Board passes tentative budget

BY J.J. MARTIN
 The Mountainside Board of Education Tuesday night voted to adopt a tentative budget of $2,546,360 for 1983-84 school year.
 Linda Esemplare and Pat Knodel were the only board members dissenting in the 5-2 vote. Knodel would not comment on her objection and Esemplare was unavailable.
 The budget will be presented at a public hearing Tuesday, March 1, and will then be finalized by the board on March 8.
 Edwin Sjonell, a guidance counselor for the middle school, presented a summary of the Minimum Basic Skills Test which showed an increase in the reading and math performances of both the third and sixth graders.

 The Minimum Basic Skills Test is a performance reference test which compares students to a performance norm instead of other students, Sjonell said.
 The summary, which was taken over a five-year testing period, showed 100 percent of the third-graders this year are reading above the standard level as opposed to 97.3 percent in 1978. One hundred percent of the third-graders are also comprehending math above the standard level as opposed to 94.7 percent in 1978.
 The summary also showed that 98.9 percent of the sixth-graders are reading above the standard level and 97.7 percent are comprehending math above the standard level. In 1978, 95.7 percent of the sixth graders were above the reading standard level and 96.7 percent were above the math comprehension level.

 According to Sjonell this is the last year the test will be administered in New Jersey.
 In other business, the board voted to:
 • approve the 1983-84 annual plan for education of handicapped children.
 • approve the joint PTA Board mini-grants to be awarded a total of $800 to Maria Bird, Doris Julian, and Suzanne Muller.
 • approve Gerald Rollins as foreign language teacher effective Jan. 3, 1983 at a prorated salary of $20,390.
 • approve the custodial appointments of Leonard James Mayer at $9,200, prorated from August 16, 1982 and James Piperato at $9,200, prorated from Oct. 4, 1982.

 • approve the acceptance of Geraldine Byrne's resignation.
 • approve the appointment of Dorothy Szymanski to a four hour aide position at $4 per hour effective January 3, 1983.
 • approve Norma L. Smith, of 1111 Saddle Brook Road, Lewis Korngut, of 24 Rutgers Road, Cranford, and Linda Cushman, of 535 Coleman Place, Westfield, as substitutes.
 • approve Mary Ellen Kennedy, of 1084 Sylvan Lane, as school nurse.
 The 1983 school election will be held April 5, 1983.

Population equality is redistricting issue

By ADA BRUNNER
 (Second of three parts)
 Voters bewildered by the new congressional districts in which they found themselves this year may discover that they are in still other districts next year.
 That will happen if the United States Supreme Court rules in favor of a Republican effort to overturn the redistricting plan drafted by a Democratic-controlled Legislature on the basis of population shifts revealed by the 1980 census. A federal District Court has already ruled in favor of the GOP, but Democrats have appealed that ruling to the Supreme Court, which is due to hear arguments in January and render a decision later next year.

 Rep. Matthew Rinaldo, a member of the Republican congressional delegation challenging the redistricting plan, is confident that the GOP will win its suit.

Rinaldo, who until this year represented the 12th District, which included most of Union County, ran this year — and was elected in — the new 7th District, which includes a part of Union County and communities in Middlesex, Monmouth, Mercer and Somerset counties.
 Communities throughout the area were shuffled by the redistricting. Union Township, Springfield, Kenilworth and Mountainside remained in the 12th District, but with a new congressman — Republican James Courter; Roselle and Roselle Park were moved from the 12th to the 7th. Linden remained in the district represented by Democrat Bernard Dwyer, but its number was changed from 15 to 6. Irvington was moved from the 11th District, represented by Democrat Joe Minish, to the 10th, represented by Democrat Peter Rodino.

which were drawn up by the Legislature this year.
 The questions at issue are outlined in the brief filed by the Newark law firm of Heilring, Lindeman, Goldstein and Segal.
 It notes the GOP argument that the redistricting violated the requirement that, "as nearly as is practicable, one man's vote in a congressional election is to be worth as much as another's."
 In ruling the redistricting unconstitutional, "the District Court correctly concluded that the population deviations created by the enacted statute were not unavoidable..."

Contract snag hits low bidder for sewer metering

BY SUE SWEENEY
 Contractual problems with the lowest bidder for the Sewer Metering Facility was discussed at the work session of the Mountainside Borough Council Tuesday night.
 The lowest bidder, Dilorio & Sons Inc. of Westfield, has so far refused to sign the contract because they insist that a mistake on the bidding of the equipment was made. The company does not want to take a loss on their under bidding.
 Possibilities on what to do were discussed. Because the time has exceeded the 10 day execution of contract, attorneys may proceed with a penalty or may bring a suit against them. Discussion was mentioned about going to the next lowest bidder. Mayor Thomas Ricciardi stressed to the council that going to the next lowest bidder should not be "jumped into."

A new tape recorder for the council room was discussed by the council. Several problems with the recorder in use now include recordings cutting out parts of meetings. Borough Attorney John Post said that such problems can be serious. "If it isn't an accurate verbatim record, a trial denovo may be needed" in court cases, said Post.
 The maintenance contract on the recorder now in use is $235 per year. A new recorder is averaged at $2,500 to $3,000. The council will explore this purchasing issue.
 The possible purchase of new coats for the police officers was discussed. Under PBA contract the officers receive $250 for clothing each year. Of that, $50 is used essentially for cleaning of the uniforms, the remainder is for the uniforms. The new coats requested by the police officers will cost $140 each. This payment is in addition to the $250. The coats that the officers have now are "too bulky and heavy," according to Councilman Louis Maas.

 The council will further discuss where the funding for these coats will come from.
 The council voted to approve a clothing allowance for fiscal 1982 for the volunteer fire department. The 39 men will receive $17,250 in funding.
 A progress report on the last year's survey reveals that Phase 1 of the evaluation should be completed by the end of the year.
 Reimbursement for highway lighting in Mountainside was discussed. The borough is expected to receive a reimbursement of $1,400. The council must first pass a resolution and submit it to the state by February 1, 1983. This grant comes up every year, according to Koser.
 The council will hold two additional meetings. On Dec. 28 a special meeting was requested for year end fund transfers in the budget. A 1983 reorganization meeting will occur on Jan. 4.

 The council discussed the problems with the positioning of the riding stables at the former Nike Center. The mayor and Councilman Robert Vigilanti stressed that Mountainside was never informed about this move until it was in the newspapers. Vigilanti also pointed out that the stables will be, because of their location, taking advantage of three of Mountainside's services, police, fire and rescue squad.
 Post added that Mountainside is "not legally obligated to provide the three services to them. We are doing it through good will, voluntarily."
 Letters and petitions have been sent to the county manager, Art Grisi, on this issue.

