School board votes to meet 3 times a month, limit time

By KAREN STOLL.
The Mountainside Board of Education, finding itself no longer able to complete its business at the usual one public session a month, Tuesday voted unanimously to add two more meetings to its calendar, on the second and third Tuesdays of the month—if these are needed to finish each agenda.

The vote, on a motion by Patricia Knodel, also calls for each of the public sessions to have a three-hour time limit, and sets aside the first Tuesday of each month for a caucus meeting. Board president Grant Lennox said consideration would be given to a change in agenda format, possibly using the first public meeting for consideration of the superintendent of schools' report, with other business to be discussed at subsequent sessions. A final decision on any format change is expected at the July 9 meeting.

Tuesday's meeting, held before an audience of 25 borough citizens at the Deerfield School, was a continuation of the June 11 one. It was to have been conducted last week, but that session was not convened because of lack of a quorum.

At that time, only Lennox and Mrs. Knodel were on hand, along with about 35 borough teachers who were picketing to express dissatisfaction with lack of progress in salary negotiations for the 1974-75 term.

The teachers did not demonstrate this week, and no mention of the problem was made during the meeting, but Dr. Irvin Krause, chairman of the negotiations committee, was reached for comment afterwards. He noted, although the Mountainside Teachers' Association has declared an impasse in the talks, they have not yet made a formal notification of this to the board.

"I would hope that we could continue our talks with the teachers before this is done and a mediator is called in," Krause said, noting the board and the MTA "are not very far apart" in the talks. He said the board's last offer was for a 7.5 percent pay increase; the MTA has not released figures on their demands.

In a statement released after the demonstration, MTA president Charles Guinta said, "Since last October when negotiations began, the board has made very little effort to move from their original position, while the MTA has considerably reduced its request. The board has delayed and even cancelled negotiation sessions. The association blames much of the delay in negotiations on the low priority given to salary discussions at board caucus meetings." ## Police department plans 'crackdown' on use of illegal fireworks in borough

The Mountainside Police Department has announced that patrols throughout the community will be increased during the Fourth of July period in an effort to deter illegal use of fireworks by borough residents—adults and children.

At last week's Borough Council meeting, the report of the Police Department included the warning that it will be "more strict this year than in the past as regards illegal and dangerous fireworks." Youngsters who are apprehended with the devices could have juvenile complaints signed against them. (It should be noted that under New Jersey statutes, sparklers are listed as being illegal.)

In a statement issued this week, Police Chief Edward Mullin noted, "Each year many youngsters throughout the state are seriously injured through the use of fireworks. A study was made and it revealed that 42 percent of July 4 fireworks injuries were caused by the small firecrackers, sparklers, Roman candles and similar devices.

"Besides being an obvious danger to those using fireworks, they present a real danger to innocent bystanders," the chief continued. "In addition, they are a nuisance, and neighbors and friends should not be subjected to unnecessary noise and hazards because of a few inconsiderate youths and adults.

"It is obvious the permissive attitude of some parents is responsible for children buying and using fireworks," he said. "Parents are urged to see to it that their children refrain from purchasing and using the devices." He (Continued from page 4)

Ban on flagpoles lifted by Council

Mountainside residents who'd like to display American flags for the Fourth of July will find themselves less restricted than in past years, thanks to an ordinance adopted unanimously at last week's Borough Council meeting.

The new law permits local homeowners to erect flagpoles on their property—even in the front yard, if they wish—without having to apply to the Board of Adjustment for a zoning variance, as had been required previously. The only restriction is that the pole may not exceed 30 feet in height.

Regional board sets meeting on Tuesday

The regular monthly meeting of the Union County Regional High School District Board of Education will be held on Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the cafeteria of the David Brewster Regional High School in Kenilworth.

Coffee and cake will be served at 7:30 p.m. for residents who wish to speak informally to their Board of Education representatives before the meeting. The Regional District is composed of six communities—Berkeley Heights, Clark, Garwood, Kenilworth, Mountainside and Springfield—and operates four high schools.

Students choose Bilous president

Junior Ed Bilous was elected president of the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School Student Council last month, defeating Drew Shulman and Craig Kozan.

Jackie Benjamin was elected vice-president, with Marc Bloom and David Kessler in runner-up positions. Paul Naftali was elected to the post of treasurer and Tina Lassiter was named secretary.

"The primary function of the Student Council is to serve as an advocate and stronghold of students' rights. The Council is the only organization which can speak out and be heard when they see injustices being done to the" (Continued from page 4)

Police chief lists anti-burglary tips for homeowners

Police Chief Edward Mullin this week called for the cooperation of the people of Mountainside to join the fight against burglaries.

He said this is Burglary Prevention Week. By learning and practicing a few simple home protection hints, residents can keep their homes from falling victim to an intruder.

"Your cooperation is needed to help reduce the burglaries that increase each summer when families leave their homes for vacation and weekend outings.

"A stroll around your neighborhood any day will tell you at a glance who's away; their porches will be cluttered with circulars; there is an unkempt lawn, an empty garage with the door open, or a bulging mail box. All of these are tip-offs that broadcast 'no one's home' to anyone canvassing the neighborhood.

"In the evening most vacant homes can be spotted too—just look for the dark houses. A simple but effective means of having light in your home every evening is by connecting an automatic timing device to one or two lamps. Lights turning on and off during the evening hours give the appearance someone is home and may prevent a possible burglary attempt."

Chief Mullin listed precautions for homeowners:

"(1) Close and lock all doors, including porch, basement and garage doors. Use pin tumbler cylinder locks (dead bolt features, on outside entrances and safety latches on the windows.

"(2) Be sure all screens and storm windows are fastened from the inside.

"(3) Never leave valuables lying around; keep them in a safety deposit box.

"(4) Notify the Police Department when you'll be leaving, and how long you'll be away.

"(5) Cancel all deliveries; milk, laundry, mail and newspapers.

"(6) Arrange with a friend or neighbor to cut the lawn; also ask him to pick up handbills and circulars.

"(7) Leave shades and blinds as you normally do; closed blinds makes an effective screen for the burglar."

He added, "There is no such thing as a burglar-proof home. But following the suggestions listed above will help to protect your home whenever you're away."

4th to sparkle with fireworks

The annual July 4 fireworks display presented by the Mountainside Volunteer Fire Department will be held next Thursday in the field behind our Lady of Lourdes School, Central avenue, beginning at 9 p.m. In case of rain, the program will be presented the following night.

The firemen requested residents obey no-parking signs that will be posted along Central avenue, and, during the show, remain in the roped-off viewing areas. Borough police have announced that the area will be "heavily patrolled" to prevent disturbances from youths who may have illegal fireworks.

The firemen also noted their annual fund drive is still in progress, and residents who have not yet contributed may give donations to any of the department members on duty at the display.

THE OLD HOMESTEAD at 112 Mill Lane is among the Mountainside homes selected as historic sites by the Union County Planning Board. The two-story white wooden frame house was built in 1800 by Henry Baker, an early settler in western Union County. In 1810, Baker constructed and began operation of a grist and pasteboard mill, which stood near the water wheel in Echo Lake Park. The mill and Baker's home eventually were sold to William Darby and changed hands again in 1851 when they were purchased by the Parkhurst family, which continued the mill operation until the turn of the century. The mill itself is gone now, but the Old Homestead remains as a reminder of Mountainside's early development.

lected officials for help," said the Assemblywoman.

"I received dozens of letters to save Camp Lou Henry Hoover and I in turn contacted Commissioner Bardin of the DEP and urged him not to take over the property. ## Report from Washington

By Rep. Matthew J. Rinaldi

Last year's consumer boycott and the continued resistance of American housewives to high meat prices are finally beginning to pay off at the wholesale level. Prices paid to cattle growers and feeders have declined sharply and, if government doesn't interfere with this shift in supply and demand, consumers can expect to get a better break at the meat counter in the months ahead.

The proposal of the Agriculture Department to go on a $100 million meat-buying binge to rescue the cattle growers would hurt the consumers. Indeed, they would be outraged if this led to a rise in wholesale prices to their former levels.

The current losses to the cattle ranchers and feeders need to be weighed against the decline in purchasing power of American consumers since meat prices began driving up the family food budget. The extra expense to the consumers has been in the billions of dollars over the last 12 months.

Though producers warn that if prices stay low there will be a beef shortage, the fact is that it takes several years to work through the cycle of breeding and raising steers. For the rest of this year cattle will keep coming to market for the simple reason that there is nowhere else for them to go. They should be sold at a price low enough to encourage consumer buying and thus take cattle out of the feeding bins instead of withholding them from the market.

