Robert Day, a sophomore at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield, has fashioned himself the top award for the outstanding project exhibited at the New Jersey Vocational and Arts Education Association convention at Asbury Park.

The Springfield resident, son of the local fire chief, received the Past President's Memorial Award for a Colonial corner table he made and exhibited. High school students from throughout New Jersey exhibited at the convention.

Day is a student in Edward Metz's wood shop class.

Seven students in 'Albert Rothbard's mechanical drawing and metal shop classes were presented merit awards. They were: Wayne Dieterle, Richard Molton, Steven Wipeler, Howard Alexander, Edward Graessle, Vincent Burns and Jose Hernandez.

Honorable mentions went to Gary Treason, Fred Viteva, Edward Sauerborn, Michael Scappetulo, John Belliveau, Mark Sherman and Kenneth Homlush.

Merit awards for graphic projects were given to James Schoch, Derik Goforth, Karl Kotovsky, Mark Williams, Richard Lan, Eric Strube and Michael Stadler, and two awards to Robert Kaeblein.

Receiving honorable mentions were: Lan, Daniel Gecker, Schoch, Williams, Kip Mulligan, Kenneth Mercer, Goforth, Todd Daniels, Robert Kaeblein and Kotovsky. Robert Gardella della is their teacher.

The association presented the Union County Regional High School District with certificates of merit for an outstanding overall exhibit and for the "excellent vocational drafting area," according to Stanley Grossman, industrial and vocational education coordinator.

Capt. Okrasinski, at 27; found dead at Air Force base

A funeral in Englewood, with full military honors, and a Mass at St. John's Church, Leonia, were held Tuesday for Air Force Capt. Richard Okrasinski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley A. Okrasinski of 11 Janet Lane, Springfield, who was found dead last Thursday at Myrtle Beach Air Force Base, S.C. He was 27.

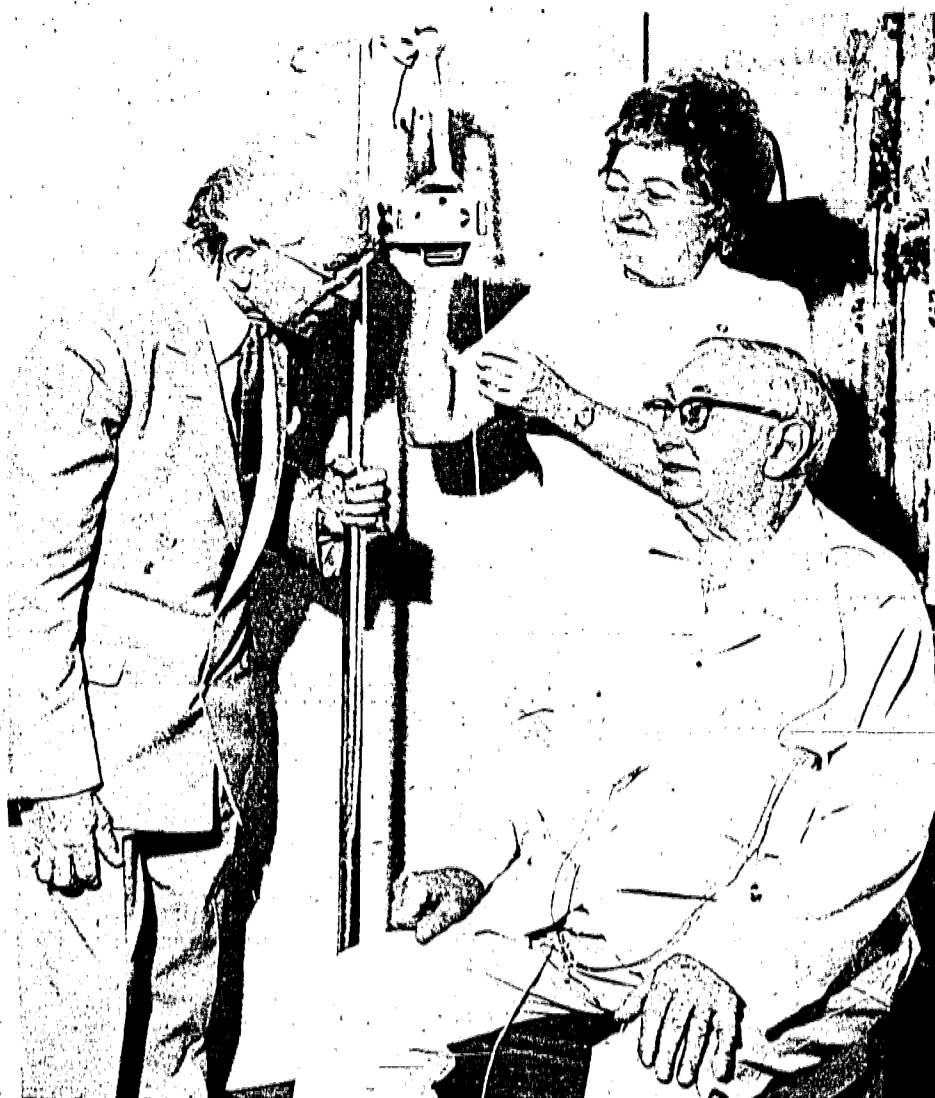

An Air Force spokesman said Capt. Okrasinski committed suicide by hanging himself. He was scheduled to return to Vietnam soon for a second tour of duty.

Capt. Okrasinski was born in Irvington. He and his family moved to Springfield about 10 years ago. He was a graduate of Seton Hall Prep, where he played tackle on the school's 1962 championship football team.

He was a 1966 graduate of Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa., where he played on the school's football and baseball teams and reportedly received professional offers. He received an ROTC commission and decided to serve in the Air Force instead.

Capt. Okrasinski attended the military intelligence school at Lowry Air Force Base in Colorado before being sent to Phu Cat, South Vietnam, where he served as a briefing officer. He had been stationed in South Carolina for the past two years.

Other survivors are his wife, Mrs. Patricia Ippolito Okrasinski; a daughter, Kimberly Ann, 17 months; a brother, Ronald of Oklahoma City, Okla., and his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Mae Gorny of Irvington.

LIVING TESTIMONY....Overlook Hospital pacemaker patient, Abe Shulman of Millburn, at left, is star performer at Overlook heart symposium to be presented for the community on Wednesday, by the Overlook cardiology department. Here, the 80-year-old former vaudevillian encourages Overlook patient Henry C. Weber of Mountainside, who is temporarily attached to an external pacemaker while waiting for his specially ordered implant pacemaker. With Weber is his daughter, Mrs. Mildred Kayser, Overlook staff nurse and graduate of the Overlook School of Nursing. Weber is oldest member of the Mountainside Fire Department. Mr. and Mrs. Weber, married 53 years, were cited as earliest residents in Mountainside's Diamond Jubilee last year.

Overlook pacemaker theme 'I've Got You under My Skin'

"I've Got You Under My Skin" was the theme song for a spry 80-year-old ex-vaudevillian, Abraham Shulman of Millburn, a Pacemaker patient who was a star performer at Overlook Hospital's heart symposium held May 19, to be repeated Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. for the public.

Shulman has been an area resident for 35 years and worked many of them, after vaudeville days, for the Newark Hall of Records.

He described his pacemaker implant of 1 1/2 years ago and the zest he feels for life today with the tiny battery-operated Pacemaker snugly tucked below his collarbone, where it is painlessly sending regular electrical impulses to a heart that had "short circuited."

"I'm not trying to sell Pacemakers," Shulman quipped to the audience, but I do want to calm the fears of others and do anything I can to help."

Shulman was in the company of a roster of Overlook's leading cardiologists, who as a team were responsible for the installation of Overlook's monitored coronary care unit six years ago when it was the first such unit in New Jersey. At that time there were perhaps a dozen units in the entire nation. Today, with 7,000 hospitals there are some 1,750 such coronary units, saving countless lives.

THE OVERLOOK cardiology department, together with the co-sponsor, the Union County Heart Association, is presenting the seminars as a community medical education service and urges community attendance on Wednesday.

Titled "The Heart Victim and His Future," the symposium discusses heart disease as the No. 1 cause of death in the United States -- and what can be done to prevent its deadly toll.

Moderating the programs are Dr. W. Austin Tansey of Short Hills and Dr. Eugene R. Kelly of Westfield.

The pre-hospital phase of heart attacks is presented by Dr. Barry Lupton of Short Hills and Dr. Koepel Burk of Millburn, who point out that 60 percent of heart victims die before they ever reach the hospital, largely because of delay. They urge patients to "make the midnight call if they have heavy chest pain radiating to the arm, nausea, sweating and other early symptoms."

Both doctors stress the importance of Overlook's outreach in training area rescue squads in cardiac resuscitation, as well as the hospital's recent installation of two-way radio systems in area ambulances for instant communication.

The "software" of the hospital is just as important as the electronic monitors, a fact demonstrated by two experienced Overlook coronary nurses, Mary Margaret Mallory and Judith Huzar. They give a slide-illustrated description, point by point, of what happens to a heart patient from the moment he arrives on the coronary unit, stressing the nurse's role of calming, encouraging explanation of all that

New look in courses for summer

There will be a new look in the Union County Regional High School District's summer school program this year. A number of original credit courses will be offered for the first time to eligible students in the four high schools. In addition to brochures describing the regular summer school program, flyers listing the original credit offerings have been distributed to students. Courses for credit being offered are:

- Jonathan Dayton Regional, Springfield: chemistry II, debate, computer programming and conversational Spanish.
- Arthur L. Johnson Regional, Clark: biology II, drama workshop and data processing.
- Gov. Livingston Regional, Berkeley Heights: creative writing, U.S. sociology and psychology.
- David Brearley Regional, Kenilworth: sociology and oceanography.

The district's exchange bus program will allow students to take the course of their choice at any one of the four regional high schools.

This is another opportunity for the educationally ambitious student to take advantage of our comprehensive program," a spokesman said. The six-week summer session begins June 29 and ends Aug. 6.

Motorists blamed in Parkway deaths

Chairman John P. Gallagher of the New Jersey Highway Authority has called a safer-driving alert in the face of mounting traffic deaths on the Garden State Parkway this year.

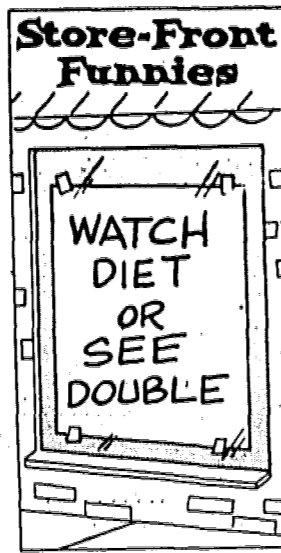

The authority chairman said intense investigation of the 14 traffic fatalities on the Parkway through last Sunday indicated serious fallings on the part of drivers and prompted the call for greater safety concern by motorists along the road. He reported:

"State Police on the Parkway and authority traffic engineers have probed deeply into each and every fatal accident, and cannot escape the conclusion that unsafe driving conduct was invariably at the root."

of dangers should prompt motorists to maintain moderation.

"The penetrating look and study into the fatal accidents leave us with no alternative but to appeal to the drivers for greater consideration of themselves as well as fellow motorists on the road," he said, adding:

"Motorists must recognize that they themselves are the key to safety, and no matter how many built-in safeguards or improvements the road offers them their lives are dependent upon their own driving conduct."

Upsala graduation exercises will have international flavor

Principal speaker at the 4 p.m. commencement will be Leonard C. Meeker, U.S. ambassador to Romania and a native of Montclair.

Honorary doctorate degrees will be awarded to Joseph O. Thompson, director in Amman, Jordan, of the Lutheran World Federation, Department of World Service; Rabbi Abraham Joshua Heschel, who was born in Poland and established the Institute of Jew-

Batsto plans extra hours for summer

The Historic Batsto Village will resume its longer summer visitor schedule Sunday with a special display of old documents and antique firearms related to the Revolutionary War, according to the Batsto Citizens Committee.