After the June primary, when they discovered his name was not on the ballot, they called his district office in Union to complain; some were so unhappy that they said they would not vote at all in November.
 Rinaldo is not sure where those voters will find themselves if the Supreme Court rules for the Republicans. But whatever the new districts are, he said, they can be expected to be more equitable than those

2 Soviet Jews 'participate' in local Bar Mitzvah

By RON BRANDSDORFER
 Three days before his Bar Mitzvah, 13-year-old Brad Krumholz received a sudden telegram from Moscow.
 "Thank you for the honor," came the message, via the operator to Brad's mother, Roberta. "All our best wishes. Shalom."
 That telegram was sent by Grisha and Valerie Mendeleyev, twin brothers who live in the Soviet Union and who were "twinning" with Brad on his Bar Mitzvah day through a program arranged by Temple Sha'arey Shalom in Springfield.
 "That was totally unexpected," Roberta Krumholz admitted. "When I got the phone call, you could have knocked me over with a feather."
 Suddenly, related the Krumholz family of Beechwood Court, Brad's Bar Mitzvah on Nov. 20 took on a special meaning. So much so, in fact, that the two empty chairs at the synagogue, reserved for the Mendeleyev twins with tallithim (prayer shawls) and prayer books, seemed to come to life.
 "After we received the telegram from Moscow, the chairs on the bima (raised platform) were no longer just empty chairs. They had kids in them."
 Not surprisingly, then, when the Krumholz family participated in a pre-Hanukkah candle lighting ceremony last week at Congregation Anshe Chesed in Linden, Brad's thoughts were with the Mendeleyevs.
 "I wasn't really thinking about the Shchiglik family," admitted Brad, referring to the Soviet family his family had been "joined" with for the Hanukkah program. "I was really thinking about Valerie and Grisha. I just wished they could be here, too."
 But Brad, a student at Deerfield School in Mountainside, knows all too well that the Mendeleyev twins can't get out of the Soviet Union. They are called "refuseniks," having been denied exit visas by the Soviet government.
 And last week, congregations from all over Union County joined together to take action in the name of these Soviet Jews.
 Moments before the candle-lighting ceremony, the Krumholz family and nearly 400 other area residents had listened attentively as speaker after speaker emphasized the plight of the Soviet Union's nearly three million Jews.

 Moments later, many of these same program participants were writing letters to Soviet Jews, sending telegrams to American government officials and listening to information on how they could "adopt" a Soviet family.
 All this was part of a pre-Hanukkah solidarity program, titled "Light Their Way to Freedom," organized by the Women's Plea for Human Rights for Soviet Jews and hosted by the Linden synagogue last Wednesday evening. It was, as Rabbi Steven Dworcen of Anshe Chesed emphasized, designed to "strengthen the bonds between Soviet Jews and us, so soon they will live in pride and dignity, freedom and honor."
 "Until this is achieved," he added, "may we be their voice."
 Such a voice is necessary, too, suggested Judith Siperstein, the chairwoman of the program.
 "The need for a demonstration such as this is vital," she told the audience. "The words, 'let my people go,' have been echoed throughout the history of the Jewish people: We're here to rally for the basic human rights of Soviet Jews. This is a plea to let them emigrate from the Soviet Union."
 "This is the worst year," added Sarah Lachs, past chairwoman of Women's Plea. "This year we are losing — slowly, inch by inch. Fewer of our Soviet brothers and sisters are being released."
 According to the NCSJ, fewer than 3,000 Soviet Jews have been allowed to leave that country this year. And that's in contrast to the more than 51,000 which left for Israel and the West in 1979. Furthermore, Siperstein said, just 137 Jews were granted exit visas last month, compared to the November 1979 figure of 4,193.
 This highlights an "important paradox," Siperstein said, citing both the emigration figures and recent repressive activities against Jewish families by the Soviet government.
 "Soviet policy makes Jews want to leave, but the Soviet government has made that impossible," she said.
 So impossible, in fact, that more than 200 Jewish families are currently considered "refuseniks," having been turned down for exit visas for more than five years. And in many cases,

Siperstein added, family members have been released from their jobs, demoted and harassed as part of "the Soviet Union's officially sanctioned anti-Semitism."
 And with that, nine Jewish families from Union County were called to the menorah to light a candle for themselves and for a Soviet family. This "joining" program was devised as a twist to the "twinning" program, whereby Jewish 13-year-olds share their Bar/Bat Mitzvah ceremony with a Soviet child.
 "We called the program 'joining,'" explained Fran Krebs, who prepared and directed the program with her husband, Alan, "because we think there has to be meaningful commitment on the part of the free peoples to those who are imprisoned. We are obligated to them."

 Those sentiments were echoed by the evening's featured speaker, Dr. Stephen M. Berk, professor of history at Union College in Schenectady, N.Y.
 Berk traced the roots of the Soviet Jewish community back before the Bolshevik Revolution in 1917 and through what he termed Soviet Jewry's "golden age," prior to Nazi Germany's June 22, 1941, invasion of the Soviet Union. A discourse on post-World War II events and a quick look at the ascen-tion to power of Yuri V. Andropov followed, before Berk offered his views on "what is to be done" about Soviet Jewry.

 "First, we ought not to engage in vitriolic debate over where Soviet Jews should be allowed to go — Israel or the United States. It doesn't make a damn bit of difference."
 "And second," he continued, "it is essential that everything be done for Soviet Jews. American Jews must move heaven and earth to open the doors in the Soviet Union. Sooner or later, when Soviet-American relations are normalized and when serious talks begin, we must make sure that the issue of Soviet Jewry is not at the bottom of the agenda."

 Berk also urged the American Jewish community to insist that the Soviets provide guarantees on a specific number of Jews that will be released yearly. He also called on American Jews to provide financial support for the movement.
 Following the "joining" program, Lachs made a "call for action" to the program participants.
 "Whether our letters reach the person to whom they're addressed," Lachs said, "the fact that they've reached Moscow will make an impression. The fact that there were several hundred concerned Jews in Linden, New Jersey, will make the utmost impression."
 "Our objective is to bring to the forefront the plight and persecution of Soviet Jews," Siperstein explained afterwards. "We feel extremely frustrated, and we want to scream and shout."
 Possibly the most important part of the evening, added Alan Krebs, one of the organizers of the program, "we touched feelings."
 Certainly, Brad Krumholz and his family were moved by the entire experience.
 "We have a moral obligation," Roberta Krumholz emphasized, "to make the public aware that, in this day and age and in our civilization, something like this is happening. We can't put blinders on."
 And Krumholz is proud to say that her family, husband Arnold and children Brad, Scott and Jodi, though active in many community affairs, is committed to the movement to support Soviet Jewry.
 "The kids' awakening means that I've passed our concern on to their generation," she said, "so they won't let anybody forget."

Wade earns FDU grant

KENILWORTH—Mark Wade of Kenilworth, a senior majoring in economics on the Florham-Madison campus of Fairleigh Dickinson University, has received a leadership grant to pursue independent projects.

