, said.

In order to make the work more meaningful, students took turns moving around the school's fully equipped kitchen in a wheelchair.

"WE WERE BELIEVED ABLE to determine what special facilities were needed," Mrs. Falkovich noted. "It is our intent to prepare meals while confined to the wheelchair. They also developed menus that could be prepared with small appliances, thereby cutting down use of the fire and oven, and the purpose was to reduce motion and effort as far as possible."

Some of the things the students found that kitchen items should be placed in cabinets below the counter. Also, the doors should be removed for easier access and the stove should be by a housewife in a wheelchair.

They also felt that particular amount should be paid to the size and height of the kitchen table. Depending on the size of the kitchen, the table should be small enough so that a housewife can easily move around it, and if possible, so she can lower the height of the table," Mrs. Falkovich said.

In addition, only the front burners of the stove were used, to eliminate a fire hazard. The class entry in the menu contest, "Feeding for the Handicapped," won their first prize in New Jersey. The competition was sponsored by Fetschmann's Yeast.

Teachers, pupils favor new history sequence

An examination of American values -- a portion of the revised American history curriculum in the Union County Regional High School District -- has received favorable reaction from both teachers and students this year.

Developed last summer at a Board of Education-sponsored workshop, the history course titles have been changed to American Studies I and II, with the four major semester-units of study centering around the development of political institutions, labor, foreign policy and economics.

The unit on "An Examination of American Values" represents one-half of the American Studies I program and one-quarter of the entire course, according to Pauline Keith, social studies coordinator.

"The reaction has been very favorable," Mrs. Keith said. "The classes are dealing with subjects appropriate in the students' minds."

A response to Mrs. Keith, there has been an attempt to arrange the various factors and to have different units of study.

IN AN OFFICE prepared for the official publication of the New Jersey Council for the Social Studies, August W. Castellano, co-director of the program, said:

Teachers evaluate history courses at summer workshop

The second American history summer workshop for social studies teachers in the Union County Regional High School District I served Monday and will continue to Aug. 1, it was announced this week.

Under the direction of Pauline Keith, social studies coordinator, the six-week session is being held at the David Brearley High School in Kenilworth.

The workshop will evaluate the present American history curriculum and develop a resource guide on American diplomacy. Teachers will also evaluate the study of American values which was incorporated into the revised history program this year, Mrs. Keith said.

The group will also meet with other teachers taking part in a Little I workshop to discuss many other subjects, how their materials can be better adapted to teaching the slow learner. Slides and tapes will also be prepared.

Teachers taking part in the workshop are: Russell Clarke and Mrs. Iris Cooley, David Brearley Regional, Kenilworth; Richard Cook, Dennis Loy and August Geibelhaus, Jonathan Dayton Regional, Springfield, and Mrs. Carol Forsman, Kenneth Meeks and Elaine Campana, Gov. Livingston Regional, Berkeley Heights.

studies teacher at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield, said the course of study was developed to "enable the student to be more understanding of other peoples' values and be able to deal more effectively with value conflicts affecting him."

He pointed out that the instructional material has been designed to present students "with concrete raw materials of human experience."

The three major areas within the semester work on values, during the sophomore year, include the study of the conflicts that exist between rural and urban life in this county, the factors determining the assimilation of American sub-cultures or minority groups, and dissent and protest in a free society.

The contributions of immigrants, the historical factors contributing to the non-assimilation of the Negro in America, along with an evaluation of the civil rights movement today, are all part of study of values.

SEVERAL HUNDRED additional materials were also made available this year. Three art sections, including one each on colonial architecture and furniture, and one on modern art, are being used by the teacher in design, rural and urban life. Also, folk and popular music were used to add in the presentation of life as it existed in this county in the past.

The effectiveness of the revised curriculum will be the subject of another workshop this summer, under the direction of Mrs. Keith. Social studies teachers throughout the Regional District will also continue to develop their own instructional material.

One instructional firm which has offered to publish the teacher's material in paperback form said in a letter to Mrs. Keith:

"You and your committee are to be congratulated on the program you are developing. The reading and resource material for the unit on American values reflect thorough research based on sound outlines."

Land for $19 an acre Just one catch: sales date

One hundred and fifty-eight acres of land in Springfield was sold for a little less than $3,000—more than 200 years ago.

That was a lot of money back in pre-Revolutionary War days, but just a fraction of what the land is worth today.

The sum, "Two Hundred and Seventy-Three Pounds Current Money of New Jersey at eight shillings the ounce," is contained in a combined deed, mortgage and foreclosure that has been lent to the Union County Regional High School, Board of Education by Don Maxwell Sr., a Mountside antique dealer.

The 1,600-word original parchment, elaborately written in the hand and the peculiar spelling of the period, was sold to Maxwell by Stanley Jacobus, a former longtime resident of Springfield.

