Motorists line up to get gasoline for 'hungry' vehicles

As January gas allotments ran out, and motorists found difficulty finding "feeding places" for their hungry vehicles, area gas stations that remained open last week were confronted with unprecedented lines of cars waiting to get the $2 or $3 worth of fuel available to each.

In Mountainside, the longest lines could be found at the borough's two Exxon stations. The Mountain avenue facility had lines, which began forming in the early morning, extending back into Westfield. The station at Rt. 22 and New Providence road was pumping gas in the afternoon, and borough drivers, as well as Rt. 22 travelers, formed waiting lines extending nearly a mile westward on the highway, and blocking off the right eastbound lane entirely.

Another long line could be found at the Rt. 22 Amoco station, near the Springfield line, where borough police ran into difficulty controlling anxious motorists. "They were blocking all the driveways over there," a police spokesman reported. "People couldn't turn off the highway to get to work. We'd send a car over to make them move, but a few minutes later, the driveways would be blocked again. They just didn't want to get out of line.

The spokesman noted police headquarters had been receiving many calls from drivers checking various communities to find out where stations were open. "They just wanted to know if they could get gas," he said. "They didn't even ask how long the lines were."

Along with the drivers' queries, the police also have been getting calls from people irate about the traffic tieups on the highway.

"One woman called here the other afternoon," the police officer noted. "She was furious because she had been stopped on Rt. 22 for nearly an hour, but she didn't realize she was in a gas line. She thought there was an accident at the intersection and the right line was simply full of motorists waiting to turn onto New Providence road."

The officer said problems also were encountered last week with drivers who began to form a line 45 minutes before the highway Exxon station opened for pumping.

"Apparently they started arriving at 2;15 p.m.," he said, "waiting for the station to open at 3. They started pulling into the Echobrook School lot, and by the time school was let out, (Continued on page 6)

The current expense portion of the budget von approval by a margin of nearly two-to-one, 1,125 to 625, carrying Springfield, Kenilworth, Clark, Berkeley Heights and Garwood and losing only in Mountainside. The capital outlay portion of $131,821 did nearly as well, with 1,069 votes in favor and 678 opposed.

With strong and well-organized campaigns for approval in Kenilworth and Garwood, the proposal to construct an additional $450,000 gymnasium at David Brearley Regional High School in Kenilworth was approved by a margin of 860 to 612.

Despite the gasoline shortage and the bitter cold weather on Tuesday, the election drew a relatively large turnout, well above that of last year when the budget was approved, 963 to 694. There are 41,031 registered voters in the district, so that this year's total of 1,714 votes represents less than five percent of those White, who was the only candidate present in board headquarters, won election to the remaining two years of the term vacated last year by Dr. Minor C.K. Jones. White com-mented, "I am appreciative of the support voters showed me by turning out in this cold weather, I am disappointed, however, that none of the budgetary items received majority support in Mountainside.

Gertrude Palmer

Gertrude (Trudy) Palmer, incumbent seeking election to a three-year term on the Mountainside school board, has a favorite quotation which she feels expresses her reasons for wanting to serve the community: Whatever ultimate meaning life may have. this much can be said already-life is a call to share in the world's making. It is a chance to intervene, to contribute, to enhance what exists by the sheer power of one's own presence and $\,\cdot\,$ activity.

"I read this on a church pamphlet recently," Mrs. Palmer explained. "I don't remember to whom it was attributed, but I feel it has particular significance for me. I want to contribute and feel I have made a contribution to the community by my presence on the Board of Education. I have worked hard, spent many, many hours researching and studying, and have attended numerous workshops learning the duties and responsibilities of a board

Mrs. Palmer, who voted against the board's proposed 1974-75 budget, commented, "My stand on the budget will not appeal to the liberal voters who feel we should spend more money, but will probably meet with approval by the more moderate voters who would like to see more restraint on budget spending.

"THE VOTERS must make their own evaluations," she emphasized. "I am not urging anyone to vote for or against the budget. I have voted the only way I could under the circumstances, and I had made this fact known to the board when we worked on the budget.

"I believe that the quality of education cannot be equated with the amount of money spent on education," she continued. "I am willing and have voted to spend top dollar for teachers, in order to give our children the finest education, and to buy good books and equipment. However, there comes a point when someone should call a halt to needless spen-

Citing examples of what she means by that phrase, Mrs. Palmer stated, "We don't need a golf program for our girls in the public school system. This was passed by the board on the recommendation of the superintendent. We don't need to spend money to increase the salary of the superintendent, who is already the highest paid superintendent in the state in a K-8 district. His salary is budgeted at almost $33,000. The average salary in the state (for '72-'73) is $22,751. Also, we have more custodians, Secretaries and teachers than schools of comparable size.

THE PROPOSED 1974-75 school budget has become a major issue in this campaign, with three candidates supporting the figure, and two opposed. Crane is among the former. The keys to this budget are an overall enrollment decline, and the anticipated closing of the Echobrook School," he noted. "I feel the budget represents a sincere effort to compromise the inflationary curve, the fuel crisis and essential plant repairs without quality loss. I characterize this budget as a conservative, lean, almost defensive effort."

Crane did quality his support, noting, "The-savings indicated may be excessive, unrealistic. For instance, under library books there is no increase per pupil, and under textbooks there is a 20-cent per pupil increase. I think the present trend of inflation will require adjustment in these areas.'

However, he emphasized he was not against the budget because of this. "I am simply offering a reaction, a constructive opinion," he

The entire professional staff at Springfield's James Caldwell School last week participated in a creative arts workshop. Al Kochka, director of arts and humanities in the State Department of Education, led the staff through a sequence of visual experiences which left each person with a variety of techniques to use

This workshop was the first of a series of five meetings, led by professional film makers, in the school this year. Early in the year, the State Department of Education notified all elementary districts in the state that funds were available to provide training for classroom teachers in film making and other visual activities. Caldwell School was one of 18 selected from more than 100 applicants.

In order to give sufficient time after school for all the activities of the first workshop, parents volunteered to supervise the children the last half hour of school that day. Teachers had planned specific activities for the children which the parents were able to continue.

Twenty-five mothers and two fathers came to the rescue.

They were Sara Sue Fuller, Gloria Duffy, Janice Guminak, Joan Melkowits, Mary Van Praet, Marianne D'Alessio, Jeanne Natalini, Elaine Cadden, Marie Cook, Jeanetta Schramm, Claire Stecher, Carol Anagnos. Future workshops will involve not only staff but also students from all grade levels. Eventually it is planned that all children will have some type of film making experience. Animation, zoom lens, pixilation, story board, racking the focus and a variety of other terms should soon be a part of their working vocabulary, according to a school spokesman.

Krause defends budget, gives data on other districts

Dr. Irvin Krause, a member of the Mountainside Board of Education, this week released a statement defending the board's proposed 1974-75 budget. It was accompanied by comparative data for other Union County school systems, as submitted by the county superintendent of schools

Krause noted he believes "the relative position of Mountainside's proposed budget with respect to other communities is clearly evident" through the comparison.

"I cannot see how anyone could seriously believe that Mountainside's budget is at all extravagant or frivolous," he stated. 'Responsible citizens should, in fact, begin to question whether Mountainside's expense oudget will indeed cover the costs of operation

"Budgeting is a double-edged responsibility. Certainly, a budget must be as low as possible, but it must also provide for all essential goods and services. Budgeting too little is just as irresponsible as budgeting too much:

"The comparison data indicate that our own budget is sound, lean and undeniably in line with the other communities in Union County.'

Krause submitted two comparative listings. one showing amount and percentage of increase for budget totals, the other for current expense portions only. Mountainside's 1974-75 proposed total is $2,009,902, showing an increase of $27,175 or 1.4 percent. Other budget totals and increases are as follows:

Speth discusses proposed budget, function of board

At a recent coffee at the Mountainside home of Mrs. Karl Heinze, Charles Speth, candidate for the borough Board of Education, stated he did not "equate money with good education." In fact, he noted, money comes fifth in lm-

"First comes the climate of education," Speth said: "Second—the quality and full utilization of the teaching staff; third—the spirit of cooperation; fourth-good

"The time has come when schools must prove their cost effectiveness-awareness of where the money is going—just as any business or enterprise," Speth said. "By eliminating items which waste dollars and have little educational value, and by fuller use of the existing surplus, the tax bite for schools could be reduced at least $150,000, without lowering the quality of education as it now exists."

