School board learns results of state tests

Dr. Levin Hanigan, superintendent of schools, released to the public at the special Mountainside Board of Education meeting Tuesday the results of the latest state tests.

A special school and community relations meeting to announce the scores is required by the N.J. Administrative Code.

Hanigan mentioned that because Mountainside has experienced a 52 percent drop in enrollment since 1972—the largest drop in the state—the validity of the results are questionable. With only 85 children in the sixth grade, for example, the scores of only a few children make very large impacts on the percentages.

Hanigan also noted that Mountainside has attracted a large number of low-achieving children because the borough provides good specialized help.

Mountainside is included in the top testing group in the state. Other members of the group have social and economic characteristics similar to Mountainside's. The middle of this group is referred to as DFG.

In third-grade reading tests, Hanigan explained that, because the tests analyze the very basic skills of word recognition, many of which can be learned by rote, the scores tend to be higher than those of sixth graders tested on material that requires higher-level thinking.

In third-grade word recognition, the students attained DFG on 90 percent of the questions, and near DFG on 10 percent. In comprehension, 84.4 percent were equivalent to DFG. Because the study skills section comprised only six questions, the results were not deemed a fair measurement of the skills.

"Even though the scores were certainly very acceptable," the report said, "additional emphasis and practice is needed on finding the main idea, following directions, distinguishing fact from fiction, determining sequence and inferring answers."

In third-grade math, 76.3 percent were equivalent to DFG in computation. Twenty-one percent were roughly equivalent, and 2.6 percent were above. In number concepts, 64 percent were equivalent to DFG, and 32 percent were roughly equivalent. And in measurement and geometry, 82.4 percent were equivalent to DFG, and 17.6 percent were roughly equivalent.

In problem solving, 80 percent were equivalent to DFG, 15 percent were roughly equivalent and five percent were below. More work is needed on word problems, Hanigan said.

In the sixth grade reading, the major concern was reading comprehension in which only 45.4 percent of the questions were equivalent to DFG. "This is reading in action," Hanigan reported, "and it cannot be taught through rote drills and memory exercises. From grades four to eight, functional reading is the most critical skill for success in school, and it is regarded, along with math, as our primary educational responsibility."

Hanigan also expressed concern with the results of questions asked the students on how much television they watch daily. Thirty-five percent said they watch from three to four hours and 21 percent said they watch more than five hours.

In the computation section of the seventh grade mathematics, the results were satisfactory Hanigan said, but the students still need more work on decimals, the concept of percent, rounding off numbers, fractions and their equivalents, number line and recognition of inverse relationships.

The problem-solving section, which Hanigan cited as the most important, comprised only 16 items, about one quarter of what was needed to arrive at reliable figures, the superintendent said.

Hanigan concluded that the reading aspects of math gave the students the most trouble. He said, "Examination of the problems makes one wonder how our children could miss them. Carelessness certainly must be a major factor, but such a supposition is difficult to prove."

Car passenger killed in crash; brother injured

A 31-year-old man was killed and his 37-year-old brother was severely injured last week when the car in which they were riding swerved into a tree along Route 22, Mountainside.

It was the first fatal traffic accident in the borough this year.

Martin Varga of Jersey City a passenger in the car, was pronounced dead at 3:32 Friday morning at Overlook Hospital, Summit. His brother Jozsef Varga of Milltown was listed in critical condition at the hospital with head injuries.

According to an eyewitness, the vehicle, driven by the older brother, was traveling east on Route 22 at a high rate of speed in the right lane at about 2:30 a.m. The vehicle, the eyewitness said, swerved to pass a car. The driver apparently lost control and the car swerved into a tree located on the median between Parkway and Mountain Avenue, police.

County studies using former Nike silos

Union County government may be going underground, in a manner of speaking.

County officials are evaluating the feasibility of using the underground facilities at the abandoned Nike base in the Watchung Reservation to store county government documents.

The base includes "substantial" underground buildings, according to George Albanese, county manager. The three missile silos at the base, which were flooded when the base was closed down, have been drained by county workers.

The above-ground facilities could be used as a storage yard for county maintenance equipment such as snowplows, Albanese said. These buildings, however, have been severely vandalized over the years, he said, and will require a lot of cleaning up and repair.

Some county departments, such as the office of the Register of Deeds and Mortgages, already store microfilm copies of their materials with Iron Mountain, a private corporation that stores the copies in Upstate New York. The office paid a fee of $1,500 for this year's storage, according to Richard Hatfield, register.

The Nike facilities will be used primarily for documents that the county is required by law to keep, but that are not needed for reference.

While working on the silos, workmen uncovered various military explosives—including grenades and a 37 mm blockbuster, or aerial bomb—left behind when the base was vacated. According to Albanese, about 50 of the roughly 100 various explosives were live. The live explosives were detonated at the site by Mike Breen, a detective with the Union County Prosecutor's office and an expert on explosives.

Library group hears address by Markuson

Carolyn Markuson, director of instructional media for the Union County Regional High School District, addressed the joint conference of the Florida Library Association and the Florida Association for Media in Education in Orlando.

The presentation, "How to Survey and Sell Effective Services," described the use of Liesener's program planning survey instruments and their application to library-media programs in school, public, academic and vocational institutions. Fundamentals of sound public relations efforts and the development of program planning budgets in libraries and media centers of all sizes were also discussed.

Mrs. Markuson, president of the Educational Media Association of New Jersey, directs the Instructional Media Services for David Brearley Regional High School, Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Arthur L. Johnson Regional High School and Governor Livingston Regional High School.

AAUW offers scholarships

Applications are available for scholarships awarded annually by the Mountainside Branch of the American Association of University Women.

To be eligible for the awards for the 1980-1981 academic year, an applicant must be female, attending college and either a resident of the borough or a member of the immediate family of a member of the Mountainside Branch of AAUW.

The scholarships are awarded on the basis of academic achievement and financial need. Students engaged in graduate study programs also may apply for these funds.

