Three-way contest for council seats to highlight GOP primary election

There will be two three-year terms on the Mountainside Borough Council up for grabs in November's election, but voters in the June primary will be faced with three candidates on the GOP side of the ballot: Nicholas Bradshaw and Abraham Suckno, who have won the endorsement of the Regular Organization Republicans, and Elmer A. Hoffarth, who is running as an "Independent Republican."

Bradshaw, of 320 Partridge run, and Suckno, who lives at 289 Friar lane, are the choices of the town's GOP committee. Hoffarth, of 217 Evergreen court, who retired last December after serving as borough clerk—and in several other municipal posts—said he is running even though he failed to get the party endorsement. Hoffarth, and several GOP leaders in the town, said they did not see his candidacy as an

Labor ills, faculty degrees key topic for high schools

By ABNER GOLD

A dispute over qualifications of new teachers and disclosure of a building trades' strike which could delay the current capital expansion program shared top billing at the Regional High School District Board of Education meeting Tuesday night at A. L. Johnson Regional High School, Clark. About 50 people attended the meeting, most of them teenagers from Clark and from Gov. Livingston Regional High School in Berkeley Heights.

Many of the youngsters were there to appeal for extra pay for Albert Dorhout, vocal music teacher at Gov. Livingston, in view of what students and parents termed outstanding contributions, and to call for organization of a girls varsity gymnastics team at Johnson.

Manuel Dios, buildings and grounds chairman, broke the news of the construction union trouble when he announced that the expansion programs at all four high schools "are right on schedule" up to today. He added that strikes had just been voted by the plumbers, carpenters and pipefitters.

Dios stated, "All we can do right now is just keep our fingers crossed." He said that a union official whom he questioned could not say whether the strike would be long or short.

THE CONTROVERSY over teacher qualifications arose when the board was asked to approve the hiring of two teachers for next year, both 1973 college graduates with bachelor's degrees.

Sonya Dorsky of Springfield expressed strong objections, declaring that the schools should seek more candidates with master's degrees in their specialties. Citing the difference between the number of hours required in a major field for a bachelor's and a master's degree at Newark State College, she called for teachers with a "more thorough grounding in the subjects they will teach."

Charles Bauman, the district's director of personnel, noted that both appointments are to fill temporary vacancies—one to replace a teacher going on maternity leave and one for a staff member on sabbatical. He added, "We may keep these two in the district if they do a good job."

BAUMAN STRESSED that the district encourages and assists teachers to seek graduate training, "and we try to hire a mixed group" with bachelor's and master's degrees. He added that the Regional staff now has 42 percent of its teachers with master's degrees or more training and that "unless board policy requires a master's degree we will continue hiring a mixed group."

Mrs. Dorsky declared, "If there were really a mixed grouping I would not feel this way, but there is no other way to protest hiring so many inexperienced teachers just out of college. And

I am shocked for the students who will be taught by teachers hired for just one year.

"The 42 percent figure for master's degrees is a disgrace. Other districts have 50 to 80 percent. Get the figure here up to 60 or 70 percent and then hire a few teachers with bachelor's degrees."

She added, "If the master's degree is not important then let's stop paying extra to those who have it." Mrs. Dorsky said that between two teachers with the same basic ability, the one with more training is always a better teacher. She also stated, "Our parents want experienced teachers with excellent training. They will no longer support any less."

The board then voted, six to one, to hire the two teachers, each at $8,600 for the year. Alicia Parker, a Newark State alumna, will teach social studies at David Brearley Regional in

Only 7 residents at open caucus of school board

The Mountainside Board of Education held its first "open" caucus meeting Tuesday night, but only seven residents attended the session in the board's offices at Echobrook School. School personnel also were present, but in an official capacity.

Those borough citizens interested enough to take advantage of the opportunity to get "behind the scenes" heard discussion of curricula provisions, the proposed foreign language program, budget cuts, sports programs, very little verbal controversy, and even less about plans for Echobrook School—the issue which more than any other prompted persons at recent board meetings to request the open sessions.

One resident, questioned after the board went into executive session to discuss "confidential" matters, said she was curious as to why the Echobrook issue had not been brought up. "Everyone knows the school is in jeopardy," she commented, "and they want to know what's going on." She said she did feel the open caucus was worthwhile, however, noting "at least it's a chance to find out what's behind the decisions that are made at public meetings."

Another resident echoed her thoughts, adding "From what they said here, I've got a number of things which I'll bring up for discussion at Tuesday's meeting."

Besides the citizens who were present, several teachers, and Herbert Brown, principal of the Deerfield Middle School, also were at the caucus. Brown presented a lengthy report on

Postal union head urges improvement of 'pool' situation

The Echo's recent front-page photograph of the "swimming pool" at the rear of the Mountainside Post Office has elicited the following comment from Howard McNicholas, president of Branch 1492 of the National Association of Letter Carriers, Westfield-Mountainside. In a letter to the Echo, he stated:

"I have received word from the Mountainside Post Office that the pool will be open by Memorial Day. The office athletic director, lifeguard and swim coach has assured me as much. He said, 'Even if we have no rain during May, we still have enough left over from April to fill it up.'"

"How else can you treat a situation like this except joke about it, though it surely is no joking matter. The slightest downpour fills up the cavity behind the post office, and, for lack of engineering know-how, the water just sits there. This problem this creates are:

"1. Any small child, or even a big one, could fall in and drown. Now isn't that a good enough reason to have this thing fixed? There is no fence around the post office and there are many children in the Sherwood parkway and Woodland avenue area. Are you people aware of this?"

"The Post Office is mired down in forms trying to get action, but none seems forthcoming. The Post Office won't or can't even

Indians, Red Sox triumph as Little League play opens

The Little League of Mountainside held its opening day on Saturday. The cool, damp, windy weather didn't deter the Little Leaguers from starting the day with a parade that also included the Jonathan Dayton Marching Band, representatives from the police, fire, Rescue

The Indians scalped the Orioles, 13-2. Pitchers Bob McGurty and Mike Flood allowed only two hits with Mike hitting a home run and a double. Other hitters for the Indians were Bob Rawlins, Andy Nash, Scott Masters and McGurty.

Steve Gallagher pitched brilliantly, backed up by hitting by Joe Hoy, Mike Simmons and Tim Holleran.

The Pioneers were downed by the Mustangs, 10-8, despite the Pioneers getting seven runs in one inning. Jeff Brown pitched a strong three innings, backed by Chris Johns for the Mustangs. THIS WEEK'S HEALTH NEWS

By FRED GREENBERG, R.P.

According to authorities, your basal metabolism rate has a lot to do with how fast or how slowly your bodily processes occur. This rate can be computed in order to tell if your growth and energy utilization are normal. Usually the basal metabolism rate is slightly higher in males than in females although it decreases with time. Mental activity, however, does not seem to have much effect on the rate. An hour of intense mental effort uses up energy which can be replaced by a half of a peanut!

Democratic group
 hears Vietnamese
 charge 'violations'

The Springfield Democratic Advisory Committee met last week at the National State Bank building, Springfield. The committee-sponsored workshop and study session centered around discussions of the situation in Indochina. The program was part of the committee's theme of developing issues of interest to the voters in order to help them formulate opinions and policies.

The main speaker at the workshop, Ngo Vinh Long, is editor and director of the Vietnam Resource Center in Cambridge, Mass., and editor of the monthly newsletter "Toi Bao Ga." Long is in regular communication with sources in South Vietnam. A graduate student at Harvard, he has written a book on Vietnamese peasant life that will be published by MIT Press and has also written many articles for U.S. publications.

Long spoke about the possible reintervention of U.S. troops, particularly air power, in Vietnam. Long charged violations committed under the cease-fire by the U.S.-supported Thieu regime and said that Thieu and Nixon are "combining their efforts on a policy of lying to their respective constituencies about the southeast Asian problem."

Long cited Nixon's declaring that the U.S. administration continued to recognize Thieu as the sole legitimate government of South Vietnam. He declared that this is in direct contradiction to the terms of the agreements which say that there are two administrations, two parties, two armies, etc., in South Vietnam.

Long offered details on "the realization by Thieu of his political weaknesses and the fact that he would not have any chance of retaining his position, and the United States in turn would not have any hope of retaining any part of Vietnam if the agreements were strictly abided by the parties concerned." Other charges of violations, including the problems of refugees is topic for panel

"Medicine and War" a lecture dealing with the medical delivery systems in Indochina will be the topic of the next workshop study series of the Democratic Advisory Committee in Springfield tonight at 8:30 at the National State Bank, Morris and Linden avenues.

Ed Kelley of the Committee for Medical Aid for Indochina will give a slide show and talk. Discussion will follow. The talk will include an overview of medical delivery systems in Saigon and North Vietnam. The effect of the war on medical systems and different areas have combated disease.

The Advisory Committee will also discuss the supplemental defense appropriation bill now before Congress, for $500 million. Possible areas of action will be discussed. The public has been invited.

PAINTING PURLOINED

The Adoration of the Magi, attributed to the 15th Century painter Hieronymus Bosch (1462-1516) was stolen from a Brussels church recently and is believed to be on its way to an "underground gallery" of some maniac or criminal collector.

and political prisoners, were discussed by the group in attendance.

The Democratic Advisory Committee also distributed a leaflet concerning the Forsythe Bill now in Congress. Sponsored by Rep. Edwin Forsythe (Republican of Camden), this bill would limit the power of the President to launch military incursions into Cambodia, Laos, and Vietnam without prior consent of the Congress. This legislation is the counterpart of the Senate version sponsored by Clifford Case and Frank Church.

The group was told that although Rep. Matthew J. Rinaldo (R-Union) has indicated that he would support the bill should it come up before Congress for action, he has not yet consented to co-sponsor it. The Democratic Advisory Committee and the regular Democratic Club are forming a task force on this issue "in order to bring about public concern over the bill and Congressman Rinaldo's apathy on the matter."

Camp Speers-Eljabar, YMCA resident camp for boys and girls in grades 1-12, located in the Pocono Mountains, will hold Sunday afternoon open houses June 3 and 10 to acquaint families with the camp facilities and programs for all ages.

Members of the summer staff will be available to answer questions; families may enjoy the waterfront for swimming and recreation.

Camp Speers-Eljabar, near Dingman's Ferry, Pa., has served YMCAs in New Jersey and the greater metropolitan area for 25 years.