Furthermore, the meat industry has more beef, hogs and other meat locked in cold storage than at any time in the last 20 years in an attempt to sustain high prices.

The House Monopolies Subcommittee recently proposed regulations to bar meat packers from owning feed lots that supply the packing houses with grain-fed beef. The vertical integration is a monopolistic practice that tends to push prices high and keep them there.

Efforts by the cattle raisers to reimpose restrictions on imports of beef are another ploy to protect their high profits. But if American farm products are to be sold abroad in order to earn more dollars to cover our needed raw materials and oil imports, we must have a free exchange of farm goods.

Over much of the last two decades, farm policies have been geared exclusively towards the farmers. It was justified in times of over-production and low demand.

What is now happening in the beef industry is also on the horizon for feed grains, corn and other farm commodities—if the weather holds out and production rises. Unfortunately, the Agriculture Department's policies under Earl Butz, the secretary of agriculture, have been designed to protect farm income at the expense of the consumer.

The MTA alleges that a number of meetings have had to be cancelled because the board's negotiation team has been unable to report back to scheduled sessions with firm board offers.

"Now the teachers feel that an impartial third party must be brought in to resolve the issue. Consequently, the MTA has unanimously voted to go to impasse. It seems likely there will be no salary contract between the association and the board when school starts in the fall," said the MTA leader.

Guinta also noted there is "very little difference" between the board's offer and the MTA request. "The teachers estimate the amount of money in question would add about $3 per year to the total tax bill of the average Mountainside homeowner. Since their total salary request is well below the increase in the cost of living and Mountainside's tax rate is among the lowest in the county, the teachers feel their request is not unreasonable," he commented.

Although the board did not discuss teacher's salaries at Tuesday's meeting, they did add one faculty member to the staff—with his salary to be announced after negotiations are completed. Named physical education instructor for kindergarten through fifth grade was Bruce Tamlyn, a 1974 cum laude graduate of Springfield (Mass.) College, with a bachelor of science degree in physical education.

The board also voted to offer a contract to Jean Ott, now a secretary at the Deerfield Middle School, for the post of secretary to the superintendent of schools, at a salary of $10,025.

In other action, the board decided to offer a course in French at this year's summer school, despite the fact only seven children, three below the minimum enrollment set, had registered. Parents of youngsters attending the classes will pay $35 tuition.

Also discussed was the problem of motorists using the dirt track which runs along the north side of the Deerfield building as a thoroughfare from the front to the rear parking lots.

Mrs. Knodel cited instances of cars driving across the field, and sometimes on the sidewalks, endangering children playing in the area. The board's buildings and ground committee will draw up a list of suggestions to improve the situation, probably including the posting of "No thoroughfare" signs. If that is done, violators could have formal complaints signed against them.

student body," according to Phil Zisman, outgoing president.

The newly elected officers said that an open study program of some sort would constitute the council's prime undertaking, while a new smoking proposal and student grievance committee, new course descriptions written by students, and a "stepping up of constructive activity in general among the representatives" would also be among the priorities.

In other end-of-year elections, editors were named for the 1974-75 Regional Yearbook. suggested borough families go to a public fireworks display "and avoid the possibility of loss of sight or a limb from a fireworks accident."

Ricciardi stated he "strongly urges parents to see to it their children do not use fireworks," adding, "and if parents buy these devices for their children, they are, in fact, telling the youngsters to break the law."

THE STATE WE'RE IN

By DAVID F. MOORE,
Executive director, North Jersey
Conservation Foundation

Remember all that fuss about phosphates in detergents not long ago? In a world which can't concentrate on one crisis long because another one always comes up, the phosphate problem came and sort of went, as far as the public is concerned.

As far as the environment is concerned, the phosphate problem is still here—very much so. The environment can't read the outpourings of highly-paid advertising and public relations people who, on behalf of the detergent makers, have managed to confuse the phosphate issue.

However, the environment can read the conditions in its lakes—premature old age brought on by phosphate-enriched water which causes aquatic vegetation to grow abnormally. As generations of vegetation die, they build an increasingly-thick layer on the lake bottom until a marsh exists where there was once a lake. That's called eutrophication.

Not everybody has forgotten about the phosphate controversy. A number of scientists undertook large-scale research projects to find out exactly what the truth is about phosphate detergents. One important project of that type was reported on in the May 24 issue of "Science," the journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Written by D. W. Schindler of the Freshwater Institute, Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, the report makes phosphate detergents look worse than ever. His research used several small lakes in northwestern Ontario, Canada, as gigantic test tubes.

It involved adding phosphate, nitrogen and carbon to the lakes to see what would happen. Eutrophication happened with a combination of phosphate and nitrate and another combination of phosphate, ammonia and sucrose. But quick recovery resulted when only the phosphate was removed in both cases. The research shows that, with the presence of other elements like nitrogen and carbon, eutrophication happens fast when phosphates are added and stops happening when phosphates are deleted. Assuming that the Canadian lakes react like those in New Jersey, it should give us all food for thought here.

Schindler predicted, on the basis of his tests, that "a basin-wide ban on detergent phosphates would quickly bring about a partial recovery of Lakes Erie and Ontario, perhaps as much as a decade before full-scale phosphorus control by other means is possible."

He notes too that most phosphate cleanup efforts seem to be centered on improving sewage treatment plants to remove phosphates. This program will cost the American taxpayer millions, less if the phosphate removal phase is less expensive.

It seems to me that rather than make the taxpayer undergo such a financial insult it just might be better if the detergent makers left out the phosphate. Without constant media brainwashing by the detergent makers, it wagers that housewives will settle for something less than the phony whiteness of their washlines.

How about that?

Postal Service investigation urged by Levin at convention

Citing "shocking mismanagement and mispending" within the U.S. Postal Service, Democratic Congressional nominee Adam K. Levin has called for "a restructuring of the agency to curtail spiraling mail charges and eliminate massive cost overruns."

Speaking at the annual convention of statewide Young Democrats in Asbury Park Saturday, Levin said: "When the independent postal service was created to replace the government-run Post Office Department in 1971, we were told it would be able to operate more efficiently and with less political pressure."

"Since then, however, we have heard continuing reports of favoritism in the awarding of contracts, political maneuverings between the agency and the White House, and the cavalier misuse of taxpayers' money. If even half the reports are true, the Postal Service must rank as still another fraud foisted upon the American taxpayer by the Nixon Administration."

The 12th District Democrat called on the Senate and House Committees on Post Office and Civil Service to launch "an immediate, full-scale investigation into the current postal system and to give serious consideration to restoring it to government control."

"Strange things have happened in the name of efficiency since this independent agency took over three years ago," Levin said. "The cost of mailing a first-class letter has jumped from six to 10 cents, an incredible 66 percent; second-class rates have gone up 60 cents, forcing many magazines to fold, and many businesses have been crippled by the 50 percent rise in direct-mail rates."

"At the same time, services have been cut back and taxpayers are getting less, even though they are paying more. Almost 900 post offices have been closed down by the new agency and late afternoon pick-ups have been eliminated in many communities."

He also called for swift action on Senate Bill 411, sponsored by Sen. Gale McGee of Wyoming, which would delay increases in second-class mail rates for at least three years through continued government subsidies.

Twigs help handicapped Teen volunteers at hospital

Working on behalf of physically handicapped patients at Children's Specialized Hospital, Mountainside, are a group of Westfield students with a big name—Holy Trinity Junior Auxiliary Twig to the Board of Managers.

According to Mrs. Charles W. Anderson of Westfield, a member of the board of managers and advisor to the students, the Twig has been in existence since 1960 and currently has 15 members.

"For some young people, helping other young people is a way of life," said Mrs. Anderson. "They perform many needed volunteer services at the hospital, such as helping with feeding the patients, reading to them, playing with them or just visiting to show interest and understanding."

The Twigs have made a contribution to the building fund, which represents the results of several fund raising projects held to help in the expansion goals of the rehabilitation hospital. "We are very proud of the dedication shown by these Holy Trinity High School students to our hospital. They raised the money through bake sales and a Christmas boutique, which shows an extra effort from a regular weekly schedule for responsibilities which they carry out to benefit our patients," Mrs. Anderson said.

Now at the $1 million mark, a $3.5 million campaign is under way to renovate existing facilities and to make an addition to the present building which fronts on New Providence road. The proposed addition would include two 30-bed units, one for pre-adolescents and one for teenagers, which would almost double the capacity of the rehabilitation facility.