Wade received his grant to develop policies and procedures for the supervision and funding of campus club sports. He will devise a set of criteria for club sports and establish regulations governing eligibility for funding.

A community adviser for Building 5 on campus, Wade is captain of the trap and skeet team. He is also a member of the task force for community life on campus, and intends to pursue graduate studies leading to the MBA degree. He would eventually like to work in a small business atmosphere.

Under the terms of the leadership grant program, students receive supervision and financial support, up to $600, to pursue independent projects in their area of academics or student activities. Students are required to submit proposals for the projects, develop a thesis and have the project approved by a campus committee.

This year's committee included: Dr. Ronald Dickey, associate dean of the Samuel J. Silberman College of Business Administration; Dr. James Scully, dean of students; Dr. Donna Carroll, director of student activities; and Dr. Ethel Froewiss, assistant to the director of admissions financial aid.

Besides Wade, the students who received the award were the following: Darren Bryden, a freshman transfer student majoring in English, from Elizabeth; Russel Fishkind, a senior majoring in marketing from Middletown; Peter Forment, a freshman majoring in political science, from Miami, Fla.; Monique Locher, a senior majoring in recreation and leisure services, from Ridgefield.

Imagine a class that you can't fail.

At USOs worldwide, U.S. service personnel and their families can participate in language, job skills, improvement, cultural, karate, and even high school equivalency diploma classes. Why? Because life's toughest battles aren't always fought in the field.

PBA files 39 allegations against Police Chief Alder

By LYNN JOFFE
MOUNTAINSIDE—The Mountainside Borough Council is awaiting word from the county prosecutor on 39 inconsistencies and misconduct allegations the local Policeman's Benevolent Association recently raised against Police Chief William Alder.

According to PBA President Alan Kennedy: "Our contention was and is that the charges brought against Sgt. Raymond Della Serra were brought up by Chief Alder as a personal vendetta. We felt that during the Della Serra hearings that became more apparent and the things the chief said exemplified our feelings."

"We brought these inconsistencies and misconduct charges to the attention of the Borough Council. The ball is in their hands now; it's their responsibility to act on them," Kennedy said.

According to Jim Roberts, borough business administrator: "Within 48 hours of the receipt of the document from the PBA, it was sent to John Stamler, the county prosecutor." Kennedy said the 39 allegations "are basically proper processes related to the Della Serra case and the vindictiveness and misuse of power."

have been substantiated by fact. We have reason to believe that misconducts have existed," Kennedy said and added the PBA will reserve any further comment on the charges until "the next move is made."

Arrest 3 for theft

MOUNTAINSIDE—Three persons await court hearings after Mountainside police discovered $200 worth of items allegedly stolen from a Springfield store over the weekend, police said.

Leon Coleman, 38, of 198 Huntington St., Newark; Julius Thornton, 34, of 611 High St., Newark, and Pattie McMillan, 25, of 206 Ellis Ave., Irvington were all arrested after Mountainside police stopped their car on Summit Road for a motor vehicle violation, at about 7 p.m. on Friday, and discovered several brass items reported missing from Dover Furniture, Route 22, police said.

The trio were charged with receiving stolen property. The driver was additionally charged with operating a car with no tail lights, police said.

YWCA slates job workshop

The Westfield YWCA will offer a career workshop entitled "Where Do I Go From Here?" for area high school students beginning Jan. 24.

The program is designed to make students focus on their future place in the economic environment. In a four session program, participants will learn to identify skills and abilities, capitalize on strengths and overcome weaknesses, discover many career options, develop effective decision making skills, set short term and long range goals either for college or the job market, and learn interviewing techniques.

The program will be taught by Edith D. Dixon, who has worked in career counseling and resume writing since 1974. She has conducted successful workshops for many adults and for students in both public and private schools.

According to Irene Flynn, Westfield YWCA teen director, future YWCA teen career programs will include SAT Preparation and Y.E.S. employment training. Further information regarding teen programs may be obtained by contacting the "Y" at 233-2833.

A.J. Fred Prince, president of Ortho Diagnostics Systems, Inc., Raritan has been appointed Honorary Chairman for the 1983 Tribute to Women and Industry (TWIN) Project jointly sponsored by the YWCA's of Plainfield and Westfield.

In the past three years, more than 100 outstanding women have received TWIN awards for their achievements in managerial, executive or professional positions, as have the 45 companies which they represent. From 450 local firms, Prince will solicit nominations for candidates for the 1983 award recipients, who will be honored, as will their firms, next spring at the 4th annual TWIN dinner.

Since Prince joined Johnson & Johnson Canada in 1954, he has held positions of increasing responsibility in Consumer Products and Marketing. He was Director of New Products for J & J's Hospitals Division USA from 1969 to 1974, when he was promoted to Vice President of Marketing for Surgikos.

In 1976 he became President of Johnson & Johnson Ltd., Canada. In July, 1981, he was named President of Ortho Diagnostics Systems, Inc. (USA) and in March of 1982 was given added responsibility when he was appointed Vice President of Johnson & Johnson International, heading the newly formed company, Ortho Diagnostics Systems, Inc. Canada. In Aug. 1982, he was given still additional responsibility for Cambridge Research Laboratories in Cambridge, Massachusetts.

Prince earned his undergraduate degree in commerce at Concordia University and is an RIA Diplomata. He and his family reside in Mendham, New Jersey.

INFANT'S FIRST HOME CLEANING

Home dental care should really begin before baby has a single tooth. Plaque can form on the gum pads just as it forms on the teeth. While mother cleans her baby from top to bottom every day, she sometimes forgets that juice, formula, cereal, milk and so on, leave debris in the mouth. A piece of gauze can be used to wipe the gums after the last feeding of the day, and this may help to reduce gum inflammation which is especially important as the child begins teething.

Many dentists feel that plaque-caused inflammation of the gums is a factor in teething difficulties, and if plaque is removed regularly, the teething process will be more comfortable. The cleaning, of course, is to be continued after the first teeth appear.

One technique that has been used successfully is for the parents to sit on chairs facing each other, and while one parent supports the legs, the other holds the child's head softly in his or her lap and gently wipes the teeth with gauze from behind the head.

I'M NOW A SHELL AUTO CARE DEALER, AND I'M GOING TO MAKE YOU FOUR BIG PROMISES

1. Car repairs backed in writing
At my Auto Care station, I'll hand you my own written, limited warranty on tune-ups, brake jobs, wheel alignment and balancing, and air conditioner service. The warranty covers parts and labor for 90 days or 4,000 miles of normal driving, whichever comes first. If there's a problem with defective workmanship or materials, we'll do the work over free, or refund your money.
2. Written estimates
We won't start work on your car until you have seen and approved a written estimate of the cost. We won't do any extra work that comes up unless you approve that, too.
3. Certified mechanics
I employ mechanics who have been certified by Shell or NIASE. They have the skills and the modern equipment they need to do your repair right.
4. Old parts returned
I'll return your used parts whenever possible so you can be sure they've been replaced.

