Annual tests of auto exhausts in state win backing of LWV

The Springfield League of Women Voters this week announced that the League of Women Voters of New Jersey has urged Commissioner Richard Sullivan and the Department of Environmental Protection to recommend adoption of annual auto exhaust testing by the state of New Jersey. Sullivan must make recommendations to Gov. William T. Cahill by early November.

Nine McCall, state League president, declared, "The fact that the automobile is a major source of air pollution, combined with the fact that New Jersey has the highest density of motor vehicles, makes it imperative that air pollution from motor vehicles be attacked at every level. The League believes it is the responsibility of the state to promulgate and enforce regulations to reduce this source of air pollution, and it is the responsibility of car owners to begin bearing some of the cost of cleaning the air."

Mrs. McCall directed attention to the fact that automobile must be maintained regularly to keep emissions at the lowest possible level as well as to keep emission control devices, required by the federal government, in proper working order.

State proposals for inspection must be implemented to insure that control devices continue to perform with a reasonable degree of effectiveness. The rapid growth in the number of automobiles in New Jersey means that even with increased inspections, we will barely hold the line in air pollution. Therefore the increase resulting from the proposed testing is essential.

The League added, "The standards by which the proposed code are not unreasonable, but are ones which any properly functioning vehicle can meet. In addition, such a properly functioning vehicle benefits the driver, lower fuel costs and prolonged life for his car."

"Estimates that 30 percent of vehicles will fail the tests only under the need for inspection to reduce this source of air pollution. The League is concerned about the present sparsity of publicized opposition to this pollution control measure and wishes to delineate its support of the Environmental Protection Agency's proposed program."

Metal talk at Summit Y

"Introduction to Brass Rubbing" will be presented by Mrs. Betty Lewis at the Summit Y.W.C.A. on Wednesday morning Kallahatash this week, from 9:30-11:30 a.m.

Mrs. Lewis will show color slides of English brasses, valved only as works of art but for their historical value. She will discuss their history, and present the techniques of rubbing.

According to Mrs. Lewis the art of rubbing, which is almost unknown in the United States, has become a very popular fad in England.

Mrs. Lewis will also display a number of her own brass rubbings, which range in size from 12 inches to eight feet.

No stranger to the Summit Y.W.C.A., Mrs. Lewis is remembered for her humorous "Program of Observations," which she has presented not only at the Y.W.C.A. but for many local organizations. She also wrote and directed the musical "The Brass and the Band" celebrating the Y.W.C.A.'s 50th anniversary three years ago.

Conferences, dance and rhythm classes and baby-sitting are available for children of mothers attending Kallahatash. No previous Kallahatash. No previous reservations are required. Mothers may telephone 274-2448 for further information.

Booklet cites N.J. lead in private research area

Why in New Jersey, of all places, America's "center of private research?" A 4-page booklet just published by Public Service Electric and Gas Co. explains the reasons why one-fourth of the nation's privately supported research and development is carried out in New Jersey. There are nearly 40 R&D facilities in the state.

Although the booklet, "Brainpower New Jersey," is aimed at persuading more corporations to locate their research and development facilities in the Garden State, it also points out some well-known facts of interest to the general public.

and phonograph. New Jersey has been the birthplace of products ranging from cast-iron water pipe to color television, from patent medicine to the transistor and laser.

"The people of the state, both the highly educated researchers and the practical labor force, are responsible for the tremendous accomplishments of its industry. They include people born in New Jersey and transplants like the late Albert Einstein, whose innovative ideas have helped create jobs and keep the state's economy so well diversified.

"Despite the highest population density in the country, New Jersey still has plenty of room left for the new research and development facilities it hopes to attract. More than 60 percent of the state is still farm land or forest.

Annual expenditures in research and development in New Jersey are approaching $3 billion, and the 70,000 scientists, technicians and supporting personnel comprise the nation's largest non-governmental R&D work force.

"New Jersey's universities, community colleges and vocational schools are turning out more qualified personnel for the growing R&D field. They are maintaining an outstanding intellectual environment to complement the physical environment of transportation, housing and other factors vital to industry.

The new Public Service booklet points out that companies are continuing to invest their talent and facilities in the Garden State — putting their money where the minds are.

New Jersey, the booklet concludes, "is the state of mind."

The new Public Service booklet is the heart of a national campaign to attract more R&D facilities to New Jersey. These facilities normally are not large, stony users and they make ideal new industrial neighbors.

A series of full-page advertisements will appear in Fortune, Business Week, Forbes, Chemical Week and several other research-oriented publications, offering the booklet. Chief executives of Fortune's top 1,000 companies will also receive copies.

Sales of surplus yield extra cash

A record one-year yield already has been realized by the New Jersey Highway Authority in its 1971 sales of surplus equipment, with several more still scheduled in the last three months.

