a fine, feathered fa and the Christmas Owl

By THE REV. CHARLES B. URNICK

Our Lady of Lourdes Church "But there's no one to play with, Mommy," whimpered young Timmy, holding back a great big tear. "I don't have anyone to play with Timmy and his Mommy and Daddy moved out to the little community of Mountainside only a few weeks earlier. They used to live in the city, but now they had a beautiful home in the suburbs. For the first time in his life Timmy had a back back yard to play in, and even a room all his own. But today, on this bright December morning, little Timmy had no one to play with, no friends in this strange new town.

In all of his six years, he had never felt so

He went out to the big back yard where he walked around under the trees. He tossed a ball up into the air a few times, but soon became bored; there was no one to play with him. All the big kids were still in school, so he couldn't even watch them play in the other yards as he had done a few days before.

Suddenly, he thought he heard a noise. He looked around, but all he saw was the old oak tree. He saw it every day; it stood right outside his bedroom window, but today somehow it was different. He decided to get a closer look

There, high up in the tree, was a strange pointed beak and two huge dreamy eyes were all little Timmy could see except for the brown feathers

"Hey, you!" Timmy called.

"Who?" replied the creature, moving a little. "You," answered Timmy. "What are you doing sitting in my tree? But the creature didn't answer, and Timmy sort of remembered all that the adults had said about animals not being able to talk. Still, Timmy had no one to play with, and no one to talk to, so he decided to sit down in front of the oak tree and see what this strange bird would his big round eyes widely.

"Me" said Timmy looking up "Yes, you. Why are you sitting here all alone on a nice day like today?"

"Because there's no one around to play with me," said Timmy. "Will you play with me?" "I remember once when I was all alone in a strange place," mused the creature as he stretched out his wings. "Would you like me to tell you about it?" "Oh, please do," said Timmy eagerly, and he settled himself comfortably on the ground. And Recreation Director Sue Winans, explaining the commission's request for the fees, noted, "They are to help defray some of our costs. In 1974 and 1975, the cost of lighting and maintaining the tennis courts came to approximately 19 percent of our total operational budget. In 1975, we expended $2,900, and the projected court maintenance for 1976 is $3,535.

First blood drive of '76 planned in coming month

The Westfield-Mountainside Chapter of the American National Red Cross will hold its first blood drive of 1976 on Jan, 20 at the Presbyterian Church, Mountain avenue, Westfield.

Mrs. Edward W. Love, blood program chairman, expressed the hope that "area residents will continue in their spirit of giving as they have so generously done in the past. For those residents who have never donated blood, she urged that they start the New Year by "giving a most precious gift to save a life."

"There is an effort being made to make up anticipated shortages in blood supplies for area hospitals that occur over the holiday period, Mrs. Love said. "All donors are screened and examined according to standards established by federal, state and local health departments. Temperature, pulse, blood pressure and hemoglobin are checked. Approximately one pint of blood is taken from each donor by a trained technician or a registered nurse. The donor's body replenishes the fluid lost in 24

She added that "1976 is a year to celebrate and reflect on America's proud heritage. The Red Cross is part of that heritage. All Americans can count on the Red Cross for aid and the Blood Bank is one of its most important functions. In return, the Red Cross must count on the good will of its citizens in order to func-

Three teenagers are charged with theft of car radios

Mountainside police reported the arrest Saturday of three teenagers on charges of break and entry and possession of stolen property-citizens' band radios allegedly taken from cars parked at the Mountainside Inn.

Apprehended at 10 p.m. on Rt. 22 by Ptl. Jack Yerich were Edward F. Jenkins, 19, of Highland Park; Russel Rawls, 19, of Piscataway, and a 16-year-old boy, also of Highland Park. Jenkins and Rawls have been remanded to Union County Jail, Elizabeth, in lieu of $1,000 bail each, pending an appearance in Mountainside Municipal Court on Jan. 7. Their younger companion was sent to the Juvenile Detention Center in Elizabeth.

According to Ptl. Yerich, he was on patrol on Rt. 22 West Saturday night when he saw an auto leave the Mountainside Inn parking lot and proceed down the highway "at an unusually slow rate of speed." When he halted the vehicle for a routine check at New Providence road, he reportedly saw one of the radios, partially hidden by a jacket, on the rear floor. Investigation revealed two more radios, police

According to police, there has been a rash of CB radio thefts in the borough in recent weeks. and they urged owners of the devices to be alert to the problem. "Cars with the radios are easily spotted because of the second antenna on the vehicle," a department spokesman said

Yule fable

"And before another word was said, this man looked right up at me and said, 'Strange and special bird, we come from the East looking for a wonderful child. His star has guided us this far, here to the edge of the town of Bethlehem. but now the star is hidden in the clouds. Do you know how to find this Child we seek?"