SMUGGLERS EXECUTED

Education Office gives $30,000 grant to UC

Union College has been awarded a $30,000 grant by the U.S. Office of Education to implement a program in cooperative education, it was announced this week by Dr. Albert E. Meder Jr., acting president.

The new grant, he said, follows a one-year planning grant awarded to the college last year.

"The concept of cooperative education has been under study at Union College for the past year and the first program is expected to be implemented in August," according to Brian McDevitt, director of cooperative education.

Cooperative education provides for students to acquire field experience in their major area of study as part of their total educational experience," McDevitt said.

Initially, students enrolled in business administration and urban studies will be eligible for the cooperative education program. "The program permits students to confirm career goals while still in college," McDevitt explained. "This gives them the time to change directions or to explore a particular field in greater depth based on their work experience."

The program, he added, also provides a means for students to help finance their own education.

The cost of everything is going up these days!

We don't like higher electric and gas bills or increased rates any more than you do. But we are faced with the same inflation problems as everyone else.

The biggest single item in the cost of electricity to you is the fuel used in our generating stations. And over half of the electricity you use is generated from oil. Since 1969, PSE&G's cost of oil has increased more than 500% despite every effort to purchase this valuable fuel as economically as possible.

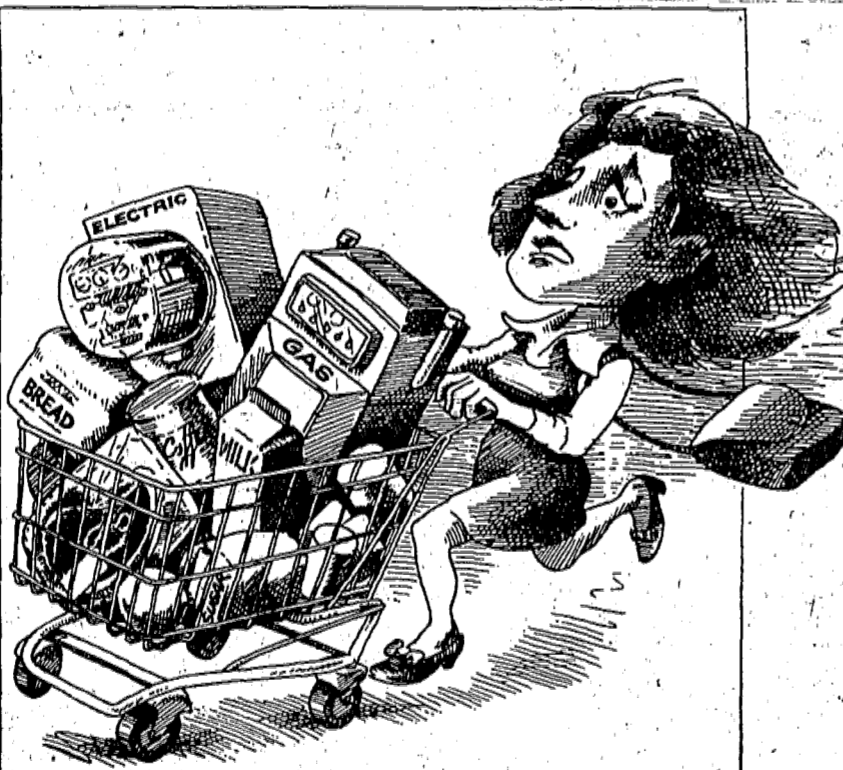

Even coal, which is a great deal cheaper than oil, has increased in price 250% in the last five years.

The additional costs that PSE&G pays for fuel to generate electricity are reflected in your bill each month as a "billing factor."

This factor actually protects you because it assures that no profit can be gained by PSE&G whenever fuel costs increase. (Although fuel cost decreases are unlikely these days, the savings would also be reflected in your bill if the price we pay for fuel goes down.) Unfortunately, during recent years fuel costs have continued to go higher and higher. The same situation exists with the gas PSE&G buys from three interstate pipeline suppliers. The price we pay has jumped 32% in the last five years.

Unfortunately, natural gas is in short supply and deliveries to PSE&G have been curtailed in increasing amounts since 1971. All indications are that these cutbacks and resulting price increases will continue in severity.

These additional costs which PSE&G must pay for gas from pipeline companies as well as gas from other sources are also reflected in your bill.

We don't like it any more than you do!

Inflation forces us to ask for higher rates. Spiraling costs for labor, material, and supplies play a major role in the need for increased rates. Costs for everyday items continue to go up. For example, a ton of asphalt used in construction increased 40% last year. Paint went up 10%. Electric service wire increased 65% over a three year period and a single wood utility pole increased over 50% in one year.

It's understandable, then, why we are asking for an increase in rates. PSE&G's history has been one of holding the line on prices. But facts are facts. It's costing a lot more to keep you supplied with energy. The days of cheap, abundant energy are gone. Gone forever. For everybody. We don't like it any more than you do.

UC summer class students come from all parts of U.S.

More than 160 colleges and universities across the United States are represented in Union College's Summer Session. It was announced this week by Dr. Bernard Solon, director of the session.

While the majority of 1500 students enrolled in the first of two, six-week Summer Sessions regularly attend Union College, there are literally students from all corners of the United States enrolled, including students from the Universities of Arizona, Miami, New Hampshire, Southern California and Wisconsin, Dr. Solon said.

Among the other out-of-state colleges represented at Union College this summer are The Citadel, Syracuse University, Notre Dame, The University of Pennsylvania, Yeshiva University, Mount Holyoke College, John Jay College of Criminal Justice and Indiana University of Pennsylvania.

New Jersey colleges and universities represented include: Kean College of New Jersey, Rutgers University, the New Jersey College of Medicine and Dentistry, Douglass College, Trenton State College, Fairleigh Dickinson University, Union County Technical Institute, the College of Saint Elizabeth, Seton Hall University, Westminster Choir College and Newark College of Engineering.

Among the specialized schools represented at Union College this summer are the Fashion Institute of Technology, the School of Visual Arts, the Rochester Institute of Technology, and the New York School of Interior Design.

The reasons students are attending Union College this summer are as varied as the areas from which they come, Dr. Solon said. Personal enrichment, to lighten next year's course load, to make up a failing grade, to meet a requirement for graduation, to refresh one's skills and to prepare for graduate school are among the reasons given. The students claim they chose Union College because of the convenience, its proximity to home, and its low cost.

For the first time this year, Union College will offer two complete Summer Sessions. Summer Session II, with day and evening classes, will be conducted from Monday, July 22, through Thursday, Aug. 29. The deadline for mail registration for Summer Session II is July 12. Applications may be obtained by writing Union College, Cranford, 07016, or by calling 276-2600.

13 new courses added to second UC summer slate

Thirteen new courses will be offered in Union College's Summer Session II, it was announced this week by Dr. Bernard Solon, director.

The additional courses will bring the total number of courses to be offered in the six-week Summer Session to close to 60. Summer Session II will be conducted from Monday, July 22, through Thursday, August 29. Classes meet mornings and evenings, Monday through Thursday.

The new courses include: Human Biology, Chemistry of Man and His Environment, Transition to American English, Fundamentals of Speech-Communication, Women in Literature, Contemporary Literature, History of Music, Appreciation of Art, Drawing II, Painting II, Selected Topics in College Math, Math for Management and Social Sciences, and Calculus and Analytic Geometry II.

With the exception of Transition to American English, all of the new courses are credit courses, transferrable to four-year colleges and universities or may be applied towards an associate degree at Union College.

Many of the courses offered in Summer Session II are continuations of courses offered in Summer Session I, permitting students to complete a full year's study in many subjects in the summer.

This is the first year that Union College has offered two complete, six-week Summer Sessions. Summer Session I, currently in progress, will conclude on Thursday, July 18.

Applications are now being accepted for Summer Session II. They may be obtained by writing Union College, Springfield avenue, Cranford 07016, or by calling 276-2600.

Pryor named by college to lead equality program

Henry T. Pryor of Cranford, former dean of students at Roselle's Abraham Clark High School, has been appointed affirmative action officer at Union College, Cranford, according to Albert E. Meder Jr., acting college president. An affirmative action plan was recently adopted by the college's board of trustees and is intended to assure equal opportunity in employment and education for women and members of other minorities. As affirmative action officer, Pryor will have the responsibility of interpreting and implementing the plan.

Affirmative action plans have been mandated for all colleges and universities which have federal contracts by the Civil Rights Office of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

In adopting an affirmative action plan, Union College is actually formalizing a long-standing policy, Dr. Meder said.

One of Pryor's major functions as assistant to the president, he said, has been to help recruit and recommend minority personnel for administrative and faculty positions.

