Loss to E. Orange fails to dim luster of Regional's best season in six years

By BILL LOVETT
The Gov. Livingston Regional High School basketball team ended its season with a flourish last week, beating Cranford in the first round of the state tournament, 66-60 to assure Regional's first winning record in six years.
The Highlanders were easily eliminated by East Orange in the second round, 76-57, but the defeat failed to take away any of the luster from the team's accomplishments this year.
The Cranford victory enabled Coach Frank Petrulla's team to finish out the season at 12-11 and, hopefully, indicate a future Watchung Conference championship. Indeed, had not the Highlanders gotten off to an atrocious start, this might have been the year. Westfield and Scotch Plains had off-seasons (for them) and Cranford took the title, Gov. Livingston won 10 of its last 14, but lost too many games early in the year; not even the superb late-season surge could make up for this. What it did accomplish this season, though, was more than any team had done in six seasons—a winning record. When you consider that several years ago Regional posted a 4-17 against eastern competition, it helps put the feat into perspective. And the team did it despite the loss of the greatest basketball player in its 10-year history — Jeff Burdette. The team defeated Scotch Plains for the first time.

Few fans expected the Highlanders to give Cranford trouble, since it lost two to the Cougars earlier this year, but in the first half Regional looked like conference champs. Beautiful teamwork confused one of the top teams in the county and a tenacious defense held Cranford to 25 first-half points.
Cranford jumped to a quick lead but, midway through the first period, the Highlanders pulled ahead, 9-8, and kept the lead until the fourth quarter. A basket by Chuck Radis put Cranford on top, 48-47, and the lead changed hands time and again until John Barry's dipa put Gov.

Livingston on top, 54-52, with three minutes left. The Highlanders then scored 12 more points to ease in.
Regional's John Barry had a fantastic game, scoring 22 points. A cousin of Rick Barry, star of the ABA New York Nets, he displayed a beautiful touch from the outside and played his most aggressive game of the year under the boards. He and Kevin McBrien, who had 19 points and 16 rebounds, dominated underneath, which was the deciding factor in the contest. Don Reynolds and Curt Mohs each scored nine to aid the winning cause.
Against East Orange, the Highlanders' dreams of a state title were shattered, but not quickly. Gov. Livingston outscored one of the finest teams in the state, 14-13, in the first quarter and early in the second period was still on top, 17-16. At that point, Mike Dabney scored seven straight points for East Orange, which took a 35-30 halftime lead. At this point East Orange, realizing it had taken Gov. Livingston too lightly, outscored the underdogs, 41-27, to win.

Music group winds up plans to house visiting bandsmen

At a meeting of the Mountainside Music Association last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Seidel, Longview drive, plans were completed for the Virginia State College Symphonic Band concert March 21 at the Deerfield School.
As the band's visit in Mountainside will be a two-day event, plans involve overnight housing for the students. Abe Suckno and Lou Maas, co-chairmen, said "Everyone has opened his heart and his home to these students."
Host families include: Dr. and Mrs. Leon

Anson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Strick, the Rev. and Mrs. Charles Beckhill, Mr. and Mrs. Steve Bumball, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Fine, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Gillman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Guinta, Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Grubel, Mr. and Mrs. David Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hose, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hyde, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Indick, Miss Ruth Ann Magner, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Meas, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Nash, Mrs. Arthur Olson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pfriender, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Severinghouse, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Schmedel, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Spina, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Suckno, the Rev. and Mrs. Elmer Talcott and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Williams.

A buffet dinner has been planned for Saturday night, March 20, for the students and MMA members, with Mr. and Mrs. Gene Weller, Mrs. Suckno, and Mrs. Meas in charge. Mrs. Harry Sorio will provide the decorations.
Walter Degenhardt was appointed concert manager, and Mrs. Gene Simpson, concert refreshment chairman. Mrs. Thomas Hyde, Mrs. Robert Hose, and Mrs. Morton Reich are handling promotion and publicity.

"Ticket sales are going well, and we have contacted all local organizations and urged them to join us in this afternoon of music the whole family can enjoy," stated Mrs. Howard Rhodes ticket chairman. She said that tickets, which are 75 cents for students and senior citizens and $1.50 for adults, may be purchased from any MMA member, or at the door March 21 at the Deerfield School.

Board requests debt statements

The Regional Board of Education Tuesday adopted a resolution to authorize the board secretary to request supplemental debt statements from each of the six towns in the district as preparation for putting the expansion bond referendum on the ballot. The contemplated date for the election is May 4.
In the meanwhile the board scheduled a meeting for Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the board office to set a definite time and place for the election and to determine the actual amount for the expansion referendum.
The statements are required by state law as proof that the towns in the district are not exceeding debt limits.

Call meeting to announce cuts, if any Deadline reached; board can appeal

By JANICE ADLER
The Mountainside Borough Council has called a special meeting today at 8 p.m. in Borough Hall to announce what if any reductions it has made in the defeated $1,995,317 school budget. The council and Board of Education met Tuesday night following the board meeting to discuss the budget. The council, which had 30 days to consider the budget, reaches its deadline for a decision today.

Earlier Tuesday evening at the regular board meeting at the Deerfield School, board president Grant Lennox commented on the budget. He said there have been several joint sessions with the council to discuss the budget's contents. If the council cuts the budget, the board has time to consider whether or not to appeal to the state education commissioner.

Contract negotiations shared the spotlight with the defeated school budget at the board meeting. A crowd of 60 attended the session. Thomas Spina, chairman of the board's negotiating committee, said talks with the Mountainside Teachers' Association are still in progress. "This is an accomplishment in itself because of what is going on around us," he commented.

The last meeting was about two weeks ago, Spina added. "We made a package offer, including another salary offer. We are still awaiting an official response."

"The board is definitely interested in settling the issues involved across the table and we are prepared to do so. We are prepared to settle on a fair and reasonable contract, both in scope and in content, providing an increase and competitive salary schedule. 'The door is open. We are awaiting the MTA's response and counter offer and are looking forward to it,' he said.
During the public session, former board member Mrs. Grace Gutman said she heard rumors that the MTA has taken several votes concerning a strike.

Lennox discounted the strike rumor because the MTA has not acted on the latest proposals. "We are waiting to hear from them," he said.

IN OTHER BUSINESS Lennox announced appointments to the various committees. They are with the chairman listed first: education, Peter Taussig, Patricia Knodel and James Taylor; transportation and safety, Mrs. Knodel; finance and budget, William Blunno, Taylor and Lennox; buildings and grounds, Walter Rupp and Lennox; public relations, Taylor and Taussig; long-range planning, Rupp and Taylor; negotiations, Spina, Blunno and Taussig, and legislative, Rupp and Taylor.
In addition, representatives to various organizations were named. They are: New Jersey School Boards Association, Rupp; County School Boards Association, Taylor; Education Services Commission of Union County, Mrs. Knodel; Constituent Boards of the Regional District, Lennox; Borough Council, Blunno, and the local PTA, Mrs. Knodel.
The board accepted resignations from four teachers to be effective June 30. They are

Squad gets 2-way radio and resuscitation unit

The Mountainside Rescue Squad has added two important pieces of equipment to its ambulance. The first of these is a two-way direct dial radio which enables the ambulance personnel to directly communicate with a number of hospitals in the state of New Jersey. A squad spokesman added:
"Direct communication with hospital personnel will be valuable in a number of ways. First, the ambulance crew can alert the hospital as to the nature of the illness, the extent of injury, and the number of victims it is transporting. This allows the hospital time to prepare equipment and contact doctors as needed to provide emergency treatment. Secondly, doctors and other trained personnel can give verbal advice to the first aider at the scene of the emergency and during transportation to the hospital.

"In the near future, heart patterns can be transmitted from the cardiac monitor aboard the ambulance, to the hospital through this radio, allowing the hospital to ascertain early definitive care for heart cases. Thirdly, since many other squads in the area are now obtaining these radios, they can contact one another and therefore provide assistance to one another in the case of an emergency too large for one squad to handle.
"Another valuable piece of equipment acquired by the squad has been donated by the Cadet Corps. The Elder Valve, an attachment to the portable oxygen unit which enables the unit to be used for resuscitation as well as straight oxygen administration, was purchased by the cadets with money they earned by selling seats and performing various jobs for the squad. A year ago, the squad provided the Mountainside Police with these units to be carried in their squad cars. The police car units were provided with funds donated by citizens in memory of Edward Hay Jr.

"With the addition of this equipment along with the defibrillator and cardiac monitor added last summer, and special cardio-pulmonary resuscitation training given its members, the Mountainside Rescue Squad is providing the best possible service to the victims of heart attack and respiratory emergencies."

Read-at-home unit of PTA to help out when child is sick

The Mountainside PTA has organized a new reading-at-home committee headed by Mrs. Lothar Nonnenmacher, it was announced by the PTA president, Mrs. Gerard Dillemuith.
If a child is ill with a non-communicable disease and must be out of school more than a day or two, members of this committee are willing to read to the sick child for an hour, thereby giving the mother a rest and the child a bit of a change and diversion. A rule of the committee, though, is that the mother must remain at home during this hour, since this is not a babysitting service.
Members of the committee include Eleanor Burke, Jeanette Earle, Carol Flynn and Pat Lehmann. Anyone interested in obtaining the services of a reading committee member may call Mrs. Nonnenmacher at 232-4348.

The parent and family life committee of the Mountainside PTA will hold a discussion focusing on creativity this evening at 8:15 in the Deerfield School cafeteria.

Mrs. Robin Birnhak, chairman, announced that Dr. Eleanor Delaney of Rutgers University will be the guest speaker on the topic, "How to Foster Creativity." There will also be audience participation. The meeting is open to all.