Chairman John P. Gallagher of the authority, which operates the Garden State Parkway, reported this week that the sales during the first nine months of 1971 brought in $18.7 million, topping the previous one-year high of $18,000,000 in 1967.

Gavan bill proposes state aid for 'flood-prone' communities

A bill which would provide the state to provide a "fair share of financial assistance to local municipalities for flood control projects" has been sponsored by Assemblyman Henry F. Gavan.

Assemblyman Joseph J. Higgins will co-sponsor the bill at the opening of the Assembly session on Nov. 15. Gavan, who now represents District 9A, is running for reelection in the new District 9B.

In his statement, the Democratic legislator explained that his legislation will "provide particularly helpful to the many flood-prone municipalities who now must participate with the federal government—in paying the huge cost of flood control projects, without the help of any state funds."

"My bill calls for the state to pay 25 percent of the cost of a project needed by a local municipality to solve its flooding problems," Gavan continued. "This is the amount the federal government now requires from municipalities of a 100 per cent of cost."

"For example, where a $20 million flood project is concerned, the local government must pay $5 million. My bill proposes that the state pick up this tab."

Gavan described his legislation as "realistic and fair" because there is a "growing recognition that an overall regional flood control approach is needed."

"This is my opinion, will never be successfully implemented of each phase is dependent on the actions of individual local governments."

Insect repellent
Some North Woods apartment use a homemade insect repellent they claim keeps away the most ferocious mosquitoes. They blend onion, pepper, and garlic into a thick paste and apply it liberally to the neck and face. It keeps other people away, too.

ENDORSEMENT — U.S. Senator Clifford P. Case, center, has endorsed former Freshholder Jerome Epstein (left) and Van Dyke J. Pollitt for the State Senate. Showing the senator's endorsement are incumbents Matthew J. Rinaldo and Frank J. McDermott. Case appeared at a recent party in Rahway, his home town, to deliver his endorsement message.

Distaff GOP candidates gain nods from Dwyer and Pollitt

Congresswoman Florence P. Dwyer (R-12) and Van Dyke J. Pollitt, Union County Republican campaign chairman, joined in endorsing the candidates of four women who are seeking election to state and municipal offices in Union County at a tea in Mrs. Dwyer's home.

The women are Miss Elizabeth Cox of Summit, who seeks the unexpired assembly term from District 8B, Mrs. Mary Ellen Irwin, who seeks a council seat in New Providence, Mrs. Lois Boston, who seeks a council seat in Westfield and Mrs. Sophie Kempa who is running for the council in Roselle.

"I am delighted that the Republican party had the foresight and the wisdom to recognize the great potential that women have for public service," Mrs. Dwyer said. "Each of these ladies has demonstrated her great concern for the problems facing her community and our country, and I commend them for seeking to play an even more active role in the affairs of government."

Mrs. Dwyer noted that most of the social problems that face us, from narcotics abuse to consumer protection, and from public safety to education, have a particular impact upon women. "The women's point of view, as effectively expressed by these candidates, will have a meaningful result for all of the people," she said.

Mr. Pollitt, who is the Republican party's candidate for the unexpired term in the State Senate and who managed Mrs. Dwyer's campaign last year, welcomed the women to his party's ticket. "We appreciate the strength that you bring to the ticket in each of your communities," Pollitt said. "Too often women are only called upon to help other men and when you candidates, you are proving that women can serve their communities ably and well."

Oriscello reviews police work career

Sheriff Ralph Oriscello this week cited his background of 20 years with the Elizabeth Police Department and 17 years as sheriff of Union County in reviewing his qualifications.

Oriscello said he spearheaded the drive for a new jail. He pointed out that before becoming sheriff, he was deputy chief with the Elizabeth Police Department and organized the department's Juvenile Aid Bureau in 1952. He also set up and instructed police community relations courses and during World War II was liaison officer to the FBI. During that period he received numerous awards, including a citation by the National Police Athletic League for his service to young people.

Oriscello said that as sheriff he has initiated many "firsts," including appointing the first chaplain in the history of the Union County Jail and initiating the first dental program in the jail, the first narcotic program with job placement on release at county jail level; library service for inmates and high school equivalency courses for inmates.

He also said he proposed a Good Conduct Bill for minor offenders, which is now law and which could save the county $25,000 a year.

Bassano sums up campaign; calls again for river authority

Louis Bassano, youthful candidate for New Jersey General Assembly in District 9B, this final week before the election summed up the conduct of his campaign by characterizing it as a "public self-analysis."

"Throughout this campaign, I have given an honest sampling of my thoughts on the problems of the district and of the state-and, through my program proposals, have given a strong indication of how I would attempt to solve these problems as an Assemblyman."