A 'very good reason' for a complete line by line examination of the budget arises because of the Botter Decision, Speth said, noting the legislature, by Dec. 31, 1974, must enact full state funding of education. July 1, 1975 is the present effective date of the new funding plan still to be determined, he explained, commenting, "It is very doubtful the state will a llot anywhere near the $2,009.90 now the total cost per student per year in Mountainside, including bond obligations."

Speth stated board members "must return to the proper role of policy makers instead of policy approvers." He said he was particularly annoved with the comments on the budget by the superintendent of schools 'directed only to parents through the PTA Newsletter."

"It is not the superintendent's job to sell the budget-a product of his own making," Speth argued. "His role on the budget is the administering of the monies allotted to him by the board after approval by the voters. He is an employee of the board and not the chairman of the board. As an employee he is protected by tenure, but a board member must stand for reelection, if he so chooses, on his performance every three years."

In conclusion, Speth said, as a board member he will try "to influence the board to return to its proper function and reassume control."

White discusses 'surplus,' challenges $200,000 figure

Orville White, chairman of the finance committee of the Mountainside Board of Education, and a candidate for reelection to the board, this week released a statement defending the "surplus," or "appropriation balance," in the proposed 1974-75 budget. His statement, apparently prompted by the lengthy discussion of the surplus at last week's candidates' night, reads as follows:

"There has been much discussion and confusion about the so-called 'surplus' in the proposed 1974-75 Mountainside school budget. I would like to clarify the matter and correct certain impressions left by Mrs. Gertrude Palmer and Mr. R. Charles Speth.

"First, let me begain by defining the subject. The correct termis 'appropriation balance' and not surplus.' Perhaps it could be thought of as a 'rainy day fund,' an 'emergency fund,' or like a savings account in the bank. In our school systems we carry two of these funds-one for current expenses, and the other for capital outlay. Capital outlay covers expenditures for such things as land, buildings, improvement of grounds or built-in equipment. The funds are entirely separate, and money cannot be transferred from one to the other.

"The purpose of the funds—like any savings account-is to provide for unforeseen emergencies. These could include such things as an increase in enrollment beyond our budget estimate, requiring additional teachers; emergency roof repairs, such as occurred this year; higher cost for fuel oil and utilities, especially under the present energy-crisis conditions; need for money to initiate some new educational program, if found desirable. or any of a multitude of possible conditions.

"Now, with this background, let us see where we stand in our school funds. At the close of the 1972-73 budget year, June 30, 1973, we had a current expense appropriation balance of $194,764 and a capital outlay balance of $26,510, lus a debt-service balance of $1, for a total of $221,275. Inasmuch as we have no money in the 1974-75 budget for capital outlay, and since no money can be transferred from capital to current expense, the only appropriation balance which really concerns us is the one of $194,764 for current expense.

"However, this total amount is not available for future emergency use. We have already dedicated $65,000 of it for the current 1973-74 budget. A further $50,000 has been set aside for the 1974-75 budget. It is obvious, therefore, that the only amount available emergencies is: $194,764, less $65,000, less $50,000, leaving a remainder of $79,764. Thus, if we spend budgeted money in this year's and next year's budgets in exactly the amounts allotted, and if revenues are received as now planned, we will end up on June 30, 1975, with an appropriation balance of $79,764. This is already less than the county superintendent's recommendation for a minimum appropriation balance of five percent of the budget, which would be about $90,000.

"Our conclusion, therefore, is that we now have an emergency fund of only $79,764-not $200,000 as Mrs. Palmer and Mr. Speth would lead one to believe. Any unexpected emergency needs would have to come out of this amount.

"It has been proposed by our opposition that we follow the example of Westfield. It is claimed that their 1974-75 budget contains no 'surplus' and that any 'surplus' will be generated from this year's budget. Actually, intersection of Rt. 22 and New Providence road and for contempt. Stephen A. Weiss of Berkelev Heights was fined $30 for careless driving on Park drive.

Driving without his license or registration in his possession brought a $15 penalty to Rodolphe Phanord of Brooklyn. John P. Stelzer of Union paid $20 for driving without a license.

Westfield's 1973-74 budget carried an available appropriation balance of some $95,000, and next year's budget has about $54,000 available. Nevertheless, whatever Westfield elects to do does not necessarily indicate what is best for Mountainside. A budget with a larger increase, such as Westfield's eight percent, has less need for a contingency fund than a budget with a small increase, such as the 1.4 percent of Mountainside, inasmuch as there is less flexibility in the detailed items of the smaller increase. Where a budget has been welltrimmed, as has Mountainside's budget, the need for an emergency reserve is greater. "A review of our school budgets for the past six years shows that we had to dip into the appropriation balance for two years, or one-third of the time. On the average for the six vears, we spent 99 percent of the budgeted amount, and the average appropriation balance has been about $107,000. Our estimated figure of $79,764 for June 30, 1975, therefore, is well below this average, and the purchasing power is much less, due to inflation. "Mrs. Palmer has claimed that $50,000 additional 'surplus' has been generated between July 1 and Dec. 31, 1973. This number is pure speculation. There is no accounting record which shows 'appropriation balance' as of Dec. 31, and no figure has any real significance until all of the revenues, expenditures, etc., are completed at the end of the school budget year on June 30. In viewing next year's budget, we must assume that we have an emergency fund of only $79,764 for current expenses.

"All other members of the current Moun tainside Board of Education who support the 1974-75 budget (Messrs, Lennox, Keating, Krause, Rupp) are in agreement with this explanation of the appropriation balance funds. Mr. George Crane, a candidate for the new school board, is also in complete agreement."

A guide to gauge fuel by degrees

Since fuel oil supply problems developed early in the energy crisis, many people have been asking questions about "heating degree days," according to Dr. Nathan Reiss of the Department of Meteorology at Cook College, Rutgers University.

"Heating degree days are used as a rough gauge of fuel consumption," said Dr. Reiss. "They are defined as the amount by which the average temperature on a given day is below 65 degrees Farenheit."

For example, on a day when the average temperature is 20, there are 45 heating degree days recorded, although only one calendar day is involved. On a day when the average temperature is greater than 65, there are zero heating degree days.

Periodic totals of heating degree days are important for heating oil suppliers who know approximately how much fuel will be used during a certain number of heating degree

For example, if a home oil tank holds enough fuel to last for 1,300 heating degree days, the fuel supplier will adjust his delivery schedule to fit the heating degree day totals, rather than scheduling deliveries every three weeks, whether they're needed sooner or not.

For And About Teenagers

THIS WEEK'S LETTER: I've got a problem and I hope you can help me. There are these three really good looking boys and they all like me-we'reall good friends. Almost every night they come to my back door and ask me if I want to walk around with them and the group (seven boys and four other girls). They are really good people and they never get into trouble, but I don't feel I would be comfortable walking around at night with this group I don't really want to go walking around with them, but I don't want to hurt their feelings. Should I off or just keep saying no?" This group just walks around the block every night. I've asked my mother what she thinks I should do and she says I should try it. She doesn't see anything wrong with it and she knows that all the kids in the group are good kids. What should I do?

OUR REPLY: It sounds to us as if you are just shy about being in this group. If your mother approves (which she does), we think you should at least give it a try. You might just nd up enjoying that nightly walk around the block with the group. And if you don't enjoy it, then you can simply tell them "no" the next

A major breakthrough in the natural gas mission approval for transportation of natural gas discovered by an affiliate company, and the first gas utility in the East to have restrictions lifted on new sales since the nationwide shortage of natural gas developed more than four years ago.

