ABBIE BEN-ARI

Diplomat to speak for Israel Bonds at May 5 event

Hal Dennis, chairman of the Israel cabaret and testimonial in honor of Lou Meyerowitz on Sunday evening, May 5, at Temple Beth Ahm, Springfield, has announced that Abbie Ben-Ari will represent the State of Israel at this event. Ben-Ari who until recently served as executive vice-president of Israel Communications in Jerusalem, has also held a number of key diplomatic posts. As a spokesman for the Israel foreign service, he has carried out special missions as an adviser to developing countries around the world.

Other Israeli government assignments have taken Ben-Ari to the United Nations, Europe and the United States as his country's representative on various international bodies and at major conferences. He has also lectured at universities and other institutions throughout Europe and North America.

Born in Johannesburg, South Africa, Ben-Ari moved to Israel in 1952 and lived on a kibbutz (cooperative settlement) for eight years. He then settled in Kiryat Gat, a new development town in the Negev desert. He was a member of the town's municipal council and one of the planners for the establishment of this and other new Negev communities.

Ben-Ari resides in Jerusalem where he serves as an adviser to the municipality in its international relations. He is an authority in mass communications and a consultant in this field to various government ministries and institutions.

Martin Shindler and Arthur Falkin are honorary testimonial chairmen of this Israel Bond event, which will begin with champagne cocktails at 7 p.m. Admission will be free. Entertainment will be by stage and television star Phil Foster.

Short Hills man, 'revoked' driver, draws $315 fine

A Short Hills man, fined $315 for driving while his license was revoked, was among 13 persons whose motor vehicle cases were heard by Judge Joseph A. Horowitz at Monday's session of Springfield Municipal Court.

The motorist, Alexander J. Kopik, had received his summons on Morris avenue. In another case, a $215 penalty was levied against Gary L. Kent of New Providence for driving while his registration was revoked. He had been ticketed on Rt. 22.

Exceeding the 25 mph speed limit on Shunpike road resulted in fines for three drivers: Walter S. Swirsky of Murray Hill, $30 for driving 44 mph; John E. Dreyer of Fanwood, $35 for 48 mph, and Antonio DeVita of Berkeley Heights, $35 for 49 mph. Helen S. Loeb of Summit paid $35 for speeding 47 mph in a 25-mile zone on Milltown road.

A $65 fine was levied against Nicholas Badida of Mountainide for leaving the scene of an accident. Charles Ashman of 72 Warwick circle, Springfield, paid $35 for careless driving on Mountain avenue.

Allowing an unlicensed driver to operate a minibike brought a $25 penalty to Eva Riccardi of 15 Greenhill rd., Springfield. Francis L. Benson Jr. of Parsippany paid $30 for failure to make repairs on the auto he was operating on Shunpike road. Driving a vehicle with a faulty muffler on Morris avenue resulted in a $35 fine for Rosco Roberts of Newark.

Edward Hastie of South Orange was fined $10 and Gloria A. McNair of Passaic $20 for driving unregistered vehicles. In addition, Ms. McNair paid $20 for being an unlicensed driver. She had been ticketed on Rt. 22; Hastie on Mountain avenue.

Haberman named on graduation list

Eugene C. Haberman of 148 Shunpike rd., Springfield, is among 278 candidates for graduation at Carroll College, Waukesha, Wis., May 19.

The Class of 1974 represent the largest graduating class in the history of Carroll College, the oldest college in Wisconsin, founded in 1846.

Commencement exercises are scheduled for 2:15 p.m. on May 19 in the Van Male Fieldhouse on the Carroll campus. The baccalaureate worship service will be held in Shattuck Auditorium. Carroll College is a four-year, coed, liberal arts college.

Summit Y plans tour of mansions

Next Thursday, May 2, is the date for a guided tour of several private rooms of the Philadelphia Museum of Art and two of the Fairmount Park mansions. A chartered bus will leave the Summit YWCA parking lot at 8:45 a.m. and return at 5:15 p.m.

Sandy Brown of Summit, a member of the Society of Architectural Historians, will lead the group through Strawberry and Woodford mansions and discuss the many architectural features to be seen. Only a limited number of spaces are left on the bus. Those interested may call the YWCA, 273-4242, for fees and further information.

MARKET TOPICS — Donald Ian (center) of Springfield, executive secretary to Gov. Brendan T. Byrne, talks with (left) New Jersey Food Council president Thomas Infusino, (also president of the Wakefern Corp. and of Nutley Park Shop-Rite) and N.J. ### Frank, Weinberger works on display at temple show

Helen Frank and Myra Weinberger, Springfield residents, will exhibit their work at the fourth annual art show and sale of Temple Sha'arey Shalom, S. Springfield avenue and Shunpike road, Springfield Saturday from 8:30 to 11 p.m., Sunday from noon to 10 p.m., and Monday from 1 to 9 p.m.

More than 60 artists from the New York-New Jersey-Pennsylvania area will be represented by their original works of art, which includes oils, watercolors, acrylics, collages, graphics, etchings and enamels.

Patrons have been invited to a cocktail party and preview on Saturday evening to meet many of the artists and receive signed limited edition serigraphs as mementos of the occasion. On Sunday and Monday the show will be open to the general public for $1 admission.

Mrs. Frank studied at Yale University.

Cooper Union and the Art Students League. She has exhibited nationally in the National Academy Galleries, Gallery of Modern Art, and has won the Fine Arts Award, Highgate Prize and Westfield Art Association Langnickel Award. Her work is in the private collections of John Lindsay, Rudolph Bing, and in the UNICEF calendar of 1969.

Mrs. Weinberger studied at and is a member of the Summit Art Center. She has won third prize at the Wyoming County, Pa., art show and concentrates on pen and ink drawings.

Refreshments will be served during the show in a "petit cafe," and lunches on Sunday and Monday have been scheduled from noon to 2 p.m.

Art students of the Springfield schools and senior citizen groups will be guests of the temple during the show.

2-man show of collages and photos

A two-man show opening this Sunday at the Summit Art Center features two divergent media and moods. "Marvin Goldstein's free-wheeling constructions are large, forthright and require distance for viewing. Richard Kyle's photographic prints are technically brilliant and more introspective," a spokesman stated.

The public has been invited to the opening on Sunday from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. to meet the artists and to "enjoy the diversity in the exhibit."

Goldstein is showing a dozen oversized collage constructions. The works are first cut, overlaid, arranged and tacked on a wall. Then a plywood frame is cut to the external shape of the collage, and the paper is applied to the wood. When finished, they are large (some 9 x 12 feet), unframed, flat wall-hangings.

Kyle's photographic images are more intimate in their relationship with the viewer. (The larger are 12 x 16 inches.) The framed prints range from abstract to representational, from textual statements to photographic essays, as in his studies of an old barn.

Kyle is showing primarily two techniques. Some of his photographic prints are black and white, standard silver images; but others, also printed from black and white negatives, are in color. Made in several steps using the old process of gum printing, the latter are suggestive of silkscreen prints.

Kyle, a resident of Montclair, is an instructor of both jewelry and photography at Montclair State College. He has exhibited widely, most recently in group shows at the Underground Gallery in New York, Montclair's Gallery One and a photographic exhibit which is travelling across New Jersey.

Goldstein is an assistant professor of fine arts at the Madison campus of Fairleigh Dickinson University. He travelled extensively while on Fulbright and Ford Foundation grants, and currently has his studio in Chatham. This fall, his work will be in Wroclaw, Poland, at an international exhibit, and also in an exhibit sponsored by the American International Sculptors Symposium at the City University Graduate Center.

Both Kyle and Goldstein have been instructors at the Summit Art Center for several years. Most of their works in the show are for sale.

After Sunday's opening, the show will run through May 19. Gallery hours are 3-5 p.m. Sundays and 2-4 p.m. daily at the Summit Art Center (273-9121), 68 Elm St., Summit.

FRIDAY DEADLINE: All items other than spot news should be in our office by noon on Friday.

Health board sets free screenings for hypertension

Blood pressure will be screened free of charge at the Summit and Elizabeth Trust Co., 367 Springfield ave., Summit, next Thursday evening, May 2, from 6 to 8 and Friday, May 3, from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m.

Dr. Henry Birne, regional health officer, stated: "It is important to know your blood pressure so that early action may be taken against one of the major causes of death in the United States. Hypertension is the leading cause of strokes, congestive heart failure and kidney failure, and is a major factor in coronary artery disease. Many people with high blood pressure (hypertension) do not know that they have it. A simple standard test will determine if it is there, so that you may follow up with your physician or medical facility on a relatively simple treatment."