Application forms or further information may be obtained by contacting the AAUW scholarship and fellowship chairman, Mrs. Robert Greeley 1173 Ridge Drive., Mountainside.

Man, 24, held in breakin

A 24-year-old Watchung man was being held in Union County Jail earlier this week in lieu of $2,500 bail in connection with a break-in of a Summit Lane residence last week and with possession of property reported stolen from a Watchung home.

Anthony Santo Jr. has been charged with break and entry and possession of stolen property.

Patrolman John Garret, responding to a call about a suspicious vehicle parked on Summit Lane Monday afternoon, discovered the side door of the residence open with a pane of glass broken. Garret said he saw Santo leaving the house by the front door.

Checking the suspect's car, police found more than $2,000 in jewelry, silverware, silver trays, clocks and radios. Watchung police confirmed that the merchandise had been reported stolen from a Watchung residence earlier in the day.

AMONG BEST—Election Day 1979 was noted in an unusual fashion at Deerfield School, as students of William Tetley and Dr. Debra Clifford participated in a poster-making contest. Posters promoted presidential candidates of yesteryear, with the students using their imagination in creating appropriate themes. Above, Gina Bertelini, left, and Gayle Grabensky display their posters, which were among six chosen by their classmates as the best. Others adjudged best were by Laura Bailey, Lisa Falcone, Nancy Pracht, and Trish Rosenauer.

APPLAUSE FOR READERS—Mary Ann Sheehan, children's librarian at the Mountainside Public Library, recently visited Beechwood School to present reading certificates to those students who had read 20 books through the summer. Here she chats with kindergarten students, from left, Colin Graham, Teddy Sadler, and Jamie Urban, who were among those honored in the presentation in a special assembly.

Dayton JVs, frosh impressive, brighten outlook for '80 varsity

By PENNY LEVITT
The backbone of next seasons Jonathan Dayton Regional High School varsity football team turned in an impressive showing despite its 3-5 record this year. The "never give up" outlook of these young Bulldogs was apparent throughout the season. They were never beaten by more than six points, a difficult feat in a tough conference.

Defensively, Coaches Bob Kozub and Bill Kinderler cited the performances of Chuck Bell, Steve Salemy, Simon Degrolamo, John Caricato and Estes Hoffman, who totaled four interceptions. Offensively they lauded the outstanding play of quarterback Mike Caricato, Matt Smith, John Apicella, Mark Yoss and Ron "Kaiser" Wilhelm, the leading pass receiver. Kinderler and Kozub predict "the junior varsity will provide a strong nucleus for next year's varsity squad. This season presented our kids with invaluable experience for the future."

Dayton's freshman team produced a 3-1 record. Coach Rick Iacono was extremely pleased with the commitment, maturity and camaraderie among the boys. He felt fortunate to have quality players in key positions. John Alder, Jim Stieve, Mark Stieve, Nick Dachtile, Joe Sefack and Robert Sefack made commendable contributions.

The defense was strengthened by Jack Vogel, Stuart Jurczak, Carlos Rivera and Glen Delaney, who scored two touchdowns on defense. Dan Gigantino, Robert Fusco and Joe Roessner provided the mainstay of the offensive running game.

Cocaptain Anthony Castellani was called one of the best linemen Iacono has coached. Cocaptain Charles Kachulis was a strong quarterback and a good team leader. Undoubtedly the freshmen squad will be a powerful building block for future Bulldog teams.

KEY HARRIERS—These members of the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School cross country team were leading contributors to the team's garnering its third Suburban Conference championship in four years. Posting a 14-1 record, the Bulldogs placed second in the state sectional championships and brought coach Martin Taglienti to the over 350 victory mark. (And Rich Studios)

B team takes finale, Youth championship

Springfield's B team defeated a strong Summit team on Sunday at Miesel Field, 21-0, to clinch the Suburban Youth Conference football championship.

The Minutemen won the coin toss and drove 60 yards on the power running of Reed Jones, left halfback Levent Bayrasi, and quarterback Chris Clemson, and scored their first touchdown on an eight-yard run by right halfback Frank Romano.

Springfield's strong defense, led by Dan Klinger, continued to dominate the game in the first half and a fumble recovery by Jimmy Ruban gave Springfield's offense the ball on the Summit 30 yard line. On the last play of the half, Jones, behind the blocking of Anthony Boffa, Brian Cole, Mattaeo Locatelli and Rich Spillane, rambled 28 yards to the 2-yard line when time ran out.

In the fourth quarter, Clemson intercepted a pass and dashed 20 yards into the end zone for Springfield's second touchdown. Jones converted the extra point to give Springfield a 15-0 lead. On the next series, strong defensive plays by Don Larzler, Dave Salsido, Rich Francis and John Appicella forced a Summit fumble, recovered by Tim Trivett. That set up a 25-yard touchdown run by Jones behind the power blocking of Kevin Bowen, Tom Kisch, Eddie Hayes and John Woland, making the final score 21-0.

On the season, the Minutemen B Team scored 146 points while holding the opposition to only 12 points. Springfield's B team coaches, Jim Sabol, Andy Herkalo and Howard Clemson, expressed appreciation to all the Minutemen fans and boosters for their support over the championship season.

Meixner, King named all-stars

Jonathan Dayton soccer players Don Meixner and Mike King have been selected for the 1979 Suburban Conference all-star team.

Meixner, a junior, has been elected to the first team. He plays fullback, but is also a scoring threat. King, a senior, is also a fullback. He was chosen for the third team.

Girls wind up harrier season with 5-4 mark

By DAVID GOLD
The girls' cross-country team at Jonathan Dayton led by Coach William Jones, finished its season with a 5-4 record.

Although the girls are only unofficially a separate team, they finished fourth in the Suburban Conference. "So far our success is based on determination," Jones said.