In addition to an affirmative action officer for the college, five affirmative action officers for specific personnel areas have also been appointed. They are: Miss Suzanna Polhamus of 1106 St. George ave., Linden, director of non-academic personnel, non-academic personnel; J. Harrison Morson of Edison, dean of students, professional non-faculty; Prof. Elmer Wolf of Cranford, dean of the college faculty, and Mrs. Betty Ehrhgart of 1252 Knollwood rd., Mountainside, director of financial aid, student employment.

Members of the Affirmative Action Committee include: Prof. Oscar Flahteln and Prof. Donald Julian, both of North Plainfield; Miss Elayne Gershan and Prof. Margaret Gill, both of Cranford; Prof. Adrienne Hawley of Westfield, Mrs. Risetta Jacobs of New York City, Richard Link of Wayne, Juan Palau of Elizabeth, William Penn of Red Bank, Prof. Richard Selcoe of Glen Ridge, Mrs. Carolyn Waddy of Plainfield, and Mrs. Violet Wilmore of 216 East Eighth st., Roselle.

Pryor, who also serves as director of Union College's Educational Opportunity Fund-project for educationally and economically disadvantaged students, also has taught at Thomas Jefferson High School in Elizabeth. He is a graduate of Rutgers University where he majored in political science and holds a master's degree in supervision and administration from Seton Hall University. He has taken extensive post-graduate courses in education at Rutgers and Kean College of New Jersey.

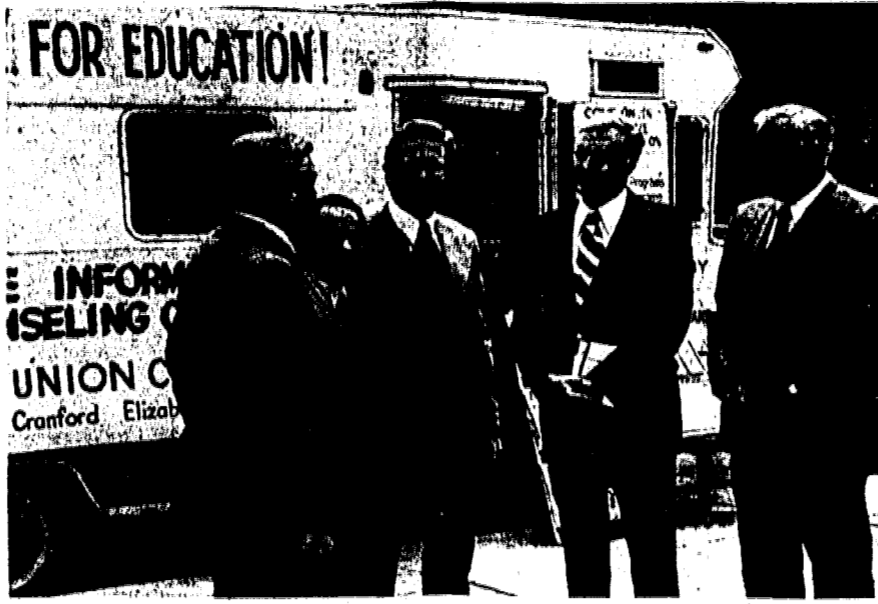

While at Rutgers, Pryor played varsity football for four years and was a member of the varsity track team. He was a member of ROTC and president of Scabbard and Blade, military honor society. In 1949, he was listed in "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities."

A veteran of both the U.S. Marines and the U.S. Army, Pryor holds the rank of colonel in the Army Reserves and is public education officer for the 353rd Civil Affairs Area A Headquarters.

Information about the Hiking Club is available through the Union County Park Commission's recreation department.

Exports of "domestic" merchandise totaled $43.5 billion in 1971; of this total, 83 percent was manufactured commodities, according to the U.S.-Bureau of Census.

Under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973, state and local governments were given increased authority to design and operate their own manpower training programs.

FOR EDUCATION — Business, civic and educational leaders from Union County attended opening day ceremonies at Elizabeth City Hall last week for the College Information and Counseling Center's seventh annual tour of Union County. There to express support of the trailer-based center, sponsored by Union College, Exxon Company and the Exxon Chemical Company, U.S.A., were (from left) Sam Aboff, Elizabeth superintendent of schools; Dr. Saul Orkin, president-elect of Union College; George Otis, manager of Exxon Chemical; Union County Freeholder director William Maguire, and Fred Westphal, plant manager of Exxon's Bayway Refinery.

Cancer unit $40,000 short of $210,000 goal

"We are nearing the top, but we still have a long way to go," stated Rosemary Carmody of Roselle Park, co-chairman of the American Cancer Society Union County Unit's 1974 educational and fund-raising drive, referring to the record-breaking goal of $210,000 for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

According to Mrs. Carmody, the Union County Unit is more than $40,000 shy of the goal. "For this reason," she said, "we are asking Union County residents to be as generous as possible." "All community chairmen, captains and workers are urged to help by getting all kits back as soon as possible," she continued.

Mrs. Carmody went on to say that the American Cancer Society is rapidly approaching the day when we will all see a solution to the cancer puzzle, but in order to hasten that day, we need your support.

"The New Jersey Division is committed to a goal of $2.5 million to help support many national cancer research efforts as well as to provide vast services to the cancer patient and educational programs to both the lay and professional public—we must do our best to help here in Union County, she stated.

Four community chairmen have pushed their municipalities over the top of their goal: Mrs. Doris Mann, Garwood; Ms. Billie Jean Tulchin, Mountainside; Mrs. Helen Piasecki, Scotch Plains, and Harold Beers, Winfield.

The Westfield Bird Club celebrated its 50th anniversary at its annual meeting June 11 at the Cranford Health and Extended Care Center. To commemorate the occasion, Mrs. Grace Haytko of Roselle presented the club with a large chart she prepared showing the state bird for each of the 50 states and the District of Columbia.

The following officers were elected to serve for one year: Dr. Herman Bieber, Kenilworth, president; Robert W. Walker, Cranford, vice-president; Mrs. C. S. # 2 weekend rambles set

The Union County Hiking Club has scheduled two events this weekend.

Barbara Wagstaff of Cranford will lead a six-mile ramble in the South Mountain Reservation Saturday, meeting at the Locust Grove at 1:30 p.m.

Those accustomed to rambles will have a choice to extend their effort on Sunday with a five-hour walk up Canada Hill, near Bear Mountain, N.Y., led by Richard and Nancy Wolf of Newark. Two vigorous climbs will enable rambles to test their endurance. The group will meet just past the northbound Essex toll barrier on the Garden State Parkway at 10 a.m. The hike will include a stop to eat lunch.

Information about the Hiking Club is available through the Union County Park Commission's recreation department.

BUYING WISELY

From Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York, Inc.

Dear Larrie: My central heating system went on the blink a few weeks ago. When this unit was installed six years ago, the dealer gave me a 20-year warranty. The dealer is willing to replace it but wants to give only a 14-year warranty on the new one. I feel this is very unfair. If the first unit was guaranteed for 20 years, why can't the second one also be guaranteed for this length of time?

UNFAIR

Dear Unfair: When you purchased this unit you were given a 20-year warranty—not a lifetime warranty—from the date the unit was installed. This simply means that the dealer is obligated to repair or replace the unit if parts are found defective during a period of 20 years from the date of installation. As the dealer is willing to fulfill his obligation to you, you should expect no more.

Larrie O'Farrell

Dear Larrie: There seems to be no end to the fight with the auto dealer where I bought my new car. During the past six months I have had the auto in the shop more times than I have been able to drive it. I feel I have been getting the run-around from everybody. I thought that the manufacturer was getting on the ball in compelling dealers to get customer complaints resolved, is this pure hogwash?

RUN-A-ROUND

Dear Run-A-Round: The Better Business Bureau has, in checking your complaint, found that not one of the items you are complaining about are covered by the manufacturer's warranty. Of course, it's true that the accessories you are complaining about should give you more service than you have been receiving. Check out warranty coverage before you buy.

Larrie O'Farrell

Dear Larrie: Is it true that insect traps employing colored lamps will clear an area of all flying insects? I saw these insect traps advertised for $1.98 in a magazine. If your promises of insect free living are true, I'll stock up on them as I have a patio and entertain quite frequently, but am plagued by insects.