Registration set for postponed trip

Registration for the Mountainside Recreation Department's ski trip next Saturday, March 20, will be held Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to noon at the Deerfield School. This is the trip originally set for Feb. 27 that was melted out. A spokesman said that anyone who registered for the cancelled trip and is still interested should call Edward Moore at 232-8635 by tomorrow night to reserve a seat on the bus. Anyone who has a ticket for the cancelled trip and cannot go can get a refund only if he notifies Moore by tomorrow. Otherwise no refund will be given, the spokesman added.
There will be a dance for seventh through ninth graders tomorrow from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. in the Deerfield School gym. The spokesman said no one below the seventh or above the ninth grade will be admitted. Admission is $1. Any parent who is interested in chaperoning the dance is welcome, the spokesman said.

Register on Saturday for girls' softball

Registration for fifth through eighth-grade girls who wish to join the Mountainside Girls' Softball League will be held this Saturday from 10 a.m. until noon in the all-purpose room at Deerfield School.

Lifeguard courses are offered

Senior lifesaving courses—designed to help high school and college boys win certification as lifeguards in time to qualify for jobs at municipal pools, private clubs and the shore—open for registration Monday at the Westfield YMCA.

Successful completion of our five-week course brings certification as both a YMCA and Red Cross lifesaver. Harry L. Leshner Jr., director of physical education services, pointed out.

Those interested in enrolling in the courses, held on Mondays and Wednesdays from 8 to 10 p.m., must be 15 or older. The courses, in the past, have also proved attractive to young fathers who wish to be able to save a life while at vacation homes or boating.

The first team begins March 22 and finishes April 21; the second runs from April 26 to May 27. Fee for non-Y members is $15; for limited members, $12.50, and for fully privileged Y members, $10.

Junior lifesaving courses for boys 11 to 14 are also being offered during the spring term at the Y. The course is designed to instruct each boy in the techniques of saving a life and demonstrate how he may be a safer swimmer himself.

"Upon completion a boy should be able to save the life of a playmate or younger brother or sister and be prepared to pass senior lifesaving," Leshner said.

Boys entering the program must have completed the "shark" rating in the Y progressive aquatic classes or its equivalent: being able to swim underwater for 35 feet, do the sidestroke on the left and right side, lifesaving stroke, back stroke, a forward dive from the board and swim for 450 yards using any stroke.

The junior course is taught from 5 to 6 p.m. Fridays beginning March 22. The fee is $5 for a full-privileged YMCA member.

4th film of season on wildlife will be featured Tuesday

Boyd has been a leader in nature societies and has conducted numerous nature and conservation training courses.

"Downstream" is a story of water in glacial headwaters, lakes and springs, in mountain brooks and waterfalls from the time it first reaches the earth until it returns to the atmosphere. In ponds and lakes, water becomes the center of whole communities of wildlife. Boyd commented that "water never wears out; it is used and re-used. It is how we use it that counts."

These Audubon wildlife films are sponsored by the Summit Nature Club. Tickets may be obtained at the door.

'Cults' will be topic for Presbyterians

Rt. 78 may face a new delay as Watchung Friends unite

Interstate Route 78, which has been on the drawing boards for 15 years, could remain in the planning stages a good while longer if a group called the Friends of the Watchung carries all the way its fight to stop construction through the Watchung Reservation.

The Friends of the Watchung, a three-month old group headed by Summit attorney Mrs. Jerry Fitzgerald English, plans to bring before the Board of Freeholders tonight a resolution to protect the reservation from intrusion by interstate highways.

The resolution, to be presented by Freeholder Thomas Long of Linden, will invoke the protections that the U.S. Supreme Court draped around parkland in Tennessee last week. In its ruling, the nation's highest court said that park lands cannot be condemned for the purpose of building new highways for automobile traffic. In the Tennessee case, the high court said the Departments of Transportation and Interior had failed to prove there was no other feasible route.

IN LIGHT OF THE DECISION, Mrs. English said, the Friends of the Watchung was "rethinking our position regarding possible actions on Route 78."

"As I read it," Mrs. English declared, "it looks as if a court case could be brought in this matter. Route 78 will definitely be the group's next consideration."

Coming from the west, Route 78 stops at the edge of the reservation. Construction continues on the other side of the park in Springfield. The right of way through the park has not yet been settled although the State Transportation Department has submitted a plan to the Union County Park Commission, which owns the reservation.

A spokesman for the Park Commission said the state's plans are being reviewed. When the Park Commission completes a field study on the drainage aspects of the plans, he added, there could be a meeting between the park unit and the State Transportation Department.

However, the possibility of court action on the Friends of the Watchung could delay completion still longer.

THE FRIENDS OF THE WATCHUNG, have urged citizens to attend the freeholders' meeting tonight at 8 p.m., in the Union County Courthouse in Elizabeth.

According to Mrs. English the citizens of Union County must demonstrate "their concern about the potential danger to their remaining park lands in order to motivate the freeholders to take a strong stand."

"To date," Mrs. English continued, "county residents have responded by signing the petitions circulated by Friends of the Watchung. We expect to go to the Freeholders with over 6,000 signatures, all collected in the last six weeks."

Petitions have been circulating throughout the county. Individual citizens getting signatures from their friends and neighbors have accounted for the bulk of the returns. However,

Residential finance survey to be held by Census Bureau

L. Dean Johnson, president of the Westfield Board of Realtors, this week reported the Bureau of the Census, U.S. Department of Commerce, is about to survey the nation's residential finance, and the study will be concluded in the early summer. It will be done in two phases: the first being the mailing of questionnaires to homeowners and owners of rental properties and the second, a mailing of questionnaires to lending institutions or individuals involved in financing the properties covered in phase one.

The department is looking for answers to such questions as: How many homes and apartment buildings are mortgaged in the United States? What is the average amount of debt outstanding? What part of a homeowner's income goes for mortgage payments and other expenses? These and other questions will be answered in the survey of residential finance to be conducted as part of the 1970 census.

About 65,000 residential housing units will be included — a scientifically designed sample of the entire nation. Of the total, about half will be homeowner properties. The remainder will be rental properties.

Results of the survey will be published as a portion of the bureau's official report on the 1970 Census of Population and Housing. The new statistics will bring forward information collected at the time of the 1950 and 1960 censuses.

Both property owners and mortgage holders are included in the survey. To a limited extent, a sample of renters will be surveyed to obtain the names and addresses of the firms owning or managing their buildings.

Property owners will be asked, as in earlier surveys, to describe the number of housing units in their properties, year of construction, year of acquisition, purchase price, if mortgaged, identity of mortgage lender, amount of mortgage, current market value, and certain types of expenses in connection with ownership. Homeowners will be asked also their age, sex, race, income, and marital and military veteran status.

Owners of rental property will be asked about some of their expenses and about rental receipts in addition to the other basic questions. Lenders will be asked for detailed data about the mortgage principal, interest rate, face amount of the mortgage, term and current outstanding debt.

The 1970 survey will extend the usefulness of the results by seeking certain kinds of information not asked in earlier surveys. For example, there will be a question about refinancing and another about the source of the owner's down payment or equity (whether from savings, proceeds from the sale of a previous house, gift, estate of a deceased spouse, sale of other type of investment, etc.).

Two other items of information to be sought for the first time reflect changing practices in residential financing: whether the contract interest rate can be changed during the life-time of the mortgage and whether the lender participates in any way in the accrued earnings of the property.

One set of tabulations from the survey will classify results by type of mortgage (Federal Housing Administration-insured, Veterans' Administration-insured, or conventional bank financed). Totals will also be tabulated not only for the United States, but for the four major census regions (South, Northeast, West, and North Central States), for metropolitan areas collectively and for areas outside of metropolitan areas, and for central cities within metropolitan areas as well as for the suburban rings within metropolitan areas.

Survey information is widely used as a basis for financial planning and decision making by economists and financial analysts who guide and advise home and apartment builders, officials in financial institutions, institutional investors, responsible for pension funds and endowments, building material makers, real estate industry representatives, community planners, and government officials.

Cooperation in the survey as part of the census is required by law. The law also protects those required to fill out questionnaires by making it illegal for the Census Bureau to disclose any information about a person or a firm. The data obtained can be used only to compile statistical totals.

Cost is lowered by Mobile Meals

Mobile Meals of Westfield recently announced a reduction in the cost of its meals. The long-range goal of the program has been to make the meals available to all those who need them, regardless of income. ## Report from Trenton

By State Senator Matthew J. Rinaldo

A recent article in a nationally circulated magazine did a great disservice to New Jersey, and the efforts of Governor Cahill to clean up organized crime in this state by depicting this state as a hotbed of criminal activity. In my opinion, the article failed to place sufficient emphasis on the sincere efforts of the Cahill administration to rid our state of the infestation of organized crime that had in fact begun to pervade New Jersey.

The image of New Jersey, and more important, the fact that there is organized crime, have long been matters of great concern to me. Last year, for instance, I introduced a bill intended to curtail the ability of crime syndicates to channel illicitly gained funds into legitimate businesses. This bill, S-889, was modeled on a landmark statute adopted into law two years ago in Florida. However, serious objections have been raised to the constitutionality of the Florida measure.

After many discussions with experts in the field of law and law enforcement, I have come up with a substitute bill that could, I am told, successfully withstand legal challenge.