The team is very young and lacks experience. All 16 athletes will return next year. Dayton was led by Kathy Kelly (fifth in the conference meet and 13th in the Union County tournament), Janise Levine (seventh in the conference tournament), Dana Levinson, Barbara Taylor and Elise Ogans. An injury to Kathy Rogers at the beginning of the season and Ogans illness before the conference meet hurt the team.

Jones said all the girls are learning. There were no problems with the pace or the altitude this year and Jones appears optimistic about next season. "The girls enjoy it, it's a pleasure to work with them."

Gerndt named to all-star team

Jonathan Dayton varsity tennis star Kathy Gerndt has been named to the 1979 Suburban Conference all-star team. She was selected to the first singles spot. Kathy is the first player from Dayton ever to be named to the all-star team. Kathy's season was highlighted by reaching the finals in the Union County tournament.

CATHERINE PICUT of Mountainside, a graduate of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, was a member of the University of Rochester women's varsity tennis team which finished its fall season with a 10-2 record and 10-0 against Eastern College Athletic Conference Division III opponents. The team, coached by Jean Chase-Farnum, finished eighth in a field of 41 college teams in the New York State Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women tournament.

Soccer Scene

By BILL WILD
Last week, the Union Lancer Boys team was told to be at Farcher's Grove at 5:30 p.m. to play a practice game. Who are we going to play and what is their record, were questions asked by the defense. We are going to play against St. Michaels, and they are 1-3, the boys were told. Saint who? Where are they from?

It seems that a few weeks ago, the boys who go to St. Michael's School on Vauxhall Road in Union wanted to play soccer. Manny Schellscheidt was asked for advice, and the first advice he gave them was to line up some games against other Catholic schools. This could not be done because none of the Catholic schools had a soccer team.

Practice games were then set up through the athletic department of Union to have this new team play the two junior high schools. The St. Michael's soccer team went into practice sessions to prepare for the coming games.

The first match was against Kawameeh, which was won by the junior high school by one goal in overtime. Not bad for a team that just got started. I was told the biggest boy and basketball star of St. Michael's was used as goalie.

The second game was against Burnet Jr. High School and the Saints lost that one. A rematch with Kawameeh produced their first win.

St. Michael's didn't want their soccer season to end that fast, so one of the Union Lancer Youth teams was asked to play them. The youth team is made up of 12-13-year-old players who have been playing soccer for years and the Saints lost that game. So, with a 1-3 record, they met the Union Lancer Boys team (10-11 year-olds) and won, 4-3.

St. Michael's can be proud of its 2-3 first year record. I am sure it will not end there. The die has been cast. A Catholic grammar school had a soccer team and played well against established teams. Next year the seed might grow and other parochial grammar schools will start soccer teams and our local school will not have to look far for competition.

Sting subdues Blizzard, 7-4, to reach finale

The weather was the prime factor in Springfield Junior Soccer action—the opening play-off games were played in mud and rain. The Blizzard defeated the Timber, 9-1, to advance to a semi-finals meeting with the Sting; the Stompers defeated the Aztec, 8-1, to advance to the semi-final contest with the league-leading Fury.

The Sting then overpowered the Blizzard, 7-4, to advance to the Junior Division Championship game against the winner of the Fury-Stompers game, which was postponed because of rain.

Kay Bayrazil (two goals), Chris Monaco (one), Josh Wasserman (one) and Peter Sadin (three) led the Sting scoring. Sadin, playing his second game as a power wing scored a hat trick. Andy Zidel in goal and Ivan Novich, "monster" fullback, were outstanding on defense. Gregg Kahn and Chris Monaco were the playmakers on a strong team effort for the Sting. The Blizzard was led by high-scoring Adam Miller, who was outstanding offensively and defensively. Miller scored one goal, as did Roger Bassin and Robby Maher. Ken Garguilo played a strong offensive game for the Blizzard.

6 bowlers top 500 in action on Wednesday

Six bowlers bettered 500 at Plaza Lanes, Madison, during the second session of the Wednesday after-school bowling program of the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School Daily Intramural Program Physical Education Recreation (DIPPER). DIPPER Director John Swedish announced that Dan Freedman had a 219-563 series. Mike Pine rolled 215-531, Mike Suchomel 209-530, Mike Steinberg 191-524, Richard Zirkel 187-506, Scott Semel 212-503.

Ellen Goldstein 106-300, and Pam Britton 116-297, led the girls. New members are eligible and the program will continue as long as interest warrants. Trophies will be given to outstanding and most-improved bowlers.

In a DIPPER indoor bowling pre-league game, the RA's beat the Raves, 5-3, behind the scoring of Martin Swanson, Jeff Engelhardt, Keith Hanigan and Ed Siegel. Don Meixner scored all three Raves goals. New teams are invited to compete in the boys gym every school day from 7 to 8:15 a.m.

SUPPLEMENTAL INSURANCE
Soaring health costs have caused many senior citizens to look for supplemental insurance coverage. If you do, proceed with caution.

Thoroughly investigate the company you plan to do business with, the coverage they will provide, and the price you will have to pay for it.

Select a well-established company licensed to do business in your state. If you have coverage other than Medicare, a reliable agent will review your policy to avoid duplication. Don't hesitate to ask for complete details on any conditions of the new policy that aren't clear and understood. You won't be able to cover all situations.

The State We're In

Some much-needed legislation is promised by Assemblyman Karl Weidel of District 14. He is about to (or maybe has by the time you read this) introduce bills to give state tax encouragement for electric cars and trucks and home solar-heating installations by "do-it-yourselfers."

Weidel makes an important point: In regard to "homemade" but nevertheless "workmanlike" and practical solar installations, there's a lot more initiative and action being shown than with commercially produced installations. This is because commercial installation costs get higher all the time, he correctly states.

Installation costs by professionals is the probable reason why so few of the 1,725 federally funded $400 solar system grants allotted to New Jersey have found takers, he says.