PLAGUED

Dear Plagued: Your Better Business Bureau knows of no basis for such sweeping assurances. After thorough investigations in 1966 and 1973 by the

For And About Teenagers

THIS WEEK'S LETTER: Here's my problem: I'm 16 and I like this one guy, but he is going with this other girl who is supposed to be moving soon. He has told my friends that after she leaves, he'll direct his attention toward me. The whole thing is he doesn't want to hurt anyone, which I can understand. But, if he really likes me that much, why is he waiting for her to move?
I went to the beach with him and another couple last week and I realized he really does care for me.
In the meantime, would it be right for me to go out with other guys, or should I sit back and wait for him?
OUR REPLY: How long you wait depends on how long it will be before she moves. If it's just a week or two, wait for him. If it's a month or longer, you should go out with other guys, because there is no excuse for him to keep going out with the other girl. He has to realize that she'll be just as hurt when she finds he wants to break up with her after she has moved as she would before she moves. If it is quite a while before she moves, he just might be afraid of breaking up with her. If that's the case, don't wait around, he might do the same thing to you.
If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE, FRANKFURT, KY. 40601.

Couples with 'empty nests' attracted to Cheesequake

Cheesequake Village, Preliminary community off Exit 120 of the Corporation's adult community Garden State Parkway, is the answer for the specific needs of the "empty nester," an increasingly important segment of the residential housing market, according to a Preliminary spokesman. This growing category consists of mature couples who no longer require a large detached house. Their children have grown and now have families of their own.

"We have found," says the spokesman, "that these mature families want housing that provides the same quality of living they previously enjoyed, but with reduced responsibilities. And these are the advantages they find at Cheesequake Village."

The "empty nester" has nothing against living in multiple family housing. In fact, many prefer the added security and comfort of having congenial neighbors close by. However, they definitely desire a sense of personal privacy, quiet, a pleasing environment, recreational facilities and minimum involvement in maintenance. They also prefer traditional, tasteful architecture.

"Cheesequake Village fits these requirements to a T," says the spokesman. "And with units selling for as little as $19,990, the community is well within the budget of the middle-income family."

Location is an important consideration for most "empty nesters." They want to be free of the congestion of major urban centers, but close enough to keep in contact with their children and lifelong friends who may still live there. Cheesequake Village is situated near the entrance to Cheesequake State Park in Madison Township. The Garden State Parkway offers speedy access to the metropolitan business areas of New York and New Jersey and also the many nearby seashore resort regions, but the atmosphere of the community itself remains that of country tranquility.

Residents share in the financial advantages of private ownership while living the easy life of an apartment dweller. Under the condominium plan, they are allowed to deduct real estate taxes and mortgage interest when computing their annual income taxes.

Visitors may reach Cheesequake Village by taking the Garden State Parkway south to Exit 120, turning right to Cliffwood road (first right turn), continuing on Cliffwood to the end, turning right onto Gordon road and following Gordon road to Cheesequake Village.

NEW QUARTER-MILLION dollar recreation complex which is being added to extensive recreation facilities already in use at Big Bass Lake in the Poconos. Architect's rendering highlights most prominent features of the new area — outdoor pool, four tennis courts and an additional clubhouse.

New recreation facilities planned at Big Bass Lake

Site clearing has been finished and construction is about to begin on a $250,000 recreation complex at Big Bass Lake in the Poconos. The addition will include a heated outdoor pool and a tennis area, which will complement facilities already in use in the 800-acre leisure home community at Gouldsboro, Pa.

The present facilities include a 100-acre lake for fishing, boating and bathing; a recreation center with cocktail and teen lounges, sauna and heated indoor pool; ski slopes with T-bar lift; playgrounds and picnic areas. "We're well-equipped right now," said Lou Larsen, co-developer with his brother John, "but we wanted to do even better. We think we're making some really exciting additions to this new complex."

Larsen said the pool and clubhouse were never promised or even mentioned to the more than 500 families who purchased homesites prior to the recent announcement. "Although we have absolutely no obligation to building them, the response to what this beautiful leisure community offers has been so overwhelming that John and I wished to reciprocate by contributing this type of bonus to our customers," he stated.

Larsen pointed out that Big Bass homesite owners will have three separate areas for springtime and summer swimming—the new heated outdoor pool, the heated indoor pool at the main recreation center, and the white sand beach on the shore of the lake.

Four professionally designed tennis courts also are included in the new complex. Adjacent to the pool will be a picnic grove, and a new clubhouse will provide showers and lockers, plus verandas and indoor areas for relaxing and socializing.

"Right on the Big Bass property we will now be offering some of the most varied and interesting recreational opportunities in this part of the country," the developer said. "And you can add to this the fact that in nearby Pocono areas there are more than two dozen golf courses, as well as riding stables, facilities for water skiing and other sports, thousands of acres of state parks and the great Brady's Lake State Game Lands for hunting. Put it all together and you have a leisure and recreation area that may be without an equal anywhere."

For those who are interested in a leisure home of their own in the Poconos, the Big Bass Lake Welcome Center is open seven days a week. Getting there is easy for residents of New Jersey. Driving time on interstate highways is less than two hours from the George Washington Bridge.

Prices for Big Bass homesites, which give full privileges in all the community's recreational facilities, begin at $5,990. Qualified local builders, including the resident Sun Construction Co., will build fully-equipped year-round homes for prices starting at $19,900, plus the cost of drilling a well.

Most routes to Big Bass Lake take in the limited-access Interstate 80, with a turnoff in Pennsylvania onto Interstate 380 to Exit 3. The distance from there to the Big Bass Welcome Center is less than two miles on Rt. 507.

Whittier Oaks model home

Combining the sleek look of a ranch house with the interior spaciousness of an unusual combination of split levels, the Brentwood at Whittier Oaks—off Rt. 9 in Marlboro—presents a new outlook in home design. "It's interesting and new floor plans are a departure from staid conformity," the developers say.

"What the architects have done in the Brentwood," comments William Steinfield, vice-president of U.S. Home of New Jersey, builder, "is to provide sufficient privacy in the home so that a variety of activity can go on simultaneously without one segment of the family encroaching upon the other."

"The home is designed so each family member may have all the privacy he desires," Steinfield continued, "but yet not be isolated from the rest of the family."

The living room is located on the entry level and is overlooked by dining room, kitchen and dinette suite on a raised level. The master bedroom suite and three other bedrooms are given total privacy by being placed on a third level.

The master bedroom suite has a large walk-in closet, another closet, vanity section and private bath. There is a second bath to serve the remaining bedrooms.

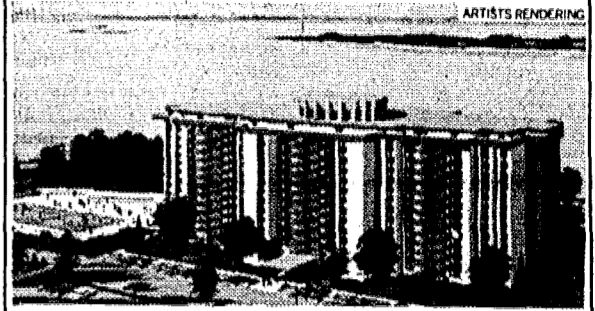

The Brentwood also has a family room, laundry room, two-car garage, covered entryway and an interior balcony on the bedroom level. There is provision for optional features to suit individual buyer preferences, including bedroom-level den, deck behind the dining room, fireplace and central air-conditioning.

Priced at $53,990, the Brentwood offers a lot of living area, away from urban congestion.

To reach Whittier Oaks, take Garden State Parkway south to Exit 123, or New Jersey Turnpike south to Exit 11. Continue south along Rt. 9 about eight miles to Whittier Oaks. Sales office and model area are open daily and weekends.

Activity, 'VIP party' held privacy at Whittier by Schiabor for opening of condo

The Shasta model home at Whittier Oaks is designed to provide a maximum of activity area while emphasizing privacy for each family member.

One of a number of model homes on display at the U.S. Home of New Jersey community off Rt. 9 in Marlboro, the Shasta offers a fresh exterior design with varied roof elevations. It gives the 10-room home an appearance which is architecturally different.

The floor plan has been devised to permit optimum traffic flow throughout the home by use of extra-wide staircases and a modern open floor plan.

The Shasta is entered through a shaded entryway, highlighted with low brick wall and column into a partitioned foyer and center hall. Adding to the outside appearance is the maintenance-free exterior of stained wood.

The first floor is a functioning family center that spreads out in orderly pattern from the center hall into the cathedral ceiling living room on the right. Adjoining is the formal dining room. To the left of the hall is a room which could serve as library, den or fifth bedroom.

The country-style kitchen with breakfast dining area and family room spread across the rear of the first floor. There are also a large utility room, powder room and two-car garage.