Adolescents through senior citizens are eligible for the tests. The program is sponsored by the Summit Regional Board of Health, which includes Springfield, in cooperation with Ciba-Geigy Pharmaceutical Co. and the American Heart Association. Readers may call the Summit Board of Health for further details at 277-6464.

The time has come for a car engineered to have sensible size, reasonable weight, good mileage and safety. The Mercedes-Benz.

For some automobile manufacturers, a car with all of these qualities is years away. Every Mercedes-Benz sedan in our showroom has them right now.

An example is the 450SE Sedan. It's smaller than America's best selling sedan outside, but inside, big car room.

Gas mileage? Up to 25% better than any domestic luxury sedan. Come in, let us show you why. Then try one for yourself. You'll know that now when everyone needs efficiency in an automobile, Mercedes-Benz has it.

You Don't Know Your APR
(Annual Percentage Rate)
You Don't Know What You're Really Paying For Your Loan!

WHAT IS APR? It's the Annual Percentage Rate. When you know the APR you know exactly how much interest you're paying on your loan. If you don't know the APR, you could be in for an unpleasant surprise.

HOW CAN I FIND OUT WHAT MY APR IS? The law requires that you be told your APR when you borrow money or apply for credit. Be sure to ask when you borrow money for anything. "What is the APR on my new car loan?" Or home improvement loan. Or furniture or appliance loan.

IS APR THE SAME WHEN YOU WANT YOUR CREDIT EXTENDED? No it isn't. On a direct loan banks in New Jersey may have an APR up to a maximum of 11.43%. For new cars, New Jersey Dealers may have an APR up to a maximum of 12.75%.

The National Bank of New Jersey Has a Low, Low

On New Car & Home Improvement Loans

Department stores may have an APR up to a maximum of 18%.

HOW CAN I FIND THE LOWEST APR? You can shop for your loan the same way you shopped for your car, or washer/dryer or color-TV. But, before you sign, call the financial advisers at The National Bank of New Jersey. It's wise to compare.

A SUGGESTION: At The National Bank of New Jersey we suggest that you BUY your car, furniture or home improvement where you get the best deal... but BORROW from The National Bank of New Jersey where you get the best deal on your loan.

ONLY COMMON SENSE, ISN'T IT? It's only common sense to save dollars and APR is where you save when you borrow.

Luncheon to be held May 3 to observe Fellowship Day

May Fellowship Day will be celebrated by Westfield Area churchwomen next Friday, May 3, at 12:30 p.m. with a luncheon at the First United Methodist Church, 1 E. Broad St., Westfield.

This will mark the 42nd year that women across the country have met on the first Friday of May to emphasize the creative relationships that are possible among people in every community. The theme chosen for this year is "Explore New Paths."

Church Women United, sponsor of May Fellowship Day, is a national movement of Protestant, Roman Catholic and Orthodox women who wish to express the ecumenical dimension of their faith "by working within local units in shaping new social patterns that will assure a fuller life for all people."

Mrs. James F. Crosby, celebrations chairman, has announced that the Rev. Orrin T. Hardgrove will be the speaker. His topic will be "Christian Responsibility for Prison Reform."

Other participants in this May observance will be the Rev. Clark W. Hunt, First United Methodist Church, who will give the invocation; Mrs. Henry Warner, president of the Women's Society of Christian Service, First United Methodist Church; Mrs. George Toenes, planning chairman for the day; Mrs. L. Chipman, president of Church Women United, and Thomas Fittipaldi, music assistant at the First Methodist Church, who with his wife Peg will offer guitar selections.

Tickets for May Fellowship Day may be purchased through "church listeners" or by phoning Mrs. George Toenes at 233-3145. Since all monies received from May Fellowship Day are designated for local use, interested women unable to attend the luncheon have been encouraged to purchase a ticket as a contribution. Child care will be provided, but children should have had their lunches beforehand.

Hunterdon Medical Center in Flemington, who for 16 years was president of the State Board of Control, Department of Institutions and Agencies. Wescott will speak on "Forecasting The Future—Hospitals Face a Changing World."

DEBBI H. DOLBIER

Autumn wedding for Miss Dolbier

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Dolbier of 1627 Larkspur Dr., Mountainside, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Debbi H., to John F. Monahan 3rd, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Monahan of Fanwood.

Miss Dolbier, a graduate of Gov. Livingston Regional High School, Berkeley Heights, and of Wade's Fashion Merchandising College in Dallas, is a manager trainee for The Gap, Livingston.

Her fiancé, a graduate of Scotch Plains-Fanwood High School, is manager of Charlie Brown North Restaurant, Associate Hosts of New Jersey, Tenafly.

Lecture planned by author of book on historic homes

The Springfield Woman's Club will hear Sibly McGroff, author of "New Jersey Historic Homes," Wednesday evening at the National State Bank meeting room.

Her book, published in 1970 and now available in paperback is a guide to old houses in New Jersey which are open to the public. She plans to show slides of some of these 100 homes. According to Mrs. Fred Mercurio, program chairman, lovers of history, historic houses and antique furniture will find the program interesting.

When she began writing her book, Mrs. McGroff became so enthusiastic about the architectural and historic riches of the state that she decided to prepare illustrated lectures to encourage others to discover these spots in New Jersey. She has wide knowledge in the field and an appreciation of the historic ties of the houses, their interior and exterior architectural features and their gardens. Furnishings, china, paintings, costumes and craft exhibits in the historic buildings will also be discussed.

The lecture will also include information on day trips which can be made to visit these historic places, nearby recreational facilities and other places of interest.

New officers for the coming year will be installed at the meeting.

Feldman-Belsky engagement told

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Feldman of Puddingstone road, Mountainside, have announced the engagement of their daughter Ellen to Bruce H. Belsky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Belsky of Rockville Centre, N.Y.

Miss Feldman, a graduate of Syracuse University, was dually enrolled in its College of Education and College of Visual and Performing Arts. She is studying for her master's degree in speech pathology at Ithaca College.

Her fiancé is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, where he majored in Russian history. He is completing his second year of studies at the Syracuse University College of Law.

A September wedding is planned.

Church women to hold luncheon

The annual May luncheon of the Ladies' Benevolent Society of the Springfield Presbyterian Church will be held next Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. at the Mountainside Inn.

Guest speaker for the affair will be Clare Evertsen of Murray Hill, president of Elizabeth Presbyterian. Mrs. Evertsen will speak on women's role in church work. She is a member of the New Providence Presbyterian Church and has served in her local church and in the Elizabeth Presbyterian. She will be introduced by Mrs. Bruce Evans, program chairman of the Ladies' Society.

Arrangements for the May luncheon were made by Mrs. Robert Southard, chairman of the May Circle, assisted by Mrs. Arthur Brandie, co-chairman. Mrs. Gerald Brenn, president of the society, will preside at the business portion of the meeting.

Binder-Brianik engagement told

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert J. Binder of Murray Hill, formerly of Springfield, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Nancy J., to Gregory E. Brianik, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Brianik of Lake Hiawatha.

Miss Binder, a 1972 graduate of New Providence High School, is a secretarial assistant for Oakite Products, Inc., Berkeley Heights. Her fiancé, a 1972 graduate of Parsippany High School, is a self-employed cabinetmaker.

'Been too busy for religion, but you might brief my secretary on necessary procedures for getting into heaven!'

Six homes remain for sale at Manalapan community

The growth of Woodland Green, Manalapan Township, has culminated in the completion of a 175-home community, leaving only six homes for occupancy, according to McConnell & Co. of Cherry Plains, Bricktown, Pompton Hill and Somerville.

Situated on wooded 1/2-acre lots, each of the six homes becomes the focal point, as it is enhanced by the stately beauty of broadleaf oaks, and pines, which are indigenous to the area. Three homes are available for immediate occupancy, while the remaining three are under construction.

Homes include two colonial split-levels, the Hampton and the Newport; a traditional split level, the Savoy and a bi-level, the Bradford.

THE FLORENCE — Two-story colonial home with four bedrooms, two and one-half baths, family room and garage is one of seven distinctive colonial-style homes with easy-to-obtain gas heat, open for inspection at World's Fair, latest project of Greater American Communities, one of New Jersey's largest residential builders. The World's Fair homes, priced from $46,990, are off Cedar Grove Lane in Franklin Township, just minutes from railroad and bus transportation, as well as Rt. 287.