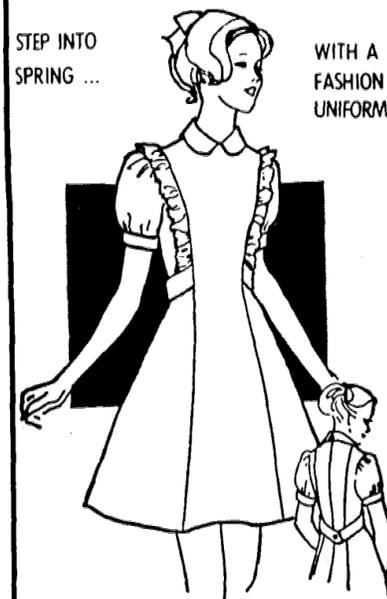

Third through sixth grade boys and girls have a camp program primarily utilizing the in-camp facilities, progressively moving toward camping in the out-of-doors. Seventh and eighth grade youth begin a stronger emphasis on outdoor camping including hiking, canoeing, and rafting.

Ninth and 10th grade youths may participate in coed bike and canoe trips planned in Pennsylvania, throughout New England, parts of Canada and abroad. Leader-in-training and counselor-in-training programs are available to youth in grades 10, 11, and 12. In addition, one-week sessions are offered late in August for families who wish to spend a week at camp together.

Registration for Camp Speers-Eljabar is made through the Summit Area YMCA. Brochures, registration forms and further information are available at the Y, 273-3330.

Senator CLIFFORD P. CASE Reports

Important pending business in the Senate is a bill designed to encourage greater public participation in federal elections.

It would do so by cutting through all the barriers that in varying degree make registration to vote inconvenient, difficult or nearly impossible for some people. I support the bill because the right to vote is fundamental to our system and affirmative action is needed to widen its exercise.

In 1976, before the adoption of registration laws, 90 percent of voting age Americans voted, according to the Senate's Post Office and Civil Service Committee, which has been studying the problem and recommended the bill now before the Senate.

By 1921, when most states had registration laws, the committee says, only 48 percent of voting age Americans actually cast ballots. While the percentage has risen and fallen through the years, it is significant that last year, when the nation elected a President, only 55 percent of eligible Americans voted. In New Jersey, the 1972 turnout was slightly higher, 59.5 percent.

When most registered Americans vote, so many are not registered that it is estimated that fewer than six out of 10 citizens of voting age cast their ballots.

In New Jersey, there were an estimated 5,023,000 persons of voting age last year, but only about 2,673,000 were registered to vote.

The Post Office and Civil Service Committee attributes the fall-off in voting in large part to the "log-jam" of registration barriers put in the way of the voter.

The committee points out that in many states registration offices are open only during business hours when most people are at work. In some big cities, citizens can register only at City Hall. And some states close their registration books just as interest in a coming election is beginning to build.

According to the Senate Committee, Missouri has at least six different registration systems for cities, depending on their size. Voters in Alabama, the committee reports, must fill out a four-page registration form. I am sure many do not even try.

To overcome such problems, our bill provides for registering people by having them fill out postcards sent to them in the mail. The cards would be returned to local voting registrars. The postcards would be provided by a federal agency to be established in the Bureau of the Census.

Use of the postcard no less than 30 days before a federal primary or general election would register the citizen to vote. For New Jersey, where registration books close 40 days before an election, registration by federal postcard would add 10 days to the registration period.

Under our bill the local or state registrar still will have the right and responsibility for accepting or rejecting an application for registration. For most people this will pose no problem, they will receive by return mail a card notifying them of their eligibility to vote.

However, stiff penalties will be provided for fraudulent registration or for attempting to deprive, or actually depriving, a person of the right to register.

Moving from one jurisdiction to another also will pose no problem. The voter need only visit his local post office, pick up the necessary card, fill it out and drop it in the mail. Registration by mail will be no bar to absentee voting under the Senate's bill.

The federal government will pay for the cost of the mailings and for the processing of the forms at the local level. In addition, it will provide incentive payments to get states to switch to the registration-by-mail technique for state and local elections.

Unfortunately, final Senate action on the bill has been delayed by a "quiet filibuster," including a succession of delaying amendments. But I am confident we yet will pass the bill, for it is clear a bipartisan majority of the Senate supports it.

Model railroaders to hold third annual hobby show in May

The Model Railroad Club's third annual model railroad hobby show will be held May 5 and 6 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Hillside Avenue Junior High School, Centennial Avenue, Cranford, just off the Garden State Parkway, Exit 136. There will be a general admission charge of 75 cents.

The show will cover all popular gauges, from N to O, with prototypes and railroadiana also represented. There will be a white elephant table where hobbyists can bring their equipment to sell. Tables will be available for equipment display.

Many major manufacturers of model railroad equipment will be represented by products of all types. There will also be railroad club and individual modelers' displays, including several operating layouts of various types and gauges.

Steve Powers of Mountainside is a sustaining member of the club. Proceeds from the show will go to the building fund of the club, which is constructing an air-conditioned building on Jefferson Avenue, Union, just off Rt. 22 east-bound to house its new 10,000-foot layout, which will be open to the public.

All work on the building and layout is being done by club members. The building is partially completed and layout construction is progressing. Membership in the club is open to anyone with an interest in model railroading.

For further information, readers may write the Model Railroad Club, Box 1146, Union 07083, or call 964-9721 any Monday, Thursday or Friday evening or all day Saturday.

KNOW YOUR GOVERNMENT

From N.J. Taxpayers Association

Spending of the 21 New Jersey counties is climbing toward the three-quarter billion dollar level this year.

Annual tabulations released by the New Jersey Taxpayers Association showed that 1973 budgets aggregating more than $713 million have been adopted by the counties. This is $55 1/2 million more than actual expenditures of all the counties last year totaling $657 1/2 million. This represented a rise of 8.5 percent.

Noting the big business aspects of county government as indicated by the size of the spending programs, NJTA observed that the Optional County Charter Law recently adopted by the State Legislature will permit voters to adopt modern forms of county government which will facilitate businesslike administration.

Individually, the 1973 county budget increases over last year's spending ranged from 1.2 percent in Hudson County to over 25 percent in Ocean County. Largest dollar increases were registered by Essex, Monmouth, Morris and Camden Counties.

In Union County the adopted 1973 budget totals $41,255,494 as compared with 1972 expenditures of $39,560,400. This is an increase of $1,695,094, or 4.3 percent. This places Union County 17th according to percentage of rise among the 21 counties. In Essex County the adopted budget for 1973 is $31,400,244. In 1972 expenditures were $122,414,760, an increase of $8,985,484 or 7.3 percent which ranks Essex County 12th among New Jersey's 21 counties.

The tabulations compare last year's expenditures — including amounts paid, charged and reserved — with adopted 1973 budget totals. The latter are subject to change according to actual spending experience this year. Also, the totals do not include capital spending from bond and reserve funds.

You dial local calls yourself, right? So why not long distance calls? It's just as easy. And dialing saves you money.
You always save when you dial direct, without the services of an operator. Because the rates are always lower than for calls which require an operator, such as credit card, collect, third number billed, person-to-person, and coin-phone calls to other states.
It makes sense, then, to dial all your calls direct.
On calls to other states from your home or business phone, simply dial the three-digit area code for the place you're calling, then dial the phone number. If you don't know the area code, you'll find help in the front pages of your phone book.
Don't know the phone number? You can get it at no extra charge from Directory Assistance in the place you're calling. Just dial the area code plus 555-1212. Then jot the number down for future use.
What if you should reach a wrong number? No problem. Hang up, dial the operator and tell us about the mistake. We'll make sure the call isn't on your phone bill.

GABRIELLA DARVASH

Institute lists safety hints for bicycling

Bicycling—an increasingly popular sport—provides much enjoyment for youngsters and adults.

"But bicycling brings safety problems!" says the Institute for Safer Living of the American Mutual Insurance Companies.

Approximately 900 persons are likely to be killed this year in bicycle-automobile accidents, according to the National Safety Council. Such fatalities have risen steadily in recent years, from 490 in 1961 to 850 in 1971.

The Institute estimates that more than one million bicycle-related injuries will occur this year.

More than 75 million people ride bicycles now, compared with 55 million in the late 1960s.

The Institute urges adherence to these common sense safety precautions to help reduce bicycle accidents.

—Learn to ride well—practice in a safe area away from traffic.

—Choose the correct bicycle size.

—Bicycles are intended for use on lightly-traveled roads.

—Bicycles are prohibited on many highways and expressways.

—Obey all traffic rules and regulations: at lights, stop signs, intersections, and one-way streets.

—Bicyclists must ride single file on roadways.

—Only one person on a bicycle (except tandems)—no riders.

—Bicyclists must not "hook" rides on other moving vehicles.

—Every bicycle must have a bell or horn and a brake or brakes in good condition.

—For after dark use, bicycles must have a reflector or red tail light that is visible from 500 feet.

—Always hand signal before turning.

—Ride as closely to the right hand edge of the road as possible and always ride with the flow of traffic.

120 percent reduction in subscription rates for approximately 1.3 million small group and individual subscribers covered by the Medical-Surgical Plan of New Jersey (Blue Shield). The decrease in rates is double that which Blue Shield proposed in March.

The new rates for the Blue Shield subscribers become effective June 1, 1973.

It is the first rate reduction of its kind in more than 15 years for Blue Shield.

Commissioner McDonough said the reduction is possible because of a $19.9 million surplus reported by Blue Shield at the end of 1972.

McDonough said, "This surplus figure is much too high for a non-profit organization such as this."

The rate decrease also reflects savings to Blue Shield from New Jersey's recently enacted "no fault" law. Blue Shield contracts have been modified to exclude payment where benefits are provided through automobile insurance coverage.

The decrease in rates is based on a surplus reduction of $14 million over the next few years.

Appropriate adjustments will be made in charges to experience-rated subscribers consistent with this objective.

The new Blue Shield rates will still permit the liberalized underwriting practices—open enrollment and removal of restrictive riders—mandated by McDonough six weeks ago.

The small group category is for groups with 100 members and less and for individuals

Ballet group offers 'Duet'

The premiere of a romantic dance episode "Duet," by Rumanian choreographer Gabriella Darvash, will be an added highlight of two benefit performances of the Garden State Ballet, scheduled for 8 p.m., May 12 and 20, at South Orange Junior High School and Westfield High School, respectively.

Two ballets by George Balanchine and another new opus by Mme. Darvash, will also headline the two programs. "Duet" is a new choreographic setting of the Concerto de Aranjuez for Guitar and Orchestra by Joaquin Rodrigo.