Owl was looking right into Timmy's eyes as he continued with the story.

"And then a very strange thing happened Without knowing exactly where I was going, I suddenly took off from the palm tree and picked up the rein of the lead camel and flew up into the air above the clouds. And there I saw the bright and beautiful star the men had been talking about, Slowly, I flew toward it, pulling the camel's rein with me.

"After a little while night had come completely and the star hovered over a small wooden building, a stable. A stable? How odd, I thought, that a star would stand right over a stable. I dived low, back through the layer of clouds and landed on a beam inside the stable, and do you know what I saw?

"No, tell me, please tell me!" begged Timmy, spellbound by his Owl friend.

"Two people were kneeling beside the manger, and I looked into the manger and saw a little baby boy sound asleep. I wondered what the three men would think. This couldn't be the place where three well-dressed men would be going. There wasn't even room enough for

"But the men didn't seem to mind at all. They were hurrying off their camels and going inside with gifts for this poor family. The mother smiled beautifully and the father stood up protectively. Even the Baby looked up from His bed of straw and smiled as these men presented their gifts and knelt to look at Him. Even I

"Can owls smile?" asked Timmy.

"Sure," smiled Owl, "when we're with

"Timmy, Timmy, what are you doing?" called his mother. "You've been sleeping by that old tree for almost an hour. No wonder you fell asleep staring at that old thing."

"What?" said Timmy sleepily. "But I wasn't asleep, really I wasn't."

"Never mind, young man," said his mother.
"Come in here right now before you catch a cold."

So Timmy got up and started obediently toward the kitchen door. Halfway there, he turned back toward the old oak tree and saw Owl smiling at him, just like Owl had said he smiled at the Baby in his story. And now Timmy started to smile too. Christmas in this new town wouldn't be so lonesome after all.

A quirk in our immigration law has forced single, divorced, or widowed Americans to run into obstacles that married people don't encounter. Until now, only married U.S. citizens could bring an alien orphan they intend to adopt into the country under the status of "child"-a preference which speeds up immigration. The single citizen has been denied the right to declare this classification, which often results in a wait of more than two years for the child to immigrate under the non-preference quota.

Fortunately, Congress recently enacted and sent to the President legislation to correct this inequity. I was pleased to serve as principal Senate sponsor of that legislation.

The measure smooths the way for adoption by single people by extending to them the same right as married citizens to bring in foreign orphans under the preference of "child." However, giving them this right does not exempt them from meeting state and federal pre-adoption requirements set up to protect the best interests of the child.

I first encountered the inequity in our immigration law when my bill to expedite the adoption of Vietnamese orphans was implemented two years ago. This legislation reduced the immigration wait for these needy youngsters from two years to a few months. But single citizens who were otherwise perfectly qualified were thwarted in their efforts to adopt them.

Since then, other cases have convinced me that the law must be amended to give more qualified citizens the opportunity to adopt. In particular, the law's unfairness has caused unnecessary heartbreak for single Americans unable to adopt their own foreign-born

Bestowers list groups getting cash, presents

The Mountainside Bestowers this week expressed their thanks to borough residents and businessmen who participated in the group's recent Christmas party at L'Affaire 22.

A spokesman for the group declared:
"Every one who brought a Christmas present marked for a child or a senior citizen to the Bestowers' Christmas Party thereby became a Bestower. This part of the Bestowers' peopleto-people effort to help the needy was completed with the distribution of these presents More than 400 gifts were delivered by Mrs. Marilu Greeley and her committee to the Westfield Day Care Center, Bonnie Brae Farm for Boys, St. Peter's Orphanage. Janet Memorial Home, Runnell's Hospital, Volunteer Guild for Senior Citizens and Little Sisters of the Poor.

'Cash donors and patrons also became Bestowers. Approximately $5,500 raised at the Christmas party and contributed by the donors was distributed to the following: Mountainside Public Assistance, Westfield Day Care Center, New Jersey Boystown, Newark Beth Israel Medical Center, Runnell's Hospital Volunteer Guild, Bonnie Brae Farm for Boys, Kohler Day Care Center, Janet Memorial Home. St. Peter's Orphanage, Lift for Learning, Jewish Family Service Agency, Little Sisters of the Poor, United Family and Children's Society and Overlook Hospital Auxiliary Aide Group.