The second floor contains master bedroom suite, three additional bedrooms, two baths and storage area.

Priced at $55,990, the Shasta offers room for comfortable, convenient family living—away from urban congestion—

Schlabor Enterprises, luxury condominium builders in Bricktown, Ocean County, with reasonable commuting distance of North Jersey and Manhattan business centers via air-conditioned express buses.

The Shasta is one of a number of homes under construction at Whittier Oaks to be ready for occupancy this summer. All homes come complete with refrigerator-freezer, built-in dishwasher, built-in oven and cook-top range with hood, full basements and hardwood floors.

Sanitary sewers and water lines are being installed simultaneously with construction of the homes. Paved streets, driveways, sidewalks and curbs are provided with the minimum 25,000-square-foot landscaped lots.

There are many advantages to home ownership at Whittier Oaks in the Marlboro-Freehold area. It is an attractive community with tree-lined winding streets with many homes already occupied, and established neighborhoods.

Whittier Oaks and the model home area can be reached by taking the Garden State Parkway south to Exit 1123, or New Jersey Turnpike south to Exit 11 and continuing south along Rt. 9 about eight miles. Sales office and model area is open daily and weekends.

U.S. Home of New Jersey is one of 22 divisions of the U.S. Home Corporation, one of the country's top three builders. Its shares are traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

recently held a "VIP party" to celebrate the opening of the first professional condominium in Ocean County, the Regency Executive Concourse 1. About 400 people attended from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Among them was comedian Henny Youngman. Youngman read telegrams from such celebrities as Joan Crawford, Ann Corio, Rudy Valley, Ava Gabor and Debbie Reynolds. Bishop Andre Penachio, bishop of New Jersey, delivered the invocation and blessing of the building.

A letter from Gov. Brendan Byrne was also read.

A special fashion show was presented for the entertainment of guests. Models were supplied by Black Beauty Modeling of New York and by local modeling agencies. The show was coordinated by Neva Nolan, director of Nolanne Modeling.

David Heppburn, vice-president of community affairs of Metromedia Channel 5 was the MC. He said, "As a New Yorker I am glad to be a part of the growth story of Ocean County. As vice-president of Metromedia, I know you can be sure Ocean County news will be given every consideration in our station programming."

Schiabor gave a brief speech on the professional condominium concept and its impact on Ocean County and the state. "The purpose of this party is to unite Ocean County in a drive to establish ourselves as a progressive community offering every possible service to members of our community. The professional condominium concept is the first step in that direction."

Robert N. McConnell, president of McConnell & Co., a real estate brokerage organization has announced the firm's appointment as exclusive agent representing Glenwood Estates, a housing development in Toms River.

Forty homes are planned for the first section which will soon be open for inspection. Five models will be offered: a choice of two colonials, a bungalow, a split-level and a ranch.

McConnell & Co., offers a total marketing concept to builders in the New Jersey, New York and Philadelphia area. With offices in Bricktown, Pompton Plains, Cherry Hill and Somerville.

N.J. Bell booklet can help to cut cost and worries

Even before the 18th century when the English poet James Thomson said, "A penny saved is a penny got," people were trying to save their pennies by cutting corners on expenses. Modern times are different only because people are more interested in saving dollars than cents.

Now the economy-minded consumer has found an ally in New Jersey Bell Telephone Company to cut some costs and add another "penny got." New Jersey Bell has published a pamphlet on how to reduce telephone costs, and to start with, the pamphlet itself is free.

The pamphlet details 41 ways in which telephone users not only can save money, but time and worry as well. The methods are listed separately under the headings Money Savers, Worry Savers and Time Savers and, when used, they can also save peace of mind.

The pamphlet is being offered free at all telephone business offices or can be obtained by writing to Customer Service, Room 1700, 540 Broad St., Newark, 07101. A condensed version listing 28 methods to save money, time and worry also has been printed in all telephone directories being distributed this year.

In the Money Savers category of the pamphlet, suggestions are made to not only take advantage of bargain time rates, but what to do if there is a poor connection on local or long distance calls.

Mrs. Kay Pfanne of Cranford, president of the North Jersey, Goldfinch chapter of the National Holiday Rambler Travel Trailer Club, announced this week that the club has chosen Beech Bend Park, Bowling Green, Ky., as the site for its 1974 National Rally.

The dates for the rally are July 20-24, and a record turnout of some 2,000 trailers is expected.

Traditional events at the rally include pancake breakfasts, children's story hours, hobby shows, beauty contests, campfires, square dancing, and country and western music—this year featuring Hank Williams Jr.

N.J. offers more than just seashore
Vacationer can find variety of recreation sites

The New Jersey vacation. If you're like most people, the first thing that pops into your head is the famous New Jersey Shore. Miles and miles of white sand beaches... some very popular, some secluded. And along with the sun and surf, all the comfort and diversion you could ask for, provided by the hotels, motels, campgrounds and restaurants that service the shore.

But to anyone who really knows New Jersey, the shore is just one side of the state's vacation fun and excitement. To prove our point, let's consider one small area of New Jersey's inland vacation reservoir: the Lake Hopatcong region, located in the northwestern part of the state (Morris and Sussex counties.)

To begin with, there's Lake Hopatcong itself—New Jersey's largest. Only 40 miles from New York City, it's set in a refreshing forest of fir and pine. Swimming, boating and fishing are the water sports enjoyed here, while golf and horseback riding wait on terra firma. And if you really want to get away from it all, just down the road is Hopatcong State Park.

In the family-style resort, there's bound to be something for everyone. In close-by Netcong, you'll find Wild West City, a re-created town that puts you in the middle of a bank holdup, a

Group says legislators opposed to income tax

The Federation of New Jersey Taxpayers has released the results of a poll indicating that New Jersey legislators are opposed to Gov. Byrne's proposed state income tax by three to one.

Returns show 26 lawmakers unequivocally opposed and two others opposed with qualifications. Only two are pro tax without any "ifs," "ands" or "buts," while seven are pro tax with some reservations. Five are undecided. One legislator recommends that the voters decide the issue by statewide referendum.

stagecoach robbery and other "activities" hitherto viewed only on the screen.

A few miles north, in Newton, you'll find the Waterloo Village Restoration. Located on the old Morris Canal, this 18th-century hamlet offers a glimpse of life during our nation's infancy. The picturesque setting includes a canal store, grist mill, miller's house, country church and more.

There are at least two good reasons to make the drive up to the northwestern-most corner of the state. One is the Stokes State Forest; the other is High Point State Park. Stokes is primitive forest in the Kittatinny Mountains. Almost untouched since the days of the Indian, it features a magnificent natural gorge (Tilman's Ravine) and the lovely Buttermill Falls. High Point State Park is the site of High Point Monument, a 225-foot stone War Memorial that gets its name from being situated on the highest point of land in New Jersey: 1803 feet above sea level. The spot provides a panoramic view of three states.

Traveling southeast will take you to the Gingerbread House in Hamburg. Here, the children will meet some of their favorite storybook characters face-to-face.

For the adventure-minded traveler, the same region of New Jersey offers at least two offbeat vacation experiences. First the old Buckwheat Mine, in Franklin. Here you can dig for fluorescent rocks, enjoy a display of 27 different minerals and see a replica of the original mine.

Your second adventure takes you out of civilization and on a mini safari at the Jungle Habitat complex near West Milford. As you ride slowly along the winding road, rhino, elephants, zebra and a host of other animals go about their natural lives just outside. And don't be surprised if a lion hops on the hood of your car.

Children's paintings on exhibit at YMHA

The YM-YWHA of Metropolitan New Jersey is now holding an exhibition of 42 children's paintings "Vision of Peace in Painting." The paintings, created by Arab and Jewish children (ages 9 to 15) were done shortly after the Six Day War in the Middle East.

Presently touring the country under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institution, the exhibit will be on display at the Y until Aug. 4. There is no charge and the paintings may be seen during all hours the Y is open. The YM-YWHA is located at 780 Northfield ave., West Orange.

VFW posts set as CD centers

A total of 146 VFW posts have volunteered to serve as Civil Defense-Disaster Control emergency care and reception centers.

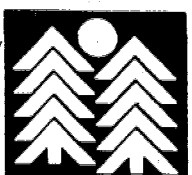

"This marks the greatest response ever received for this community service which has been pioneered by New Jersey VFW," said the state commander, Don L. Scott.

THE DELFONICS

A double feature booked at Plaza

A double feature has been announced this week by the New Plaza Theater, 400 North Wood Ave., Linden.