Larsens appoint sales manager at Big Bass Lake

Anticipating a swelling demand for leisure homesites and homes this year, the developers of Big Bass Lake in the Poconos have appointed a new sales manager, Richard G. Lutfy, who has had seven years of top-level marketing experience in the leisure home field in northeastern Pennsylvania. He will work directly with Big Bass project manager William R. Coleman and in close collaboration with developers Louis and John Larsen.

The Larsens said Lutfy "will fit in very well with our traditional low-pressure sales policy." "We feel he's the right man to head a staff that offers a prospective buyer every kind of assistance but never tries to sell him something he really doesn't want."

Colonial tradition featured in homes at World's Fair

The latest example of the attractive use of colonial tradition in a new home is the Florence at World's Fair, under development by Greater American Communities in Franklin Township. This two-story model, now open for inspection off Cedar Grove Lane, has an exterior finished in all-wood materials and features a colonial-style covered portico. The entry has foyer with guest closet and open staircase

Quality, location, price popular at Sutton Place

The combination of excellent quality, prime location and reasonable prices is producing an average of six or seven sales per week at Sutton Village, Prel Corporation's condominium community off Sally Ike road in Brick Town.

"We expect an even more vigorous sales rate in the weeks ahead," says a Prel spokesman, "as more families move in to take full advantage of the upcoming summer season."

Sutton Village offers four home plans; a two-story townhouse and also three ranch-style units, with one, one bedroom and den or two bedrooms. Architecture may be strikingly contemporary or traditional Tudor. Each home in the community has its own garage. Prices begin at $21,990 with as little as five percent down mortgages available to qualified buyers.

Homeowners here really get full value for their money. Each unit comes complete with central air-conditioning, a built-in dishwasher, 30-inch eye-level double oven range, clothes washer and dryer, fully insulated windows, 150-amp electric service, copper water lines, a glass-lined water heater and wall-to-wall carpeting.

Walls between homes are constructed of cinderblock to provide maximum fire protection and improved acoustic quality. The community's visual atmosphere is enhanced by underground telephone, cable TV and power lines.

Sutton Village has many recreational attractions, including golf and country clubs and the excitement of sport fishing and similar activities on the nearby Atlantic Ocean.

and in use and a long list of satisfied site owners intending to build this year.

Lutfy's view is that offering homesites at Big Bass Lake this year will be more like a public service than a job of selling. "An area like this is something that people really need in times like these," he says. "The advantages of a second home where they can get away from the pressures of the town and cities is becoming greater all the time. Here they can relax and have fun—get acquainted with nature again and still be within driving distance of approximately 100 miles from the George Washington Bridge or less from most towns and cities in northern New Jersey and eastern Pennsylvania."

Several outstanding colleges and universities are located in the general vicinity, including Princeton University, Rutgers University, Douglass College, Monmouth College and Brookdale Community College.

Close to Routes 9, 18, 33, 34 and the New Jersey Turnpike, Woodland Green may be reached via the Garden State Parkway, south to Exit 123; then south on Rt. 9 to Union Hill road, turn right on Union Hill road to models. Sales hours are from noon to 6 p.m. on weekends only.

The Florence, priced at $49,990, is designed to utilize the home's square-footage to its maximum advantage.

The first floor has front-facing living room with optional fireplace, formal dining room, and charming 15-foot kitchen-breakfast area with custom cabinets, complete with built-in dishwasher and range and hood.

Another fine feature is the handy kitchen pantry, which was always found in Colonial homes of yore and is just as much appreciated by the 20th century homemaker. Adjoining the kitchen is the large family room with powder room, laundry area, utility room and access way to the garage and storage area.

The second floor features master bedroom suite with walk-in closet, a unique dormer-alcove suitable for dressing area or other uses, and complete bath, as well as three other bedrooms and second bath.

All homes at World's Fair include a family room and one to two and one-half baths, and garage. Custom features, standard equipment in the GAC homes, include double-hung wood windows, baked enamel aluminum leaders and gutters. Bathrooms have ceramic floor and wall tiles in a choice of decorator colors. Kitchen cabinets and bathroom vanities are fine wood-furniture finished with tornea tops.

Drivers have little or no trouble in getting gasoline in the Poconos right now, and some stations are open on Sundays, he pointed out. The Pocono Mountain Vacation Bureau has set up a "hot line"—717-421-5791 which drivers can call to find out where gas is available. The round trip to the Poconos for most people is a one-tankful drive.

The route to Big Bass Lake at Gouldsboro, Pa., usually begins on Interstate 80, with a turnoff onto 380 to Exit 3. There are signs from there for less than two miles on 507 to the Big Bass Welcome Center.

World's Fair is the latest development of Greater American Communities, one of the nation's largest residential builders. It features single-family homes with easy-to-obtain gas heat in seven distinctive designs, priced from $46,990. Each home is situated on one-third acre or larger lot with municipal sewer and water service and underground utilities to preserve the beauty of the woodland area. The winding roads, curbing, sidewalks and paved driveways enhance the attractiveness of World's Fair, which looks like a "custom-built community. This type of attractive landscaped, environmentally-attuned community has become a trademark of Greater American Communities throughout New Jersey.

The Berg Agency, New Jersey's largest residential real estate firm, is exclusive sales agent for the homes with on-site sales office.

Variety of shops at Country Mall

The Country Mall, a "mini-mall" located at 72 South St., New Providence, opened recently.

A colonial building, the mall faces a large parking lot on Gales drive and features shops such as the Plantation, a plant shop owned by Mary Storace of Stirling, Mary, a gal with two green thumbs, is realizing a life long dream of owning her own plant shop.

Mary's terrariums and cactus gardens have created a great deal of interest since her opening Feb. 1. Mary said, "Hanging baskets and very large floor plants are in today and are included in all interior decorating schemes."

"She calls it 'interior landscaping.'" The Plantation has a variety of all types of plants, and a helpful instruction book is given to each customer.

Planters, accessories, and supplies are featured.

"Wick 'n Knit," opened March 1 by Cathy Faber. Cathy started at a very young age working with yarns and needle work. She is very excited about the Country Mall and feels that her talents will be put to use in helping customers with their knitting and needlework projects.

"The trend today is that of self-expression; and what better way to satisfy this need than to create one's own art work," said Cathy.

Rags, Inc. opened March 1, is a denim and jeans shop catering to young people, is owned by Ralph Gleichenhaus. Ralph, a resident of South Plainfield, has teenagers of his own and knows just what they like in the pants line. Rags, Inc. will feature the latest in Levis, Landlubbers, Long Johns, Smiles and Male. Tops and belts will be sold. In the near future, Ralph will be carrying bags, jewelry and shoes.

The Country Mall has some spaces still available. Shops such as a frame shop, gift shop, candy shop, would be desirable in the Country Mall.

AT Mystic Shores

"GOOD ENOUGH" JUST ISN'T GOOD ENOUGH!

AN ADULT COMMUNITY AT THE SHORE HAS TO BE MORE THAN A NICE PLACE TO LIVE.

When you finally decide on the place to spend your retirement years, maybe you'll just want to sit back, take it easy and watch the rest of the world go by. And, that's fine, if it's what you really want... nice home and garden, friendly neighbors, quiet neighborhood... that feeling of affordable security.

"Nothing wrong with that! Good enough," you say... and it can be yours at MYSTIC SHORES, if that's all you want.

On the other hand, wouldn't you like to make the rest of your life the best of your life? Now that most of your responsibilities to others are over with, shouldn't you start thinking of yourself, for a change? O. K. then, watching the world go by just isn't good enough for you! Now, you should be looking forward to a whole new life... to the busy, productive, vital years ahead. Happy years.

This is why the MYSTIC SHORES community was planned to go beyond "good enough" all the way to everything you could ask for.

FOR EXAMPLE YOU'LL WANT AN EASY-CARE, REASONABLY PRICED HOME... MYSTIC SHORES homes, with every modern convenience, are priced from $22,150 to $38,950 and built to keep their good looks with a minimum of effort on your part. LIVING ON A FIXED INCOME?

Depending on the home you buy, estimated living costs will range from $85.05 to $125.43 per month. This includes electric, sewage, water, club fees and your real estate taxes. Of course, mortgages would be additional and are available.

YOU'LL INSIST ON A CAREFULLY PLANNED COMMUNITY. That's what you'll get at MYSTIC SHORES... a beautiful woodland community, on Great Bay, at the Jersey Shore. Here are some of the statistics: 1,400 homes to be built on 324 majestic acres; parks, recreation areas, paved streets, sidewalks and driveways, all utilities, 24-hour security, convenient transportation... and the climate is just great! AT MYSTIC SHORES you get the best of all four seasons. PEOPLE TO MEET & THINGS TO DO? MYSTIC SHORES will be a community of your peers (one of the principal buyers must be at least 52), offering recreational facilities second to none. AND FINALLY — Starting a new life doesn't mean saying goodbye to families and old friends. That's why we made MYSTIC SHORES so accessible to visit, a great place to live.

