DAYTON DISPATCH

By MARC BLOOM

It has long been acceptable that the constitutional freedoms of public school students are fewer in number and weaker in effect than are those of American adults.

In 1969, the U.S. Supreme Court decision regarding John F. Tinker and Mary Beth Tinker, et al., v. Des Moines Independent Community School, et al., somewhat strengthened the rights of students in the area of constitutionality.

Briefly, John Tinker, a high school student, and his sister, Mary Beth, a junior high school student, initiated and participated in an anti Vietnam war demonstration by wearing black armbands to school. They were ordered to leave school, and not to return unless the armbands were removed.

Through their father, John and Mary Beth Tinker filed suit against the school and the board of education. The case wound its way through the appellate divisions and wound up in the U.S. Supreme Court.

The decision of the Supreme Court was not a blanket decision. It provided, however, that the extent to which school authorities can impose limitations on the First Amendment rights of a student must be carefully controlled.

Generally, students were thereafter protected in their utilization of their constitutional rights to the extent that they do not interfere or disrupt the "educational process."

This restriction is applicable to many topics, such as student publications, distributions, demonstrations etc.

A major aspect of the limitation on students' rights, the right to distribute literature, faces a serious legal challenge before the N.J. Supreme Court this week.

The case involves Nancy Oxfield who, as a high school student in Maplewood's Columbia High School in 1969, was suspended for distributing anti Vietnam war leaflets.

Columbia High adopted a policy to regulate and censor materials which students wished to distribute on school property. A similar policy is presently in effect at Dayton.

If Miss Oxfield is successful in her censorship challenge in court this week, the Columbia High regulations which have served as a model for many high schools in the state will require almost complete revision.

Dayton school policy, similar to Columbia regulations, dictates that all student publications must, before distribution, have the full approval and consent of the principal, Anthony Fiordaliso.

Fiordaliso exercises his authority to "filter" student materials rather often. All posters prepared by students must have his approval.

Also, a copy of the Dayton Free Press, the school's "underground" newspaper, must be submitted for official approval before its distribution.

Larceny suspect chased, captured by 2 at restaurant

A man who allegedly stole a suede jacket from a local restaurant last week was captured by two of the customers who chased the suspect across Rt. 22 and for several blocks through Mountainside until apprehending him, borough police reported.

Police said Aristoclis Joannides of North Plainfield and Frank Alansky of Linden were in the San Francisco (formerly Teddy's Sea Food Restaurant) on Rt. 22 at 7:50 p.m. Oct. 30 when they observed a man—identified as Pasquale G. Pagano, 32, of Elizabeth—come into the bar area with a suitcase. Pagano allegedly removed the jacket, valued at $120, from a coat rack, put it into the case and left.

Joannides and Alansky pursued the suspect across the highway, down Mill lane, through the parking lot of the Satellite Diner and through several Mill lane backyards before catching him at Mill lane and Globe avenue. Police said when he was apprehended, Pagano was no longer in possession of the suitcase, but it and the jacket were discovered later in some bushes near the diner.

Pagano, charged with larceny, was released on $200 bail pending an appearance in Mountainside Municipal Court this week.

County ready to replace Echo Park flood losses

Bids are expected to be advertised in December by the Union County Park Commission for construction of three bridges and two dams to replace old structures in Echo Lake Park, Westfield and Mountainside, which were washed out in the flood of Aug. 3, 1973.

The washouts have made it impossible for vehicular traffic to travel through the park. Cars have been permitted to go through only a part of the park in the area close to Mill lane and Springfield avenue.

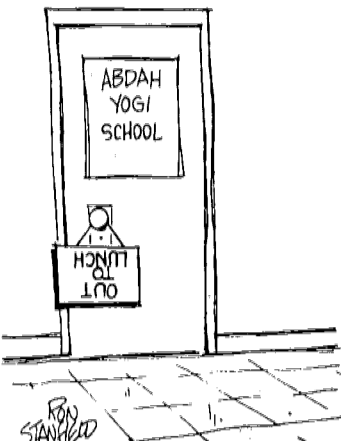

Design engineers retained by the Park Commission are now working on the detailed plans and specifications for bidding, although no written approval has as yet been received from the State Water Policy Commission. The engineering consultants, Frank H. Lehr Associates, East Orange, have proceeded to this stage on the basis of informal assurances of the state body to the Park Commission's engineering department that official approval will be forthcoming.