In turning the valve, Gov. Byrne hailed the event as being of "major significance" not only becuase it provides additional supply for Elizabethtown customers but because of the overall beneficial effect it will have for New

The arrival of this additional gas, which was discovered in the Southwest by National Exploration, an affiliate company of Elizabethtown, is the culmination of efforts started four years ago. It was then that National Utilities & Industries was formed as an exempt holding company by action of Elizabethtown shareholders.

National Exploration was quickly organized and in September 1969 drilled its first well in the Texas-Louisiana area. The efforts proved highly successful. Calvin R. Carver, president of National Exploration, said that through September 1973 National Exploration had discovered more than 35 billion cu. ft. of natural gas. To date, 49 producing wells have been drilled.

However, it was not until Dec. 7, 1973, that the PC gave the necessary approval to have some f National Exploration's gas transported to New Jersey, some 17 months after filing the required application. As a result of this approval, Elizabethtown on Jan. 17 applied to the New Jersey Board of Public Utility Commissioners for easing of curtailments in effect on the acceptance of new customers. A week later the PUC granted Elizabethtown's

The PUC ruling makes it possible for Elizabethtown to accept new residential house heat customers, in addition to expanded process uses by industrial and commercial customers.

Increased sales by Elizabethtown will permit the release of some fuel oil which can be used for the generation of electricity and certain very large volume industrial uses. Existing interruptible customers will continue to be served.

The new gas will be transported from Texas to New Jersey by the Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Corp.

The only area which will not benefit from this additional gas will be Sussex County, where the company has approximately 1,700 customers. Natural gas for this area is supplied only by the Gas Pipeline Company. The a not interconnected with the rest of Elizabethtown's system.

Letters To Editor

OPPOSES 'MUNCHKIN LAND'

I've been bombarded by propaganda in the past several weeks from the school superintendent's office, the PTA and the Committee, All are pushing for passage of the school budget, to the point where they seem almost frantic in their efforts. My experience has been that an inferior product always takes much more selling than one which can stand on its own merit.

I for one plan to vote as my conscience dictates, rather than my self-interest. When we have a 33 percent reduction in the number of schools we're going to operate, a huge surplus from past years and a 10 percent reduction in the number of students, I believe the board has a moral obligation to reduce the budget. They owe it to all the taxpayers of Mountainside but particularly those without children in grade school and those having difficulty paying our already excessive taxes.

Contrary to what Dr. Hanigan says, we don't get exactly what we pay for. The fact is we often get less than what we pay for! That's what opposition to the school budget has been mostly about.

The budget has been the issue of the election, but let's consider the individuals and what they may contribute. In the past (before there were women on the board) we had, in my opinion, a club-like atmosphere on the board. The president of the board and the superintendent of schools made the decisions and established policy, and the rest of the board voted yes. They were all friends, knew each other socially and shared an unquestioning admiration for Dr. Levin Hanigan. Everything was happy in Munchkin Land: harmony and cooperation prevailed.

Now the Committee is sponsoring three men who are so much alike that their profiles and statements could be about and written by the same person. All three are personable (I'll vote for one of them) but I don't see that they offer experience or qualities not currently represented on the board by others.

Two of the men have experience with an oil monopoly, where money is plentiful. The third is in real estate, by nature of his work used to dealing with other people's money. Only one of the three have children in our elementary system. As a group I feel they represent "the club." I see in their candidacy harmony, but also complacency and me-too-ism.

Mrs. Trudy Palmer in contrast has a child in Deerfield School, in whose education she is actively and deeply concerned. As a housewife she has run a home on a limited budget, and because of this has learned to seek value for her dollar. She represents a much-needed and vital female point of view. One of the fundamental things we must continue to do is give women a representative voice in the running of our school system and the education of our children. The first vote I'll cast will be for Mrs.

The women have disrupted the status quo of the board. They question, assume opposing points of view, make the men do their homework and refuse to kow-tow. I think it's healthy!

R. Charles Speth is a dark horse as far as I'm concerned. I feel he represents a mature, nononsense segment of our town. No free spender here but an honest concern for the education of our youth.

I look to Mr. Speth to protect us from the faddism and gimmicks which have become so much a part of our school system. Unfortunately education is big business and too much is peddled as being the latest, the newest in-

I believe Mr. Speth will work towards the goal of teaching my children reading, writing, arithmetic and a respect and understanding of this country and what it stands for. Regretfully this hasn't been the goal of the innovators. He gets my second vote.

My third vote will go to the remaining man who shows evidence of knowing what quality education is, in addition to just using the phrase.

community. Others heard of what was going on in this ideal borough, set in the heart of the Watchung Mountains just a few minutes from the hustle and bustle of Newark and New York. Many discerning families took one look at the town, compared it to others in the area, compared the tax rate, saw what the schools were doing and said, "That's what we want," and joined a privileged few who populate Mountainside today.

Ask a specialist in real estate and he'll tell you how important a town's reputation and character are to its property values. Many of the newer Mountainsiders moved here to take advantage of the excellent schools, the library, the recreational program, the proximity to the metropolis and to take their share of the good life. They paid a premium for their houses, recognizing the pay-back in services and a much lower tax rate because of our industrial complex and its obvious tax relief.

For the older citizen, there is the satisfaction that they have put the kids through the years leading to adulthood. They worked for it, they paid for it, and now they are still paying. And some of them are asking, "Is it worth it?"

Belonging to a community is a lot like belonging to a family. Your commitment is long-lasting. You've got an investment in the family and they've got an investment in you.

For the older citizen, is it still worth it? You better believe it. Some of our older people are on a fixed income, or living on interest, and not depending on graduated increases, tenure, or any other guarantee. One thing they do have, though, is a solid investment in their property. But in this rapidly changing society, property values can be as vulnerable as other longterm investments.

One of the most positive ways to retain the real estate values for a town like Mountainside is to show that its citizens support a superior educational system. One of the fastest ways to see those values dive is to have the word get around that we "defeated school budgets for the last three or four years" and see how fast the casual house-seeker avoids paying the Mountainside premium for his home.

Then everybody loses-your property drops in value and the market dries up.

This year, you have a chance to reverse this sickening trend of the past few years. Please study the facts and listen to what the school board candidates are saying. Give the modest '74-'75 budget your support by getting out to vote. Also, vote for candidates Walter H. Rupp, Orville L. White and George G. Crane, who are willing to serve our best interest.

MRS, AND MRS, DONALD L, JEKA 298 Bridle Path

'RUNNING SCARED'

Trudy Palmer and Charles Speth are to be commended for the high plane of their campaign. They have stuck to the issue and true facts. In contrast, the Committee for Concerned Citizens and the PTA have been conducting a most scurrilous whispering campaign against the above candidates. When people resort to this tactic they must be running scared.

The latest shocking use of this telephone campaign is that the PTA has asked the schoolroom mothers to call all parents on their phoning list, urging them to vote for the budget and the three candidates endorsing the budget.

I think the state and national boards of the Parent-Teachers Association should be informed of this misuse of the PTA as a political tool. The president of the PTA is the wife of one of the present board members. I believe she should have resigned her position when her husband became a member of the board.

Incidentally, the winter edition of the PTA newsletter was filled with propaganda for the budget. This was sent home from school with youngsters last week. This issue usually comes out in March! Shame!

NORMAHUBER

I've followed with great interest the positions of each of the candidates for the Board of Education and wish to express publicly my appreciation for the time and effort that each of them has put into his or her candidacy.

It is reassuring to see so many capable and dedicated people sacrifice time away from their families and other demands on their time in the interest of contributing something positive to a better school system and educational program for our children.