"The committee which worked to bring some share of help and joy to the needy wishes to thank publicly those local and corporate business, the patrons, the workers and all the "Bestowers" who shared in this expression of

If the new ordinance is adopted, the fee program will be put into effect in January, with badges replacing the permits. "These badges will have to be worn by all players, so it will be easy to spot someone who is playing illegally." Ms. Winans noted. She explained she would make periodic spot checks of the courts to see that only persons who have paid their fees are using the facilities, but she also hopes the players themselves would police the areas. warning away those who tailed to obtain a

Under borough ordinance, she explained, outof towners found playing on the courts, as well as borough residents without badges, could be arrested as disorderly persons.

"There are some people in town with the philosophy that this should continue to be a free program (as it has been since the first court was opened in 1967)," she said. "However, the Recreation Commission feels there is quite a bit of money expended on the tennis courts and it is not asking too much of the tennis players to share these costs.'

She also noted that Mountainside is one of only three communities in the county which do not presently charge for tennis court use. The others are Hillside and Union. The Recreation Commission had first requested a tennis court fee in December 1974, but the Borough Council at that time failed to give its approval.

for Eagle Scouts Eagle Scouts from this area who are members of the National Eagle Scout Association will attend the 1976 conference to be held in Washington, D.C., next August. Plans for participation in the national conference are being directed by J.R. Lewis of the Union Council, Boy Scouts of America.

The National Eagle Scout Association was created in mid-1972 to "bring together Eagle Scouts of all ages so that they may be of greater service to themselves, their local councils, and their communities," Lewis said.

The association was started after a nationwide sample survey showed that respondents overwhelmingly favored the idea of such an Eagle Scout organization, Lewis said.

The national conference next summer will be a learning experience of the responsibilities of an Eagle Scout, a commitment to fulfill those responsibilities and the discovery and utilization of the resources to accomplish them. Key young men and adults from all sections of the nation will take part in planning for the conference.

Union Council's executive board approved formation of a local NESA chapter at its last meeting and an application for a charter is pending before the National Council, BSA.

In carrying out the program of the National Eagle Scout Association, there is a unique system of pairing youth and adult talents with young men teamed as cochairmen. Teams of adults and young men work together on projects and activities while they share the planning and organizing related to the par-ticipation of Eagle Scouts of all ages, Lewis

Common Cause offers speakers for meetings

Common Cause is experiencing an increasing local demand for speakers, according to Harris Gilbert, Common Cause coordinator for the 12th Congressional District.

He stated that, Common Cause speakers have addressed recent meetings of the Community Service Group of Greater Elizabeth, the Elizabeth area combined Lions Clubs, and Learning for Life, a Plainfield senior citizens' group. Gilbert invited any other group seeking a speaker for one of its meetings to telephone him at 233-2271.

Administration assignments for 4 park commissioners

Assignment of commissioners to four functional areas of administration was approved by the Union County Park Commission on Dec. 16 at its regular meeting in its administration building, Warinanco Park, Elizabeth.

The commission agreed on the following designations made by President Wallace W Barnes of Summit: Field operations, Commissioner Leon F. Thomas of Roselle; finance, Commissioner Norman O. Banner of Springfield; recreation, Commissioner Nelson Kornstein of Clark. Barnes took the assignment in the personnel area, because of the lack of an appointment of a fifth commissioner.

The Park Commission approved of the request of the Model Railroad Club, Inc., to set Saturday, March 6, for the dedication of a new facility of the park system in a portion of Robert Higgins of Roselle Park was promoted to the vacant position of superintendent of the Oak Ridge Golf Course. A Park Commission employee for 23 years, he has been head greensman at the Galloping Hill Golf Course since 1969.

The commission received payment of $15,682.30 representing the federal government's 50 percent participation, through the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, in construction of ponds and recreation areas in Lenape Park.

The Commission awarded contracts for insurance coverage to low bidders. Lee K. Waring Co., Westfield, for automobile fleet insurance, and B.B. Miller & Co., Elizabeth, for general and catastrophe liability coverage and for fire insurance.

Contracts also were awarded to low bidders for horseshoeing services, film, shot gun shells, tires and an addressing machine

Vocational center offering program for handicapped

For the first time, handicapped students in Union County have the chance to prepare themselves for jobs through a new prevocational program at Union County Vocational Center, 1776 Raritan rd., Scotch

The pre-vocational program at UCVC is geared towards preparing handicapped students for the transition from special classes to a regular vocational program. Under the guidance of UCVC's newest faculty member. Stanley Snyder of Roselle, students work with a variety of "heavy-duty" machines.