The theater will show "The Three Musketeers" and "Legend of Hell House." "The Three Musketeers," released through 20th Century-Fox, is a spoof of the swash-buckling type film, as everything goes awry with heroes and heroines and their plans.

The movie, in color, has an all star cast, with Michael York, Oliver Reed, Richard Chamberlain, Raquel Welch, Faye Dunaway and Charlton Heston in the lead. "The Three Musketeers" was directed by Richard Lester.

Bennett concert planned Monday

The Berklee College of Music in Boston, Mass. recently bestowed Tony Bennett with a Berklee Doctorate Degree. This is reportedly the first ever bestowed on a singer. (Previous degrees have been given to Duke Ellington and Arthur Fiedler).

Bennett will appear at the Garden State Arts Center from Monday through Saturday, July 6. Lena Horne will appear with the singer on the same bill.

The two have recently combined talents and forces in a series of concerts across the country. It was announced that seats at the Arts Center are still available. Additional information may be obtained by calling 264-9200.

TV actor now in film

HOLLYWOOD—Robert Donner will portray a newspaper reporter in "Bite the Bullet," which writer-director Richard Brooks is filming for Columbia Pictures. Donner, who is Yancey in TV's "The Waltons" joins Gene Hackman, Candice Bergen, James Coburn, Ben Johnson and Jan-Michael Vincent.

'Lords of Flatbush'

HOLLYWOOD—A bit of Brooklyn, 1957-style, will hold some nostalgia for movie viewers, when Columbia Pictures releases "The Lords of Flatbush." The picture, directed by Stephen F. Verona and Martin Davidson (who also co-authored the script), features a completely original 50s rock score by Joe Brooks.

album include: "Lying To Myself," "I Told You So," "First Thing On My Mind," "Hey Baby," "Think It Over," "Pardon Me Girl," "Seventeen" (And In Love), "I Don't Want To Make You Wait," "Love Is," "Can't Go On Living" and "Start All Over Again"...

Soul has been called "The Sound of the City" and many cities have their own special sounds—Memphis, Nashville, Detroit, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Philadelphia. The "Philadelphia Sound" is one of the most exciting styles in popular music today and the Delfonics are one of its leading exponents.

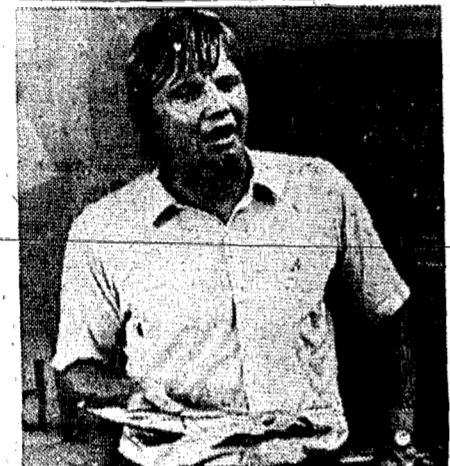

The cool-but-funky, sophisticated-but-soulful Delfonics have turned millions of people on to their sound. In 1971 the Delfonics climaxed three consecutive years of hit records by winning a Grammy award from the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences for their million-selling smash, "Didn't I Blow Your Mind This Time." The trio from Philadelphia, which calls its music "sexy soul," has been on the charts with such hits as "La La Means I Love You," "Trying to Make a Fool Out of Me," "When You Get Right Down to It" and many more.

"The Delfonics' Super Hits" and "The Delfonics" are among their most popular albums. The Delfonics is made up of William Hart, his younger brother Wilbert and Major Harris.

The Delfonics have developed a distinct stage act. They do all of their own choreography. Says William: "We try to make each movement mean something and we put in hours of rehearsal...Through touring the country we've all learned more about ourselves and how to work together for a common goal. We've learned to think as a group instead of just three individuals."

William, Wilbert and Major grew up in the same neighborhood in Philadelphia. They were always singing and formed a group while still in their early teens. From the start William has written all of the group's hits. Recently, Wilbert has developed into an excellent composer and Major is polishing off a few tunes of his own.

They had two local hits before the international success of "La La Means I Love You." William recalls how it all started: "Every morning I'd wake up and hear my little boy say, 'La La La.' It gave me the idea for the song."

JON VOIGHT—Actor portrays idealistic schoolteacher in "Conrack," which will be shown at the Maplewood Theater, Maplewood, and at the Fox Theater, Route 22, Union, tonight only. Both theaters will open tomorrow with "S.E.Y.S." starring Elliott Gould and Donald Sutherland.

Holiday deadline

Careful adherence to this newspaper's Friday news deadline is urged for material intended for the July 4 issue, which will be printed early because of the Independence Day holiday. All organizational, social and other items intended for the July 4 issue should be submitted by tomorrow morning, June 28.

Story of fearless American shown on screen at Elmora

As a result of the film, "Walking Tall," starring Joe Don Baker in the role of Sheriff Buford Pusser, Pusser has become the new American folk hero.

The motion picture, now at the Elmora Theater, Elizabeth, on a double bill with "Your Three Minutes Are Up," is based on the events in the extraordinary life of one of the most admired men in the country—a symbol of a law enforcement officer who couldn't be stopped.

Buford, an ex-Marine and ex-wrestler (he is six foot six and weighs 250 pounds) had returned to his home town in McNairy County, Tenn., to find that it was a wide-open, corrupt community—so he set out to clean it up.

As a result, he was cut up, left for dead on the side of the road, and had trumped up charges against him when he went to court to bare his scars. Victorious, however, he was elected to three two-year terms as sheriff, and during his tenure, he jailed 13,000 suspects, more than 80 percent more than his predecessor. Buford and his family's lives were threatened—his wife was eventually killed and half of Buford's face was ripped apart. Since that day (Aug. 12, 1967), he has had dozens of plastic surgery operations.

Buford now lives in Adamsville, Tenn., with his parents and his 12-year old daughter. His book, "The 12th of August," was published recently and RCA Records has recorded "The Ballad of Buford Pusser" as a modern country folk song. He has been mentioned for elective and appointive office and "Buford for Governor" stickers have been seen throughout Tennessee.

Neil Simon play to begin July 9

Jack Gilford and Lou Jacobi, who recently starred in "The Sunshine Boys" on Broadway, will repeat their roles at the State Theater of New Jersey the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, July 9 through Aug. 4.

The Neil Simon comedy hit (his 12th in a row) is about two old vaudevillians, Willie and Al (based on the team of Smith and Dale).

The cast will include Jeremy Stevens as Ben, Rosetta Lenoire as the nurse and Donald Waters as Eddie.

"South Pacific," which stars Betsy Palmer and Jerome Hines, will continue at the Playhouse through Sunday.

Batsto Village special on public TV July 4

"The Great Batsto Furnace" focuses on the beauty and memories at historic Batsto Village, Thursday, July 4 at 9 p.m. on Channels 23, 50, 52 and 58.

Folk historian Oscar Brand hosts the special which looks back to the 1770's when Batsto was the site of a raging iron furnace and booming industry. The documentary explores the demise of activity at Batsto and looks at the peaceful beauty which surrounds the landmark in the Pine Barrens.

Revision in method of selecting judges proposed by article in law publication

The Bar Institute and Law Center, in an article to be published in the summer issue of the Seton Hall Law Review, has recommended changes in the procedures for the selection of judges in New Jersey.

The author of the monograph, Margaret Gordon Seiler, associate director of the institute, was commissioned by the trustees of the Bar Institute to investigate the matter and the study represents her findings.

The present system of selection is one where there is voluntary cooperation between the New Jersey State Bar Association and the governor, who has the constitutional authority to appoint judges, subject to confirmation by the Senate. Under this plan, which has no basis in law and is therefore not binding upon the Governor, the State Bar has the dual function of recommending potential nominees to the governor as well as evaluating the governor's choices. While this system has operated fairly smoothly, according to the author, it has not served to identify and attract a sufficiently large pool of highly qualified candidates, nor has it shielded the nomination process from political influence.

At the heart of the problem of political influence, according to the author, is the custom known as senatorial courtesy, whereby a senator representing the area where the nominee resides is given the opportunity in the Senate to informally veto the choice of the governor. Thus, political considerations become an important element in the nominating process, probably influencing choices long before they reach the confirmation stage.

Noting that the so-called "merit plan" for selection of judges was originally developed as an alternative to election, Mrs. Seiler suggests it has potential value for New Jersey, both to counter excessive legislative influence and to improve recruitment of well-qualified nominees.