"I spotted it in his garage and I thought it would be a shame to let it go to waste, so I bought it," Maxwell said.

Boundary lines in those days were marked by trees, fences, brooks and sundry other landmarks, so local historians, and even engineers, find it difficult to determine exactly where the 158 acres are.

Back in 1768 when the document was written, Springfield as such was part of Elizabethtown, which took up what is now Union County and part of Essex County. This area contained nothing more than a cluster of farms and "cabins nestled in the foothills of the Watchung Mountains," and Springfield, which wasn't incorporated until 1793, was spread over what is now parts of Summit, South Orange, Maplewood, Livingston and New Providence.

ACCORDING TO THE document, which will be displayed at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield, the land in question took in "All that Certain Tract or Parcel of Land Scituate lying and being at Springfield within the Borough Aforesaid Adjoining the Road that leads from Springfield to Westfield."

Historians, backed up by the few maps of the area that are still available, conclude that the road referred to is now Mountain avenue, one of the only roads leading to Westfield in those days.

The eastern boundary of the acreage is directly across from the Jonathan Dayton school on Mountain avenue. Interestingly enough, Dr. Jonathan I. Dayton, a cousin of the man for whom the school is named after, is listed as one of the principals in the document.

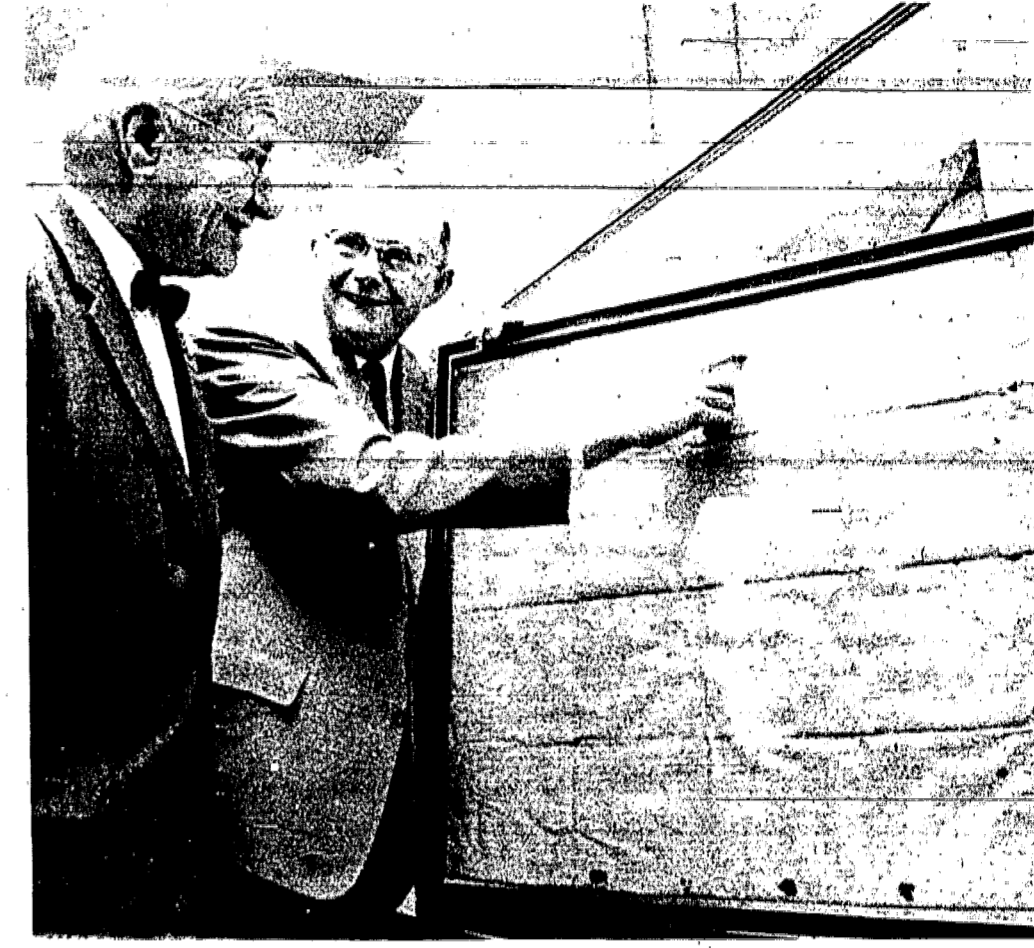

According to Phoebe Briggs, who is currently compiling a new history of Springfield, Dr. Dayton once lived in the Cannon Ball House, which still stands and is the township historical museum.

Other clues to where the land was come from its description. The land begins "at the Southeast Corner of Simeon Bryant's land on the North West side of the aforesaid road thence North seventy-seven degrees West six Chain to a Brook thence along said Brook and along Simeon Bryant's Line to a Bitternut Sapling standing by the side of said Brook at the end of a stone fence... to a white oak tree standing at the top of the Mountain (obviously referring to the Watchung Mountains)... to a Walnuts Sapling..."