MY BILL, S-2102, would require each director and officer of a New Jersey corporation to include with the annual report to the Secretary of State a signed statement to the effect that he is not engaged in organized criminal activity. Officers and directors would also be required to state that to the best of their knowledge no stockholder owning 10 percent or more of the aggregate capital stock of the corporation, directly or indirectly, is engaged in organized criminal activity and is not connected, directly or indirectly, with any organization, syndicate or society engaged in organized criminal activity.

The measure also states that any person who, willingly and knowingly violates the provisions of the bill would be guilty of a misdemeanor.

In addition to working with my own advisors from the legal and law enforcement professions, I have checked out the provisions of this bill with the offices of the New Jersey Attorney General, the Union County Prosecutor and the Attorney General in Florida, where the idea originated.

It is my sincere hope that this bill will be enacted into law, so it will make it increasingly difficult, if not impossible, for organized crime to channel its illicit profits into legitimate businesses.

Nine injured, one seriously, in 5 auto accidents last week

Nine persons were injured, one seriously, in five accidents last week, according to Springfield police.

Ann B. Whitford of 58A Troy dr., Springfield, and Margaret Robe of Kenilworth were injured Friday night when their cars collided at the intersection of Meisel and S. Springfield avenues, police reported. The Springfield First Aid Squad took them to Overlook Hospital, Summit, where Mrs. Whitford was treated and discharged. Mrs. Robe was admitted and is in critical condition with severe facial injuries, a hospital spokesman said.

According to the police report, the Robe car was going south on Meisel and the Whitford car was traveling north on Meisel. As Mrs. Robe approached the intersection with S. Springfield, an unidentified car went through the yield sign on S. Springfield, Mrs. Robe's car was forced to cross the center white line into oncoming traffic when the accident happened.

One person was slightly injured Sunday night in a three-vehicle accident where Morris and Keeler avenues meet, police reported. Claire Todres of 50 Garden oval, Springfield, a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Joseph, was taken by police to Overlook Hospital where she was treated and discharged.

Police said Todres' vehicle and a car driven by Henry Johansen of Paramus had stopped for a red light on Morris avenue and Caldwell place. A car driven by John P. Farrell of Port Washington, N.Y., and owned by Avis Rent-a-Car of New York City struck the Todres car with such force that it was forced into Johansen's car. Farrell was given a summons for careless driving.

Haywood Andrews and Howard Andrews, both of Plainfield, passengers in one of three cars involved in an accident Sunday morning on Rt. 22 by Lawrence road, and William J. Gilson of Somerville, one of the drivers, were slightly injured, police said. The Springfield First Aid Squad took them to Overlook Hospital where they were treated and discharged.

According to police, the Gilson vehicle and a car driven by Bruce R. Pollock of New Providence, which is owned by Melvin Stein of Union, were going east in the highway's left lane. Pollock's car, which was in front of Gilson's car, began to make a left turn into a parking lot. The Gilson vehicle collided with Pollock's and continued moving forward. Gilson's car then struck a pole in the lot. The Pollock car was pushed into a parked car owned by Christos R. Hiotis of 799 Mountain ave., Springfield.

Helen M. Madden of Westfield and a passenger in her car, Richard Madden of Westfield, were slightly injured Saturday afternoon when the Madden car collided with a vehicle driven by Edward J. Winsor of Fanwood on Rt. 22 by the Lido Diner, police reported. The First Aid Squad took them to Overlook Hospital where they were treated and discharged.

Police said the Madden car was in the west-to-east turn-around at the diner and had begun to pull out into the highway when the accident occurred.

Last Thursday's snow was a contributing factor to an accident on S. Springfield avenue by Newbrook lane that morning, according to police. Josephine M. Mennicucci of 8 Lang ter., Springfield, the driver of one of the cars, was taken by the First Aid Squad to Overlook Hospital where she was treated and discharged.

The police report said the Mennicucci car was going south on S. Springfield and had begun to make a left turn onto Newbrook lane. A car driven by Michael Leibowitz of Menlo Park was going north on S. Springfield and collided with the Mennicucci car.

Authorities turned over the case to the Treasury Department.

Springfield police charged Dwyer and Hull with passing the counterfeit bills. Mountside authorities charged them with passing a counterfeit bill at the Halfway House on Rt. 22.

They were being held in the Springfield jail until Treasury agent could come for them. Police in all the communities involved and federal authorities, are still investigating.

Petty cash missing at school; woman says wallet stolen

About $15 in cash was reported taken last Thursday from the Edward Walton School, according to Springfield police. School authorities called police Friday to report the money missing from petty cash.

A wallet containing about $10 in cash plus identification was reported stolen Friday from a purse belonging to Mrs. Sally Sandler of Newark, police said. Mrs. Sandler told police the wallet was taken while she was working at Building Container Associates of New Jersey, 500 Morris ave.

Two electric typewriters valued at about $500 each and a transcribing machine worth about $500 were reported stolen last Wednesday from the Atlas Supply Co. on Diamond road, police said. The machines were taken from the office but there were no signs of forced entry, according to police.

Police reported a break and entry last Tuesday at a house on Tower drive. Entry was made by breaking the glass in a window. An undetermined amount of cash, a ring, camera and a pair of binoculars were reported missing. A tape recorder was reported stolen last Tuesday from a car belonging to Mrs. J. A. Ginsberg of Maplewood, police said. Mrs. Ginsberg told police she had parked the car in the lot at Saks Fifth Avenue and the recorder was missing when she returned.

Eighteenth In A Series
ISLAND IN THE SUN

Some call it the "pimple on the backside of India," some call it tea, some call it paradise, still others call it a possible Asian Cuba—but all call it "Ceylon."
The island of Ceylon is a pear-shaped piece of real estate with its small end facing the Bay of Bengal and its round bottom basking in the Indian Ocean. It lies at the south-east tip of India, much as Cuba lies off Florida, only its nearest point is 18 miles from the mainland, not almost 100. It is about the size of West Virginia making it definitely a pimple compared to India's full bodied Maine-to-Florida, Illinois-to-Louisiana size.
The name "Ceylon" is so synonymous with tea, that some people only think of something to drink and not something to stand on, when they hear the name. But while it is true that tea is the single largest product of Ceylon, and that the United Kingdom is the largest buyer and the United States the second, and that a lot of people consequently know Ceylon, the tea, rather well; rubber and coconut are also big products and make the island important too.

Ceylon, the island, is a beautiful place. Besides its many glorious ruins of giant Buddhas and Hindu structures, it has lovely green hills, mountains, valleys, jungles, rivers, lakes, handsome plantations, picturesque rice paddies (complete with lizards the size of dogs though), gorgeous beaches, delightful lagoons, lovely water, pretty natives and the most delicious pineapple you ever tasted. In certain seasons clouds of butterflies—yes clouds—give an enchanted mood to sections of forest or beach wherever they may be, and so, with it all, there is a touch of paradise to the land.
But it is feared in some quarters that Ceylon is not all tea and paradise, and that perhaps the pimple is just a little red and inclined to swell.

THE GOVERNMENT is again under the rule of Madame Prime Minister Sirimavo Bandaranaike, who first held that position in 1960, and was the first woman in the world to hold such an office. She was initially elected after the assassination of her husband in 1959, and again last May when she upset Prime Minister Dudley Senanayake, a Sinhalese Buddhist and son of Ceylon's first Prime Minister.
Madame Bandaranaike's party, however, reportedly tends to be socialistic and friendly to the Communist world. Ceylon has two major parties: the United National Party (UNP), which is moderate and which is Dudley Senanayake's party; and Sri Lanka Freedom Party (SLFP), which is Madame B's party.

There are also several extreme leftist groups in Ceylon: one pro-Chinese Communist party, one pro-Russian Communist party; the Mahajana Eksath Peramuna (MEP), which is Marxist economically but nationalistic and Buddhist on local political and social issues; the Lanka Sama Samaja Party (LSSP), which is Trotskyist, and the LSSP Revolutionary Group, which broke away from the original LSSP when the latter joined the SLFP government in 1964 to bolster the faltering Parliamentary strength of the first Bandaranaike government.

CEYLON IS A MEMBER of the British Commonwealth, and Queen Elizabeth II is Queen of Ceylon with a Governor-General representing her there. It gained its independence in 1948.

The period of a term of a Prime Minister is not over five years and the next general election is due in 1975. Women have had the vote since 1931.

One of Ceylon's main problems is population. It has increased so rapidly that it has doubled in 25 years. Current population is about 14 million.

The "natives" of Ceylon are not called Ceylonese, but Sinhalese, sometimes Sinhalese. These Sinhalese came originally from northern India about the sixth century B.C. and today constitute 70 percent of the population. Twenty-two percent of the people are Tamil, about half being "Ceylon Tamil" and the other half, "Indian Tamil," and here again is another problem. The Ceylon Tamils are Ceylon citizens whose ancestors lived on the island for many generations and who have full voting rights, but the Indian Tamils' forebears were brought over from south India in the late 1800's to work on tea and rubber plantations and about nine-tenths have had no voting rights since 1948. As India refuses to recognize these people as citizens also, they have been, in effect, stateless.

Ceylon was settled first by the Portuguese, then the Dutch and then the English, and the remaining eight percent of the population consists of Moors and Burghers (descendants of Portuguese and Dutch colonists). Eurasians, Malays and a small number of Veddas, the earliest known inhabitants of the island, Buddhism is the religion of most of the Sinhalese, Hinduism that of the Tamils, and Islam that of the Moors and Malays. Christianity has followers from all ethnic groups, most of whom are Roman Catholic.

