Revaluation figures still months off

Inspectors gathering preliminary data now

Final effects of the current revaluation of property throughout the borough will not be known for several months until all phases are completed, according to Councilman Wilfred Brandt and Robert Koser, the borough tax assessor. The revaluation process began March 22.

Brandt said, "The revaluation is under way and we will not know the results until everything is counted. Anything I say would be conjecture and this is nothing to conjecture about because it is a major step."

This is the first revaluation in about 12 years. Inspectors in the field will check the inside and outside of every piece of property in the borough -- industrial, commercial, business and residential.

Brandt commented, "This is the first step in the revaluation program which will be completed many months from now. The property owners will then be advised of the value set and will have a chance to meet with and to discuss this with the reappraisal firm."

Koser said that an inspector began examining property in the northwest sector of the borough and will branch off from there. This sector is the area around Deer path, Coles avenue and Forest Hill way. Additional inspectors were put into the field this week so that all parts of the borough will be covered, he added.

Brandt commented, "The inspectors have nothing to say about establishing the value. They are just gathering preliminary data to feed into the overall picture so the appraisers can arrive at a fair value for all property. The data then is submitted to the field representatives and the appraisal experts."

Koser added, "Their primary purpose is to measure the outside of the property -- the dimensions of the building -- and to inspect the interior. The gathering and compiling of this factual information is only one part of determining the value of real estate."

"This is only one of the pieces of information in the overall picture for the new evaluation which is many months away," Brandt declared.

Inspection of each structure's exterior is for the type of construction, but mainly the Tests being made on body discovered by 2 boys in park

Tests on the badly decomposed body of a child found Monday by two boys in Echo Lake Park, Mountainside, will take at least two to three weeks, according to Capt. Clifford Kohler of the Union County Park Police. The tests are designed to determine the age, sex and how long ago death occurred.

The discovery was made about 2:30 p.m. by two boys, 8 and 9 years old, from Westfield as they were combing the banks of Nonahogan Brook for an ecology project. The boys' names were withheld on their parents' request. No identification has been attempted. Dr. Bernard Ehrenberg, the Union County medical examiner, examined the remains which were found in a blanket which also was badly decomposed. However, some blond hair remained on the skull and two teeth were found in the upper rear gums.

The boys told police they were searching the woods for metal cans for recycling. They found the blanket about 22 feet from the brook which runs into Echo Lake. The site of the discovery is about 80 feet from Mountain avenue and cannot be seen from the road, police said.

The youths told police they attempted to pick up the blanket, but "There were a lot of bugs" on it. They then tried dragging it with a stick until they saw the skull and some bones protruding.

One of the boys ran to Mountainside police headquarters to report what they had found. The other went to a pay phone and called Westfield authorities who notified the Mountainside and Union County Park Police.

The medical examiner's office directed that everything be left in the blanket and socks are

4 get court order to halt election district changes

Four Mountainside residents filed a civil suit Friday in the law division of the Superior Court of New Jersey against Mayor Thomas Ricciardi and Borough Council to set aside the ordinance setting up 10 election districts, instead of the present five, in the borough. Judge Milton Feller signed a restraining order on behalf of Edward Gary Reisdorf, Joseph J. Stypa, David A. Walsh and Joseph J. McMahon, all of whom are active Democrats, to stop the borough from proceeding further in implementing the ordinance. They are being represented by Robert H. Jaffe, a partner in the law firm of Reisdorf and Jaffe, who ran as a Democratic candidate in last year's Borough Council election.

Borough Attorney Charles Irwin said the borough is filing responding affidavits in an attempt to stop the restraining order. He is planning to argue the borough's case today before Judge Feller.

The Borough Council passed the ordinance providing for 10 election districts February 16 by a 4 to 1 vote. The plaintiffs claim that the ordinance is contrary to the state law on redistricting.

The law they cite says, "In redistricting the election districts in which voting machines are to be used, . . . may contain seven hundred and fifty registered voters where one machine is to be used, or one thousand registered voters where two machines are to be used." (defendant has power to subdivide districts.)

The plaintiffs claim the borough owns eight voting machines and has about 4,500 voters. According to them, the borough should keep its present five voting districts.

THE COMPLAINT continues that under the ordinance "there will be established a subdivision of 10 election districts. This will require the purchase of two additional voting machines in order to provide a voting machine for each election district. The additional election districts will require extra poll workers, election officials and challengers for the candidates."

"Consequently, the action of the defendant in passing Ordinance No. 439-71 is arbitrary, capricious, the cause of additional and unnecessary expense and inconvenience for voters, candidates, and all persons connected with the

Two persons hurt in auto accident

Two persons were slightly injured Saturday when a car and motorcycle collided at the intersection of Old Tote and Wood Valley roads, according to Mountainside police.

George E. Scholes, 33, of 323 Longview dr., Mountainside, the driver of the motorcycle, was taken by the Mountainside Rescue Squad to Overlook Hospital, Summit, where he was treated and discharged. His son, Stephen, 7, a passenger on the motorcycle, received bruises. Stephen's mother told police he would see his own doctor.

The police report said Scholes was traveling east on Wood Valley road and was approaching the intersection to make a turn onto Old Tote road. A car driven by Elsie S. Jubanowsky of 1248 Poplar ave., Mountainside, also was approaching the intersection at the same time. Scholes applied his brakes but the motorcycle fishtailed and struck the Jubanowsky car, police said.

Civil war in Pakistan strands youth

By JANICE ADLER

"It is not very clear to me what is happening in my country. All normal communication has been cut. I don't know what is happening to my family." This is the agonizing problem that is facing Haidar Ali Khan of Dacca, East Pakistan, who is living temporarily in Springfield.

East Pakistan is wracked with civil war as the Bengalis of East Pakistan attempt to break away from West Pakistan and form a separate state -- Bangla Desh, meaning Bengal State. The two parts of Pakistan are separated by 1,000 miles of Indian territory.

Haidar explained his feelings and what the situation was before he came to the United States this winter for the World Youth Forum. He said, "Being a member of the Bengali race, I cannot stand the atrocities West Pakistan is doing in Bangla Desh. Now the whole situation is very uncertain. I believe that things now are at the stage where we cannot go back to the way it was."

"I was hopeful there would be a peaceful solution. Because of West Pakistan's actions, there can be no reconciliation.

"When I left home on Feb. 3, elections had been held by then. (The election was held Dec. 7, 1970.) Everything was quiet even though there was some conflict between labor and police.

"The Awami League (the major political party in East Pakistan) was already leading the Assembly. According to a decision by our president, Yahya Khan, a constitution would have been drafted within four months. I was doubtful if this could be done because four months is really a very short time for drafting a constitution.

"The East Pakistan party was strong for regional autonomy with a weak center. I always doubted if West Pakistani leaders were honest about their intentions. In the past years they made some promises, but never kept them."

Haidar TOLD how the insurrection affected him personally. He commented, "I was more or less mentally shocked. I have a personal reason because my family is in Dacca which reportedly was three-quarters destroyed. The West Pakistanis are killing Bengalis and Bengalis are dying like flies, according to reports.

"A few months ago I would not have supported disintegration. Now I have no thought of personal loss, be it family or friends. It is a question of my country's independence. I do not consider myself as a Pakistani. We are exploited by the West Pakistanis and I cannot think of myself as a brother of those who are killing my people.

"I'm trying to do as much as I can from here. There is an organization, the East Pakistan League of America, in New York. I have worked in their office and we are trying to help my people.

"My feeling is that West Pakistan cannot return control to East Pakistan for a long time. It will take months or years. Physically, East and West Pakistan are separated. East Pakistan will eventually break away to form an independent country.

"Our future will be very different from our past. Our relations with India will be more friendly and stronger. This is just conjecture. However, the situation is out of my hands. I know a more difficult period is coming when we become independent.

"I ANTICIPATE a struggle. It depends on the rest of the world. If it stays passive, as it now is, it will take two or three years. Pakistan is not very rich to continue this luxury of warfare. I think if this continues too long the situation will deteriorate. The West Pakistani government cannot control the situation if it gets bad. West Bengal in India is already supporting us. There is a possibility that the war might be finished in a few months.

"It is possible that the revolt might not succeed, but I do not believe this will happen. There is no way to go back and live as brothers, so we have to see it through.

"Pakistan is a very poor country and cannot continue war on a massive scale. For the time being, West Pakistan can control the major cities and bring troops and food. This cannot continue. My people will ultimately overthrow them."

Haidar described how he became "stranded" in the United States. He said, "I originally came over as a delegate to the World Youth Forum and was supposed to stay 10 weeks in this country. Personally, I don't know what I'm going to do because Dacca University was destroyed. I may not be able to attend.

"There were minor disturbances the first week in March. Then things seemed to be growing worse. I originally was supposed to leave March 16, but I got a telegram from home saying I should not come back. It said things were not favorable.