And now, an invitation
You may already know my service station, but this is the first week I've been an Auto Care dealer. Drop by and see what's new. Even if your car's running fine, I'd be happy to meet you.

Rx for a headache

It's probably expecting too much to look for common sense in the corridors of government.

One of the latest examples of this axiom is the "Worker and Community Right to Know Act" which has been introduced in the State Senate as S-1670 and the Assembly as A-1892.

The bill would require every company in the state to report to both the state and its own employees on any chemical substances it manufactures, uses or stores that are on the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) list.

On the face of it, this sounds like a simple move to protect the public.

But there are 124,127 substances on the NIOSH list, and they include not only chemicals that are clearly toxic or hazardous in other ways but also such items as salt and bicarbonate of soda.

The act would produce a blizzard of paperwork, to say nothing of an avalanche of initialitis: employers would be required to maintain an MSDS (material safety data sheet) and PIDS (public information data sheets) on the NIOSH substances, which the companies would be required to file with the state DEP (Department of Environmental Protection).

One serious consequence of this type of thing is that, in reaction, too many people are tempted to go to the other extreme — witness the Reagan Administration's attempt to scuttle automobile emissions controls.

There is an urgent need to keep accurate records and stringent controls on toxic substances. Poison control centers must have whatever information they need at hand immediately when someone comes in for help; fire departments must have complete details on flammable substances stored anywhere in their communities; health departments must have the authority to prevent pollution that poses a danger to the well-being of the public.

But bicarbonate of soda? If the bill now under consideration becomes law, businesses will need that bicarbonate not just for their records, but also for what may well become a record-breaking headache.

Mental Health

Dieting to extremes puzzles psychiatrists

BY HELEN M. PETTINATI, PH.D.

This column is from the Carrier Foundation, a psychiatric facility. Inquiries should be addressed to the Carrier Foundation, Bell Mead, N.J. 08502.

Anorexia nervosa — the self starvation disorder — is one of the most puzzling ailments psychiatry is facing today. It is an illness that has been known for some time, but more cases are coming to the attention of psychiatric treatment centers than ever before.

In the course of a year, quite a number of patients with anorexia are admitted for treatment to the Eating Disorder Clinic at the Carrier Foundation. Dr. Robert L. Horne is director. The foundation's interest in this disease, however, goes beyond the immediate and basic concern for the treatment and cure of these patients. Research is being conducted here to learn more about this disorder so that new leads may be discovered for improved treatment and for prevention.

Anorexia nervosa is found primarily in females between the ages of 12 and 25. It is a life-threatening loss of weight generally accompanied by effects of malnutrition and loss of menstruation (amenorrhea). Typically, the girl or young woman starts dieting because she believes she is not attractive and that loss of weight will make her more attractive. However, dieting does not stop with the achievements of a moderate, sensible loss of weight. It continues to the point where she becomes severely thin and malnourished. Even then, she thinks she is still too fat and continues to diet. Entreaties by parents and friends to stop dieting are of no avail. Finally, in most cases, the family or family doctor insists on psychiatric help. If the illness has been allowed to go on too long, hospitalization is necessary. The disorder is a serious one and may result in death in some cases.

Starvation through dieting is just one form which this disorder may take. It may also follow another course in which the patient gorges herself and then purges herself through self-induced vomiting or through laxatives. The purging prevents the food from staying in the stomach long enough to be adequately digested and absorbed. This binge-purge behavior does not always result in excessive weight loss. Some binge and purge subjects maintain their weight. These women are referred to as "bulimic."

When the anorectic girl or young woman says she sees herself as stout, even when she is virtually a skeleton, she is not faking. She actually does see herself that way. She has what psychiatrists call a "distorted body image."

A leading authority in the field, Dr. Arthur Crisp, thinks that, basically, anorexia is a form of phobia. Phobia is an irrational dread of a particular object or situation resulting in avoidance. For example, a person with a phobia for heights will be terrified when standing near the window of a tall building looking down into the street, or a person with a phobia for dogs will go into a panic when a dog comes into view.

If Dr. Crisp is correct in his hypothesis, this would be helpful in improving treatment plans, since some phobias have proven to be quite amenable to treatment. The research department at the Carrier Foundation conducted a study with anorectic patients to see if there is indeed a major phobic component in this disorder. The results at first were disappointing in that many of the anorectic patients' symptoms did not meet the basic tests of phobic illness. Before discarding Dr. Crisp's hypothesis, however, an important observation was made. We know that phobic patients respond better than average to hypnosis. It was then natural to see whether anorectic and bulimic patients were more responsive to hypnosis than the average person. The results were positive. We found that anorectic and bulimic patients respond very well to hypnosis — especially the latter. Whether or not this proves that there is any relationship of this illness to phobias is still open to question. However, hypnosis does appear to provide a useful new treatment tool in the treatment of anorexia.

American engineering talents even have an effect on history

By SAM ARENA

I am, on occasion, given to the memory of my first ride in a Mercedes. It was not one of the smoothest I had ever experienced.

This friend of mine had just purchased the car for a price in excess of $15,000. I had recently acquired an American car for a bit more than half of that, yet mine accorded a more comfortable ride, a luxurious interior, air conditioning, AM-FM radio, head rests, an adjustable steering wheel and powered windows.

"Well, what do you think?" my friend asked me, when we had returned from the ride.

"It's a very nice car," I conceded, "but doesn't it ride a bit rough?"

He flashed a tolerant smile. "That's what's wrong with Americans," he told me. "Everything you buy, you buy for ease and for comfort. We Europeans, we think first of all of engineering."

Thinking about it, there was little in what he said which was not so. Comfort is all important to us, in all we do.

We have taken to biking and jogging, the exercise which we studiously avoid throughout the day.

At the office, we sit in a heavily upholstered chair from which we grow reluctant to rise. Atop the desk sits a digital telephone and an electric pencil sharpener. Heaven forbid that we expend the effort to rotate a dial or turn a crank.

We will stand and wait for an elevator for minutes on end and enter it to ascend or descend one flight.

We will circle a block several times, consuming gasoline, looking for a parking spot nearest the entrance to work rather than park in the lot across the street.

We jump into the car to go for a newspaper or a container of milk or to mail a letter at the post office, none of them more than a few blocks distant.

We utilize frozen dinners, vegetables and fruits, pre-cut chicken parts, shaped meat patties, frozen waffles, pancake batter and pies and cakes, all of them time and labor saving, the quicker to stretch out in a recliner in front of our television sets. If we were to listen closely enough, we might hear our arteries harden.

We have even tailored the commemoration of our history to our convenience. We now enjoy the, pre-fabricated three-day weekend, and so much for historical significance. We shift dates about to create the three-day hiatus from work as we would shuffle cards.

