Mazzucca will resign from board

Anthony Mazzucca, after serving one year of a three-year term on the Mountainside Board of Education, this week said that he will resign in June or July.

Although the board has been told that the family may move out of the borough, there has been no official notification, Mazzucca said, and a replacement for the departing board member has not yet been discussed. Mazzucca, who owns two homes—one in Mountainside and one in Rumson—has decided it would be more economical to own just one and has opted for Rumson, he added.

Upon official notification, the board will have 60 days to find a resident who will serve in Mazzucca's spot until the April school board elections, Superintendent of Schools Levin Hanigan said. If the majority of the board cannot agree on a replacement within the 60-day limit, the county superintendent will step in and make the appointment, Hanigan added.

In the next school board election, candidates will have to run for the last year left of Mazzucca's term, he added.

'Hollywood Boulevard Art,' Jonathan Dayton Regional High School's annual art show, will be presented tomorrow from 7 to 10 p.m. and Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m.

The show is presented by the open studio class under the direction of David Brodman. Displays will include ceramics, commercial art, paintings, drawings, etc., incorporated in movie sets.

Members, former members and friends of the Mountainside Community Presbyterian Church will celebrate the congregation's 25th anniversary this weekend with a Saturday evening of picnic and fellowship and a Sunday communion service and brunch.

United Way doles out funds

The monthly meeting of the United Way of Mountainside was held recently at the home of Robert Shields.

The total amount raised in the 1978-79 campaign was $22,180. It was distributed as follows: N.J. Association for Retarded Children, $1,538; Boy Scouts, $1,320; Girl Scouts, $1,320; Youth and Family Counseling Service, $3,745; Mental Health Association of Union County, $2,200; Visiting Nurses, $2,408; Union County Psychiatric Clinic, $1,760, and Mountainside Rescue Squad, $7,889.

Mabel Young, chairman of the trustees, expressed her appreciation to Jeff Torborg, honorary chairman, the telephone workers, board members and the community for their response. Young stated, "There was some confusion because of the name change from Community Fund to United Way of Mountainside, but everyone should be aware of the new name now."

The 1979-80 appeal will be organized in September. Anyone interested in serving on the board of trustees was urged to call Mrs. Young at 233-4024.

Manny Bass, Dick Miske and Lou Borchert.

Nostalgia will be the note of the day, as old friends from as far away as Maine and Alabama share their recollections with current members and enjoy a variety of photographic displays, slide presentations and movies tracing the congregation's activities from 1954 to the present.

As the sun begins to set, activities will move to the assembly room, where Doug Tuttle, a charter member of the church will act as master of ceremonies. The program will be kicked-off by a multi-media show entitled "Memories," produced by John Rupp especially for the 25th anniversary. The church's choir, under the direction of James Little, will perform selections from "Porgy and Bess."

The evening will be topped-off by greetings and shared memories from special guests. They will include: Delwyn Rayson, founding minister of the church; Bruce Evans, Clerk of Elizabeth Presbytery and a man involved in the beginnings of the church; Richard Smith, representing the Westfield Presbyterian Church; Father Gerald McGarry and Msgr. Raymond (Continued on page 6)

Voters to settle heated 3-way primary contest

By BARBARA WALCOFF

Mountainside residents will go to the polls Tuesday for a primary election that will see a heated, three-way Republican contest for two borough council nominations.

Councilman Abe Suckno, completing his second term, will try to defeat one of the two candidates chosen by the Republican party screening committee—Marilyn Hart and Monroe Nestler—for the two nominations to serve on the local governing body. Unopposed for the Democratic nominations are Raymond Vaccari and Frances Ehman.

Suckno, who is running as a Republican independent, has the support of all fellow councilmen as well as Mayor Thomas Ricciardi. The local lawmakers acted as individuals and not as a body, Ricciardi said, when they took an advertisement out in this week's issue of the Echo endorsing their co-worker. Ricciardi expressed concern that borough residents might think something was wrong and may get the impression that Suckno has not been a responsive councilman.

"There is a problem within the Republican community," the mayor explained. "There is no argument with any one individual, but there is a difference of opinion with the county committee. The argument is that a man who seeks reelection and has done a good job is denied a chance to run." Hart said Republican leaders recruited her to run when incumbent Nick Bradshaw decided not to seek reelection, and she did not expect to become involved in a primary battle.

Hart, who has just completed a three-year term on the Regional District High School Board of Education, said, "I believe that I have something to contribute to local government because of my long interest and involvement in community affairs; my energy level is also high as I earned three degrees while raising three children."

A resident of Mountainside since 1934, Hart is an assistant professor of (Continued on page 6)

Talks listed on housing for seniors

A self-organized committee interested in the question of senior citizen housing in Mountainside will meet with members of borough council, the planning board and the board of adjustment to establish a format and guidelines for a council-sponsored committee to investigate the issue. The public meeting will be held in Borough Hall June 13 at 8 p.m.

Mabel Young, president of the Mountainside Senior Citizens' Club and unofficial head of the housing group, said that many residents who don't want to move out of the borough but no longer want to maintain their homes, have expressed a desire for moderate income senior citizen housing in Mountainside. Many of the 12 committee members were among a group of 65 who signed a petition delivered to the governing body in December requesting that the senior housing question be placed on the November ballot. The present zoning code allows for no apartment buildings within the borough.

John Post, borough attorney, reviewed the petitions and said that additional information should be gathered.