Garden State Ballet soloist Kathleen Ann Spanko of Metuchen will be partnered by Ali Pourfarrokhi in "Duet." The program also offers Balanchine's "Concerto Barocco" (Bach) and his "Valse Fantaisie" (Glinka), as well as Mme. Darvash's "Walpurgis Night," the bacchanal from Gounod's opera "Faust."

Sara Leland, principal dancer of the New York City Ballet, will be guest artist in the programming, along with Roni Mahler, former soloist of American Ballet Theater, and Paul Russell of Arthur Mitchell's Dance Theater of Harlem. Fred Danieli is founder-director of the Garden State Ballet.

—Don't carry anything that would prevent at least one hand from being on the handlebars at all times.

—Leave stunt riding and racing for open areas free of traffic.

—In most communities, bicycles must be registered and display license plates. Keep a copy of the bicycle serial number at home.

Slickly situation solved Fertilizers remove oil spills

Most people associate "fertilizers" with farms and lawns, but some Rutgers scientists are also using them to remove messy oil slicks that pollute the sea.

"According to recent estimates, five to ten million tons of oil per year are accidentally spilled into the oceans," says Richard Bartha, associate research professor at the College of Agriculture and Environmental Science. "Mechanical cleanup of this oil is not only tremendously expensive, but also often technically impossible."

"Most of the polluting oil is eventually degraded by marine bacteria, but at a very slow rate. Several research groups have attempted to speed up this process by inoculating slicks with high numbers of oil degrading bacteria, but no clear success has been demonstrated with this technique."

When Dr. Bartha and his research assistant, Dr. Richard Atlas, began studying the possible causes for the slow rate of oil degradation in the sea, they discovered that perhaps the major cause was the scarcity of nitrogen and phosphorus in sea water.

"But in this case, identifying a problem was not as good as solving it. To throw ordinary nitrogen and phosphorus fertilizers on an oil slick is out of the question. The fertilizer would be diluted too quickly in the water and would not benefit the bacteria associated with the slick. Virtually all the fertilizer would be used by the algae instead, and the result might be an algal bloom."

To get around this problem, Drs. Bartha and Atlas, both from the Department of Biochemistry and Microbiology and working under a grant from the U.S. Office of Naval Research, started to search for nitrogen and phosphorus fertilizers soluble in oil rather than water.

After evaluating many compounds, they chose paraffinized urea as a source of nitrogen, a substance also used as a controlled release garden fertilizer. They applied this in combination with octylphosphate, an oil-like substance that contains chemically bound phosphorus. Both substances dissolved in the oil slick only and were available to oil degrading bacteria, but not to the algae in sea water.

After successful laboratory tests, this "oleophilic fertilizer" as Dr. Bartha dubbed it was applied to miniature oil slicks floating on natural sea water. The degradation of the treated slicks increased tenfold compared to untreated controls.

"The combination of the 'oleophilic fertilizer' with a bacterial inoculum may further increase its effectiveness," he says. "The constituents of the fertilizer are easily available and inexpensive and, therefore, the new treatment is also economically attractive."

"Oil pollution is a complex problem, and no single treatment technique is appropriate to every situation," Dr. Bartha says.

'Teaching machine' aids CP pupils

Volunteers adapt unit for Center's needs

Blinking red lights, a child's thrill at making something happen and a teacher's enthusiasm at the potential of a new machine mark the introduction of the Burg Warner System 80 "teaching machine" into the educational program at the Union County Cerebral Palsy Center, 216 Holly St., Cranford.

Although the System 80 machine delights young and old alike as if it were a new mechanical toy, it was originally designed as an aid in teaching children. However, the original model did not meet the specific needs of many of the CP Center's clients who are too disabled to push the buttons that trigger the correct answer.

Attempting to remedy this condition, the Union County Cerebral Palsy League appealed to the Mechanical Division of ESSO Research and Engineering, Linden, for assistance. Howard Henn, senior project engineer, answered their plea, with ESSO Research and Engineering's blessings. He was able to utilize materials and equipment at his plant but much of the work was done at home. ESSO helped solve mechanical problems, which were not Henn's forte. John Broadbent of Union, a designer with the company, was also a helpful volunteer. The result was an adaptive device consisting of a photo-electric cell, timers and solid state logic that bridged the gap between student and machine, making the machine far more versatile since it could be used by even the most severely handicapped student.

Mrs. Ivy Merrill, kindergarten teacher at the Center, is enthusiastic about the potential value of the machine, coupled with its new adaptive device. Early results have been encouraging and she hopes the machine will greatly increase her ability to determine the learning potential of students who lack normal avenues of communication such as speech and manual dexterity.

Mrs. Merrill also views the machine as a valuable teaching aid. A recording on the machine asks a simple question and shows the student a group of answers from which to select the correct one. As the student signals the correct answer, the machine mechanically acknowledges his proper choice. It is this method of approval that her youngsters find particularly delightful.

The Center's executive director, Oscar Friedensohn, noted that while the staff is still experimenting with the machine, he was sure it could be used productively in other classroom situations and even add a new learning dimension to the Adult Activity Program, which includes several severely disabled adults who were previously unable to benefit from public education.

Weekend boating under way at Warinanco, Upper Lakes

Boating and canoeing have begun at the lake in Warinanco Park, Elizabeth and Roselle, and the Upper Lake in Echo Lake Park, Mountainside and Westfield. Ideal weather encouraged the activity during the Easter weekend.

Lomero appointed to social services at Alexian Hospital

Alexian Brothers Hospital, Elizabeth, has announced the appointment of Nicholas S. Lomero of Linden as social services director.

Lomero's duties will include patient discharge planning, advising patient financing, and referring patients to community resources in Union County. In addition, he will assist the patient in adjusting to his illness, as well as helping the patient once he has returned home or has been transferred to other facilities.

Lomero said that he will "try to provide quality service to the patient on a continuous basis even after he has left the hospital. The responsibility of the hospital doesn't end when the patient leaves."

A graduate of St. Michael's College in Vermont, Lomero received his B.A. in business administration, and a master's degree in psychology from Montclair State College. He previously worked in the social services department of Muhlenberg Hospital in Plainfield and the Essex County Welfare in Newark, where he gained extensive field experience in social work. He also has been connected with Catholic organizations, including the Conference of Christian Doctors.

Careers in health to be discussed at area high schools

More than 200 careers in the health care industry will be dramatized for Elizabeth area high school students during National Hospital Week beginning Sunday.

The "Careers in Health Mobile," a 35-foot van sponsored by the New Jersey Association of Hospital Auxiliaries and the Hospital Research and Educational Trust of New Jersey, will be stationed at Battin High School, Elizabeth, Monday, Thomas Jefferson, Elizabeth, Tuesday, Linden High School, Wednesday, Cranford Junior High School, Thursday, and Union High School, Friday.

The mobile unit, housing an array of exhibits featuring health careers, volunteer and professional services, is part of a program arranged by volunteers and professionals of the three Elizabeth hospitals. "Tri Hospital Sharing and Caring" is the slogan of the total program. Throughout the week of May 14, Steinbach's in Elizabeth is providing space in windows and at booths in the store for hospital people to tell their story.

The health field, second largest industry in the country, presents a vibrant, varied area with many opportunities," said Mrs. David Kaufman, chairman of the tri-hospital committee arranging the project. "There are places not only in the physicians' and nurses' professions, but openings for specialists such as pharmacists, social workers, librarians, and a host of engineering, maintenance and housekeeping jobs. The field has a built-in job satisfaction factor that appeals especially to young people.

Trailside presents rocket program, movie about Grand Canyon Sunday

"The Grand Canyon," a color film, will be shown at the Union County Park Commission's Trailside Nature and Science Center in the Watchung Reservation Sunday.

SWEDISH ANGELS

UCTI, Union College training 60 Spanish-speaking tellers

Sixty Spanish-speaking residents are being trained to fill available positions as bilingual bank tellers through the cooperation of Union County Technical Institute, Union College and Franklin State Bank.

With instruction presently based at the Elizabeth Campus of Union College, the 15-week bank training program is designed to meet a crucial need in Union County for personnel who can handle both English and Spanish-speaking customers, according to Richard Kay, director of continuing education at Union County Technical Institute, Scotch Plains.

"The program also provides valuable skills for many people who might otherwise be unemployed," explained Kay.

Based on the satisfactory record of many accounting and computer programming graduates of UCTI who joined the staff of Franklin State, George Gilbride, a bank official, contacted Kay when he recognized a shortage of bilingual personnel and requested that UCTI set up a training program entirely supported by Franklin State.

Kay in turn contacted Miss Micaela Escudero, director of the Community Bilingual Resource Center of Union College, headquartered in the Washington Community School and the Elizabeth Campus for assistance in recruiting students. Miss Escudero easily found 60 people willing to be trained, and college and UCTI officials agreed to conduct classes at the Elizabeth Campus of Union College because of its accessibility to public transportation.

Franklin State Bank has supplied instructors for the training program which includes an orientation toward public relations, banking transactions, the operation of banking machines and an understanding of banking services. The bank is also providing equipment for the training program and has guaranteed jobs for every one of the people completing the program, said Kay.

"The bank teller training program demonstrates the willingness of business and educational institutions in Union County to continue to provide job opportunities for those who need them as well as to serve existing personnel needs," stated Kay.

20-mile walk set to help charities

The Hillside Jaycees will conduct a 20-mile walk Sunday, May 20, through Union County to raise funds for five charitable or non-profit organizations.

Each person who participates in the walk is being urged to find sponsors among business, industry or friends who will donate at least 10 cents for each mile the participant is able to complete.

The walk will start at 9 a. m. at the Hillside Community Center, 274 Hillside Ave., and continue through Hillside, Union, Springfield, Westfield, Garwood, Roselle Park, Cranford and Kenilworth.

Funds raised by the walk will benefit asthmatic research, Camp Jaycee, a free summer camp for mentally-retarded children planned by New Jersey Jaycees, Project Concern, Dr. James W. Turpin's free hospitals and clinics throughout the world; toys for the pediatric wards of four area hospitals, and the Hillside Ambulance Squad.

NSC faculty music trio plans to appear at UC

The Performing Arts Trio, a permanent faculty chamber music ensemble at Newark State College, will make a special appearance at Union College's Cranford Campus on Thursday, May 10, it was announced this week by Michael Villano, director of student activities.