"From then on I was trying to fly home. On March 28 I tried to go home, but an insurrection took place that Thursday so I again had to cancel my flight. I am staying with the Sidney Neidich family at 33 Fernhill rd., Springfield, until something is settled.

"I am a senior in high school in East Pakistan and was planning to go to the university this fall. I live with my mother, immediate older brother, and two sisters in Dacca. My father is deceased. The World Youth Forum is thinking about eventually getting me into college here if I have to stay that long a time.

"I think that Springfield people have done much for me, such as their letting me come to Jonathan Dayton (Regional High School, Springfield). Mr. Giebelhaus (social studies teacher Gus Giebelhaus) here has done almost everything for me that can be done. I am attending classes informally because I cannot get credit for them."

Haidar EXPLAINED the background of the conflict. He declared, "Pakistan was established in 1947 when it was partitioned from India. The main reason for the partition was because we are Moslems. We had nothing else in common with West Pakistan. The ideology was the same -- a predominantly Moslem state for Moslems.

"During the first few days we had a common religion and theme which cemented us. India was our common enemy. Potentially, India was more dangerous to West Pakistan because of the long border. There also is Kashmir. West Pakistan wants to include Kashmir."

"We extended our support to West Pakistan in every conflict with India. During this time West Pakistan was getting richer and richer and East Pakistan was getting poorer and poorer.

"The investment of most money was in West Pakistan for new roads, industries, education and building new cities. The capitol and military headquarters were in West Pakistan. The offices of businesses and banks were in West Pakistan. Relatively few industries were established in East Pakistan and most were controlled by West Pakistan. Almost nothing was done to control floods in East Pakistan.

"They never let us consume what we produced. They just passed laws which required everything to go to West Pakistan first. Then they sent it back to us and sold it at a higher price.

"They even went to the extent to make Urdu (the language of West Pakistan) the only national language. We speak Bengali in East Pakistan. We had to give lives to make Bengali one of our national languages.

"THE GAP KEPT widening, but we agreed to parity (an equal number of representatives from East and West Pakistan), but East Pakistan is more populous. So we just conceded.

"In 1958, we had martial law. In 1965, the tension temporarily stopped because there was a war with India. After the war the economy became less stable. People in East Pakistan were suffering. They were starving and there was not enough clothes. Students protested and demonstrated.

Changes in employment

The greatest net change in the size of the vacation period when students are taking summer jobs. In 1970, for example, the civilian labor force of all ages increased by 3.1 million between May and July and then dropped by 2.3 million between July and September.

Tip for moving plant

Before moving your container plants outdoors for spring and summer vacations, it would be wise to check and see if larger clay pots are needed to accommodate added warm weather growth. Soak new clay pots in water for half an hour before repotting.

"CURTAIN OF DARKNESS"
The Army has pointed its ugly gun at Lt. Calley and has squeezed the trigger. The bullet didn't kill Lt. Calley, but the wound he received will never heal. The wound cuts deep into the American conscience. This past week has seen a new curtain of darkness descending upon the already weakened American spirit. Calley has become a scapegoat for a larger issue which the Army is afraid to face. Our involvement in this war has been an atrocity and now the Army tries to cloud this, by focusing attention on one low-ranking person who was following order of higher-ranking officers. The war is an atrocity-producing machine, and the situations in Vietnam have been such that they would inevitably lead to the My Lais. And one must look at the system that trained Lt. Calley. One word was imprinted on his brain—kill.

Calley said he was following orders. And when a situation like My Lai occurred, the Army went after the lower man, the man in the middle. No one goes after the generals. I can't see why the case should not be taken up to the office of the presidency. (President Johnson) Wasn't it a national policy to have the free-fire zones and treatment of all civilians as Viet Cong, the enemy?

The jury's decision raises another question. If Lt. Calley is guilty for following his orders, then is Hanoi correct in keeping U.S. pilots as "war criminals"? Not an easy answer.

When I read about Lt. Calley, the My Lais, the fire base Mary Ann, the missing copter pilots, and see the pictures of the green plastic bags, terror-stricken Vietnamese soldiers hanging on the copter skids, and the dirt smeared, fatigued face of a GI, I want to shout one loud and clear word—Enough!

Body found

being sent to the Federal Bureau of Investigation's laboratory for identification purposes, Capt. Kohler said.

Police said they are unable to determine if the child died by foul play. The body could have been in the woods for many months because it would not have decomposed badly during the winter, they added.

The investigation is continuing, but police said they know of no reports of lost or abandoned children in this area over the past year. A teletype containing all the facts will be sent out as soon as more information is available, Capt. Kohler said. This will help authorities trace the body.

Capt. Kohler complimented the boys on their "presence of mind" for calling police and not letting the body stay where it was.

dimensions, Koser said. On the inside of the building, the inspectors look for the quality of construction, interior features and whether the general condition is good or not, he added. The interior features involve specific utilities, such as heating and baths.

Brandt said, "It's too early to go into the final valuation because many studies have to be made before the revaluation is completed." These studies include the price paid for real estate in the borough, analyzing how a particular piece of property relates to others in the borough and verification of figures, he added.

Koser commented, "The same procedure would relate to industrial, commercial, business and residential property."

Both agreed that "it will be several months before any figures will be developed on any piece of property in the borough. When it is developed property owners will be notified."

They requested that "everyone cooperate with the inspectors and let them examine the property and answer the inspectors' questions."

Report from Trenton

By State Senator Matthew J. Rinaldo

Like a concrete sword of Damocles, the threat of I-95 has hung for several months over the Watchung Reservation. Understandably concerned that this magnificent recreation area might be bisected for a second major highway, a group of concerned citizens called Friends of the Watchung have been mobilized to fight the threat.

I am pleased to report that I have secured a commitment in writing from State Transportation Commissioner John C. Kohl, who has said, "there are no plans for any additional state highways to be built through the Watchung Reservation."

In his letter, Commissioner Kohl reiterated the verbal commitment he made to me last fall, when I guided him through a tour of the trouble sites in Union County. At the time of our visits to more than 20 of the most congested spots in Union County, I conveyed to Commissioner Kohl the understandable concern felt by the majority of Union County residents that one of the alignments for a major north-south artery would cut through Union County, which already has borne more than its fair share of highway construction.

The path which aroused the greatest concern was one that would have entered Union County from the south in Scotch Plains and passed through the Diamond Hill Road gap in the first Watchung Mountain and then travel through the reservation. It then would have passed along the western border of Summit to the north.

ALTHOUGH THERE APPARENTLY IS no feasible alternative to placing Route 78 through the Watchung Reservation, we in Union County needed this pledge of the Transportation Commissioner that the park will not be violated a second time. There is precious little open space for residents of this rapidly urbanizing county to enjoy a respite. Watchung Reservation is one of those few. It should remain as it is, if at all possible.

Commissioner Kohl's assurance that there are no plans to place another highway within the reservation is welcome news to those who care as I do about our environment. I am also quite sure that his commitment will assuage the justifiable concerns of all of the Friends of Watchung.

I would like to think that the tour I arranged for Commissioner Kohl in Union County last fall played some role in his announcement. By bringing the commissioner from Trenton for a first-hand look at our problems in Union County, I believe I made a contribution to sound highway planning. Because of his willingness to get into the field to see for himself, John Kohl has proved to be an archnair commissioner who would be willing to settle for the second- and third-hand reports of conditions in the field.

He has laid the foundation for progress in highway construction in New Jersey, which has lagged behind for too long. I am quite hopeful that under his leadership, we will see beneficial and positive action in the very near future.

The high team series of 3,002 and the high team game of 1,049 were won by the Central Jersey Bank and Trust Co. March 29 of the Mountainside Men's league at Echo Lanes. John Pikulecki rolled 651 and 264 for the high individual series and high individual game, respectively.

The top five teams and the number of games they have won are Owen's Flying "A," 72; Mountainside Deli, 69; John's Auto, 67; Lynn Insurance, 67, and Mountainside Luncheonette, 64.

Union, South Plainfield shock Highlanders nine

By BILL LOVETT

Much of the optimism about Gov. Livingston's baseball prospects vanished last week. The Highlanders, picked by many to win the Watchung Conference championship this season, dropped their first two games of the season, losing to South Plainfield, 3-1, and Union, last year's state champs, 6-0.

However, the season is barely a week old, and players on the team point out that Regional is not yet playing up to its potential. Fielding lapses hurt Gov. Livingston last week, with Highlanders errors giving up key runs. In both games they put Regional behind early and the Highlanders were unable to overcome these mistakes.

South Plainfield is not a strong team, but it scored twice without a hit in the first inning and held on to defeat Regional. It was an extremely tough loss for Livingston's Tom Wilson, who pitched a three-hitter and did not give up an earned run.