Post suggested that the committee give the public more information on definitions of "moderate" and "low" income, on previous residency and age requirements for "senior-citizen" tenants, on whether borough government should participate and on (Continued on page 6)

PRACTICE SCENE—Two members of the Mountainside Rescue Squad help a crash victim to safety during a simulated auto crash last month. The drill was part of the regular training for the squad. Rescue squad...report Drill is part of training

7:45 P.M., Wednesday, April 11, 1979.

"Mountainside Police to all members of the Mountainside Rescue Squad—Report to your building immediately. I repeat, all members of the Mountainside Rescue Squad—report to your buildings immediately."

In homes throughout Mountainside and a few of the surrounding areas of Westfield and Springfield, men and women, teenagers and adults, put down their evening papers, stopped watching TV, ceased working on their cars, stopped sewing and cleaning and headed for their cars to get to the squad building. When they arrived, they discovered flashing lights all around, people hurrying to assemble medical equipment, voices crying in the semi-darkness and a simulated car accident.

An early vintage Chevy Vega, donated by a local resident, was the major prop in this carefully assembled drama of the Mountainside Rescue Squad.

The first members on the scene, even realizing that this was a simulated emergency, immediately began to set up the basic systems needed to handle the accident. All members responded with their usual speed and determination, going to the scene and seeking out the crew chief to assign them a task. Triage, the sorting out of injuries as to immediacy of care needed, was established in the nearby squad building. Within five minutes of hearing the emergency call over the radio, a full scale, professionally trained Rescue Squad had complete charge of the accident scene.

Injuries were carefully treated. In the staged crash, there were six Girl Scouts, one teenage male, one adult woman and a baby all in the accident car.

Fractures were splinted, cuts were (Continued on page 6)

Class studies health, aided by pediatrician

Using microscopes, fingerprints and chicken bones, fourth grade students of Gertrude Rockett at Deerfield School had an unusual opportunity to learn more about themselves and their health.

Under the guidance of pediatrician Dr. Carol Kay Lissenden (the mother of fourth grader Bart Christopher Barre), the students participated in a program, "You and Your Health." Dr. Lissenden and Mrs. Rockett developed a curriculum to enable children to understand their bodies and how they worked. The goal was student understanding of good health principles and how outside factors (environment, diet and smoking) affect the body.

The children wrote for information on various health-related topics and meet with Dr. Lissenden twice a week for discussion, questions and answers.

Topics trace cell structure to tissues to organs to systems to organisms; as the students deal with various topics, Dr. Lissenden provides high-interest-level materials. These have included working with animal organisms under microscopes and looking at slides of living tissues provided by the pathology department at Overlook Hospital, Summit.

Models and other visual aids help explain the brain and bone structure. When the students talked about skin, they took their own fingerprints. When the topic was bones, Dr. Lissenden made a stop at the butcher shop to make the terms cartilage and marrow more meaningful. The children were able to see chicken feet which had been dissected so that they could pull the tendons and observe the movement of the talons.

"Dr. Lissenden has done far more than come in and be a guest resource speaker," says Mrs. Rockett. "We are really indebted to her for her gift of time, because the children have learned so much. Because of what they've seen, I know they will remember."

Special events for confirmands

A special weekend of events is planned for the confirmation class of Temple Emanu-El of Westfield, beginning Friday, June 1, and culminating on Saturday, June 2.

Preceding the Shabbat Service on Friday evening, the confirmands will share Shabbat dinner at 6:30 p.m. During the service, which follows the dinner, the students will sit on the steps of the pulpit and join Rabbi Charles Krolloff and Rabbi Howard Seldin-Sommer in a discussion on some of the issues covered in class during the year—topics concerning communal, ethical, ritual and religious issues.

The Service of Confirmation will be held on June 2 at 10:30 a.m. The service, held on the holiday of Shavuot, marks the culmination for the students of 10 years of Jewish religious education.

Energy issue is top priority, says Proctor

Rick Proctor, candidate for the Democratic nomination for state Assembly in the 22nd Legislative District, said he believes the most important problem facing New Jersey, as well as the nation, is energy.

"The state can and must develop a comprehensive energy plan that can save us from the hardship of long lines, unheated buildings, and excessive oil company profits," he declared in a press release this week.

He said he wants to give tax credits or grants to anyone who experiments with or installs alternative energy sources or fuel saving devices, such as solar panels. He said he is strongly opposed to nuclear power and believes that coal and other alternative sources are both "feasible and economical for use in our state."

"My experience in municipal government, which has forced me to deal daily with the state bureaucracy, allows me to view Trenton from the point of view of efficiency, not patronage," said Proctor, health director in Scotch Plains. "The state legislature must come up with standards of efficiency for itself, as it has been doing for local governing bodies for years."

The discovery that someone attempted to sabotage a nuclear power plant near Richmond, Va., adds a new dimension to the growing apprehension among U.S. intelligence agencies that the United States is extremely vulnerable to terrorist attacks.

Experts are divided on the question of the likely targets of international and national terrorist groups. However, they generally agree that America's drinking water, transportation and power systems could be easily disrupted.

Under the Freedom of Information Act, anyone who asks the Environmental Protection Agency for information on power facilities can obtain it. Such information could be used to plan an act of sabotage.

The ultimate threat is that someone may plant a homemade nuclear device in one of our nation's cities. This prospect was mentioned by FBI Director William Webster when he reported the development of a nuclear device that can be carried in a backpack. As Webster remarked, a terrorist group would have the ability of holding New York or Chicago hostage.

Preventing terrorist organizations from acquiring such devices and organizing terrorist campaigns has become more difficult as a result of pressures during the post-Watergate era to curb the intelligence-gathering activities of the FBI and local law enforcement agencies.