The PTA too, did its usual excellent job in sponsoring the annual candidates' night which press a vote of confidence for the Committee for Better Education for their efforts in trying to function as a liaison between the school board and the public. I do think they have done an excellent job in informing Mountainside residents and I hope that they will build on the base that they established these past few months and continue to be viable and enthusiastic throughout this year and in the years

The time has come, however, to make a choice among the candidates. Each candidate does, in fact, have specific strong points and very tenable and convincing arguments for their respective positions, but, in my opinion, I think the essence of any voter's judgment must be based on evaluating the intent or the philosophy of each specific candidate. This I think each Mountainside voter is best qualified to determine for himself and will vote ac-

The single most significant issue, of course, is the passage or defeat of the school budget. It is difficult to know every detail about every item in the budget without spending a great amount of time researching the budget, in a $2,000,000 budget is not unreasonable or exorbitant in these inflationary times, and I shall therefore vote for passage of the budget.

all of the citizens of Mountainside in our vote on Feb. 13, and we must respect the important need to keep costs and taxes as low as possible. but I vote for passage of the budget and encourage continued prudent fiscal management policies in the future and a quality school system to prepare Mountainside children for an increasingly competitive world in the years

In summary, my thanks again to the candidates and interested parties for their time and efforts, and I trust that this election will bring everyone to work together for this most important common cause

> JAMES J. KELLERK 259 Knollcrest rd.

As independent Mountainside residents we would like to express our approval of a citizens' group which has been making a large effort to preserve quality education in our borough by endorsing and publicizing the '74-75 school board budget.

The Committee for Better Education-far from being a "special interest" group, or a divisive force in the community-has worked hard to remind the public of the positive features of Mountainside schools.

It is encouraging to see such a group of people willing to voice objection to the negative forces in our town for the purpose of maintaining and improving quality education for our children at reasonable cost increases. MR. AND MRS. JOHN CONNOLLY

The motorist, Anthony Salzano, 40, was given a summons for operating a vehicle with unsafe tires, following the 6:35 p.m. crash, which occurred in the eastbound lanes near the Echo Park rest area. Police said Salzano complained of possible head and leg injuries, but refused medical attention.

"Our school system is the center of the complex nervous system here in Mountainside, for it represents a collective investment in the future of our children, of our property values and most certainly of our nation," continued. "It is also the site of many cultural, social and recreational activities-for adults and children alike, and is worthy of the attention focused upon it.

"As a highly vital asset to this community, our educational system must, therefore, be selfishly protected and prudently developedpresent and for the future. If it is allowed to weaken or deteriorate as a result of public indifference to the many issues confronting us, or for any other reason, then the cost of restoration will stretch far beyond the monetary area into each of our lives, and in various and subtle ways.

"I am convinced that to keep our system healthy, the quality level of learning, and living, we have here must be sustained, despite ever-increasing contrary pressures—for example, the state-financing plan now under consideration. I further believe this must be accomplished at the lowest reasonable cost levels, through rational and meaningful fiscal management policies. The inflationary spiral is probably with us forever, and to minimize its effects we must all work together, for we are all really benefactors and beneficiaries alike."

Continuing his explanation of his goals, Crane reiterated a statement he made in a recent letter mailed to Mountainside voters: 'A strong school system is the cornerstone of success for our young citizens and our country, as well as our future property values.

"I BELIEVE the educational standards and quality level of learning we now have in Mountainside must be sustained, and improved where possible, and I know that to this end I can contribute effectively." He added, "My wish is to join the team and try to increase its effectiveness. wherever and however I am able.

The smiles were even wider this week, when the group announced it had distributed more than $3,000 to area charitable organizations. Pictured above at the party are, from left: James J. Charities receive $3,110 raised by Bestowers party

The Bestowers distributed $3,110 raised through the group's annual Christmas party at the Mountainside Inn in December.

Jerome M. Rice and James J. Debbie Sr., cochairmen, and Elmer Hoffarth, treasurer, reported that the group raised a total of $4,649.60 from ticket sales, raffle tickets and cash donations. After deducting $1,278.93 for expenses the group was left with $3,370.73 for its charitable donations. A balance of $260.73 will be used for additional charitable donations during 1974, said Rice.

Organizations receiving donations from the Bestowers included:

Mountainside public assistance office, $500; Little Sisters of the Poor, Newark, $510; John Runnels Hospital senior citizens program, $500: Boystown, Kearny, $400; Lift for Learning, Elizabeth, $200; Westfield Day Care

Brakes are cited in Rt. 22 mishap A Newark truck rental firm was charged by Mountainside police with permitting operation of a vehicle with faulty brakes, after one of its tractor trailers was involved in a collision Jan. 30 at the intersection of Rt. 22 and New Providence road.

Police said Emanuel Comito of Newark, operating the trailer leased from CCC Truck Rentals, Inc., was eastbound on the highway at 8:20 a.m. when the truck's brakes failed. The vehicle smashed into the rear of another truck, driven by John Surgeon Jr. of Plainfield, which had been halted for a red light. Police said both vehicles had to be towed from the scene.

According to police, Surgeon escaped injury, but Comito complained of a headache following the crash and was taken to Overlook Hospital by the Mountainside Rescue Squad.

$57,320," she noted, "at a time when we are closing one school, and a decrease in enrollment of 10 percent is expected. True, this is a small reduction in a normal budget, but in a budget that has been inflated for the past four or five years, I say we should have a decrease. In these austere times, when the cost of a loaf of bread is predicted to go to $1 and gasoline prices are already up to 56 cents per gallon, we cannot afford not to cut the fat from the DISCUSSING FURTHER her reasons for opposing the budget, Mrs. Palmer noted, "The easy way would be to endorse the budget and avoid confrontation and animosity that would arise by voting 'no.' However, I cannot in good conscience do this. I have voted in school elections for 25 years, and have voted against the budget only twice. I realize now that it was wrong of me to automatically vote 'yes' on budgets in the name of good education but without any real thought or study.

"Why are we asking the people for more money when we have, at the end of December 1973, a surplus approaching $200,000 or 10 percent?" she queried. "We have no right to use the taxpayers' money for investment. Let's reduce the surplus and return it to the taxpayers in the form of a tax reduction and let them invest their own money the way they see

"Westfield is taking $301,640 out of their June 30, 1973, surplus and has applied it to the '73-'74 she stated. "They are appropriating in their '74-'75 budget $41,443, leaving them with no surplus, except what might be generated in the '73-'74 budget. Westfield's budget is $11,084,193. If they can operate their schools without a surplus, why then cannot Mountainside do the same with a budget that is almost one-sixth the size? How can we justify keeping more than 10 percent?

Mrs. Palmer, who along with Patricia Knodel, has often been in the minority in arguing issues, with the board, reiterated a statement she made at candidates' night, "To those critics who say I have a negative voting record, my actual record is as follows: Out of 180 roll call votes. I cast 'yes' ballots 1.57 times: 'no' votes 26 times. The men, to whom I am forever being compared, voted 'yes' 153 times, no' 28 times. There were also two abstentions.

'TO THOSE CRITICS who say I am antieducation. I point out that I voted against hiring a teacher with less experience at a small salary in favor of hiring someone with long experience at a cost of $5,000 more. I was in favor of a gifted child program, but had to vote 'no' because the board voted to spend money to institute this project. I had attended many workshops where heads of gifted child programs stated emphatically this program could be started at no cost to taxpayers, since the schools already have the needed teachers and equipment.

"In reply to critics who say I am against using audio-visual materials in education, I say this is simply not so. However, I feel we are just too saturated with these items. I've just completed study of an inventory and have been reading research by the N.J. School Boards Association which indicates too many teaching hours have been spent learning to operate all manner of equipment which has little educational value." Mrs. Palmer noted that since Echobrook School will be closed in the fall, its equipment and materials in classrooms and library can be utilized in the other schools to help cut budget costs."

In conclusion, Mrs. Palmer noted. "I feel the board must have a policy of revaluating our entire school system. This is common practice in other schools in the state. It would determine in what areas we are topheavy and in what areas we are weak or strong.

Meder appointed acting president of Union College

Dr. Albert E. Meder Jr. of Westfield, viceprovost of Ruigers University (retired), has been appointed acting president of Union College, effective Feb. 1, by the Board of

Dr. Meder, who will serve until a president is appointed, succeeds Dr. Kenneth W. Iversen of Cranford, who requested last August that he be relieved of the duties of president. Dr. Iversen resumed teaching duties with the start of the spring semester Jan. 25.

A Presidential Search Committee comprised of trustees, faculty, student and alumni representatives is at work under the leadership of Dr. Henry J. Mineur of Cranford, vicechairman of the Board of Trustees.