The island has been almost continually beset with internal problems and crises, and U.S.-Ceylon relations tend to have a see-saw characteristic. Many U. S. economic interests were, and are, represented in Ceylon and some have been confiscated by the government, some even as long ago as the first Bandaranaike government. Esso Standard Eastern and Galper particularly have been affected. (The "oil problem" related to oil businesses—as there is no oil in the ground.) During the interim government under Premier Senanayake, matters tended to ameliorate somewhat, but with the return of Madame Prime Minister, the possibility of a redder pimple exists again and with it, colder U.S.-Ceylon relations.

And elsewhere in the world, too, many a specialist keeps a watchful eye on that smoldering pimple.

The "Express Yourself" producer, Thomas Skinner, said "Channel 52 is honored to have such a nationally-famous entertainer as Gillespie as a weekly guest performer." ## LSD use reported to be on the decline

The president of the New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association this week reported a decline in the use of LSD and similar mind-affecting drugs, but warns that "illegal use of the hallucinogen continues."
Isadore Singer of Spotswood emphasized that "LSD is a dangerous drug whose use is forbidden and rigidly punished," and said "it can cause mental illness, even death, with a strong probability of birth defects."
"The drug is a valuable tool in biomedical research," Singer said, but added that its therapeutic value is limited to special cases. He stressed that the only legal supply of LSD in the United States is in the possession of the National Institute of Mental Health, a bureau of the U. S. Public Health Service.

Jerseyans' Holy Land art

Bible House shows paintings

Most travelers to Israel take a camera and suitcases full of clothes. Artists Lou Burnett and Martha Moore, a husband-wife team from High Bridge, Hunterdon County, each packed a 28-inch suitcase with a folding easel, 24-inch canvases, acrylic paints and brushes. A few articles of clothing went into the space that was left.

Many artists who go to the Holy Land do sketches or take photographs and paint from them after returning home. The Burnetts who have won numerous art awards, completed a total of 60 paintings on location during their three-month trip last year.

A collection of these paintings is on exhibit through April 15 in the gallery of Bible House, American Bible Society headquarters at 1865 Broadway, New York, N.Y.

All the paintings in the exhibit are of Biblical significance. For example, subjects include Jerusalem, Shepherds' Field in Bethlehem, King Solomon's Mines, The Port of Joppa, the site of Sodom, the pool at Bethesda and the Mount of Olives.

"We're primarily figure painters," explained Mrs. Burnett, whose professional name is Martha Moore. "We expected that most of our subjects would be people. But once we got to the Holy Land we were fascinated by the scenery and the historical sites." The Bible House gallery is open to the public free of charge, Monday through Friday, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. However, it will be closed on Good Friday, April 9.

Flutist, pianist play at museum Sunday

Eleanor Lawrence, flutist, and Joseph Seiger, pianist, will play at the Montclair Art Museum on Sunday at 4 p.m., in the second of the museum's March concert series.

Their program will include Sonata No. 7 in G minor by Bach, Sonata in D major by Prokofiev, and Jouvets de Flute by Albert Roussel.

Miss Lawrence and Seiger are faculty members at the Manhattan School of Music in New York.

Union painter's work to be seen in Irvington

The Irvington Art Associates will sponsor a demonstration by Dorothy Kelly of Union, artist and teacher, at the Irvington Community Building, 1143 Clinton Ave., Thursday, March 18. The artist, who specializes in portraits done in oil, charcoal and pastel, conducts classes at the Union Adult School and has taught for the Roselle Park and Clark Art Associations.

One of her portraits is hung in the lobby of Memorial General Hospital, Union. She has studied with Lajos Markos and is a graduate of the New York Art School.

HISTORY OF MEDICINES

The history of medicines used against man's mental and physical ills is long and fascinating—and helps us to understand where we are today in the quest for ideal drugs to cure human ailments.

Taking drugs to help overcome mental disorders is probably about as old as man's life on earth. We can speculate that even the ancestors of Homo Sapiens, trembling from the shock of a narrow escape from a sabre-tooth tiger, may have chewed on some pungent leaves that he knew would help to calm him.

This is only speculation, but there is archaeological evidence suggesting that sometime from 40,000 B.C. to 10,000 B.C., man developed resources from plants. Among these resources may have been fruits, leaves or stalks of plants which produced mental effects when chewed or eaten.

Pre-history archaeological findings from around 7000 B.C., furthermore, indicate that the drug alcohol was used then. Also, the use of such things as mushrooms, betel nuts, and cocoa leaves for their drug effects may have come about early.

Time rolled on, but the science of pharmacology, the study of drugs, did not really begin until the nineteenth century.

Once chemists and others took interest, scientific approaches to drugs widened rapidly. The search through nature for healing compounds, and explorations of all kinds of elements, were pursued with great vigor.

There were major successes, such as with vaccines and, later, with antibiotics. These great advances obscure the fact that hundreds of thousands of diggings were made for each bit of valuable material which was found. But not until the 1950's were there major gains in the field of psychoactive (mind affecting) drugs.

These came with the discovery and use of the tranquilizing drugs. They are not the ideal panacea, but with proper usage they do play an important role in the mental health field. Also today, we have available a whole panoply of other drugs which, again if used appropriately and under medical attention, are an important therapeutic agent in the management and treatment of mental illness.

Because of research underway today, moreover, the future is bright with promise for new discoveries and new or improved drugs and medicines for the prevention and treatment of mental and emotional disorders.

Arts council gives grants

Eleven matching grants, totalling $15,875, have been awarded by the New Jersey State Council on the Arts to assist arts projects sponsored by organizations in different areas of the state.

In central New Jersey the Arts Council offered assistance to the Mercer County Heritage Commission, Mercer County Community College, N.J. Young People's Theatre, Middletown Recreation Commission, and New Brunswick's experimental Brecht West Theatre, for a variety of cultural programs.

In the Newark area grants were given to the College Center Board of Newark State College and the Avatar Music Productions, Newark.

Jersey Shore organizations benefitting from the grants are the Garden State Philharmonic Society and the Mid-Atlantic Center for the Arts.

LOU BURNETT and his wife, Martha Moore, display paintings they did in Holy Land last year. Exhibit of paintings is under way at American Bible Society gallery in New York, through April 15.

JERUSALEM INTERPRETED by Martha Moore in acrylic paints. She and her husband, Lou Burnett, residents of High Bridge, completed some 60 paintings in the Holy Land last year.

Art program Education group to hold set Monday talks on accountability

The Hillside Creative Arts Group will hold a demonstration of painting in acrylics by Sally Millsbaugh at the Hillside Community Center Building on Monday, March 15, at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Millsbaugh, a resident of Martinsville, is a graduate of the Newark School of Fine Arts and the Traphagen School of Design. She does both traditional and impressionistic paintings in both oil and acrylics.

The demonstration is open to the public and refreshments will be served.

Beginning March 22, Hillside Creative Arts will offer classes in painting to be conducted by Bill Davis, local artist. For further information, call 926-6281 or 923-3278.

Accountability is the "in" word in school parlance this year. This doesn't mean that the idea of accountability in education is simply a fad. On the contrary, it is a recognition that the public is entitled to demonstration of tangible results in exchange for its yearly investment in the public schools.

The New Jersey School Boards Association will explore the ramifications of the new emphasis on accountability and their impact on the schools at its annual regional workshops for school board members Saturday. The all-day sessions will be held concurrently at three locations. They are Parsippany Hills High School, Marlboro High School and Glassboro High School.

Participants will be given an overview of outgrowths of the current accent on accountability, such as performance contracting, the voucher system, differentiated staffing, merit pay, community control and adoption of management methods in school operation.

A second session will focus on the effect of accountability demands on negotiations with school employees.

Floral show sets awards

More than a dozen trophies and at least 30 other awards will be presented to participants in the annual New Jersey Flower & Garden Show scheduled for March 19 to 25 at the Morristown Armory.

The show, largest of its kind in the New York-New Jersey metropolitan area, will include full blooming gardens, educational displays and other exhibits by nurserymen, gardeners, clubs, colleges and public agencies.

A panel of flower and garden experts will judge the 11 different classes of exhibits. Leading the list of awards is the Governor's Trophy for the Best Garden in Show. It will go to the large garden scoring the highest points on judges' sheets for gardens, professional or amateur.

Mail order bobcat Zoo now its home

A young female Eastern bobcat, ordered through the mail to prove a point, now has a happy home at the Turtle Back Zoo in West Orange.

Representative Richard L. Ottinger, U.S. Congressman from Putnam County and part of Westchester County, N.Y., ordered the animal by mail in order to show his constituents that laws to protect animals and people needed strengthening.

It was Ottinger's contention that animals which are unsuitable as pets can be ordered easily and that this is not only dangerous for the would-be owner, but also is hastening the extinction of some endangered species. He asked for strengthening of the con-dangered species act.

The New York congressman, during his unsuccessful campaign for U.S. senator last fall, exhibited the baby animal, which was delivered via air freight from Michigan, at one press conference last October.

He said the lack of restrictions on pet stores and on pet importers is defrauding the public and that the wholesale capture and importation of animals is hastening extinction of some species.

Ottinger had no intention of keeping the bobcat as a pet and made arrangements through the New York Zoological Society to give the pet to Turtle Back Zoo soon after its receipt.

He had ordered the animal through a legitimate American animal dealer in a completely legal move.

Turtle Back Zoo officials also believe that it is dangerous for both animals and people to permit mail order of wild animals. They pointed out that as these animals become older and less docile, they become increasingly difficult to care for.

Zoos, sometimes requested to accept these wild animals, cannot always accommodate them and the animals cannot be returned to native surroundings either because they may have come from another continent or because owners who have made pets of them have had them declawed or altered in some way which would make it impossible for the animal to survive in a natural environment.