"To have an opponent who might and exposing what is wrong. To me, this is not political sensationalism—rather—a strong sense of responsibility and an action I feel I must take in the respect of those in whom they place their trust."

"The single most important legislative proposal I have made is in the formation of a Rahway River Authority, an action I feel is imperative for the well-being of District 9B. Some have expressed doubts about the proposal on the basis that its creation would endanger home rule. This is preposterous. Hundreds of our neighbors were flooded out in terms this past summer. Hundreds of thousands of hard-earned dollars were literally down the drain because there was no single plan to correct the problems of the river."

"Flooding, pollution, encroachment and beautification are the problems only of the people who live along a given stretch of the Rahway River within a given municipality. They are the problems of every person in every municipality through which the river flows. Correction of the problems should and can be a team effort. And their is no better way to direct that effort than through an Authority."

TOUCHING ON ANOTHER KEY ISSUE of his campaign, Bassano said that development of alternatives to "dumping" of garbage must be encouraged and that recycling of solid waste be given top priority on the state level. "Protection of our environment is no longer an issue important only in the minds of naturalists and university professors. Every man and woman who cares about the heritage he or she will have their children must now consider also whether their children will be able to live in the environment of the future."

"We have all seen the wisdom of the creators of such science fiction characters as Buck Rogers and Flash Gordon and the accuracy with which they predicted things of the future. Let us not forget that their story outlines almost always included a visit to some planet which had destroyed its own environment and literally polluted itself to death. This idea is not far-fetched."

"Legislators, as the elected leaders, must. We must have the fortitude to grapple with the problems of the future and to deal decisively with the problems of the present. And we must expose, at all levels, misconduct and breaches of the public trust, no matter how small they may be."

"The 26-year-old Union resident summed up his campaign with a pledge to "devote my entire energies to the problems of the people of District 9B. I pledge never to allow the machinery of politics to interfere with what is truly for the public good. And that I will try, in earnest, to have in this campaign, to delay, to minimize your problems by visiting you regularly and when, person-to-person."

Young GOP backs Green Acres bond

The Young Republicans of Union County, Inc., this week urged a "Yes" vote on the Green Acres referendum on Tuesday.

"The Young Republicans noted that 'New Jersey has one of the lowest ratios of park area to population, that a substantial portion of the funds to be raised probably would be allocated for such highly populated areas as Union County, that funds from the 1967 Green Acres act are exhausted, and that over 300 local governments for grants—valued at $6 million—remain active with no available funds."

"The Green Acres referendum, if approved, would permit the issuance of $6 million in bonds for the purchase of lands for recreation and conservation."

School of hard rocks Upsala prof gathering stones

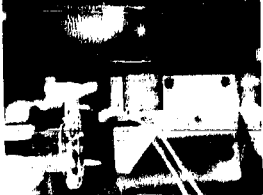

Associate Professor James S. Yelton is holding a "rock" festival on the campus of Upsala College. Four trunks and hundreds of students from as far west as California are digging it with the help of the State of New Jersey.

Each year the New Jersey Geological Office in Trenton receives an average of 400 requests from New Jersey rock collectors. Prof. Yelton is the Trenton office's only geologist.

Periodically a state geologist comes to Upsala campus to pick up quantities of bits. He takes them to Trenton for distribution to those who request them. Prof. Yelton attributes the demand for the rocks to the fact that "a great deal of earth science is being taught in the fifth grade up."

The Wage-Price Freeze

This column of questions and answers on the Wage and Price Freeze is prepared by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service. The column answers questions most frequently asked about the Wage and Price Freeze announced Aug. 15 by President Nixon.

Q: Will exemptions from the freeze be granted for persons with low incomes?

A: While the Federal Living Council has not granted formal exemptions for low-income persons, it has stated that during the freeze the following are allowed: raises that are necessary to bring wages into line with minimum wage legislation increases that eliminate discriminatory wage practices.

Q: How can a customer be sure that a seller's ceiling price for a product listed is not a violation of the freeze?

A: Under the law, the retailer must maintain and have available for public inspection a list of his ceiling prices. The consumer can request to see these ceiling prices if he has a question.

Q: Does the freeze cover diesel?

A: No. Diesel on agricultural and house-cummers is exempt during the freeze, even if the lease provides for an increase.

Q: Does the freeze cover diesel?

A: No. However, the President requested that corporations voluntarily put a ceiling on their dividends.

Bell scientists lift glass spheres with beam of laser light

Using a beam of laser light, Bell Labs scientists have raised small transparent glass spheres off a glass surface and held them aloft for hours in a stable position. The experiment, which demonstrated optical levitation for the first time, was conducted by Arthur Ashkin and Joseph Dziedzic of Bell Labs, Holmdel.