Dr. Iversen, who has been affiliated with Union College as a teacher and administrator since 1946, was voted the rank of distinguished professor. During the spring semester, he is teaching a credit course (general psychology) and a non-credit course (psychology of personal adjustment) and will counsel new students in the College Success Program.

Dr. Meder, chariman of the Educational Policies Committee of the Board of Trustees. has been a trustee of Union College for 18 years. He was affiliated with Rutgers University as a teacher and administrator for 42 years prior to his retirement in 1968.

"WE APPRECIATE VERY MUCH Dr. Iversen's services and achievements as acting president and president during the past five years," Edward Aborn, chairman of the Board of Trustees, said. "A great deal was accomplished during this period and we are indebted to Dr. Iversen for his foresight and leadership. We are very appreciative, too, of Dr. Meder's willingness to take on these arduous duties on a temporary basis.

Dr. Meder joined the staff of Rutgers University in 1926 and served in various teaching and administrative positions until 1968 when he retired. A graduate of Cranford High School and a long-time resident of Westfield, Dr. Meder was named professor of mathematics at Rutgers in 1943 and was acting dean of Douglass College from 1933-1934. In 1934, he was awarded the Rutgers Medal for Distinguished Service.

Following his retirement from Rutgers, Dr. Meder served for a year as executive associate of the Association of Independent Colleges and Universities in New Jersey, and as director of the Lehigh Eductional Consortium. He is a past chairman of the Commission on Institutions of Higher Education of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools and the National Federation of Regional Accrediting Associations and was co-chairman of the Governor's Committee to Study Community Colleges and Technical Institutes. Dr. Meder earned his bachelor's and master's degrees at Columbia University and was awarded an honorary LL.D. by Fairleigh Dickinson University, and honorary L.H.D.'s by Bloomfield College and Lehigh University.

Dr. Meder served as executive director of the Commission on Mathematics, affiliated with the College Entrance Examination Board, was treasurer of the American Mathematical Society, and is a past president of the Association of Mathematics Teachers of New Technology students placed in industry jobs for field work of New Providence, Mobil Chemical Co.,

Technical Institute, Scotch Plains, the question of whether they will be able to get a job when they graduate in June has already been resolved.

The 10 are enrolled in the two-year associate degree program in chemical technology and they now know that the skills they've acquired are very saleable.

The UCTI program provides for a 10-week, off-campus field project during which students actually work in their chosen profession. And while it will be some five weeks before the field project goes into effect, all of the chemical echnology students have been placed in area chemical and pharmaceutical firms.

"And we could have placed many more students, if we had them," says Harry Sheather of Elizabeth, program coordinator. The need for chemical technologists is critical, he said. So critical that most of our students are receiving full tuition scholarships from chemical and pharmaceutical industries.

The students and the firms at which they will be employed are: Yolanda Skiba of 305 W. 15th st., Linden, CIBA-GEIGY, Summit; Jay Kulinski of 305 E. Grant ave., Roselle Park, American Cyanamid, Linden; Linda Marbach of Rahway, Schering, Union; Charles Pictroski

Also, Gary Dechert of Matawan, Reheis Chemical Co., Berkeley Heights; John Mertz of 30 Tulip court, Kenilworth, ASARCO, South Plainfield; Shabir Bhayani of Plainfield, and Ernest Strother of 928 Hussa st., Linden, Esso Research and Engineering Co., Linden, and William S. Clarke of Irvington, and Paul Tyne of 25 South 24th st., Kenilworth, Celanese Corp.,

The range of duties the students will have include environmental testing of a company's waste products, bench scale chemical preparations, raw materials testing and the use of hydrometallurgical processes in the recovery of copper and other metals.

The average wage these students will be receiving is $3.35 per hour.

Traditionally, Sheather said, students who succeed in their field assignments are offered full-time employment after graduation, although the field project program does not imply a commitment by either the participating firm or the student.

The chemical technology program at UCTI prepares students to assist the development engineers and scientists in bench analytical work. They may also transfer with advanced standing to four-year institutions to complete requirements for a baccalaureate degree.

Easy commuting provides drawing card at the Hill

The current energy crisis highlights the importance of considering public transportation and other services when hunting for a new home, according to Philip Miller, vice-president of High Point Development Corporation, builder of the Hill at High Point, apartment-home and townhouse community off Rt. 9 on Prospect street,

"The excellent bus service between Lakewood and New York City and Newark was an important drawing card at the Hill even before the fuel shortage developed," Miller said, pointing out that two bus companies provide a total of 64 buses each way between Lakewood and New York There are airconditioned express buses ideal' for commuters; local buses make a more leisurely trip. Other considerations which are more important in light of the fuel shorttage, according to Miller, are the community and its convenient services. He pointed out that Lakewood has 330 retail businesses, 30 wholesale businesses, 275 stores organizations. The com-

Community for singles, newlyweds

More than half of the early buyers at Crosswinds, the recently-opened condominium; community off Rt. 9 in Barnegat-are singles or young married couples, according to Joseph Billhimer, marketing director for the developers, the Mayer Corporation

Experience during the first two months of selling at Crosswinds is closely in line with a trend developing nationally, Billhimer said. He noted that young singles are attracted to the freedom and independence of a condominium and, at the same time, they appreciate the opportunity to build equity in a property of their own as a hedge against inflation.

For young marrieds. Billhimer pointed out, the condominium is often a first step-a "home for now"while building equity toward the down payment on a larger single-family home in the future as their family grows.

Billhimer said that both groups are attracted to the recreational facilities of a community like Crosswinds. Maintenance and exterior chores are handled by the homeowners association.

Recreational facilities at Crosswinds are centered in the community's own Swim and Racquet Club and include courts for shuffleboard, basketball and tennis, a large swimming pool and sundecl and a spacious clubhouse with a complete kitchen. It also has a card room and meeting room. Its own private beach is within walking distance.

Tickets for the professional grand opera production will be priced from $2.50 to $7.50 with special consideration for students and senior citizens. Ticket information may be obtained by calling 688-1617 or by writing to Recital-Stage, P.O. Box 25, Union.

"Christmas For The Free," "Candles On The River," "Rosie," "God Gave Rock And Roll To You," "It's Only Money (Parts 1 &2)," and "Losing Hold."

Argent has always been a unique rock group, resisting precise musical categorization with its eclectic blend of sounds. A very good musical band that follows no trends or conforms to any one distinct style, it is poised midway between the cerebral and the heavyfooted, neither arty nor heavy metal. Argent was perhaps most aptly defined as "evocative vet raunchy.

The group's most recent records included the million-selling "Hold Your Head Up" and "God Gave Rock And Roll To You" and the "All Together Now" and "In Deep" albums.

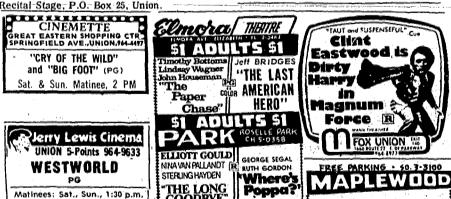

Rod Argent is a perfectionist. The group takes his name because all the members feel that its identity has stemmed from his original purpose. He took piano lessons from age 7 to 12, then continued on his own, fueled by a desire to keep learning and improving. His keyboard playing reveals traces of rock, blues, church choral music, classical orchestral textures and a tasteful sense of dynamics . Recently , Rod has begun to explore the sounds of the mellotron and the moog synthesizer.

A prolific songwriter, Russ Ballard has been a professional musician since he was 16. Three Dog Night had a million seller with his composition "Liar" and many British groups have recorded his material. His earthy guitar is an excellent counterpoint to Rod's soaring organ.

Russ and drummer Robert Henrit have been in several top British groups together, including Adam Faith & The Roulettes and Unit 4 plus 2, where they recorded the hit "Concrete More recently, Russ and Robert backed "Who" vocalist Roger Daltrey on his first solo album.