In addition, the FBI director testified earlier this year before the House Appropriations Committee that budget reductions threaten existing investigations of terrorist activities. So do the Privacy Act and the Freedom of Information Act, because of the way in which they expose FBI agents and their informers to civil damage suits.

Justice Department and FBI officials recognize that the current scope of domestic intelligence operations severely limit the FBI's opportunity to anticipate crimes. A crime is likely to have been committed before a group comes to the FBI's attention. Infiltration of suspected terrorist groups, which is essential to preventing acts of political violence, remains sharply limited by regulations established in 1976 by the former attorney general.

Coping with all these legal problems without trampling on the rights of law abiding citizens poses a very difficult test of our legal institutions.

At the very least, State Department officials should rescind the policy of granting visas to representatives of the PLO terrorist organizations who visit our campuses and are organizing Arab communities in America.

Another step, which has been proposed by the director of the FBI, is to amend the Federal Tort Claims Act to make the government, and not the individual FBI agents, liable for any damages awarded to citizens whose civil or constitutional rights are violated. The legislation is crucial to FBI undercover activities and the use of informants to infiltrate a suspected terrorist group.

I am sponsoring a number of important changes in federal law to strengthen the authority of the government to deal with countries that harbor terrorists and refuse to prosecute them. These changes would be made in a bill authorizing the President to apply sanctions to these countries, including the suspension of air service.

It also would require manufacturers to tag explosives with color coded grains. This would enable investigators to trace the explosives more easily.

These steps would provide a valuable addition to legislation I sponsored in the last Congress, and which was enacted into law, barring export-import bank loans to nations that harbor international terrorists. The new legislation would signal America's determination to deal sternly with terrorism and possibly prevent its spread from Europe and the Mideast to American cities. At the very least, it would encourage the FBI that it has the support of Congress and the American people in dealing with terrorism, and that the FBI can be trusted to protect our liberties as well as our lives and property.

Sannino sets record in shot put as 7-2 girls beat Clark, Union

Trish Taylor captured the 220 with Laura Clarke second and Debbie Keller third. Laura Clarke won the 220, in front of teammates Carol Wingard and Sue Kuperstein. The two-mile was taken by Elise Ogintz with Dana Levinson and Janice Levine close behind. Levine was also second in the mile with Levinson third. Dayton faces Caldwell High in net tourney

The Dayton Regional High School tennis team beat Berkeley Heights and Hillside in the first two rounds of the North Jersey, Section 2, Group 2 state playoffs by identical scores, 3-2. Dayton raised its record to 15-6 and meets Caldwell High School for the championship. This figures to be a great challenge as Caldwell has beaten the Bulldogs twice during regular season play.

Having outplayed Berkeley Heights earlier in the season, 4-1, Dayton held off an improved squad. Greg Wanner at second singles won 6-4, 7-5 as did Alan Berliner at third singles 6-4, 6-2; while Dave Gchlick and Jim Reiner at second doubles took their match in three sets 5-7, 6-1, 6-0.

Led by Berliner and aided by both doubles team of Mark Dooley and Mike Clarke and Gchlick-Reiner, Dayton ranked ninth in Union County, surprised 8th ranked Hillside. Berliner won both sets 6-1. Gary Nestler at first singles lost in three sets while Wanner fell in two.

In both tournament victories, the doubles team of Gchlick-Reiner decided the final outcome for Dayton as the score was tied two matches, each prior to their taking the court. Berliner, 16-5, leads the squad in triumphs and overall percentage.

financing and long-range ownership of the proposed apartments.
Members of the group, Young said, are interested in garden apartments but would be receptive to the idea of condominiums, provided the problems associated with repairs and upkeep are solved. Young noted that six places in town including the Barnes Tract have been discussed as possible sites for the apartments.

The Borough Council, which met Tuesday night, gave final approval to an $8,000 project to make improvements in the play area near the municipal pool.

After accepting the project to provide benches, resurfacing of a basketball-volleyball court, two basketball backboards, repairs to the bicycle area, resurfacing of a sidewalk and installation of a water fountain at Deerfield School, Robert Vigilanti, council liaison to the Recreation Committee, said that the total cost of the project may actually be closer to $6,000 than the originally planned $8,000.

The council accepted a bid of $2,200 from Brookside Contractors Inc. of Union for machine laid resurfacing of the volleyball court and a $600 bid from Robert Pfeifer of Mountainside for hand-placed resurfacing of the sidewalk between the tennis courts and the picnic area. Both projects, Vigilanti said, should be completed before the full time opening of the pool on June 23.

The pool, originally scheduled to open part time starting last weekend, will not be open until this weekend, Jean Kascin, secretary for the pool, said. Tiles which needed repair could not be fixed because of weather conditions and prevented the pool from being filled, she explained.

Reliever fans eight, wins in Little League

In Mountainside Little League's major league action, the Blue Stars came from behind to beat the Braves by the score of 10-7. Chris Cerpency, Mickey Tomko and Glen Stummer hit well for the Blue Stars. Rob O'Neil struck out eight in relief and picked up the win. For the Braves, Russell Picut was the offensive stalwart, Vincent Mannion pitched a strong game and Bobby Milcke and Chris Ventura turned in fielding gems to keep the score close.

In an extra inning duel, Jeff Ahlholm's RBI single enabled the Cubs to top the Orioles 7-6. The Cubs offense was led by Matthew Miller with 4 hits, Steve Katowitz, Anne Bunin, Marc Franciosa and Geoff Von Der Linden. The Orioles cause was aided by 2 scoreless innings of relief by pitcher Mark Garretson, a home run by Steve Doten and a stellar performance by David Rizzo both at bat and in the field.