The new technique is expected to provide simple, precise methods for manipulating small particles without mechanical support. It could be useful in optical microscope research, laser scattering, loss caused by particles either in the atmosphere or in other transmission media, beam measurements may help in developing optical communications systems for the future.

In their experiment Ashkin and Dziedzic focus a laser beam upward on a tiny glass sphere about 20 microns in diameter (about one-thousandth of an inch). Radiation pressure from the light not only counteracts gravity and raises the particle, but also traps the sphere in the beam and prevents it from slipping out of the beam sideways.

In the experiment, which has been successfully demonstrated in air and in a partial vacuum, they thus generate a stable optical trap for holding particles, which they term an "optical tweezer."

Light photons have momentum as well as energy. Dr. Ashkin, head of Bell Labs physical optics and research department, says, "When we focus a quarter-watt laser on a small trans-

Foundation to gain Americanism prize from B'nai B'rith

The 1971 Americanism Award of the N.J. Regional Advisory Board Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith (ADL) will be accepted by Percy Chubb 2d on behalf of the Victoria Foundation. The award will be presented by Sanford L. Hollander, chairman of the N.J. ADL Regional Advisory Board at a black-tie dinner Friday at the Robert Wood Johnson Hotel.

Chubb is president and a trustee of the Victoria Foundation, which was established in 1926 by his father, the late Henden Chubb, and dedicated for grandmothers, Mrs. Victoria Chubb. He is chairman of the executive committee and director of the Chubb Corp., Chubb Insurance Co., the United States Insurance Co. and the Colonial Life Insurance Co. of East Orange. He is also a graduate of Yale University and the author of two books on sailing.

Victoria is the first organization to receive ADL's award given in recognition of distinguished community service action promoting positive American values. The previous six recipients have been individuals from the New Jersey business community.

As a New Jersey institution and one of the oldest foundations in the state, the Victoria Foundation directs a large part of its attention to New Jersey residents particularly those concentrated in handicapped problems in the Newark region. Largest venture in its 47-year philanthropic history is the Newark Victoria Plan, an experimental education program conducted in conjunction with the Newark Board of Education.

Adapting their philanthropy to changing times and needs, the Victoria Trustees last year supported local effort at conservation by awarding $15,000 to The North Jersey Conservation Foundation to assist in studies of the Passaic watershed and in acquiring land along the Passaic Valley Greenbelt. Among its 45 grants in 1970 were aid to Newark's Spanish Speaking community and to drug rehabilitation agencies.

Parkway beauty in service areas

The rustic grace of restaurant and gasoline service areas on the Garden State Parkway are getting a facelift this week but already drawing raves, according to Chairman John P. Gallagher of the New Jersey Highway Authority, which operates the Parkway, noted that in addition to the raves there has been a marked decrease in complaints about the road's service areas. "We received only one complaint all summer," he reported.

The Authority chairman directed the upgrading of the Parkway service areas after he visited last year in an effort to make the roadside facilities more attractive and palatable to motorists.

After traveling arrangements for the operation of restaurants to impose strict requirements on sanitary conditions as well as food prices and portions, he ordered the general clean-up and beautification of grounds and interior facilities.

All Parkway service areas except the most-thermostated site at Montvale, which will undergo a major expansion project starting soon, have now been outfitted with planters, red cedar curbing and trimmings, and window awnings to

Parents' Halloween role: teach safety

Halloween maskers and trick-or-treaters are once again getting ready to make their rounds—and it is up to parents to see that they do so safely, the New Jersey State Safety Council advised.

In a seasonal reminder, the Safety Council pointed out that parents should make sure their children are properly equipped for their activities and the weather, go along with preschoolers or make sure that some other competent adult accompanies the youngster.

enforce a reasonable code of safe and courteous behavior, see if that, if a car is used, the person behind the wheel is a safe driver, and instruct children not to go into a stranger's home unless accompanied by an adult supervisor.

Accidents, the Safety Council said, are likely to occur in two cases: poor visibility when the child can't see where he is going or the motorist can't see the child, or carelessness in driving. The latter can be avoided or matched or avoided by use. In addition, vandalism and pranks can bring their own crop of bumps and bruises and broken bones, the council said.

The council issued these tips to help prevent accidents:

PROVIDE A "MAKEUP MASK" which can block the child's vision. Make up his face with non-toxic paints, applying color over cold cream to make removal easier. With that type "mask" a child will be able to see danger in time to avoid it, as he cannot go when a fabric plastic mask is pulled over his eyes.

MAKE HIM "BRIGHT AT NIGHT" with a light-colored costume so he is clearly visible to motorists. If he's wearing a dark costume, dress it up with bands of reflective tape and lights of lighter-stuff that reflect light.

Wear a flashlight or a battery-powered light that will keep the child's path clear through the water.