CONCERNED ABOUT THE GAS SHORTAGE? CALL AHEAD. P.S. WE'LL MAKE ARRANGEMENTS FOR YOUR RETURN TRIP.

DISC 'N DATA

By MILT HAMMER

ALBUM PICK OF THE WEEK — THUNDERBOX: by HUMBLE PIE (A&M SP-3611). The Pie's latest effort is crammed with crisp, pounding rock. The 12 tracks include the group's renditions of some of its favorite recorded tunes, including the Beatles' "Anna," Chuck Berry's "No Money Down," Dobie Gray's "Drift Away," the Staple Singers' "Oh-La-De-De," and Ann Peebles' "I Can't Stand the Rain," plus a number of Pie originals—"Groovin' With Jesus," "No Way," "Rally With Ali" and "Ninety-Nine Pounds."

Humble Pie was formed in 1968 around guitarists Steve Marriott and Peter Frampton, bassist Greg Ridley, and drummer, Jerry Shirley, with Dave Clempson later replacing Frampton. Marriott, now the acknowledged spokesman and leader of the band, was even then the most famous member, coming from the enormously popular Small Faces. He had been hailed by fans and critics as a major musical talent; he composed fine melodies, wrote lyrics about everything from romance to youthful fairytale fantasies and sang like a man possessed. His "Itchycoo Park" was a world-wide hit for Small Faces. But in England, where Steve lived, chart singles were the kiss of death for a band with artistic aspirations. No matter what kind words the critics offered, the record-buyers and concertgoers expected Marriott to come up with top-40 music. The Small Faces became frustrated and Humble Pie was the answer to Steve's problem.

Humble Pie immediately became known as a group of hard-workers. Their first two albums, "As Safe As Yesterday Is" and "Town and Country" (both now available in America on A&M as a double album set called "Lost and Found"), were only modestly successful, but the lads slugged up and down the English motorways playing to people on a face-to-face basis. They placed some hard rock and some acoustic numbers, coinciding with the repertoire featured on their albums. They even toured America in late 1969.

Touring and performing energetically to coincide with the release of their "Humble Pie" and "Rock On" albums, Humble Pie exhibited a new lack of inhibition which endeared them to hundreds of thousands of new fans. Marriott unleashed a new side of his talent—that of on-stage showman—writing, playing guitar with abandon, singing even more expressively than ever before. His fellow Piemen followed suit, and hysteria was the audience's response. After important appearances in Shea Stadium, Hyde Park (London), and other major concert venues, a live album became imperative: "Rockin' the Fillmore" subsequently hit the top 20 by the end of 1971. A single, "I Don't Need No Doctor," also hit.

In late 1971, Peter Frampton left Humble Pie to embark on a solo career (Frampton's third and latest A&M album is "Somebody's Having a Party"), and former Coliseum guitarist Dave "Clem" Clempson replaced him. The fit was perfect, as the realigned group proved with their smashingly successful live appearances and best-selling albums: "Smokin'" and "Eat It."

Wayne plays cop in 'McQ' drama

Colleen Dewhurst, who received a Tony award last week for best actress in a Broadway drama, "The Moon For the Misbegotten," co-stars with John Wayne in the new action film "McQ," which arrived yesterday at the Jerry Lewis Cinema, Five Points, Union.

In the melodrama involving police corruption, Wayne portrays a clean cop who turns in his shield and becomes a private eye when the brass tries to pin murders of policemen on him.

Eddie Albert and Diane Muldaur have stellar roles. The picture, in color, was directed by John Sturges.

Adventure films offered by Park

"The Laughing Policeman," and "The Last American Hero" opened yesterday on a double bill at the Park Theater, Roselle Park.

Walter Matthau plays a cool, straight-faced detective in "Laughing Policeman," who tries to get to the bottom of a bloody massacre in a San Francisco bus. Bruce Dern and Lou Gossett have stellar roles in the film drama, which was photographed in color and directed by Stuart Rosenberg.

In "The Last American Hero," a racing film, based on Tom Wolfe's story of a real-life Junior Johnson, the picture involves a strong-headed country boy who becomes a car nut and races stock cars in North Carolina and Virginia.

Jeff Bridges and Valerie Perrine, Art Lund and Geraldine Fitzgerald head the cast. The picture, in color, was directed by Lamont Johnson.

The Saturday matinee show for kiddies will be McHale's Navy.

Murders, Mafia fill bill at Elmora

"Crazy Joe," a Mafia film about a manic hood in New York who takes on Mafia big-shots in a crazed bid for power, and allies himself with black hoods in a takeover attempt, arrived yesterday at the Elmora Theater, Elizabeth. The plot parallels the headlines of the 1960s and the early 1970s.

Peter Boyle, Paula Prentiss, Fred Williamson, Eli Wallach and Rip Torn head the cast. The movie, in color, was directed by Carlo Lizzani.

The associate film at the Elmora, "The Stone Killer," stars Charles Bronson, as a tough cop who goes against a gangland plot of mass murder to avenge the murder of gangland chieftains in the old days. Vietnam veterans are hired as the ultimate in well-trained killers. Michael Winner directed the picture, which was made in color.

The Saturday matinee for kiddies at the Elmora will be "The Shakiest Gun in the West."

Amusement News

'Carmina' ballet planned Sunday

The New Jersey Ballet Company and the New Jersey Schola Cantorum will join forces to present Carl Orff's dramatic hour-long work, "Carmina Burana" to New Jersey audiences, with original choreography by New Jersey Ballet's associate director Joseph Carow and resident choreographer George Tomal. It was announced by Carolyn Clark company director. This presentation will be first for New Jersey.

"Carmina Burana," a conducted by the 75-member New Jersey Schola Cantorum director Louis Hooker, will be staged Sunday at 3 p.m. at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, the ballet's resident theater, and on Sunday, May 5 at 3:30 p.m. at Fairleigh Dickinson University, Rutherford.

It will include an instrumental ensemble and the full ballet company with principal artists Helen Douglas, Ingrid Fraley, Larry Hunt and Michael Owen.

Edward Villella serves as artistic advisor to the New Jersey Ballet.

Tickets for Sunday's performance are $4 for adults and $2 for students and senior citizens and may be obtained by calling the New Jersey Ballet Company in Orange at 677-1045.

Debut, premiere, Friedman concert scheduled May 18

The debut of a new symphony orchestra and the world premiere of a composition by a noted young New Jersey composer, will highlight this season's final Recital Stage concert Saturday, May 18 at 8 p.m. at Union High School. The concert, presented under the auspices of the Foundation for the Performing Arts, will star violinist Erick Friedman as soloist in Mozart's Violin Concerto No. 5.

Dumas spoof held on screen at Fox

"The Three Musketeers," a spoof on the swashbuckling film genre, continues for another week at the Fox Theater, Route 22, Union.

The picture, loosely based on the Alexander Dumas classic, stars Michael York as d'Artagnan, and Oliver Reed, Richard Chamberlain and Frank Finlay as the Musketeers.

Other stars in the cast include Raquel Welch, Charlton Heston, Faye Dunaway, Christopher Lee, Jean Pierre Cassel, Geraldine Chaplin and Simon Ward. Richard Lester directed the movie, which was photographed in color.

McQueen, Hoffman on Maplewood screen

"Papillon," drama based on Henri Charriere's tale of inhuman treatment of prisoners in the 1930s French penal colony, continues on screen at the Maplewood Theater.

The picture, filmed in color, stars Steve McQueen and Dustin Hoffman, and was directed by Franklin J. Schaffner.

Movie features Flatbush gangs

HOLLYWOOD — "The Lords of Flatbush," a film about young people who try to find their own way on the rooftops and in the stickball gutters of 1957 Brooklyn, has been acquired by Columbia Pictures for release in the United States and Canada.

The film features a completely original 1950s score by Joe Brooks.

Rehabilitation starts before operation

Amputees spending less time in hospital

A new technique designed to shorten rehabilitation time and length of hospital stay for amputee patients is a featured part of the total amputee care program at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center. This program involves the cooperation of surgeons, physicians, physical therapists, prosthetists (who make the artificial limbs) and social workers.