'We have a drill press, a wood-joiner, a band saw as well as some printing equipment," says Snyder, a graduate of Newark State College, now Kean College. "We even have an automotive section with a few small engines."

Theodore Gershon, director of special needs, and his assistant, Dr. Gerald Donahue, see the pre-vocational program as an important step in the progress of the handicapped student. "The program bridges the gap between special classes and a regular vocational shop," says Gershon "It serves as an important vocational experience.

Snyder agrees. "Whatever latent potential the student has we try to develop to the fullest. It's a great opportunity for them

Bank women hear talk on education

A talk on special college education programs for working women, particularly those in the banking field, was given by Martha A. Petroff recently before members of the Central New Jersey unit of the National Association of Bank Women, Mrs. Petroff, assistant cashier of National State Bank, is vice-president of the association's North Atlantic Region.

In her talk at the Tower Steak House. Mountainside, Mrs. Petroff said that the Carnegie Corporation regards the baccalaureate degree program as a "pioneering prototype for other industries with the desire to assist their women employees to move into the executive echelons." She said that 29 students have enrolled in the program at Simmons College in Boston, By 1977, she observed, the program will be implemented at nine other colleges throughout the nation.

In addition to Mrs. Petroff's talk, the Central Jersey unit was entertained by the Exxon

Kuehn paintings will be exhibited

Paintings by Frances Kuehn of Princeton will be exhibited in the Tomasulo Art Gallery at Union College, Cranford, Jan. 11 to Feb. 6, is was announced this week by Prof. Donald Julian, of North Plainfield, chairman of the college's fine arts department.

Mrs. Kuehn has been described by art critic John Canaday of the New York Times as "one of the most satisfactory of the literally larger-than-life portrait painters."

A 1964 cum laude graduate of Douglass College, Mrs. Kuehn received her master of fine arts degree from Rutgers University in 1971. She has been exhibiting her paintings since 1972, when her work was included in the '1972 Annual of American Painting" at the Whitney Musuem of American Art in New York City. Her work may currently be seen at the Max Hutchinson Gallery in New York. Mrs. Kuehn, a former resident of Cranford, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Tannenbaum of Cranford.

The exhibit in the Tomasulo Gallery will be open to the public Mondays through Saturdays from 1 to 4 p.m. and Mondays through Thursdays from 6 to 9 p.m.

Upsala continues evening course in human sexuality

Upsala College's continuing education department is seeking older adults to attend a nighttime course in human sexuality during the spring semester, starting Feb. 3, at the East

The new course now is concluding its first semester with a class of 13 men and seven women between the ages of 18 and 27. Professor George Sellmer said it is hoped the class will expand to at least 50 in the spring with the age group increasing to beyond the 40's.

Purpose of the course is to bring about a better understanding of sexuality in all aspects of culture and life, Dr. Sellmer said. He noted that in the past 10 years the sexual revolution has opened the door for frank and helpful discussions about human sexuality, leading to better understanding.

Sellmer said it is hoped that a student taking the course will become a person who is better informed and relaxed about sexuality, as well as more tolerant of the attitudes and activities differing from his own.

"We are looking for older students so that our class discussions will be enriched by their more mature opinions and experiences," said Sellmer. "However, this is not meant to be a confessional. No one will be asked to give confidential information."

The course meets Tuesday and Thursdays for an hour and a half each night

State college enrollment to peak shortly after '80 Enrollment in New Jersey colleges and universities will begin a decline shortly after 1980, according to a report released this week by the New Jersey Commission on Financing Postsecondary Education. "The rapid growth of full and part-time enrollment is already ever," according to Andrew Lupton, executive director of the commission. "Enrollments are still increasing but at a much slower rate than that of recent years.

Data gathered by the commission indicate that enrollment at public four-year colleges, the state university and community colleges will peak in 1979, continue to grow until 1982, and decline sharply from then until 1990, the last year for which predictions were made. The two-year public colleges can expect a 30 percent increase in full-time students over the growth period until 1982, while full-time enrollment at all four-year public institutions will increase almost 33 percent.

The state's private colleges, on the other hand, are already facing declining

20-cent increase in minimum wage

The U.S. Labor Department this week reminded employers and workers that a hike of 20 cents an hour in the federal minimum wage will go into effect on Jan. 1.