This particular bobcat has spent the winter in quarters at the zoo under the care of trained animal keepers, with a diet composed in part of horse meat and vitamins. The zoo hopes to obtain a male bobcat also.

FDU to dig ancient sites

Edward S. Rutsch, assistant professor of anthropology at the Fairham-Madison campus of Fairleigh Dickinson University, and the University have received a $3,000 grant from the United States National Park Service for research in the Morristown Historical National Park, Morristown.

Professor Rutsch and students will conduct documentary and excavation work on two of the park sites: Fort Nonsense, located on a hill directly behind the southeast section of Morristown, and the original barn site adjacent to the Temple Wick House.

The research findings will be used to reconstruct historical sites in the Morris area in time for the country's bicentennial in 1976. The project is under the auspices of the U.S. National Park Service.

Fort Nonsense was constructed as a point where artillery could be located that commanded all approaches to Morristown during the American Revolution.

Passport information offered for families going to Europe

Many families will be planning vacations abroad for the coming summer, reports Elaine May, County Home economist. A vital concern then is applying for passports. Knowing what information is needed, where to go and when, will expedite the process.

In Union County, applications for passports may be made at the County Clerk's Office in the Court House, Elizabeth, or at the Court House Annex at 300 North Avenue East in Westfield.

The Elizabeth office is open from nine a.m. until four p.m. Monday through Friday. The Westfield office has the same hours except for closing from 12 o'clock noon until one p.m. for lunch. Telephone numbers are 353-5000 and 233-9399.

Husband and wife may both be included on one passport, but both must appear before the clerk. Unmarried children under 18 years of age may be included in a parent's passport, but the child does not have to appear in person.

Applicants and any family member to be included in a passport must present proof of U.S. citizenship.

Native born citizens should present a birth certificate which must have a raised seal and the date filed. If a birth certificate cannot be obtained, a baptismal certificate or a certified copy of the record of baptism may be accepted. If such primary evidence is not obtainable, certain secondary evidence may be accepted.

Naturalized citizens should present the naturalization certificate. If claiming citizenship through the naturalization of a parent or parent, their naturalization certificates must be presented with evidence of the parent-child relationship, and evidence of admission to the United States for permanent residence.

Persons claiming citizenship through birth abroad to a citizen parent or parents may use a Consular Report of Birth form or a Certificate of Birth issued by the Foreign Service or by the Department of State.

A previously issued passport will be accepted as evidence of citizenship and as identification.

Identification of all passport applicants must be established. The following documents may be accepted if they contain the signature and a description or photograph of the applicant: certificate of naturalization or of derivative citizenship, a driver's license, or a government identification card or pass. Minors may use a parent's identification.

If such identification is not available, an identifying witness may be used. The witness must be an American citizen, have known the applicant for two years, and be able to satisfactorily establish his own identity.

Two duplicate photographs made within the past six months are necessary when applying. When more than one family member is to be on the passport, a group photograph is preferred. A black and white or color photograph which is a clear, front view, full face image on thin, unglazed paper with a light background is required.

The photograph cannot be smaller than 2-1/2 by 2-1/2 inches, nor larger than 3 by 3 inches. Space on the front left hand side of the picture is needed for the applicant's signature without marring the features.

The passport fee is $10 plus a $2 fee for the processing. Payment must be made by check or money order.

Since 1968 passports are valid for five years and are not renewable. Passports issued prior to 1968 are also valid for five years, although they state three years.

$5 million goal set in campaign by Muhlenberg

Muhlenberg Hospital in Plainfield has announced a $4,800,000 fund-raising campaign to complete financing of an extensive $9,700,000 program of expansion and modernization.

Heading the campaign — the largest in Muhlenberg's history — is Edwin J. Fitzpatrick of Plainfield, a private investor in securities and real estate.

In announcing the campaign, F. Edgar Davis, new president of Muhlenberg's Board of Governors, said that completion of the expansion program is imperative if the hospital is to keep pace with the rapidly increasing demands for its service. He referred to 10-year growth figures which show an increase of 250 percent in laboratory tests, a 295 percent increase in electrocardiograms, growth of 161 percent in X-Ray examinations, 49 percent more emergency room visits, and a 24 percent increase in clinic visits.

"More people are making more use of more services," he said.

As part of the Muhlenberg program, a two-story addition for the pathology laboratory and X-ray department is nearing completion. To be ready for occupancy in April, the addition will house the new cobalt therapy unit made possible by the Women's Auxiliary through their campaign pledge of $250,000.

This spring, ground will be broken for a seven-story Tower Building, fully air conditioned, which will provide up to 50 new beds in private and semi-private rooms, and will replace outdated pediatric, obstetrical and medical-surgical beds. Most of the main floor of the new Tower Building will be occupied by the Ambulatory Health Care Center, a new concept in community medicine which will centralize Muhlenberg's 32 specialty clinics and other outpatient services.

Also as part of the program, emergency facilities will be expanded, the power plant and electrical distribution system will be improved, three new elevators will be installed, additional central air conditioning will be provided for existing patient facilities, and storage facilities will be improved.

Fitzpatrick said this week that the hospital has $4,900,000 in available funds, including a $400,000 federal grant; invested reserves of $4,500,000, including accumulated bequests and contributions; and an approved 20-year mortgage of $2,000,000. The remaining $4,800,000, he said, must come from corporations, foundations, and individuals throughout Muhlenberg's three-county service area.

of today, but a century ago they had far the best school systems in the state. Newark -- with the worst problems today -- was then a national leader in public education. The big cities today get proportionally more tax funds for schools than the wealthier suburbs. The reverse was true for Newark in 1871 -- the year that public education finally became free in New Jersey. A century ago, City Superintendent of Schools George B. Sears could complain:

"The city of Newark pays nearly $40,000 more into the State Treasury for school purposes than she receives back again, so that we are paying considerable money to school the country children."

In 1871, Newark was the largest city in the state and 13th largest in the nation, reports the New Jersey Education Association. It had 27,868 children aged 5 to 18. As today, New Jersey's second largest municipality was Jersey City, with 24,635 in its 5-18 census. Next came Paterson with 10,029, Camden with 6,880 and Trenton with 6,099.

The other communities listed in the 1871 State School Report as cities were Bridgeton, Elizabeth, Millville, New Brunswick, Orange, Perth Amboy, Phillipsburg, Plainfield, Rahway, and Salem. The 1872 report added Atlantic City and Lambertville to the list of city school districts.

Jersey City in 1871 had a current-expenditure school budget of $194,000 and school property valued at $700,000 -- including two new school houses costing $80,000 each. Many of its 176 teachers were graduates of the school system's Saturday Normal School.

From Paterson, City Superintendent William Swinburne made a prediction not upheld by history: "The standard of our schools is gradually rising, and our present Board, by their liberal expenditure of money both for educational and building purposes, seem destined to give all needful school accommodations for the present and future wants of the city."

But, says N.J.E.A., the leading school system in New Jersey was Newark's, with 13,232 students and 26 school buildings, including three that had just opened in 1871. Of these 26 buildings, 13 are still in use a century later.

In the heyday of the one-room school, Newark differed by having large school buildings and by separating children into classes according to their ages.

Although not required by law to do so, Newark in the 1860's provided a full nine months of free education to all comers. N.J.E.A. reports, Children started their education in a primary school, then advanced to a grammar school.

Beyond that, Newark was one of the few school systems to run a high school -- available only to those who could pass the entrance examination. In 1869, Superintendent Sears gave this description of Newark's high school:

"41 young ladies and gentlemen graduated the present year. Classes are promoted year by year on the basis of a written examination upon the subjects pursued during the year, and the final examination for graduation embraces Rhetoric, Physiology, Geometry, Algebra, Cuesar, Virgil, and the Constitution of the United States. Seven days were spent in the examinations."

Despite Newark's pre-eminence in New Jersey and its national prestige, educational challenges remained for its schools. As Sears wrote in 1869:

"We are holding our way -- gaining some conquests over ignorance and error -- but a complete and decisive victory looks to be far in the distance."

Richard A. Feldman law student, will speak at the ethical Society of Essex County, 516 Prospect st., Maplewood, at 11 a.m. His topic will be "World Federalism."

Musical selections will be given by Alan Relkin, cello. The public is invited to attend the meeting and the discussion hour which will follow.

Dramatic road to UC Freshman's family fled Cuba

While some young people scorn the life style of their parents and the world they have inherited, one Union College coed readily admits if it weren't for her parents' sacrifice and love, she might have been living under a dictatorship and facing "a bleak future, to say the least."

Miss Maria Columbe of Summit, freshman student at Union College's Cranford campus, recounted the dramatic escape her family made from Cuba and which she says, strengthened the close ties among them all.

In 1962, Jose Columbe, a well-respected veteran member of the Cuban Armed Forces, realized the direction his government was taking and the ultimate threat of the leadership of Fidel Castro. Wanting something else for his children, he decided to flee the country.

Columbe requested passports for his family to visit the States, and was granted a leave of absence from his duties. Under ordinary circumstances, Army brass would have investigated the request, but ironically because of Columbe's fine record of service in the army, no suspicions were raised.

MARIA SAID this smooth plan developed only one thing. In slow, carefully-spoken words, she explained, "My mother's permanent records were not cleared and she couldn't leave the country. She was forced to remain behind while, I, 13 at the time, my sister, then six, and my father fled the country. Fortunately, two months later, my mother was able to leave Cuba safely and join us, since the government had not yet discovered our 'vacation' was permanent."

In Miami, the Columbes joined a growing community of Cuban refugees, which also included many of their relatives who had also left Cuba. Various social agencies across the country lend moral support to the group and several organizations would "adopt" a family, finance their move to another state, and help find employment and shelter for the family.