The Federal Disaster Assistance Agency, which has allocated some of the funds for the construction, has extended the deadline for completion of the dams to June 1, 1975 and the bridges to July 15 and 31. The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders also reserved a portion of the funds for the work. It is anticipated that the new structures can be built within the deadlines set by the federal agency.

Following the heavy storm, the Park Commission determined that it was necessary to hire design engineers for the projects rather than to perform the work with its limited staff. Decision was reached that it was not feasible to attempt to merely repair the damaged bridges or the dams, except for the Lower Dam, and that it was necessary to remove the rubble and ruins of the damaged structures entirely and then to build new bridges and dams. This meant that it was necessary for the State Water Policy Commission to consider each of the items involved as an encroachment over waterways. The state board then required a complete topographic survey of the entire Echo Lake Park, which was carried out under difficult circumstances last winter by members of the Park Commission's engineering staff. This survey with accompanying detailed records and data went to the design engineers in March. They completed necessary hydraulic calculations and the applications for approval were submitted to the Water Policy board in July, with written approval expected from the state since September.

LAFF OF THE WEEK

Jail work release program fosters jobs for inmates

Union County Sheriff Ralph Oriscello announced this week that 82 inmates have participated in the Union County Jail Work Release Program from Jan. 1, 1973 to Sept. 30, 1974. As work release administrator, the sheriff revealed the inmates earned a total of $32,089.48 and of this amount $7,581 was turned over to the Union County Treasurer's office for 2,527 days board.

Of the 82 inmates, 15 were removed from the program prior to completing their sentences for infractions of the rules and regulations.

Sheriff Oriscello explained that according to the guidelines established by the New Jersey Department of Institutions and Agencies, only 3 percent of the jail population is eligible. The other 97 percent are awaiting Grand Jury action, trial or sentence and therefore ineligible to participate in the program.

Renovations of a ground floor section of the jail building, formerly occupied by the Public Works Department, should be completed within the next month. This section will be separate from the main jail and will provide minimum security with separate entrances to allow inmates to come and go to work without interfering with jail security.

Most of the inmates participating in the program are serving comparatively short sentences for domestic relations offenses or in some cases drunken driving and drug offenses. The program allows both men and women who are supporting families to continue to support them while serving their jail sentence. As a consequence the families do not have to rely on public assistance while the wage earner is incarcerated.

The work release program has been most effective for subjects sent to jail in domestic matters. The argument by the defendant that if he were put in jail he would be unable to pay his family anything, has proved that the program is effective.

OTTO WADLE

Hospital Ball will honor Wadle, Dr. Steinbaum

A Otto Wadle osteopathic physician and a longtime member of the board of trustees will be the guests tomorrow evening at the annual Memorial General Hospital Centennial Charity Ball at the Hotel Suburban, Summit.

Dr. David S. Steinbaum, who helped open the door to the establishment of osteopathic hospitals in New Jersey, and Otto Wadle a former resident of Union, who has served the hospital for the past 16 years, will help celebrate the 100th anniversary of osteopathy at the ball, according to Mrs. Alma Roberts, Mrs. Lucille Valasa and Mrs. Dolores Wadle, co-chairladies of the affair.

A retired builder, and chairman of the Memorial General's Building Committee, Wadle has helped direct the growth of the community hospital from 23 to its present 180 beds.

Dr. Steinbaum has served Bayonne as a general practitioner for 45 years. In 1935 he was one of the osteopathic physicians who helped secure the passage of the Uniform Practice Act which granted full practice rights to osteopaths.

He is a member of the American Osteopathic Association, the Hudson County Osteopathic Medical Society and the New Jersey Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons, of which he is a trustee. Nine members of his family are practicing osteopaths.

Terry Meeuwzen, Miss America 1973, will be featured entertainer at the ball. She will sing with the Mel Arnold orchestra, which will provide music for dancing throughout the evening.