I agree. The nature of home solar heating (and cooling) gadgetry lends itself ideally to home-brewed technology. I'm glad that Weidel would make his solar energy bill's benefits retroactive so as not to penalize those who have already made home installations, or are about to.

Weidel would provide for a local property tax credit of up to 30 percent for a maximum of $1,000 of the cost of any permanent energy conservation installation in a house. Such projects could range from an elaborate solar heating system to storm windows or insulation, which are rendered no less useful by their simplicity.

Another Weidel bill would provide low-cost loans and grants to do-it-yourself solar innovators, and a third bill would protect such persons from possible unfair utility rate increases because of lower consumption. In my book, that last bill is an especially good idea. If it were not for discriminatory rate scales, a lot more energy would be getting saved right now!

As for electric cars, Weidel would legislate freedom from the state sales tax for electrically powered vehicles. That would mean a saving of $250 on a $5,000 car.

This set of bills represents my kind of thinking. I believe it's the duty of government at any level to guide and encourage the public in finding ways to save energy and thus reduce our dependence on foreign oil, polluting coal and potentially hazardous and very expensive nuclear power sources.

The quickest and easiest way government can do this is to make it cheaper by offering such tax dispensations. I've said all along that our American cultural fascination for tinkering and innovation will eventually play a key role in guiding us out of the energy mess into which we are still sinking.

If you are over 40, you may remember big electric trucks quietly hauling cargoes through industrial areas like the New York waterfront, where short hauls and frequent recharges made it feasible. You can remember solar hot-water systems, especially in the southern U.S., and you can remember wind chargers featuring rooftop propellers and 32-volt battery systems which were sold for less than $200 by Sears, Roebuck & Co.

I say let the experts keep trying to develop fusion power. You and I can accomplish a heck of a lot by dusting off ideas which used to work just fine! And we can do it a lot easier with the kind of help proposed by Assemblyman Weidel.

Former servicemen in uniforms for a day

Patriotism is not a thing of the past in Mountainside public schools, as proved by recent observances of Veterans Day at both elementary schools in the district.

Participating in a special Veterans Day flag-raising ceremony at Deerfield School on Monday, Nov. 12, were eight school staff members who are veterans representing five branches of the services.

Industrial arts teacher Fred Moebus, in naval uniform, and ex-Marine math teacher Andrew Ray, raised the flag with all the students gathered in front of the school. Musical accompaniment was provided by two music students, John Seaman and Gerard Franciosa, who played the national anthem on trumpets. The pledge of allegiance to the flag was recited with veterans standing at attention in full or partial uniform.

Participants included Superintendent of Schools Dr. Levin Hanigan, Navy; Deerfield Principal Allan Shapiro, Army, math teacher Oliver Deane, Air Force, supplemental instructor Martha Podmayer, WAVES, guidance counselor Edwin Sjonell, Navy, and social studies teacher William Tetley, Air Force.

U.S. SEN. WILLIAMS

Energy costs have risen so dramatically during the past year that most New Jersey families face the prospect of a very expensive winter.

Emergency assistance for low- and moderate-income families will soon be approved by Congress to prevent people from being forced to go without heat this winter. And, in an effort to find a long-term solution to our national energy shortage, Congress is putting the finishing touches on a synthetic fuels program and incentives for alternative energy development.

All of these energy pursuits are going to be very important to our country and to our pocketbooks in the long run, but there is something that everyone can do today that will have immediate results, and that is conserve. Millions of barrels of oil each day could be saved, and our dependence on foreign oil could be reduced tremendously if individuals would boost their efforts to save heating fuel. Residential heating alone accounts for 11 percent of our country's total energy use.

For example, steps such as installing storm windows and doors, adding insulation and weatherizing buildings would make a big dent in our overall fuel consumption without demanding major personal sacrifices in style of living. In fact, it is not inconceivable that many families could save 20 to 25 percent on their energy bills through simple, one-shot energy conservation investments.

Of course, the prospect of incurring still another financial burden on top of preparing for perhaps the most expensive winter we have ever faced, is simply asking too much. But finding some affordable way for the government to lend a helping hand

Foreign students give thanks for being here

Thanksgiving may be an old American tradition, but to those from other countries the holiday has a special newness.

Arda Mouradian of Roselle, a freshman business major at Union College in Cranford came to this country a little over a year ago from Lebanon. She worked for a year as a bookkeeper, enrolled at the college this September because of its closeness to her new home. She plans to transfer to a four-year school after earning the two-year associate degree. She said that her life now, compared to her former one in Beirut, gives her so much to be thankful for.

Mouradian explained that her family came to the United States because of the various problems resulting from war in Lebanon. Her family's home had been burned, and when they knew they had to begin anew, they decided to do it in a safe country.

"I had my first Thanksgiving here last year," she said. "I know that Americans celebrate Thanksgiving because of their thankfulness for having freedom and enough food back in the times of the Pilgrims. But I had my own thankfulness. I was thankful for being in a safe country, and I was also thankful for having enough food."

The Mouradians—mother, father, and three children—celebrated that first American Thanksgiving with all the trimmings—turkey, cranberry sauce, apple cider. Miss Mouradian said she had never had turkey before.

"I was thankful," she said, "and it all tasted so good. But I remember that every time I took a mouthful, I felt bad for all the people back home who didn't have enough food. I remembered the times when my own family couldn't go out of the house to buy food, so we were hungry, and I knew there were still many people there who weren't feasting like we were."

Marie Spencer of Plainfield came to this country eight years ago from Kingston, Jamaica. A freshman at Union College, she is studying under an educational opportunity fund grant and is majoring in dental hygiene. She said one of the things she is most thankful for is the opportunity to go to college.

"When I first came here, I was only 14. My mother prepared Thanksgiving dinner like all Americans have it, and I really didn't have an understanding of what it was all about. But since then, every year I'm thankful for all the good things that have happened to me during that year."