The Memorial Day exhibit is the first to be sponsored at Batsto and is planned as a salute to the men who carried arms in the defense and development of our nation, said Herbert Bernstein committee president.

Among the documents which will be seen are authentic commission and discharge papers as well as payment vouchers issued during the Revolutionary War. Some of the original reports prepared by the New Jersey Militia for Governor William Livingston, and never before opened to the public, also will be on display.

An exhibit of cannon balls actually made by the Batsto Iron Works nearly 200 years ago also is planned for May 30. Several antique firearms and rare muskets from private collections throughout the Delaware Valley will complete the display.

Richard J. Sullivan, commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Environment Protection, joined with the committee in extending an invitation to all to visit the village on Sunday.

The summer hours which will be in effect from Sunday through Labor Day are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday and holidays.

The stagecoach at Batsto, which had been out of commission for a number of months because of a broken wheel, is back in action again. Children and adults alike now can ride through the village just as visitors did two centuries ago.

Antique collectors who have firearms or documents from the Revolutionary War period are especially invited to contact any member of the Batsto Citizens Committee to have their items added to the May 30 display.

There is no admission fee to the Batsto Historic Village but there is a charge made for a special guided tour of the Wharton Mansion, which is part of the park area.

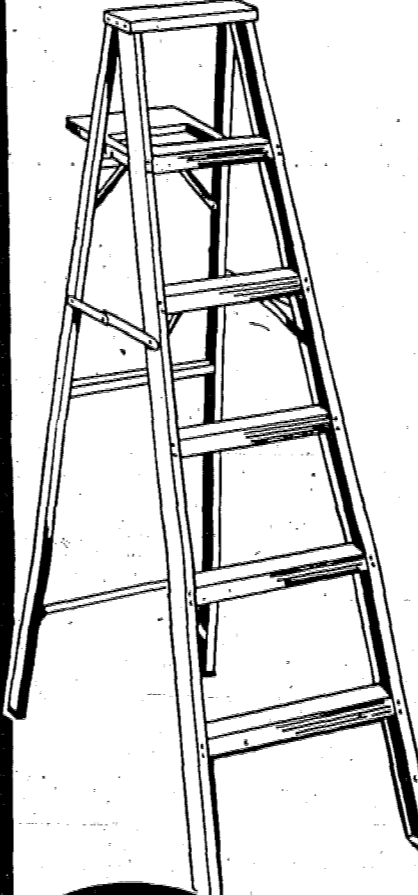

The Post Office will be open Sunday, for those who want to send greetings from one of the historic landmarks in America.

Clark will get SANE award at annual fund-raising dinner

Three noted Americans will be guests of honor at the annual fund-raising dinner of New Jersey SANE Friday evening, June 4, at Le Seul, Irvington, in observance of its 15th year as a citizen's organization.

The special guests include the Ramsey Clark, former U.S. Attorney General and author of "Crime in America," who will receive SANE's annual Award for Political Courage; Parren J. Mitchell, Congressman, 7th district, Maryland, a human rights activist since 1950 when he was the first black student at the State University; and John Forbes Kerry, who testified in April before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee as a spokesman for the National Vietnam Veterans Against the War. Presentation of SANE's award will be made by Chairman Harvey S. Turner of Montclair. Master of Ceremonies will be Leon Janney, personality of stage, screen and television.

Clark, native of Texas, ex-Marine and assistant attorney general under Kennedy, served as U.S. attorney general for two years of the Johnson administration. He was sworn in at the age of 39 by his father, Tom C. Clark, who retired as Associate Supreme Court Justice upon his son's appointment. "Coming out of a southern conservative, strong establishment-oriented background, Clark has emerged as a modest but persistent and courageous leader for social change," said Turner.

"He is today an important anti-war spokesman and opponent of J. Edgar Hoover, Champion of many progressive causes, Clark is presently one of the attorneys for the Berrigan brothers and for the Vietnam Veterans Against the War."

Attending the dinner will be a group of Vietnam Veterans Against the War, led by Don Smartt, coordinator of the N.J. organization. New Jersey SANE has worked closely with the Veteran's organization in New Jersey. Smartt has been the director of SANE's Peace Center in Elizabeth since it was established last summer. He has worked from the center in organizing the VVAW. He sought and received SANE's support of the Winter Soldier Investigation held in South Orange in April.

Over $1,000 in awards will be given in categories of oils, watercolors, graphics, mixed-media and sculpture. The entry fee is $5 for eight feet of fencing (special sections for artists supplying their own stands and for sculpture).

Judges for the show will be Ugo Giannini of West Orange, who now teaches at Caldwell College, and Irwin Rosenhouse of New York City, teacher, lecturer, and writer of books on illustration and design.

A special children's section (grades 4 through 12) will be judged by Dr. Elaine Raichle, supervisor of art in the Irvington Board of Education, and Dorothea Fisher, art instructor at Bloomfield High School. Entry fee for children (to be paid on day of show only) is 50 cents.

For information and entry blanks, readers may contact Carl Dembowski, 88 Mt. Vernon ave., Irvington.

'Husmorsgymnastiken' lessons Housewives keep fit the Swedish way

Housewives who blame their aches and pains on mundane household chores will have an opportunity to learn how to exercise away their muscle fatigue in the Swedish manner at Upsala College, East Orange, on June 3.

A touring group of 70 Swedish housewives will appear on campus to present a workshop program in rhythmic gymnastics for girls and women. In addition to housewives, invited to participate are physical education teachers, instructors in Y's and adult education courses from north Jersey.

"Housewives' gymnastics, known as 'husmorsgymnastiken' in Swedish, were started in Sweden in 1942 and the world-famous organization numbers more than 100,000 active participants. The exercises are arranged in programs with musical accompaniment and are designed to condition all parts of the body for relaxation and fitness. Master teachers from Sweden will participate in the program.

The housewives' appearance at Upsala was arranged by Dr. Rosabell Koss, of Little Falls, director of the college's physical education for women. Last June she attended an Institute for Leaders for Housewives Gymnastics in Sweden for 10 days.

"Rhythmic gymnastics are more like what we call the modern dance, but it's difficult to know where one begins and the other ends," Dr. Koss said. "We exercise to music with breath impulses. The movements are continuous and flowing."

The exercises, closely akin to some which are used in physical therapy, aim at teaching the housewife to relax and to develop correct posture. They keep her in good physical condition, providing elasticity in limbs and muscles if they are performed regularly every week.

The Swedish housewives will be leaving their native land on next Wednesday and Upsala will

Atomic pacemakers to be discussed Annual luncheon is scheduled for June 5

Springfield members of the Pacemaker Club of Newark Beth Israel Medical Center will be among those attending the third annual luncheon of the group at the Mountside Inn June 5, when the outlook for atomic pacemakers will be discussed.

Speakers will be Sen. Harrison E. Williams and Thomas Hurson, program chairman of Nucem Corp., manufacturer of the nuclear-powered pacemaker, State Sen. Matthew Rinaldo will be a guest at the meeting.

Springfield residents who are active members of the Pacemaker Club are: Nilo Bonpace, 22 Highland Ave., William Borsari, 106 Henshaw Ave.; Frank Franzese, 690 Morris Ave.; Alexander Liebeskind, 93 B. Troy Ave.; Martin Meade, 30 Remer Ave.; David Miller, 445 Morris Ave.; Mrs. Catherine Piccione, 17 Hilltop Court; Mrs. Gertrude Rowe, 18 Warwick Circle; Miss Marie Sommer, 138 Evergreen Ave.; and Chiam Zalzman, 22 Christy Lane.

The atomic pacemaker was originally conceived and suggested for development by Dr.

Victor Parsonnet, director of surgery, and George H. Myers, Ph.D., chief of the biomedical engineering section of The Institute Newark Beth Israel Medical Center, to the Atomic Energy Commission and the Nuclear Materials and Equipment Corporation.

It is expected that the atomic pacemaker, approximately two-thirds the size of a pack of cigarettes and weighing only ounces, will operate for 10 years. Pacemakers currently in use are powered with batteries whose life varies from 18 months to 30 months.

THE PACEMAKER TEAM at the Medical Center has implanted approximately 500 pacemakers since 1961. Over 700 secondary operations have been performed for failure of the batteries, components, electrodes and lead wires. While the patients have ranged in age from nine to 96, the average age is now estimated to be 73. Several of the guests at the luncheon will be celebrating their 10th anniversaries free of irregularities in heart rhythm.

Cardiologists at Overlook find new uses for the stethoscope

The traditional symbol of the doctor, the stethoscope, is being put to new and sophisticated uses at Overlook Hospital where a three-week course called cardiac auscultation has just been completed by physician-members of the Overlook medical staff.

Dr. Albert Vitale, cardiologist and director of Overlook's cardiopulmonary laboratory, who gave the course, pointed out:

"Delicate new instruments today supplement the old-fashioned stethoscope, but the original doctor's tool still can give the first clue to heart disorders if the ear is tuned to subtle sounds.

"Instruments such as the phonocardiograph in Overlook's cardiopulmonary laboratory today can give more detailed information on the ailing heart, helping to pinpoint in just what area the problem lies. Supplemented by X-rays and heart catheterization findings, these new scientific findings can mean prolonged life for many."

Heart murmurs, detected early, can suggest preventive treatment against such diseases as bacterial endocarditis, an infection of the heart lining, he added.

"Patients with benign heart murmurs may be able to function perfectly well in many cases, but they are prone to bacterial endocarditis when undergoing surgery, or during delivery, catheterization, dental surgery, even professional teeth cleaning. Preventive penicillin at these times for such patients can ward off the infections that tend to settle in a weak heart valve," Dr. Vitale explained.

Reassuring to anxious parents of children with heart murmurs, too, can be the more finely diagnosed information which can show that a murmur is benign.

"At Overlook Hospital we now have" the capability of evaluating heart sounds and murmurs with modern techniques of graphic records - written records, plus audiosound recordings for permanent records. Using both visual and audio records of these heart sounds we can make future comparisons to see the extent of change and the course of a heart disorder," Dr. Vitale explained.

3 reported hurt in auto mishaps during last week

Three persons were reported injured in automobile accidents last week, according to Springfield police.

Frank Sabo of Westfield was injured Saturday morning when his car was struck by a vehicle driven by Sylvia Canell of Union at the corner of Morris and Short Hills avenues, police reported. Sabo complained that his back hurt and told police he would see his own doctor.

Police said both cars were traveling west on Morris Avenue and Sabo had stopped for a red light. Mrs. Canell told police that the brakes on her vehicle failed when the accident occurred. Hyman Boydman of 293 S. Springfield Ave., Springfield, was reported injured last Tuesday morning when his car was hit by a car driven by Sherry L. Diamond of Briar Hills Circle, Springfield, at the intersection of Meisel Avenue and Milltown Road, police said. Boydman told police he would see his own doctor because his neck and back hurt.

According to the police report, Boydman was making a right turn onto Milltown Road from Meisel and had stopped for a school guard who was letting children cross the street. The Diamond vehicle was attempting to go around Boydman's car when the accident happened.

Annie E. Leak of Newark was reported injured Saturday night when her car hit a tree on Henshaw Avenue near Franklin Place, police said. The vehicle skidded into the tree and had to be towed away.

BARBECUE WARNING

Man to face new charge

Gary P. Hodge, 19, of Summit was rearrested Monday by Springfield police in Springfield Municipal Court while he and Carol A. Krantz, 23, of Irvington were being tried by Judge Max Sherman on charges stemming back to Feb. 25.

Hodge now faces a new charge of being under the influence of a narcotic drug while in court. The hearing on this will be held June 7.