In the first, an error and walk quickly put runner on with no one out. Then a South Plainfield batter hit a squibbler down the third base line that Wilson could not handle to load the bases. Regional was fortunate to escape with just two runs, which scored on a sacrifice fly and a fielder's choice. In its half of the second, Gov. Livingston scored a run on an error, a ground ball and a single by Dick Trakimas, one of the only four hits the Highlanders got. South Plainfield added an insurance run in the fifth. Gov. Livingston was unable to muster anything after the second, despite a single and a double by Bob Honecker.

Regional went into the Union game seeking revenge for a 12-0 pasting last season, but the 6-0 loss was not a surprise. Union may have the best team in the state again this season, despite the loss of All-Stater Dave Daniels. Union put the game out of reach with a five-run second inning.

The Highlanders managed only three hits off Jim Curnal, who displayed a blazing fastball. The righthander struck out 13, roughly two an inning. Meanwhile, Kyle McCormick had his problems as Union scored five runs on two hits, two errors and two walks, one of which forced in a run.

Junior Kurt Mohs came in at the start of the third inning and pitched five strong innings, giving up one hit and one run. He walked none and fanned four in an impressive showing.

Know Your Government

From N.J. Taxpayers Association

Approximately 11 percent of the $1.8 billion budget proposed by the Governor for New Jersey's state government in the next fiscal year will go for public employee pensions and benefits.

This is disclosed in a table prepared in connection with its analysis, "The Governor's Budget for 1972", an annual publication of the New Jersey Taxpayers Association.

Proposed spending in 1972 for pensions and benefits totals $198.3 million. While this is more than triple expenditures of ten years ago, it represents an overall drop of nearly $12 million, from adjusted appropriations of the current year. Pension costs are down $17.7 million while benefit costs increase $5.8 million.

The lowered budget outlay for pensions next year is attributed not to a reduction in the programs, but to an increase from 4 percent to 5-1/2 percent in interest income assumed for the actuarially funded pension systems. This reduces the state's annual contributions to the funds. As listed in the new state budget, pension costs and changes from the current year include: Teachers' Pension and Annuity Fund, $72 million, (down $20.9 million); Public Employees Retirement System, $13.9 million, (down $8.7 million); Consolidated Police and Firemen's Pension Fund, $6.2 million, (down $0.4 million); State Police Retirement System, $4.3 million, (down $2.2 million); Alternate Benefits Program for Higher Education, $4.1 million, (down $1.1 million); Miscellaneous Pension Funds, $2.5 million, (up $0.7 million); Pension Increase Act, $5.0 million, (up $1.5 million).

Costs to the state for employer contributions to federal Social Security will increase $13.3 million to $68.5 million in the new fiscal year. This climb is necessitated by: (1) an increase in the employers' contribution rate from 4.8 percent to 5.2 percent effective Jan. 1, 1971, and (2) 1971 state salary adjustments which raised more individual salaries to the present $7,800 maximum contribution base.

Benefit costs are listed in the budget at $21.8 million.

Snapshots in space

Camera firm offers free show

The United States distributors of the camera used by American astronauts has made available a free slide-tape program for showings before community, school, church and business groups.

Pallard Inc., Linden, the distributors of Hasselblad cameras, said the slide-tape program "Hasselblad in Space," consists of 80 slides accompanied by a professional narration record on a single five-inch reel of magnetic tape. The program runs about 20 minutes.

Hasselblad cameras have played an important part of every NASA space mission since Walter Schirra's Mercury flight in October, 1962. The first Hasselblad 500C camera to go into space is now part of a permanent space exhibit at the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D. C., while a Hasselblad 500EL camera waits on the moon to be retrieved by some future visitor.

Since a Hasselblad has photographed every major space event since project Mercury, Gemini and Apollo missions—some of the most famous slides are the spectacular earthrise and the first astronauts on the moon during the Apollo 11 mission.

Recognition of these pictures underscores the tremendous value of the space pictures. Aside from their appeal as fresh views of an ancient universe, the photos have proven invaluable to scientists working on vexing earth problems. The "Hasselblad in Space" slides clearly show that pictures from outer space have already provided specific answers to age-old questions concerning earth's weather, natural resources and environment.

NSC will conduct public employment relations workshop

Anyone interested in presenting "Hasselblad in Space" should contact Pallard Inc., 1900 Lower Rd., Linden, 07036.

A workshop on public employment collective negotiations will be held at Newark State College on Friday and Saturday, April 23 and 24, by the college's Center for Continuing Education.

The workshop is designed for public employment representatives in municipal, county and state government who are concerned with employee relations and collective negotiations. It will deal with practical problems faced by those involved with public sector bargaining.

Robert R. Bickel, member of the Mediation and Fact Finding Panel of the New York State Public Employment Relations Board and special assistant to the Chancellor of Higher Education of New Jersey, will conduct the workshop.

FDU names chief of academic affairs

Dr. Jerome M. Pollack, 44, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences and professor of geology at the University of Rhode Island, has been named vice-president of academic affairs at Fairleigh Dickinson University. The appointment becomes effective July 1.

In announcing the appointment of the university's senior academic administrator, Fairleigh Dickinson President J. Osborn Fuller said: "Dr. Pollack is an extraordinary administrator who has developed an outstanding esprit de corps in the college where he is now dean. He is also in tune with our objective of civic service, which over the years has been a hallmark of Fairleigh Dickinson University. We are very pleased to have him join us."

Dr. Pollack studied engineering at the University of Illinois and went on to earn his B.S. degree in geology at the University of Oklahoma in 1949. He held several teaching positions at Oklahoma while gaining the M.S. degree in 1951, and his Ph. D. in 1959. He also held positions with Humble Oil and Refining and the Samedan Oil Company.

The workshop will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. both days. It will focus on the provisions and impact of Chapter 303, Public Laws of 1968, which guarantees public employees the right to organize, obtain recognition and negotiate written agreements with their public employers covering terms and conditions of their employment.

Registration information may be obtained from the Center for Continuing Education, Division of Field Services, Newark State College, Union 07083, phone 289-4500, Ext. 320.

3-point plan is proposed to solve airports' woes

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- Citing the fact that airport development in the United States is 45 years behind the times, a leading aviation authority has proposed a three-pronged solution to the problem of lagging development in air transport facilities.

He called for these steps:

- A change in the Federal Airport Development Assistance Program from a 50/50-percent sharing of costs between the federal government and state and local governments to a 70/30 percent federal state arrangement.
- Making privately-owned, public use airports eligible for federal aid on the same basis as publically-owned facilities.
- Reinserting the State Aviation Agency provisions into the Federal Airport and Airway Development Act (Sec. 22). This section provided state aviation agencies with federal funds for airport improvements.

Speaking before the National Association of State Aviation Officials (NASAO) at the organization's spring meeting here, Col. Francis R. Gerard, Director of Aeronautics, New Jersey Department of Transportation, said the New Jersey Airport Development Plan recommends a system of 54 airports in the state, 19 of them new. These would include airline, general aviation, STOL ports and recreational airports.

Col. Gerard is on temporary leave from the New Jersey Department of Transportation to command the 108th Tactical Fighter Wing, headquartered at McGuire Air Force Base, N.J.

Ukrainian crafts at Newark bank

The Raymond-Commerce Banking Center of the Broad National Bank, at 11 Commerce St., Newark, is sponsoring an exhibit of Ukrainian folk art, including multi-colored, batik-type Ukrainian Easter eggs and Easter bread ("paska"), in observance of Holy Week.

Also included are ceramics, hand-carved wood pieces, and embroidery. The collection is in the bank's display window, located in the lobby of the Raymond-Commerce Building.

This is the first of a series of ethnic folk art exhibits planned by the Broad National Bank during the coming year. Invitations will be extended to various nationality groups throughout New Jersey soliciting their participation.

The current exhibit is scheduled to run through the end of April and was loaned by the Ukrainian National Women's League of America, Newark Regional Council.

Public has its say on pollution at Clean Air Council hearing

The New Jersey Clean Air Council will hold a public hearing on the topic, "How Can The Citizen of New Jersey Fight Air Pollution Most Effectively?" The hearing will be held April 23, from 10:30 a.m. to 9 p.m., in the Labor Education Center Auditorium, Ryders Lane, Rutgers University. The session will recess during the luncheon and dinner hours.

The New Jersey Clean Air Council is an official body of the state government of New Jersey. Its chief function is to advise the state commissioner of environmental protection on matters pertaining to air pollution control. Its members are appointed by the Governor.

The public hearing will focus on identifying the specific concerns of the public active in air pollution control; learning the activities of citizens interested in promoting clean air; and evaluating the responsiveness of public agencies and public officials to the efforts of these individuals and groups.

Some of the questions for which the council seeks answers are: Have such groups been effective in expressing their demands to public officials? Has the Department of Environmental Protection satisfactorily responded to the interests and views of the public? Have local groups been able to generate enthusiasm for improved air quality? Is the public willing to pay the costs, financial and social, of cleaner air? The council surely will have many other such important questions to raise.