The ball will begin with a cocktail hour at 7:30 p.m., followed by a prime ribs dinner at 8:30.

Irish songs at college

Sister Eileen Dolan, soprano, will solo in a lecture-recital of old Irish songs in Xavier Auditorium at the College of Saint Elizabeth, convent station, tonight at 7:30.

The program, sponsored by the Honors Program of the college, will include Gaelic melodies of the 16th through the 19th centuries, grouped as songs of sleep, of lament and of love.

Sister Eileen will be accompanied on the piano by Alice Dolan Rohan, and on the Irish harp by Peggyanne Dolan, who will also play several solo selections.

The concert is open to the public at no charge.

Rehearsal open to area students

Area school students have been invited to attend the dress rehearsal of Handel's "Messiah" by The Masterwork Chorus and Orchestra, directed by David Randolph, on Wednesday, Dec. 4, at Avery Fisher Hall, Lincoln Center, New York, from 4:30 to 7 p.m.

Tickets for the rehearsal are free but they must be requested in writing, on school stationery by a teacher. Requests should be sent to The Masterwork Music and Art Foundation, 300 Mendham Road, Morristown.

Trailside to skip shows on Sunday

No formal programs will be presented on Sunday at either the Trailside Nature and Science Center or the Trailside Planetarium.

However, the public is encouraged to visit and enjoy displays and exhibits at the Trailside facilities, which are available on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays from 1 to 5 p.m. and on weekdays except Fridays from 3 to 5 p.m.

The Planetarium, during the week, will feature "The Sky Is Falling," describing the great meteor shower of 1848. This will be presented at 4 p.m. on Monday through Thursday, and at 8 p.m. on Wednesday. Tickets are issued for Planetarium programs on a first-come, first-served basis. They may be obtained at the Trailside office. The Planetarium seats 35 persons at a time. Children under eight years of age are not admitted.

Medical lectures offered to laymen

The Union County Medical Society and Union College are continuing their jointly-sponsored Saturday morning medical lectures for lay people.

The series of 10 programs, which began Sept. 28, covers medical problems and medical-socioeconomic issues. It is believed to be the first course of its type offered jointly by a county medical society and a community college.

Conducted from 10 a.m. to noon in the college auditorium in Cranford, the programs open with a one-hour presentation of the material to be covered, followed by a one-hour question and answer session. The classes are open to the public.

Thanksgiving foods in plentiful supply

If you're planning a Thanksgiving dinner, you will be happy to know that most of the traditional foodstuffs for the national holiday are in plentiful supply. Turkey and cranberries are plentiful and sweet potatoes are adequate, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's food market alert for November. The USDA projections are based on reports from growers and producers in mid-October.

RED MEATS

Beef in plentiful supply but lower grade beef accounts for a moderately high production during November.
Pork supplies adequate. Production seasonally large and moderately above a year ago but below the November 1970-72 average.

POULTRY & EGGS

Turkeys in plentiful supply because of record cold storage holdings about one-third greater than a year ago and one-half more than the 1971-73 average. This more than offsets the expected decline in new-crop marketings.
Broiler-fryer production adequate although 10 percent less than a year ago and five percent under the 1971-73 average.
Eggs adequate although output is likely to be two to three percent under 1973 and six percent below the 1971-73 average.

Fluid milk, butter, cheese and nonfat dry milk continue in adequate supply though milk production at seasonal low. Commercial stocks of dairy products will remain well above the 1971-73 November average.

PRODUCE

Fresh cranberries and cranberry products plentiful with production at near record levels—seven percent above last year and five percent ahead of the 1971-73 average.
Pears also plentiful with record crops in the Anjou and Bose varieties.
Apples plentiful. The commercial crop equals last year's and is slightly above the 1971-73 average.
Fresh grapes adequate. Production in California, main grower, is down three percent from last year but 17 percent above the 1971-73 average.

Fresh citrus fruits and citrus juices and frozen concentrated orange juice plentiful. Florida's frozen orange juice stocks at the end of September were 11 percent above last year's large supply. Production of early, mid-season and Naval orange varieties up six percent from last season and 14 percent above 1971-73 average. Grapefruit production (excluding desert production regions in California) down eight percent from last year.