Both Hodge and Miss Krantz are being held in the Union County Jail for sentencing June 7 on the original charges. Both were found guilty Monday of defrauding an innkeeper and possession of narcotics paraphernalia. They were originally released on $1,000 bail each, but the bail was rescinded Monday night. They are now being held in the Union County Jail in lieu of $2,000 bail for Hodge and $1,000 bail for Miss Krantz. Police said the pair had tried to use a stolen credit card at Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge on Rt. 22. The manager checked the card and Hodge and Miss Krantz ran away when he confronted them. They were apprehended in Cranford and were turned over to Springfield authorities.

Memorial

Down the corridors of time comes the memory of brave men...the many who, throughout our nation's history, have given their all, sacrificed their very lives for honor, home and country. Their acts, their courage and their beliefs are ever an inspiration. Those servicemen of our community who in more recent times, have fought and died in the cause of freedom are part of this noble company. On Memorial Day, we reflect upon their deeds with deep respect and lasting gratitude. And proudly, we salute them.

Saker gets award at Yeshiva dinner; leadership is cited

More than $250,000 has been raised for Yeshiva University through a scholarship dinner held in New York City to aid students of America's oldest university established under Jewish auspices, according to George George of Maplewood. President of the New Jersey Division of Foodarama Shop-Rite Supermarkets, Inc., he served as the dinner chairman.

Some 1,000 food industry, business and community leaders attended the dinner at which Joseph J. Saker, Foodarama chairman and president, received the Yeshiva University Award for outstanding leadership in educational causes.

George chaired an executive committee comprising several hundred industry representatives who coordinated the event. These included Harry Maidenbaum of Met Food Corp. and Ira Waldbaum of Waldbaum's Inc., honorary chairmen; Sidney Cohen of Foodarama, David Karin of Waldbaum's, Howard Maidenbaum of Met Foods, David Silverberg of Wakefern and David Weitz of Foodarama, co-chairmen. Vice-chairmen were A. Joseph Ferolie of Ferolie Corp., Louis Israelow of Royal Dairy and Kenneth Pezrow of the Kenneth J. Pezrow Corp.

A Foodarama director and member of the executive committee, George joined the corporation in 1962 as director of operations and served as vice president in charge of operations before assuming his present post.

George began his career in the food industry at the age of 15, working as a delivery boy for a neighborhood grocer in Newark, where he was born and raised. After schooling and two years in the Navy, he opened his own Superette in Union, followed by a second store in Elizabeth.

He joined National Supermarkets as a merchandising trainee in 1949. By 1954, at the age of 27, he was named vice president and general manager, a post he held for six years. Between 1960 and 1961, he opened two major supermarkets in Newark and then, at the invitation of the Greek Government, spent six months in Greece surveying and analyzing the country's supermarket potential. On his return to the U.S., he joined Foodarama.

NCE names new dean

Announcement of the appointment was made by Dr. William Hazell, president, following recent action by the NCE board of trustees.

As assistant dean for engineering technology Engelson will assume the administrative responsibility for the academic aspects of NCE's most recently approved program that will lead young people to the Bachelor of Technology degree.

PS earmarks $900,000 for fuel cell electricity tests

A nationwide test program aimed at developing a fuel cell power plant has been launched in Farmington, Conn.

The fuel cell power plant is a highly efficient device which can produce electricity directly from natural gas.

The test program began as a 12-1/2-kilowatt experimental version of the power plant started operating in Talcott Village, a residential-commercial complex now being built near Hartford.

The program is sponsored by TARGET, a group of gas and electric companies which includes Public Service Electric and Gas Co. Public Service has committed $900,000, to be paid over a three-year period, toward the program, which is being conducted by Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Division of United Aircraft Co. in conjunction with the TARGET member companies. As part of the program, Public Service will install three 12-1/2-kilowatt experimental fuel cell power plants in its territory early next year.

If operation of these experimental units is successful, larger fuel cell power plants may make a significant contribution to energy supplies in the 1980's. Should larger fuel cells prove to be feasible, Public Service contemplates using them as an additional source of power which can be located at substations close to the point of use. Such a use could further reduce the effect on the environment of producing electric energy while maintaining a reliable system to provide some of society's electric needs.

The fuel cell power plant creates electricity by mixing hydrogen, which is produced from natural gas, with oxygen. They react to one another, creating chemical energy, which is converted into electric energy. The fuel cell power plant is potentially far more efficient than conventional generation in which two-thirds of the energy in the fuel is lost. And because it has no moving parts, it is both silent and potentially durable. It is also virtually pollution-free.

In 1971 and 1972, TARGET member companies will install and operate experimental natural gas fuel cell power plants at 37 locations in 19 states and the District of Columbia.

Sculpture division added to art show

A sculpture division will be added this year in the Great Monmouth Fair Art Show to be held at Freehold Raceway, Routes 9 and 33, from June 28 through July 4. According to Bruce Fallender, show chairman, and member of the Freehold Art Society which is hosting the show, "so many sculpture entries were in last year's show that it was deemed advisable to take sculpture out of the 'other media' division."

The art show has been opened to all artists this year rather than being confined to residents of Monmouth County. Many out-of-country artists had to be denied admission last year.

Another innovation is a separate category for the works of those over the age of 60. Prizes in the senior citizen division will be awarded on 'Golden Age Day' at the fair, Tuesday, June 29, when senior citizens will be honored and will participate in various programs.

Holiday deadline

Strict adherence to this newspaper's Friday news deadline is suggested for material intended for the June 3 issue, because this office will be closed on Monday, Memorial Day. All organizational, social and other news items for the June 3 issue should be submitted by tomorrow, May 28.

Moeller selected by bankers' group

Horace G. Moeller, president of the Colonial National Bank, Haddonfield, was elected president of the New Jersey Bankers Association last week by the official delegates attending the 68th Annual NJBA Convention at Chalfont-Haddon Hall.

Moeller, who served as the association's vice-president in 1970-71, succeeds Erwin O. Kraft, president, First National Bank of New Jersey, Totowa, as president. Other new officers elected include vice-president George L. Bieltz, president, Monmouth County National Bank, Red Bank, and treasurer Alvan B. Fehm, chairman and president, National Union Bank of Dover.

The association delegates selected seven new members of the executive committee, the association's governing body. They are: Edwin W. Baier, president, New Brunswick Savings Bank, New Brunswick; Raymond E. Brower, president, Bergen State Bank, Bergenfield; Kenneth H. Dickson, president, First National Bank of Westwood; Frank M. Pitt, chairman, First New Jersey Bank, Union; William P. Tuggle, III, president, Somerset Hills & County National Bank, Basking Ridge; Ralph H. Mather, chairman, First National Bank of Princeton; and Raymond L. Steen, president, Broad Street National Bank, Trenton.

Legislature will seek voter approval of $155 million education bond issue

To continue the expansion and improvement of the New Jersey higher education system, Governor Cahill and the Legislature will seek voter approval of a $155 million bond issue in November. The bond issue will provide construction funds for essential facilities at Rutgers University, the state colleges, the College of Medicine and Dentistry, Newark, the county community colleges, and Newark College of Engineering.

"The construction program to be supported by the 1971 bond issue will sustain the dramatic expansion of enrollment now underway in New Jersey public higher education," Ralph A. Dungan, state chancellor of higher education said.

"Through their support of the 1968 bond issue, the voters of New Jersey pledged themselves to build a superior higher education system in the state," Dungan added. "Our citizens were disturbed that more than half of the college students from New Jersey attended colleges and universities outside the state."

"By a margin of two to one, the voters approved $202.5 million as the first step in eliminating the deficiency in college and university facilities which made New Jersey 49th in the nation in terms of per capita support to higher education."

"Since 1968, significant progress has been made. The 1968 bond issue has provided major academic buildings and supporting facilities throughout the higher education system: at the three campuses of Rutgers University in New Brunswick, Newark and Camden; at the six established four-year state colleges — Glassboro, Jersey City, Newark, Montclair, William Paterson, and Trenton; and at the two new state colleges, Ramapo and Stockton, which were brought into existence through the bond issue."

"The 1968 bond issue has also supported initial facilities for the New Jersey College of Medicine and Dentistry. And it helped to finance construction at the 14 two-year community colleges in Atlantic, Bergen, Burlington, Camden, Essex, Cumberland, Gloucester, Mercer, Middlesex, Monmouth, Morris, Ocean, Passaic and Somerset Counties."

"By 1973, when the new facilities are fully utilized, the 1968 Bond Issue will have increased full-time enrollment by over 50,000 students."

"Despite these dramatic gains, much remains to be done. The Governor's Commission to Evaluate the Capital Needs of New Jersey estimated in 1968 an immediate need for $500 million to finance high-priority higher education projects. The 1968 bond issue met less than half of this need and Mr. Edward E. Booher, chairman of the Board of Higher Education, has expressed the board's deep concern that, despite rapid growth in enrollments improving the level of health care for all our citizens. "It will expand the opportunities for higher education by creating spaces for more than 22,000 additional college students by 1975. Hence, over the seven-year period from 1968 to 1975, these two bond issues will have more than doubled the space available for New Jersey students."

in recent years, the state still provides opportunities for too few of its young men and women.

"The Higher Education Bond Issue for 1971 will allow the state to move closer to the goal set in 1968. It will foster the continued growth and development of all elements of the New Jersey higher education system. "It will provide the state with a medical and dental school of the first rank, thereby

Hospital meals going CAMP Computers are onto the menu

What's for lunch? Hospitals have started asking computers that question.

One hospital which serves 33,000 meals per day has realized a four percent savings in its annual $3 million food budget, and its patients and employees have attested to the improved quality, quantity and variety of the meals since a computer assumed the chore of menu planning.

The May 16 issue of "Hospitals, Journal of the American Hospital Association" describes the use of CAMP (computer-assisted menu planning) in Central State Hospital, Millersville, Pa.

In addition to listing foods for each day's meals, CAMP also is programmed to provide nutritional data which previously had to be computed by hand, the quantity of ingredients necessary to yield the total number of servings, and the quality and kinds of food necessary for the menu period.

The 90-day menu plan is obtained from a four-hour machine run on the high-speed printer. It takes four food service employees four hours to review menus for color (which cannot now be coded), regional taste preferences not controlled by separation ratings, cost and unusual supply or equipment problems.

Hands off young animals --own habitat is the best

With nature once again producing her crop of young uns, the New Jersey Division of Fish, Game and Shellfisheries warns that it's "hands off" when one considers picking one up for a pet.

Existing laws which prohibit anyone from keeping such animals, are presently being revised to produce better enforcement.

In a statement this week, the Division noted: "Fawns, racoons, etc., when small, have an appeal and attraction to many people. However, they do grow up and can become mean and nasty."

This attraction can become an attachment and many a youngster's heart has even an adult's heart has been broken when the animal was later picked up by a division employee. "The animals belong in their natural environment, not in someone's kitchen or living room."

SUNDAY'S SERMON

MEMORIAL DAY
God is not dead; neither is patriotism. The few loud voices who proclaim otherwise are wasting their voices against the winds of truth and reason.

In the beginnings of Christianity, the swords of the tyrant failed to abort fulfillment of the promise that a Child born in Bethlehem would bring new hope to the world. This hope has endured, through the centuries, against fire and steel, and changing ideologies. It will remain.

When the founders of this nation saw fit to seek a new freedom, they gave birth to a national patriotism and gave words to a Constitution establishing a government "of the people, by the people, for the people." Since the first struggles of this infant nation there have been patriots sufficient to man the necessary defenses, to struggle for good, to fight oppression. The well shall not run dry.

We may live today in a world far from perfect; in a nation afflicted with too much apathy, too much dissention. But, we are hopeful, and we are strong. There is a church on the corner and nearby Old Glory unfurls its colors to the sky.

McDermott backs solid waste council, pledges his support

State Sen. Frank X. McDermott (R-Union) has pledged his whole-hearted cooperation in support of any efforts to be made by Sen. James H. Wallwork to assure the activation of the Council on Solid Waste Management, authorized by the State Legislature in May 1970.