Advance registration is suggested but not required. The session is open to the public.

Bar advocates court changes in auto cases

The New Jersey State Bar Association advanced a program of major changes in automobile insurance, accident compensation, and civil litigation at a public hearing last week of the State Commission to study auto insurance problems.

"The lawyers of this state have been acutely conscious of the need for improvements in the disposition of automobile accident cases," said Marshall Selikoff, Freehold. "The need is obvious, undeniable, and urgent. The problem of the automobile accident case in court is a symptom, not the cause, of court calendar congestion." Selikoff, chairman of the association's Civil Procedure Section, spoke for the 8,000-member attorneys' organization.

Selikoff offered eight recommendations for sweeping changes in New Jersey's court system and insurance-company practices, and stated that the Bar Association will be reporting back many more recommendations to the public as its study continues:

1. Highway, automobile, and driver safety lies at the heart of skyrocketing insurance costs and the personal tragedy the costs reflect. The association is considering legislation which would make driving safer.

2. Each auto insurance company should be required to offer its insured the option of acquiring minimum first-party coverage, for himself, his family, and passengers in his vehicle, for medical and hospital expense, uninsured motorists coverage, income disability, and accidental death benefits for losses when incurred in automobile accidents.

3. Automobile liability insurers should make for economic losses. These would not be an admission of liability of the insured.

4. Early settlement programs in which panels of attorneys hear cases and recommend settlements. The Middlesex County Program has achieved remarkable success in settling cases there, saving time of judges and those who have suffered loss in accidents.

5. Compulsory arbitration, non-judicial and not binding. The right of appeal to a trial-by-jury would be preserved. Like early settlement programs, this would be a great time-saver in smaller cases.

6. A constitutional amendment mandating appointment of additional judges as population grows. The state bar has repeatedly called for prompt filling of judicial vacancies also.

7. An integrated court system would permit closer coordination. New Jersey currently has county district courts, county courts, superior courts, municipal courts, domestic relations courts, juvenile courts, chancery courts, matrimonial courts. This prevents allotment of judicial manpower and talent to relieve backlogs in particular courts. Governor Cahill has recently called for merger of the county courts into the superior court system, and an Assembly resolution to amend the Constitution to effect this was given a public hearing last week.

8. Appointment of "standing masters," non-judicial attorneys to preside over time-consuming legal matters which do not essentially require a judge.

Educators' responsibilities change But county superintendent still important

The county superintendent of schools was a key figure in the educational structure of the previous century. His duties approximated the complete range of services supplied today by the State Department of Education.

In 1871, State Superintendent of Public Instruction Ellis A. Apgar wrote this description of the county superintendent's duties: "to give advice and direction to teachers; to adjust district boundaries; to settle all disputes referred to them respecting school matters; to apportion school moneys; to examine school accounts; and to prepare reports."

Today's State Education Department has a Division of Business and Finance, Division of Curriculum and Instruction, and Division of Controversies and Disputes to provide the same range of services, reports the New Jersey Education Assn.

In addition, the county superintendent supervised the examination of would-be teachers and issued certificates to those who passed. Except in the few city systems with their own local superintendents, he had authority over every school in the county.

County superintendents were paid 10 cents for each child between 5 and 18 in their jurisdiction. State law stipulated that the salary had to be at least $500 a year and not more than $1,200. The average in 1871 was $794.17, NJEA reports.

THE COUNTY SUPERINTENDENT of 1871 had only recently been assigned the job of adjusting the boundaries of local districts. He drew this assignment because, in those rustic days, many school districts didn't know where their authority ceased and the next district's began.

The two biggest responsibilities of the county superintendent were compiling reports for the state and visiting the county's public schools. Neither task was simple.

The figures for the county superintendent's reports came from local clerks who, in those days, were not always competent. E.A. Stiles, Sussex County's superintendent, wrote this complaint to Apgar:

"I have discovered that, in many cases where the clerks seem disposed to do their duty promptly and thoroughly, they are nevertheless so unaccustomed to follow printed directions that the plain rules accompanying each schedule are beyond their comprehension and they can only gaze at the blank columns in hopeless and helpless bewilderment until they receive personal oral instruction."

THE SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENT was required to visit each public school in his county at least twice a year. Before the invention of the motorcar, not all could accomplish it. Complaining that "there are places on my routes where I drive for 12 miles and see not a house," Ocean County's superintendent, E.M. Lonan, wrote:

"I will start with private conveyance and drive, say, 30 miles, and get within three miles of a school, and then ascertain that their school is closed."

Except in the big cities, the typical New Jersey school had no principal and just one teacher. The county superintendent's visits, therefore, provided the only supervision the teacher received during the entire school year, says NJEA.

The school superintendents of the day were word artists. Their reports abound with flowery rhetoric. Atlantic County Superintendent Calvin Wright wanted to say that public support for education was growing. He put it this way: "The great educational engine is destined to move on its course, wafting its train over all obstacles, to the completion of its work of educational reform."

WILLIAM L. DICKINSON, Hudson County's superintendent, had to write too many letters. He called it "the labor of epistolary correspondence."

Rose to perform at Scot cathedral

John Rose, organist at the Cathedral of the Sacred Heart, Newark, has been selected to represent the United States on the festive dedicatory recital series on the new pipe organ at Glasgow Cathedral. (St. Mungo) in Scotland.

Rose, who will perform July 22, in Glasgow played the last public recital on the Scottish cathedral's old pipe organ during his European concert tour last summer.

The dedicatory series is expected to be a major musical event of the summer in Britain. Other artists on the series are well-known European musicians, mostly organists of English cathedrals.

While in Britain, Rose will also perform at the Church of the Holy Rude in Stirling, Scotland, and give a number of recitals in London, two of which will be at St. Margaret's Westminster—the parish church of the House of Commons.

English historian lectures at FDU

English historian Joel Hurstfield will inaugurate the 1971 Leverton Lecture Series at Fairleigh Dickinson University next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Flemington-Madison campus in the auditorium of the new Dreyfus College building. Professor Hurstfield's lectures, "The Troubled Conscience," may be heard consecutively or independently.

The Hurstfield lectures will focus on the problem of liberty and violence in the 16th century with parallels drawn to today's society.

Professor Hurstfield, who was an official historian of the English War Cabinet and a contributor to the Official History of the Second World War, is Astor Professor of English History at University College, London.

Newark City Superintendent George Sears complained about old schools. He called them "superannuated ones."

The list of New Jersey's county school superintendents in 1871 included entries kept alive as names of places or through the achievements of descendants.

Burlington County's school superintendent was Henry S. Haines, the grandfather of a Burlington County state senator of the same name in the 1960's. Cape May County's superintendent was Maurice Beesley of Dennisville, and Cape May County has a Beesley's Point. Jersey City's Dickinson H.S. is named for Hudson County's 1871 superintendent William L. Dickinson. Morris County's superintendent was F. J. Frellinghuysen of Raritan, and one of New Jersey's present Congressmen is Peter B. Frellinghuysen of Morristown.

New Jersey still has 21 county superintendents of schools, usually with offices in the county courthouse. Although the county superintendent himself seldom visits schools any more, his staff of "helping teachers" does, to help upgrade curriculum and instruction. The county superintendent represents the State Commissioner of Education in each county. He has authority in any district lacking a local superintendent. And he is still filling out those reports to Trenton.

An elegant coffee break with the Richard Nixons

By TRUDINA HOWARD
We were invited to the house for morning coffee -- in the upstairs dining room -- with the Big Boss.
And it was a coffee break to end all coffee breaks.
"We," meaning approximately 80 members of the Washington Workshop meeting of the National Newspaper Association; "house," meaning the White House; "upstairs dining room," meaning the State Dining Room; "coffee," meaning coffee -- and "Big Boss," meaning President Richard M. Nixon!

After having met presidents, prime ministers and kings of foreign countries on various study missions, it was quite a thrill to be invited to the White House to meet our own President and to talk with him, and when Mrs. Nixon unexpectedly came in with him, we all gasped in surprised pleasure.

The President is handsomer than expected, full of personality, and very tan and lean. He wore a blue-suit, with a dark tie (not too wide) and stood about three or four inches taller than Mrs. Nixon.

Mrs. Nixon is tiner than expected and also trim and good looking. She wore a grey tweedish suit, about one inch below the knee, and black fashionable shoes (meaning rather chunky heels). She looked wonderful. When the President gave his greeting, she stood next to him and with admirable control kept both arms down at her side and never moved them once during the entire course of his talk -- although his fingers twitched nervously a few times. But that is difficult, to stand still and do nothing. After Mr. Nixon finished, he and Mrs. Nixon stood at the fireplace and talked to each of us individually.

The new Nixon policy may be a purposeful "meet the people" policy, but they surely did

It well. We did not feel hurried, we did not feel unexpected, we did not feel cold. As a matter of fact, we felt rather welcome!