The other regular Republican organization candidate, Nestler, said that if elected he would be a person who listens and would be responsive to the concerns of local residents. The people's concerns, he emphasized, would be his concerns.

Nestler added, "I have a lot of pride in our community. Mountainside is known as one of the prime places to live in New Jersey. I'd like to play an active role in maintaining this concept and help to enhance the quality of our life style."

Suckno, who has been elected to the council twice, has also been involved with the Cub Scouts, Senior League baseball, the PTA, the Mountainside Music Association, the Community Fund and the borough's anniversary committee.

"All of the above services are fond memories which stem from a love of the community," Suckno said. "This is what living in Mountainside has meant to me—involvement with people at all levels of community life. I'm asking for your support based on my record of community involvement, which spans nearly two decades."

Mayor Ricciardi, who has held that post since 1969, is unopposed for the GOP mayoral nomination. Although no name had been entered for the Democratic primary election, a party spokesperson said Stuart Lutz will run as that party's candidate for mayor.

For three county freeholder seats, the candidates who will be on the Democratic organization line are incumbents Everett Lattimore of Plainfield, Harold Seymour of Cranford and Thomas Long of Linden. But there will, as usual, be a primary contest for county Democrats. Others who have filed for the party's freeholder nominations are Henry Kielbasa of Linden, Francis Kelly of Winfield and Sylvan Zipper of Elizabeth, running as a slate, and Robert Claussen of Fanwood and Susan Vincelli of Berkeley Heights, on another slate.

Republican freeholder candidates, unopposed in the primary, are Jack Meeker of Westfield, Blanche Banasiak of Elizabeth and Frank Lehr of Summit.

For the two state Assembly seats from the 22nd District, "no slogan" candidate Rich Proctor of Rahway hopes to defeat either of the primary candidates chosen by the regular Democratic organization: Walter E. Boright of Scotch Plains, a county freeholder, and Rahway City Councilman Patrick J. Cassidy. Boright and Cassidy are running as a slate with Joanne Rajoppi of

More new physicians are staying in N.J.

One hundred forty-one new physicians—nearly half of the total completing training at the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey (CMDNJ), Newark—will join the housestaffs of New Jersey hospitals in July.

A total of 306 new MD's are slated to complete their studies at the state's medical and dental educational complex in June: 125 graduates of the CMDNJ-New Jersey Medical School, Newark; 74 graduates of the CMDNJ-Rutgers Medical School, Piscataway, and 109 physicians in the Fifth Pathway, a program which provides a year of intensive clinical training to American graduates of foreign medical schools.

Of the group, 289 were placed with postgraduate positions in U.S. hospitals through the National Resident Matching Program—141 opting to remain in New Jersey and 147 going to other states. The remaining 19 students chose to seek positions on their own.

According to Dr. Stanley S. Bergen Jr., CMDNJ's president, the match results show a continuation of the trend which began nine years ago, when the college was formed by act of the New Jersey legislature.

"Each year, we see larger numbers of New Jersey-born and New Jersey-trained physicians remaining in the state to continue their training and to set up their practices," he said. "It's a pattern that bodes well for the future of health care in New Jersey."

Last year, 133 CMDNJ-trained physicians accepted positions in New Jersey hospitals. The number has been rising steadily since 1970, when only 21 state medical graduates remained in the state for postgraduate training.

Bergen said that two factors are responsible for the trend: the growth of enrollment in the state's medical education programs, and the college's commitment to improving health care in its base communities.

Since 1970, when the college's total enrollment was 556, the number of students pursuing professional degrees in CMDNJ programs has tripled. According to Bergen, construction of new facilities, expanded affiliations with community hospitals and development of educational programs have allowed the college's "phenomenal growth" during the decade. He expects college-wide enrollment to reach 2,000 by 1985.

"But larger classes would mean nothing to health care in New Jersey, were it not for a growing sense of commitment among our students to the state, and to the communities which are served directly by the college," he said.

HELEN KENT, choreographer-dancer, will perform in the title role of her dance musical, "Nightlife," at the YM-YWHA of Metropolitan New Jersey, 760 Northfield Ave., West Orange, June 13 and 14 at 8 p.m. Tickets, $6 for adults, $4 for students and special rates for members, are available from the Y Box Office.

Schools anti-violence bill given boost in NJEA 'moral crusade'

Calling for a moral crusade to reverse the trend toward violent behavior by juveniles against each other and against school employees, NJEA President Frank Totten pushed this week for passage of legislation to implement recommendations of the state's Task Force on Reducing Violence, Vandalism and Disruption in the Schools.

Addressing the fourth annual New Jersey Juvenile Justice Training Seminar in West Paterson, Totten said "We can no longer be tolerant of those who feel no need to respect the rules of society."

"The time has come to stop studying juvenile crime," Totten declared. "The time has come to put a stop to it."

Totten, president of the 110,000-member association of school employees, agreed with the task force report that crime and disruption in the schools is "a significant drain on public funds...a distraction from teaching and learning and...injurious to the morale and the physical and mental health of students and school staff persons." Totten also agreed that "juvenile offenders find the school and easy place to practice activity."

"With few exceptions, school violence was thought of as a problem between students. Assaults on teachers or any employee of the schools were unheard of. That is now changed. We hear of incidents of violence almost every day. We even hear of attacks on school personnel committed by parents."