The Union County legislator said that his support was offered in the belief that the as yet unnamed 11-member council represented "a practical means now at hand for exploring problems of environmental protection in New Jersey."

"New Jersey's environmental needs," McDermott said, "are properly a concern of every responsible legislator but what is needed now is action on existing legislation. There is no value to any new proposal which would effectively delay any work in this area for another year or two. Unfortunately, this would probably be the chief result of Sen. Wallwork's new plan to have the Legislature authorize a council on recycling in the Department of Environmental Protection."

"As one of the original sponsors of the Council on Solid Waste Management, Sen. Wallwork should be dedicating his efforts to implementing this authorized body rather than proposing that yet another group be organized at some future date to examine what is virtually the same problem. If Sen. Wallwork will work to hasten the formation of the Council on Solid Waste Management so that this group can begin its most important work, I will certainly offer my support. In conscience, however, I see no gain to the people of New Jersey in seeking to duplicate an effort at environmental control authorized a year ago and regrettably not as yet in operation."

Health Department control of program to battle TB urged

The 1970-1971 annual report of the Tuberculosis-Respiratory Disease Association of New Jersey, released this week, notes that the eradication of tuberculosis requires a comprehensive program of diagnosis, treatment, follow-up and prevention under one authority responsible for the success of the overall program.

The position adopted by the association's Board of Directors states that the New Jersey State Department of Health should have the authority and responsibility for setting and enforcing standards, rules and regulations for a comprehensive, coordinated tuberculosis control program.

The annual report, entitled "Review and Forecast," highlights activities of this Christmas Seal Association during the past year and lists priorities for the future. Programs concerning the eradication of tuberculosis, control of respiratory diseases, conservation of the air, elimination of cigarette smoking, and improvement of community health and welfare.

In addition to a central authority for tuberculosis control, other priorities which the Association would like to see implemented are the short-term treatment of tuberculosis patients in general hospitals, the prevention of tuberculosis through drug therapy, and the establishment of adequate respiratory disease and medical facilities, services and manpower which are available, accessible, and acceptable to all New Jersey citizens. These priorities and other grew out of an intensive self-study of past programs and future needs which is undertaken by all TB-RD associations every five years.

Among the 1970 activities highlighted are the development of references to assist the physician who wishes to assume more responsibility for the treatment and prevention of tuberculosis both on an out-patient and an in-hospital basis.

The report also mentions the financial support given to faculty positions at the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey at Newark and the Rutgers College of Nursing through the Medical Research and Teaching Fund, to which all New Jersey Christmas Seal Associations have contributed. In an effort to strengthen medical education on respiratory diseases within the state. Testifying at two public hearings on air pollution codes and participating in the nationwide "Kick the Habit" campaign against cigarette smoking were other activities reported.

In her president's message, Dr. Vendela E. Olson pointed out that it is only through the continued support of the public that all TB-RD associations can continue to work toward improving and protecting the respiratory health of our citizens.

Public forum slated on 'housing crisis'

The Committee on Housing of the Union County Welfare Board announced this week that it will hold a public forum to discuss the "low income housing crisis in Union County." The meeting will be held on Wednesday evening, June 2, at 7:30 p.m. in the Freeholders' Meeting Room, Court House Annex, Elizabeth.

Union County Adjuster Donald Myers, chairman of the committee, is extending an invitation to all interested groups to send representatives to this forum.

"We recognize that the impact of sub-standard housing is felt primarily by our welfare recipients. We believe our obligation to all of the citizens of this county in these times of ever-rising cost is to exert every effort to aid in securing decent housing at a fair rental for all.

"We have met with responsible municipal officials in our county recently and now we wish to hear from the general public. Since it is virtually impossible to determine who all of the groups and organizations are that share our concern, we hope that the word will spread through the news media."

'Carnival' kits aid cancer fight

The American Cancer Society, 512 Westminster ave., Elizabeth, will provide free "Cancer Carnival" kits to Union County children who would like to hold neighborhood carnivals to benefit the crusade against cancer.

The kits include "Send a Mouse to College" envelopes, pins, balloons and bumper stickers, as well as complete instructions for staging backyard shows and other events for their audiences.

The McCarron earned his B.S. degree from Georgetown University and his M.S. from George Washington University in 1949. He was also an instructor at George Washington University immediately after his master's degree was awarded.

Following service as a Lieutenant in the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers during the Korean War, McCarron became affiliated with the Dan McCarron and Son general contracting firm of Elizabeth and has served with that family enterprise to the present. He is also a member of the Elizabeth Rotary Club.

BACK-UP TEAM—Lending their support at ground breaking ceremonies for Union College's new library-learning center and classroom building are: Dr. Francis Hammond, regional director, Office of Education, Department of Health, Education and Welfare; H. Stanley Krusen, chairman of the finance committee of the board of trustees and chairman of the library building fund campaign, and Freeholder Director Edward Tiller, Union County Board of Freeholders.

College starts fund campaign for new library-class facility

A campaign to raise $2 million to help finance the library-classroom building project will be launched immediately by Union College, Cranford, it was announced this week by H. Stanley Krusen of Summit, former president of Shearson, Hammill & Co., Inc., campaign chairman, at ground breaking ceremonies at the Cranford campus.

Krusen, who is chairman of the finance committee of the board of trustees, announced advanced gifts in excess of $300,000 to initiate the campaign.

Union College has qualified for an interest subsidy grant under the Higher Education Facilities Act from the Office of Education of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. In addition, Union College has borrowed $4.5 million for the project through the New Jersey Education Facilities Authority.

"Upon the completion of the project, the short term borrowings of the authority will be funded into long term debt," Krusen explained. "The college trustees determined that in order to provide safely for current and future needs of the college, the amount of the planned bond issue should be reduced by $2 million so as to lighten the burden of debt service.

"The trustees wish to maintain the status of an independent college while performing a vital public service. They also wish to preserve flexibility in managing the constantly growing needs of the college. The estimated debt service of long term bonds and the added requirements to provide monies for bond reserve and renewal and replacement funds could strain the financial capabilities of the college. Consequently, the bond issue reduced in size by private contribution lessens these fixed financial obligations. Hence, this building fund campaign."

Krusen said gifts, which are tax deductible, should be sent to the Union College Building Fund, in care of Union College, Cranford, N.J., 07016.

Dr. Kenneth W. Iversen, president, who presided at the ceremonies, called the library-classroom building project one of the most significant programs in the 38-year history of Union College. He said the library will enable Union College to maintain its high quality academic programs and to expand its educational offerings, while the new academic building will provide instructional areas to serve an additional 800 full-time students and an equal number of part-time students.

Retarded offered free music lessons

The Union County Unit, New Jersey Association for Retarded Children, has announced plans to sponsor free music lessons in the County.

According to Arlene Seppelt and Ellen Giordano, co-chairmen, lessons will be offered once a week all summer and into the fall. Instruction will be given on a variety of musical instruments.

Parents wishing to enroll mentally retarded children in this program have been asked to attend a meeting on June 10 at the Parish House of Saint James Methodist Church, South Broad and Pearl streets, Elizabeth. The meeting is scheduled for 4 p.m.

The Library-Learning Center will contain 52,000 square feet and will be built on three levels at the corner of Springfield Avenue and Princeton road. It will provide seating for about 450 students and space for more than 100,000 volumes. The building will also contain a Union County Room for the collection of data about Union County; an art gallery; a conference room, and an audio center.

The 26,000 square foot classroom building, which will parallel Princeton road, will provide 17 classrooms, two lecture halls, faculty offices and other facilities.

The project also includes the conversion of the present library in the Nomahegan Building to a quiet student lounge, faculty offices, and a counseling center.

Film to enlighten on 'Our Mr. Sun'

"Our Mr. Sun," a color, sound film will be shown at the Union County Park Commission's Trailside Nature and Science Center, in the Watchung Reservation, on Sunday at 2 p.m.

The film shows the importance of the sun upon all life on earth.

Also on Sunday, at 3 p.m. and again at 4 p.m., Donald W. Mayer, director of Trailside, assisted by Elmer Van Gilder, educational assistant at Trailside, will present a program in the Trailside Planetarium entitled "Sky Explorers." The lecturers will discuss several of the modern-day astronomers and what they have done to add to our knowledge of the skies above.

As the Trailside Planetarium can seat only 35 people at a performance it is necessary to obtain a ticket from the Trailside office on the day of the show. Tickets are issued on a first-come, first-served basis. Children under eight years of age are not permitted in the planetarium chamber.

One-half hour nature talks for children will be conducted in the Trailside auditorium at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, June 1; Wednesday, June 2, and Thursday, June 3. The topic to be discussed during the four days is "Microscopic Life." The talks will be illustrated with color slides.

The film concerns a confirmed bachelor with a diminishing fortune, whose lust for money forces him into marriage with an eccentric heiress.

'My Fair Lady' in-the-round at Meadowbrook 'entrancing'

The stage musical, "My Fair Lady," which entranced audiences on Broadway for more than six years, continues to entrance audiences at the Meadowbrook Theater-Restaurant in Cedar Grove. This enchanting piece of work, adapted from George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion," and taken in hand by Alan Jay Lerner, who wrote the book and lyrics, and Frederick Loewe, who wrote the music, is now being presented in the theater-in-the-round.

And, it appears to be one of the most difficult productions to stage for this type of theater. A good deal of credit must be given to the stage hands — and prop men who travel up and down the ramps in the dark to set up the complicated and heavy scenery, and one is occasionally forced to hold one's breath — but the boys come through with no accidents, tumbles or collisions! They really are first rate.

Edward Mulhare, clean-shaven and exceptionally handsome, recreates his Broadway role (he replaced Rex Harrison in New York) of Professor Henry Higgins, who transforms the uneducated coarse Eliza Doolittle into an elegant lady fit for royalty. Mulhare, who lacks the sarcasm and bite induced by his predecessor, manages to be convincing as a "quieter" type, and he does an excellent job of "talking" the musical numbers. "Why Can't the English," "I'm An Ordinary Man," "You Did It" and "I've Grown Accustomed to her Face."

Karen Shepard (known as the "singing actress"), familiar with the role of Eliza (she has played it in other productions of the fabulous musical), seems to have been born for the part. She sings an exceptionally fine voice, and is particularly good in such numbers as "Wouldn't It Be Lovely," "Just You Wait," "Show Me" and "Without You." But when she breaks out in "I Could Have Danced All Night" and "The Rain in Spain," a "My Fair Lady" fan easily breaks out in goose flesh. There are moments when she reminds one of the original star, Julie Andrews, physically and musically.

Jack Fletcher (the one whose face one couldn't forget in the Meadowbrook's "The Boy Friend") is very good as Alfred P. Doolittle. The versatile actor gives a remarkable performance in his own version of Eliza's father, and days later, a theater goer continues

'Blue Movie' now at Art, Irvington

Alex De Renzy's X-rated film, "A History of the Blue Movie," which arrived at the Art Cinema in Irvington Center yesterday, is being presented as an in-depth probe of American Adult Film Productions featuring all-time classics, "The None Story," "The Janitor," "Candy Barr," "Smart Alec," "Ever Ready" and "Creeping Tom."

The movies are arranged into a semblance of a history with a legitimate social and educational value. De Renzy has chosen the films to document new directions in the blue movie including the addition of sound.

De Renzy's narration is an assertion that the blue movie has emerged at last from under the counter.

to hum "With A Little Bit of Luck" and "Get Me to the Church On Time" with Fletcher in mind.

John Witham, a handsome young man with a good voice, is seen as Freddy Eynsford-Hill, who falls for the "new" Eliza, and who sings "On the Street Where You Live" convincingly. Colonel Pickering is portrayed by Guy Spaul, who underplays his comedic role, and is particularly funny in the scene with Mulhare, when the latter belts out "I'm an Ordinary Man."