Spencer said her family originally came to the United States for "all the things that we couldn't have in Jamaica like jobs, more money and the chance for college educations." She has two children, a home, and is attending college full time.

"One of the main things I am happy about is that I'm going to college," he said. "In England, it was beginning to look like I might not be able to, and I consider myself lucky to be here."

Jewihan was brought to Union College through a program known as Student Aid International (SAI). The organization, three years in existence, places students from Arab countries in American colleges and universities.

Before going to England, Jewihan spent considerable time in Amman, the troubled capital of Jordan. He said, paradoxically, that the horrors he saw there have made him thankful—grateful, that is—that it wasn't worse.

"I'm thankful that everyone in my family survived. We lost a lot of material things, but none of my relatives were killed, and of course that's the most important thing."

Although the idea of Thanksgiving was a new one to Jewihan, he instantly caught the spirit of the holiday. "I feel safe here, so I'll celebrate Thanksgiving being grateful for living in a country where I don't have to be afraid. I'll probably be invited to Thanksgiving dinner by some American friends I have, and not being afraid is one of the main things I'll be saying 'thank you' for."

Maguire asks change in deportation laws

Assemblyman William J. Maguire said this week that Congress should amend existing statutes to provide for the deportation of "any foreign national" who desecrates the American flag, willfully damages public or private property or place of worship or who participates in a demonstration against the United States or its policies that results in loss of life.

"I'm sick and tired of foreign nationals taking advantage of American freedom of expression while demonstrating in support of the denial of those same freedoms in their homelands," he said. "As far as I am concerned, they belong in their homelands and not here."

Maguire said the crisis in Iran, with Iranian student demonstrations in this country, "demonstrate the impotence forced upon us by our own laws. I don't think we should be forced to 'grin and bear it' any more," he said.

Maguire said the American people are unified "as never before" on the Iranian issue. "There is no way the Shah should be forced to leave and there is no way we should barter away American principles for some barrels of oil," he said.

Maguire, a Clark Republican, said he is "generally supportive" of President Carter's handling of the crisis so far. "I am satisfied that, so long as we have no evidence the hostages have been killed or injured, diplomacy is better than saber rattling. But all bets are off if any of the Americans held hostage are injured," he said.

Maguire noted there are approximately 60,000 Iranian students in this country and approximately 60 Americans held hostage in Teheran. "If and when any single hostage is injured, or worse, we should immediately deport 1000 students and end the training programs involving some 300 Iranian military personnel," he said.

Minutemen fall to lightweights

The Mountainside Jets' lightweights beat the Springfield Minutemen, 6-0, in a well-played, hard-fought football game.

Springfield threatened early in the game, moving to the Jets' 10. Mountainside stopped the drive behind the hard charge of Joe Castelo, Enzo Palitta, Jim Clifford, Duane Connell, Jeff Stoffer, Mike Wood and Marc Castelo.

The game was scoreless until Enzo Palitta returned a punt to Springfield's 10 early in the fourth quarter. The Jets drove to the one and Steve Souders scored. Key blocks were made by Dave Martignetti, Walter Hecker, Bart Barre, Matt Garippa and Chris Dooley. The Jets' lightweight team improved its record to 4-2 for the season.

Disc & Data

Pick Of The LPs. RAINBOW CONNECTION by Rose Royce IV (WHITFIELD RECORDS WHP-3387).

If ever a group had a runaway hit, has it with this album. Produced, arranged and co-written by their mentor, Norman Whitfield, Rainbow offers a choice array of songs ranging from ballads to disco to unadulterated funk. There's something for everybody, the groups third LP since their classic Car Wash sound track album.

Sample Gwen Dickey's "I Wonder Where You Are Tonight," or the disco rocker "Is It Love That You're After," impeccably arranged as only master hitmaker Norman Whitfield can produce. For a group that has been known for their soulful ballads, Rose Royce concentrates on a more uptempo theme on this album, with "Is It Love," and "What You Waitin' For," the funk-filled disco tune formerly recorded by Stargard, setting the pace. The eight-song package also includes an instrumental entitled "Pazzazz," penned by member Michael Nash.

Rose Royce has come a long way since their 1973 beginnings in Inglewood, California. The group was formed by the marriage of two bands Kenji Brown, Duke Jobe and Victor Nix (since replaced by Michael Nash) with one group, Henry Garner.

Kenny Copeland, Freddie Dunn, Michael Moore and Terral Santiel in the other. After admiring each other's talents, playing a few jam sessions together, they became the Total Concept Unlimited, subsequently touring with Edwin Starr, Yvonne Fair and backing the Temptations on their 1990 LP.

Shortly thereafter, Gwen Dickey, who left her Miami residence to audition for another Whitfield group, The Undisputed Truth, found herself the new lead vocalist for Rose Royce.

FRANCIS COPPOLA is director of "Apocalypse Now," which is continuing its exclusive North Jersey engagement at Bellevue Theater, Upper Montclair.

Chiller billed on 2 screens

"When A Stranger Calls," movie chiller about a young mother who is terrorized by a child killer taunting her on the telephone, continues for a second week at the Maplewood Theater. The film also begins Friday at the Elmora Theater, Elizabeth, on a double bill with "Eyes of Laura Mars."

"Stranger" stars Carol Kane and was directed by Fred Walton.

Health group lists hearing on area plan

The Union County Regional Health Planning Council will hold a hearing on Thursday, Dec. 6 for public comment on a health plan for the region.

Wilbert Allen, chairman of the Union Council, said the hearing will begin at 1 p.m. in the Cranford Library, 224 Walnut St.

The 1980 Health Systems Plan (HSP) describes the desired level of health for a geographic area and long and short range actions to achieve this level. The Plan covers the counties of Warren, Sussex, Morris, Essex and Union.

Allen, a retired brigadier general and former deputy chief of staff of the New Jersey National Guard, said the advisory council lists eight high-priority health care areas: maternal and child health, long term care, mental health, preventive health care services, financing levels of care, shared institutional services, consumer education and dental health.