The United Presbyterian Church at New Providence sponsored the "adoption" of the Columbes and helped them find a home in Summit, Columbe joined the firm of Killiam Associates, Millburn, as a printer.

MARIA ATTENDED Summit High School, where she first learned English and then took a secretarial course. After graduation, she attended the School of Data Programming, Union, and later was employed by CIBA, Summit. In April, 1969, Maria decided to return to school and entered Miami Dade Junior College under a special loan program for Cubans. However, she missed home so she transferred to Union College.

A Spanish major, Maria hopes to attend Montclair State College after graduation and eventually teach.

Maria values the freedom she believes is associated with American life and frequently gets upset with some of her contemporaries who chant the praises of Communist regimes.

"When one comes as close as we have to the threat of living under a dictatorship and the terrorist atmosphere surrounding the existence of our relatives still in Cuba, then we can really appreciate the freedom of living here. Certainly, I know there is oppression, and poverty and a war being fought, but the solution is not to sing the glories of a Communist society."

County GOP unit urges adoption of ecology suit bill

The Young Republicans of Union County unanimously urged the adoption of Assembly bill A-1268 at a special meeting last Saturday. They also urged the rejection of a proposed city of 200,000 people for the Hackensack meadowlands. James J. Fulcomer of Rahway, the group's chairman, presided.

Assembly bill A-1268, introduced by N.J. Assemblyman Thomas H. Kean (R-Essex), would permit a citizen to sue a plant, company, or factory that pollutes the environment and would allow citizens to sue the state for higher regulatory standards in pollution matters. The Young Republicans claimed that this bill would enable those "most victimized by pollution" to seek relief from its "ravages" and that the absence of such a law frustrates "man's natural right to a healthy environment" by denying him "both the pursuit and attainment of justice" in the courts. Fulcomer noted that A-1268 would provide "a safety valve, a last resort, for the justifiable frustration that youthful environmental activists encounter in their struggle for a healthy environment."

The Young Republicans charged that the proposal for a city by the Hackensack Meadowlands Development Commission "would add greatly to the already excessive pollution of the area." Such a city, they claimed, would be "very vulnerable to poisoned air trapped by summertime atmospheric inversions" resulting from its location in a pocket between higher elevations. They advocated instead an "ecological and recreational preserve" to protect the meadowland's "vast potential as a source of shellfish, shrimp and other marine life."

The organization rejected a proposal for a sports stadium because the majority felt it would impair the ecology of the meadowlands and that the money "could better be spent on the pressing needs of New Jersey's deteriorating cities" or "to lessen public education's dependence on the property tax."

The next meeting of the County Council of the Young Republicans will be at 8 p.m., Monday, in the Villa Restaurant, Summit. Union County residents under 38 years old interested in joining the Young Republicans should send their names and addresses to Robert E. Rooney, Jr., executive director, 428 Durling rd., Union or call Fulcomer at 388-4378.

CANDY BY TOM DORR

Alexian begins fund campaign for $3 million

Brother Ronald Ruberg, C.F.A., chief executive officer of Alexian Brothers Hospital, Elizabeth, has announced the launching of a $3,000,000 public subscription fund-raising campaign as part of a building expansion program now under way.

Plans call for the construction of a five-story, patient tower addition, to which another three floors can be added at a later date if desired and feasible. Alexian Brothers Hospital now has 193 beds and the expansion includes the addition of 200 new beds, with emphasis on extended and intensive care.

Other ancillary needs include the acquisition of land, expansion of parking space, a new power plant, new storage and supply rooms, expansion of emergency care and outpatient facilities, and expansion of dietary, administrative, social services, and medical record facilities.

The cost of providing these total needs will be in excess of $10,000,000. The Alexian Brothers plan through mortgages, grants and loans to finance the major portion of the cost, approximately $7,000,000. The announced public campaign is to provide the other $3,000,000.

The scope of solicitation is to include geographically all of Union County, as well as adjacent areas serviced by the hospital. Those to be solicited will include individuals, the professions, foundations, large and small businesses, commerce and industry, clubs and organizations.

The first phase of solicitation will include the hospital medical staff, hospital employees, the women's Auxiliary Guild, and the Alexian Brothers Foundation, who will be asked to give financial support to the program.

Brother Ronald Ruberg stated that, "hospital employee solicitation will be initiated the latter part of this month and, as the campaign progresses, volunteer solicitors will be enlisted to provide personal contact with as many prospects as possible. We plan to have all soliciting divisions under way no later than June."

Red Cross on lookout for volunteers Aides needed for many services, programs

The Red Cross has room for volunteers to work in a wide variety of services and programs. Miss Genevieve Pascale, public relations chairman for the Union County branch, stated this week in launching an appeal for more workers.

She emphasized the extent of Red Cross services and asked possible volunteers to give the idea special consideration during the month of March, which is National Red Cross Month.

"A major obligation of the American Red Cross is to act as the medium of voluntary relief and communications for members of the armed forces," Miss Pascale said. "Family problems and personal emergencies, magnified by the serviceman's distance from home, make up the vast majority of cases in which the Red Cross is asked to help. And when a serviceman becomes a veteran, the Red Cross continues to help him and his family in re-adjusting to his return to civilian life," she said.

In summarizing other programs, she stated: "Best known of all Red Cross services is the emergency program to relieve human suffering in time of disaster and the long-range recovery assistance plan to help families and individuals back to normal living. It is a fact that all Red Cross disaster relief assistance is an outright gift from the American people through the Red Cross — no repayment is required."

"The friend concept of neighbor helping neighbor in time of need has flourished in America from earliest times. The Red Cross is a nationwide organization that helps Americans carry out this concept by putting their time and abilities to work in an organized way for the benefit of the community. It is a fact that nearly 2,300,000 trained, active Red Cross volunteers outnumber the career staff 166 to 1."

"Volunteer blood donors each year offer their countrymen the greatest gift of all by contributing more than three million units of whole blood through the Red Cross Blood Program. No charge is ever made for the blood itself.

"The Red Cross Youth program channels the enthusiasm of children and youth, encouraging them to take part in community projects they have helped to plan or to work side-by-side with adults in established programs. Red Cross Youth provides young volunteers an opportunity to serve as water safety aides, in disaster operations, as assistants in government projects such as Project Head Start as counselors in camps for the handicapped and retarded and in hospitals and homes for the aged."

"Teaching first aid skills, swimming, life-saving, and small craft safety have been principal programs of the Red Cross for more than half a century. More than 68 million certificates have been earned by people completing the free first aid, swimming and life-saving courses."

"Since the American Red Cross established the first public health visiting nurse program more than 61 years ago, Nursing Programs have made valid contributions to the nation's health. Through basic courses in home nursing and mother and baby care, skills important in home care of the sick and in the care of the newborn are taught. Thousands of volunteer nurses teach in Red Cross chapters, preparing others to meet nursing needs in time of disaster. During the past year, Red Cross nurses were engaged in 2,300 disaster assignments.

"These are just some of the facts and figures," said Miss Pascale. "Red Cross volunteers do much more."

Red Cross volunteers are needed in every phase of Red Cross work, she said. Those wishing to volunteer their services or take any of the courses offered by Red Cross should phone Red Cross headquarters at 353-2500.

The Union County Red Cross also has an educational film and speaker's bureau, said Miss Pascale. "We urge you to please help us spread the word of your American Red Cross on the job by requesting a film and a speaker for your club or organization."

Panel to discuss evaluation at psychiatric clinic meeting

"The Problems of Intensive Child Evaluation" will be discussed by a panel of three speakers at the annual meeting of the Union County Psychiatric Clinic Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. at the First Baptist Church, Westfield.

Executive Director Benjamin H. Haddock announced this week that the subject will be discussed by Dr. Catherine Spears, pediatric neurologist from the Children's Specialized Hospital, Mountainside; Alois J. Studeck, supervisor-special services, Westfield Public Schools; and by Dr. Jay W. Fidler, medical director of the Union County Psychiatric Clinic.

The program has been organized by Dr. George James, chairman, Mrs. Edward Reisen and Mrs. Eugene Stephens. President Carlyle W. Crane of Plainfield announced that officers will be elected as will members of the board of trustees and the budget and program for the year will be discussed. Administrative and committee reports will be made.

The clinic is a non-profit organization directed by a board of trustees made up of volunteer community leaders from the 21 towns in Union County and in North Plainfield which it serves, treating short term and emergency cases of mental and nervous disturbance on an out-patient basis. Its work is credited with saving many patients from being committed to institutions because of its quick, local professional psychiatric care.

The clinic is supported by contributions from funds, foundations, individuals, municipal governing bodies, boards of education, county freeholder board grants and fees from patients based on ability to pay.

Its current case load includes 279 children and 418 adults with a waiting list of 60. Treatment is administered by a professional staff of psychiatrists, psychologists and psychiatric social workers. The clinic also acts as consultant to the courts.

Its largest case load at present is in Plainfield where 61 children and 86 adults are under care of the clinic's psychiatric staff. Elizabeth has 56 children and 71 adults under treatment.

The case load breakdown by towns listing children and adults in that order follows: Berkeley Heights, 4; Clark, 4; Cranford, 33; 20; Elizabeth, 46; 71; Fanwood, 17; 3; Garwood, 5; 3; Hillside, 12; 14; Kenil-

Dixie 'divorce' cited by Bar in backing reform

"As many as 20,000 Jerseyans may have been ensnared in the 1970 Alabama divorce scandal, a dramatic demonstration of the need for change in New Jersey's divorce laws," according to the chairman of the Family Law Section of the New Jersey State Bar Association, Richard J. Feinberg of Bayonne. Feinberg made the point in a letter sent to state senators.