Under a "merit plan" selection system, the role of the legal profession would be institutionalized via a nominating commission composed of lawyers, judges and laymen. Such a commission, representing the entire bar, the judiciary and the public, would have the responsibility for developing a "talent bank" of judicial candidates and recommending names to the governor. The governor would choose his nominee from this list. The Senate, by a change in its rules or by constitutional revision, would be required to act on the nomination within a specified time.

The institute paper suggests the governor issue an executive order strengthening and expanding the voluntary procedures to resemble a true nominating commission. In several other states such action has been taken and eventually led to adoption of a merit plan by statutory or constitutional revision.

"The subject of judicial selection is one in which there is a great deal of interest at the present time," said Theodore Meth, president of the Council of the Bar Institute and Law Center. "The judiciary, the bar, the Governor and the Senate all have noted the importance of this question. We believe that the Institute's study should serve to focus attention on the alleged inadequacies of the present system as well as to stimulate debate on proposals for reform. We are pleased and grateful to the Seton Hall Law Review for recognizing the importance of this topic and for publishing this paper and thereby ensuring a wide audience within the legal community."

Meth added that pre-publication copies of the paper were being sent to those persons who have a role or particular interest in judicial selection. They include the Governor, the Supreme Court, leaders of the State Legislature and leaders of the New Jersey State Bar Association.

Lions name Vail district governor

RUSSELL E. VAIL

Russell E. Vail of Plainfield is the new leader of 67 Lions clubs in Essex, Union, Morris and Warren counties.

Vail was elected governor of District 16-E at the 53rd annual New Jersey Lions Convention in Atlantic City. He succeeds Dominic Petrapoul of Hillsdale.

A former president of the Plainfield Lions Club, Vail has served in a variety of Lions offices.

He was named a zone chairman in 1967 and deputy district governor in 1969. Later he was appointed to posts on the state convention hospitality and mid-winter conference committees.

DISCUSSING SCHOOL'S REBIRTH—Robert Phillips (right) of 1342 Brookfall ave., Union, a student at St. Benedict's School, Newark, will be a panelist on a discussion of the rebirth of the school on WNBC-TV's "Maryknoll World" at 8:30 Sunday morning. The 100-year-old school, closed last year, was reopened by a group of Benedictine priests. Also on the panel will be Father Ronald R. Saucy (left), the school's new director, Father Edwin Leahy (second from left) and another student, Kevin McNeil of Newark.

Computer talks at MIT Machine invented to aid blind

"Supercalifragilistic" is the word typed into the computer sitting in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology electronics laboratory. During a 10-second pause, the computer digests the nonsense word, its display screen flickering as it shows how the word is broken apart and complex rules of pronunciation are applied.

Then, incredibly, out of a loudspeaker, atop the computer comes an eerie, flat voice proclaiming "Supercalifragilistic."

What is remarkable about this computer, developed by engineers in MIT's Research Laboratory of Electronics (RLE), is that it can pronounce any word in the English language, or any string of words.

Banks will address the 66th annual conference of the Savings Banks' Association of New Jersey. Also addressing the conference will be Congressman Matthew J. Rinaldo of Union.

Even more remarkable is that the computer need never have encountered a word before, but can pronounce it by figuring it out much the same way humans do, applying literally thousands of learned rules of pronunciation.

And also remarkably, the computer voice that utters the words is completely nonhuman in origin, having been constructed by a model of the human vocal tract programmed into the computer.

The text-to-speech system, developed by MIT engineers under the leadership of Jonathan Allen, associate professor of electrical engineering, began as part of an overall effort at RLE to build a machine to read to the blind.

The reading machine project actually involved two enormous problems—first, building a machine to scan and recognize printed matter and transform it into computer language, and second, building a computer to transform the scanned text into understandable speech.

Regional plan unit urges support of state tax reform

The Regional Plan Association, a civic organization which has been planning for New Jersey and the rest of the New York Region since the 1920s, this week urged support of tax reform in New Jersey.

The position was outlined in the current issue of the association's publication, "The Region's Agenda." Five goals were indicated as basic to any tax reform program that might emerge in discussions between the Governor and the Legislature.

Two goals are clear, the Association said—fairer distribution of the tax burden and more money for schools where pupils have the greatest educational needs.

Three important objectives are less apparent, Regional Plan explained:

—Building more housing by freeing municipalities from the penalty of extra school taxes if they allow more homes on small lots, town houses and apartments large enough for families with children.

—Saving the countryside by eliminating the need for each suburb to attract a large office building, store or factory onto open land, whether the site is appropriate or not, in order to increase school taxes. These scattered facilities use more land and require more highway capacity and more auto trips than they would if located in cities.

—Strengthening the cities because they will be able to attract more jobs and services to their downtowns if the suburbs no longer try to attract these facilities. Also, greater equality in tax burdens and more aid to city schools will make the cities more attractive to business and to prospective residents of all income levels.

Druggists to hear series of lectures

Attilio R. Granito of Tenafly, New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association president emeritus, who is also the honorary president of the American Pharmaceutical Association, will be present next week as the nation's first in-perpetuity-funded special lecture series is initiated.

The series was made possible by a $5,000, contribution made to the NJPhA by the veteran leader last year when he marked his half century in pharmacy.

Kicking off the Granito Series at the 104th annual convention of the NJPhA will be Morton Rodman, Ph.D., of Rutgers University, who will lecture on the topic: "Drug Therapy in Cardiac Disease." In all, the NJPhA, oldest state organization in pharmacy, will present four seminars during the convention which opens Sunday and concludes Thursday.

Rinaldo to be speaker at bankers' conference

The financial futures of New Jersey's 1.4 million savings bank customers will be discussed by state and federal banking experts Saturday in Spring Lake Beach.

Roger Wagner, deputy state commissioner of banking, and Kenneth L. Birchby, president of the National Association of Mutual Savings

STRICTLY PERSONAL

Dear Pat and Marilyn: This problem is a hundred years old but I still can't solve it. My parents read my mail, my diary and even my messages on the phone pad. I cannot seem to do anything to make them quit. My dad denies it and my mother says that the diary fell open when she was cleaning or that the mail was not sealed properly when it arrived.

Why do parents pry? I have never given them a problem. My grades are good and I try to understand because in every other way they are super parents.

Dear Clndy: Your parents do not have the right to open your mail and read your diary. You are indeed an understanding daughter. However, if your parents are super in every other way, consider yourself lucky. One suggestion—keep your diary locked. If you don't have the kind with a key, buy one.

Dear Pat and Marilyn: My mother is a born drill instructor and my father has never left the Marine Corps. They have bossed me around for 23 years and now I am getting married.

I want a church wedding with all the trimmings. My parents agree with this. But the problems start right there. They are trying to set up each and every detail. My mother tells me that she is paying for it so she can decide what type of wedding it will be. She insists on selecting the dress I am to wear, the color of the bridesmaid dresses, and the flowers. My nerves are completely shattered and the wedding is going to be my mother's and not mine. How

Dear Nervous: Your parents may have to be told in plain English. Tell them that it is YOUR wedding and that you want to be in on the plans. You have the right to select your dress and the colors you prefer. If they won't go for this, consider the old ladder.

Dear Pat and Marilyn: I am 14 years old, healthy, athletic and sitting in my room for the next three hours because I went to football practice. My mother is afraid that I'll get hurt so I sneaked out to play with the team. Mom found out and I am now being punished.

She says that football is too rough and that I should improve my mind, not my muscles. I am not bragging, but I'm pretty good at quarterback. My coach wants me on the first string. What is wrong with my mother? My dad tried to talk with her but she won't listen.

My mother tells me that she is paying for it so she can decide what type of wedding it will be. She insists on selecting the dress I am to wear, the color of the bridesmaid dresses, and the flowers. My nerves are completely shattered and the wedding is going to be my mother's and not mine. How

Dear Nervous: Your parents may have to be told in plain English. Tell them that it is YOUR wedding and that you want to be in on the plans. You have the right to select your dress and the colors you prefer. If they won't go for this, consider the old ladder.

Dear Pat and Marilyn: I am 14 years old, healthy, athletic and sitting in my room for the next three hours because I went to football practice. My mother is afraid that I'll get hurt so I sneaked out to play with the team. Mom found out and I am now being punished.

She says that football is too rough and that I should improve my mind, not my muscles. I am not bragging, but I'm pretty good at quarterback. My coach wants me on the first string. What is wrong with my mother? My dad tried to talk with her but she won't listen.

Dear Pat and Marilyn: My mother is a born drill instructor and my father has never left the Marine Corps. They have bossed me around for 23 years and now I am getting married.

I want a church wedding with all the trimmings. My parents agree with this. But the problems start right there. They are trying to set up each and every detail.