The NJEA leader, a New Brunswick high school teacher on leave, called for—the establishment of an office to prevent crime and disruption in the state Department of Education. One such office exists in the Pennsylvania Department of Education. He also called for better training of prospective teachers in classroom management and discipline methods.

Totten called for passage of legislation which would mandate immediate suspension of students who assault school workers and for more severe penalties for those who assault school workers, other students and senior citizens.

Finally, he called for revision of the juvenile justice system to stop "a

Meadow's Edge site: buses, shopping near

Can New Jersey go back to being one-car families? "More than ever, that's going to depend on their home locations," according to William Steinfield, vice-president of Countrywide Development Corp. (CDC), the national homebuilding firm headquartered in Red Bank. "The fuel situation as it is today, and certainly as it is going to be in the future, is going to affect all of us. That effect will only be mitigated for those who already reside or who can move to homes that enable them to make efficient use of their cars and to take mass transit."

An example of where the second, or at least third family car can be retired is a community such as CDC's Meadow Edge in Manalapan Township, Steinfield said. "When we opened the community just last September, the fact that shopping malls, schools and express buses to New York were so close was considered a significant plus by those who purchased the first $4 million in Meadow's Edge homes," Steinfield recalled. "Now these factors are near necessities, and we're glad we can offer them." Recently, a second section of 24 homes priced from $88,900 was opened at Meadow's Edge, with with such standards, at no extra charge, as two full baths plus a powder room, a two-car garage (which can provide extra storage space if the second car disappears), an eat-in country kitchen, separate dressing rooms in the master suite, formal dining room, basement, paved driveway, underground utilities, city water, curbs and country-sized lots. Each kitchen is color-coordinated with a GE oven, refrigerator-freezer and sound-insulated dishwasher. Throughout the living areas are wall-to-wall carpeting and Armstrong Resilient Floor tile, as well as double-hung windows. Construction materials include brick fascia, 240-pound self-sealing roof shingles and aluminum siding, gutters and leaders. The homes are also equipped with oil-fired warm-air heat, in-ground tanks, 150-amp electrical service, electric door chimes, light fixtures, 80-gallon hot water and laundry machine hook-ups. The Meadow's Edge sales office is open daily from 10 to 6. The community is reached via Turnpike to Exit 11, then Garden State Parkway south to Exit 123. Proceed south on Rt. 9 to Symmes drive (Steinbach's) and turn right to Meadow's Edge.

deliveries available as soon as September 1979. Meadow's Edge is located on Symmes drive just off Rt. 9. At the corner is a Steinbach's department store and the Manalapan Mall with 22 other fine stores. A Two Guys-Shop Rite shopping center is just down the road, as are delicatessens, jewelry and clothing stores, health food store and a bicycle shop. Within a short distance of the community are the local grammar and middle schools, Pine Brook Junior High School and Manalapan High School. Lincoln Transit and Transport of New Jersey buses to New York City and northern Jersey both stop at the Rt. 9 intersection for a ride to Manhattan that takes about 55 minutes. Rt. 9 is a main highway for connection with the Parkway and Turnpike. Recreational facilities also are close by. The Atlantic City resorts are within a half hour. Closer to home are swim and country clubs, such as the Battleground and Knob Hill Country Clubs. Meadow's Edge have attracted families from New York and Connecticut, as well as from throughout the Garden State. The large three- to five-bedroom homes come complete MODEL HOME at Silvermead, an adult community of manufactured homes at Freehold, has two bedrooms, central air conditioning and energy efficiency features. The developer predicts the last section of Silvermead will be sold out by summer.

Construction nearing an end at Silvermead

The last portion of Silvermead is now under construction in Freehold. The adult community, started 12 years ago on the site of a chicken farm, will house 350 families when its last home site is occupied. Silvermead was constructed in two sections, according to Seymour Silver, owner and operator of the mobile home community. The first section contains single unit mobile homes. The second section, started five years ago, contains mainly double unit ranch style homes in a street lay-out quite different from the original section.

Living room, dining room, kitchen and laundry room. Silvermead is located on Rt. 9. There is bus transportation at the community entrance, including free bus for senior citizens. There is a shopping center across the street and three others within two miles. The downtown service areas of Freehold are a short drive away, as is a new hospital, Lakewood and the shore are half an hour away. "These are just a few of the reasons why Silvermead has become one of New Jersey's most popular adult communities," Silver stated.

He said the Pinelands moratorium on building has resulted in additional interest in settling in Silvermead. "Home hunters have a much smaller choice of sites now that the Pinelands moratorium prohibits several adult communities further south from constructing. He said the Pinelands moratorium on building has resulted in additional interest in settling in Silvermead. "Home hunters have a much smaller choice of sites now that the Pinelands moratorium prohibits several adult communities further south from constructing. With the current rate of interest, there is a good chance that our construction is coming toward an end, so that we don't disappoint people who have been planning to move in here."

Essex Villas boosts sales

Essex Green Villas, the 80-unit luxury condominium complex in suburban West Orange, has escalated its sales program as the result of recent developments which will allow the builders to move on to a dramatic, new project in the Garden State. Essex Green Villas will be placed on the Multiple Listing rolls, with an early sell-out targeted for this summer.

A spokesman for Essex Green Villas explained that the desire to complete the sales program for the townhouse project stems from preliminary approvals given by the Town Council of Irvington and the endorsement of that community's Housing Authority for the construction of a high-rise senior citizens complex there.

"Our primary objective is to complete the sales of Essex Green Villas so that we may move on to this exciting new project."