Simeon Bryant was a son of Cornelius Bryant, who in 1717, came to the Springfield area from Hackensack and was the first white settler of this region. The Bryants owned much of the land in the northwest portion of Springfield, and part of Summit.

THE BRYANT NAME lingers on today, with Bryant's Pond, which was part of the original homestead, in Union County Park Commission land on the border of Summit and Springfield, and Bryant's Tavern, which still stands in Summit.

This information leads historians to con-

Tips for Today's Homemaker

From Anne L. Sheelon, County Home Economist

When it's your turn to bring baked beans to a summer picnic, add to their attractiveness with bacon curls.

Clever and easy to fix, bacon curls will add flavor as well as that special touch to this popular picnic dish.

To make the curls, fry the bacon in a skillet, oven or broiler, whichever you prefer. When the bacon is cooked but not crisp, remove it from the pan and roll each strip around the tines of a fork. Drain on absorbent paper. Place on top of the baked beans just before serving.

Following are two recipes for baked beans. The first uses the canned product, which is already prepared, and the second is the home-made old fashioned variety.

BAKED BEANS IN A HURRY
Yield: 4 to 6 servings

1/2 pound sliced bacon
2 cans (1 pound each) baked beans
3 tablespoons maple syrup
1 teaspoon minced dried onion
1 teaspoon prepared mustard

Combine beans, maple syrup, onion, and mustard in a 1-1/2 quart deep casserole. Bake uncovered in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 30 minutes. Top with bacon curls.

OLD FASHIONED BAKED BEANS
Yield: 10 to 12 servings

1-pound navy beans
1/2 pound salt pork
3 tablespoons brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
1/3 cup molasses
2 onions, cut in half

Wash and soak beans overnight in cold water to cover. Drain, place in saucepan, cover with water, and simmer 1-1/2 to 2 hours or until skins burst. Blend in sugar, salt, mustard, and molasses. Scrape pork rind and cut pork into 2 inch pieces. Crime up by 10 percent in early '69, FBI says

According to figures made available through the FBI's Uniform Crime Reports and released by Attorney General John N. Mitchell, serious crime in the United States continued its upward trend recording a 10 percent rise nationally for the first three months of 1969 compared to the same period in 1968.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover noted that each crime classification used in the national crime index showed increases. Crimes of violence as a group recorded a 15 percent increase with murder up seven percent, forcible rape 12 percent, aggravated assault eight percent, and robbery 22 percent. Property crimes as a group climbed nine percent with burglary up four percent, larceny $50 and over in value 17 percent, and auto theft 11 percent.

According to the FBI director, the large cities with over 100,000 inhabitants experienced an average increase of 10 percent, suburban areas 11 percent, and rural areas 7 percent. When viewed by geographic regions, the Northeastern States reported a 12 percent rise, the North Central States were up 10 percent. The Southern and Western States each registered a 9 percent increase.

The FBI director called particular attention to the continued sharp increases in the crimes of violence. He pointed out the sharp increases in robbery, which continues to increase at a more rapid pace than the other crime index offense. Nationwide, according to Hoover, armed robbery where any weapon was used rose 27 percent and aggravated assault with a firearm increased 10 percent during the first quarter of 1969 over the same period in 1968.

Allamuchy Park gets recreation plan

A natural green belt buffer zone checks the spread of the megalopolis into northwestern New Jersey. It is Allamuchy Mountain State Park, a 22 square mile, part rural-part wilderness tract spreading over the region where the corners of Morris, Sussex and Warren counties converge.

Because of its nature as a green belt barrier between the westward spreading metropolitan area and the relatively open lands to the west, Allamuchy Mountain State Park will in the near future become one of the most popular outdoor recreation areas available to the people of New Jersey.

A comprehensive plan for opening the recreational potential of the Allamuchy area to New Jerseyans is detailed in a program for recreational development released by Robert A. Roe, New Jersey Commissioner of Conservation and Economic Development.

The boundaries of the 15,000-acre park would encompass Allamuchy Mountain, Schooley's Mountain, and the Musconetcong River Valley. The existing 288-acre Stephen's State Park and the 700-acre Cranberry State Park are included in the park boundaries.

THE HEART OF THE PARK is the 1,650-acre Hackettstown Reservoir, which will also be used for water recreation sports activities. Allamuchy Mountain State Park is the major watershed area of the Hackettstown Reservoir.

The Hackettstown Reservoir, initially proposed in 1930 to meet future regional water needs in the Musconetcong River Basin, will be the central feature of the park and will provide enormous potential for recreational use. When constructed, scheduled between 1975 and 1985, the reservoir will be six miles long and have a 20-mile shore line punctuated by an 85-foot high dam which will become a park landmark.