The featured players and singers, who appear to work the hardest, give a reviewer the feeling from time to time that they are the real stars. They are Cathy Conklin, Myron Curtis, Bruce Cheney, Leslie Nicol, Marie Paxton, Barbara Hoffman, Connie Gillaspie, B. J. Harrod and Lewis Rosen.

The funniest and most colorful number is the "Ascot Gavotte." It is the most elaborate scene in the show.

"My Fair Lady" is the type of production one cannot see "just once!" This reviewer has already made reservations for another visit. The musical will run through June 27. It's one of the best productions ever staged at the Meadowbrook. If you've seen it before, see it again. If you haven't seen it yet—-you're in for a real treat!

Gary Player exhibition, clinic billed for June 21

Gary Player, Johannesburg, South Africa, one of the best-known professional golfers in the world, will play an exhibition at the Union County Park Commission's Ash Brook Golf Course in Scotch Plains, on Monday, June 21, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

This golf exhibition is in recognition of the Union County Park Commission's "Golden Anniversary" which is being celebrated this year.

Player will conduct a clinic at the first tee

Summer meeting at Monmouth Park opens on Tuesday

Sons and daughters of many outstanding champions of the recent past are among the more than 600 eligibles to Monmouth Park's $100,000 Sapling and Sorority Stakes for two-year-olds, to be run during the summer meeting opening Tuesday, according to H.A. (Jimmy) Jones, director of racing.

One of the brightest prospects for the six-furlong Sapling on July 31 is Claiborne Farm's Indian. This homebred colt is by Round Table a winner of $1,749,869, out of Moccasin, a winner of $388,075. Round Table has been one of our most successful stallions, siring such runners as Nightly Manner, Advocate, Canal, Beau Brummel and Cabildo.

The six-furlong Sorority for 2-year-old fillies, to be run July 24, has many well-bred nominees, including Mrs. Whitney Stone's Sister Shu, a full sister to the brilliant race-mare Shuvee. The sire is Nashua, a winner of $1,288,565, while the dam is Levee, a winner of $223,305. Nashua has also been a top sire, his best sons and daughters including Diplomat Way, Marsha, Bugged, Bramalea and the aforementioned Shuvee.

A final payment of $125 per nomination for the Sapling and Sorority is due on or before June 15. Horses who are not eligible to the twin events may be supplemented at a cost of $5,000 each.

In addition to a purse of at least $60,000, the owners of the winners of the Sapling and Sorority receive expensive trophies crafted by a nationally prominent jeweler. Special cash awards also accrue to the breeders of the first four horses across the line in each event, beginning at 1:30 p.m. At 2 p.m., Player and Charlie Tatz, the professional at the Ash Brook Golf Course, will play an 18-hole best-ball match against Billy Zlobro of the Tammy Brook Country Club and Babe Lichardus of the Shackamaxon Country Club. Zlobro and Lichardus finished first and second in the 1971 Dodge Open Tournament.

Tickets for the exhibition will be available at the Galloping Hill and Ash Brook Golf Courses, pitch and putt courses, and at the Administration Building of the Union County Park Commission, Warnanco Park, Elizabeth. The cost will be $3 per person at advance sale and $5 per person on the day of the event. During the morning of June 21, 32 Union County public links golfers will tee off in a best-ball tournament, each player compared with Gary Player's afternoon score for his best-ball. These players will be 24 men selected by the Ash Brook and Galloping Hill Men's Golf Associations and by the Union County Park Commission. In addition eight women, four from the Galloping Hill Women's Golf Association and four from the Ash Brook Women's Golf Association will also tee off to play against Player's score. All of the public link golfers will be playing with their handicap.

The members of the Ash Brook and Galloping Hill Golf Associations will serve as marshals at this event.

Joseph F. Leddy, Elizabeth, and Thomas P. Luchio, Elizabeth are serving as co-chairmen of the exhibition.

FAA clinic set June 4 at Caldwell

A "lady bird" -- one of some 80 women who hold air-line transport pilot certificates -- will take part in an FAA takeoff and landing clinic tomorrow Friday, June 4, at 6 p.m. at the Caldwell Airport. Peggy Shinn Naumann will fly one of the aircraft in the clinic with FAA examiner Rolf Nelson piloting the other.

Sponsored by the Caldwell-Wright Airport Safety Committee, a lecture will be conducted in the airport's North Hangar by the FAA's L. J. Cox and John J. Karp. The clinic will then move outdoors to Runway 27 where the planes will demonstrate the correct and incorrect way to land and take off on soft or short fields, cross wind and with full flaps and no flaps. Cox and Karp will broadcast from each aircraft what the pilot is doing and the commentary will be heard over a mobile air-to-ground VHF radio and amplifier.

State jobless rate remains 7.2 pct.; total dips 3,300

New Jersey's rate of unemployment remained essentially unchanged in April at 7.2 percent of the work force, according to preliminary estimates prepared by the New Jersey Department of Labor and Industry's Division of Planning and Research. The Department's revised estimate for March is 7.3 percent. The jobless volume dropped by an estimated 3,300 over the month to a total of 222,400 in April. Normally, unemployment declines somewhat more than this during early spring.

Compared to a year ago, the jobless rate increased by 2.2 points and the volume was up 70,200.

The unemployment rate decreased between March and April in 11 of the 13 labor areas, increased in 3, and remained unchanged in 1. Of the larger areas, decreases occurred in Atlantic City, Camden, Long Branch, and Newark. The bulk of this monthly decline in joblessness in these areas was sparked by seasonal pickups in construction, trade, and services.

The Atlantic City Labor Area showed the sharpest April drop with the jobless rate falling from 9.9 to 7.7 percent of the work force. In addition to seasonal recalls related to the refurbishing of the area's resort establishments, scattered returns-to-work also were noticed in the apparel industry.

In the Newark area, mid-weather pickups in construction and services occurred in April plus seasonal recalls in miscellaneous manufacturing (toys).

All of the smaller areas reported monthly rate decreases. The most significant decline occurred again in the Ocean City-Wildwood-Cape May Labor Area rate, which fell 2.1 points to 13.9 percent of the work force. This substantial contraction in joblessness was attributed to further preparation for resort-oriented activities. Despite this April drop, the area still had the highest unemployment rate in the State.

The Paterson-Clifton-Passaic Area was the only area to maintain a stable unemployment rate over the month. Despite scattered recalls by apparel firms and seasonal expansion in construction and trade, phasing-out operations by several large manufacturing firms offset these gains.

Strict adherence to this newspaper's Friday news deadline is suggested for material intended for the June 3 issue, because this office will be closed on Monday, Memorial Day. All organizational, social and other news items for the June 3 issue should be submitted by tomorrow, May 28.

Rutgers classics department gives 1st doctorate--to woman

A 39 year-old former high school teacher, the mother of a seven-year-old son, will be the recipient of the first Doctor of Philosophy degree earned in the classics department of Rutgers University.

Mrs. Dorothy K. Lange, wife of Stanley C. Lange Jr. of Piscataway, will receive her doctor's degree at the University commencement exercises June 4. She completed work for it last January.

Her achievement represents a milestone in the growth of the classics department, which was organized in 1964. A graduate program was introduced in 1964, and Mrs. Lange was the recipient of its first master's degree in 1966.

At present, the department enrolls 22 undergraduate majors, 14 master's and two doctor of philosophy degree candidates. It is an inter-university department with headquarters at Douglass College, women's branch of the University.

Mrs. Lange taught in high schools for 10 years after her graduation from Syracuse University in 1953 before deciding to embark upon graduate work in classics. At Syracuse, she had a dual major in Latin and Spanish. She was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic society; Phi Sigma Iota, honorary Romance language society, and Phi Kappa Phi, a society recognizing general all-around excellence.

One of the main factors in reaching her decision to return to academic life was a summer spent at the American Academy in Rome in 1962. Mrs. Lange, who was married in 1955, was the recipient of a Fulbright Summer Fellowship. Dr. Palmer Bovie, professor and first chairman of the classics department, was director of the summer session.

Dr. Bovie organized the classics department in 1962 and when its graduate program was started two years later, Mrs. Lange decided to work for her master's and doctor's degrees there. Praising Dr. Bovie, her supervisor, she says "he guided me the whole way."

She was one of the department's first graduate students in the fall of 1964. She served as a part-time instructor for 18 months while she worked for her doctor's degree. Her doctoral dissertation was an annotated edition of "The Aulularia," a comedy by the Roman poet, Plautus. She held a Bevier Fellowship in 1968-69.

Mrs. Lange will continue on the faculty of the classics department, serving as a lecturer during the coming academic year.

Her academic commitments have not prevented Mrs. Lange from leading a full and active life with her family. Her husband is a serologist at the Ortho Pharmaceutical Company, Karlitan.

The Langes and their son enjoy swimming and bicycling together. Mrs. Lange is an avid reader. She is an active member of the New Jersey Classical Association and the Bound Brook Branch of the American Association of University Women and belongs to a number of professional organizations.

IN PURSUIT OF A DOCTORATE--Mrs. Dorothy K. Lange of Piscataway, who will receive the first Doctor of Philosophy degree to be conferred by the Rutgers University classics department at University commencement exercises June 4; is shown enjoying a favorite non-academic activity. With her are her husband, Stanley C. Lange Jr., and her son, Paul.

There is a minimum charge of $12.50 for 10 guests; charge for additional guests -- to a maximum of 14 -- is 50 cents per person. Admission to the zoo is 25 cents each and the Iron Horse train ride, 35 cents.

Mini-grants available for state artists

New Jersey artists with works in progress may now apply for New Jersey

Council on the Arts mini-grants of $1,000 each to help them complete their projects.

To encourage and stimulate the arts in the state, the Arts Council is offering a number of grants to artists of all types, including writers, filmmakers, composers, and visual artists. No restrictions are being made on the type of work eligible, nor will the professional status of the artist be a critical factor.

The only requirement is that the work submitted for consideration show significant progress before the application is made, and that the work, within a reasonable period of time, be a distinctive conceptual design.

Byron R. Kelley, executive director of the New Jersey State Council on the Arts notes, "The Arts Council is keeping its requirements for these mini-grants open-ended to encourage maximum flexibility of approach. We want to encourage the greatest number of individual contributions to the arts, so often overlooked in government and foundation funding, which generally is limited to established organizations. Through the mini-grant program the council hopes to recognize the considerable personal contribution that creative individuals in New Jersey are making to the arts."

Works selected to receive the grants will be judged on the basis of imaginative approach, need of the artists, and the innovative quality of the particular work in relation to the artist's background.

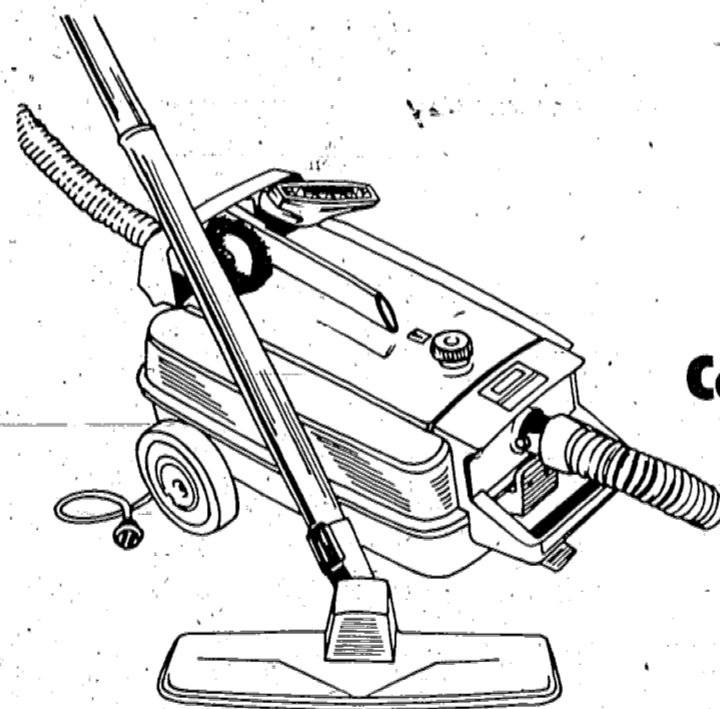

Applications, consisting of one page, should be submitted by mail to the New Jersey State Council on the Arts no later than June 30. The artist should state the nature of the project, his professional background, and the proposed use of the grant.