Sale of older homes large part of market

Real estate brokerage companies involved in existing home transactions are taking an ever increasing share of the home market at the expense of new home builders. "The conclusion is inescapable," points out Kenneth Berg, board chairman of both the Berg Agency of New Jersey and its parent company, Berg Enterprises Inc. In 1970, according to Berg, existing home transactions accounted for 56.9 percent of home purchases. The home builders' share was 43.1 percent. "Last year, 70 percent of the home transactions involved existing homes with only 30 percent going for new ones. Turnover in existing homes has been growing two-thirds faster than new home starts," he says. "The trend seems sure to continue. Builders are facing soaring costs for building materials, a direct result of inflation. These costs, in turn, are pushing up the sale prices of new homes. "Existing homes are escalating, too," Berg admits, "but more moderately, which makes them a much better investment in the eyes of many home buyers." By the middle of the 1980s, over four million existing homes will be changing hands in the United States. That is up from 2.6 million during most of the 1970s, Berg explains. "All of the arguments for home ownership continue to hold true. A home is a good investment and it is a good hedge against inflation. It gives the homeowner important credit standing. For most people, buying a home now means buying an existing home. It is a better buy and will continue to be for the foreseeable future," the BEI board chairman points out. "Investor confidence in real estate brokerage and the future of the existing home market, is at an all-time high and it deserves to be," said Berg. Among the reasons he cites are the rapid population increase in the home buying age groups and the legislation that insists that lenders count the earnings of wives as well as husbands in determining credit eligibility. Berg Enterprises Inc., which Berg heads, is one of a handful of real estate services companies which have broken with the traditional model of a small, local enterprise and branched out nationally with a package of services for customers throughout the country. "Operating in this way is important for our clients. So many are relocating today that national reach is often a key service requirement," Berg explains. Berg Enterprises Inc. has a national staff of nearly 2,500 and 106 offices throughout the United States. The shares of the company, which went public in 1972, are listed on the American Stock Exchange.

"Design concepts and home sizes changed during the seven years between the time we began our first section and when we built the second," Silver stated. Home sites in the second section have front and back yards, off-street parking for two cars and are staggered with one home closer to the sidewalk than the one next to it. In both sections, home sites have lanterns, are sodded and landscaped professionally. The management provides lawn maintenance for residents. "Many of our residents are looking for a lifestyle that allows them a minimum of maintenance, including lawn care," Silver said. "That's why the lawn maintenance service is a popular one."

Silvermead is now constructing the last 5% sites in the community. When these are occupied, the community will close its new home sales operation. Resales will still be available from residents but, according to Silver, the community has a very low rate of turnover. Over the years, recreational facilities and special features have been built at the community. Two years ago, there was a celebration for the opening of the community center that serves park residents. The auditorium seats nearly 300. It also contains billiard room, hobby room, completely equipped kitchen and outside picnic areas. At the grand opening of the community center, it was officially turned over to residents by the management. The Silvermead residents' association is in charge of renting the meeting facility, scheduling events and managing the community building. Next to the community center are a swimming pool and shuffle board court. Residents share a communal farm and plant their crops. Home sites are large enough for flower and vegetable

DOT is constructing another six bikeways

The Department of Transportation announced this week that six bikeways, totaling over eight miles, are under construction and more than 50 similar projects now are in design stages throughout New Jersey.

Bikeways are being built this spring in Hammonton Township and Ventnor (Atlantic County), Moorestown and Willingboro (Burlington County) and Cherry Hill (Camden County). Another is under way along the Rt. 18 Extension over the Raritan River in Middlesex County.

Bikeways originally were constructed for purely recreational purposes, but now have emerged as a viable means of travel, connecting college campuses, schools, shopping centers and other recreational facilities.

A contract recently was awarded to construct a three-mile $200,000 bikeway in Johnson Park, Piscataway and Highland Park. This Middlesex County bikeway will serve as the third link in a system that extends from East Brunswick through New Brunswick to Piscataway and includes bikeways across Rutgers University's Douglass-Cook Campus and Busch Campus. It also will connect with the Rt. 18 Bikeway.

The Department of Transportation has constructed 16 bikeways covering a distance of 37.3 miles in 10 counties since 1975 at a cost of $1 million. Most were funded with 70 percent federal funds and 30 percent state funds. The federal government now provides 75 percent of the funding.

The Federal Highway Administration allows each state to spend up to $2.5 million of its highway funds for independent bikeway construction projects each year. Bikeways can be built as incidental features on regular highway improvement projects and are

Photos depict harbor trading

"Trade: The Source," a color photographic exhibit which tells the story of modern trade in the New York-New Jersey harbor, was opened to the public recently on the mezzanine of One World Trade Center, New York City, as a part of the celebration of Maritime Day.

The one-man exhibit, comprising over 100 photographs and descriptive text, is the work of Don Brewster, staff photographer of the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey. It will be on display, Monday through Friday, from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m., for a four-week period ending June 15.

A total of 15 panels of unified pictures and text, assembled in five triangular units, comprise the exhibit. They touch on every aspect of trade, which the photographer-writer views as "a fundamental human activity."

20 students to visit center

Twenty Kean College students of gerontology will spend next week as residents of the Glen Gardner Center for Geriatrics, a state nursing home in Hunterdon County. They are enrolled in a geriatric field practicum, "Close Encounters of the Institutional Kind."

The Glen Gardner Center for Geriatrics is a state funded institution for geriatrics whose staff is interested in providing experiential learning opportunities. Students in the class will range in age from 18 through 65. Some are undergraduates who have taken a course prerequisite and others are practitioners in the field who wish to improve their skills.