Allen said the draft of the Health Systems Plan is available for review by calling the Regional Council (201) 622-1980. Those interested in commenting at the hearing should contact the Regional Council at that number.

The Union County Council is composed of 25

consumers and providers of health care who either live or work in the county.

Senate OKs Bradley's ideas for more fuel-efficient homes

The U.S. Senate has approved a "Residential Energy Efficiency Program" sponsored by Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., as part of a conservation package in the synthetic fuels development bill.

The Senate authorized a total of $500 million for the program with a limit of $100 million in the current fiscal year, and if the House concurs, the Energy Department is expected to test Bradley's plan in about 10 areas before implementing it nationwide.

"Homeowners and tenants everywhere want to reduce their energy consumption to hold down their fuel bills," Bradley said after the vote on Nov. 8. "And there is no doubt that sophisticated new techniques can save at least 50 percent of energy used for heating and cooling a typical home. That means the residents could cut their fuel bills in half by boosting efficiency."

"But many Americans are hard-pressed to pay for conservation measures, to know which ones are appropriate, and to find reliable firms to do the job. This legislation is designed to overcome those obstacles — by establishing a systematic program offering profitable opportunities for private industry without imposing major new financial burdens on homeowners, utility companies or the government.

Bradley also noted that the program would help the United States reduce its dependence on imported oil. He estimated that savings would reach about 1.7 million barrels of oil a day in the mid-1980s if his program is applied on a national basis.

Under the legislation, private "energy conservation companies" would send experts to all the homes in a designated area so that they could inspect the premises, identify problems, and recommend assorted conservation measures. If the homeowners give their permission, the companies will make the improvements suggested at no charge to the homeowners.

Each participating company will have a contract with a local, state or federal government agency acting under authority from the U.S. Secretary of Energy. The contract will state that the company will be paid a specific amount for each measurable unit of energy saved after conservation steps are taken.

CONSERVING ENERGY

By obeying the 55 mph speed limit, cutting back office and home thermostats to 65 degrees and limiting driving — voluntary conservation could conserve as much as 300,000 to 600,000 barrels of oil a day.

More complaints cited on home improvement

Due to the skyrocketing cost of heating, more and more home-owners are hiring home improvement contractors to improve the energy efficiency of their homes by upgrading heating systems and winterizing homes.

With this increase in energy-related improvements, the state Division of Consumer Affairs and county and local consumer offices report a similar increase in problems consumers are having with home improvement contractors.

In fact, the second most costly consumer problems reported to the consumer offices (behind automobile-related complaints), concerns home improvement contractors.

Energy-related home improvement complaints have recently increased in five areas: insulation, energy saving devices, solar energy systems, fireplace construction and chimney repairs.

Within the past year, the insulation industry has grown tremendously and has the number of complaints against insulation contractors.

Some contractors engage in fraudulent practices such as taking deposits and never returning to do the work, informing customers of non-existent tax incentives and overselling the amount of insulation needed.

Other contractors are simply inexperienced and unqualified. Some do not have sufficient knowledge of construction techniques to install foam insulation properly. When not properly installed, foam insulation—injected into exterior walls—can be less effective and disastrous. In one case, the foam was sprayed through an exterior wall and into a garage, which filled with foam.

In other consumer complaint cases, thermographs—infrared pictures of the exterior walls—revealed that insulation was not sprayed thoroughly in the exterior wall cavities, thus providing no insulating quality whatsoever.

Before you enter into a contract, you should consider requesting that a thermograph be taken after the work is completed, since this is the only means to determine if foam insulation is applied thoroughly and effectively. Very few firms offer this expensive, but very valuable, service to the consumer.

Because of the potential problems associated with certain insulation products and some insulation contractors, it is crucial to have a comprehensive written guarantee on both materials and labor. Always remember that a guarantee is only as good as the firm providing it.

Deceptive advertising is another problem area concerning insulation contractors. Although within the past year the State Division of Consumer Affairs has managed to weed out many false claims, some contractors may still be making such claims.

If the contractor you intend to hire makes unsubstantiated claims, ask for the results of studies or a comparison of another customer's heating bills, before and after the customer insulated his or her home. In addition, you should request a guarantee of any such energy saving claim in the contract.

Likewise, some contractors who install energy-saving devices also make energy-savings claims. While some of the claims may be legitimate, others may be fraudulent. In most cases where the Division of Consumer Affairs asked companies to document their energy savings claims, the companies were unable to do so.

You can consult Consumer Reports on the effectiveness of these energy saving devices and the U. S. Consumer Product Safety Commission on the safety aspect. You can also determine if a particular device is eligible for tax credits by calling the IRS directly. Examples of these energy saving devices are flue dampers and voltage suppressors.

The solar energy system is the most technical, sophisticated and costly of the home energy improvements. For this reason alone, the homeowner should exercise extreme caution when planning to install a system by researching contractors and systems thoroughly.

If the contractor is not an engineer, the firm should have an on-staff engineer to visit your home and conduct a feasibility study to determine which components are most appropriate for your home. And if, in fact, the location is suitable for a solar system—not every home can accommodate such a system. Ask to see warranties covering all materials before signing a contract. If the contractor informs you of tax incentives and grants, contact the agencies administering these programs.

In the state's first solar fraud case, Marshal Industries, Inc., formerly of Fort Lee but now defunct, was fined $10,000 for using deceptive business practices in selling solar hot water systems to four New Jersey homeowners. The firm was also ordered to provide restitution to these homeowners.

Examples of the firms' fraudulent and deceptive practices included giving a consumer the results of an alleged feasibility study of his home, although the study was never performed.

In three of the four consumers complaints, 10-year warranties were promised, but none of the consumers received any warranties.

In addition, two of the four systems never functioned at all, while the other two were faulty.