Interstate Route 80, a major east-west highway now under construction, is expected to be completed through the park site within the next few years. It will bisect the park and bring the population of Northern New Jersey within easy driving distance of the park's doorstep. Route 206, the region's main north-south highway, is at the eastern border of the park site.

COMMISSIONER ROE'S PLAN recommends the completion of Allamuchy Mountain State Park in seven development stages. It is estimated to cost approximately $20 million in public and private funds. He said the time schedule would depend upon the availability of funds, construction of Interstate 80, land acquisition programs, and the construction of the Hackettstown Reservoir.

Affected by the reservoir would be Waterloo, a restored village which dates back to 1760. The village originally grew around a forge which produced cannonballs during the Revolutionary War. Years later, as a stop on the Morris Canal, it became an important social and political center in the area.

When the reservoir is built, Waterloo will be relocated to another spot in the park adjacent to the canal and near an interchange of Route 80.

The comprehensive plan for the park encompasses three main districts — Musconetcong Valley, Schooley's Mountain and Allamuchy Mountain — and development of focal centers within the districts.

Extensive facilities are proposed for sight-seeing, swimming, boating, picnicking, skiing, golfing, camping, hiking, horseback riding, conservation, education, wildlife management and the enjoyment of nature.

A BUILDING COMPLEX, comprised of a restaurant, observation tower, exhibit and information center and park administrative headquarters are proposed near the dam.

Several centers within the park — a ski area, a cultural center and a golf course — will be developed with private funds. A Center for Performing and Cultural Arts will be located within the Schooley's Mountain district and will include a 3,000-seat recital hall, music school and outdoor theater with parking for 1,000 cars. Overlooking the reservoir, the site offers a sweeping view up and down the valley.

The proposed Allamuchy Mountain Ski Center is envisioned on the northwestern slopes of Allamuchy Mountain. Slope development will include a number of lifts and a variety of trails for beginning, intermediate and expert skiers. A main lodge, restaurant and full range of services and facilities will occupy the base area.

An 18-hole golf course, a nine-hole pitch and putt course, practice greens, tennis courts and a clubhouse are also slated for private development.

Stephen's State Park and Cranberry State Park, now at opposite ends of the proposed Allamuchy Mountain State Park site, will also be developed according to guidelines in the plan.

A TALE OF TEN CITIES
The other day I overheard someone ask, "Do we say 'Russia' anymore as a synonym for the 'USSR'?"

The answer seems to be that people generally tend to use it that way, but it is not truly correct.

As we came to understand it, in the Union of the Soviet Socialist Republics today there are 15 republics and one of these is called the Federation of Russia. It is much the same as in the United States there are 50 states and one is Texas. This is an over-simplification, for the republics vary in status and power, etc., but there are 15 of them and the biggest and most powerful of them is the stuck-up Federation of Russia.

Even Irkutsk and Vladivostok thousands of miles into "Siberia" are part of it, and Moscow, the capital, is also the capital of the entire USSR, thus making the Federation of Russia pretty much the big cheese in the USSR, and thus perhaps confusing the issue.

The well-known remoteness called Siberia is just an area in the USSR and no one seems to know just where it starts or where it ends, but it is off there somewhere floating around, getting odd names here and there, and despite its formidable reputation of being colder than a deep freeze, during the summer a great portion of it is hotter than Hades.

The 14 other republics, according to our interesting guide, are Estonia, Lithuania, Latvia, Armenia, Ukraine, Moldavia, Byelorussia, Georgia, Uzbekistan, Kazakhstan, Turkmenistan, Azerbaijan, Kirghizia, and Tajikistan. "East-Territory" or something like that. They are not sure of the name yet.

In the journey of the Newspaper Study Mission group we touched down knowingly upon four of these republics, including Estonia, the Federation of Russia, Uzbekistan and Kazakhstan, and then whatever else we were in when we were in Bratsk, Lake Baikal, Khabarovsk and Nakhodka.

The people themselves are so confused about borders and places and names, and maps are such a rarity, that half the time even our know-it-all Russian In-Tourist guide didn't know where we were. Note I said "Russian," and she was.

ANYHOW, WE VISITED TEN CITIES. We knew them when we were in them. In order of visitation they were Tallinn in Estonia, Moscow in the big shot Federation, Samarkand and Tashkent in Uzbekistan, Alma Ata in Kazakhstan, Irkutsk in the Federation again, and Bratsk, Lake Baikal, Khabarovsk and Nakhodka wherever they were.

Of the cities we visited the hottest was Tashkent at 125, and the coolest Tallinn at about 70 with rain. But generally it was over 90. It was July. Even with all that heat most of the places get pretty cold in winter.