According to Dr. Donald Brief, an attending surgeon at the Medical Center, rehabilitation for these patients begins even before the actual amputation. "When it becomes apparent to the physician that a person will have to lose a leg," he states, "we contact the physical therapy and social work departments so that the patient can start therapy before undergoing surgery. Social workers can prepare them for changes they'll have to make in their daily routine, and therapists can start them on some of the upper body exercises that will be necessary after surgery." This psychological and physical preparation will cut down on the rehabilitation time, but Medical Center specialists have gone one step further.

They have adopted a new technique which enables the patient to actually take part in a program of exercise and walking within days of surgery. Dr. Lella Sterescu, director of the department of physical medicine and rehabilitation, outlines the steps involved. "Immediately after surgery," she says, "we apply a semi-rigid dressing rather than a heavy plaster cast to the stump. This new dressing is lighter and easier to manage than the cast, and can be easily removed if the physician wants to check the incision. In addition, the material in the dressing does not irritate the patient's skin, and its flexibility helps control swelling very well. After a day or two," she continues, "a temporary cast can be put over the dressing and a temporary leg attached. A few days later the patient can start an exercise program, in some cases actually putting weight on the artificial limb within a week."

Therapy continues at the medical center until, with the surgeon's approval, the patient

PROGRESS CHECK — Mrs. John McCullagh, chief physical therapist at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center, watches walking progress of an amputee patient. The Medical Center's amputee care program starts the rehabilitation process prior to the surgery, and follows the patient until he is able to take care of himself.

returns home. "In many cases," Dr. Sterescu explains, "this will occur within two or three weeks, which is very helpful for the patient's motivation. Going home signals an improvement, which encourages further progress." Once at home patients continue exercising and return to the medical center for further therapy two or three times a week.

Later, when the incision is completely healed and the patient is accustomed to the artificial limb, the prosthetist will make a permanent limb to replace the temporary one.

The amputee program at the medical center has been very successful so far, partly because of the new rehabilitation technique and partly because of other factors. Mrs. John McCullagh, chief physical therapist at the medical center, points out that "a patient's improvement is markedly quicker when they feel people are really interested in helping them adjust to the loss of a leg. Our caring personnel try to treat each patient as an individual, helping them to achieve a kind of independence and self-confidence which is essential to rehabilitation."

Dr. Sterescu seconds this need for independence. "It's no good sending a patient home if he has to rely on his family for everything," she states. "His rehabilitation will be much more complete if he can care for himself as much as possible. Before a patient leaves for home we show them how to remove and replace the artificial limb themselves, how to get dressed and undressed, etc." Some patients who live alone or who need more help, but not hospitalization, before they can return home, are referred to an affiliate of the medical center, the Theresa Grotta Center for Restorative Services in West Orange. Here they receive the continuity of care needed for their total recovery.

It is continuity of care that Dr. Brief cites as the most important part of the amputee program at the medical center. "A prime example of this," he says, "is our regular amputee clinic. Surgeons, physicians, physical therapists, prosthetists and social workers gather to discuss and find solutions to any problems that may have arisen. The important thing is that the patient is not forgotten after the amputation. A whole team of specialists combine forces to aid his rehabilitation, and they are still concerned with his welfare months after surgery."

Father Pollard new chairman of NJHA board

The Rev. Monsignor Raymond J. Pollard will lead New Jersey hospitals "down the home stretch" in a race he says will culminate in a system of national health insurance.

Monsignor Pollard, selected last week as chairman of the board of trustees of New Jersey Hospital Association (NJHA), told some 400 health care professionals from hospitals statewide, that any system of national health insurance adopted by the federal government must augment the efforts of the existing health care delivery network.

"Unified, effective efforts are a matter of tradition in this state," the new chairman noted, citing national statistics underscoring New Jersey hospitals' successes in cost containment and quality enhancement.

Calling for a reaffirmation of support from NJHA's 144-member health care institutions, Monsignor Pollard predicted a continuation of the stream of "genuine challenges" posed by the public, government and industry, and called for a strengthening of hospital visibility and effectiveness to offset the efforts of those "who would undermine and weaken a system that is now effectively and economically meeting the health care needs of the residents of our state."

The chairman has served as director of hospitals for the Archdiocese of Newark since 1970, previously acting as assistant director from 1964. He is a member of the state's top health care policy-making body—the Health Care Administration Board; and a member of the board of governors of the Middle Atlantic Health Congress, an annual three-day health care exposition conducted each spring in Atlantic City.

The chairman will be assisted by George Billington, selected as chairman-elect, and by Barry D. Brown who will serve as vice-chairman for the coming year. Billington, executive vice-president of Elizabeth General Hospital and Dispensary, is vice-president of the Union County Hospital Society, and is a member of the Union County Mental Health Association.

A member of the American College of Hospital Administrators, he has served on the Hospital Budget and Cost Review advisory committee to the New Jersey Commissioner of Insurance, and is vice-chairman of the Hospital Research and Educational Trust of New Jersey.

Med school dean is stepping down

Dr. James W. Mackenzie, dean of the Rutgers Medical School component of the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey (CMDNJ), for the past three years, has submitted his resignation effective July 1, end of the academic year. He requested continued support as chairman of the department of surgery, a post he held before assuming the deanship.

Mackenzie noted in his resignation he had agreed to be dean for a three-year term, which is now coming to an end. Dr. Stanley S. Bergen Jr., president of CMDNJ, expressed appreciation for Dr. Mackenzie's "effort and devotion" and noted that under his leadership RMS, which is in Piscataway, had been "transformed from a two-year basic-science school that sent its graduates out of the state for further medical training into a full, four-year, M.D.-degree-granting institution."

Public TV picks three N.J. films

Three New Jersey Public Broadcasting programs have been accepted for national distribution to public and educational television stations throughout the country via the Public Television Library.

The Jerseyvision programs selected by PTL are "The 11th Year," focusing on a New Jersey resident who spent more than a decade in prison; "Thomas A. Edison: The Old Man," concerning the inventor who lived and worked in the Garden State, and "Gomberg at 82," which explores the memories and life of the Jewish immigrant through the eyes of one grandchild. "Gomberg at 82" received the highest vote of the 75 programs viewed during the PTL screening session.

The Public Television Library is a distribution center for public and educational television programs from throughout the country. PTL is located in Bloomington, Indiana.

TV to study problem of church, immigrants

The problems faced by the Roman Catholic Church in absorbing Spanish speaking immigrants into its population will be explored during "Your God Speaks a Different Language" on "Assignment: New Jersey," Wednesday, May 1, and Sunday, May 5, at 8 p.m. on Channels 50 and 58.

The half-hour program includes interviews with clergymen, sociologists and Spanish speaking laymen. Among the topics discussed are the pros and cons of establishing national (language) churches for Spanish speaking Catholic individuals.

Garden space available

Utility will lease small plots

If you live adjacent to a Public Service Electric and Gas Company transmission line, you may be able to ease the food bill this summer.

PSE&G is inviting New Jerseyans to plant vegetable gardens on the right-of-way providing the land in question is owned by the utility. PSE&G owns 187 miles of transmission line right-of-way throughout New Jersey and annually, some 1,400 residents whose property adjoin it lease parts of it. But literally thousands of acres along it, suitable for small vegetable gardens, are not used at all.

The magazine, Better Homes and Gardens, in its April issue this year, estimates that an investment of less than $20 in a modest plot 15-by-20-feet can return almost $272 worth of fresh food. The magazine assumes the use of starter plants. The National Garden Bureau, a Pennsylvania-based agency, estimates that $3.90 worth of seeds cast into a space just 10-by-16-feet can save a family of four $120 in food bills.

High food prices, and growing interest in organic gardening, has resulted in a "green revolution," the agency claims; early seed sales are high, and community gardening is becoming more popular. One group, Gardens for All, Inc., P.O. Box 164T, Charlotte, Vt., 05445, offers help in establishing community gardens.

Those who want to take the utility up on the offer are asked to write: Gardening, 60 Park Pl., Newark 07101, describing where they live, the right-of-way location, and the size of the garden plot they plan. Assuming it is available, applicants will have to sign a lease, pay the utility one dollar a year, and agree to the terms of the lease. No buildings are allowed, and the utility reserves the right to maintain service to the transmission lines.

Applications open for lifeguard posts

Applications are being accepted for lifeguard positions at the various state-owned oceanfront parks and inland recreation areas operated by the Bureau of Parks, Department of Environmental Protection.

The positions are open to New Jersey and out-of-state residents 16 or older. Successful applicants will receive a minimum rate of $2.20 per hour for an average 40-hour work week through the summer period. Inland park water facilities open May 25, ocean beaches on June 15.