One consumer was promised that she would have 180-degree water every day of the year. Experts conclude that it is unnecessary to have water that hot and it is also technically impossible for a solar system to heat water as high as 180 degrees.

In another case concerning a family of seven, only one solar collector was installed, although solar experts confirm that four or five collectors were necessary to provide this family's hot water needs.

In a case concerning another solar contractor, collectors were installed facing north. For maximum exposure to the sun, collectors must face south.

Fireplace contractors often make unfounded energy savings claims when, in fact, a fireplace which does not have proper enclosures can contribute to heat loss by pulling warm air out the chimney.

One firm, Cleopatra Leisure Industries and Lumber Co. of Ridgewood, published advertisements depicting a built-in fireplace for $698. However, the fireplace offered by the store at that price was free-standing with no brick facing.

In addition, the firm falsely promised to pay customers who allowed prospective buyers to view their installed fireplaces. Prospective buyers were never brought to the homes of these customers.

On Oct. 26, Cleopatra was barred by the State Superior Court from continuing these advertisements. Attorney General John Degnan also filed suit for the firm to return more than $25,000 to 19 consumers and for the firm's State Charter to be revoked.

By exercising caution, you can select a reputable and reliable contractor.

If you have any questions on tax credits, installation methods and energy savings claims regarding insulation, solar energy systems, energy-saving devices, and fireplaces,

Jobless rate rises in N.J. for October

The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate for New Jersey was 6.9 percent in October, up from 6.1 percent in September, but below July and August rates of 7.5 percent, it was reported today by Herbert Bienstock, Regional Commissioner of Labor Statistics who directs the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Middle Atlantic Region.

Bienstock indicated that the number of unemployed state residents was 248,000 in October 1979, little different from a year earlier. The number of state residents with jobs edged up over the year by 29,000, to 3,322,000 in October 1979.

The civilian labor force, the sum of the employed and those seeking work, rose slightly over the year to 3,570,000. The labor force participation rate, or the civilian labor force as a proportion of the working age population, was 64.5 percent in October 1979, about unchanged over the year.

Bienstock said that these data are based on monthly responses from a panel of about 1,800 households in New Jersey which are included in the national Current Population Survey (CPS). Because the estimates are based on a sample rather than a full count of the population, the data are subject to sampling error. Bienstock emphasized that small differences in the estimates over time should be interpreted with caution.

So, nothing new under the sun? Go creative with 'gourd craft'

Tired of the same old cardboard turkeys and pilgrim hats that always show up as holiday decorations at this time of the year?

If so, pay heed to the suggestions of W Bradford Johnson, a plant expert at Rutgers University's Cook College who has made a hobby of creating fine Thanksgiving and Christmas decorations and other items from gourds.

His collection numbers some 75 examples of "gourd craft," ranging from bird houses to children's toys and musical instruments.

They were all made from three basic varieties of gourds—lagenaria, luffa and cucurbita—which Johnson, a resident of Piscataway, grew locally.

Most people who have seen his gourd collection at exhibits or on television are curious about how a gourd is cured for such craft work.

Most important is to let the gourd ripen fully on the plant, Johnson says.

CRAFTY CRAFTSMAN—When it comes to making objects from gourds, "The only limit is the imagination," says W. Bradford Johnson of Rutgers' Cook College. Some examples of gourdcraft exhibited by Johnson are

Kennedy, Ford leading candidates in state poll

Massachusetts Senator Edward Kennedy and former President Gerald Ford appear at this time to be the strongest candidates the Democrats and Republicans could offer New Jerseyans in next fall's Presidential election, according to the latest Eagleton Poll.

The Rutgers based survey conducted between Oct. 19 and 28, asked New Jerseyans who reported being registered to vote to choose between pairs of Republican and Democratic candidates Kennedy easily outpolled former Governor Reagan of California by 25 percentage points and former Governor John Connally of Texas by 23 points. His margin over Senate minority leader Howard Baker of Tennessee was a narrower 15 percentage points and was reduced even more to 6 points against Ford.

President Jimmy Carter held a commanding lead of 18 percentage points over Connally and a smaller lead of 6 points over Baker. Carter ran a dead heat with Reagan, and trailed Ford badly by 27 percentage points. Governor Edmund (Jerry) Brown Jr. of California trailed Ford by 34 percentage points and ran 10 points behind his predecessor in California, Ronald Reagan. Brown trailed Baker by 3 percentage points and led Connally by 2 points.

Ford, who has decided against actively seeking the Republican nomination but will be available if the Republicans are unable to decide on a nominee, led Carter by 56 to 29 percent, with the remaining 15 percent either undecided or saying they would not vote. His margin over Jerry Brown was similar—57 to 23 percent with 20 percent not making a choice. Ford trailed Kennedy by 44 to 38 percent with the remainder undecided or not voting.

Former Governor Reagan, who has visited New Jersey on a number of occasions this year, led Brown by 43 to 36 percent with 19 percent unwilling to choose. Reagan ran neck and neck with Carter, with each candidate receiving support from 41 percent. Reagan trailed Kennedy—perhaps the clearest ideological choice—by 57 to 32 percent with only 11 percent not expressing a preference.

Senator Baker, who recently announced his candidacy and is running on the theme he is the Republican best able to win the November general election, ran only slightly behind the President by a 41 to 35 margin with 24 percent unwilling to choose. Baker held a very slight lead over Brown—by 36 percent to 33 percent with a large undecided block of 31 percent. Baker with 31 percent, ran far behind Kennedy's 46 percent. Twenty three percent were either undecided or said they would not vote.

Former Senator Connally who left the Democratic party for the Republicans in 1972 and served as secretary of the treasury in the Nixon administration, trailed all three Democrats. Kennedy outpolled Connally by 52 to 29 percent with 19 percent undecided. Carter also held a wide lead over Connally by 47 to 29 percent with a large group of 24 percent saying they were undecided. Brown led Connally 36 to 34 percent, almost a dead heat. Thirty percent, however, did not express a preference in this race.