According to Frank B. Mercurio, regional administrator of the U.S. Labor Department's Employment Standards Administration in Region II (New York, New Jersey, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands), the basic minimum wage, applicable to most workers, will go from $2.10 to $2.30 an hour.

The increase was mandated by Congress when it last amended the Fair Labor Standards

Act in May 1974. Mercurio said the minimum wage of those workers whose jobs were not covered by the statute prior to 1966 (including many smaller retail and service establishments, employees of schools, hospitals, nursing homes, laundry and dry cleaning establishments, domestics and government employees) goes from the present $2 an hour to $2.20 on Jan. 1. They will catch up in 1977, when their minimum, too, goes

The report takes care to list factors which influence enrollments, separating them into those that can be affected by state policymakers and those which are beyond their control. The latter category includes birth rates, competition from nearby out-of-state societal attitudes toward higher education. Those that can be controlled or at least influenced include, among others, tuition levels, admission standards, and eligibility requirements for state aid. The report notes that these controllable factors are those which

Premium rate report finished for Blue Cross

A report on the application by Blue Cross for a revision of its experience-rated formula has been completed by the hearing officer of the state Department of Insurance. The recommendations contained therein are expected to provide a starting point for ending the echnical insolvency" of Blue Cross.

The report will not be made public until it has been received by Blue Cross and Blue Shield, whose experience-rated formula also was reviewed by the Department of Insurance at the same time as Blue Cross, and by the Department of the Public Advocate, which provided rate counsel during the public hearings held on the formula revision.

Experience-rating is used for determining the premium rates of subscriber groups of more than 100 persons, which make up about two-thirds of the plan's subscribers. The rates for smaller groups and for individual subscribers are "community-rated" and were increased by State Insurance Commissioner James J. Sheeran by an average 247 percencent on July 30, 1975

In announcing that the report on experiencerating has been completed. Acting Insurance Commissioner Herman W Hanssler emphasized that the technical insolvency of Blue Cross poses no danger to the public so long as there is no interruption in cash flow

"We have to make sure that the Plan is not paying out more each day than it is taking in." Hanssler said. "We are now checking the financial statistics filed by Blue Cross and the extent of the deficit in reserves.

Blue Cross has reported that as of Sept 30 its liabilities exceeded its assets by $13.7 million as a result of a net operating loss of $40.7 million over the first nine months of 1975.

Hanssler also pointed out that the nine-month report, which revealed the technical insolvency, includes only one month when the new rates were in effect for community-rated subscribers. Those rates took effect Sept. 1. He added that no conclusions can yet be drawn as to the adequacy or inadequacy of the rate in-

In its application, Blue Cross sought to add to its experience-rated formula a so-called risk charge, which would be a contribution to reserves to build up a buffer against fluctuations in the number and costs of claims. If approved, the risk charge would yield an additional $3 million for Blue Cross in 1976.

Hanssler said that the current insolvency is not the first that Blue Cross has experienced. He noted that in 1969 the Plan found itself with a $20 million deficit, which was cured within a 22-month-period by an adjustment in rates.

He also pointed out that Blue Cross is essentially a "pass-through" operation so that it has little control over hospital costs it must pay. Blue Cross's plight, he said, is the result of the inflationary pressures on hospital costs

Auto emission program cutting monoxide levels spection program's initial impact. However, gasoline consumption is now on the rise, while carbon monoxide levels remain low, he said.

The decline in New Jersey's carbon monoxide levels is linked directly to the drop in vehicle-related emissions, since DEP emission analysis indicated that 95 percent of all such pollution comes from vehicular sources.

According to Arbesman, a DEP surveillance study on over 25,000 emission inspection tests conducted over three years confirms that vehicle emission levels are now declining about Arbesman said that improvement in the carbon monoxide level should be attributed to three factors: the Environmental Protection

Agency's (EPA) federal motor vehicle program (which requires newly manufactured vehicles to meet federal emission control standards), changes in the driving patterns of

New Jersey motorists and the state's inspection-maintenance program. The federal and state programs work in conjunction, he explained. The manufacture of cars under EPA guidelines should improve the air quality each successive year, while the inspection-maintenance program assures that motorists are maintaining their vehicles so that the EPA program will achieve maximum effectiveness six percent per year in New Jersey.

Arbesman pointed out.

Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) statistics released this week show that New Jersey's auto emission inspection-maintenance program is reducing vehicle-related carbon monoxide levels in the state. "Carbon monoxide levels have continued to decline," said Environmental Protection Commissioner David J. Bardin, "even though gasoline consumption is higher than at the start of the inspection-maintenance program in February 1974."