He urged the lawmakers to pass Assembly Bill 1100, which would ease the state's divorce laws. The Assembly-passed bill is in the Senate Judiciary Committee. The trustees of the association endorsed the bill after a poll of the Family Law Section revealed overwhelming support.

The Alabama scandal arose when "unscrupulous (Alabama) attorneys and judges collaborated to grant paper divorces to out-of-state residents," Feinberg explained. "The 'divorce' decrees are void, even in Alabama."

"It will probably take years before the last complication ensuing from this tragedy has been unraveled," he continued. More people who obtained these "divorces" were from New Jersey than from any other state. "This is a graphic demonstration that this state's laws are excessively restrictive, more so than almost any other state."

"As striking as the numbers who made the journey to Alabama to seek relief from an intolerable marital situation," Feinberg added, "is the realization that many others did not, but would have if they could have: those too poor, or unaware of the Alabama situation. New Jersey's laws are not only burdensome to individuals, but they are discriminatory in their effects," Feinberg concluded.

Feinberg asked citizens to write, phone, or telegraph their state senators urging passage of the divorce reform bill.

Nixon commends institute director

President Nixon has commended William Whipple Jr., director of the Water Resources Research Institute at Rutgers University, for his "outstanding leadership in the planning and management of unpolluted water and land resources."

The award is "in recognition of exceptional service to others, in the finest American tradition."

In an accompanying letter, the President noted that Whipple is "making an important contribution to our understanding of the impact of man's activities on the environment."

General Whipple (U.S.A.-Ret.) was appointed director of the institute in 1965. He plans and coordinates Rutgers' water resources research program, and maintains liaison with researchers doing related work at Princeton University and Stevens Institute.

Some of the projects of the institute are an effort to save the Upper Passaic River, and future use of water from the Mullica River Basin.

The institute's offices are located at the Rutgers College of Agriculture and Environmental Science.

First 'royal ballet' at Symphony Hall

The first ballet company in the English-speaking world to be granted the prefix "Royal" to its name will perform at Symphony Hall, Newark, on Thursday, March 18.

The Royal Winnipeg will make its only New York metropolitan area appearance at Symphony Hall. The performance, one of Symphony Hall's International Dance Series, will begin at 8 p.m.

The Royal Winnipeg Ballet — as it was then called — became the first Canadian ballet company to perform by Royal Command when it appeared before the then Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh. Later, as queen, Elizabeth conferred on the Winnipeg Ballet the double distinction of being the first "Royal" company in the British Commonwealth — three years before Sadlers Wells became the "Royal Ballet" in England.

Bell's earnings declined 11 cents per share in '70

The 1970 annual report of New Jersey Bell Telephone Co. shows a decline in earnings to $1.65 per share compared to $1.76 per share in 1969. The report was made public today by Robert W. Kleinert, company president.

Total revenues in 1970 rose to $690 million, an increase of $47 million over 1969. Total operating expenses for 1970 were $427 million, an increase of $50 million over the previous year. Net income declined to $88 million from 1969's net of $91 million.

New Jersey Bell's construction budget rose to $266 million in 1970, up $58 million over the previous year, for improvement and enlargement of the company's statewide communications network.

This record construction program was partly financed by the sale last year of $100 million in debentures at an interest cost to the company of 9.43 percent. At year's end, the total amount of outstanding debentures was $435 million. Short term debt amounted to $183.6 million and capital stock was $855 million.

KLEINERT SAID the increased costs of communications facilities and a downward trend in earnings obliged the company last September to file for its first general rate increase in 12 years.

The rate request would raise intrastate revenues by about $79 million, netting the company about $38 million after taxes. Hearings on the application are currently being

40th anniversary being celebrated by Mart Galleries

The Mart Furniture Galleries, one of New Jersey's leading furniture retailers, will celebrate its 40th Anniversary this month. The Mart Furniture Galleries, on Route 22, Union, and Route 35, Middletown, will mark the occasion with a series of "great name" birthday buys throughout March.

The first store was established in Newark 40 years ago, and specialized in appliances. Over the years the business grew to encompass the entire field of home furnishings and furniture as well as appliances.

The store's policy of concentrating on quality merchandise from nationally known manufacturers, competitively priced, and with the store's own guarantee in addition to the manufacturer's guarantee, plus free delivery, was well received by the public, and proved highly rewarding. So successful was it that another highway store was opened on Route 35, Middletown. The original Union store then was modernized and expanded to 50,000 sq. ft. of furniture, furnishings, and appliances.

Today, both Mart Furniture Galleries represent the most attractive aspects of modern furniture merchandising. The products are displayed in attractive room settings devised and decorated by professional designers on the staff of the stores. The decorators are in constant attendance to assist shoppers in planning decor and selecting the appropriate furniture, along with upholstery, occasional pieces, bedding and even fine art.

The Middletown store has a wide selection of fabrics, and custom-makes drapes to provide a completely coordinated home decoration service in connection with purchases of furniture. The Union store has a complete appliance department, specialized in Decorator Designed T.V. and Stereo Cabinets.

Specially prepared for the birthday celebration is a 64-page home decoration handbook for homemakers. It is profusely illustrated in full color, and has many suggestions for home decoration, including most effective use of space, coordination of furniture with drapes, floor coverings, and other decorative fabric elements, how to make the home more spacious and more liveable, the latest innovations in home fashions, how to find extra space in the home, how to provide for hobbies, the most effective use of color, and a furniture arrangement guide with graph and templates. The brochure is available at both stores at a special birthday price of $1.

First day cover for blood donors

Persons who donate their blood at the North Jersey-Essex County Blood Bank next week will be given a personally-addressed first day cover of the first blood donor stamp ever to be issued in the United States.

The stamp is to be issued in New York tomorrow. It was designed by Howard Muncie of Westport, Conn., and contains the words "giving blood saves lives."

A United States blood donor stamp was first suggested during World War II. Papers in the Franklin Delano Roosevelt Library at Hyde Park, New York, indicate that President Roosevelt approved such a stamp for 1945. But World War II ended and the urgency for such a stamp seemed to have passed.

In 1968 the American Association of Blood Banks again made efforts to have a stamp honoring blood donors developed. This stamp is the result of its efforts.

The blood Bank is mailing first day covers to all of its known donors of three gallons or more of blood, in addition to giving them to donors the week following the issuance.

The North Jersey-Essex County Blood Bank serves the blood needs of 35 hospitals and 58 communities in Essex, Passaic and Union counties.

Legislative lunch for Women's Clubs

Six hundred representatives of the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs are expected to attend the organization's annual legislative meeting and luncheon at the Holiday Inn, Trenton, on Monday, March 22, at 9:30 a.m.

Governor William T. Cahill and Congressman John E. Hunt will speak. The program will include discussions on pending legislation and issues by Sen. Raymond Bateman, president of the Senate; Sen. Harry L. Sears, Senate majority leader; Rep. Thomas Kean, Assembly majority leader; Sen. William V. Musto, Sen. Alfred N. Bendisone, Rep. Josephine S. Margotta and Rep. Peter W. Thomas.

At the luncheon Mrs. George F. Wehner Jr., of Westfield, president of the federation, will greet Mrs. Cahill, the honored guest.

Reischauer to speak

Edwin O. Reischauer, ambassador to Japan from 1961-66 and currently professor at Harvard University, will speak tonight at 8 o'clock in the fourth in a series of five programs at the Morris Museum of Arts and Sciences, Morristown. The series is sponsored by the Gill School, Kent Place School, Morristown School and the Morris Museum.

held by the State Board of Public Utility Commissioners in Newark. Kleinert said the rate increase is "essential" to the maintenance and expansion of good telephone service in the state. "We must have sufficient earnings to allow us to attract the investment money needed for our construction program," Kleinert continued, "and to keep dedicated employees by continuing to offer good wages and challenging jobs."

DURING 1970, the company added 193,000 phones to its network for a year-end total of 4,677,000 telephones in service. The company placed about 11 billion conductor feet of cable, two-thirds of it underground. New Jersey residents made about 22,200,000 calls on an average business day.

In 1971, the company plans to sell $80 million of New Jersey Bell stock to AT&T and to raise an additional $125 million through the sale of debentures. The construction program for 1971 is estimated at $283 million and between now and 1975 the company expects to spend about $1 billion to meet the growing needs of its customers.

Mystery and Jane Russell in spotlight at Meadowbrook

By BEA SMITH

The Meadowbrook's theater-in-the-round stage producers have taken time out from musicals and comedies to present a poor man's Agatha Christie-type murder mystery with all the trimmings called "Catch Me If You Can."

The play, by Jack Weinstock and Willie Gilbert, based on the French version by Robert Thomas, has some highly amusing moments, particularly when movie star Jane Russell, tall and attractive and really marvelous-looking, races about the stage--or bats an eyelash at the men in the cast or the men in the audience with that "Catch Me If You Can" look.

Miss Russell plays the part of Elizabeth Corban...or that is, she says she is Elizabeth Corban, wife of Daniel Corban (Jim Hawthorne), who has reported his "real" wife missing. "This is not my wife!" he screams to Police Inspector Levine (Woody Romoff), and Levine tells him he's a fool to complain...

There are three acts and the play takes place in a summer house in the Catskill Mountains on the Labor Day weekend. There are moments when the story stands completely still, but it begins to move in spurts and thanks to that suburb comedian Roinoff and Haskell Gordon who has a small role as Sidney who has the best delicatessen in the Catskills, it holds the interest of the audience.