Sufficient and appropriate substantiating material, such as slides or photos of the project, or writing samples, should be included with the application. Artists are requested not to send the work itself. Applicants wishing their sample material returned should include a stamped, self-addressed return envelope.

The New Jersey State Council on the Arts is located in the Douglass House, John Fitch Way, Trenton, New Jersey 08608.

In the past the Arts Council has commissioned individual art-works, including a new work for the North Jersey Wind Symphony "Man and Machine"; support for the new opera "Ransford Rogers," by Louis Gordon; dance works for the Garden State Ballet and the Repertory Dancers of New Jersey; and a sculpture by artist, James Gary, for the Neptune Township Municipal Building.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Stanley F. Yolles, M.D.
Director
National Institute of Mental Health

A WORD TO VOLUNTEERS

Perhaps you want to make a personal contribution of service to your community, but have no special training in mental health. Is there anything you can do?

The answer used to be, "Not in most communities." But the picture has changed.

The development of community mental health centers and other locally based mental health programs has opened up challenging new opportunities for volunteers. Today's community-based facilities have come about through advances in knowledge and techniques in treating the mentally and emotionally ill.

Many people can be helped to recover and lead more satisfying and productive lives. Volunteers are not only supplemental professional staff in providing the needed services but also add the invaluable ingredient of community caring and concern.

Many who are willing and eager to contribute their own service may typically say, "I want to help, but I'm afraid I have nothing to offer."

Yet everyone has some skill that can be put to use to advance mental health for others. Whatever your abilities (such as cooking or house-keeping or typing), or your hobbies (such as photography or painting), or your interests (such as current events or foreign languages or sewing), your help can be very meaningful to people who are being cared for in a hospital, a day-care program, a clinic, or a community mental health center.

Your help can be a crucial factor in enabling someone to remain in the community and grow well. Indeed, if you have nothing more specific to offer than a commitment to helping, a warm and kindly feeling for people, the very gift of yourself can have unique therapeutic worth for the men, women, or children whom you assist.

Opportunities for work in mental health are now far greater than ever before and are growing. Many community mental health programs would not even exist if it were not for the dedication of many citizens.

You may contact your local mental health association, official department of health, mental health center, hospital, volunteer service bureau, or other community service agency to find out about programs in which you may serve.

The National Institute of Mental Health has prepared a 45-page publication, "Volunteers in Community Mental Health." Public Health Service Publication No. 2071, which serves as an introductory guide and information booklet for people interested in getting into volunteer work. It may be purchased for 30 cents from the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

THE STATE WE'RE IN

By DAVID F. MOORE,
Executive Director, North Jersey
Conservation Foundation

When a little state like New Jersey has almost 7.5 million residents, it's hard to overlook the fact that there's a sewage problem. It's not a pleasant subject, but we cannot ignore it, nor can we ignore the sin we and others in the northeast are committing each day by dumping sewage sludge into the ocean, literally at our own front door.

The sludge is carefully extracted from sewage at great expense in treatment plants to protect our immediate environment, and then it is carefully put into barges and dumped about a dozen miles at sea, either off New York Harbor or the mouth of Delaware Bay. Either way, it's killing fish, destroying shellfish industries and spreading across the bottom so that it's anybody's guess which beach will be closed first because of the pollution which is surely on its way toward shore.

We know we've got to stop polluting the oceans. Big as they are, we can't keep it up or some generation not too far in the future will be starting at doomsday. We shouldn't incinerate it, for with the limitations of today's technology this will most likely add to our air pollution. We can't dump it in our yards.

Or can we? The idea sounds pretty bad, but there is a growing school of thought that one of these days we may be doing approximately that. If not our yards, then our farmlands.

The idea is that if you can send petroleum across vast distances in a pipeline, why can't you do it with diluted sewage sludge which has undergone enough pretreatment to make it innocuous. Nobody is likely to be enthused about the concept of getting Newark's sewage sludge piped out to his neighborhood for dispersion on the landscape, but it wouldn't be that simple.

No less a pioneering authority than Dr. Barry Commoner recently came to New Jersey and tossed a challenge to this state. He said New Jersey is in a good position to pioneer such a plan for the rest of the country to follow. He was the first to admit that there are big problems to be overcome before the idea could be tried, but a country that can put people on the moon ought to turn some of that technology toward more useful, if prosaic goals.

One problem is that New Jersey might not even have enough suitable acreage to accommodate its own sludge. What Dr. Commoner was thinking was more along the lines of a national solution, crossing state lines where necessary. Chicago has been experimenting with this pipeline idea, proposing to rehabilitate worn out strip coal mines to the southwest by getting rid of its sludge and using it to fertilize crops like corn and soy beans. The neighbors down that way rebelled at this unappetizing idea, so Chicago has been piping some of its partially treated sludge to a test farm plot at midwestern developed farms for a demonstration project. The city has been inviting downstate farmers to come and look, sniff and talk to the local residents to find out there's nothing objectionable.

What is terribly objectionable at this stage of things is the danger, especially in an industrialized area like northern New Jersey, that the sludge will contain toxic chemicals and metals like mercury and lead. This is not the kind of thing that can safely be spread around on the ground.

There is no doubt that industries are going to have to pretreat their wastes before they let them enter sewage plant collector lines. They will have to either sharpen up their industrial processes so as not to waste dangerous materials, or they will have to put in their own plant treatment systems.

When this is accomplished, a major hurdle will have been passed on the road to safely disposing of sewage wastes on the country's lands. Industrial wastes will have to be rendered safe from metals and poisons anyway even if the pipeline idea never takes hold, because sludge has to wind up somewhere anyway, and the industrial materials are a growing threat to bacteria which make sewage plants work in the first place.

Piping sludge to the countryside is a long way off, but it's worth researching.

provisions in Bill A-1098, which would provide a procedure for the dissolution of a regional district. No such dissolution is now permitted. Ewing replied that the bill had been tabled in committee. He said that legislators felt there were provisions detrimental to communities remaining in a regional district after one or more other towns might leave. (Legislative observers have predicted that a much revised bill providing some means of dissolution will be passed in the next few years.) After lengthy discussion, the board voted to table a proposed lease contract for a computer for $10,200 per year, with an option to purchase for five percent of the original cost, or $1,421, after four years of rentals.

The computer would have been placed at the Johnson School, with teletype terminals at Gov. Livingston and, subsequently, at Brearley. The present computer at Dayton would be updated.

Joseph Sott, mathematics coordinator, was instructed to obtain written bids from at least three or four computer firms and to devise a plan by which classes in all four schools could be linked with a single computer.

A FEE of 10 percent was set for the Elsaszer architectural firm to do site work on the relocation of Van Winkle's Creek in front of the Dayton building and on the development of three new athletic fields in the area made available by the relocation.

Dr. Fred Hagedorn of Berkeley Heights, board president, noted that the "most recent estimate" of the project's cost was approximately $120,000.

In response to a question from Mrs. Sonya Dorsky, board member from Springfield, Hagedorn said that there were no immediate plans for the board to vacate the three classrooms it now uses for office space at Dayton.

He added that the board would consider this question, along with other aspects of the construction program, in the immediate future.

Resignations accepted by the board included: Frank Petrella, head basketball coach at Gov. Livingston, who has obtained a job closer to his home in Brielle; Mrs. Nancy Goldberg, music teacher at Gov. Livingston, whose husband is being transferred out of the area; and Nancy Mumford, physical education teacher at Brearley, who is about to get married and move out of the state.

LACK OF CAPITAL PLANNING LEADS TO "CRISIS" BONDS

More than a decade ago need was seen in New Jersey for a permanent and continuing program which would help determine future construction and other capital requirements of State government and set priorities to provide the most essential within the State's financial capacity.

Today - and ten bond issue referenda later - New Jersey still needs a comprehensive, long-range capital planning-budgeting procedure that will avoid the pitfalls and high costs of "crisis financing" represented in repeated bond issues.

This is the conclusion expressed by the New Jersey Taxpayers Association as voters face two new bond issue proposals totaling $235 million on this year's General Election ballot. The State's outstanding debt will be $800 million at the start of the 1972 fiscal year on July 1. Meantime, more than half the $1.3 billion in bonds approved by voters in 1968 and 1969 remain to be sold.

With reference to future bond proposals, NJTA declared: "Taxpayers want to know why such projects are necessary, whether they have been weighed against all capital needs and what are the overall priorities. They want to know the real cost of bond issues. Above all, taxpayers want to know how all of these programs will be financed."

Contending that "a major obstacle to public confidence has been created," NJTA pointed out that "there is no evidence that there has been extensive in-depth evaluation of all State capital needs, assignment of priorities to each project or even the existence of an organizational unit undertaking such critical staff work."

Noting that the Governor's Commission to Evaluate the Capital Needs of New Jersey cited "inadequacies of the State's capital planning," NJTA declared such information could have been provided with respect to present and future capital needs through implementation of the planning procedure advocated in NJTA's 1960 study titled "Controlling New Jersey's Capital Costs." Only the first steps of this were implemented with creation of the State's Interdepartmental Committee on State Planning in 1963 and this has ceased to function.

Urging legislative consideration of a modern capital planning-budgeting program in State government, NJTA outlined essential steps for improving the planning process as:

- "1. Preparation of an annual comprehensive statement of needs, both existing and future, formulated as a long-term project program with estimated costs. This would be prepared first by the several departments and then assembled by the office assigned to coordinate physical planning.
- "2. Assignment of priority ratings, and annual review for the purpose of (a) meeting the most urgent needs first, and (b) stretching available funds as far as possible before resorting to bond financing. This should involve an advisory committee composed of both State department heads and several highly qualified public citizens.
- "3. Compilation of the long-term capital budget, classified by department or agency and with the estimated year-by-year cost of each item presented and ranked in harmony with steps 1 and 2 above.
- "4. Incorporation in the current budget of the list of projects to be undertaken during the coming budget year, representing a reevaluation of (a) overall capital needs, (b) priority ratings, and (c) the amount of money which wise fiscal management can make available for capital outlay in the current year from both current income and bond funds."

concentrated on May 15. About 225 students competed.

"We invite the top students from the four schools to compete in three different contests. A separate test is developed and given for each level. Level one is for students studying algebra I; a second is for students studying geometry, and a third, for students studying algebra II.

"The contest lasts two hours. To be invited a student must have straight A's in mathematics for the year if he is in the non-honors program or two A's and a B if he is in the honors program."

Sott told about changes in the mathematics curriculum since he came to the system. He explained, "Changes in the curriculum have been quite fantastic. In many areas they were forerunners of what was to come.

"CALCULUS BEGAN in 1946 as a Math Club project. It then moved into different courses and now is a separate full year course.

"Computers came into the curriculum within the past five years. We are leaders in the state. To a great extent the administration and Board of Education deserve credit because of the financial undertaking.

"The entire algebra course has been updated. There now is much work dealing with structure, computer programming and a unit on logic. It has been so restructured that there is more rigor now and more unifying concepts than previously.

"In geometry there is more emphasis on space geometry. Now solid geometry is being combined with coordinate geometry. The latter is the use of algebraic methods in the study of geometric concepts.

"Similar advances have taken place in other courses. The unifying concept has been made into the underlying theme."

HE EXPLAINED some of the innovations that have taken place in the Regional system and one of the programs the mathematics department is looking into.