During the first seven months of 1975, the federal eight-hour carbon monoxide health standard was exceeded only one third as many times statewide as over the same period in

Bardin said he believed continued improvements in New Jersey would result from implementation of the more stringent Phase II emission standards which began last month at

Paul Arbesman, DEP's director of the Division of Environmental Quality, explained, "We have analyzed, averaged and compared carbon monoxide data from 18 monitoring stations over a three-year period. These figures show an average 12 percent reduction in am bient carbon monoxide levels since the February 1974 inception of mandatory emission Arbesman noted that carbon monoxide levels fell sharply in early 1974, coinciding with the severe gasoline shortage and the resulting reduction in driving, which obscured the in-

Stevens Institute of Technology have jointly announced the establishment of a reciprocal graduate fellowship program that will extend over the next five years.

Announcement of the new program came from Jack Fajans, associate dean of graduate studies at Stevens and from Eugene Smithberg.

Each year each of the deans will designate a graduate of his own school's undergraduate program to be the recipient of financial support for a period of up to five years in a doctoral program offered by the other institution. The financial support will be the form of fellowship or assistantships which provide living stipends as well as tuition remission.

The New Jersey Bicentennial Commission has approved a grant of $7,644 for rehabilitation of the Plume House, Newark's oldest building. The project will be carried out with volunteer labor supplied by the Newark Construction Trades Training Center, which prepares innercity residents for careers in the building trades.

The Plume House, built as a farmhouse around 1710, is owned by the House of Prayer Episcopal Church, which uses it as a rectory

The project is sponsored by the Newark Preservation and Landmarks Committee. The grant was recommended to the Bicentennial Commission by the Commission's historic sites committee, headed by Mrs. Frederick Frelinghuysen of Princeton, who also is chairman of the New Jersey Historic Sites Council.

In announcing the grant, former Gov. Robert B. Meyner, chairman of the Bicentennial Commission, said the project ideally meets the criteria set by the Commission for disbursing its limited grant funds-local initiative and participation and broad community in Meyner said, "This project will help young men and women from minority groups develop needed skills that could hardly be duplicated in a classroom. It will bring together diverse organizations and individuals in work that will have both immediate and lasting impact-work that will help preserve and protect the oldest critique various policy alternatives for the regulation and control of new research and technology.

The experts, who will remain anonymous throughout the study, will not be convened in a meeting or symposium; instead, discussion will be carried out through "policy evaluation instruments" mailed three times to the panel members across the nation

Viewpoints will then be summarized and returned to the experts for a more specific critique. Finally, the panelists will be asked to choose a policy and describe specifically how it could be implemented

The final report, specific as to the ethical legal and social implications of each policy, will be forwarded, along with information and background papers, to the National Commission for the Protection of Human Subjects of Biomedical and Behavioral Research, also established under the 1974 act.

The findings are expected to serve as guidelines for legislation on a national level. The Center for Technology Assessment is a research group engaged in technology assessment and forecasting, while Policy Research is a new organization created by health and social service professionals con cerned mainly with health and social policy

Modest recovery seen by economist

A leading economist and labor-management analyst predicts the national economy should make a modest recovery in 1976 but says many uncertainties could spell trouble next year.

Dr. Roy Helfgott, professor of economics and chairman of the Department of Organizational and Social Science at New Jersey Institute of Technology, states that although the nation has suffered its deepest recession since the depression, the potential for recovery seems good for 1976.

Helfgott, a frequent speaker before business and industrial groups, says the bottoming out of the recession earlier in 1975 laid the groundwork for moderate recovery during the next 12

"Consumers are becoming a little less wary of the future and they are spending more, Helfgott says. This is a reflection of rising personal incomes, bouyed by the reduction of individual income taxes, he notes, adding that since consumer spending accounts for 60 percent of the Gross National Product, any trend set by such a group becomes critical.

Earnings decline at Public Service

Public Service Electric and Gas Company this week reported that earnings for the 11 months ended Nov. 30 were $108,300,000, or $1.99 an average share compared with $112,400,000, or $2.17 a share, on 2,460,000 fewer average shares in the 1974 period.

Robert I. Smith, president, said the 18-cent decline in earnings is attributable to the combination of lower electric and gas industrial sales volumes and the continuing inflationary impact of rising costs in general.