The Trio, consisting of Dr. Louis Huber on the violin, Prof. Ted Hoyle on the cello and Prof. Herbert Golub, chairman of the music department at Newark State, on the piano, was formed in September, 1970, and has since played in New York City, in return engagements at the New Jersey State Museum, in communities throughout New Jersey and at college campuses. The Trio recently presented a performance of Handel's "The Creation" as part of Union County's second observance of Higher Education Week.

Fines levied against 2 truck companies and six individuals

It was a relatively short session of Mountain Side Municipal Court on April 25, with presiding Judge Jacob R. Bauer levying fines against six persons and two companies.

The heaviest penalty of the evening, fines totaling $65, was given to the Artus Trucking Co., Inc., of Kearny for three offenses: using other plates on one of its tractor trailers, failure to have an insurance certificate in the vehicle, and operating the truck with only one plate. The summonses had been issued on Rt. 22. Smith and Solomon Trucking Co. of New Brunswick paid $15 for failure to display 1974 tags on one of its vehicles, which had been traveling on Rt. 22.

Four motorists were fined for speeding. Carlos Bosques of Newark, $25 for driving 55 mph in a 45-mile zone on Rt. 22. Dennis P. Murphy of Hillsdale, $15 for 50 mph in a 40-mile zone on Summit road. Richard S. Ottonson of Chatham, $30 for 48 mph in a 40-mile zone on New Providence road, and Walter B. Smith Jr. of Scotch Plains, $30 for 48 mph in a 35-mile zone on Deer path. The fines paid by Ottonson and Smith also included contempt of court charges.

In other court action, a Mountain Side juvenile was given a $15 fine for operating a motorcycle without a proper license on the footpaths near Summit circle. Failure to make repairs on his auto brought a $25 penalty to Santos A. Pinto of Newark. His summonses had been issued on Rt. 22.

He has made an in-depth study of "Pop Music and the Church." Recently he spent a year in England and Europe studying "The Place of the Arts in the Mission of the Church." He will be assisted by Evelyn Blecke, the church's director of music. Anyone interested has been invited to attend.

Jersey City driver facing drug charge

A Jersey City man, stopped on Rt. 22 for a motor vehicle check early Friday, is facing charges for possession of marijuana, Mountain Side police reported.

According to police, Glenn C. Johnson, 25, stopped at 3:05 a.m. by Ptl. Herman Hafeken, allegedly had less than 25 grams of the narcotic in the car he was driving. Johnson also was issued summonses for failure to have his driver's license, vehicle registration and insurance certificate in his possession.

Johnson was released on $100 bail, pending a court appearance May 16.

Kenilworth Cheryl Russell, with a degree from Montclair State College, will instruct in business education at Johnson. The board noted that both did their student teaching in the district and were highly recommended.

ANOTHER DISAGREEMENT arose when the board voted to provide an unpaid leave next fall for Betty Wilson, social studies teacher at Gov. Livingston, who plans to run as a Democrat for the N. J. Assembly in the 22nd District, which includes Springfield, Mountain Side and Kenilworth.

Mrs. Dorsky said that if elected, Mrs. Wilson could serve in Trenton as much as one-sixth of the school year, at board expense as required by state law. She added that the teacher "should run to serve on her own time."

Stephen Marcinak of Clark said that line of reasoning would lead to a legislature composed entirely of lawyers, doctors and the self-employed.

Dr. Donald Merachnik, superintendent of schools, noted that Mrs. Wilson teaches courses in politics and government operations. He added that her experiences would be highly relevant and would be of great value to her students.

The vote on the motion was four to two, with Mrs. Dorsky and Dr. Minor C. K. Jones of Mountain Side opposed.

The board also approved a program of summer workshops and in-service training for teachers during the coming year.

Subjects to be covered include: basic skills in English, English, business education, career education, college preparatory mathematics, probability and statistics, computer orientation, science, cultural anthropology, geography, individualization of foreign language instruction, physical education, television production and Title I instruction for the culturally deprived.

THE PROPOSAL to provide extra pay for Dorhout for his work with choral groups at Gov. Livingston was presented by a parent, Marilyn Hart of Mountain Side.

She declared, "The learning process has surely not been confined to the classroom insofar as the Gov. Livingston music program is concerned. Many parents and students have been rewarded by their attendance at concerts, Sunday evening recitals and innumerable events. Most recently, the outstanding 'Yipphah and His Daughter' provided the students the opportunity to work closely with a famous contemporary composer. Students in the entire district benefited."

Task force slogan

"Let No Woman Be Overlooked" is the slogan of the Union County Task Force To Conquer Uterine Cancer. As part of a nationwide project of the American Cancer Society, the goal of the Task Force is to encourage every woman in Union County to have a "pap" test by 1976. The test is simple, painless and only takes a few minutes.

Mrs. Hart added, "The board can allocate money, approve special programs, etc., but it cannot insure the initiative necessary for the quality of any program or curriculum without the continued motivation of people such as Mr. Dorhout, who has given unselfishly of his time and energy far beyond the normal expectations of his position. Students who have been fortunate enough to come under his sphere of influence have richer lives today."

Several Gov. Livingston students also praised Dorhout for the quality of his teaching and dedication. One young man asked that he be paid at least as much as an assistant football coach, some $800 a year.

Natalie Waldt of Springfield, board president, said the board is seeking methods to compensate outstanding teachers of this sort. She added that all payment is a matter of negotiation between the board and the Regional Teachers' Association.

The group of Clark teenagers who asked the board for a girls' gymnastics team was told to speak to school administrators, who are surveying student attitudes before deciding which sport to add to basketball, which launched the girls' varsity program this year.

One youngster stressed that gymnastics is an activity which attracts girls who may not be interested in most team sports.

The one board member absent at the meeting was Charles Vitale of Kenilworth, because of the recent death of his son Carl. The board passed on a family request that memorial contributions be made to the scholarship fund at Brearley Regional, of which Carl Vitale was a graduate.

Y Men's Club pledges $10,000 for new center

To help "plant in today's children a love of our land and resources" the Westfield YMCA Men's Club this week announced a $10,000 pledge to the YWCA-YWCA Four Seasons Outdoor Center.

The Y's Men's gift is earmarked to partially fund creation of a year-round environmental education center for the entire community at the center, which will feature 32 "environmental station" to guide school groups, community organizations and families to new insights into the world around them.

The Y's Men's president, Glenn Parcejus, presented a $5,000 check to Norbert A. Weldon, general campaign chairman of the Four Seasons Outdoor Center fund, as the first payment on the pledge. Additional gifts of $2,500 in 1974 and 1975 will complete the pledge.

The contribution will finance the design of the environmental education program by Benton Cummings, a professor at Newark State College, and will fund the purchase and preparation of equipment for it. Heart of the center's environmental education program, the stations depend upon leaving things much the way they are, but preparing materials to make the fields, streams, rocks and plant life more meaningful to young and old.

Five themes will be covered: The first is a natural watershed on the site which recreates in miniature the Raritan Valley watershed. Several stations will show how the watershed system contributes to food, drinking water and energy, guides map makers and provides transportation and home sites.

A second group of stations will emphasize historical features of the 163-acre tract in Lebanon Township.

The stone house built in 1851 and its companion barn will become a center of pioneer farm study, and local history will be traced back through the tombstones and stone walls. The walls, through identification will be transformed into rock museum. Forest, fish and game plans related to curricula, including the possibility of adding a "consumer math" program in the 8th grade and the validity of certain "experimental" courses. No decisions were made regarding the report.

Brown and the teachers also gave their opinions on the possibility of an expanded athletic program, for both girls and boys. Jeannette Sektberg, girls physical education teacher, noted that her students had been involved in more inner-school games this year in hockey and basketball. They will begin softball games next week.

She suggested that if the hockey program were to be expanded, work would have to be done on the playing field, which, she said, needs regrading. She recommended an increase in the number of days the field and the gym are available for girls, and consideration of utilizing the services of an additional person to supervise activities for the 6th graders. The possibility of adding a gymnastic program also was discussed.

Boys physical education teacher Charles Carson suggested that wrestling might be added to the program, since the school already has the necessary mats, and the sport would require a minimum of space, it could be conducted in the cafeteria if necessary. He also cited cross-country, track and field and gymnastics as possibilities, and mentioned an increasing interest in lacrosse, but noted the latter sport would require considerable monetary outlay for equipment. Both instructors said they would be in favor of implementing a track program.

Ruth Keeler, home economics teacher, discussed the proposal that boys be allowed to take her course, noting that from her discussions with students, it would seem the boys are interested only in cooking lessons, rather than the entire course, which also covers aspects such as child care, home and money management and nutrition.

The cycle program, which would entail offering certain "minor" subjects, such as music and art, on a rotating basis, in order to generate an extra period in which to offer foreign languages, came under fire from teachers and from Brown. The principal noted that it was possible a child could become ill during part of the cycle, or be absent for other reasons, and miss essential parts of the course, with no time to make them up.

He also noted that opportunities such as a trip to the opera, might have to be foregone if the class was not in its music cycle at that time.

Art teacher Judy Worsham noted that cycling breaks up the "continuity" of a program, and explained that a child's interest develops over the year. "If art or music is offered at the beginning of the year, and the child does not develop an interest until later on, he has no opportunity to study the subject," she said.

Brown suggested that instead of implementing a cycle program, an additional period might be gained by shortening class time from 45 to 40 minutes.

After hearing the reports the board went on to a discussion of the agenda for the public meeting, and of the $15,000 it must cut from its budget. The accepted proposal was to take

Cancer campaigner stresses 2 goals: funds, education

"Education is the American Cancer Society's most vital weapon in the fight against cancer," said Mrs. Donald F. Hancock, chairman of the 1973 American Cancer Society Crusade of Mountain Side.

Mrs. Hancock explained that the yearly crusade has a twofold purpose: raising funds and person-to-person education about cancer, its warning signals and safeguards.

"A force of over 100 crusade volunteers in Mountain Side has been recruited to reach each home in the community, not only to solicit funds for the support of the society's work, but also to bring a life-saving message to each member of the community," said Mrs. Hancock.

The crusade volunteers are among two million American Cancer Society volunteers throughout the country who will visit their neighbors and ask that they have an annual health checkup. The neighborhood captains are Mrs. John Capice, Mrs. Joseph Gassaway, Mrs. M. A. Fairbanks, Mrs. Scott Schmedel, Mrs. Walter Keller, Mrs. Frank Kane and Mrs. William Kennedy.