WHEN WE ARRIVED, an orchestra of about 20 pieces, the celebrated Marine Corps Band, was in the main foyer playing for our pleasure, the table was beautifully laid, the silver coffee urn gleamed under the crystal chandelier, and trays and trays of goodies decked the 20-foot table. Our host and hostess had not yet arrived, but good looking, LUCKY Armed Services men and women, acting as White House aides, explained things of White House happenings. Of course one of the topics was the controversial new portrait of Mrs. John Fitzgerald Kennedy by Aaron Shikler, which now hangs downstairs in the Gallery of First Ladies. It is a delicate, lovely, gossamer thing, showing the former First Lady in a high-necked, light-colored, flowing gown, giving her an almost ghostly quality.

In the middle of good talk over delicious coffee, the sound of the Marine Band's stirring Ruffles and Flourishes was heard, and the President and Mrs. Nixon came in.

Softly and with a warm twinkle in his eye, the President greeted the group. He spoke of the importance of the small newspapers as against the huge, impersonal mass media, emphasizing that the small papers are closer to the reader and therefore more influential in their community. He mentioned, with some humor, the newspaper in Whittier, Calif., where he lived before his Washington days. There was a columnist, the President recalled, who may not exactly have been the world's greatest writer, but everyone read that column -- because everyone ELSE in town did -- and if you read that column you knew what was happening in Whittier.

After the talk, the Nixons greeted each of us personally and chatted for a while. They were completely gracious. We all fell in love with both of them.

When they departed, we were given a private tour of the White House, also unhurried. During our entire stay, no other guests or tour groups were present. We had the White House to ourselves.

Interracial group compiling sales list of business facts

Malcolm L. Corrin, executive director of the Interracial Council for Business Opportunity (ICBO) of New Jersey, announced this week that ICBO is compiling another list of businesses for sale to be sent to its mailing list of over 5,000 members of the minority community throughout the state of New Jersey.

The list outlines pertinent facts about businesses which have been registered with ICBO for sale by their current owners. "Our idea," says Corrin, "is to provide the new minority group business man with the opportunity to acquire an established business so that he may take advantage of its built-in momentum rather than to struggle through those first arduous months involved in launching a new venture."

Since its inception, in 1969, the program has succeeded in transferring many businesses to minority group members. At least a half dozen cases are currently in work at the ICBO office. Business owners who would like their businesses to be included in this and future lists as well as minority group members who are not on the ICBO Mailing List and wish copies of the listings may contact Bernard H. Saperstein, deputy director, who is in charge of the operation. Write to ICBO, 24 Commerce street, Newark or call 622-4771.

ICBO is part of a national organization established by the American Jewish Congress and the Urban League for the purpose of aiding minority group members become business owners. This is accomplished by giving financial advice, doing feasibility studies, site appraisals, making up accounting schedules, packaging loans, providing one-to-one consultants, and running management training and bookkeeping courses at the Rutgers Newark campus.

Check before building your home at the shore

Prospective homebuyers at the Jersey Shore have been urged to make a number of simple checks before contracting for the construction of a new home.
Henry D. Mayer, president of New Jersey Shore Builders Association, said that a call to the NJSBA office (892-8464) is a first step in assuring that the builder you contract with has been fully checked and is approved by the association.

Mayer offers a simple checklist of what to look for when contracting for a home, to aid buyers in avoiding legal and financial problems, assuring proper production and on-time delivery of their home, he suggested:

1. Talk to owners of homes constructed by the builder you are considering.
2. If the home is being constructed under FHA or HUD programs, check those agencies for a rating report on the proposed development.
3. Check municipal and county agencies involved on whether subdivisions have been filed and approved.
4. You may also check on plans for sewerage and roads.
5. If you have any doubts, double check with NJSBA. Mayer pointed out that the organization certifies, builders who have been building for more than two years and who have established a satisfactory relationship with customers, government agencies and other businesses.

MR. BUNNY, I. PRESUME: Evette, a patient at Mountside's Children's Specialized Hospital, greets two bunnies during a surprise visit to hospital. Thirty-five young patients at Children's Specialized Hospital in Mountside received a surprise early visit from a live Easter Bunny this week.

Methadone use begins at clinic

A methadone maintenance program got under way this week at the Union County Narcotics Clinic, 43 Rahway ave., Elizabeth, according to Freeholder Walter E. Ulrich, chairman of the department of public affairs.

The program at the Eastern Clinic is similar to one in the Plainfield Clinic which has been in operation since last September of last year.

In both clinics liquid methadone is being dispensed on a year-round basis to former heroin addicts. Patients are referred to the clinic after their maintenance level has been established during an inpatient period at the New Jersey Neuro-Psychiatric Institute at Princeton. In addition to dispensing methadone, the clinics provide individual and family counseling and other supportive services necessary to help the former addict find his place in society and live a productive life.

Coupled with the start of methadone maintenance in Elizabeth, will be the opening of three of five "Outreach Centers," which are being established in the county. Beginning next week a team consisting of two social workers and an ex-addict will operate on a one-day-a-week basis in Rahway, Union and Elizabethport. The schedule calls for Mondays at 79b E. Hazelwood ave., Rahway; Wednesdays at 911 Valley st., Union; and Fridays at 80 Court st., Elizabethport. Additional information can be obtained by calling 353-5000 Ext. 502.

Ulrich extended his compliments to Mrs. Helen Jones, acting coordinating director since March 1 who "has been instrumental in implementing both of these programs, and to the staffs at both clinics and to the Union County Department for the Prevention of Drug Abuse and Narcotic Addiction who have cooperated in these efforts.

patient, presented each child with a basket, filled with colorful candies and Easter eggs.

The visit was arranged through the courtesy of the Tower Steak House, Rt. 22, Mountside. The restaurant also made up the baskets for distribution.

According to William Motter, head of the family that has owned and operated the Tower since its opening nearly a quarter of a century ago, "The visit was made to brighten the spirits of youngsters who otherwise might not have a chance to see an Easter Bunny."

Motter explained that the Tower traditionally has a live Easter Bunny to greet children and their parents dining at the restaurant on the holiday.

"We had just gotten the suit out of the cleaners, and it occurred to us that it would be a nice gesture to cheer up some hospitalized youngsters," Motter added.

The Bunny will make his next appearance at the Tower Sunday, when he will distribute baskets to all youngsters dining with their families for the Easter holiday.

Talk on alcoholism to highlight meeting

The problems of alcoholism will be discussed at a meeting of the community law advisory board of the Mt. Carmel Guild tonight at 8 o'clock at the Guild center on Alden street, Cranford.

Salvatore Citarella, director of the Mental Health Center, in announcing the program. Mrs. Therese McGeary, director of the Union County Division of the National Council on Alcoholism, will be the guest speaker.

Park authority points out effort to clean rivers

As public concern for the ecological health of the Rahway River grows, the Union County Park Commission this week noted its part in the effort to keep the tributary clean.

A commission spokesman said that the authority has the Elizabeth and Passaic rivers in its charge as well, and that every year thousands of dollars are spent on the removal of debris from these three major streams.

"The park commission cooperates with local volunteer groups, who, as good citizens, and with an enthusiastic concern, take upon themselves a project to clean-up the areas along the streams," he noted.

"Over the years these groups represented organizations from the communities of Cranford, Elizabeth, Hillside, Union, Springfield, Berkeley Heights, Plainfield, Summit, and Clark, as well as many Scouting groups throughout the entire county, he continued.

The park commission grants permission to these groups to enter park areas along the streams and after they have completed a project, the park commission's trucks come into the area and remove the debris that had been picked-up," the spokesman said.

"Over the years the park commission has included within its maintenance program funds for keeping the river and river banks clean. For the past several years its Youth Work Program, employing boys between the ages of 16 and 18, has worked from four to eight weeks during the summer months along each of the three rivers. The commission's own maintenance forces regularly removed debris from the rivers, especially after heavy rainfalls when a considerable amount of debris is washed into the river and run downstream. These chores are not only costly but time consuming as well," he added.

"It must be recognized that the debris being washed into the stream is not put there by the park commission, but for the most part it is discarded by citizens who are not concerned about the quality of our environment here in Union County. The debris includes such items as shopping carts, old tires, old lumber, discarded drums and cartons and such other items that may be discarded by homeowners," the spokesman said.

"The park commission in its concern over the rivers in Union County has been actively involved in acquiring the lands along the three major streams in Union County and it now has extensive holdings along the Elizabeth River in Union, Hillside, and Elizabeth; along the Rahway River in Union, Springfield, Clark, Cranford, and Rahway; and along the Passaic River in Summit, New Providence and Berkeley Heights," he continued.

In addition to the rivers, the park commission is also concerned about the lakes, ponds, brooks and streams throughout the system, and this also costs the commission a considerable sum each year to keep clean of debris.