E. Fenton Carey, supervisor of water safety for the bureau, noted that the job test includes 400-yard swim; a simulated rescue at 50 yards, towing a torpedo buoy and line; the application of artificial resuscitation; a 200-yard sprint on the beach and an interview.

"Applicants should bring a swim suit, warm clothing, towels, food, hot beverages, and plan to spend an entire day at the test facility," said Carey.

Applications may be obtained from the Supervisor of Water Safety, Bureau of Parks, Box 1420, Trenton, 08625 or by telephoning 609-292-3092.

Tests will begin promptly at 10 a.m. as follows: For South Jersey inland areas - Bass River State Forest, Saturday, May 11 (supplemental date, May 12). For North Jersey inland area positions - Hopatecong State Park.

Labor accords

Joseph A. Hoffman, Commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Labor and Industry, announced this week that the State Board of Mediation last month closed 96 of the 607 cases under its jurisdiction. The settlements included 74 arbitrations, 19 disputes and three strikes.

FRIDAY DEADLINE

Elin-Unger Post plans installation of its new officers

The Elin-Unger Post 273 Jewish War Veterans and its Ladies Auxiliary will hold an installation of officers for 1974-75 on Wednesday, May 1, at 8 p.m. at the Crestmont Savings Bank, Maplewood.

The post and auxiliary have both been awarded "The Blue Ribbon" by the national JYW for outstanding work and membership for the past two years.

Jack Schechter of Hillside, commander of the post, and Mrs. Bobbie Wasserman of Union, president of the auxiliary, will retire after two years as leaders of their groups.

The following will be installed as officers of the Ladies Auxiliary: Mrs. Anne Sornstein of Elizabeth, president; Mrs. Blanche Eigna of Newark, senior vice-president; Mrs. Sylvia Gillule of Union, senior vice-president; Mrs. Esther Mann, treasurer; Mrs. Ruth Hirschorn, financial secretary; Mrs. Mae Cohen, conductress; Mrs. Shirley Zuckerman, pat. instructor; Mrs. Lilyan Krueger, chaplain; Mrs. Ethel Vice, guard, and Mrs. Sally Baskin, Miss Fannie Mark, Mrs. Bobbie Wasserman, and Delegate, Mrs. Sarah Salzberg, trustees.

Installing for the Ladies Auxiliary will be Mrs. Miriam Wortzel, of Hillside, president of the Essex County Council JWWA. Harvey S. Friedman, past department commander, will install the following officers for the post. Norman Sperber of Hillside, Commander; Aaron Strauss of Hillside, senior vice-commander, Martin Goldberg of Newark, junior vice-commander; Jack Schechter, three-year trustee.

George Vice of Maplewood, past post commander, and Mrs. Sarah Salzberg, of Livingston, past department president, will be co-chairmen for the evening.

A coffee hour was held by the post at the Lyons Veterans Hospital on Easter Sunday for about 100 patients. A donation of $100 was presented to the administration to be used for the patients indigent fund.

A party was held at the East Orange Veterans Hospital on Monday, April 15, refreshments were served and prizes given to all patients on the 12th floor.

Registration being accepted for peace institute at Seton

Registrations are being accepted for a two-week summer institute on "Teaching Peace, Justice and Human Values" which will be conducted at Seton Hall University June 17-28. The institute, which is being jointly sponsored by the University's Center for Humanistic Studies in affiliation with the Institute of Social Relations of the Newark Archdiocese and Global Education Associates, will consist of courses aimed primarily at educators, a film festival and an evening of lecture series.

The institute is designed to provide teachers with tools for preparing youth for life in today's interdependent world and will deal specifically with such human values as peace, justice and environmental stewardship and their relationship to methods and curriculum content in secondary, elementary and early childhood classroom.

The course for elementary and early childhood educators will be "Education for Peace, Justice and Global Citizenship," taught by Patricia Mische, director of educational development for Global Education Associates. She has wide experience as an educator and educational consultant in this country and in Africa and is currently completing a book on global interdependence.

Dr. Joseph Moore, associate professor of history at Montclair State College, will teach the course for secondary educators on "The Role of the Secondary School in Education for Peace." He is a teacher trainer and is co-author of a textbook, "War and War Prevention," for use in secondary school social studies. Each course is worth three graduate credits.

Speakers for the lecture series on the topic, "Building a Human Future," and film titles for the daily movies will be announced later. Both the lecture series and film festival will be open to the public.

Further information on the summer institute is available from Mrs. Mische, institute director, at the Center for Humanistic Studies at Seton Hall.

Grant to be used in Upward Bound

With the help of a recent grant from the Victoria Foundation, Seton Hall University's Upward Bound program, which is designed to prepare high school students for college or post-secondary careers, hopes to expand both the scope of its activities and the number of students it serves.

Seton Hall received a grant of $15,000 from the Victoria Foundation, which specializes in support to New Jersey health, welfare and education programs. Primary funding for Upward Bound comes from federal government sources that provides for an enrollment of about 105. Currently Upward Bound has an enrollment of 135 participants from East Orange, Clifford Scott, Orange, Weequahic, Malcolm X, Shabazz and Barringer High Schools.

Upward Bound utilizes Saturday and summer-time activities such as cultural field trips, discussion groups and films to interest college-bound high schoolers to continue their education or training. A career education project, involving work-study to widen job experience and awareness of vocational opportunities, and a pilot program introducing high school seniors to college courses, are also offered through Upward Bound.

Pollack new president of Fairleigh Dickinson

Fairleigh Dickinson University's board of trustees has unanimously elected Dr. Jerome M. Pollack the third president of the university.

In making the announcement, Fairleigh S. Dickinson Jr., chairman of the board of trustees, said: "The trustees are convinced that Dr. Pollack will provide the leadership which Fairleigh Dickinson University needs at this time. We are all proud to serve on the board which has elected the new president."

Pollack, FDU's acting president since last Dec. 3, succeeds Dr. J. Osborn Fuller who resigned after six years as president. Fuller was subsequently named president emeritus and "Distinguished Professor of Marine Geology." Pollack, 48, joined Fairleigh Dickinson in 1971 as vice-president for academic affairs and was made executive and academic vice-president on Jan. 1, 1973. He came to FDU from the University of Rhode Island where he was dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, vice-president for academic affairs and professor of geology.

From mental health to dental health, College of Medicine serves the people

This is the second of three articles about the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey.

To Dr. Stanley S. Bergen Jr., president of the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey since 1971, CMDNJ is "an agency for human development."

"This," he said, "means being involved in many aspects of daily living. It sees the practice of medicine and dentistry today as preventing illness, as well as curing it. Modern medicine and dentistry recognize that disease prevention starts with birth itself."

Dr. Bergen said his college also accepts an educational role in family planning and family life. "This," he continues, "involves nutrition. It is concerned with living conditions. It deals with mental health, dental health, social adjustment and the myriad problems of societal pressure on young and old—all within the context of varied urban, suburban, rural, industrial, commercial and agricultural environments of the state."

"Thus the free-standing role that the governor and the legislature decreed for CMDNJ is a major asset. We are an institution free of traditional encumbrances that beset others, free to move in new directions, free to ally ourselves with the best existing facilities within the state for mutual aid and enrichment, and free to serve the people," said Dr. Bergen.

UNTIL TWO decades ago there was no medical or dental school in New Jersey. In 1954, the Seton Hall College of Medicine and Dentistry was born, forerunner or both the New Jersey Medical School and the New Jersey Dental School components of CMDNJ.

The Seton Hall institution devised a great seal, which survives as the official seal of CMDNJ. It depicts the mythical Roman god of medicine, Aesculapius, standing above New Jersey's three-peak coat of arms. He is flanked by "Misericordia" and "Succurre Disco." As relevant today as ever, the Latin inscription translates to: "I Learn To Relieve Suffering."

For the learning necessary to relieve suffering, New Jersey's legislature created CMDNJ as a unified, statewide, state-supported institution with a single board of trustees appointed by the governor. The first step came in 1965 with the acquisition of the Seton Hall complex, which was renamed New Jersey College of Medicine and Dentistry. To this was added the Rutgers Medical School (RMS) in 1970, and the unified institution took on its present name: College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey.

Founded in 1962 as a two-year basic science school RMS at one time sent all of its students elsewhere for the two years of clinical training required for the M.D. degree, but in 1972 the school was converted by CMDNJ into a full, four-year institution.