American Cancer Society service programs are made available to residents of Mountain Side through the Union County Unit at 512 Westminster ave., Elizabeth. "In order to improve the quality of life for cancer patients, we need the financial support of all residents in Mountain Side," said Mrs. Hancock. "A periodic health check, and check to your American Cancer Society, will continue to advance us all toward the hopeful side of cancer control."

Recreation

All children in the sixth grade and under must be accompanied by an adult 18 and over.

On Wednesday evening, June 27, the commission is sponsoring a trip to see the Mets play the Philadelphia Phillies. Cost of the trip is $4 for box seats and transportation. The bus will leave Deerfield School at 5:45 p.m. and return by approximately 11:15 p.m. Youths entering the eighth grade and over may attend without an adult.

Registration for both trips is being accepted at Borough Hall Monday to Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Registration will also be held at the PTA Fair at Deerfield School on Saturday, May 12.

Further information on any of these activities may be obtained by calling the recreation office, 232-0015.

$3,600 from the teachers' salary item, by hiring a teacher of less experience to replace one who has resigned. Some $9,000 will be cut from a planned roofing project, and the board already has shaved $2,400 from other items. The proposal will be voted on Tuesday.

The public portion of the caucus lasted from 8 to 11:30 p.m., with the board going into private session at that time. According to the body's vote, the next two caucuses, held on the first Tuesday of the month also will be open to the public. After that time a decision will be made as to whether to continue the policy.

Report from Washington

By Rep. Matthew J. Rinaldo

The 1973 tax season may be gone, but it's not forgotten. Certainly not by those people who had to struggle with those complicated forms. Now that Form 1040 is receding into unhappy memory, I think it's time to start working to make next year's tax forms more understandable and easier to follow.

Last year, a Department of Health Education and Welfare study concluded that it takes someone with a college education to understand the present federal income tax forms. This indicates that the taxpayers who would benefit most from itemizing their deductions might be discouraged from itemizing simply because the instructions are so complicated. I find it most disturbing that these people may be using a short form in self-defense. And as a result, they may well be short-changing themselves.

The HEW report also indicated that there are wide variations in the reading difficulties of the different sections of the forms. The language varies from the fourth-grade reading level to the college-graduate level. Unfortunately, the more specific the questions, the harder they are to answer.

This year, the Internal Revenue Service has taken a small step forward by returning to the simplified 1040A short form. However, recent IRS statistics showed that as of March 15, the long form was still being used by 59 percent of the taxpayers. And, almost one out of every four taxpayers had to depend on outside tax preparation experts during the early part of this year. Even these new forms were too complicated for many people.

Apparently, IRS believes that the present forms are simple enough. Now I know why more than 39 million taxpayers felt they had to turn last year to professional tax consultants. The fault obviously lies not with the intelligence of the average taxpayer, but with IRS itself. The tax collectors have not paid enough attention to devising simpler tax forms. Congress is also to blame for creating the loopholes that have made our tax laws so complex.

The present system is so complicated that even IRS experts are confused about the rules and regulations on their own forms. As an experiment, an executive brought the same information to IRS offices in five different cities. All five offices agreed that he was entitled to a refund. Yet, the amount of the refund varied from a low of $177.14 to a high of $848.18.

Now, if the people who write the rules can't agree on their interpretation, how can an ordinary taxpayer be expected to follow them?

I realize that IRS has made an effort to solve some of the obvious problems. Nevertheless, the results are still dismally poor.

I have asked IRS to develop a tax return form that is easier to read and understand. I have suggested that these forms be tested in selected areas before they are distributed to the public for use next year. I also have urged IRS to make greater use of experts in the fields of reading and language. I also have suggested that IRS make sure that the tax consultants assigned to help individuals prepare their taxes are experienced personnel, rather than the part-time workers who were offering advice.

I believe that much of the inconvenience and difficulty caused by complicated tax forms can be eliminated next year if we take the time now to revise and simplify them. While filing tax returns is never an enjoyable job, we can at least make it easier to do.

Football teaches youths team work, new coach states

The realization of teamwork is the true educational value of a young person's participation in varsity football, according to Dominick Deo, the new Gov. Livingston Regional High School head football coach who will begin teaching physical education at Gov. Livingston in Berkeley Heights in September.

Deo, who has been an assistant coach at Scotch Plains-Fanwood Regional High School, noted that the experiences of learning how to respond and cope with winning and losing as a member of a high school varsity squad are valuable preparation for the latter pursuit of goals and objectives by today's teenager.

Deo is pursuing his master's degree in school administration and supervision at Newark State College. His bachelor's degree in physical education is from Montclair State.

Scotch Plains is home base for the Deo family team, which includes wife Judith, son Derek, 26 months, and daughter, Susan, 7 months. Instrumental music, travel and following professional football competition are among Deo's interests.

Scout packs plan registration day

Mountainside Cub Scout Packs 70 and 177 will hold their annual registration on Saturday from 10 a.m. to noon at the Community Presbyterian Church on Deer path at Meetinghouse lane. Boys who will be 8 years old by Dec. 1, 1973, or will enter the third grade in September are eligible to take the first step in the scouting program by becoming Cubs and joining in the activities offered by the two packs.

The Mountainside PTA sponsors Pack 70 which meets on the third Friday of each month at the Deerfield School. Pack 177, sponsored by the Community Presbyterian Church, meets on the fourth Friday of the month at the church.

Each boy must be accompanied by at least one parent when registering since cubbing is a family affair. Questions may be directed to the registration chairman: Pack 70, Nancy Witmer, 233-3743, and Pack 177, Martin Weinberg, 654-4385.

Uses of castor oil described in paper

Frank Naughton of 338 Old Grove rd., Mountainside, presented a paper discussing the production, chemistry and commercial applications of various chemicals from castor oil at the 64th annual spring meeting of the American Oil Chemists' Society, which ended Monday in New Orleans.

Naughton is manager of process development of NL Industries, Baker Castor Oil Division, Bayonne.

The paper described the chemical properties of castor oil and the products derived from it, including nylon, auto greases, paint additives and lubricants for jet aircraft. The oil is derived from castor beans grown in Brazil, India and the high plains of Texas.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Bertram S. Brown, M.D. Director National Institute of Mental Health

AIDING INDIANS

Training programs geared to the needs of American Indian communities are getting underway in five schools of social work as a result of new grants totaling nearly $350,000 awarded by the National Institute of Mental Health, of HEW's Health Services and Mental Health Administration.

Members of the American Indian communities involved played an important part in the planning and development of each of these innovative programs.

In cooperation with the Phoenix Indian School, Arizona State University at Tempe plans improvement in educating Indians in boarding schools and in training social workers to serve in the Rocky Mountain Southwest region. Down in Florida, Barry College of Miami Shores aims to develop leadership potential among Seminole Indians and to aid Indians in Southeast Florida.

In Oklahoma, Indians are to be recruited, educated, and supported to become social workers for their people; this training, through the University of Oklahoma, will provide field experience in eastern Oklahoma.

By employing Indian faculty and recruiting Indian and native Alaskan students, the Portland Oregon State University seeks to provide increased educational and career opportunities in the field of social work.

The School of Social Work of the University of Denver will utilize its grant to help finance a program designed to enhance social work educational opportunities not only for American Indians, but also for Mexican Americans and the black community.

Two additional NIMH projects, now in their second year, also focus on increasing training opportunities for American Indians in social service, through programs at the University of Utah and through the State University of New York. In all, these training programs represent one important aspect along with research and other activities of NIMH efforts to improve the mental health of our minorities.

UNUSUAL MUSEUM — Echobrook School kindergarteners Jeffrey Ahlholm and Patricia Spang make friends with one of the dolls on display at the Good Fairy Doll Museum in Cranford, which the kindergarten classes recently visited. Besides viewing the exhibits, which include antique and contemporary dolls of unusual styles and construction, the youngsters were treated to a program of songs and stories by a museum guide. They were also allowed to play with some of the dolls and wind-up toys on exhibit.

BUYING WISELY

From Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York, Inc.

Dear Larrie:

I feel I've been getting the run-around. Last week I tried cashing a U.S. Savings Bond, Series E, at three banks, but they had refused to cash my bonds even when I presented adequate identification. What's their problem?

Run-Around

Dear Run-Around:

We contacted the banks in question and they have informed us that they had been suffering from many forgeries lately, since they were covered only for losses over $1,000, they had to resort to this policy. It's a policy that clearly violates the law. Since these banks were the depositories of federal funds, they had to cash the savings bonds. If you run into this problem, tell the teller you know the law, and that they can't flaunt a treasury department regulation. Do let us know if you run into this kind of trouble again.

Larrie O'Farrell

Dear Larrie:

My husband and I have moved to New Jersey because his company had relocated there. What is flaring my temper up is the fact that this moving company who moved us to our new home submitted a bill three times the estimate that they originally gave me. My husband says that we should have realized the estimate was too low. It's just not fair.

For Fair Dealing

Dear Fair:

It is unfair that you had this bad experience, but many movers are trust-worthy and carry on legitimate businesses. Unfortunately there are a few concerns that are simply out to make money and are not above giving you a bad deal. The company had made a low estimate in order to get your business, and you had not checked to see if that estimate was reasonable. It is wise to obtain several estimates before you choose a mover. When you decide on a company, be sure to check its reputation with the Better Business Bureau, which can tell you whether there have been any complaints, their nature and the adjustment record of the mover.

'Whole house' effect in Pirates Cove models

Prospective condominium buyers seeking something different in a townhouse design are finding it in the one-bedroom model at Pirates Cove, Monmouth Beach.

Not only are Pirates Cove townhouses two-story homes, giving an added "whole house" effect, but the one-bedroom model features a living room with a cathedral ceiling approximately 16 feet high.

Leading into the living room is an entry foyer with a hall closet. Beyond the living room is the kitchen and dining area with modern appliances, including a wall oven, countertop range, dishwasher, garbage compactor, refrigerator-freezer and clothes washer and dryer.

A large additional room, which may serve either as a dining room or den, lies adjacent to the dinette; sliding glass doors lead to a finished outdoor patio. A separate storage room and powder room complete the first floor of this Pirates Cove home.

A stairway leads from the living room to a second-floor balcony overlooking the living room. The entire top floor is devoted to sleeping quarters, with a bedroom that reaches the entire width of the home and contains a double-sized closet. Another walk-in closet, ceramic-tiled bath, linen closet, and dressing room with full vanity are arranged upstairs.

Every home has its own, separate electric heating and central air conditioning, plus such amenities as hardwood floors and finished patios.