Others in the cast are convincing, including Edward Holmes, Connie Danese and Reg Rowland Jr.

"Catch Me If You Can" has a real surprise ending (Alfred Hitchcock--are you listening?), and it has the audience gasping from its impact.

If you like mysteries with surprise endings, very funny scenes, attractive women such as Miss Russell and Miss Danese, then "Catch Me If You Can" is recommended.

CARPENTERS, ATTENTION! Sell yourself to 30,000 families with a low-cost Want Ad. Call 686-7700.

JAMES EARL JONES--Stage and screen star, who was nominated for an Oscar in the latest Academy Award race, is seen in "The Great White Hope," now playing at the Maplewood Theater in Maplewood and the Elmora Theater in Elizabeth. Jones recreates his stage role in the film in Panavision and DeLuxe color.

DR. SANTIAGO GENOVES

Peace author will lecture at Newark State

The second annual Eugene C. Wilkins Lecture will be held at Newark State College, Union, on Wednesday, March 24, at 8 p.m. Dr. Santiago Genoves, scholar and film maker, will be the lecturer. He will speak on international cooperation.

Born in Orenza, Spain, Dr. Genoves received his doctorate in anthropology at Cambridge University and from 1956 until recently served as titular research fellow at the University of Mexico. He has lectured throughout the world on human evolution, race, the biology of aggression, violence and war, and recently participated in an international symposium on war and violence.

Author of more than 100 books and articles, he has been published in six different languages. His latest book, "Is Peace Inevitable? (Aggression, Evolution and Human Destiny)," was awarded the Pope John XXIII International Prize for Peace in its original Spanish version. The film "Pax," which he conceived and wrote for the 1968 Mexican Olympics, was based on this book.

In July 1970, along with seven other international scientists and explorers, he arrived in Barbados aboard the papyrus raft RA II. Having sailed from Safi, Morocco, 57 days earlier, the group had crossed the Atlantic in an attempt to prove that the ancient Egyptians could have reached the Caribbean some 3,000 years ago. Their craft, RA II, was a replica of the sailing vessels depicted in the tomb paintings of the pharaohs.

Chairman for this year's Wilkins Lecture is Dr. Catheryn T. Eisenhardt, professor of education at Newark State College. The series was initiated in 1970 to honor the president-emeritus of the college, Dr. Eugene Wilkins, who served as president from 1950 until 1969.

State employment down for January in most categories

At an estimated 2,550,700 in January, payroll employment in New Jersey (excluding farm, domestic, self-employed and unpaid family workers) was 55,600 below the December level according to preliminary estimates prepared by the Division of Planning and Research of the N. J. Department of Labor and Industry.

Nonmanufacturing jobholdings dropped by 49,000 to 1,712,400. Seasonal furloughs in wholesale and retail trade cut back employment by 29,400 to 528,300. Cold weather further slackened construction activity by 11,700 to 112,100 in January. Following seasonal downturns were services (down 4,700) and transportation-public utilities, (down 1500). The latter industry group was affected by several labor-management disputes.

Factory employment receded by 6,600 with losses occurring both in durable and nondurable goods. Except for furniture and stone-clay-glass, which had relatively minor gains, durable goods recorded employment dips throughout all of the major industry groupings for a January decline of 2,300. The largest reduction (1,700) was in electrical machinery because of layoffs, plant closings and a general downward movement. A return from a labor-management dispute in stone, clay, and glass products was the major factor in the 700 gain in that industry. Durable goods dropped by 4,300 with losses in all major industry groups. In nondurables, seasonal layoffs hampered the food industry which dropped by 900 and the apparel industry which eased off by 1,500. Any other gains that occurred were stifled by the number of declines; the 600 rise in drugs manufacturing was offset by the remaining segments of the chemical industry.

Over the year employment was down by 5,900 with nonmanufacturing hiring (up 38,000) only partly offsetting the decline in manufacturing (down 43,900). The largest drop was in electrical machinery (down 11,700). On the other hand, nonmanufacturing employment enjoyed substantial gains in wholesale and retail trade (up 11,900), construction (up 9,400) and government (up 9,200).

Average weekly earnings of factory production workers dipped by $1.69 between mid-December and mid-January to an estimated $143.51. Although average hourly earnings rose by two cents to $3.57, the 42-minute shorter workweek (to 40.2 hours) thwarted a rise in weekly earnings. Throughout the state, average weekly earnings ranged from a low of $97.23 in the apparel industry to a high of $187.98 in the transportation equipment industry. Over-the-month fluctuations in average weekly earnings span from a drop of $27.85 in beverages due to a lack of work to a rise of $16.58 in women's apparel as a result of longer workweek.

Compared with January, 1970, average weekly earnings rose by $8.50; average hourly earnings gained $0.22, and the workweek remained about the same at 40.2.

Installation planned by vets' fraternity

The Town and Campus in Union will be the location of the third annual installation of officers of Alpha Sigma Mu Veterans' Fraternity of Newark State College tomorrow. The fraternity is composed entirely of veterans attending Newark State, a majority of them have had combat experience in Vietnam.

The officers to be installed are president, Terry Huxford of Rahway; vice president, James Coleridge of Belford; recording secretary, John Scott of Long Branch; corresponding secretary, Marvin Gerrol of Roselle; treasurer; William Hickey of Roselle; and social chairman, Stanley Lynnich of Irvington.

The outgoing officers are president, Walter Myer of Union; vice president, James Harrison III of Roselle; recording secretary, James Pepe of Union; corresponding secretary, Peter Czajkowski of Linden; and social chairman, Norman Thais of Colonia.

At the dinner, Leroy Schmidbauer of Roselle Park will be presented an award as the outstanding member of the Alpha Sigma Mu Federation for 1970. The federation is composed of fraternity chapters on 15 college and university campuses and represents over 1500 veterans attending college.

Walk to win State's economy helped poverty cash by food stamp program

A mass public demonstration, involving more than four million people, will be staged simultaneously in 40 countries over the weekend of May 7-9. The event, to focus attention on world poverty and the need for development, promises to be the biggest single act of voluntary cooperation ever organized outside of governments.

All over the world, young and many not so young will "Walk for Development." The money they receive from their sponsors for each mile they cover will be donated to anti-poverty projects.

The idea for the walk took root in the United Nations World Food Congress at the Hague in June 1970.

Research chemist lectures at seminar for high schoolers

Dr. A. Clifton Ashcraft of Somerset, research chemist with Union Carbide, Bound Brook, will be the speaker on Tuesday evening, at the Science Seminar for academically talented high school students sponsored by Union College.

Dr. Ashcraft will discuss "Modern Astronomy" in the lecture hall of the Nomahegan Building on the Cranford Campus of Union College, according to Prof. Patrick J. White of Warren Township, director of the Sperry Observatory and series coordinator.

The series of five lectures, which opened Jan. 19, focuses on recent developments and research in the scientific world. Junior and senior students from public, private, and parochial high schools in Union, Middlesex, Essex, Somerset, and Morris counties are participating in the seminars.

Other topics included in the series are discussion of the picturephone, statistics, solid waste disposal, and aquatic ecology.

Since 1961, Union College has offered the Science Seminars for high school students. Originally, the series was conducted under a grant from The Merck Company Foundation, and later the seminars were co-sponsored by Union College and Rutgers University under a special grant from the National Science Foundation, as part of its Cooperative College-School Science Program.

Dr. Ashcraft received his bachelor of science degree in chemistry from the University of Cincinnati and his doctorate in organic chemistry from the University of California at Berkeley.

'Ape' will play NSC next week

The Newark State College Theatre Guild is in rehearsal for its second production of the 1970-71 year, "The Hairy Ape," by Eugene O'Neill, will be presented on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 18, 19 and 20, at 8:30 p.m. in the Theatre for the Performing Arts on the Union campus.

The play portrays a "man of brawn" and his attempt to survive in a highly intellectual and mechanized society. Theatre Guild's production will stress the conflicting rhythms of life at sea, contrasted with the complacent rhythms of a mannered society. The production is directed by Jay Teran, with settings by Richard Turick. Both are faculty members of the English department. An original score will highlight the expressionistic physical sets by Turick.

Tickets may be purchased at the box office through tomorrow from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and next Monday through Friday, March 20, from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Orchestra seats are $1.50 and mezzanine seats are $1.00.

The cast includes: David Fiore of 237 Baltusrol ave., Springfield; Betty Jacobs of 241 E. Sixth ave., Roselle; Edward Franzese of 627 S. Springfield ave., Springfield; Donna Kurasz of 729 Roselle st., Linden.

Health film scheduled

The American Natural Hygiene Society will show a movie, "The Greatest Adventure," at LeSeul, 925 Springfield ave., Irvington, Thursday, March 18, at 8:15 p.m. The meeting is open to the public.

Walk to win State's economy helped poverty cash by food stamp program

During 1970 the Federal Food Stamp Program added $23,380,464 to the New Jersey economy in food purchasing power, reports the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

According to the agency's Food and Nutrition Service, low income families in the state paid $36,002,281 for food coupons valued at $59,381,745 during the year.

There were 261,760 persons who took part in the food assistance program in December. This represented an increase of 116,363 persons or 180 percent compared to December, 1969.

Due to the recent liberalization in the program, participants paid less for more coupons during 1970. In 1969, a participant paid an average of 69 cents per each dollar received in food coupons, while in 1970 that figure dropped to 61 cents.

In 1969, the value of bonus coupons distributed in the State came to $8,705,919. Last year's bonus coupons value of $23,380,464 represented an increase of 268 percent.