"The park commission urges anyone who sees dumping being done anywhere in the Union County Park System to notify the park police immediately."

Law aids handicapped in school construction

Governor William T. Cahill last month signed into law a bill making it mandatory that all school boards provide facilities for the physically handicapped in plans for new buildings, according to Mrs. H.F. Ungar, legislation chairman for the Union County Council of P.T.A.s.

The bill requires that ramps, a lavatory on each floor large enough to accommodate wheelchairs, a drinking fountain, public telephone, and laboratory and shop facilities for the physically handicapped be provided. In addition, in any multiple story building, an elevator must be installed.

County vocational students tour gas company's facilities

A group of more than 25 students from the Union County Vocational Center, Scotch Plains, were recent guests of the Elizabethtown Gas Co.

The students' day started with a visit to the gas company's new dispatch center at its Third avenue plant, in Elizabeth.

There, they saw a computer in operation, which in just a few seconds measures the company's gas flow for its entire distribution system, including portions of the northwestern part of New Jersey. This procedure formerly took 28 men approximately 14 minutes.

The students were then guests at lunch at the company's Blue Flame Auditorium in Elizabeth. A tour of the building followed, including a visit to the gas company's total energy system on the eighth floor. This self-contained, natural gas operated system furnishes all the lighting, heating, air conditioning and power for the modern eight-story structure.

Also included in the tour was a visit to the Central Order Bureau, better known as "COB," which handles thousands of service calls daily. After a talk by a representative of the gas company's personnel department the class visited the Elizabeth Division Service Center,

Two get state scholarships for college studies next fall

Two young people from Mountainside have been awarded New Jersey state scholarships for college studies starting next fall, according to an announcement from the State Board of Higher Education.

Miss Rupp to study at German college

Bryn Mawr, Penn., Leila J. Rupp of Dogwood Way, Mountainside, N.J., was awarded the Thomas Raeburn White Scholarship for study abroad during the summer of 1971. Miss Rupp is a history major at Bryn Mawr College, in her junior year. She plans to study in Germany and will join the Goethe Institute program there.

The scholarship is awarded to scholars studying foreign language with preference given to students who will be studying abroad. Bryn Mawr is a liberal arts college for women with an enrollment of about 700 undergraduates and about the same number at the graduate level.

Miss Rupp attended Gov. Livingston Regional High School. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Rupp.

A sound of tampering... then car rolls into pole

A car owned by John H. Flood of 1599 Rising way, Mountainside, rolled out of his driveway and into a utility pole at the corner of Rising way and Chlpunk hill Friday morning, according to Mountainside police.

According to the police report, the car was parked in the driveway when Flood heard someone tampering with the vehicle around 1:30 a.m. He looked outside, saw the car rolling out of the driveway and called police. The investigating officer found the car against the pole.

year for four years, or five years if the student is enrolled in a five-year undergraduate program. The state pays the annual cost of tuition up to $500.

By law, the number of awards each year is equal to five percent of the number of graduates the previous June from New Jersey public and private high schools.

It was possible to grant scholarships to approximately one-fourth of the students making application. There were 20,878 who submitted application by the Nov. 15 deadline last fall.

The State Scholarship Commission, which administers the program, selected the winners using a formula that takes into consideration academic achievement and financial need, as required by law.

The scholarship program was initiated in 1959. Today's group of winners is the 13th since then and the total number of winners now stands at 49,193.

With State Scholarships, New Jersey students have attended or are attending 750 colleges and universities. Awards for out-of-state attendance may not exceed 35 percent of those given in any year.

Scholarship holders must be full-time undergraduate students in schools approved by the State Board of Higher Education and they must have demonstrated "high moral character, good citizenship and dedication to American ideals," the commission reported.

Although it was not possible to grant a State Scholarship to more students because of the limitation on the number available, a sizable number of the students rejected have been notified that they may qualify for a tuition aid grant if they attend a college or university in New Jersey where tuition is over $450 a year. Awards will be announced in June.

Applications for next year's awards will be accepted in the fall. The Scholarship Commission is expected to set a deadline of about November 15 for submission of applications. In applying, students must file family financial statements and high school transcripts. They also will be required to take a qualifying test.

FANCY STEPPERS — Two groups from the Yvette Dance Studio, Cranford, won top honors in recent competition in New York sponsored by the Dance Educators of America. Winners in the senior division were, from left, Terry Weisburger of Mountainside, Leslie Strauss of Cranford and Jill Cook of Plainfield. Another group won in the contest for girls under 10. The studio is headed by Mrs. Yvette Cohen of Mountainside.

Ecology and concern for the Indians combine in Y glass-recycle project

A busy "tribe" of Westfield and Mountainside first, second and third graders and their fathers have begun projects that will enable them to deal first hand with two issues of national interest, according to the Westfield YMCA.

On April 17 and 18 the Unami Federation of Y-Indian Guides will join the glass recycling movement with a collection of bottles at the Westfield Armory on Railway avenue. Proceeds from the collection will go to another currently popular issue—helping the plight of the American Indian.

The money will be donated to the American Indian Fund recently established by the National Y-Indian Guide Longhouse to support work with the American Indian in leadership development, education and self-help.

Principally, the money will benefit the work of the Sioux Indian YMCA's in the Dakotas, scholarship funds for Indian students and special Indian community projects seeking to improve family conditions on the reservations and in the cities.

The blend of the two causes came about chiefly through the efforts of Warren Rorden, chief of the Westfield Navaho Indian tribe, and a member of PEP.

"Several fund-raising methods had been suggested—personal giving by families, car washes, rummage or bake sales and pancake dinners. But a glass recycling to make the boys aware of the need to preserve our environment while helping the Indians seemed the perfect combination," said Rorden.

The 38 tribes of the Unami Federation, composed of approximately 500 fathers and son, will collect and save bottles in their own homes. They will scour their neighborhoods for bottles, and try to persuade other residents to take their bottles to the Armory between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. on the two collection days.

Labels may remain on the bottles, but they should be rinsed out and all metal should be removed. Then bottles should be separated as to color—amber, clear or green.

This will be the first collection, and others will follow, the first tentatively in May.

President of national council to talk at Westfield Y meeting

Donald Payne, first black president of the National Council of YMCA's, will address the 48th annual meeting of the Westfield YMCA on Tuesday, April 20.

A dinner will follow a reception at 6:30 p.m. in the Y building. New directors will be elected at the annual meeting following the dinner. The directors will then select trustees and officers.

Payne, a community relations expert for the Prudential Insurance Company, Newark, has also been active in Newark politics. He served as a key aide in the campaign of Kenneth E. Gibson, the city's first black mayor.

A former social studies teacher and coach in a Newark high school, Payne in his present position has helped get students without money into college.

He was the second youngest man to head the National Council. Payne began his association with the Y at a storefront "Outpost Y" in central Newark in 1957.

Since then, he has served in various positions with the Y and is chairman of the new Middle Atlantic Region, where he oversees 1,000 Newark high school students in YMCA programs aimed at developing social responsibility and leadership.

Regarded as a national authority on youth, Payne has made several trips abroad, including a meeting of world youth of the World Alliance in England last year. In 1967, he was part of a Y exchange program visiting Russia and Poland.

The annual meeting will also honor two retiring members of the Y board of trustees. They are Carleton H. Bunker and Clancy D. Connell. Connell will be honored for his almost half century of service to the Y.

A member of the board of trustees for eight years, Bunker was one of the chief fundraisers in the campaign which retired the mortgage last year.

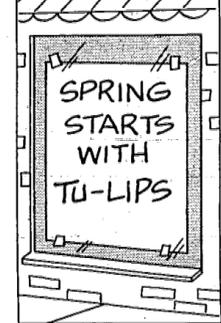

Thought for food

Cutting beef round steak in thin strips reduces cooking time. The strips can be dredged in seasoned flour, as are pieces or cubes of steak, and browned before being included in your favorite round steak recipe. Braise until strips are tender.

One-dish meals can be simple and nutritious. Combine meat with potatoes and vegetable, cooked rice, or macaroni. Add canned condensed soup or gravy. Cook on top of range or in the oven.

Instead of garlic on your French bread, try a mixture of butter, brown sugar and grated orange or lemon rind.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Stanley F. Yolles, M.D.
Director
National Institute of Mental Health

ACTION AGAINST MENTAL DISABILITY

Last year, President Nixon set up a citizens' committee to study the overall problem of mental disability and make recommendations for action.

This was called the President's Task Force on the Mentally Handicapped; and the report of the group, presented to President Nixon, has recently been published.

The Task Force was concerned with mental illness and mental retardation, which form much of the total problem; and its concerns ranged from people who are acutely disturbed from a brief period of time to people who are severely handicapped for their full life span.

Mrs. Jeanette Rockefeller served as Chairman of the group; and Dr. Bertram S. Brown, Director of the National Institute of Mental Health, as Executive Secretary. Highlights from the group's report indicate the massive scope of the problem.