Pirates Cove is located on the Shrewsbury River, offering both riverfront and inland homes. The shore location offers the advantages of nearby ocean beaches and watersports, yacht clubs, state and county parks, and other cultural and educational facilities. Residents of Monmouth Beach are also able to join the Monmouth Beach Pavilion optionally, which offers docking and club facilities.

All condominium advantages, such as ownership of one's home and a proportional share of the surrounding grounds, common areas, the two on-site swimming pools and tennis courts, are part of Pirates Cove.

Priced from the mid-thirties, Pirates Cove is located in Monmouth Beach off Garden State Parkway exit 117. Head south on Highway 36 to Beach road and then right onto Riverdale avenue

TUDOR STYLE—This portion of The Pennant Club, an apartment community in Jackson Township, is now open for rentals. The entire complex will contain 372 units, including one and two bedroom apartments, with rents ranging from $190 to $270 per month. Total Building Systems, Inc., of Farmingdale, a subsidiary of The Arundel Corp. of Baltimore is developing the complex, located off New Prospect and County Line roads.

THE MONMOUTH is the name of this model home, one of five designs available in the recently-opened Georgetown community in Toms River. The Monmouth, priced at $35,990, includes five bedrooms, two baths, family room, living room, dining room and eat-in kitchen. The garage connects with a workshop and storage area. The price includes range, oven and hood, wood kitchen cabinets, carpeting and built-in vanities. Georgetown, which will include approximately 600 homes, is being developed by Levitt Residential Communities, Inc., a subsidiary of Levitt and Sons, Inc., Lake Success, N.Y.

North Brunswick's new community offers seven good reasons for buying

Hidden Lake, the prestige planned development in North Brunswick, has seven excellent reasons for buying a home there, according to the builders.

Builder Michael Kaplan of Kaplan and Sons Construction Co., says more than 50 homes are occupied already and close to 100 homes are under construction. Buyers will be moving into the community throughout the spring and summer. Many of the buyers have said they purchased because of combinations of these seven reasons.

"The seven most often quoted are the setting, the homes, the neighborhood, the location, the low taxes, the investment potential and the inflation protection factor," explains Kaplan. "The investment potential is obvious. We tell buyers to examine any of our past developments in the area and they will find that, without exception each has enjoyed spectacular appreciation in value."

As for the inflation protection, Kaplan says, buyers would do well to purchase a home now rather than delay because the costs of labor, lumber, interest rates and all the items which combine to make for home ownership are escalating yearly at a phenomenal pace. It is not uncommon for some homes to increase in cost by several thousand dollars in a year just due to the lumber cost increases.

Kaplan and Sons Construction Co. were fortunate, he said, to acquire one of the finest pieces of real estate in Middlesex County. The community is directly opposite the 2,000-acre state park, part of the Six Mile Run Reservoir and on the banks of the Six Mile Run Stream. In addition to this natural preserve of wooded land, Hidden Lake will also have its own 54-acre lake and park surrounded by the homes.

As for the homes themselves, which are priced from $59,000 to $125,000, Kaplan points out that they have up to 4,000 square feet of luxurious space. The Versailles 2-story home, for instance, has a covered front portico, up to five bedrooms and four walk-in closets. Each home in the nine-model lineup will be built on a minimum of one-third acre sites in a cluster pattern. Jacobson, Goldfarb & Tanzman Co., a Perth Amboy real estate organization, is handling the sales.

The location of Hidden Lake is ideal for commuting because it is not far from the New Jersey Turnpike, Route 1 and Route 18, as well as near railroad and bus facilities. The models are on Aaron and Cozzens lanes, just off Route 1 and 27; yet they are hidden in the trees adjacent to the parks.

Taxes are ideal in that with all of its excellent schools, recreational facilities, and government service, the tax rate in North Brunswick is one of the lowest in all of New Jersey.

"So, if you take all of these seven reasons into account, you begin to realize why many potential homebuyers are making their purchases now," said Kaplan. "And the neighborhood is being filled up with professional people—attorneys, physicians, and businessmen—who recognize the present assets of the development and the investment potential."

Models offered at Hidden Lake include the Hampton 2-story colonial, the Granada split-level, the Deville and Edinburgh split-levels, the Fontainebleau bi-level, the Barcelona California-styled ranch, the Carlyle 2-story, the Aberdeen ranch and the Versailles 2-story. Plans are also available for the Maplewood ranch, the Willow split-level, the Chateau colonial, the Heather two-story, the Briarwood Colonial and the Cedarwood two-story.

Positions in realty open

"The opportunity for a well-paid career in real estate sales is wide open, and becoming more attractive every day," according to Gilbert Howland Jr., vice-president of the Union County Multiple Listing Service.

Howland noted that many of the MLS member firms are expanding their sales forces, and "A real estate career offers immediate substantial earnings and potentially higher earnings later on.

Working hours are flexible and there are rarely any layoffs in time of slow business activity, because the need for housing is constant.

MLS member firms are located in Colonia, Clark,

Cranford, Elizabeth, Hillside, Garwood, Linden, Rahway, Roselle, Roselle Park and Union. Headquarters for the Union County Multiple Listing Service is 328 Morris ave., Elizabeth.

Real estate demand up

The demand for real estate investment properties is still gaining momentum, according to Jordan Baris, president of Jordan Baris Inc., New Jersey realtors.

"Our Commercial and Investment departments had one of the strongest first quarters in our history," Baris said, "with steady month-by-month increases. In March alone, the departments wrote contracts for close to a million dollars, for apartment houses and commercial properties in East Orange, Maplewood, Bloomfield and Newark.

"In the present state of the economy," he said, "increasing numbers of investors who have been frightened away from the stock market and who find bank interest rates too low, have apparently discovered real estate as the best answer to their investment needs.

"Property values are constantly rising and the return on commercial properties is better than that in most other forms of investment.

We are expanding the staff of our Commercial Investment Department," Baris said, "to keep pace with the rapid growth in this phase of our business."

Gardens provide convenient homes for retirement life

The F.K.F. Holding Corp., builders of the Gardens of Pleasant Plains retirement community in Toms River, which has nearly reached the "sold-out" mark, evaluates the quick success of the retirement community to "placing the emphasis on the important things in retirement life," from the early planning stages.

"While many other shore area retirement communities are stressing organized social and athletic programs, we realize that the entire shore area is the eastern recreational capital for people of all ages, and we don't feel it necessary to add other facilities which require charging residents more for their monthly maintenance fee or the initial price of their home," a spokesman pointed out. The Gardens does provide a fully-equipped clubhouse, which is owned and operated by the residents.

"Instead, the F.K.F. Holding Corp. in designing The Gardens, has concentrated its efforts on creating a parklike atmosphere and producing convenience homes designed specifically with efficiency retirement life in mind," the spokesman added.

The Gardens, in achieving a residential community with the ecology concept has oaks, 100-year-old hollies, and flowering shrubs. The Gardens includes over 90 acres surrounding homesites.

No through traffic is allowed, and adults, especially from New York and Northern New Jersey areas, find the milder climate and open spaces of the shore agreeable for a retirement home, the builders explain. The homes are available in six distinctive models, each planned to accommodate the senior with roomy design, efficiency in easy care and one-level planning. Prices begin at $22,400 for the one-bedroom Robin model. Approximate monthly expenses begin at $99 for the Robin model.

Innovations of FHA, VA seen helpful

Victor Kostin, executive vice president of Tri-State Mortgage Co., holds an optimistic view about the announced changes by the FHA and VA for 1973.

With the FHA promising that appraisals will be made within 10 working days instead of the four to six weeks it has been taking, with a firm commitment issued within three working days instead of three weeks and compliance inspection in five working days, "certainly a healthy progressive period can be anticipated with more and more buyers taking advantage of the federally funded program," Kostin said.

"During the last six months real estate salespeople have become discouraged over their inability to put a package together with a reasonable period of time," he continued. "Too often a seller would become impatient with the time needed for processing a deal and refuse to list a property for sale to an FHA purchaser. This handicapped a broker; very often a deal could be lost by this delay in processing."

"The VA, too, has amended its program so that now a veteran seller can be released from liability on the sale of his home, provided a purchaser agrees to assume the indemnity obligation to the VA, the loan itself is not in arrears and the purchaser is acceptable to the VA from the income and credit standpoint."

"In addition, the Veterans Administration has extended its mortgage limits to $100,000 and agreed to accept partial guarantees. It is also now possible for a Veteran to finance a second home through the VA."

Kostin said that "all realtors and real estate salespeople should familiarize themselves with these innovations and use them as a selling point. Certainly the advantages cannot be too highly emphasized when by utilizing new financing knowledge and techniques it is possible for a salesperson to substantially increase his income."

Luxury offices leased by WEB

Luxury office space in WEB Associates' Station Plaza II and III on Evergreen place in East Orange has been leased to Safeguard Business Systems of Fort Washington, Pa., and INAC Corporation, a subsidiary of Insurance Company of North America. The announcement was made by WEB vice president Jerome Zeltlen.

Safeguard Business Systems is leasing over 1,000 square feet of space in Station Plaza II. It will be used as sales offices. INAC Corporation is increasing their space in Station Plaza III. John Sheehan, president of the firm, says 2,200 square feet will be used as general offices.

THE IMPRESSIVE ARCHITECTURE and recreational facilities of Coventry Square's Tudor style clubhouse are some of the features drawing young families to the townhouse community located on Kennedy Boulevard off Route 9 in Lakewood.

Seven model homes priced from $21,990 have one to three bedrooms plus sitting room. Sales offices are open daily and weekends from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Townhouse community in Lakewood attracts young families, says builder

Coventry Square, Kaufmann and Broad's townhouse community in Lakewood accents opportunities for leisurely living and recreation centered around a magnificent Tudor style clubhouse.

Under one expansive roof, the clubhouse has a gymnasium, men's and women's saunas and locker rooms, an arts and crafts studio, billiard room, informal recreation room, kitchen, private library, and a "Great Hall" auditorium with a fireplace and beamed ceiling.

Sliding glass doors overlook Coventry Square's Olympic-sized swimming pool, tennis courts, and recreation area. Clubhouse privileges extend exclusively to residents of the community who have purchased one of the seven model homes available. A small monthly fee provides for all upkeep of property and grounds and gives residents more free time to enjoy clubhouse facilities with family and friends.