Canned non-citrus fruits adequate.
Raisins and dried prunes expected to be plentiful.
Onions plentiful in view of 1974 storage crop 18 percent larger than last year's.
Sweet potatoes adequate, with production seven percent ahead of last year's and 10 percent bigger than the 1971-73 average. Irish potatoes plentiful. Frozen potato stocks up 46 percent over last year's low supplies, 11 percent above the 1971-73 average.

Frozen vegetables plentiful. Sept. 30 stocks 15 percent greater than last year's. Canned vegetables adequate. More tomatoes and tomato productions will be available and the same or fewer supplies of other major canned vegetables.

Peanuts plentiful. Walnuts plentiful because of carryover from record 1973 crop. Almonds plentiful.

GRAINS, LEGUMES

Rice plentiful with record crop 22 percent above last year's and 29 percent higher than the 1971-73 average.
Dry beans and dry peas plentiful. Record dry bean crop, 31 percent larger than last year's. Dry pea production expected to more than double last year's and exceed 1971-73 average by 36 percent.

Wheat supplies adequate for U.S. food needs. Exports will be smaller than last year. Output is a record high—four percent above 1973 and 10 percent above the 1971-73 average.
Corn supplies for food use adequate despite 16 percent reduction from both the 1971 and 1972-73 average.

Secretaries plan program on law

The Summit and West Essex Chapters of the National Secretaries Association (International) will sponsor a seminar on the topic, "There's No Excuse for Ignorance of the Law," on Saturday, Nov. 16 from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Manor in West Orange. The registration fee of $11 includes coffee, a Danish and luncheon.

The program will be presented by Barry Freedman, a New Jersey attorney. Freedman has been involved for several years in courses dealing with "Law for the Laymen." There will be a discussion and question period for the participants.
All secretaries have been invited to attend.

THE PITTSBURGHETTES, a girls' barbershop quartet from the Keystone state, will visit this area for the first time Friday and Saturday evening, Dec. 6 and 7. The foursome includes (clockwise from top left): Ellen Hood, lead; Diana Neal, tenor; Dottie Rhoades, bass, and Myrna Kleber, baritone. They will appear at Westfield High School in the annual "Harmony Holiday" performance of the Colonial Chorus, local chapter of SPEBSQSA, the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America. The show will also feature another girls' quartet, "The Treetops," and the current international champion barbershop quartet, "The Regents."

Kean conference to examine police, community relations

A police-community relations conference, open to municipal police officers of Union County, will be held in Downs Hall at Kean College of New Jersey on Nov. 15 from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. The conference is sponsored by the college's office of community services and faculty members representing the academic departments of sociology and social work, psychology, education and history.

The conference's purpose, according to Dr. Jane Wase, a member of the college's sociology and social work faculty, who designed its program, is to "examine the relationship between certain communities and their vested representatives, the police."

Dr. Wase believes that such an examination "will contribute to greater understanding on the part of police officers by helping them to become more aware of the problems faced by these groups in coping with modern urban society in an era that presents a particularly difficult and complex adjustment problem."

The conference's focus, she said, will be on "the role of the police in ameliorating that problem."

A framework for the panel sessions of the conference will be outlined in an historical overview of law enforcement-community relations presented by Dr. Donald Rachle, of the Kean College history department at 9 a.m. The conference, an outgrowth of requests by Union Township's police commissioner and member of the college's community advisory board, James Conlon, will include concurrent morning workshops on police as a social control in a democratic society, the police and the individual, the police and the Spanish speaking community and the educational perspective. Panelists include Marshall Forman of the college's department of sociology and social work, Dr. Barbara Stemberge of the department of psychology, Dr. Orlando Edreira of the foreign language department and Dr. Richard Nichols of the department of educational arts and systems.

The workshops will be held from 10 to 11:15 a.m. and from noon to 1 p.m., followed by a summary session and a general question and answer period concluding at 1:30 p.m. Police officers wishing to register for the conference or obtain additional information should call Kean College's office of community services at 527-2053.