Bratsk area, for instance, means 30 degrees centigrade is the average temperature in winter, (which is well below zero Fahrenheit) and there are only 84 days that are above zero centigrade. All of which means that there are only 2-3/4 months that are above 37 degrees Fahrenheit or freezing! Yet there is little snow, and in the short summer it can reach 85 to 95 degrees Fahrenheit and the flowers boom—well yes, boom—as though they believed they were in a tropical paradise. There were daisies, buttercups, phlox, roses, zinnias, marigolds, almost all the species indigenous to the N.E. United States, and they behaved as though they had all the time in the world. I have never seen such healthy and gorgeous blooms.

BUT TO RETURN TO THE COMPARISONS: Moscow was the largest city of course, and Samarkand possibly the smallest. Samarkand was the most intriguing and Bratsk the dulllest, yet Samarkand was the oldest—it celebrates its 2,400th year this year—and Bratsk the newest. It is only 12 years old. Old Bratsk is under water having been drowned out by the new lake made by the great dam there on the Angara River. It is pronounced "Brad."

Alma Ata (pronounced Al-Mahta) had the prettiest parks and Bratsk the saddest. It had almost none. Tashkent, with all its heat and possible earthquakes, was the gayest and most romantic. It had balconies, a roof-restaurant and Saturday night orchestra dancing. Our three promising love affairs did well here. We all did well dancing—with each other AND the Uzbeks. It was quite a spontaneous party. One Uzbek man even bought our Uz-Becky "champagne!"

All the cities were quite large with a fair show of cars, (by our standards, however, really quite little) parks, apartment houses, old wooden houses, new buildings, old buildings, and churches with onion-shaped steeples, some used, some not. But the Russians have learned that the tourists like them and will pay to go in so they are fixing them whether they use them for churches or not. Most of the cities also lies on the much written about Amur River which just south of the city becomes the border for China and the USSR. Here we were just 30 miles away from Red China. Rather surprisingly, our Khabarovsk USSR In-Tourist guide was—Chinese. (We had separate guides for each city as well as our constant one from Moscow, "our" Raia.)

At Irkutsk we were only 140 miles from Mongolia. It is a very strategic area since this city is one of the largest in a long, long space and is a big stop on the Trans-Siberian Railway system and is the gateway to one of the largest dams, power-wise, in the world (the dam at Bratsk).

In all these cities, and even in Moscow, soldiers were to be seen, and at many of the airports defense equipment was standing ready. The railroads also carried much war equipment, and it was airports, railroads and soldiers we were asked to photograph. There were also some industrial cities that were closed to us. No tourists were allowed in at all. It is also reported that the Trans-Siberian Railroad has been closed to travelers since early June.

IN FLYING we very carefully did not fly over Chinese territory but flew well within the Soviet Union. After Moscow there was very little below save farms and a tiny village here and there, but after Samarkand, between our stops, there was nothing at ALL below except trees. At least it seemed so until someone pointed out that there was something else.

AT BRATSK AND LAKE BAIKAL we were possibly the furthest into Communist territory than at any other given point. Our route is getting rather pertinent now because of the renewed border activities near it recently, and the skirmishes between the Chinese and the Soviets. Many of the cities in the news lately are cities we were in.

For instance, Alma Ata, is currently being talked about as being heavily restocked with Soviet troops for border duty. It is only some 300 miles from the Chinese border, and from its rather lush farm lands you can see snow-capped mountains in the distance—and that is China.

Khabarovsk (pronounced without the first K) has opera houses or theatres of one sort or another (except Bratsk), and last but not least and ever and always, a "Palace of Culture." We got so we hated to see one listed on our itinerary because so often we had long, listless, empty briefings in them.

These Palaces (huph!) of Culture are buildings in which the Communists teach young people hobbies—with a dash of Communism, show movies—with Communist-made film, or have gym facilities—with a Communist instructor, etc., etc., etc. A true YM-YWCA, i.e., a Young Men's-Young Women's COMMUNIST Association.

While all the cities were large and had the basic requirements, Moscow was the most sophisticated, if you can call it that, and Bratsk the most provincial. All the cities also had hotels at which we stayed except Bratsk, poor Bratsk. There we stayed at a lodge on the nearby dam lake, D-A-M.

Lake Baikal I suppose was the most playful area, and that mainly for one reason. The only golf course in the entire USSR is situated on the shores of this lake. But even at that, the statement may have to be retracted. The course was built on the order of Krushchev for the expected visit of President Eisenhower who never came and it HAS NEVER been used! Despite this fact, however, it is reported that the course is kept in perfect condition. For Nixon maybe?

Lake Baikal, in all truth, had two more surprises and rather playful at that. We had a picnic, a real picnic, in the forest in its vicinity, and a ride on a hydro-foil boat from a fishing area on the lake to Irkutsk. There is no swimming fun on the lake, though. It is the deepest lake in the world and too cold.

There were border defense installations below, he said, highly camouflaged and only discernible if searched out. They seemed to be about every 500 miles. There were no roads visible so there must have been camouflaged air strips, for the report was that the border defense units were flexible enough to go to the aid of any other unit in trouble if necessary.