"This summer we will have a workshop concerned with working out curriculum materials for youngsters who are not college bound. I feel an effort should be placed on developing a more realistic program for this type of student than had been done in the past.

"We would like to explore the concept of independent study much further. As soon as we feel we will be in a position to meet certain objectives we will tend to move in this direction.

"We have been engaged, to a certain extent, in team teaching at Dayton and Gov. Livingston. This has been implemented in some of our math courses for non-college-bound students. I feel this is very effective.

"We are interested in computer-assisted instruction where the youngster is in communication with the computer regarding concepts he should be learning. However, this is quite expensive and we would like evidence that we would do a better job than at present."

SOTT WAS BORN in Fairfield and was graduated from East Rutherford High School. He received his bachelor of arts and master of arts degrees from Montclair State College. In addition, he studied one year at Columbia Teachers College where he was awarded a professional diploma to qualify as a mathematics specialist.

The coordinator has attended a summer institute at the University of New Hampshire, Durham, as well as many conferences and conventions. Sott has been named chairman of the students' exhibit committee for a convention that will be sponsored by the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics next year in Atlantic City.

He and his wife, the former Edna Theresa Gehring of New York City, live in Berkeley Heights. Married since 1955, they have one child, a daughter, Theresa Grace, 12, who attends public school in Berkeley Heights.

Sott has served as principal of the High School of Religion in Berkeley Heights for the past five years. He is an assistant coach of a girls' softball team. He said, "I love spending my vacation in the country. We have 360 acres in Binghamton, N.Y."

"I do not believe in remaining stagnant. In order to improve you have to make changes. However, there often is a misconception about changes. They are not necessarily for the better. Let no one be fooled that just because we are making a change we are making progress.

"I like to make sure I am standing on some solid ground as I move forward. If a change meets the objective, fine.

"I have been blessed with a very fine staff. The program has been very good.

"I feel our greatest ambassadors are our former students when they come back and tell us how well they were prepared. This is a tribute to what we have attempted.

"I enjoy teaching far more than just being a coordinator. When I was in the classroom I got much more satisfaction than with what I am doing now. Then I had contact with the heart of the school--the student.

"I may do more overall good now by being able to spread my ideas. I'm first a teacher and secondly a coordinator, so teaching at the college level gives me an outlet.

"Thirty years have gone by. I don't know where they went. I do not feel different from when I first entered the classroom in 1941.

"I am very pleased with the preparation and background the incoming ninth graders have received. This is a reflection of the splendid local programs that exist, along with effective teaching."

Demand results in reprinting of state's small claims guide

The New Jersey Department of Community Affairs has issued a second printing of a consumer's guide to the New Jersey Small Claims Court in response to an "overwhelming public demand."

The publication, entitled "How to File a Suit in New Jersey Small Claims Divisions," provides information designed to assist consumers -- particularly indigent clients -- in recovering small amounts of money owed them. It was first printed and released in December, 1970, but the original supply of 2,000 was depleted within two months.

Community Affairs Commissioner Edmund T. Hume, said a new supply of 15,000 copies has been printed to "meet an overwhelming public demand that exceeded even our most optimistic expectations." He said 5,000 copies of the new supply have already been mailed to fill outstanding orders received by the Department since March.

The department is pleased to issue additional copies of this booklet in response to the continuing public demand because it indicates that New Jersey residents are finding it useful and practical in utilizing the Small Claims Courts to recover small debts," Hume said. "It is our hope that the publication will assist many more residents, and particularly the poor, in filing a small claims suit, without having to use an attorney."

THE 28-PAGE BOOKLET, patterned on a similar publication issued by the New York Consumers' Advisory Council, was written by Carl F. Bianchi, director, Office of Legal Services, Department of Community Affairs, in conjunction with the State Office of Consumer Protection (now the Division of Consumer Affairs). It outlines in easy-to-understand language the procedures to be followed by persons wishing to recover small amounts of money for damages to property or for failure to provide necessary services.

Bianchi said the booklet also explains several legal terms which are frequently confusing to non-lawyers and contains a number of sample documents and forms which prospective plaintiffs can use as guides in filing a small claims suit, including a standard complaint form and a subpoena.

Under state law, any person 21 years old or over may file a small claims suit of up to $200 for most cases, and up to $500 for tenants seeking return of security deposits from landlords. The court provides a simple, rapid means for collecting small debts.

Indigent clients may receive copies at no cost from the 14 legal services agencies throughout the State. A directory of those offices is included in the booklet. All others may receive copies at a nominal cost of $1 a copy from the Office of Public Information, New Jersey Department of Community Affairs, P.O. Box 2768, Trenton 08625. Checks or money orders should be made payable to The Treasurer, State of New Jersey.

Bianchi said funds realized from the sale of booklets would help offset printing, postage and handling costs.

Garden State Center books Stuttgart Ballet July 12-17

The Stuttgart Ballet this week announced its schedule of repertory for its one week engagement beginning Monday, July 12, and playing nightly through Saturday, July 17, at the Garden State Arts Center (Exit 116 on the Garden State Parkway at Telegraph Hill Park in Holmdel).

John Cranko's ballet "Romeo and Juliet" will open the engagement on Monday evening, and will be presented on Wednesday and Friday evenings, July 13 and 16. The work which was first performed during the company's New York engagement moved Clive Barnes, critic of the New York Times to write, "John Cranko's staging of 'Romeo and Juliet' is quite simply the best of a distinguished bunch." That the public shared Barnes' opinion was evidenced by a standing ovation which lasted until the Met's house lights were turned on and the asbestos fire curtain was lowered.

The company, whose size and productions are as large, if not larger, than the average Broadway musical, will present the powerful and moving new ballet based on a Russian theme, "Eugene Onegin" on Wednesday and Thursday evening July 14 and 16. "Eugene Onegin" is an entirely original "Russian" ballet.

On Saturday evening, July 17, the Stuttgart Ballet will present "The Taming of the Shrew." The luscious comedy danced by a company of more than 100, will be highlight of the company's appearance in Holmdel. The Stuttgart Ballet is truly an international company. Its principals include Edon Madsen from Denmark, California's David Sutherlands, Great Britain's Judith Reyn, Czechoslovakia's Birgit Keil while Bernd Berg, Susanne Hanke and Heinz Clauss hail from various parts of East and West Germany. The corps de ballet has danced in Morocco, Java, Iceland, Switzerland, Argentina, Canada, France, Iraq, Japan, Rhodesia and Sweden.

Rider will present honorary degrees

United States Ambassador to Sweden Jerome Heartwell Holland and New Jersey Governor William T. Cahill both will receive honorary degrees during Rider College's 106th commencement Sunday, June 6.

Holland, who has had a distinguished and diversified career as a diplomat, educator and industrial administrator, also will be the guest speaker at the ceremonies for some 700 graduates.

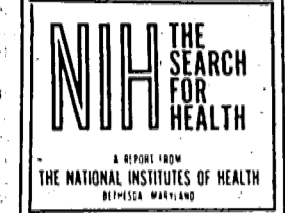

Holland, Cahill and Dr. Ernest E. McMahon, recently retired veteran of 40 years on the administrative staff of Rutgers University, all will receive honorary doctor of laws degrees.

Public utilities in N.J.

In 1970 essential services were supplied by 1,908 public utilities and 527 public movers whose combined net assets were $790.6 million. Insuring that this giant industry provides safe, adequate and proper service at a reasonable rate is the regulatory task of the New Jersey Public Utilities Commission.

The dog is supposed to be man's best friend, but how many people know they should add the less attractive rat or alligator to a list of animal friends? Nevertheless, in matters of health a variety of animals often are unrecognized but very good friends.

For example, mice, dogs, cats, and monkeys occasionally share the personal problem of about 6,000 babies born each year in the United States. These babies are victims of cleft lip or palate, and the similarly affected animals are helping scientists to learn more about this defect.

In the last decade possible causes of clefting have been earnestly studied under the leadership of the National Institutes of Dental Research, one of the components of the National Institutes of Health. Because they realize that only when the causes are known will prevention be possible, the investigators of cleft lip and palate are exploring a very difficult medical terrain. So far, although no cause is positively proved, the evidence suggests that a cleft in the palate alone is probably a different disorder than a cleft in the lip, which may occur with or without a cleft palate.

Because clefts sometimes run in families, hereditary flaws are suspected as one cause. To study inheritance factors, animals in which spontaneous clefts appear are carefully nurtured to adulthood in order to conduct breeding experiments. Because rearing them is difficult, it will be some years before inheritance patterns can be worked out.

Environmental hazards during pregnancy are also thought to cause some clefts. Here again many animals are helping scientists to learn what some of the dangers may be. As one might expect, inexpensive, rapidly maturing rodents, especially rats and mice, head the list. However other animal groups such as dogs and ferrets, ungulates represented by the pig, and primates including monkey and man.

The influences of certain drugs, hormones, vitamins, physical pressures, allergic reactions, and lack of oxygen are studied in these pregnant animals in order to learn whether or not these influences may lead to clefts of the lip or palate. None of these factors is known to produce clefts in man, yet under experimental conditions all of them can cause clefts in animals.

Long before birth, tissues on each side of the head usually turn toward each other and fuse. A cleft results from a failure to fuse. But scientists question whether the covering of these embryonic tissues never fused or whether they fused temporarily but separated later. To understand such problems, some investigators are testing very basic scientific questions in alligators and other animals. For example, understanding how alligator palates develop keratin, the horny protein found in cells on the surfaces of skin and the mucous membrane that lines the mouth, may help explain the process in humans.

So, the next time you see a performer wrestling with an alligator, remember, that even this unlikely beast can be man's friend when it serves as a model for the study of human life.

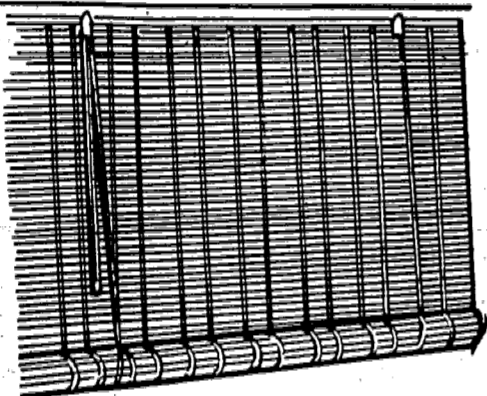

1971 award won by prof at NCE

Dr. Herman A. Estrin of Scotch Plains, professor of English at Newark College of Engineering, has been awarded the 1971 Western Electric Fund Award for excellence in the instruction of engineering students.

Presentation of the award, which carries with it $1,000, was made earlier this month at the spring meeting of the American Society of Engineering Education. Estrin is the first NCE faculty member and the first professor of English to receive this distinction.

Graduate program on water pollution to be given at NCE

Industrial water pollution control and abatement will be the focus of a new interdisciplinary master's degree program starting in September at the Newark College of Engineering.

Funded by the Water Quality Office of the Environmental Protection Agency in Washington, the program is the first in New Jersey to center on industrial water pollution problems. Research directly related to industry will be combined with majors in civil and environmental engineering and chemical engineering and chemistry for the master's candidates. Courses in both areas of studies will be required, however.

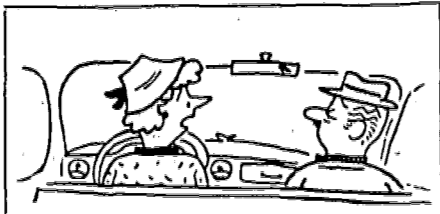

The initial grant from the Environmental Protection Agency provides support stipends for graduate scientists and engineers entering the full-time program.

Dr. Richard G. Griskey, director of research and professor of chemical engineering at NCE, is director of the program, under a grant awarded to the Foundation for the Advancement of Graduate Study in Engineering, the college's research affiliate.