For instance, in this year, Lincoln's birthday fell on a Tuesday but we observed it one day earlier, on Feb. 11, a Monday.

We really indulged the ridiculous in our observance of Washington's birthday. Although the traditional date this year actually fell on a Monday, we moved it up one week in time to Monday, Feb. 15. I have yet to learn the reason except that it might be that we just can't let holidays alone anymore without juggling them.

Fortunately, Memorial Day also fell on a Monday while July 4 fell on a Sunday, so that it could be observed on Monday.

Labor Day is one holiday which we don't have to manipulate.

Christopher Columbus suffered the same fate as Mr. Lincoln. Coming on a Tuesday, as Columbus Day did this year, it too was advanced one day to a Monday.

Thanksgiving Day remained traditional, at least for this year, on the fourth Thursday of November, although it was not always so. We played around with that one, too, moving it up to the third Thursday.

For a while, we also played around with Armistice, now Veterans, Day, but this year it is back to Nov. 11.

Can you picture the plight of our new citizens? They will be led to believe that everything which is of historical note in this country occurred on a Monday. If we could have pre-ordained it, out of consideration for our comfort and convenience, the chances are that it would have.

We have not yet gotten around to changing our celebration of Christmas. But don't bet anything of value that we won't.

Only New Year's Day is safe. After all, when else can you start the year?

My German friend with the Mercedes is only partially right. We Americans don't think of the engineering; we do the engineering!

Commissioner's Column

'Revitalizing' the education law

State Education Commissioner Saul Cooperman recently announced a plan to "revitalize" the Public School Education Act of 1975. This week, he answers questions about the revised approach to implementation of the law.

Q. Commissioner Cooperman, what is the primary focus of the Public School Education Act of 1975?

A. The law's intent may be summed up in four points: First, the law recognizes that the state constitution guarantees a thorough and efficient system of free public schools.

It defines this system as one which will "provide all children in New Jersey, regardless of socio-economic status or geographic location, with the educational opportunity which will prepare them to function politically, economically and socially in a democratic society."

Second, the law recognizes that education must be responsive to economic, historical, social and cultural changes.

Third, the law stresses local planning and decision making within broad guidelines fixed by the state.

And finally, the law calls upon each community to establish local educational goals based on its own unique needs. Each district must also plot a course designed to achieve those goals.

Q. How will your approach to implementation of the law differ from the approach used in the past?

A. The most significant change will be a renewed focus on the original intent. Increased emphasis will be placed on planning. In the past not enough attention was given to developing and implementing effective plans. Although the approach began as a planning model, monitoring and compliance became the focus instead.

Q. Can you say specifically how the law will now be implemented?

A. Four major principles will guide implementation. First, each district will be held responsible for establishing a local plan with substantive and clearly stated goals.

Second, responsibility for achieving those goals will be fixed with both county superintendents of schools (as representatives of the state), and with chief school administrators (as representatives of local school boards).

Third, school districts will be encouraged to share information, ideas and solutions to major educational problems. In addition, districts with uniquely challenging problems will receive extensive attention and assistance from the state.

And fourth, monitoring will be intensified only in those districts that do not meet state requirements.

Q. What do you mean by "intensified"? Will the state continue monitoring in spite of the shift in emphasis to planning?

A. A rigorous examination of every school district in the state will be conducted over the next two to three years.

Districts that meet state requirements will not be inspected again for five years. We must give them the opportunity to direct their energies to help children learn better, to strive to elevate discussion and debate. We must encourage these school districts, and not create a system that saps their energies and resources.

Those districts that fail to meet the requirements of law and code, however, will be monitored continuously and offered assistance.

State We're In

A conservation victory

Oct. 18 was a date which deserves memorialization. That's when President Reagan signed the Coastal Barrier Resources Act, described by the New York Times as the "first major new conservation law of his administration."

For the past several years I've been tracing the path of the legislation which became law in October. It is designed to protect those strips of sand between the sea and bays which are known as barrier islands.

Much of the New Jersey shore is barrier island, but most of those islands are hard to recognize as such because they are covered by houses, hotels and the like. But they are islands all right, and remain very fragile despite the works of man. In many cases man's works actually make them more susceptible to storm action because of tampering with the natural sand dunes and beachfront.

I've written here in the past about barrier islands and the need to nurture them rather than wreck them. Although low and seemingly insignificant, they perform a vital task in protecting our mainland from the furies of major storms. A "healthy" barrier island is one which gradually moves about over long periods of time because of the ebb and flow of sands along its ocean and bay shores.

In that condition they are designed by nature to be sometimes submerged by

TRIP notes: bridges are 'outdated'

By JOHN P. SHERIDAN JR.
State commissioner of transportation.

Many of you have probably read news stories about a report issued by The Road Information Program (TRIP) concerning the condition of nearly one-third of New Jersey's 4,592 highway bridges.

The report's findings were no surprise to us in the Department of Transportation, but some of you may have been shocked to read about the deteriorating condition of the bridges you rely on every day to take you to and from work or school, recreational, commercial and health centers.

Included on the list of worn and outdated bridges in Union County are the Gordon Street Bridge over the railroad tracks in Roselle Park; South Front Street Bridge over the Elizabeth River in Elizabeth; and the Park Avenue Bridge over AMTRAK in Linden.

I can assure you that no bridges now open to traffic in the state is jeopardizing your safety, but many of them, 373 by latest count, are "functionally obsolete," that is, they are incapable of accommodating the traffic that must cross them. Most bridges and access ramps in this category were designed and built in the 1920s, '30s and '40s and are too narrow or too sharply curved for today's cars and trucks.

Another 1,042 bridges are what we call "structurally deficient," which means that the deck, support beams and/or superstructure are badly worn because of the volume of traffic and vehicle weights which they bear daily. We've already posted some of these bridges for lower weight limits. As a result, trucks, school buses and emergency vehicles are often forced to travel miles out of the way to cross a stronger bridge, wasting energy and, in some cases, life-saving minutes.

We have estimated that it would cost about $927 million to bring these obsolete and deficient bridges up to modern standards of sufficiency. But during this fiscal year we have only $27 million allocated for bridge rehabilitation and replacement. Next fiscal year, we hope to have about $57 million for bridge projects, but that figure includes anticipated federal funding which we may not be able to obtain if the Legislature does not appropriate the required state matching funds.

As a rule, we tend to take our transportation system for granted. We also tend to take it as a personal insult when a convenient link in the network is closed to us, even for a short time. But, without dependable and adequate funding at the state level, I can promise you that the coming months and years hold a great deal of inconvenience as the department is forced to post or completely close bridge after bridge to protect the traveling safety of you and your family.

Q. What criteria will be used for assessing school district performance and how will the examinations be carried out?

A. Criteria and procedures are presently being developed. A committee will report to me no later than March 30, 1983. It is at work now identifying the "essentials" that every district must have to assure its students "educational opportunity which will prepare them to function politically, economically and socially in a democratic society." I will review the recommendations and make a presentation to the State Board.