Antique fire engines to parade in Newark

More than 50 antique fire engines and pumps will parade on Broad and Washington streets in Newark on Sunday at 1:30 p.m.

The Newark Fire Museum is celebrating the 12th anniversary of the Newark Fire Department. The parade will be followed by a concert by the Newark Police Department Band. Members of the public will be able to examine and photograph the fire engines and trucks restored to perfect working order by fire buffs and fire companies throughout New Jersey and nearby states.

The oldest pieces of apparatus will be an 1801 Hunneman hand-drawn hose cart, restored by the '205' Fire Club Inc., of Brooklyn, N.Y., and an 1845 horse-drawn hand pumper entered by the Union Fire Co. of Medford. The Bound Brook Exempt Firemen's Association will parade a 1899 Wirt-Knox hand-drawn hose cart. Color guards dressed in period firemen's costumes will march along many of the fire engines.

Other entries in the parade will include fog and searchlight trucks, aerial ladders and chemical trucks, as well as motorized pumpers manufactured by such companies as American LaFrance, Ahrens-Fox, Reo, Chevrolet, Mack and Seagrave. All apparatus manufactured prior to 1940 will be judged for awards.

The parade leaves the Newark Museum parking lot at the corner of University and Central avenues at 1:30 p.m. The engines will proceed east on Central avenue to Broad street, south on Broad to Raymond

Area traffic congestion growing and more expected this summer

Possibly 15 percent of the major recreational highways in the New York-New Jersey-Connecticut metropolitan area will be congested on Sunday evenings this summer, according to a survey, although escalating gasoline prices or shortages in supply could affect this figure.

The Tri-State Regional Planning Commission, which released the report, its sixth annual aerial summer traffic survey. The study found that miles of congested highway, a key indicator of regional traffic quality during peak travel periods, increased for the third year in a row to a high of nearly 14 percent; meaning that one mile of every seven was congested from 4 p.m. to midnight.

The worst congestion was found from 6:40 to 9:20 p.m., when 19 percent of roads were overloaded. The study surveyed more than 1,300 miles of regional parkways, turnpikes and expressways on typical Sundays during July and August.

"The average level of traffic congestion on summer Sunday evenings has climbed to a record high after reaching an observed low in 1975," Al Litwornia of Tri-State, deputy director of transportation, said. "At the same time, miles of lightly-used highway, an important measure of system efficiency, have increased for the second consecutive year to an average level of more than 16 percent. This means that components of our road system are either too highly or too lightly used for maximum effectiveness.

"The percentage of roads which we consider to be operating most effectively, those operating under moderate traffic, has fallen from 74 percent to 70 percent between 1977 and 1978. We hope this situation can be improved through better roadway management. In this time of limited resources, we must try to use our region's expensive existing roadways in the most efficient way possible."

The study was based upon more than 7,000 traffic observations between 4 p.m. and midnight. It was prepared for Tri-State, the federally-designated comprehensive planning agency for the New York-New Jersey-Connecticut metropolitan area, by the Skycomp Data Corporation of Princeton; additional funding was made available by the Triborough Bridge and Tunnel Authority, the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey and metropolitan transportation planning funds made available by the Federal Highway Administration through the New York State Department of Transportation and the Tri-State Regional Planning Commission.

The report found the worst levels of congestion in New York City, where the average congestion level jumped from 20 percent in 1976 to 24 percent in 1977 to 29 percent in 1978—a 45 percent increase in three years. In other subregional areas, Connecticut continues to enjoy the lowest congestion level in the region with 4 percent followed by New Jersey with 11 percent and the New York suburbs with 14 percent.

Prices rise up 0.9 percent for N.J. area

The New York-Northeastern New Jersey Consumer Price Index (CPI) rose sharply by 0.9 percent between March and April, it was reported by Herbert Bienstock, regional commissioner of labor statistics who directs the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Middle Atlantic Region.

In reviewing the latest inflation figures for the area, Bienstock said the April rise principally reflected higher housing, private transportation and food prices. These three categories of consumer spending also accounted for most of the 7.6 percent increase since last year. The 7.6 percent increase for the year ending April 1979 compared with 5.3 percent a year earlier.

Seasonally adjusted, the area CPI was also up 0.9 percent in April, after rising 0.7 percent in March and 0.9 percent in February. The average monthly rise of 0.8 percent for the first four months of 1979 was the sharpest for any four month period since August-November 1974.

Bienstock said the New York-Northeastern New Jersey CPI for urban wage earners and clerical workers rose 0.9 percent over the month. The over the year increase was 7.9 percent. With the New York-Northeastern New Jersey CPI for all urban consumers at 208.3 in April (1967-100), $20.83 was required to purchase what $10 could buy in the 1967 base period. Bienstock pointed out that the purchasing power of the dollar was 48.0 cents in 1967 dollars and 40.3 cents in 1957-59 dollars.

The housing index was up 1.0 percent in April. The homeownership category rose 1.0 percent, with higher home purchase prices and increased mortgage interest rates as well as increases for home maintenance and repair. The household furnishings and operation index rose 1.4 percent over the month, largely based on increases for furniture, appliances and housekeeping services. The index for fuel oil, coal and bottled gas rose 2.2 percent and the gas and electricity index was up 1.3 percent, with higher electricity charges.

Bienstock said the housing index was up 7.4 percent since April 1978, over one and a half times the 4.5 percent rise between April 1977 and April 1978. Among housing items, the sharpest over the year rise was 22.8 percent for fuel oil, coal and bottled gas, four times the annual rate of increase for this item over the year ending in April 1978.

Use your phone to pay your phone bill

—and most other bills, too!