Homes at Coventry Square are of Tudor or Colonial exterior design with one to three bedrooms plus sitting room priced from $21,990. Financing is attractive, especially to young families, with minimum downpayments of

Prel communities note boom in home sales over weekend

In the New Jersey-New York area, the Prel Corp. sold more than 60 housing units over the Palm Sunday weekend, ranging from single-family homes to townhouse condominiums.

Condominium development in Pomona, N.Y., also showed the popularity of this type of living with 11 weekend sales.

Park in western Warren County added four more families to its list of residents. There were also four sales at Country Club Estates at Atlantic in Tuckerton.

"In fact," noted Jacob Burstin, Prel's president, "Sylvan Glade, our condominium development at Brick Township, was the busiest place on the list, with 16 sales reported for the two days—and we have not yet had a formal opening. Nearby Greenwood Park, also offering townhouse living, sold six units. And our adult-oriented condominium community, Cheesecake II, near Matawan, accounted for three more sales."

The single family house also continued to make a good showing. Seven homes were sold in High Point at Tod Hill, Prel's "prestige" community on Staten Island. Brakeley Prel's new single-family community in Wallkill, N.Y., Silver Lake Park—posted two more sales.

NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION

Williams: Curb ocean dumping

WASHINGTON — U.S. Sen. Harrison A. Williams, Jr., (D-NJ) urged the Environmental Protection Agency to block any ocean dumping that would have an adverse impact on the New Jersey coast. The Senator made his comments in a letter to William D. Ruckelshaus, EPA administrator.

Sen. Williams noted that under the terms of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act — which he helped author — no dumping will be permitted after April 23 without a permit from EPA.

The senator noted that the agency has issued interim regulations for dumping, as required by law for the issuance of permits.

Sen. Williams said that the proposed regulations permit some discretion by the EPA in such matters as the dumping site and the types and amounts of materials which can be disposed of.

He also pointed out that the regulations require an applicant to submit a description of alternative means of disposal and why such means are thought to be inappropriate.

Under terms of the law, final regulations have to be promulgated by Aug. 1.

Bushmen 'peaceful'

Bushmen of Africa's Kalahari Desert never fight each other. Outsiders, who do, are considered short-tempered and unpredictable as lions. The bushmen word "goma," meaning "animal without hoofs," is used for non-bushmen as well as lions.

College to host athletic meet for handicapped youngsters

The Northwest Regional competition in the New Jersey Special Olympics, a combination of the Special Olympics and the New Jersey Tournament of Special Champions, will be held at Montclair State College on Saturday, May 12.

The contests, geared for mentally and physically handicapped youngsters eight years and older, will take place at Montclair State's Panzer Gym complex. Track and field and swimming events are scheduled.

The day-long program begins at 9 a.m. and will be highlighted by a parade featuring the Wayne Hills High School band.

"We expect anywhere from 500 to 1,000 kids will be participating," commented regional director Tim Sullivan. "Our objective is to get exposure for the kids and for this type of program," added the MSC physical education faculty member.

Each person entered in the games must have a sponsor submit an application to the regional director a week in advance of the tournament and anyone can sponsor a child, Sullivan explained.

Sullivan stressed the student involvement angle, adding that the contest will be almost entirely run by students from the physical education, speech and psychology departments. Approximately 80 Montclair State students have volunteered to assist with the games.

The Special Olympics is a national funded program for mentally retarded children and adults established and funded by the Kennedy Foundation. Since the program's inception four years ago, competitions have been held every two years. This will be the first year that Montclair State will host the event.

The Tournament of Special Champions is a new program for the physically handicapped operating on the state level. Those who are orthopedically handicapped (in wheel chairs or on crutches or canes), visually handicapped, or have learning disabilities, will compete in this portion of the games. Each participant is classified according to age, sex, handicap and ability and competes only against those in his or her class.

The events will include the 50-yard dash, 300-yard and mile run, softball throw, standing jump and 440-yard relay in track and field, with events such as the 25-yard and 50-yard freestyle, 25-yard backstroke and 100-yard relay taking place in the pool.

Other regional meets will take place at Glassboro State College, Trenton State College and Veterans Stadium, Bayonne. The first, second and third place winners will compete in the State Meet at Monmouth College, June 23 and 24.

The program, organized by the New Jersey Department of Community Affairs, is designed to "bring the handicapped the opportunities and benefits resulting from self-accomplishment," a spokesman said.

Earnings reported at 72¢ per share by Public Service

Earnings available for common stock of Public Service Electric and Gas Co. for the three months ended March 31, were $31,681,000, or 72 cents per average share compared with $27,660,000 equal to 70 cents per average share in the first three months of last year. Edward R. Eberle, chairman, reported at the company's annual meeting at the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark.

Earnings for the 12-month periods ending March 1973 and March 1972, were $99,107,000 or $2.32 per average share and $96,981,000 or $2.57 per average share, respectively.

Earnings for the 1972 periods have been restated to give effect to the equity method of accounting for earnings and losses of subsidiaries.

"For the rest of 1973 and beyond, PSE&G faces distinctly encouraging prospects, provided timely rate relief is obtained," Eberle said. The company has before the New Jersey Public Utilities Commission a petition for rate relief amounting to $127 million on which hearings now are concluding.

Despite extended delays on construction of major generating facilities, Eberle noted, the company has been able to supply constantly increasing electric needs of its customers and expects to be able to do so this summer.

Park serves as classroom
Pollution crisis to be studied

Students from the Newark State College "Community Coalition" and National Student Association, in conjunction with the Essex County Park Commission will sponsor an "Environmental Weekend," in the City of Newark's Branch Brook Park on Saturday, May 12 and Sunday, May 13.

On May 12, from 12:30 to 8 p.m. several musical groups will appear in concert. According to Alfonso Merola, coordinator of the project, the concert is designed to be an educational experience for young people, with the music serving somewhat like a class bell and the musicians as teachers. He added, "they will 'teach' simply facts on air, water and land, the environmental crisis and ways to combat pollution."

Beginning at noon the following day a series of workshops and actual cleanup operations will be held. Merola noted, "we hope to involve grammar school and pre-high school students in this part of the weekend, and we are planning to award prizes for their environmental work." Later in the day a series of speakers will discuss aspects of the pollution problem and how individuals can help.

The weekend activities are designed to reach different age groups, and to develop environmental awareness. Merola stated further, "The way the topics will be taught, and through the various activities which are planned, the educational "festival" is really an environmental mini-course."

The scheduled events will take place at the Ballantine parkway and Lake street entrance to Branch Brook Park. The organizers of the Environmental Weekend are encouraging those who are planning to participate in any of the programs to use public transportation or bicycles to get to Branch Brook Park and not to use automobiles.

Further information may be obtained from Merola at 289-6667 or 289-5228.

Gov. Cahill proclaims May as 'Lung Awareness Month'

In a proclamation listing May as "Lung Awareness Month in the State of New Jersey," Gov. William T. Cahill this week pointed out that "thousands of New Jersey's citizens have been affected with some form of respiratory disease, and that "in the year 1970, deaths from respiratory disease ranked fourth in New Jersey among the leading causes of death."

Newark Library holds first outdoor book sale

The Newark Public Library will sponsor its first outdoor book sale from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. on Friday, May 11, on the library lawn adjacent to the main building, 5 Washington St.

Several thousand books of all types will be on sale including fiction and non-fiction selections for children and adults, magazines and reference materials. Proceeds from the book sale will go toward the purchase of new materials for the library. In case of rain, the sale will be held on Tuesday, May 15.

Signed at the request of the Tuberculosis-Respiratory Disease Association of New Jersey, the proclamation also urges all individuals to be aware of "the importance and function of the lungs, the types and causes of lung diseases, and the prevention and control of lung diseases."

The proclamation points out that "estimates of the number of Americans suffering in some degree from chronic lung conditions such as bronchitis, emphysema, and similar conditions range from two million up to 14 million." Cigarette smoking and air pollution are mentioned as being linked to chronic and acute lung disease.

The Tuberculosis-Respiratory Disease Associations throughout New Jersey are committed to the prevention and control of lung diseases. In order to achieve this goal, they work toward improvement of the air, elimination of cigarette smoking, eradication of TB, improvement of community health and welfare and the control of respiratory diseases.

Sandman appoints school task force

Republican gubernatorial candidate Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr. Wednesday named a 10-member task force of educators to consult with him in finding solutions to New Jersey's school problems.

Dr. Thomas E. Robinson, president emeritus of Glassboro State College, was appointed to head the task force of teachers, professors, superintendents and principals of schools, college presidents and other educators.

Congressman Sandman said he does not pretend to know all of the answers to many of the State's serious educational problems, but said he can provide the leadership to find him.

He has asked the task force members to give him the benefit of their individual and collective advice and experience on such controversies as financing public schools, busing, local control and academic priorities.

School plans musical to mark anniversary

In honor of the 19th anniversary of the Short Hills Country Day School, students, teachers and parents will present a musical entitled "Recycling" on Wednesday evening, May 9. The program will be held in the school's Besch Auditorium commencing at 7:15 p.m.

The program will highlight the decades from the 1880's to the current era, with presentations in the form of dance and music.

The Frost Valley YMCA is offering teenagers three backpacking programs this summer: the Adirondack Explorers, Wilderness Seekers, and Western Adventurers.

The Adirondack Explorers and Wilderness Seekers will travel to the six million acre Adirondack Forest Preserve. The Western Adventurers will backpack in six National Parks: Rocky Mountain (Colorado), Grand Tetons (Wyoming), Yellowstone (Wyoming), North Cascade (Washington), Mt. Rainier (Washington), and Olympic (Washington).

Ancient art on display

Some 50 ancient objects of art gathered by students of the Newark College of Arts and Sciences of Rutgers University will be displayed at The Newark Museum starting Sunday and continuing to June 3.

The public exhibit titled "Ancient Art in New Jersey Collections" is being sponsored jointly by the art department of NCAS and the Newark Museum—the first such undertaking by the college and the museum.

The pieces were researched and gathered from among several collections in the state by students in two courses at Rutgers—"Art of the Ancient Near East" and "Arts of Greece and Rome."

The collection was gathered under the direction of Paulette M. Torres of Paterson, a senior art history major at NCAS who also supervised the publishing of a catalogue for the exhibit as a senior honors project.

Income Tax Refunds are ready-made savings.

Your income tax refund is ready-made savings—ready to be tucked away as a nice lump-sum payment on tomorrow. It's probably what you've had in mind all along, isn't it? Getting this far without missing the money, and then making sort of a giant step toward whatever it is you're saving for.