All questions to the commissioner for this column should be addressed to: "Commissioner's Column," Office of Public Information, New Jersey Department of Education, 225 West State St., Trenton 08625, phone 609-292-4040.

storms, getting reshaped in the process, while they perform their protection of the mainland. But they are not healthy when man builds on them, and tries to anchor them with seawalls and other expensive and generally all too temporary construction.

That's why the new law is a good thing. It precludes further expenditure of public monies on such ill-advised construction as roads, bridges and sewers along 600 miles of unspoiled Gulf and Atlantic coastline.

With the President's signing of the barrier island law, we won't (I hope!) find it so easy to continue with past mistakes.

After all, it makes no sense for us to subsidize commercial development in an unsafe area, and then have to invest more public money in insure it, and build sea walls and jetties to keep out the tide, only to have to pay money out again to rescue folks when they get wet, and then offer low-interest public loans to start rebuilding all over again. That's a very vicious cycle! The cost-benefit ratio for that process is clearly not in the best interest of the public.

All that's needed to prevent that crazy spiral is to keep development away from the most hazardous places, away from the very edge of the sea. For the most part, coastal areas in Europe have been handled this way. In Denmark, for example, few buildings even come near the water's edge by the ocean on top of the dunes.

Safety advice given by fire department

SPRINGFIELD—Fire never takes a holiday, but it could ruin yours. To keep the holiday season merry be sure to follow some sound advice offered by the Springfield Fire Department.

• Pay special attention to fire safety when planning Christmas trees, lighting, decorations and gifts.

• Select a firm, fresh tree and put it in a cool place with its base in water. Before setting it up, cut about an inch off the base to help the tree absorb water, then place the tree in a sturdy stand containing water. To be sure the water level stays above the cut, check it daily.

• Locate the tree away from heat and where it won't block exits. Take it down as soon as possible after Christmas — the more it dries out, the more of a hazard it becomes. Don't rely on do-it-yourself flame proofing treatments.

• Never use lighted candles on a tree or near any evergreen decorations.

• Check sets of electric lights closely for worn insulation, broken plugs and loose bulb sockets. Use only sets that carry the label of a leading national testing laboratory.

• Use extension cords sparingly.

• Never hang sets of lights on a metallic artificial tree — to avoid shock hazard, use only indirect lighting instead. If artificial tree has built-in electrical system, it should be "listed" by a recognized national testing laboratory.

• Turn off all indoor tree and decorative lights when leaving the house or retiring for the night. Outdoor lights should have special wiring intended for outside use.

• For decorations, use materials which are non-combustible, such as glass, or which are flame-retardant. Keep natural evergreens and polystyrene decorations away from candles, fireplaces and other open flames.

• Be sure holiday costumes and masks, such as Santa suits and whiskers and children's pageant outfits, are flameproofed.

• Pick up wrappings while opening gifts and put them into covered trash containers. Never burn wrappings or boxes in the fireplace.

• To meet safety standards, all electric toys should be "listed" by a recognized national testing laboratory.

Songfest set for Caldwell

SPRINGFIELD—Students of the James Caldwell School will present a program of seasonal songs at 10 a.m. on Tuesday in the school.

The program is under the direction of Elaine Scurtis. Several selections will be performed by instrumental music students under the instruction of Dorothy Stallworth.

The Caldwell School PTA invites parents to attend the show.

TUNING UP—Ricky Julian and Lisa Barre, both of Mountanside, and Springfield residents Alan Souza and Amy Horn rehearse for performances around the community this holiday season. They are members of the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School Chorale.

Kidney Fund cites Money Store

The Money Store Inc., was awarded a commendation citation recently, by the Kidney Fund of New Jersey on behalf of its "longstanding support and commitment to the Fund and its cause" at the group's recent Candlelight Ball fundraiser in Parsippany.

The award was presented to The Money Store President Alan Turteltaub of Short Hills, Vice President Anthony R. Medici of South Plainfield, and marketing President Joseph Costa of Springfield, all trustees of the Fund.

Former Kidney Fund President Jeremiah O'Dwyer, cited The Money Store as a "corporation with a heart" because of its ongoing volunteer efforts and activities directed at helping patients with kidney disease. Both Turteltaub and Costa are former recipients of the Kidney Fund's Humanitarian Award.

Celebrating its 15th anniversary this year, The Money Store Inc., is the nation's largest independent second mortgage lender with offices in 11 states and the District of Columbia. Second mortgages operate on the principal of using the appreciated value of homes as collateral for loans for major expenses such as medical bills, home improvement, school tuition and debt consolidation.

Dayton singers sparkle

The holiday season is being brightened this year by performances of three choirs which make up the Vocal Music Department at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield.

The Vocal Workshop, composed of first year music students, has already provided a program of holiday music for the Garden Club of Mountanside at its meeting on Dec. 7. This group sang a variety of songs including Fum, Fum, Fum, a Spanish carol, Hannukkah Festival of Lights, and a version of Angels We Have Heard On High.

The Concert Choir sang at the Menorah and Tree Lighting Ceremony at the Springfield Town Hall on Dec. 9 and performed a mini-concert at the Livingston Mall on the evening of Dec. 14. This group will appear again on Tuesday at 1 p.m. at the Springfield Public Library.

The Jonathan Dayton Chorale is scheduled to sing numerous performances throughout the community this month. They will present a program of holiday music for the Rotary Club of Mountanside at the East Winds Restaurant on Monday.

The Short Hills Mall has been the scene for several Dec. 8 and Dec. 11, and strolling performances by groups of singers from within the Chorale. Groups performed there p.m. on Saturday, and at 7 p.m. on Wednesday.

Parsell cautions shopper

SPRINGFIELD—Tis the season to be jolly, especially for thieves, according to Police Chief George E. Parsell, who listed precautions for pre-holiday shoppers.

• Never leave parcels or other valuables in an automobile in open view. Be sure to lock all valuables in the trunk.

• Don't carry large sums of money. Use charge plates or traveler's checks when shopping.

• Keep track of your charge plates and be sure they are returned from store clerks. Keep a list of all accounts and their numbers should the plates become lost or stolen.

• Arrange to have expensive items delivered.

• If you plan to be away from home and are expecting a package delivery, ask a neighbor to keep an eye out for the delivery and hold it until your return.

At Wellesley

MOUNTAINSIDE—Barbara Goldner of Mountanside, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Goldner, is a freshman at Wellesley College in Wellesley, Mass.

• Women should never place their pocketbooks on store counters.

• Men are cautioned against carrying wallets with large amounts of cash in their rear pockets.

• Be sure to park your car in a well-lighted area.

Parsell additionally cautions shoppers to beware of the parking lot thief.

These people will approach an unsuspecting shopper and offer items, such as watches and radios, at what appears to be cut-rate prices. According to Parsell, these items are usually cheap imitations.