Poll Director Cliff Zukin cautioned against making too much of early poll figures with the election still a year away. Zukin said, "These figures represent the starting point of the campaign and much will happen. Bush and Baker are not well known and there is also little information about Connally and Brown. As these candidates become active and people become informed, their opinions can change easily."

"The Democratic race will also change," Zukin added. "Both Kennedy and Brown are challenging Carter on 'leadership,' where the public does not give him high marks. The situation in Iran is very serious and public opinion about the President's leadership may charter buses from the suburbs to Symphony Hall for a reasonable fare also helped many attend this season's productions while conserving on energy and reducing costs for them. We shall continue to adhere to our goal of presenting opera for all of the people, and help with transportation."

Driving car in Jersey costs 19.6 cents per mile

It costs New Jersey motorists an average of 19.6 cents per mile to own and operate an intermediate-sized car during the third quarter of 1979, according to Matthew J. Derham, president of the New Jersey Automobile Club (AAA).

The number comes from the American Automobile Association's quarterly study on the cost of driving, said Derham. The AAA study is based on computations made by Runzheimer and Company, a Rochester, Wis., management consulting firm that specializes in measuring the cost of living, including transportation costs.

The third-quarter report compares with 18.2 cents per mile for the first quarter of 1979 for the mid-Atlantic region, including New Jersey, Derham explained. The increase of 1.4 cents per mile would mean an additional $210 per year for the motorist who drives 15,000 miles annually, he said. The boost was attributed to the continuing rise in gasoline prices.

The report also includes auto operating costs for the country and for various regions. The national average was 19.5 cents per mile. The West was the most expensive region in which to own and operate a car at 20.5 cents per mile. The others include New England, 20 cents; mid-Atlantic, 19.6; Southeast, 19.3 cents; Great Lakes, 19.2 cents; Midwest, 19.1 cents; and Southwest, 18.9 cents.

The average per mile cost is determined by combining fixed costs and variable, or running, costs. The AAA report shows that fixed costs, which include insurance, license and registration fees, taxes, depreciation and finance charges, amount to an average of $4.95 per day. While they may vary somewhat depending on mileage, fixed costs are incurred even if the car is not driven at all.

Expenses for gasoline and oil, tires and routine maintenance make up the variable costs, amounting to an average of 7.47 cents per mile.

The AAA cost study is based on a 1979 Chevrolet Malibu Classic four-door sedan with an eight-cylinder, 305 cubic-inch engine, standard accessories, automatic transmission, power steering, power disc brakes and radio, driven up to 15,000 miles per year and financed over a three-year period. Insurance was calculated on a pleasure-use category with the vehicle driven less than 10 miles to work and with no youthful driver.

THE REV. GEORGE GILLEN has been appointed moderator of the Union County CYO. An associate pastor at St. Genevieve's Parish in Elizabeth, he began a three-year term Nov. 1.

Small-business body reports

The U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) in New Jersey announced this week that 544 business loans were approved for $57,750,300 during the fiscal year ended September 30. This was an increase of $1,851,300 over fiscal year 1978.

New Jersey banks participating in the SBA guaranty program approved 309 loans for $48,766,300, compared to $47,154,000 during 1978. SBA can guarantee up to 90 percent of a bank loan up to $350,000.

Agency on education praises supporters

Marking the 10th anniversary of the founding of the Union County Community College system, the Union County Coordinating Agency for Higher Education recently adopted a resolution commending the agencies and institutions which made the system possible.

According to the agency's resolution, the Union County Community College System has "provided high quality educational services at a comparatively low cost to the students and to the taxpayers of Union County"; has "expanded and broadened its educational services to the citizens of Union County through new programs, new courses, and new projects as well as new approaches to traditional offerings"; and has "provided high quality facilities, highly-educated, experienced faculties and staffs, and broad-based students support services."

The action was taken at the agency's annual organization meeting at Union County Technical Institute in Scotch Plains.

Union College, as the degree-granting institution, is the focal point of the Community College system, which includes, in addition to the coordinating agency, Union County Technical Institute, and the Schools of Nursing of Elizabeth General Hospital, Elizabeth, and Muhlenberg Hospital, Plainfield.

Commended by the agency for their "foresight and courage" in establishing the Community College system were the Union County Board of Freeholders, the State Board of Higher Education, the Board of Trustees of Union College, Cranford, and the Board of Education of the Union County Vocational and Technical Schools, which operates Union County Technical Institute as its post-secondary arm.

Survey defines Jersey doctor

The typical family physician in New Jersey is 49 years old, practices in an urban area and is actively involved in direct patient care. This portrait is provided by the most comprehensive survey of active members ever undertaken by the American Academy of Family Physicians.

The survey, designed to provide an adequate and authoritative data base of the membership, was sent to members in November 1978. Of the 26,652 U.S.-based active members, 89 percent responded to the survey.

The survey revealed that 89.7 percent of the active members of the New Jersey Academy of Family Physicians is based in urban areas, as defined by the Bureau of Health Manpower and based on county boundaries. The states of New York and Pennsylvania reported slightly lower percentages of office-based urban district patient care.

According to the survey, the percentage of family physicians in solo practice is on the decrease. On the other side is a corresponding increase in a variety of office arrangements, including two-person partnerships, family practice groups and multi-specialty offices. Nationwide, the survey reports that 55 percent of the active-member respondents are in solo practice, 13.4 percent are in two-person partnerships, 21.2 percent are in family-practice groups and 9.7 percent are in multi-specialty offices.

Further in-depth studies by the academy's Committee on Research are planned. Targeted for completion within the next year are surveys on office practice, hospital practice and professional liability.

LICE ELECTED MAYOR

In medieval Sweden lice had the power to elect the town mayor.

A louse was placed in the center of the council table when it came time for election—the candidates would lean down and touch their beards to the table—and the one to whom the louse crawled first would become the mayor.