Mental illness itself is estimated to cost the Nation $20 billion a year and to afflict some 20 million people. About 6 million Americans are mentally retarded; and the cost of mental retardation is put at about $8 billion annually.

In both cases, not included are losses chargeable to premature deaths, to criminal activities of drug addicts and other disturbed individuals, and to pain, frustration, and other intangible factors that seriously reduce the quality and productivity of life.

The size and scope of the problem, thus revealed, warrant a strong national strategy and the Task Force's overall recommendation for action against mental disability urged a comprehensive and cogent plan of expansion and improvement in four major areas, with adequate manpower cited as basic to all four:

"First, prevention, to reduce the incidence; second, treatment and short-term care; to bring health and maximum social competence as soon as possible;

"Third, rehabilitation and extended care to enable the disabled to live useful and satisfying lives; and, last, research to increase knowledge that will improve programs in all these areas."

Turnpike leads in safe mileage during January

The New Jersey Turnpike continues to lead the safety field among the nation's major toll roads.

Tops in the nation with the lowest accident rate of 89.3 in 1970, in New Jersey Turnpike compiled an even better record during January, it was announced by Turnpike Authority Chairman Alfred E. Driscoll.

Based on the January 1971 Turnpike traffic statistics just released by the National Safety Council, Chairman Driscoll noted that the New Jersey Turnpike was ahead of all toll roads, that logged 100 million vehicle miles or more in January.

Its January 1971 accident rate is 80.8, based on the number of accidents per 100 million miles. There were 139 accidents on the New Jersey Turnpike in January, 1971, 28 percent less than the 195 accidents in January of 1970.

"Our safety performance," Chairman Driscoll said, "is even more outstanding when one bears in mind that the other major toll roads behind us include even those that do not carry truck traffic and those whose estimate of total vehicle mileage is not arrived at by accurate means."

"To a large extent we must credit this safety record of ours to the effectiveness of the dual/dual 12-lane section featuring the separation of passenger cars from commercial traffic," former Governor Driscoll added.

"The safety factors on that portion of the Turnpike helped to reduce our accident potential," he said. "And of course the good work of the State Police Troop D in enforcing Turnpike rules and traffic laws also contributed to the safety record."

The accident record of the nation's toll roads with 100 million or more vehicle miles recorded for January 1971:

	Vehicle Miles	Tot. Acc.	Acc. Rate
New Jersey Turnpike	172,088,911	139	80.8
Garden State Parkway	154,300,000	189	122.5
Illinois Tollway	135,261,000	222	164.1
New York State Thruway	236,500,809	469	198.3
Connecticut Turnpike	109,000,000	242	222.0
Pennsylvania Turnpike	166,049,123	365	227.2

Cycling safety is vital matter

WINNER, AAA TRAFFIC SAFETY POSTER CONTEST.

"A proper attitude towards bicycle safety can lead to safer automobile driving," R.J. Vialle, general manager of the New Jersey Automobile Club, said this week.

"Bicycles, despite their size and speed, are actually part of traffic," Vialle said. This means that bicycle owners should have the attitude that they are responsible drivers of their vehicles and that motorists should treat cyclists with the same respect that they would another motorist."

Vialle emphasized that a bicycle has disadvantages which other forms of traffic do not have. "Bicycles do not have the speed, power, or protection which automobiles offer. For this reason, accidents involving bicycles are generally more serious than those involving automobiles only. All this means that cyclists should be certain that they have mastered their vehicles and are fully familiar with the rules of the road before they venture into traffic. It also means that parents should make sure that their children are mature enough to

NEW CARE UNIT — Mrs. Leonard Hines, left, president of the Women's Auxiliary of Newark Beth Israel Medical Center, announced this week that construction on a Newborn Sick Specialized Care Unit will be completed in about three months. The $300,000 unit, designed for the diagnosis and treatment of premature and newborn sick infants up to one month of age, is being underwritten by the Auxiliary. Proceeds from the group's annual dinner dance, "The Fairy Godmother Ball," on May 5, will go toward the project. Shown with Mrs. Hines at the sight of construction is Dr. Mervin Fischman, chief attending, Department of Pediatrics, who will serve as co-director of the new unit with Dr. Seymour Charles, director, Department of Pediatrics.

Auxiliary pledges funds for new hospital section

A group of concerned women have pledged $300,000 to a Newark hospital for the establishment of a Newborn Sick Specialized Care Unit for the diagnosis and treatment of premature and newborn sick infants up to one month of age. The highly-sophisticated, pediatric intensive care unit is being underwritten by The Women's Auxiliary of Newark Beth Israel Medical Center, a voluntary, non-profit institution. Construction on the new facility is expected to be completed in the next three months.

Decision to finance the unit was prompted by recognition of the changing health needs of the city of Newark and of Essex County, although the new facility will eventually accept referrals from all parts of New Jersey. Since there is only one other hospital in another section of the state which has established a similar unit, the need for the auxiliary is acute and will not duplicate an already functioning program.

Newark Beth Israel Medical Center is an appropriate site for such a unit because of the high rate of infant mortality in Newark and Essex County and because the medical center has pioneered many diagnostic and therapeutic innovations in New Jersey.

Mrs. Leonard Hines, president of the auxiliary, anticipates that the fund-raising campaign for the Newborn Sick Specialized Care Unit will stretch over a four-year period, with a major portion of the $300,000 being raised at for the Newborn Sick Specialized Care Unit. Last year, the auxiliary presented the medical center with a check for $50,000 part of which served as an initial down payment on the new project. Private donations and Foundation grants are being sought.

THE NEWBORN SICK Specialized Care Unit will contain 12 isolettes for newborn sick and 12 isolettes for the care of premature infants. Set in the ceiling will be eight special life-support units containing the necessary utilities for monitoring and other diagnostic and therapeutic procedures. Each ceiling life-support unit will provide the following utilities: three electrical lines, three oxygen lines, three suction lines and three intravenous poles. Each ceiling unit will supply the utilities for three isolettes.

There will be 24 monitors, one for each infant in the unit. The monitoring system will be attached to an alarm system which will sound at the nurses' station if an infant's condition worsens. The monitors will constantly measure the baby's heartbeat, respiration, blood pressure and blood gases.

The entire medical staff for the new unit will be under the general supervision of Dr. Seymour Charles, director, Department of Pediatrics, and Dr. Mervin Fischman, chief attending, Department of Pediatrics. The staff will consist of the co-directors, two directors of neo-natology, Dr. John W. Alexander and Irving Fox; consultants in pediatric surgery and pediatric cardiology, a full-time resident trained in neo-natology and two junior resident. All of the Medical Center's pediatric residents will be available for consultation and patient care and all have had special training in neo-natology at the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center Pediatric Intensive Care Unit.

MRS. HINES ANNOUNCED the Women's Auxiliary dinner dance, "The Fairy Godmother Ball," will be held on Wednesday, May 5, 1971 at the Crestmont Country Club. The committee in charge of the fund-raising event includes: Mrs. Seymour Frieland, South Orange, chairman; Mrs. Harry Holtz, West Orange, and Mrs. David Rubin, 11 E. Troy Dr., Springfield, co-chairmen of hostesses; Mrs. Burton U. Carr, South Orange, treasurer and chairman of reservations; Mrs. Mervin Fischman, South Orange, sponsors and benefactors; Mrs. Gilbert Augenblick, Maplewood, and Mrs. Martin Kasen, East Orange, co-chairman of decorations; Mrs. Edwin Rothfeld, Short Hills, and Mrs. Alan Sagner, South Orange, the Committee of 1,000. The dinner dance journal is being handled by Mrs. Donald Brief, Maplewood; Mrs. Paul Rosenberg, South Orange, and Mrs. Wesley Boodish, East Orange.

Rutgers experts gauge effect of building upon water supply

Just how the heavy thumb of the suburban developer may affect the water balance of an area is the research project of three Rutgers University engineers.

"We are trying to produce hard data where very little exists," said Kurt Nathan, associate professor of agricultural engineering at the College of Agriculture and Environmental Science.

"The general pattern is that runoff and erosion increase as land is cleared for construction. But if large areas are put in turf, as in parks and suburban housing, both problems eventually decrease. More paving, however, stimulates runoff again, though erosion is less of a problem simply because there is less to erode. Poor planning may lead to flooding or, alternately, water shortages."

"Engineers and planners use various formulas to determine runoff and models have been constructed to simulate the effects of soils, grasses, topography and the like," Nathan said. "But any model is only as good as the data that goes into it. The main thrust of our efforts is to find exactly what happens to water resources in a one-square mile watershed developing from rural to suburban."

The watershed is located along a tributary to Royce Brook in Hillsborough Township. Two gauging stations at the upper and lower ends

AAA Foundation sponsoring study in traffic for police

Approximately 70 members of police departments in Essex, Morris and Union counties have been invited by the Foundation for Safety, Inc., of the New Jersey Auto Club (AAA) to attend study courses in accident investigation and traffic law enforcement this month.