Kiwanis sets Xmas party

SPRINGFIELD—The Millburn-Springfield Kiwanis will hold its 15th annual Christmas party at noon today for 100 students, teachers and administrators of the Millburn School for the Hearing Impaired.

Santa Claus, played by the immediate past governor of New Jersey Kiwanis, will be Walter Uffelmann. Santa will arrive via firepole to hand out gifts to all the students and faculty.

A whole new world of investment opportunity!

The Investors Fund

an insured money market account

Investors Savings proudly announces The Investors Fund. Open this account and you'll never even consider uninsured money market funds again! All it takes is a minimum of $2,500 to get started.

Insured Safe

First of all, unlike money market funds, your deposits are fully insured, protected to $100,000 by the FSLIC.

Money Market Rates

The rate changes weekly and is based on the 7-day average of money market funds for the prior week, as published by Donoghue's Money Fund Report plus .25%. If balance drops below $2,500, interest is paid at the rate of 5.25% per annum as required by federal regulations, during that day.

Total Flexibility

Once you have opened your account with $2,500 or more, you may make additional deposits or withdrawals in any amount at any time without penalty. As an added convenience, you may also make preauthorized, automatic transfers to another account.

Unlimited Check Writing*

You'll be able to write as many checks as you wish for any amount, and there'll never be a monthly service charge as long as you maintain a balance of only $50 or more. That's the minimum required to earn interest, too.

The Investors Fund... it's available to individuals, non-profit organizations and government bodies. Take advantage of this truly extraordinary opportunity now.

Sorry, gifts not available with this account.

DiFrancesco retains minority leader role

Senator Donald T. DiFrancesco, R-Union-Essex, was unanimously re-elected Senate Minority Leader recently for a one-year term.

DiFrancesco of Scotch Plains has served in the Senate since Nov. 1979 when he was elected to fill the unexpired term of Peter McDonough. He was re-elected in 1981.

Before being elected to the Senate, DiFrancesco served two terms in the Assembly.

As Minority Leader, DiFrancesco is responsible for representing the interest of the 19 Republican senators in dealing with the Kean administration and the Democratic legislative leadership.

DiFrancesco is a partner in the law firm of Hooley, Butler, DiFrancesco and Kelly of Westfield.

The GOP Senators also unanimously voted to re-elect S. Thomas Gagliano, R-Monmouth, as Assistant Minority Leader; James R. Hurley, R-Cumberland, as Minority Whip and John H. Dorsey, R-Morris, as Assistant Minority Whip.

In addition, the 19 Republican Senators unanimously voted to create an unprecedented fifth leadership position of Minority Budget Officer to be filled by Senator Walter Foran, R-Hunterdon.

Foran is the ranking Republican on the Legislature's Joint Appropriations Committee.

"The establishment of this new position underscores the importance the Majority Party places on the fiscal affairs of the state," DiFrancesco said. "We need someone in leadership whose finger is on the pulse of the budget process."

Senator Foran was the logical choice. He has 13 years of firsthand experience in the appropriations process as a member of the appropriations committee. His in-depth knowledge of the state's fiscal affairs has earned him the respect of both Republicans and Democrats.

Dooley represents AFA in talks to local groups

MOUNTAINSIDE—Cadet Robert C. Dooley of Mountainside was recently chosen to represent the United States Air Force Academy in "Operation Grass Roots", a public relations program conducted twice a year by the Academy.

Employing the theory that the best spokesperson for the Academy is a cadet, the Air Force Academy sends outstanding cadets back to their local area to speak to high school, service clubs, scouting organizations and possible nominees. Their aim is to tell the Academy story from a Cadet's viewpoint.

Dooley is a third class cadet (Sophomore) and is a member of the 13th squadron. He is a graduate of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, class of 1981. Dooley has distinguished himself while at the academy by being placed on the Dean's List twice and the Commandant's List once.

Though only a third classman, Dooley has become a soaring instructor, helping many young cadets earn their coveted soaring wings. He has logged many hours soaring and considers this one of the finest programs at the Academy.

Dooley is also a member of the Academy flying team. He has traveled throughout the United States representing the Air Force Academy in flying competition.

The purpose of the Air Force Academy is to provide professional officers and leaders for the U.S. Air Force. The Academy is a four year engineering school, offering an environment in which all cadets can reach their full potential. For information about entering the Air Force Academy, write to the Registrar, U.S. Air Force Academy, Colorado Springs, Colo. 80840 or contact the local liaison officer.

Franks joins commission on retirement systems

As New Jersey's state government continues to search for cost cutting initiatives, an area commanding special attention is state administered retirement systems, according to Assemblyman Bob Franks (R Union-Essex), the newest member of the Governor's Pension Study Commission.

"The total cost of pension programs administered by the state has increased 900 percent since 1966. At that rate of growth, the annual cost of these pensions will exceed $1 billion by 1984," Assemblyman Franks pointed out.

At present, the total annual appropriation by the state to support retirement programs it administers (including the Teachers Pension and Annuity Fund, the Public Employees Retirement System and the Consolidated Police and Firemen's Fund) is $831.5 million.

The New Jersey Pension Study Commission was established by Governor Kean to review the financing, administration, operation, benefit structures and investment policies of state administered pension systems and to determine how the cost of funding employee benefits can best be managed. Franks was recently appointed to the Commission by Assembly Speaker Alan Karcher.

According to Assemblyman Franks, the Commission will attempt to balance two interests in its examination of state funded pension systems; the rights of the pensioners and those of the taxpayers who pick up the bulk of the cost.

Key club raises $4000 for leukemia

SPRINGFIELD—The Jonathan Dayton Key Club raised over $4000 in its fifth annual Leukemia Super Bowl Classic held recently at Echo Lanes in Springfield. The club was successful in surpassing last year's total of $2600 through the active participation of all members.

Over 70 members had community residents sponsor them from one to five cents per pin. The members then bowled a series of three games to arrive at the total pledge. The top money raiser was Michael Danberg, who raised $256.

Club president Jon Silverman and Bowl-a-thon chairperson Lauren Layton will present the check to the Leukemia Society of America during

SEPARATE HEALTH COVERAGE AT AGE 19

"I can't believe our baby is ready for his own Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage."

An important reminder for non group New Jersey Blue Cross and Blue Shield subscribers. Your dependent children will no longer be covered under your family contract after January 31, 1983 if they reach age 19 in 1982. So make sure your 19 year old applies for separate Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage before January 31, 1983; after that date, a health statement will be required.

If you're a group subscriber, the cutoff age may vary depending on your coverage... so check your contract. Mentally retarded or physically handicapped children may remain on their parent's contract after the cutoff age if they're chiefly dependent on you financially. However, proof of incapacity must be submitted by January 31, 1983.