USE A FLAME-RETARDANT process on any homemade costume to prevent a flare-up from a flame or spark. Put the fabric in a solution of nine ounces of borax, four ounces of "no acid" and a gallon of warm water. Wrap a hand and hang to dry. Ironing does not remove flame resistance but the treatment must be repeated after each washing.

When purchasing costumes, boards or other items for Halloween wear, inspect labels to make sure they have been treated for flammability.

PROVIDE A FLASHLIGHT for safe walking at night up a jack-o-lantern. A cardboard collar fitted round into the pupil will help keep the light upright. Never point the use of a "laser" candle.

USE USE OF SIDEWALKS so children don't walk in the streets or dash out from between parked cars. Explain how lightning accidents are caused and by the spacing of sidewalks on cars parked in accidents if the car is under the glass cover of the bus.

BEFORE PEDESTRIAN AND UNLAWFUL SAFETY movement, always cross the street at marked crosswalks or at intersections, at a protected intersection, walk only with the light or on the direction of a police officer; before leaving the curb, look both ways and watch for turning cars, walk fast, don't run, and be especially careful of footing if the pavement is slippery or uneven.

When walking across the street, don't enter in the middle, at night, cross where lights are bright and visibility is good; always stand on the curb, not in the street, while waiting to cross; be just as alert when walking in a group as when alone, and don't depend on others to watch out for your safety; get into or out of a car on the curb side, if possible, and if not, be sure the way is clear; see to it that all passengers have their seat belts fastened before the car starts moving.

Info step-up at Customs

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The rapidly increasing number of inquiries about regulations and procedures which affect business firms and individual travelers in the metropolitan New York area has required a re-alignment of the Bureau of Customs and Border Protection's Regional Information Unit at the New York Customhouse, it was announced by Regional Commissioner Fred R. Boyett.

"We have enlarged the public area here—41—the Customs Information Unit where people seeking information as regulations and procedures are available, and where they can get personal advice. It is our aim to fill their needs quickly, efficiently and courteously," said Boyett.

He pointed out that pamphlets explaining Customs regulations for importers and travelers are available, as well as Treasury Department publications on the legislation affecting the Department of Treasury of Customs and Border Protection.

People going to foreign countries and returning to the United States are required to register certain foreign-made items such as cameras, in order to return them without having to pay duty on such items. To facilitate this requirement, such possessions can be registered at the office of the Customs Information Unit, Room 120 Customhouse, 1 Bowling Green, New York City, or other Customs facilities.

It's time to 'fall back' from Daylight Savings

This is the weekend for all clocks to be turned back an hour Sunday at 2 a.m. as the nation changes from Daylight Savings to Standard Time. Those who plan to go to bed before 2 a.m. are advised to set back their clocks before retiring Saturday night.

People who have trouble remembering which way to turn their clocks may be helped by the advice: "Fall back and spring forward."

30,548 horses vaccinated in state

About 90 percent of the horses vaccinated in New Jersey have been estimated against Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis (VEE), by Edwin L. Ruppel, director of the New Jersey Department of Agriculture's animal health division, announced this week.

The New Jersey Department of Agriculture received the vaccine from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which had declared New Jersey a high risk state along with certain Atlantic and Gulf Coast and Mississippi Valley states.

The New Jersey Cooperative Extension Service, the horse industry and public and private veterinarians worked with individual owners and through clinics to vaccinate the horses.

Dr. Bruce said he had reported to New Jersey Secretary of Agriculture Philip Stamp that a month-long campaign to inject horses from a serious outbreak of VEE.

Union County CYO to celebrate 'week' beginning Sunday

The Union County Catholic Youth Organization will celebrate CYO week from Sunday through Nov. 6 using the National CYO theme "The Human Environment" and the Newark Archdiocesan CYO theme "Discovery of the Lord through Self, Others and the Community."

CYO Week will begin at 3 p.m. Sunday at St. Michael's Church, Elizabeth, with a "Bible Vigil" and a dedication ceremony. At 8 p.m. Monday in St. Michael's school cafeteria, Alden and Mill sts., Cranford, a lecture on "Prehistoric Indians in New Jersey" will be given by Robert C. Kraft, associate professor of anthropology and director of Salem Hall University Museum. Kraft was recently named "Outstanding Educator of America."

Tuesday has been set aside for parish program planning. Each parish is asked to plan an individual project for the "Human Environment" and "Discovery of the Lord" themes. The parishes are also asked to make a banner depicting their plans for Youth Week.

On Wednesday, films on the environment, supplied by the Department of Environmental Protection of Harnett Oil will be shown at 7:30 p.m. in St. Theresa's Auditorium, Washington avenue, Kenilworth.

Next Thursday will be recreation night for teens and adults in the parishes.

Friday, Nov. 5, will be called "Evening of Reflection." Small groups will get together in parish halls or private homes.