Argent is a very exciting group in-person and bassist Jim Rodford is especially energetic with his flying leaps onstage. Jim was with the Mike Cotton Sound before he and Rod began the formation of Argent.

'Westworld' held in Union Cinema

The Jerry Lewis Cinema, Five Points, Union, is holding over "Westworld," Metro Goldwyn-Mayer's film satire.

Filmed in color, and directed by Michael Crichton, "Westworld" stars Yul Brynner, Richard Benjamin and James Brolin.

And everybody loves Vivian in 'Everybody Loves Opal'

Many television fans may have loved Vivian Vance when she played Lucille Ball's sidekick, Ethel, in the long-running Lucy series, but everybody loves Vivian Vance in "Everybody Loves Opal" at the Meadowbrook Theater Restaurant in Cedar Grove.

As Opal (a more sympathetic character than Ethel), Miss Vance endears herself to audiences from the moment she appears onstage—as the "going blind," shabby ragpicking junk collector who lives in the outskirts of town, in an unbelievably run-down shack ther living room and kitchen look like the messiest cellar in the world). Her only companion is a huge gray tomcat, with sparkling blue eyes, who earns his living "mousing" through Opal's upstairs rooms, her attic ... and Opal's occasional visitor is a young police officer, who has befriended her, and her tales of folks in town, who have helped her through the years, leave her with a feeling that evil, hardly, ever, exists in any human being.

Playwright John Patrick, who wrote "Everybody Loves Opal," frequently injects cruel sarcastic witticisms in Opal's dialogue, whenever the tragicomic woman praises "the friends who have helped me," but Miss Vance plays those lines down to such a minimum that the satire is lost to the audience.

THE COMEDIENNE'S TIMING is undeniably perfect, and her feeling for comedy, natural and authentic. Miss Vance can well attribute these qualities to her many years on television, working so closely with one of the greatest comediennes of our time-Lucille Ball. She has undoubtedly picked up the 'creme de la creme' of Lucy's expressions, gestures and voice intonations, and it is a credit to Miss Vance (not an obstacle) to have the ability to project these valuable assets in her work.

The story of "Everybody Loves Opal" is oldfashioned, insofar as it is reminiscent of the movie scripts of the 1940s. Three thieves (one of them female-the dumb blonde Judy Hollidaytype), who are hiding out from the police, find shelter in Opal's hospitable welcome to "stay as long as you want." The three, in turn, get Opal to sign a life insurance policy, naming her "friends" as beneficiarles, then they set out to get together over a cup of tea (they do this by placing hot cups of water under any one of the many sagging teaballs attached with clothespins on a wall-to-wall string), their exchanges can make the most veteran actresscomedienne shudder with envy.

Annie McGreevy, the female of the trio, is an attractive, talented shapely young actress, who handles her lines with a professionalism comparable to Miss Vance, When she and Opal

THE SUPPORTING CAST is excellent. There is Richard Buck, as the doctor who examines Opal for the insurance company, whose one scene with her is so hilarious it becomes unforgettable. Then there are the two men of the trio, Taylor Reed, an overweight conniver (and a very funny guy), and Winston May, the alcoholic-sodden, embittered exprofessor, who abhors all living creatures ... and especially women; he is so incorrigible that the good Opal seems to find in everyone, must be sought and plucked out of him with an especially fine needle. Jay Bell, though seen briefly, can be commended for his role as Opal's police-officer friend.

By the end of the third act, the character Opal and the actress, Vivian Vance, are so deeply entangled that they become one and the same. And so, if "Everybody Loves Opal" at the Meadowbrook-can Vivian Vance be too far

The authority recently calculated gasoline usage and travel time on the Parkway compared to parallel roads and found substantial weekly savings on both for commuters who make daily runs between various points in New Jersey. The statistics are in a small pamphlet being handed out by Parkway toll collectors to

For example, the figures show that on a round trip from Montyale to Paramus, the average driver has weekly savings of 4.5 gallons of gasoline and 3 hours and 10 minutes in time. Besides, he avoids 90 intersections.

Between Matawan and Hillside, the weekly savings are 4 gallons plus 4 hours and 50 minutes while avoiding 630 intersections. From Manasquan to Woodbridge and return, the savings equal 3 gallons of gasoline and 3 hours and 40 minutes-without having to contend with 580 intersections. From the Oranges to Passaic and return, the motorists saves 2 gallons and 2 hours and 45 minutes while missing 220 intersections. The counts from the Oranges to Paterson are

3.5 gallons, 4 hours and 10 minutes, plus 300 intersections per week. The pamphlet notes that the comparisons vere made by driving from point to point using the Parkway and the best available alternate parallel roads. Trial runs were made by average drivers using the same vehicles (1973 and 74 Chevrolet Bel Airs.) Drivers stayed within the speed limit as mandated by law and dictated by existing traffic and weather con-

"As there is no alternate means of mass transportation either by rail or bus between the suburbs adjoining the Parkway, many citizens must commute by automobile. We therefore advance this message to inform the motoring public that they can save time and conserve gasoline during the energy crisis by using the Garden State Parkway rather than parallel local roads."

The message to commuters notes that "statistics show that the Garden State Parkway is the safest major toll road in the United States." The Parkway had the best safety record in the nation in 1972 with a traffic fatality rate of 1.7 per 100 million vehicle miles. Traffic deaths in 1973 dipped to a three-year low of 29 as traffic increased, pointing to a rate below 1.7.

Among other advantages in Parkway travel, the pamphlet states: "Parkway patrons have 24-hour services, which include New Jersey State Police protection, emergency road service and restaurant and restroom

Motorists advised to obtain exhaust répair extimates

With the implementation Feb. 1 of auto emission testing by the Division of Motor Vehicles, the State Division of Consumer Affairs this week issued a reminder to all drivers that New Jersey consumer protection measures entitle them to request and receive a detailed, written cost estimate of repairs in advance of any actual work done on the vehicle by a repairman.

Urging motorists to avail themselves of these protection measures, Consumer Affairs Director Millicent Fenwick said the detailed workup on repairs would be needed to evaluate any complaints of possible fraud in connection with servicing to bring a vehicle into compliance with the new exhaust standards.

"While we do not anticipate that this will be a significant problem, " Mrs. Fenwick said, "there is always the possibility that a few unscrupulous repair establishments may try to take advantage of this new vehicle inspection requirement. If the auto owner has paid for the repairs necessary to bring the vehicle into compliance and it still fails reinspection, then there may be legitimate grounds to question the repair work done."

Mrs.Fenwick noted that according to the Department of Environmental Protection and Division of Motor Vehicles, the new emission standards do not require any new or special equipment on a vehicle, just a properly tuned and operating engine.

'However, drivers should be advised that in order to comply with the new emission tests for carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons, a rejected vehicle may need anything from a simple inexpensive carburetor adjustment to a costly major engine tune-up," Mrs. Fenwick said.

Voluntary testing over the past year on more than 4 million cars going through State inspection showed that between 85 percent and 90 percent of all cars can be expected to pass the pollution test. Analysis of repairs needed to bring the failing cars into compliance with emission standards showed an average cost of $30, Mrs. Fenwick said, but the resulting improvement in fuel economy should offset Celadon. Karen.

Teakwood All of which does not mean a new type of 'teflon'' or a girl's name, or a piece of carved wood in your favorite import boutique. It means you are near Chiengmai, 1,023 feet bove sea level, in the northern part of Thailand, some 300 miles north of Bangkok.

And it is worth the trip. "CELADON" is a type of shiny glazed pottery, mostly green, sometimes brown ish, sometimes embossed, that only the villagers of two towns near Chiengmai (Sukothai and Sawank'alok) knew how to make. The secret of its making was lost for centuries, and old celadon, particularly if blue, is mightly rare and only museums seem to have it, But 32 years ago the art was rediscovered by an elderly man in Chiengmai. A Bangkok businessman, nowever, heard of it and joined him. Soon after, they argued and parted. Then the elderly man of the first part started another factory, and now there are two.

So once again, the art of the celadon pottery

One dinner plate in new celadon can cost about $16 to $20; one dinner plate of old celadon, if you can find it, probably $200 to $2,000.