Although total kilowatthour sales of electricity in the first eleven months of 1975 were 3 percent below the same period last year, residential and commercial sales of electricity were up 1 percent and 4 percent, respectively industrial sales, however, were off 11 percent Similarly, the decline in total therm sales of gas, down 7 percent in the eleven-month period, resulted from a 19 percent drop in industrial sales, reflecting curtailments of sales to interruptible customers due to a tight supply

Dr. Wuester, founder of two Elizabeth cancer clinics, purchased the property in 1942. It was originally part of a farm owned by the Stevens family as far back as 1860.

As a child living in Pompton Lakes, Dr. Wuester used to ride his bicycle some 10 miles north to the area and explore all the hills and streams on foot. Since buying the land, he has enjoyed fishing for trout in the West Brook which it borders-"a very pretty stream," he declares-and roaming its heavily wooded terrain, which includes a hemlock gorge and other trees typical of New Jersey hardwood

West Brook flows into the Wanaque reservoir, which supplies more than 100 million gallons of water a day to municipalities in Essex, Passaic and Hudson counties. Dr Wuester recalls working on the dam for the reservoir during vacation from college.

Competition open for 'Boy of Year'

NEW YORK-Emphasizing the role Boys' Clubs of America play in "getting to a million boys before the street does," John L. Burns. president, this week announced the opening of the organization's 30th annual "Boy of the Year" competition.

"Boys' Clubs give youngsters throughout the country the rare chance to take part in supervised recreation, guidance and educational programs—all in a place they can call their own," Burns said. "The 'Boy of the Year' project is one of our organization's best means to encourage boys to choose these positive alternatives to street activity.'

Burns pointed out that awards totaling $11,000 are presented annually in the "Boy of the Year" program through a Reader's Digest Foundation grant designed to further Juvenile Decency by stimulating interest in higher education. The national winner receives a $4,000 scholarship, while each of nine regional winners receives a $500 award. A cash award of $2,500 for use in scholarship purposes is also made to the winner's Boys' Club.

Nearly 1,100 Boys' Clubs across the country will be eligible to compete in the project, open to all Club members between the ages of 12 and 18. Contestants are judged on the basis of service to their home, school, church, community and Boys' Club.

'Unconference' aids in education on environment

In a two-pronged attack, the New Jersey Education Association is carrying its fight against the energy crisis into the public-school

NJEA has mailed a kit of teaching materials on energy and the environment to every public school in the state. The idea, says a cover letter by NJEA President Judith M. Owens, is to create "sound energy and environmental education programs for school children."

In addition, NJEA is offering awards for ideas from teachers on ways to improve environmental education.

"When educators combine their talents on problems like the energy crisis," the NJEA President's letter states, "the result can only mean better programs of learning for students."

NJEA calls its campaign a "statewide environmental education unconference and contest." The goal is to spread good teaching about the environment without tying teachers

1977 Christmas Seals to feature children's art

Children are being asked to participate in the 70-year-old Christmas Seal tradition by designing a 1977 stamp for New Jersey, The American Lung Association of New Jersey (ALANJ) and the Art Educators of New Jersey (AENJ) are co-sponsoring the special art project. The 1977 Christmas Seals will reflect children's visions of the holiday season. Stamps will be drawn by children from each of the 50 states, Guam-Samoa, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and Washington, D.C. A similar project was held in 1973 for. this year's Christmas Seals. Andrea Teats of Palisades Park designed the New Jersey seal, chosen from more than 600 entries.

"Children are being asked to express their feelings about the Christmas season, rather than the fact that ultimately one of the works will be selected as a Christmas Scal. Resorting to an art contest would violate one of the basic tenants of contemporary education." said Joseph Kleinchester, president of the AFNJ

The art project is open to children from kindergarten through third grade. A committee of five art Lung Association of New Jersey board members will select five semi-finalists in January. The final selection

The art educators are: George DiBuono, Holdrum School, River Vale, and president-elect of the AENJ; John Pappas, Dumont High School; Gloria Papalardo, Randolph Township schools; Lynn Dodson, Mount Holly schools: Madge Allen of Montclair, retired art educator; and alternate, Norma Berke, Pascack Hills High School, Montvale. Amateur archeologists Interns have 'dig addiction'

Governor Byrne said this week that the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) is seeking information needed to shape retired army colonel and an airline stewardess the state's management strategy for locating or barring energy facilities from parts of New have in common? Answer: an addiction to Jersey's coast.
"New Jersey intends to base its coastal archeology,

Each summer, the Joint Expedition to Caesarea Maritima, directed by archeologist Robert Bull of Drew University, Madison, sets out to uncover a little more of King Herod's capital and the principal Roman port in the eastern Mediterranean, At the same time, the dig-sponsored by 22 member colleges and universities and the American Schools of Oriental Research—offers an intern program for people from various fields who are interested in archeology.