Saturday, Nov. 6, will be a day of "Cultural Exposure." The CYOs are asked to visit a museum or the ballet or similar projects.

Political chiefs OK bond referendum

Union County voters were urged this week by the Democratic and Republican county chairmen to support the $150 million higher education bond issue referendum on the Nov. 2 general election ballot.

"Passage of the higher education bond issue will make room for more than 20,000 additional college students by 1975, and will provide 400 more spaces for training industrial students and 200 more for dental students, including many Union County residents," Kincaid and School said in their joint statement.

"Some funds from the 1968 bond issue have been allocated and sufficient spaces for New Jersey students still will not exist without these funds are expended. There is an obvious need for additional expansion of our system of higher education. New Jersey has lagged behind its sister states in meeting the higher educational needs of its citizens. While the proposed bond issue will provide room for a total of 130,200 students, there will still be almost half of New Jersey's 250,000 undergraduates who will have to go out of state," the county chairman said.

"Although our state ranks eighth among the states in population, our state is 38th in the number of its college youth attending higher education institutions in the state. Because of the shortage of space in our own college classrooms, we are forced to export more than half of our college students to other states at a cost which often is double or more the cost of going to a New Jersey public college.

"Furthermore, transfer students from our rapidly expanding two-year community colleges, which include Union College with campuses in Cranford, Elizabeth, and Plainfield and Union County Technical Institute, which is located in Scotch Plains, will increase each year and will desperately need an educational institute college to complete their education. All of these problems can only be solved if we do not provide adequate facilities for our colleges and universities so they can provide higher educational opportunities for our citizens."

County MLS index tops 43,700 homes

The total number of home listings serviced by the Union County Multiple Listing Service organization since its founding in 1952 climbed past the 43,700 mark last week.

Alfred Palermo of Linden, MLS secretary, emphasized that the main function of the multiple listing unit is to disseminate information.

"We are not a selling agent," Palermo continued. "We are an information bureau. Our system works from two points of view, the seller's and the buyer's."

He explained that when a member lists a house he immediately activates it and starts its distribution to the 112 MLS real estate firms located throughout the Union County area.

What Legacy Will We Leave?

What sort of planet will we leave as a legacy for our sons and daughters? We're troubled by that question.

have that voice under state law. We know it under Federal law.

We're like to turn the clock back to a time when rivers poured their clear waters into the sea when woodlands echoed to the melodies of nature, and when breezes carried the scent of flowers in bloom. But the clocks can never be turned back.

We can, however, make environmental protection more than a political catchword. We can match rhetoric with action. We can make protection of Union County's remaining air and water resources its parklands a matter of urgent public policy.

Food open dating is termed feasible by panel of experts

An "open" date, legible to the public, on food products in retail stores is feasible, a panel of experts from industry, government, and a consumer organization agreed last Thursday at a conference on "Food Stability and Open Dating" at Rutgers University.

A proposal which won general acceptance was the establishment of a group consisting of consumers, industry, government, and other organizations to draft ways of assuring national uniformity in open dating.

This was made by Aaron Yohalem, senior vice-president of CFC, International, Englewood Cliffs. He suggested also that a member of Congress join the proposed group. Tucker Halloran of General Foods Company concurred, noting that uniform legislation across the country is essential.

What is truly frightening to the manufacturer is the large volume of legislation now pending at state and local levels," he said.

What is truly frightening to the manufacturer is the large volume of legislation now pending at state and local levels," he said.

Miss Mettler advocated a public "pull date" for removing food from the shelves used together with time and temperature instructions to ensure freshness. She criticized the "best of shelf display" recommendation of a Rutgers study as providing inadequate consumer protection.

Era Kohn of the White House of Consumer Affairs called open dating "an idea whose time has come" and supported the formation of a committee to study the problem and draft legislation.

VA relaxes filing rules

Joseph J. Malone, director of the New Jersey Veterans Administration regional office, Newark, said this week that "due to recent legislation, veterans and widows receiving VA non-service connected pension benefits and who are 72 years of age or older, as of Jan. 1, 1972, will no longer be required to file an annual income questionnaire provided they have been in receipt of pension benefits from the VA for at least two consecutive years."

However, Malone said, "these beneficiaries must continue to report immediately any future changes either in their income or dependency status to the VA. These conditions will also apply to parents of veterans receiving VA dependency and indemnity compensation (DIC) payments as the result of having a son or daughter die in service, or as the result of a determination made by the VA that the death was service connected."

"These veterans, widows and dependent parents who will continue to report their annual incomes will receive an income questionnaire when their monthly checks for October on or about Nov. 1.