On the other hand, you can get one demitasse set for two dollars! In the new celadon, of

"KAREN" is the name of one of the main tribes of people that live in the north. They are of Tibeto-Burman stock and raise rice, chili and cotton. They show little interest in being assimilated with the Thai people and their hill villages, consisting of 20 to 30 houses with in-teresting thatched or leafed roofing, usually consist of all Karens. The only thing they seem to "catch" from the Thais is the style house they live in near and in Chiengmai. Then their houses are of fairly typical Thai design. THE "TEAKWOOD" is teak in its purest form. Forests and forests of it with little 600pound elephants sloshing around the fallen where the elephant is smaller, the African and others being larger. A male cost about $2,000 and a female $1,600, (but then it is the male that has the ivory "jewelry.") The 600-pound figure is the exception and is for a large male. Mostly they are smaller. Maybe only 500 pounds? Anyway, they are worked heavily from age 15 to 40 years, lightly after 40 and retired at 60.

Sounds rather familiar.

For every tree the Thai people take down, they plant two more, and that is good. At least it is better than nothing, because for one glorious 100-year old teak tree—they get only $25.

At any rate, the forest is big and beautiful and silent and dense, with a mood of oriental mystery about it that is nice to feel. It is a special joy to walk in it:

Particularly in the rain. That is the way I saw it, and it was splendid. Damp, wet elephants, however, are not particularly splendid to climb up on for a quick ride, which visitors are invited to do. Dry ones

The silver, 90 percent silver and 10 percent copper, has a special look too, and is hand-crafted and hammered into wonderful chunky bowls, vases, boxes, earrings, buckles, etc., and it is not too expensive.

THE SILK IS A GOOD BUY also, and no wonder. Listen: Not far from Chiengmai is Lamphun, noted for being Thailand's oldest town, but more noted for its beautiful silk, cotton AND women. In Lamphun as well as in Chiengmai, there are quite a number of silk "factories," all privately owned. No government ownership here. A great many looms are in homes, also, so a great deal of silk and cotton is loomed in the area.

But the WAY of it, is something.

I say "factories" in quotes because they are not really factories as we know them. They are haphazard, usually mushrooming behind some garage or shop or some large-ish front of some kind. They are not especially fitted for working. There is no air-conditioning, heat, special lighting or coffee makers. (Excuse me, in Thailand it would be tea.) Not even as much as a water fountain. The one we saw had six looms and that was it.

The girls at the looms work eight hours a day, even days a week, and make—one dollar per day.

They get one week off per year at the em-

"Do A Good Turn Daily... THE SLOGAN THAT WORKS

It works because practice makes perfect and daily means every day. Boy Scouts get into the habit of looking for ways to help others, until the habit of helpfulness becomes a way of life. The boy grows into a man who cares...and shows it!

The best part about a good turn is that it's good for the boy. He feels better about himself because he can help other people. He learns he can really make a difference in shaping a better world. He doesn't stop at one a day. He's always finding new ways to do good...and doing them for his fellow men.

Regional beaten by Summit, plays at Madison tomorrow

The Jonathan Dayton Regional Bulldogs dropped a tough 74-59 decision to the Summit Hilltoppers last Friday night at Summit despite an exceptional performance by senior forward Howie Drew, Dayton will visit the Madison Dodgers tomorrow night and will attempt to avenge an earlier defeat at West Orange Feb.

Drew who led all scorers with 26 points. was the dominant force on the court last Friday. He hit on every kind of shot--jumpers, taps, spinning hooks and dazzling drives Unfortunately for the Bulldogs, Drew got into foul trouble early, picking up his fourth personal on a questionable charging call with two minutes remaining in the first half.

When Drew left the lineup, the Bulldogs were in front, 29-23, and seemed on the verge of breaking the game open. Drew remained on the bench for the remainder of the first half and the first three minutes of the third quarter. In that five minute span. Summit outscored Dayton . a 15-2 binge to take a 38-31 lead after. After a Bill Palazzi jumper, scored 8 more for a commanding 46-33 lead.

The first half was, for the most part, an even contest with Summit once forging a 21-18 lead. The Bulldogs scored the next 11 points for a 29-21 lead with Drew tallying six points. It was Dayton's largest lead of the game.

With Drew out of the game, Dayton tried to work the ball in to Joe Pene, the team's leading scorer. However, the tight Summit zone closed

Dayton to enter 4 track events in State Relays

The Jonathan Dayton High School indoor track team, sporting a 2-0 record, will travel to Berkeley Heights this afternoon and will compete in four events in the State Relay Championships at Jersey City Feb. 16.

Dayton will compete in the State 240 high hurdle relay with Jeff Spolarich, Tim McCormick, Bruce Blumenfeld and Bruce Heide teaming up. Emmett Rueda, McCormick. Spolarich and Blumenfeld will run in the 880-vard relays.

In the two-mile relay, participants will be chosen from among Tom Lovett, Skip Moore, Joe Campanelli, Ben Geltzeiler and Tom Erhardt.

The mile relay team of Rueda, Geltzeiler, McCormick and Spolarich will also compete. On Feb. 23, Dayton will compete in the group championships, also at Jersey City. The favorites include Memorial (WNY), Monmouth Regional and New Milford. Competitors will include Spolarich, Blumenfeld, McCormick, Rueda, Lovett, Campanelli, Moore, Geltzeiler and Heide. Any finishing in the top five will be eligible to compete in the Meet of Champions from the outside. Unfortunately, nobody was sharp and Dayton gradually fell behind. The third quarter was a particularly poor one for Dayton, which was outscored 25-10 after leading, 31-30, at the half.

Drew's 26 points were all from the field; he hit on 13 of 19 attempts. Bill Palazzi scored 12 points. Pepe, double-teamed every time he got the ball, scored nine, Ken Conte six, Gavin Widom four and Steve Brumer two.

Summit had balanced scoring with four of the led the Hilltoppers with 18, Willie Wilson and George Gross 16 apiece, John Foushee 11 and Bob Kimbrough nine.

Dayton shot 28 for 63 from the field with Summit going 32 for 69. However, Summit's shooting in the first half was poor, 13 for 37, when Drew was able to play aggressively on defense. In the second half Drew had to play more carefully and it showed-Summit hit 19 of

Nettes beat Millburn, 30-20; impressive in loss to Caldwell

The Springfield Nettes, seventh and eighth grade girls' basketball team, gained their first victory of the season, defeating Millburn, 30-20, at the losers' court. Millburn took the lead on two opening baskets, but the Nettes came back to gain an 8-4 advantage at the quarter and built it to a 17-8 halftime lead.

For the first time in four games, the Springfield girls utilized a full-court zone press and it disrupted the Millers' offense and forced a number of turnovers

The Nettes lost their offensive momentum in the third quarter, scoring but two points, but their defensive play limited Millburn to two baskets for a 19-12 third-period lead.

In the final period, the Nettes scored 11 points, their high for a quarter this season, to lock up the victory without difficulty. The key to the victory was the defense, coupled with a balanced attack. Ellen Stieve again led in scoring with eight points. Moira Halpin had seven, three of four from the foul line, while Lori Gabay added five. Barbara Calamusa, Liz. Franklin, Randi Kessler, Barbara Martino and Michelle Gan each had a field goal. Laney Schiller and Debbie Scelfo failed to score, but did fine rebounding work on both boards. Sue Bromberg turned in a good defensive job when Springfield used the press.

THREE DAYS LATER, the Nettes journeyed to Caldwell, where they dropped a 44-36 decision despite playing their best game of the year. Stieve hit the opening basket of the game but Caldwell then moved in front and took a 10-6 lead at the quarter. Caldwell led midway through the second quarter, 17-12. At this point Stieve had accounted for all of Springfield's points-on six field goals. Then the rest of the Nettes' offense came to life. Franklin hit two jumpshots and Halpin tallied from the side to put the Nettes in the lead. A Caldwell free throw tied the game, but Martino sank a onehander from the corner just before the buzzer to give Springfield a 20-18 halftime advantage.