In looking quickly, however, there seemed to be nothing below but innocent trees, trees.

State Health Council backs bond issue to stop pollution

The State Health Planning Council has endorsed the objectives of the bond issue for water pollution control to be on the ballot in November and has urged a "yes" vote by the electorate, according to Martin Ulan, chairman of the council. The action was taken at the council's annual meeting in North Brunswick.

Ulan said, "The council believes that one of its functions is to call attention to deficiencies that affect public health and to urge ways to remedy them."

"New Jersey's mushrooming population and its millions of visitors have produced serious water pollution problems. This pollution has caused the closing of thousands of acres of shellfish growing waters. The State Department of Health has had to go to court in some areas to prevent additional building of residences until the sewage disposal facilities can effectively handle the waste products. There are regrettable fish kills almost every year caused by poor disposal practices.

"Unless the pollution trend is reversed," Ulan continued, "swimming, boating, recreation, and the use of streams for potable water purposes will be adversely affected. New Jersey's marvelous recreational resources are threatened by a continual build up of pollution."

"The success of the bond issue will provide state support of the State Health Department's efforts to reduce the effects of pollution and may generate some federal support."

"The State Health Planning Council believes the monies to be provided by the bond issue are urgently needed to protect the health and economy of New Jersey and it urges people to speak up for the bond issue and to vote for it in the November election."

The Council was appointed by Governor Richard I. Hughes in July 1968.

Bell reports job is safer than outside

Statistics released by the Bell Telephone Company indicate that the company's 1,400 employees are more than 23 times safer on the job than off.

A company spokesman said that state-wide in May there were 15 disabling injuries per thousand employees while they were on the job compared to 1.47 per thousand in the home and 2.05 per thousand outside the home and job.

The figures showed a decrease in the number of on-the-job accidents compared to the previous month which had .23 per thousand and an increase in the statistics for home and other accidents. In April there were 1.01 home accidents per thousand company employees and 1.84 per thousand outside home and job.

The company has a safety department to educate its employees about safety habits for both the home and the job. It also maintains rigid safety standards for the on-the-job protection of its workers.

Special matinees for disadvantaged at Holmdel center

The Garden State Arts Center, Holmdel, has announced that special matinees will again be presented this summer free of charge for people from disadvantaged areas of New Jersey.

The Summer Youth Programs, with regular season performers donating their artistic time and talent, began yesterday afternoon when Glen Campbell appeared before an audience of youngsters bused in to the center site at Telegraph Hill Park from various parts of the state.

Glen Campbell's regular nightly shows this week at the Arts Center continue through Saturday.

Already scheduled for such other special matinees later in the season are the musical, "Huddler On The Roof," the afternoon of July 23 and Liberace and Steel Band the afternoon of Aug. 21. The musical runs nightly at the center the week of July 21, and Liberace will appear in his second season return the week of Aug. 18.

Arrangements for the special attendance are being made by the Arts Center and its parent agency, the New Jersey Highway Authority, with local Office of Economic Opportunity units and other such sources throughout the state as was done last summer when some 10,000 youngsters were accommodated.

The costs of staging the special matinees and providing bus transportation where needed are defrayed by the Garden State Arts Center Fund, which the Authority established last year to receive contributions for such youth activities, and a grant of $20,000 from the state under its Youth Conservation and Recreational Development Program.

PAINTING INDOORS
When painting indoors, remember that light colors add space to a cramped room and dark colors minimize a large one. If your ceiling seems out of reach, bring it closer with a color darker than the walls. In a monotonous square room, a deeper color on one wall will appear to change the shape. Too many colors in one room are bewildering, but using only neutral tones gives a dull effect. So mix and match with a critical eye.

TURNABLE TREATS (good listening) THE JIMMY WISNER SOUND, featuring the love theme from "Romeo and Juliet."

In keeping with his many talents, Jimmy produced, conducted and played piano on this, his newest LP album, as well as writing three original songs.

On the ANM RECORDS label, SHANGO (SP-4195), "Shango" is the name of an African drum religion, which utilizes percussive drum beat rhythms in place of prayers.

The ten selections include: "I Juba I Juba," "Hey Jude," "Sunshine Superman," "Taste of Honey," "Mama Lion," "Um Um Um Um Um Um Um," "Mescalito," "Oh La Di, Oh La Da," "Cowboys and Indians" and the earthquake song, "Day After Day" (It's Slippin' Away).

COMING UP--The Temptations, one of the most exciting and vibrant popular vocal groups on today's musical scene, star in an hour-long musical special with guest Kaye Stevens and special guest George Kirby Saturday, July 12 (11:30 PM-12:30 AM) in color on WCBS-TV, Channel 2.