"THAT'S THE ISSUE. To say you will not take a position is to abdicate your responsibility in my judgment. This is the choice the voters are being asked to make Nov. 2, when they vote for a mayor whose term will be for four years.
"Leadership is needed today in the county. The voters are the judges. The Regional High School board on the bond issue and the budget, and here within the community.
"Use of education for Mountainide children is our local system has gone up 100 percent since 1967 and the student population has risen 12 percent. If new costs over $1,300 per child per year, in 1968 when Mr. Ricciardi was running for mayor, this means that we defer their campaign in order to work for the defeat of a bond referendum to enlarge Deerfield School. I'm not sure I want to be mayor when the taxpayers realize the full impact of the $1 million regional High School bond referendum.
"Let us address ourselves to presenting positive programs on environment, recreation, security and transportation. The administration has only emphasized their control of Mountainide for 75 years. Most of us picked Mountainide as a place to live because it had much to offer in a physical beauty to attract us. It still beautiful and it is being threatened... threatened with a cleverest that will rip our town to shreds, threatened with plummeting real estate values of the high school and the reopening questions are not re-examined, threatened by debt and 1,500 children aged 18 with nothing to do.
"THIS is not campaign rhetoric. These are our problems today and in the next decade. Do you want a mayor who continues to tell the citizens to form their own committees whether it is fighting the electoral, fighting of the superpowers in the Regional High School system or insulating recycling program?
"THE administration has had the power and has not used it.
"Let us high Mountainiders will transcend party politics will, will consider the platforms will compare the leadership qualities of the candidates and will vote for candidate who they find a way to get things done, not a reason why they can't."

Y to set up new league

An "amateurish athletes' basketball league," designed especially for men who feel like getting up and doing a little exercise and playing a little game after watching TV gridironers and amateurs play on Sundays, is being organized by the Westfield YMCA.
The league will be open to men 18 years of age or over and Mountainide residents are eligible.
Watching TV sports stars really gets your adrenalin pumping. But the physical director, William L. Turner, 2nd in announcing plans for the league.
"Most men after viewing for a while really get it to get up and do a little physical thing themselves.
"After sitting for hours in one spot, they really ought to get a workout from a health standpoint. Our program is aimed at that.
The league is tentatively set for late Sunday afternoon. The schedule will be announced as soon as enough people enroll with Turner to establish a time preference. Those interested may sign up as individuals or as a team. All interested should call Turner, 247-1242."

A contrast between the Connor position and the Republican point of view...

1. HOME RULE
Mr. Connor claims "In New Jersey, we have too much home rule" and cites several ways he would attack it.
The Republican Party has traditionally supported the concept of "Home Rule" - it deplores the intrusion of government into areas where people themselves can better plan their destinies.
2. SCHOOL AID
He claims the "Suburbs don't need" the $25 per student state aid to education.
The Republican Party has traditionally supported the concept of "Home Rule" - it deplores the intrusion of government into areas where people themselves can better plan their destinies.
3. ONE MAN CZAR
Advocates replacing county Boards of Freeholders with a one man czar to give one man "real power".
History is replete with examples of repression, corruption and stagnation which result from giving one politician virtually autonomous power.
4. INCOME TAX
The often expressed call for an income tax has been shared by virtually every Democrat candidate.
The Republican Party favors an equitable state tax structure to assure dramatic relief for the property taxpayer and to make our state even more attractive to industry. No Republican Senate candidate has called for an income tax. All would deplore a second broad-based tax.
5. FEDERAL TAKEOVER OF EDUCATION
At a recent candidates night, Mr. Connor called for the federal government to take over the full funding of education.
We deplore this plan. It would inevitably lead to federal control of school programming, regionalization of school districts, deterioration of the educational process and the loss of community identity with our schools.

Sills speaks tonight at theater of UC on right to bear arms

Former State Attorney Arthur J. Sills of Metuchen, will speak at Union College... The lecture will be conducted in the Campus Theatre on the Cranford campus at 8 p.m.

Sills, who served two consecutive terms as State Attorney General from 1965 to 1969, testified on firearms controls before the U.S. Senate Subcommittee on Juvenile Delinquency and the U.S. House Committee on Ways and Means.

An article on gun controls by Sills appeared in the February 1968 issue of "The Docket," news magazine of the New Jersey Court for the Social Studies.

A partner in the law firm of Sills, Beck, O'Connell, Radin and Tischman, Newark, Sills attended the Ford Amboy public schools and received a bachelor of arts degree from Rutgers University and a law degree from Newark University.

While State Attorney General, Sills was appointed by U.S. Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy in 1964 to the Executive Board of the National Conference on Ball and Criminal Justice. From 1964 to 1970, he served as president of the National Association of Attorneys General.

Board lacks life, Democrats claim

The three Democratic candidates for the Union County Board of Freeholders said this week they have the background, experience and imagination "so desperately needed to snap some life and leadership into a freeholder board handicapped by a lethargic, behind-the-scenes Republican majority."