Instructors for the courses, which will be conducted in the Governor Morris Hotel, Morristown, will be assigned by James M. Slavin, director of the Northwestern University Traffic Institute.

The first course on accident investigation began April 5 and will extend through April 16. The second course on traffic law enforcement will open April 19 and end April 30. Daily classes will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., five days each week. A certificate will be awarded to each officer who successfully completes the course.

At the request of the foundation, chiefs of police in the three counties make recommendations. To be eligible, an officer must be on full-time active duty and have a minimum of three years of experience. He can be a member of a municipal, county or park police department.

All expenses in connection with the Northwestern courses are paid by the Foundation for Safety, Inc. In 1970, 15 officers attended the Traffic Institute at Northwestern University, Urbana, Illinois, at the foundation's expense. By having police officers attend courses in New Jersey, rather than at Northwestern, a greater number can participate and the total cost is lower.

NSC course gives tips on leadership

A course on group leadership will be given at the Center for Continuing Education at Newark State College. The course will deal with parliamentary rules and procedures and will include techniques for stimulating member participation and group support.

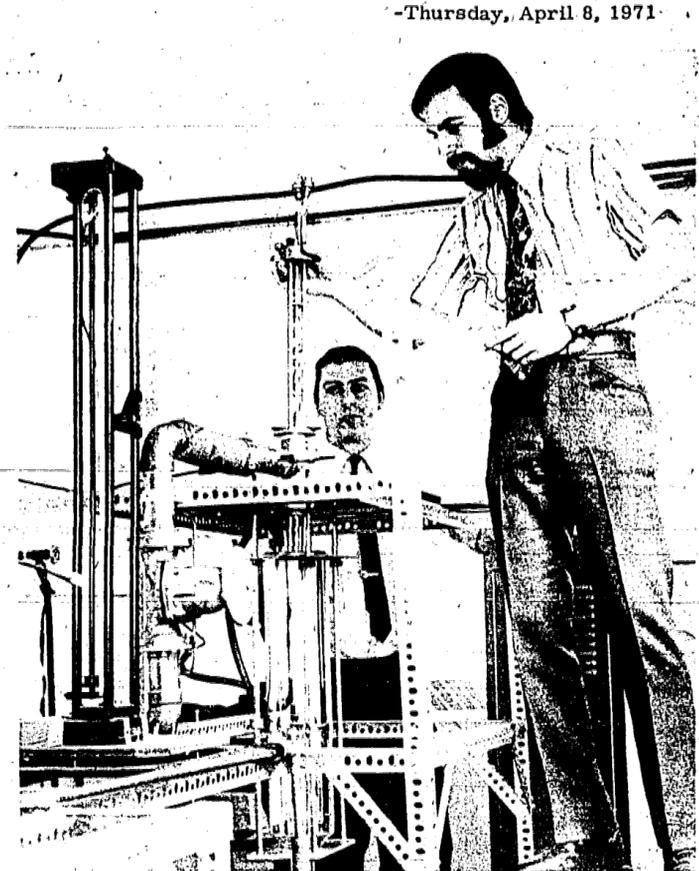

The five-session course will be held on Thursdays from April 22 to May 20 from 7:30 to 9 p.m. in the Formal Lounge of Downs Hall.

Dr. Mary W. Armstrong, professor, administrator and home economist, will teach the course. Dr. Armstrong has held field administrative posts and university administrative and teaching positions in New Jersey, Maryland, Pennsylvania and New York.

Registration information may be obtained by calling 289-4500, extension 320, or by writing to the Center for Continuing Education, Division of Field Services, Newark State College, Union, New Jersey 07083.

Folksinger to appear

Folksinger Rosalie Sorrels will perform in concert at the Florham-Madison campus of Fairleigh Dickinson University, New Jersey, on Thursday, April 15, at 3 p.m., on the Friendship Library lawn. The public is welcome to attend without charge. In the event of rain, the performance will be held in the library.

IT MAY LOOK like a giant reactor set, but actually it is a unique device built by Seton Hall University students as a special laboratory project to study the effects of extremely low temperature on conductivity. Physics major Gary Jorgenson (left) watches as education major Richard Curcio inserts the metal sample into the control chamber for an experiment.

Catching 'cold' at Seton Test unit nears absolute zero

Using such materials as plumbing parts, beeswax, auto batteries and a custom-blown glass tube, student scientists at Seton Hall University in South Orange have constructed an apparatus that resembles an elaborate Rube Goldberg contraption. Like its cartoon counterpart, the Seton Hall construction achieves a simple result through a complicated process, but it also has a scientific purpose.

The structure works on the same principle as an ordinary vacuum bottle, reducing temperature to an extremely low degree. A small metal sample is immersed in liquid helium and the temperature is lowered to -472 degrees Fahrenheit—one degree above absolute zero which is "as cold as you can get," according to Dr. Harry Ashworth, project director and assistant professor of physics at Seton Hall.

"It is designed to study metals and semiconductors at a very low temperature," he said. "The first experiment the students are doing is superconductivity. Ordinarily any metal resists the flow of electricity, but at low enough temperatures this resistance in some materials (like tin) completely vanishes."

Superconductivity was first discovered many years ago but it was not theoretically explained until 1957. Since then the principle has been used extensively to produce large magnetic fields and possibilities of using superconducting wire in power transmission and digital computers are now being explored in research labs.

No ready-made equipment to study superconductivity is available, however, so student scientists under Dr. Ashworth's direction had to use their imaginations and ingenuity to construct their own equipment, which will remain for further lab demonstrations.

Card party scheduled by Benedictine Guild

The Benedictine Mission Guild of Newark will hold a public card party for the benefit of St. Paul's Abbey, Newton, on Wednesday, April 21, at 8 p.m., at the VFW Police Post Home, 195 Norman rd., Newark. Funds raised will be used for missionary needs.

Mrs. Marie Reichert will act as chairman, and Mrs. Catherine Doll as co-chairman.

4 more counties on jobless aid list

Monmouth and Hunterdon Counties have been added to New Jersey's "substantial unemployment area" list by the U.S. Department of Labor, and now qualify for special federal contract procurement consideration.

This classification, Commissioner Charles Serrano of the N.J. Department of Labor and Industry explained, means that these areas, because of their unemployment rate, are now entitled to preferential treatment in the awarding of certain Federal contracts. The "substantial unemployment" listing, as designated by the U.S. Department of Labor, signifies an area with an employment rate of from 6.0 percent to 8.9 percent, which is anticipated to continue during the following two months.

The U.S. Department of Labor also announced that Atlantic and Hudson Counties have been added to the list for aid under Title I, Public Works and Economic Development Act (1965). This list includes those areas which have had substantial unemployment (annual average unemployment rate of at least 6 percent during the preceding calendar year. These areas now become eligible for federal grants for public works and development facilities under Title I of the PWEDA.

Registration open for beauty contest

Registration is open for the Miss New Jersey pageant, which will be held in Cherry Hill on April 24.

The winner of the state pageant will move on to the Miss U.S.A. contest, and if successful there, on to the Miss Universe competition.

Entrants must be between the ages of 18 and 28, as of May 22, a resident of New Jersey, and never married.

Official entry blanks can be obtained from Henry L. Sterling at 232-3011, or by writing Entries Chairman, c/o Sterling Smdto, 320 Summit rd., Mountainside, 07092.

CHECK TERMITE DAMAGE

Every year at this time, homeowners find winged insects that suddenly fly out and then drop their wings and crawl all around. These little insects are TERMITES and indicate that there are still thousands of other termites still eating the house, causing further destruction to the wood of the house.

New NCE program will aid graduates of county colleges

Newark College of Engineering has received approval from the State Board of Higher Education to establish a new program leading to a Bachelor of Technology degree.

The program will begin in September and the college is now accepting applications.

According to NCE, the new program is specifically designed to coordinate with the New Jersey county college system. It will enable students with associate degrees in various fields of engineering technology to be employed as full-time technicians in industry and at the same time complete degree requirements through four years of half-time evening study.

The program will help certain national industry needs too. The college noted a 1968 Engineering Manpower Commission survey showed employers were unable to find enough four-year technology graduates; a substantial job market for future graduates is expected.

The evening program-NCE will offer allows Bachelor of Technology students to concentrate in one of three areas: electrical systems, industrial systems and mechanical systems.

Typical courses will include mathematical analysis, technical communications, computer programming, industrial cost analysis, management and organizational behavior and employee relations. Technical engineering courses and a choice of humanities electives are also included.

Establishment of the bachelor of technology degree at NCE coincides with national and professional trends, Dr. L. Bryce Andersen, dean of engineering, says. He noted that while the engineering technician has traditionally worked along with the engineers, bachelor degree programs for such persons are new.