'If It's Tuesday' opens at Mayfair

"If It's Tuesday, This Must Be Belgium," satirical film comedy, opened yesterday at the Mayfair Theater in Hillside, with an associate picture, "Stalking Moon."

"If It's Tuesday," stars Suzanne Pleshette, Ian McShane, Mildred Natwick, Murray Hamilton, Sandy Baron, Michael Constantine and Normal Fein.

Two theaters hold 'Lion In Winter'

"The Lion In Winter," which won three Oscars this year, including one of Best Actress for Katharine Hepburn, is in its second week at the Bellevue Theater, Upper Montclair, and the Rialto Theater in Westfield.

The picture, which was derived from the play by James Goldman (he wrote the screenplay, too), also stars Peter O'Toole, Jane Merrow, John Castle, Timothy Dalton, Anthony Hopkins and Nigel Terry.

"The Lion in Winter" was photographed in color and directed by Anthony Harvey.

Heston to repeat role

HOLLYWOOD -- Charlton Heston, who starred as the American astronaut commander in last year's box office hit, 20th Century-Fox's "Planet of the Apes," will repeat his role in Arthur P. Jacobs' sequel, "Beneath the Planet of the Apes."

Also signed to repeat their roles established in the earlier film are Maurice Evans and Kim Hunter who will once again appear in similar makeup.

Teenagers delight at Zeffirelli's film, 'Romeo & Juliet'

Is it true that they say about "Romeo and Juliet"? Does Franco Zeffirelli film production, now at the Ormont Theater, East Orange, really attract the younger set?

Well, this reviewer, who is "somewhat over 25," can attest to the fact that last weekend, when the hordes of young people filled the Ormont to bursting, she felt absolutely ancient.

Good gravy--Shakespeare was never like this. At least, during high school years, a reviewer remembers that teachers accompanied reluctant numbers of students to Shakespearean productions.

But for this version of "Romeo and Juliet," the crowds of teeners are flocking on their own, and enjoying every moment of the Bard's tragic love story about the young lovers who battle their elders to be together.

Apparently, the younger set in the audiences identifies with these two young people.

The young performers and the rest of the cast are superb. They include Olivia Hussey, Leonard Whiting, Milo O'Shea, Pat Heywood, John McNery, Michael York and Natasha Fry.

"Romeo and Juliet," in color, has scenes of violence and bloodshed (perhaps not exactly what Shakespeare had in mind--more reminiscent of "West Side Story")--in this reviewer's opinion, but, however, one looks at it, it's a remarkable, excellently directed production.

And the gentle, soothing background music enhances the love scenes between Romeo and Juliet--and the imaginations of the many teenagers, eyes glowing, quietly munching popcorn.

Community holds 'Funny Girl' film

"Funny Girl," the road show musical, starring Barbra Streisand in the title role (she recreated her Broadway role of Fannie Brice), continues at the Community Theater in Morristown.

Miss Streisand, who won an Oscar for her role, sings, dances, clowns and emotes in this large scale musical, photographed in wide screen and color, and directed by William Wyler.

Co-starring is Omar Sharif as Nick Arnstein, and the supporting cast is headed by Kay Medford, Walter Pidgeon and Anne Francis.

Theatre 6 auditioning for 'Taming of Shrew'

Theatre Six, at Main street and Middlesex avenue in Metuchen, is currently auditioning students and non-professional actors for its August production of "The Taming of The Shrew."

Auditions are being held daily at the theater between 2 and 10 p.m., and are open to everyone, regardless of qualifications. It is suggested that all who come to read for a role first read the entire play. Further information is available by calling 548-2550.

'Blood Kin' is 14th play of Williams' to be filmed

BATON ROUGE, La. -- "Blood Kin," the Warner Bros.-Seven Arts drama now before the cameras on location here, is the 14th Tennessee Williams stage play to become a film.

Among other Williams plays that have become films are "The Glass Menagerie," "A Streetcar Named Desire," "The Rose Tattoo," "Summer and Smoke," "The Sweet Bird of Youth," "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," "The Night of the Iguana" and "Suddenly Last Summer."

James Coburn, Lynn Redgrave and Robert Hooks star in "Blood Kin," which is based on Williams' "The Seven Descents of Myrtle." Sidney Lumet is producing and directing the film from Gore Vidal's screenplay.

'Greetings,' film satire, begins third Art week

"Greetings," motion picture film satire, begins its third week at the Art Theater, Irvington Center. Photographed in color, the picture stars Johnathan Warden, Robert De Niro and Gerritt Graham. Brain De Palma directed the film.

The associate feature is "10:30 A.M. Summer."

REHEARSING ROUTINE--Director-choreographer Bob Fosse rehearses musical number, "If My Friends Could See Me Now," with Shirley MacLaine in "Sweet Charity." Universal road show picture is currently at the Union Theater in Union Center.