"When screening applicants for the dig, I don't look only for professional archeologists, said Bull "I'm interested in people who really want to learn archeological techniques and are willing to work hard."

At Caesarea, evidence of that willingness is hard to find. Airline Stewardess Judy Radford of Houston combines two years of vacations into one every other summer, just to participate in the dig. Ralph Eichorn, a Houston surgeon, and Gary Lindstrom, head of an exterminating company in Oakland, Cal., both take time off from their professions to work at Caesaroa Frank Anders, a retired army colonel from Ontario, describes his digging as "a second vocation,

Parkway to offer one for the road

The New Jersey Highway Authority's adaptation of "one for the road" will be reenacted during the coming Christmas and New Year's Eve-morning periods, when non-alcoholic beverages will be served free of charge to Garden State Parkway patrons.

Authority Commissioner Lionel M. Levey has announced that free coffee, tea or milk will be offered at the Parkway's roadside restaurants from 9 p.m. Dec. 24 to 9 a.m. Dec. 25 and during the same 12 hours on Dec. 31 and Jan. 1. Cookies also will be served without charge.

Levey has invited Parkway motorists to interrupt their holiday trips, especially if they have been partying, and avail themselves of the opportunity to have a refreshing drink of coffee, tea or milk.

AAA Auto Clubs elect public affairs chairman

Matthew J. Derham, president of the New Jersey Automobile Club located in Florham Park, has been elected state chairman of the Public Affairs Council of the AAA Auto Clubs of New Jersey.

There are six AAA Clubs in the state with a combined membership of more than 350,000 motorists, serving all 21 counties in New Jersey. The council is made up of representatives of all six Clubs, and concerns itself with state-wide matters which affect the motorist for a dig and teaches them the ropes. "We dig with teaspoons; so it's important that everyone know exactly what to look for at each soil level," says Bull.

Once interns have gained field experience and have demonstrated technical and administrative competence, Bull and his staff teach them other phases of archaeology and assign them to higher positions.

Since expedition members receive no salaries and must pay their own way to and from Israel, some have resorted to unusual fund-raising techniques. A few simply go doorto-door in their neighborhoods asking for money. Others have petitioned an oil company in California to pay their transportation in return for a report on their findings in Caesarea Dr. Donald Fisher, head of computing and information sciences at Oklahoma State University and responsible for computerization of all information retrieved on the dig, has applied to the National Geographic Society for a grant.

In addition to the amateurs, there are a variety of specialists, essential to the study of the culture, who work at the dig site. Linguists. architects, scientists, engineers, economists, historians, artists and photographers are among the professionals whose work ensures understanding and integration of the mountains of data accumulated.

Furthering the intern program, the Caesarea Development Corp., headed by Baron Edmond de Rothschild, has given the Expedition land on which a semi-permanent camp and training school for architects interested in archaeology is now being erected. This summer the Expedition will consist of more than 200 individuals from the U.S., Canada, Europe and Israel.

higher Medicare cost to be covered

More than 300,000 members enrolled in Blue Cross and Blue Shield programs that complement Medicare will be covered for the increased patient's costs of Medicare's hospital coverage, to be effective Jan. 1.

Blue Cross benefits cover the deductible and certain co-insurance amounts patients are required to pay under Part A of Medicare. The Department of Health, Education and Welfare recently announced that these amounts will be increased the first of the year

Blue Cross and Blue Shield Medicare Complementary will cover the following changes in Medicare Part A: The Medicare 'deductible" for each spell of illness, which will increase from $92 to $104; the Medicare coinsurance amount during the 61st to the 90th day of hospitalization which will increase from $23 to $26 a day; the Medicare co-insurance amount during the 60 lifetime reserve days of hospitalization, which will increase from $46.10 $52 a day.

Members covered by Blue Cross and Blue Shield "carve-out" programs supplementing Medicare, which are available to group subscribers only, will also receive the additional coverage of these new Medicare changes according to the terms of their group

The program also covers any eligible portion of the annual Medicare Part B $60 deductible and the 20 per cent co-insurance payment for phsysicians' services rendered in a hospital. and hospital outpatient services eligible under Persons reaching age 65 can apply for this coverage any time within 30 days of their birth day. Persons over 65 who have not applied and persons under 65 who become eligible for Medicare because of disability may apply during the special enrollment held annually from Feb. 1 to April 30.