Developing the curriculum is a faculty committee composed of Drs. Robert Dresneck of Staten Island, Su Ling Cheng of Freehold, John Liskowitz of Belle Mead and Eugene Golub of Freehold, all members of the Department of Civil and Environmental Engineering, and Drs. Angelo Perna of Wanauque, Leonard Dauerman of Summit, David Kristol and Richard Trattner, both of Brooklyn, N.Y., all members of the Department of Chemical Engineering and Chemistry.

Applicants may contact Dr. Dresneck or Dr. Perna for details.

Burger's design on book jacket

W. Carl Burger, associate professor of Fine Arts at Newark State College, Union, has designed the jacket for Bill Henderson's latest book, "The Galapagos Kid," soon to come off the press. Burger has given the author rights to use his illustration "Rally Round the Flag," for the hard cover, paperback and ads.

Burger's art has won wide acclaim. His latest etching "Weeds" has recently been displayed in the Madison Public Library Art Exhibit; his water colors "Trajectory series #1 and #2" are part of a traveling art show sponsored by the Old Bergen Art Guild presently being exhibited in museums, libraries and art galleries in eight states. His most recent one-man show were in the Peter Jones Gallery in Flemington and at Centenary College, Hackettstown.

Mallor featured in 2 concerts for scholarship fund, nursery

Pianist Kenneth Mallor will be featured in two fund-raising concerts in this area next month. The Murray Hill resident, a graduate of Gov. Livingston Regional High School, will present a concert at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, June 6, at Millburn High School for the benefit of Babyland Nursery, Newark, and will appear at Gov. Livingston Fridays, June 11, on behalf of the Berkeley Heights AAUW Scholarship fund.

His program at both performances will include Bach's Partita No. 1 in B flat major, Beethoven's "Pastoral" Sonata, and the Sonata No. 3 by Chopin. Tickets ($1.25 for adults and $.75 for students) can be obtained from Helen Lilley at 379-2227, Diane Roche at 464-1671, Ellen or Dick Samuel at 233-7126, or at the door.

Mallor has been a finalist in the Young Artist's Auditions sponsored by Music Educators Association of New Jersey, a finalist of the State Board of Education's Young Artists Auditions, a winner of the Junior Division, New Jersey Mason and Hamlin Piano Competition, and recently won honorable mention in the Concerto Competition sponsored by the New Jersey Federation of Music Clubs in association with the New Jersey Symphony. He graduated from Governor Livingston High School last spring, was a finalist in the National Merit Scholarship examination, and is finishing his first year at Eastman School of Music and the University of Rochester, where he has been on the dean's list.

Babyland Nursery, the only infant day care center in the state, presently cares for 60 children from five weeks to three years of age. Proceeds from the concert will help maintain the nursery and aid a proposed expansion of facilities.

Arts Center plans Children's shows

Chairman John P. Gallagher of the New Jersey Highway Authority announced this week that a new concept in Garden State Arts Center presentations—afternoon programs for children at popular prices—will be introduced in July with the staging of the modern marionette musical, "Pinocchio".

The show, which features more than 100 life-like puppets ranging in size from 2 to 7 feet tall, will go on stage four afternoons—Tuesday through Friday, July 20-23, at 2 p.m. Admission prices will be $2, $1.50 and $1 per person, based on seat location.

"This is the first show scheduled specially for children at moderate ticket charges," said the chairman of the authority which operates the Arts Center on the Garden State Parkway at its roadside Telegraph Hill Park, adding:

"It is arranged so that parents and other family members can accompany the youngsters on a visit to the attractive amphitheater and its park surroundings for a summer's day outing and entertainment."

Heymann calls for jobs for students, graduates

Ronald M. Heymann, commissioner of the N.J. Department of Labor and Industry, this week called upon employers to give young people a chance by providing summer jobs for students and beginning opportunities for June graduates.

"Too often we hear the claim that today's youth is an irresponsible lot," Heymann said. "The fact that so many of our young people are seeking employment during the weeks traditionally set aside as their vacation time is proof that they are stable, responsible and eager to help themselves."

"Let's give them the only break they want — a work break," the commissioner urged. "Actually, the summer employment for young people program is a two-way street. Employers who participate not only help the students, they help themselves by gaining able workers for the summer period."

Students are now applying for summer employment at the local state employment placement offices. Thousands are being interviewed and their qualifications registered for referral to job openings for which they qualify, Heymann said.

Noting that he had directed the N.J. State Training and Employment Service to make an all-out effort to place as many of these young people as possible in jobs, Heymann said that the efforts of his department would not be successful unless employers cooperate fully.

Although government agencies will hire some vacationing students, the bulk of the job opportunities must come from private industry if the demand for summer work is to be met," he said. To participate in the summer jobs for youth campaign, employers need only list their job openings with the nearest employment office of the N.J. State Training and Employment Service.

"One telephone call will do it," Heymann told employers. "Give us a call and we'll take it from there. Within a day or two, we will refer to you as many bright, energetic and capable young applicants as you wish. From these candidates, you may select the workers you need to fill your summer job schedule."

Kite-flying festival set

"Come fly your kite...on Sunday, June 6, at Watchung Reservation," is the slogan of the Friends of the Watchung, the group which worked to save the Reservation from intrusion by a second federal highway.

It is sponsoring a kite-flying festival to celebrate the arrival of summer. All residents of Union County have been invited to bring their families, a picnic, bikes and, of course, kites to the loop area (near the play area and snack bar) for an afternoon in the park.

The kite flying is scheduled for 1 to 2 p.m. All ages will be encouraged to fly their kites — store bought or home-made. Prizes will be awarded for the most original, the biggest and the smallest kites. To be eligible for the contest, a kite must contain no plastic parts and must be able to fly. Rain date is Sunday, June 13.

TIPS ON QUITTING CIGARETTES 1. Pick a Q (Quit) Day. 2. Switch to a low tar-nicotine brand, and begin to cut down BEFORE Q Day. 3. Keep a supply of substitutes handy: mints, gum, celery, carrot sticks. 4. Quit on Q Day; use substitutes when the urge to smoke is strong; keep busy; pamper yourself with special meals; drink plenty of water; exercise. 5. Renew your resolve daily. Think over the health hazards of cigarettes. 6. Plan a treat for yourself with the money you used to spend on cigarettes. American Cancer Society

2 park concerts planned by Suburban Symphony

The Suburban Symphony Orchestra of New Jersey, under the direction of Henry Bloch, will present two concerts in the Union County Park System during June as part of the Union County Park Commission's "Golden Anniversary" celebration this year.

$2.5 million added to county economy by stamp program

About $2.5 million will have been added to the Union County economy by June 1 in the form of food purchasing power as a result of the Federal Food Stamp Program, which will mark its fourth year of operation in the county on that date.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service, low-income families in the county have paid about $4.6 million for food stamp coupons valued at $7.1 million since the program started in June, 1967. The difference of $2.5 million represents the increase in food sales that has directly benefitted county food merchants. About 15,600 persons participate in the program each month.

Currently there are 216 food retailers in the county authorized by USDA to accept coupons. Many of these grocers have increased their sales substantially in meat and dairy products, as well as in produce items since the Program started.

Under the program, which is administered jointly by the USDA's Food and Nutrition Service and the Bureau of Assistance of the New Jersey Department of Institutions, eligible low-income families invest the money they would normally use to buy food each month in coupons that have a greater monetary value.

These coupons may then be spent at authorized grocers for the purchase of domestically produced food products and some selected imported foods. Grocers redeem the coupons at face value at local banks or authorized wholesalers.

Although the local welfare department is responsible for certifying recipients, low-income families not receiving public assistance may also be eligible to receive food stamp coupons.

Camp Merry Heart to open on June 27

Camp Merry Heart, New Jersey's only summer residential camp for crippled children, will open June 27 to a record number of severely handicapped children.

"This summer," according to Dr. Ronald Myers of Plainfield, Union County Easter Seal chairman, "more than 300 disabled youngsters from every corner of the state and every economic background, including 19 from Union County," will enjoy the benefits of fishing, swimming, nature study, archery, arts and crafts and all the other things their well-contemporaries do during a regular summer camp session.

"Due to the large number of applicants each year, some of whom must be turned away for the lack of space, the camp periods have been cut from the usual three-week to five two-week periods," Myers said. "This will enable the camp to accommodate an additional 70 children."

The first concert will be presented in Warinanco Park, Elizabeth and Roselle, on Sunday, June 6, at 3 p.m. on a lawn area adjacent to the administration building.

The second concert will be offered in Echo Lake Park, Mountainside, on Wednesday, June 9, beginning at 7:30 p.m. This program will be presented on a lawn area adjacent to the lower pavilion.

The 75-piece Suburban Symphony orchestra presents several concerts each year. All of the principal members are highly professional players and its members come from 40 communities in 10 New Jersey counties.

The purpose of the program is to stimulate interest by the residents of Union County in classical, semi-classical and popular music.

Henry Bloch, the conductor and musical director, received his early musical education at the Hollander Conservatory of Music in Berlin, Germany, and continued his studies at Queens College, New York City, and Columbia University, where he is a candidate for a doctorate in musicology. He studied conducting with Max Rudolf and Boris Goldovsky and was in the master classes of Pierre Monteaux in Hancock, Ma.

He is musical director and conductor of the Young People's Concerts of the Colonial Little Symphony Society in Madison. He has appeared as guest conductor with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic in Poughkeepsie and at Hyde Park (N.Y.) Playhouse (pop concert) and with the Brooklyn Opera Company.

Bloch has been associated professionally as a double bass player with the Metropolitan Opera Association, the Brooklyn Philharmonic, the New York City Opera Company, and the Adolf Busch Chamber Players.

Bloch also is on the faculty of Seton Hall University, South Orange, and of the Horace Mann School in Riverdale, New York, as director of the orchestra and band.

Gene Scheffer, New Providence, a member of the Union County Park Commission's "Golden Anniversary" committee, is chairman of this program.

County park pools to open tomorrow

The 1971 swimming season will begin at noon on Saturday with the opening of the outdoor swimming pools, sand beaches and refreshment stands operated by the Union County Park Commission at John Russell Wheeler Park, Linden, and Rahway River Park, Rahway.

With good weather, opening day annually offers hundreds of bathers an opportunity to enjoy their first swim of the season.

Both pools will also be open at 11 a.m. on Sunday and at 10 a.m. on Monday. Beginning Tuesday, the Wheeler Park Pool will be open on weekdays from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m. The Rahway River Park Pool will be open on weekends until Monday, June 28.

Full-time operation of the pools will begin on Saturday, June 26. Beginning this date the pools will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on Sundays from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. A family membership plan is offered to residents of Union County, permitting a family to swim at either pool during the season for the payment of one fee, $25 plus $1.00 fee for each individual membership card, for the family which includes parents and all their children, 18 years of age and under.

An identification card system has been installed at the pools this season at a cost of $1 per card. With the identification card general admission rates for the 1971 season will be: Children, 13 years of age and under, on Mondays, except holidays, from 10 a.m. to noon, will be admitted without charge. On Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, children, 13 years of age and under, will pay a 25-cent admission fee. After noon both children and adults will pay 50 cents on weekdays and 60 cents all day on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. Without the identification card the rate will be 50 cents for children, 13 years of age and under, on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, and all pool patrons will pay $1 at all other times. The pool identification cards may also be used at the Warinanco Park Tennis Courts.

The park commission has included supervised activities, games and picnic areas for the pool patrons.

During the season, free instruction in swimming and Red Cross life-saving classes are offered at both pools.

All bathing activities are supervised by experienced American Red Cross certified lifeguards.

If our bug is too small and our box is too big, how about something in-between?

The Volkswagen Squareback. It's as economical to run as our little bug. And just about as easy to park. Because outside, it's about the same size as our bug. But inside, it's more like our box. It can seat 4. Plus hold just about 50% more luggage than the biggest domestic sedan. (Over twice as much if you fold down its back seat.) The Volkswagen Squareback: Not too small, not too big. Just right.