In the third quarter, Caldwell adjusted its defense; they shut off the Nettes from the basket and managed to steal a number of passes which they converted into fast-break baskets. Caldwell raced to a third-quarter 32-22 lead, outscoring Springfield, 14-2, with Gan's two-pointer the only score. The absence of Stieve during this quarter, because of four personal fouls, hampered the offense.

At the start of the final stanza, Caldwell moved even farther ahead before Springfield went to its zone press, which paid immediate dividends. During the Nettes' rally, Halpin accounted for seven points and Stieve five. Bromberg and Liz Franklin also had baskets during the final quarter.

Stieve gain paced the club in scoring, this time with 17, while Halpin had nine. Kessler and Calamusa directed the Nettes' attack from the point position, and Barbara also contributed strong ball-hawking in the Springfield press Schiller was stre g on defense, blocking shots and rebounding as well as feeding a couple of pinpoint passes for assists, on offense. Scelfo and Dana Karp also contributed, particularly on defense

Saturday, the club travels to Verona; next week the team will host Millburn at the Gaudineer School

PSE&G allocates 300G for study of wastes as fuel

Public Service Electric and Gas Co. has committed $300,000 to determine the feasibility of using a fuel prepared from municipal refuse mixed with coal or oil in electric power

PSE&G said present studies indicate prepared waste could replace from 10 to 20 percent of the fuel required for a 145,000 kilowatt unit at its Kearny Generating Station. The studies are part of an overall program to determine the feasibility of utilizing prepared municipal solid waste in electric generation.

Several systems under development reduce the size of raw refuse, separate the heavy noncombustibles and recover metals and other material for recycling. The light portion of the refuse can be used as a fuel. PSE&G is discussing with waste reduction system developers the use of this light part of the waste as a boiler fuel. The testing program at Kearny will determine what mixes of refuse and oil or coal can be fired. Long-term testing will ascertain if there are any adverse effects on the operation and maintenance of boiler and auxiliary equipment in using refuse as a supplemental PSE&G is cooperating with governmental units, including the State Department of Environmental Protection, the Hackensack Meadowlands Development Commission and a number of counties and municipalities in its service area, in efforts to solve the current olid waste problem.

The company also is cooperating with equipment suppliers, including Americology nc.; Combustion Equipment Associates, and Combustion Engineering.

PSE&G emphasized that its efforts in solving he problem must not reduce the quality of its xisting electric and gas operations or impose inancial burdens on the company.

If suitable equipment can be developed, SE&G expects a more effective solution to vaste disposal in power generation can come rom conversion of waste into a clean liquid or aseous fuel that could replace oil and coal and e burned in existing equipment. The company as started a research study of these systems nder development to detérmine which it hould consider supporting. When this quipment becomes available it could be ambined with solid fuel systems now being

It's familiar. It's unique. It's ordinary. It's sophisticated. It's expensive, but it's cheap to

It's the reliable coin telephone, a convenient service provided for a demanding population on the move. For more than seven million New Jerseyans and for the hundreds of thousands of resort visitors and transients, it's a communications necessity. "Most people take pay telephones for anted," said William F. Coyle, public telephone supervisor for New Jersey Bell Telphone Co. "Few of them realize that when they drop their dime in the slot, they are using an extremely complex and costly service." There are some 72,000 coin-operated telephones in the Garden State, approximately one for every 100 residents. More than 47,000 are in booths to which the public has ready access, while the others are in semi-public locations at industrial plants or businesses.

"Coin telephones are high-cost items and require a higher proportionate expenditure to operate and maintain than residence and business phones," Coyle added.

A typical residence telephone set costs about $15. The single slot coin telephone set that predominates in New Jersey runs 20 times as much and often is installed in a booth that may cost nearly $500.

"What most people don't realize is a largeproportion of calls placed on a coin telephone requires the assistance of an operator," Coyle pointed out. This means higher costs on all but a local 10-cent call.

More than 70 collectors are involved in New Jersey Bell's public telephone operation. They fan out daily throughout the state to pick up coins, nearly nine tons a day, and haul them to collection points for "recycling."

This allows customers to dial an operator (0) to reach police, fire or other emergency service from a coin phone without first depositing a dime. About 25 percent of the pay phones now have Dial-Tone-First service. By 1980, Coyle estimates, all coin phones will be brought into the program, which provide the public with the best service at the lowest possible cost.

making sure we are providing the kind of service the public demands is no easy task," Coyle said. "We rely on our collectors to tell us if booths are dirty or if repair or replacement is needed. But, we also urge the public we are serving to help by reporting what they find. They can do this by calling any operator (0) and telling the operator what the problem is."

"We are trying to provide the best coin telephone service available," Coyle concluded.

COMPUTERIZED MEDICINE — Michelle Greco, a medical technologist at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center, is shown in the laboratory measuring the sensitivity of an infectious organism to various antibiotics. This information is then analyzed by computer and interpreted by Dr. Carlos Bolano, director of microbiology, who is shown with the latest computer report. The results from this computerized microbiology reporting system can prove helpful to patients, physicians, pharmacists and laboratory personnel.

Computer at Beth Israel helps prescribe drugs

The day is not far off when computers may prescribe the medication a patient will receive during a hospital stay. One such computer is already helping physicians at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center choose the most effective antibiotics to combat infections. This is made possible by computerized microbiology reporting and its simplicity explains its suc

Laboratory technicians and medical technologists isolate cultures of bacteria taken from the site of an infection and perform routine tests to identify the organism and to judge its resistance or susceptibility to various antibiotics. Their findings are noted on cards which are then analyzed, sorted and compiled by the computer. A scanning type computer is used and clerical personnel simply indicate the results with pencil marks, eliminating the need for a keypunching operation.

Monthly reports follow, listing all infections (identified by type, body site and Medical Center area) with incidence and sensitivity patterns for each organism. From this information Dr. Carlos Bolano, director of microbiology, is able to determine which antibiotics are most likely to be successful against certain bacteria. The percentage of organisms resistant to certain antibiotics may vary widely with time and place so it is tremendously useful to the physician to have available current local susceptibility patterns. The patient gains the most from computerized microbiology reporting since his health and recovery from infection depend for a great part on the effectiveness of the chosen antibiotic. Dr. Bolano claims the reporting process acts as an early warning system by indicating infection-trends-before they become serious. enabling physicians and staff to "nip in the bud" any potential epidemic. Documented incidence reports for different areas of the medical center are also useful in the infection surveillance officer and members of the infectious disease committee who are responsible for investigating any problem areas.

Use of the most recent incidence and sensitivity figures by laboratory personnel also serves as a form of quality control. With current infection trends fresh in their minds. technicians are more alert to new antibiotic resistant strains of bacteria and for possible

"If it doesn't look right and compare with the computer data," states Dr. Bolano, "the technician repeats the procedure. This guarantees against human error and resolves any doubts he may have about a new resistant strain of bacteria."

Improved quality control in the laboratory insures more accurate test results for use by the physician in diagnoses and in treatment of patients. The entire process makes the laboratory more useful to the patient, the physician and the medical center as a whole

Computerized microbiology reporting will provide physicians and laboratory personnel with a new vantage point from which to view the microbiological activity of the medical center. The value of this perspective will best be seen in the resultant improvement in monitoring and controlling infection within the

Dear Barb:

Inasmuch as you have a good understanding with your mother, why not tell exactly how you feel? You may discover that she will be only too happy to know that dressing and acting like a teen really isn't the way to relate to a young daughter.

build the bridge now.

Dear Pat and Marilyn: I've found out the hard way that nine guys out of ten can't keep their mouths shut. I'm only 16 and my reputation isn't the greatest. I've made mistakes and my friends tell me everyone knows my past

The problem is that I have changed. I no longer go in for heavy necking and all that follows. How can I get the new me across to others?

Changed Dear Changed:

You've learned from your mistake. Congratulations! It may take a little time to prove that you mean what you say, but consistently good behavior will soon prove your point. You're on the right track, don't be derailed.

If you have a question, write: Pat and Marilyn Davis, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.