One of the easiest ways to make sure you really do it, of course, is to take your refund check and turn it into a Series E Savings Bond. (Or maybe several Savings Bonds!)

Series E Bonds earn 5½% interest, compounded semiannually, when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year). Your money is guaranteed safe—Bonds are replaced free if lost, destroyed or stolen. And, speaking of income tax, you may defer the payment of Federal tax on your E Bond interest until you cash your Bonds or they finally mature. (And the interest is exempt from state and local income taxes!)

So don't miss such an ideal opportunity to add to your savings.

Turn your tax refund check into growing Savings Bonds dollars today. You'll be doing something nice for your future.

Employment in March tops 6.6 million figure

New Jersey's nonfarm wage and salary employment rose seasonally to an estimated 2,676,100 in March, Ronald M. Heymann, commissioner of the N.J. Department of Labor and Industry, announced this week. The March estimate, based on a survey of employers by the department's Division of Planning and Research, was 16,200 higher than a month ago and 72,800 above a year ago.

The increase was somewhat less than usually occurs in March, but this is because layoffs were fewer than normal during January and February. This was reflected in the seasonally adjusted total which dipped by 5,500 in March after rising by 13,300 in February to a record high. Seasonal adjustment is a statistical procedure that eliminates distortions caused by seasonal influences and thus shows the underlying economic trend.

On an unadjusted basis, monthly increases occurred in all the major nonmanufacturing industries and most of the manufacturing industries. As a result, manufacturing employment increased by 3,100 in March and non-manufacturing employment rose by 13,100.

The sharpest monthly increases were in nonmanufacturing. They included a rise of 4,100 in trade, 3,900 in services, and 2,800 in construction. In the manufacturing sector the largest monthly gains were 1,000 in primary metals, 700 in nonelectrical machinery, and 600 in chemicals.

There was an over-the-year increase of 72,800 in the employment total in March as factory employment rose by 9,800 and nonfactory employment by 63,200. The largest increases from a year ago were 18,900 in trade, 13,200 in government, and 12,200 in services.

Both the hours and the earnings of factory production workers rose in March, according to the monthly survey of employers by the division of Planning and Research. The average weekly earnings increased $1.65 to $170.98, reflecting a 24 minute longer workweek.

Highway Authority lists surplus sales, invites public to bid

Used by useful cars and station wagons, office and outdoor machines, garage and shop equipment will be among the attractive articles offered by the New Jersey Highway Authority in its spring surplus sales.

The Highway Authority, which operates the Garden State Parkway and the Garden State Arts Center, announced the sales will start in May and invited the public to participate in the bidding.

Authority Commissioner Harry D. Sussna said that among the major items to be sold to the highest bidders are 1971, 1972 and 1973 sedans, station wagons, air compressors, 30-inch Kut Kwick mowers, gas-driven generators, Lullston rotary mowers, fork-lift trucks, IBM electric typewriters, Royal manual typewriters, adding machines, calculators, office furniture, heating and air conditioning units.

The 1973 cars are specially equipped vehicles that had been used by the Troop E Task Force, special State Police unit that is playing a prominent role in the Authority's effective campaign against drinking drivers and other flagrant violators of motor vehicle regulations. The Task Force cars are changed frequently to enhance their effectiveness in their surveillance of traffic.

Articles offered for sale are those declared surplus when found to have served their useful life for the needs of the Highway Authority and their replacements either have been approved or have been deemed unnecessary for economy or other reasons. Any item designated as surplus is put on sale to the highest qualified bidder.

Sussna pointed out that notices of the sales are sent to local governments in New Jersey, as well as to dealers, contractors and others likely to be interested in submitting quotations to purchase the items. This, however, does not preclude individuals who might be interested, he emphasized.

Items for sale may be seen prior to the dates of the sales. All bids must be on forms available at the Authority's Purchasing Division Office. All bids must be sealed.

For the necessary forms or for other information, Commissioner Sussna said, interested parties should contact Purchasing Supervisor John Cairns at the Highway Authority Administration Building, Garden State Parkway, Woodbridge 07095, or telephone (201) 442-8600 between 8:45 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. weekdays.

The program will feature music of the 20th century. It will include works by Arnold Schoenberg, Joseph Marx, Norman Dello Joio, Mary Howe, Eleanor Remmick Warren, Glad Robinson Youse, Edward MacDowell and Mana-Zucca.

CONCORDE RECORD

A record altitude of 68,000 feet was reached by the French-built Concorde proto-type 001 during test flights in March, according to a recent announcement by the manufacturer.

Labor Department report says state is on threshold of balanced economy

The annual report of the New Jersey Department of Labor and Industry says that the state is on the threshold of a new era of balanced economic development in which the work force will be more fully utilized and rising productivity will make for a better life for all people.

Ronald M. Heymann, commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Labor and Industry, in presenting the report for 1972 to Gov. William T. Cahill, noted that the department is now better equipped to guide and support the upward movement the state's economy is expected to take.

He said that 1972 was a year of building for the future and that the most far reaching step forward was the development and final approval of a major plan of reorganization for the department.

The Department of Labor and Industry is now geared up to be of prime assistance to the working man and to the economy's acceleration in the years ahead," Commissioner Heymann said. "In its responsibility for economic development policies, manpower programs and the protection of workers' welfare, the department is prepared for the forward movement expected in these areas."

Among the major achievements of the Department highlighted in the report are:

An in-depth review, in conjunction with the Governor's Economic Policy Council, of the causes of unemployment in New Jersey. Based on data being compiled, additional programs will be developed in the department which will help mitigate the unemployment problem in this state.

Special employment programs for Vietnam era veterans. Working in cooperation with the Governor's "Jobs for Veterans" Task Force, the department continued its maximum efforts to find decent jobs for returning veterans.

The inauguration of a pilot program for the rehabilitation of alcoholics. The experience being gained from this program will guide the department in the development of comprehensive services for all alcoholics.

Job Bank. This system, which stores all active job openings on file with the agency and distributes a listing of them each workday to all local offices, became operational throughout the entire state in 1972. Coverage areas of the Newark, Paterson and Trenton Job Bank centers were expanded and a Job Bank center serving southern New Jersey was opened in Hammonton.

Stabilization of Unemployment Trust Fund. At the close of 1972, New Jersey's balance of the Unemployment Trust Fund was $128,908,128 compared with $252,183,221 at the end of 1971. Total deposits to the fund were $233,381,588 while interest earnings totaled $9,624,633. Despite the serious drain caused by the high level of unemployment claims, the trust fund has been stabilized by an adjustment of employers' contributions.

Modernization of Workmen's Compensation Procedures. Directives were issued during the year which streamlined procedures in order to improve the system, reduce the backlog of pending cases and correct other inefficiencies. Additional hearing time has been provided and the practice of allowing unnecessary medical testimony in settled cases eliminated. While these changes, within their limitations, have produced good results, it was clear that a study of the system as a whole was necessary.

Governor's Study Commission. Acting on the recommendation of the commissioner, Governor Cahill created the New Jersey Workmen's Compensation Study Commission and appointed to it men who have achieved national recognition in the field. The commission has been directed to complete an analysis of the problems of workmen's compensation and to

Magen David unit to show ambulance

The Suburban Chapter of American Mogen David Adom (Israel's Red Cross), which has helped put into service several mobile cardiac rescue units in the Jerusalem area, will exhibit one of the ambulances tomorrow at the Pathmark in Union.

A unit will be on display Saturday evening at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield, and at other designated stations until May 18. The chapter will also feature an ambulance during their participation in the Springfield and Millburn parades commemorating Israel's 25th anniversary on Sunday.

make legislative and administrative recommendations during 1973. It is anticipated that this will result in a major restructuring of workmen's compensation in New Jersey to the benefit of both worker and employer.

"New Safety and Health Plan. Planning and analytical resources of the department were concentrated on the development of an Occupational Safety and Health State Plan required by new legislation to strengthen the enforcement of health and safety regulations in New Jersey. Through these efforts, New Jersey was able to present to the federal government early in 1972, a comprehensive plan for meeting requirements of the U.S. Occupational Safety and Health Act. The plan is a blueprint for the development and enforcement of improved standards and compliance techniques in New Jersey.

"Administrative Performance. The recommendations of the Governor's Management Survey were accomplished by moving the Wage and Hour Bureau's Wage Collection Section from Newark to Trenton, consolidating these activities within the General Enforcement Section, reducing the number of district supervisors and reassigning field staff for greater efficiency.

STRICTLY PERSONAL

By Pat and Marilyn Davis
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

John and I have been married five years. When we were first married, he was in school and planning on a masters degree in business administration. He would have completed this in two years had he not quit for awhile. He finally started back to school but has changed his major—not once but TWICE.

I am beginning to think he will never quit school. He always takes the summer quarter off and jobs, not even attempting to find a job. I am tired of supporting him. He tells me really knows what he wants now and only has two years to go. However, I doubt him. Should I believe him or not?

Disgusted

Dear Disgusted:

Tell John that like in baseball—three times and you're OUT! And this is his third time.

You have had your share of work and anxiety and are entitled to know what the future holds. If he quits or changes majors again, I would say that he will remain a perpetual student as long as you support him.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I am a 19-year-old student living at home, and I am a little bit pregnant. My pregnancy is barely into the second month, consequently, my parents are unaware of the problem. If they found out about my predicament, they would be completely hysterical.

The real problem is that I have been dating two young men for about a year, and I am not sure which one is the father of the baby. I do know that marriage is not for me at this point in my life. I do not want to put the blame on anyone. Please tell me what to do.

Unwed

Dear Unwed:

There is no such thing as being a little bit pregnant. Go see your doctor at once. Tell him the complete story and he can help you. He has heard it all before so do not be afraid of shocking him.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I have dated the same boy for over a year, and I thought we were going steady. At least, that is the way it was supposed to be. He comes from a nice family and has always said I was the only one.

However, I'm beginning to have my doubts. From what I've learned in school, I think I have venereal disease. I simply cannot tell my parents because they think I'm the greatest and I do not want to hurt them. Can I get treatment without their knowledge?

Confidential to Sad in Tennessee

There is nothing like a determined mother-in-law to cause trouble. Tune her out. I also suggest that you and your husband consult a third party—your clergyman, doctor, or marriage counselor. Good luck.

Dear 16:

Run, don't walk, to your family doctor. VD can be cured, but the earlier the treatment the better. If you cannot face your family doctor, go to the health department in your area. Go at once as this is extremely important.