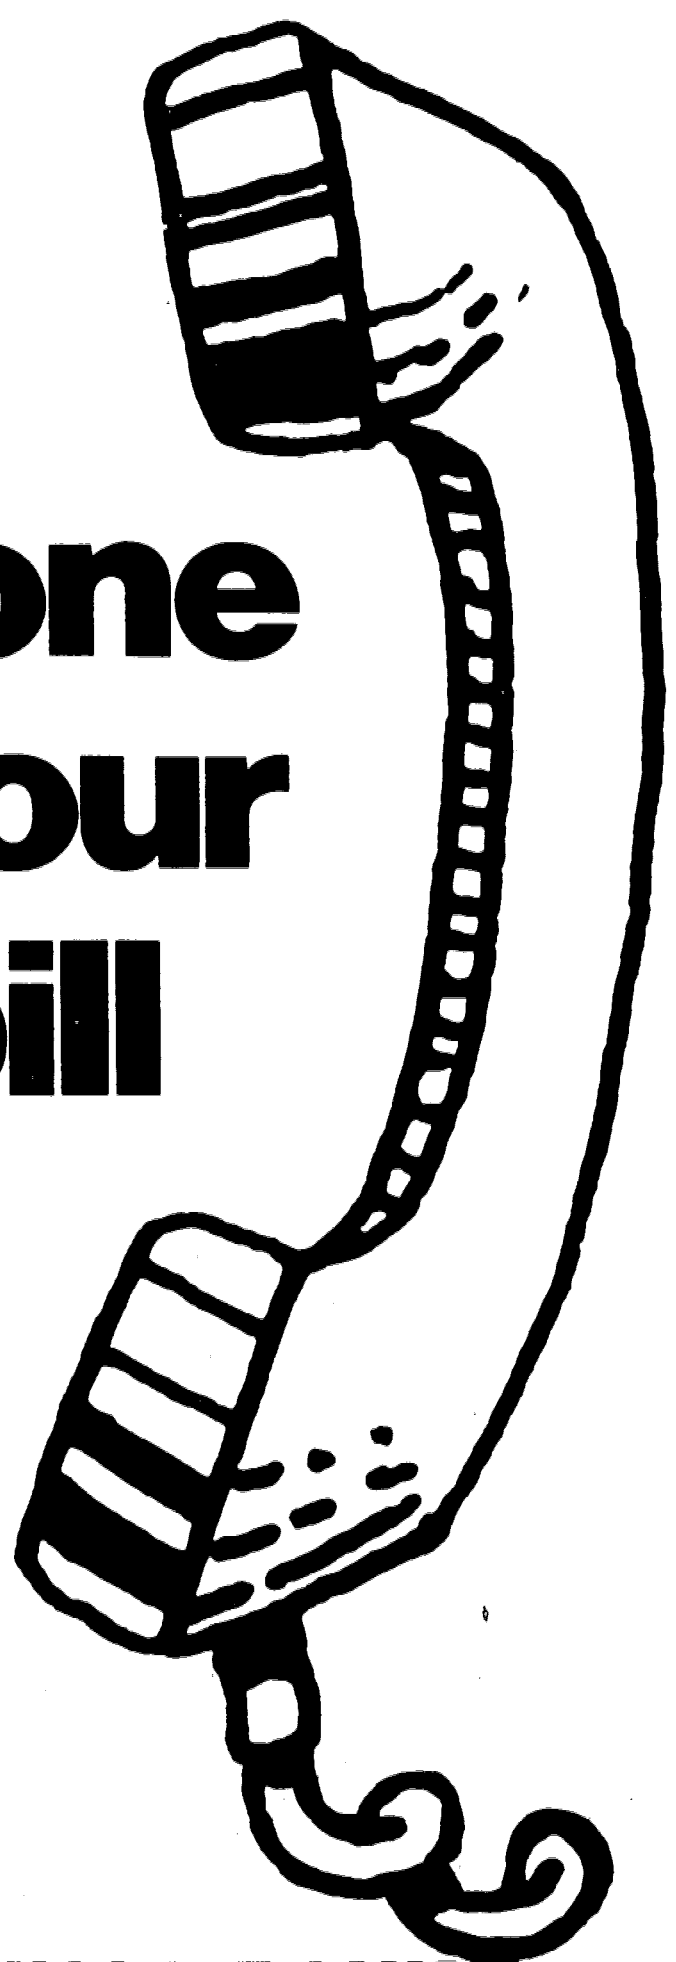

That's right. With Dial 'N Pay® at the Howard, you can pay New Jersey Bell Telephone and most of your regular bills with a toll-free phone call from anywhere in New Jersey. You save time and aggravation — even money, since each bill you pay with Dial 'N Pay costs only 10¢ instead of the 15¢ you now spend on a postage stamp to mail your check.

With Dial 'N Pay, you simply telephone your payment instructions instead of writing them out on a check. Your bills are still sent to you, of course, and you control how much you want to pay and when.

Dial 'N Pay has other advantages, too. You can keep most of your money in a 5¼% regular savings account earning interest until you decide to spend it. Then, a call to Dial 'N Pay transfers whatever you need to your Scotfree checking account so you can pay bills by phone, or even write checks, if you prefer.

There are some requirements, of course. You'll need a 5¼% regular savings account and a Scotfree checking account at the Howard — but there's no minimum balance required for either. Then, just sign up and list the merchants you'll want to pay through Dial 'N Pay. There's no cost until you use Dial 'N Pay, and then it's only 10¢ per transaction.

Sound terrific? Then stop by any Howard office for all the details!