In 1966, a major part of the college's medical program was shifted from the Jersey City Medical Center to Martland Medical Center, Newark, and the Veterans Administration Hospital, East Orange. Three years later, New Jersey Medical School was relocated to its present, interim facilities at 100 Bergen st., Newark, while plans were made to build a permanent campus on a 45.7-acre site of cleared land across the street.

The Newark construction, a $177-million undertaking, is about 65 percent completed, except for a hospital, which is still in planning stages. New building at Rutgers Piscataway campus brings the total of current of still-to-be-started CMDNJ construction to more than $220-million.

DENTAL STUDENTS also take their basic-science work in Newark, but New Jersey Dental School itself remains in Jersey City, pending completion of a building of its own on the new Newark campus. The dental school plans to continue clinical activity in Jersey City, too, however.

Rutgers Medical School, meanwhile, has grown in Piscataway. Its eight-story basic sciences building there was dedicated in 1970, and a 325-bed, $45-million teaching hospital also is planned for the campus, close to the basic-science building and the Institute of Mental Health Sciences. The latter, opened in the fall of 1972, provides both inpatient and out-patient services for residents of central Jersey, as well as teaching facilities.

Martland Medical Center, which is on Bergen street Newark, was acquired by CMDNJ in 1969. A 20-story, post-World War II structure originally known as Newark City Hospital, it serves as "family physician" to most of Newark's indigent population. Martland's current role may one day be assumed by the new teaching hospital planned for the new Newark campus.

CMDNJ's fourth existing school, the Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences (GSBS) was chartered in 1961 as part of the former Seton Hall medical school. Bestowing advanced degrees up to the Ph.D., GSBS also is at the Bergen street campus, engaged in research and teaching in the life sciences.

In addition, the medical-dental college works with other educational institutions in the state in cooperative programs.

Tour for students at Cook College

Tours for high school students, exhibits, a flea vs. faculty tug-of-war, concerts and a food market open to the public are a few of the items on the agenda for the annual spring program at Cook College, Rutgers, beginning tomorrow.

The event, expanded to three days for the first time this year, will give visitors a chance to examine Cook's facilities and get to know more about the newest member of the federated college system at the university.

Spring program gets under way when 1,550 sophomores and juniors from high schools all over New Jersey are welcomed to Cook tomorrow morning by Dr. Charles E. Hess, dean of the college.

Cancer grants awarded to Jersey researchers

Nine grants totaling more than $477,000 have been awarded to researchers in New Jersey by the American Cancer Society. It was announced this week by Mrs. Harry P. Beldon, president of the New Jersey Division.

"These grants," said Mrs. Beldon, "are part of the American Cancer Society's continuing effort to seek out the causes of this cruel disease and to find new means of effectively combating it."

"This year it is estimated that 355,000 Americans will die of cancer, or one every minute and a half. Some 14,000 will die in New Jersey alone."

"Dismaying as these projections are, hope can be taken in the fact that more lives are being saved from cancer than ever before. Whereas, in the 1930s, fewer than one in five were being saved, today that survival rate has improved to one in three. Knowledge gained through research is the major factor in this improvement against a disease which in the early 1900s was resignedly accepted as incurable."

The American Cancer Society offers three types of grants to support research: 1) "research project grants" to finance individual work; 2) "institutional research grants" to universities, institutes and hospitals for the support of pilot studies; 3) "research personnel grants" to outstanding scientists and medical students specializing, or planning to specialize, in cancer research.

Recipients of the nine American Cancer Society grants are:

College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey - Newark Medical School—an institutional research grant and a faculty research award to Chung Shu Yang, Ph.D., Institute for Medical Research, Camden—research professorship for Dan. H. Moore, Ph.D.

Princeton University—Bruce M. Alberts, Ph.D., Jennifer D. Hall, Ph.D., Arnold J. Levine, Ph.D., and Abraham Worcel, M.D., of the Department of Biochemical Sciences, and Austin Newton, Ph.D., of Moffett Laboratories, Roche Institute of Molecular Biology—Joan S. Tschorne, Ph.D., of the Department of Biochemistry.

Former POW returns to college life

Capt. Milligan: Dress the major difference

What does American and college life seem like to a war veteran who returned to the campus after an absence of 10 years, six as a prisoner of war in North Vietnam?

"I left an Ivy League America and returned to see styles that seemed to me to be similar to those of the Gay '90s," said Air Force Capt. Joseph E. Milligan. "Other things surprising to me were the hair styles, women's lib, changes in moral standards, nudes on Broadway and X-rated movies."

A 1963 graduate of the Rutgers College of Agriculture, New Brunswick, Capt. Milligan is back on that campus (now known as Cook College) as a special student, taking the necessary courses for entrance to veterinary school. (He owns a small farm near Pittstown where he is beginning to raise dairy cattle.)

Capt. Milligan was shot down and captured in May 1967 on his 113th combat mission while piloting an F-4C Mach Two fighter plane northeast of Hanoi.

Concerning student life today, Capt. Milligan didn't see the great differences he had been led to expect, except in dress and, perhaps, in moral standards.

He said he found no particular difficulty in adjusting to course work, although basic science courses now have more information on which he must catch up. He added that he wasn't a particularly good student as an undergraduate because he was interested in other things but felt that he was a good student now.

A career Air Force officer, Capt. Milligan found he had to make some minor adjustments in his own life after all those years in a total of seven North Vietnam prison camps.

"Things like driving a car again," he said, "I wasn't used to the motion and my perception seemed to be a little off. I would sometimes eat too fast; that was a hangover from being forced to gulp food in prison camp. Also—again a hangover from prison life—I would forget to turn off the lights when I left a room."

"One of the most significant things I noticed

HOME FREE — Air Force Captain Joseph Milligan is met by his father and mother at Westover, Massachusetts, Air Force Base in February of 1973 after six years in North Vietnamese prisoner of war camps. Capt. Milligan is now a special student at Rutgers, where he graduated in 1963. Left to right are Mrs. Emma Milligan, Capt. Milligan, an Air Force Public Information Officer, and J. Bertram Milligan.

when I returned to this country was the irresponsibility of the national press," Capt. Milligan said with some heat. "I think the mass media has become quite irresponsible in news reporting and prints an awful lot of things out of context."

"When I was released I was asked what I thought about deserters. I replied that they were still Americans and should be allowed back in this country. However, I also said they still deserted their country and should be required to pay for their mistakes. I do not believe in amnesty."

"A number of newspapers reported that I favored amnesty, and a major radio-TV network said the same thing."

"I don't need to tell you how angry that made me," Capt. Milligan said. "I found no complaints with the local newspapers. The New Jersey papers are doing a fine job. Some others print what they want to print to make a point."

After his release Capt. Milligan was flown to Westover Air Force Base in Massachusetts where he met his future wife, Mary Ann Runda. They were married in July 1973.

Capt. Milligan returned to college at the age of 32 to take undergraduate courses he needs to qualify for veterinary school, "because I want to have a usable profession when I retire from the Air Force."

Last January, in a ceremony at McGuire Air

Ambulance units serving Turnpike given $69,637

The New Jersey Turnpike Authority made contributions totaling $114,787 to 38 volunteer ambulance squads and 25 fire departments responding to emergency calls during 1973 over the 142-mile length of the nation's busiest toll road system.

All contributions for these emergency services are absorbed by the Turnpike Authority—at no expense to the patron in distress.

Most of the money—$69,637—was contributed to ambulance units summoned by the authority on 1,226 separate occasions to administer first aid at accident scenes and to those suffering heart attacks or other illnesses.

The balance of $45,150 went to volunteer fire departments responding to 340 vehicle or grass fires with 532 separate pieces of apparatus.

During 1972 the authority contributed $80,742 to volunteer units for providing assistance on a total of 1,531 occasions.

Last year the Turnpike's accident rate of 83.5 per 100 million vehicle miles was its lowest of the decade and the lowest of all toll roads recording more than one billion travel miles.

The national average for all toll roads in 1973 as reported by the National Safety Council was 115.8 accidents per 100 million miles traveled.

Force Base, Capt. Milligan was presented with two Distinguished Flying Crosses for services over Vietnam. He already had eight Air Medals, awarded for combat missions; two Purple Hearts, one for severe burns he suffered when he was shot down, one for injuries suffered when he was tortured; the Air Force Commendation Medal and campaign ribbons.

Capt. Milligan was tortured severely. When captured, he was trussed up in an unsuccessful effort to extract information. Later he was forced to go through several forms of self-torture and he was beaten with an automobile belt.

Now that it was all over, did Capt. Milligan hate his former captors?