Let Us Vote at 18 (LUV) picks 6 aides

Roger Jacobs of Union, chairman of the New Jersey State Committee -- Let Us Vote (LUV), this week announced the election of six county chairmen by the state executive committee. LUV is an organization which is seeking support for a "yes" vote on the referendum in the November election to lower the voting age in New Jersey to eighteen.

The six county chairmen are: Arnold Robinson, Cumberland; Martin Sherman, Essex; Keith Martin, Hudson; Scott Woodland, Middlesex; Bruce Dietrich, Passaic, and Richard Frank, Union. Jacobs also announced the appointment of Steven Flak of West Caldwell as the organization's administrative assistant and Jay Shampansky of Newark as advertising and publicity coordinator. The newly elected county chairmen will work with members of LUV in the other eleven counties in which chapters of LUV have been organized. Members of LUV are seeking contributions and endorsements from civic and political organizations, private citizens, public officials, and the candidates of both major parties in the November election.

At a meeting of the state executive committee of LUV, Jacobs read a letter in which the Democratic candidate for governor, former

Gov. Robert Meyner, supported the work of LUV and pledged a substantial contribution to aid the group. Meyner stated, "I shall do all I can to encourage the electorate to vote favorably on lowering the voting age." In response to a request for funds to help the LUV organization, Meyner wrote, "As to finances, all I can do is make a contribution... and try to encourage others to do so." Jacobs also said that the Republican State Committee informed him that the "Republican party platform supports the eighteen-year-old vote, and Mr. Nelson Gross, state Republican chairman, supports the platform."

Thursday, July 3, 1969

Persons wishing to contribute to or work in the LUV organization should contact Jacobs at LUV headquarters, 895 Douglas ter., Union, or phone him at 686-2278.

2. QUALIFICATION OF BIDDERS: The Governing Body of the City of Linden will consider in determining the qualifications of a bidder his record in the performance of any contracts for the construction of similar work and the Governing Body expressly reserves the right to reject the bid of such bidder if such record discloses that such bidder, in the opinion of the Governing Body, has not properly performed such contract or has habitually and without just cause neglected the payment of bills or has otherwise disregarded his obligations. The Governing Body may make such investigation as it deems necessary to determine the ability of the bidder to perform the work and the bidder and any prospective bidder, as required, shall furnish all such information and data for this purpose as the City Engineering Department may request. The Governing Body reserves the right to reject any bid if the evidence submitted by or investigation of such bidder fails to demonstrate that such bidder is properly qualified by experience and financial status to carry out the obligations of the contract and to complete the work contemplated therein. The foregoing shall not be construed to require a bidder to receive plans and specifications to be bid upon and the same are expressly made a part hereof.

3. BIDS AND BID SECURITY: All bids must be submitted in sealed envelopes in the form furnished by the office of the City Engineer and must be closed in sealed envelopes bearing the name and address of the bidder and a designation of the proposed work on the outside of such envelope addressed to the Council of the City of Linden. Each bid must be accompanied by a certificate of a responsible surety company executed by the bidder and such surety company guaranteeing that the bidder will execute the contract in accordance with such bid and that said surety company will provide the performance bond required in Article 2.2.2.1 of the full amount of the contract price.

No bid may be withdrawn for any reason whatsoever after the bid has been opened and read at the time and place above designated. During the period of forty (40) days following the public opening and reading of such bid, Plans and specifications may be inspected or procured at the office of the City Engineer in Union, New Jersey. To procure the plans and specifications, a prospective bidder shall make payment to the City Engineer's office of $10.00 to cover the return of the plans and specifications in good order within ten (10) days after the opening of the bids. Any bidder or proposer who shall fail to return the plans and specifications in good order and condition within such period of time shall forfeit said payment and the same shall belong to the City of Linden to cover its expense in the premises.

In the event the successful bidder shall fail to enter into a contract with the City of Linden or fail to file the required performance bond within ten (10) days after the giving of notice on behalf of the City of Linden to such bidder that he has been made to said bidder, the City of Linden may award the contract to the next lowest responsible bidder or in its judgment may proceed to re-advertise for new bids and the aforesaid successful bidder and surety company shall be responsible to the City of Linden for all of its expenses, losses and damages by reason of such failure on the part of the bidder and surety company. Extension of time to enter into the contract and failure to file such extension of time shall not in any way affect the rights of the City of Linden against the bidder or surety company.

The Council reserves the right to reject any and all bids deemed to be in the best interest of the City of Linden. The Contract shall enter into the actual City of Linden form of contract, a copy of which may be inspected in the office of the City Engineer, and same shall include and shall be regarded as including, whether the same is specifically set forth or not, the provisions of R.S. 34:10-1 (Chapter 230 P.S., 1920) and all state and labor regulations relating to the municipal contract.

By order of the Council of the City of Linden, N.J., JOHN ZENIA, City Engineer, Linden, N.J., July 3, 1969. (Fee: $36.99)