In a joint statement, Clark Mayer Thomas A. Kaczmarek, Mrs. Matilda T. McGowan of Elizabeth and Joseph L. Garbarro of Union said the "glaring lack of leadership" in the Republican-controlled freeholders is "at the heart" of every issue they have raised during the current campaign, including "speciefficial fiscal policies allegedly leading the county to the brink of bankruptcy."

Kaczmarek has been mayor of Clark since 1969, having served that township as councilman for two previous years. The former U.S. Army lieutenant owns the Circus Show Shop in Linden and is a past president of the Elizabeth Elmhurst Merchants Association.

Mrs. McGowan is the first woman ever to be nominated by the Democrats in Union County for a freeholder seat. She has worked in campaigns for leading Democrats in national, state and local elections, and served as an officer in numerous Democratic organizations. She currently represents the county as a State Democratic committee woman.

Garbarro, who has operated his own law practice in Elizabeth since his graduation from Rutgers University, is making his first bid for elective office. Before the appointment as an assistant public defender for Union County, a post he held for a year, he served as law clerk to Judge Chester Weidenbaurer in Union County and then joined the Newark law firm of Vesser and Matthews.

Attorney General on Governmental Immunity. He was also a member of the Governor's Commission on Public Broadcasting, the New Jersey Housing Finance Agency, the New Jersey Commission on Interstate Cooperation, the Commission on the Status of Women, the State Atomic Energy Council, and the State Narcotics Advisory Council.

The man in the middle enjoys job Poznanski is student administration liason

There's a new buffer zone at Union County Technical Institute, Scotch Plains, and it answers to the name of Thomas Poznanski. Poznanski, former chemistry instructor at the Institute, has been named to the newly created post of counselor-advisor. "The job defies description," he says, "but basically I'm a buffer zone between the students and the administration."

Poznanski, who has gone from a six-hour teaching day to a 10-hour day as counselor-advisor, also finds himself working as a part-time salesman of football jerseys, school rings and jackets; keeper of the student activity budget, advisor to the yearbook and student council, moderator of the campus traffic court and an open ear to complaints and problems of students and faculty alike.

And as he complains that "I catch it from both ends," you know he really loves it. Poznanski had actually recommended last year that the post be created. UCIT has grown in the past few years and lines of communication were increasingly difficult to maintain, said the Springfield resident.

While the multiplicity of his functions still confuse him, the new counselor does believe that the creation of the post has already been justified.

"By listening to the kids we've been able to resolve small problems that could have snowballed into gutters out of hand," he said. Problems are not limited to students. Last week, Poznanski had an instructor call him at 9 p.m. for advice on dealing with a student.

HE FURTHER STRENGTHENS lines of communication, Poznanski and Victor Morala, administrative assistant to UCIT President Dr. Irving H. Baer, meet for lunch weekly with students from each of the institute's three schools — pre-technology studies, freshmen and sophomores — to talk about how things are going and not going on campus. Minutes are kept and published without the names of the attending students and are distributed to members of the faculty and administration involved in the issues discussed. "This has been most constructive," Poznanski says. While his experience as counselor-advisor is limited, Poznanski's experiences with young people are extensive.

In addition to classroom contacts during the last six years, he has a son and daughter now in college. For as long as he can remember he has been the gathering place for their friends.

"I always knew the answer to 'Do you know how your children are doing?' They were always to admit to having enjoyed the young people. It's a big booster of this generation. Parents are 90 percent of the trouble with kids today," he says. "They don't take the time to know them. They also want to push them into their abilities."

His teaching philosophy tells one a great deal about his handling of young people. "My first rule is, 'It's always easy I want to fulfill in them the confidence that they can succeed.' While he teaches, Poznanski believes that he can serve the students better as a sounding board.

HIS OWN YARHS background helps him relate to the youngsters on many levels. Prior to entering teaching, he was in industry for 15 years. He worked for three as a chemist, and as he put it, "I specialized myself down just about as far as you can get. I became a spectroscopist. After a while I fell in a heroin and quit."

He returned to Seton Hall, where he earned his undergraduate degree in chemistry and later took graduate courses in business administration, to prepare himself to teach. He taught high school chemistry for two years and went to Newark State to take biology courses. Along the line he also did graduate work in chemistry at Stevens Institute of Technology.

At UCIT he taught chemistry, math, biology, anatomy and physics. His experience teaching physics has awakened an interest in astronomy, which along with geology will be next academic pursuits.

Poznanski is also a do-it-yourselfer; plays the stock market according to his own system; paints, frames his own pictures, is an avid fan of the Springfield First Aid Squad, after five years active duty, bowls, plays tennis and, in his own words, "is the skinniest teacher on the faculty basketball team."