"No, I don't hate them," he said. "They were just doing what they were told to do or forced to do, but I guess some of them deserve to be hated."

'Indians,' story of Buffalo Bill, to be staged at Kean College

The Theatre Guild of Kean College will present Arthur Kopit's "Indians," a play which uses several resources of the theatre to tell the story of the humiliation and devastation of the North American Indians, starting next Wednesday.

Evening performances will be given May 1, 2, 3, 4 at 8 p.m.; matinee performances are scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday, May 1 and 2, at 2 p.m. All performances will be in the Theatre for Performing Arts and there will be ample free parking.

Ticket prices are $3 for center section seats and $2 for side section seats. For further information or reservations, call 527-2337.

Originally produced by Britain's Royal Shakespeare Company, "Indians" uses the format of the wild west show to view the story of one man's justification of himself as hero. It traces Buffalo Bill's efforts to help his Indian friends, his ultimate failure, and the consequent guilt which he -- and mankind -- experienced.

Arthur Kopit succinctly expressed his view of the play: "I don't want them (the audience) to come out and say what a terrible nation. I do want them to realize our history is not so simple. What it means should relate to the way we have used our power toward people less powerful and created a mythology to justify it."

The killing of buffalo, the defeat of Custer, and the surrender of Sitting Bull are all explored in the action of the play. The production will use the aura of the wild west show, dream sequences, film effects, dance arrangements, and an original musical score to highlight the theme.

Computer machinery

Kean College, Union, will be host to the Northern New Jersey Chapter of the National Association for Computing Machinery tomorrow. Members representing business and industry will include scientists from IBM, Schering Corp. and Bell Laboratories. Student chapters will include Kean, Fairleigh Dickinson, Newark College of Engineering, Princeton, Rutgers and Stevens Institute.

Educational level as a requirement for jobs is rising

WASHINGTON -- The 1974-75 edition of the Occupational Outlook Handbook says that educational requirements will continue to rise for most jobs, including those in clerical and blue collar fields.

The 842-page handbook, just issued by the U.S. Department of Labor, emphasizes that post-high school training, such as that obtained through apprenticeship and junior or community colleges, will take on increased importance.

The Occupational Outlook Handbook reports employment prospects through the mid-1980s for more than 850 occupations and 30 major industries. It is a widely used publication in vocational guidance and is an all-time best seller among government publications.

Among other things, it is designed to give young people up-to-date, accurate vocational information.

In addition to forecasting the need for more education, the new edition reveals that:

Two out of three job openings that will arise through 1985 will stem from the need to replace workers who die or retire. Only a third of openings will result from employment growth.

The number of professional and technical jobs--those usually requiring a college degree--will continue to grow faster than jobs in any other occupational group. However, the vast majority of the 60 million job openings expected to become available between 1972 and 1985 will be open to persons who have not completed four years of college.

Irish music program

"The Boys from Lox" will perform traditional Irish music on "Caught in the Act" Tuesday at 9 p.m. and Wednesday, at 9:30 p.m. on Channels 50 and 58.

Natural gas from water hyacinths?

Process is termed commercially feasible

A supply of natural gas can be insured "forever" through mass production and bacterial digestion of the pesky water hyacinth, algae, sorghum, grass or a variety of other plants, according to a report in Chem Tech, a publication of the American Chemical Society. Achieving this "perpetual methane economy" does not require any technological breakthroughs, claimed Dr. Donald L. Klass, chemist and assistant research director at The Institute of Gas Technology in Chicago.

"The solution to the gas shortage is technically sound, uses known technology and, after suitable development, will probably be commercially feasible," he said.

Land and water plants selected for their high carbon content are cultivated for conversion to methane, the main constituent of natural gas. Ways to convert carbon-containing waste materials to synthetic natural gas (SNG) have recently been established, said Dr. Klass, and this is just a few steps down the road from converting the plants themselves.

What's more, he added, "the areas set aside for biomass (plant) production and gasification would not be destroyed, and might even be improved or used simultaneously for other beneficial applications such as food production or recreation."

Plants represent the most abundant renewable raw material in the world. Dr. Klass said in the article. It has been estimated that the total carbon produced by plants is about 146 billion tons each year--in principle, a massive supply of organic carbon for conversion to gas.

The first consideration in bringing this promise into reality will be obtaining enough plants to support the scheme. By balancing the carbon-producing plants of certain plants with geographical traits, several alternatives are possible, he said. But they all have one feature in common: Large land areas.

"Large areas are certainly required, but in terms of the land distribution pattern of the continental U.S., the possibility of commercializing such technology definitely exists," he said. "For example, the 100,000-square-mile desert area, or the equivalent of a 315-mile square, which is primarily in the Southwest, could yield enough biomass...to supply about 65 percent of our current demand."

There are several other factors that may come into play here. For one, Dr. Klass noted that little work has been done to increase the carbon content of plants. If more suitable plants can be developed--a sure possibility, he said--the land requirements would drop.

Another factor is that the plants need not be confined to land. In fact, he pointed out that the carbon content in many marine plants is greater than in their land-locked cousins.

"To summarize," said Dr. Klass, "by careful selection of plant species and growth conditions, it appears that sufficient yields of low-cost, high-fuel-value plants can be developed and produced to provide a nonfossil renewable carbon feed for conversion to SNG."

Which leads to the next problem: Converting the plants to gas. Today, the most promising method seems to be anaerobic digestion. In this, certain bacteria are added to a prepared mixture without any oxygen.

The bacteria then digest, or degrade, the material, giving off methane gas in the process.

"Sufficient commercial and pilot plant experience has been accumulated to demonstrate the conversion of both the higher plants...and the unicellular algae to produce gases high in methane," he explained. "These gases as produced from the digesters have heating values of 500-800 BTU per standard cubic foot (compared to about 1,000 BTU for natural gas) and can be readily upgraded to pipeline-quality gas by established processes."

The economics of the conversion also look promising, he said. Under the most favorable conditions, the cost of SNG is estimated to be about $1 per million BTU's. This is more than the current cost of natural gas, but many experts expect this cost to rise sharply. Also, this cost is on par with imported SNG, as well as the estimated cost of gas produced by gasification of other fossil fuels, like coal.

"These preliminary calculations indicate that there are substantial technical and economic incentives to develop SNG-from-nonfossil carbon technology," Dr. Klass concluded.

Flower sales up in Jersey

The gross wholesale value of sales by commercial producers of New Jersey-grown carnations, chrysanthemums, gladioli, and roses rose 16 percent in 1973, according to secretary of agriculture Phillip Alampi. The 1973 value was $6,435,000, compared with $5,535,000 in 1972.

The net value of sales of foliage plants for indoor or patio use rose 35 percent. The 1973 value was $1,981,000, compared with $1,462,000 in 1972.

Upsala parents hold fund-raiser

Thousands of dollars worth of prizes will be awarded at the second annual fund-raising card party of Upsala College's Parents' Association which will be held this evening at 8 o'clock in the Upsala gymnasium, East Orange.

All proceeds will be used for student activities. Last year's event provided new uniforms for the Upsala cheerleaders, additional money for the student emergency loan fund and furniture for the snack bar. Proceeds from this year's party will be earmarked for furnishing The Pub, a student refreshment center which opened last semester. Among the prizes are two star sapphire rings and a star sapphire pendant.

Tickets, which may be obtained at the door the night of the event or in Upsala's development office in Kenbrook Hall are $2.50.

27 artists show works at college

The works of 27 prominent New Jersey artists are being exhibited through May 13 in the Little Gallery of Kean College of New Jersey (formerly Newark State College at Union).

The show spotlights a variety of paintings in water-base medium, including tempera and acrylics, according to its student organizers, William Hoffer of Whippany, Fine Arts Committee chairman and Matteo Janicelli of 19 Park dr., Kenilworth, a member of the Evening Student Council.

Gallery hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday and Wednesday, and 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. The exhibit is free and open to the public.

Jazz night slated as school benefit

Far Brook School will present its annual benefit "Jazz Night" on Saturday, May 4 at 9 p.m. at the school, 52 Great Hills rd., Short Hills.

Jazz musicians from the "big bands" of Benny Goodman, Woody Herman, Count Basie, etc., will hold an informal jam session. Featured performers will include Al Cohn, tenor sax; Sonny Russo, trombone; Irving Markowitz, trumpet; Ronny Zito, drums; Al Lukas, bass; Edwin Finckel, piano; and singer Pam Koontz. Finckel, musical director at Far Brook, will also serve as host.

Tickets ($7.50) are available at the school office. The price for students 17 and over is $3.