So if this is the year your child turns 19, make sure he or she applies for separate coverage in time (students should inquire about our Student Program). It's really a very simple matter. But don't let it slide or it could turn into a problem for dependent children. Call your nearest Blue Cross and Blue Shield office. Freshmen take honors courses at Rutgers

The classroom crackles with ideas as a dozen college students discuss "Power and Identity."

Elsewhere on campus, similar clusters of scholars debate "Historical Concepts of Freedom in Western Civilization," "The Mathematical Theory of Nerve Conduction" and "Cultural Violence and the Theory of the Scapegoat."

These are graduate-level colloquia, right?

Wrong!

THE BEST FOR THE BRIGHTEST—Lively debates in small classes are part of the new Rutgers University honors program that is attracting some of New Jersey's most gifted high school graduates. Sophomore Francoise Carrier (left) shares an idea with fellow honors student John Gattuso, a junior, and Dr. Patricia Tobin, director of honors program at Rutgers College.

They are freshman seminars in the new honors program at Rutgers University.

While special honors courses and independent study opportunities have long been available to talented juniors and seniors at New Jersey State University, the new honors program offers challenges to high achievers from the very first class period.

Although only in its third year university-wide, the program has attracted many of the best and the brightest among the state's high school graduates and has earned enthusiastic support within the Rutgers community.

"The spirit and ability of the honors students is exceeding our expectations," reports Associate Professor Patricia Tobin, who heads the honors program at Rutgers College. "Their responsiveness also motivates the faculty to offer extra enrichment and stretch beyond departmental limits."

"What distinguishes the honors seminars from other courses is the quality of the exchange in the classroom," says Associate Professor Peter Dennis Bathory, who directs the honors program at Livingston College.

"Honors students are enthusiastic about learning and consistently prepared. Small classes give them a chance to try out new ideas, have closer contact with the professors and be challenged by other bright students."

The scholars return the compliment. "It's great for freshmen to get to learn from some of the best professors — the ones who really love to teach," declares Lisa Colucci, now a junior at Douglass College. "They really go out of their way to help you understand."

The honors program was launched in 1980 to demonstrate the university's commitment to keeping New Jersey's most gifted young people in the state, explains Harold Hirshman, Rutgers' associate vice president for student services. In addition to the challenging honors curricula, with small classes and individual attention, incentives include generous scholarships based solely on academic or artistic excellence, without regard for need.

The merit awards are funded entirely by private gifts from alumni and other donors, corporations and bequests. They range from the prestigious Presidential Scholar Awards, which cover almost all expenses for four years ($4,000 annually for resident students), to a number of collegiate merit awards offered by each of Rutgers' 10 undergraduate day schools and colleges. Assistance runs from a few hundred dollars to full tuition — $1,366 this year. The total awarded by the university as a whole is about $105,000.

For the first year, scholarship recipients were selected from the regular pool of freshman applicants, says Hirshman. Since 1981, however, award winners have been chosen from about a thousand outstanding New Jersey students who, as high school juniors, participate in "Scholars Day" at the New Brunswick, Newark and Camden campuses of the State University.

Coordinated by the Office of Undergraduate Admissions, the event provides scholars an opportunity to learn about their state university as well as compete for merit awards. Campus tours and parents' forums are popular parts of the day.

Participation in Scholars Day is by invitation only. High school principals throughout the state are asked to nominate the top scholar in each junior class, and other students are invited on the basis of their College Entrance Examination Board PSAT scores and class standing.

Each college and school within the State University has its own approach to education, and each honors program reflects that.

In the General Honors Program at Rutgers College, freshmen and sophomores select three interdisciplinary seminars during their first four terms.

About 20 different topics are offered each year. As in graduate seminars, subjects are examined in depth, with responsibility for class discussion shared by students and professor. Unlike graduate work, courses and participants cross traditional academic borders.

Douglass College Scholars go on to participate in sophomore tutorials. Each student selects a topic outside her major and works closely with one professor on a special project.

Freshman seminars at Livingston are team taught. This year Dr. Bathory's knowledge of political science is complemented by Dr. Abena Busia's expertise in English literature. Their honors seminar on "The Citizen in History" develops political and historical themes through literary sources. A teaching team gives students close contact with professors holding differing viewpoints. Bathory points out.

At Cook College, a team of three to five professors conducts one seminar for all freshman honors students—examining a single theme from a variety of perspectives. Guest lecturers are also invited, states program director Thomas Matro.

At the Camden College of Arts and Sciences, freshman seminars cover such topics as "The Bible: Its Religion and Literature" and "Race in the Americas: Slavery and Race Relations."

A walking tour of Newark and field trips to other parts of New Jersey and New York City are part of the freshman honors experience at the Newark College of Arts and Sciences. A colloquium series required of upperclassmen can be "audited," or attended, by freshmen and sophomores.

While most of the State University's colleges offer academic credit for honors courses, the College of Pharmacy does not. "The intent of the program is to offer enrichment above and beyond graduation requirements," explains Dr. Bartley Sciarra, dean of instruction.

UCC budgets attain approval of trustees

The Board of Trustees of Union County College adopted budgets for 1982-83 totaling $15,013,793 and for 1983-84 totaling $16,106,370 at a meeting at the Cranford Campus.

Dr. Saul Orkin, UCC president, reported both budgets are based on 6,677 full-time equivalent students.

The Board also voted to submit both budgets to the Board of School Estimate, which certifies the amounts the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders must appropriate.

Orkin reported the Department of Higher Education has indicated the College's state aid for 1982-83 might be reduced by three percent, because of the state's fiscal crisis. This would result in a loss of state aid of about $125,000, Dr. Orkin said.

In other business, the Board voted to purchase an academic computer system from Digital Equipment Corporation, Marlboro, Mass., at a cost of $436,040 and $48,134.75 for the first year maintenance. It was reported that two bids were received, but the bid of Prime Computer Corporation did not meet the specifications.

Orkin reported the computer system is designed to serve the academic computing needs on the Scotch Plains and Cranford Campuses, the Elizabeth Urban Educational Center, and the Schools of Nursing and Radiology of Elizabeth General Medical Center, Elizabeth, and Muhlenberg Hospital, Plainfield. The system will permit the College to set up 70 or more terminals at the five locations. More than 2,000 Union County College students are currently enrolled in computer classes.

The College offers programs leading to an Associate in Science degree in accounting/data processing and computer science/data processing, an option in computer information systems to the business major, leading to an Associate in Arts degree, and a non-credit certificate in computing offering by the Division of Continuing Education. In addition, computer courses are major components of the engineering and business programs, which lead to an Associate in Arts degree.

The Board adopted procedures for the student body to elect a member of the graduating class to serve as a non-voting representative on the Board of Trustees. The alumni representative would be elected as part of the annual Student Government Association election in April.

A resolution was adopted expressing condolences to the family of Prof. Farris S. Swackhamer, who died on Nov. 3 after a short illness. Prof. Swackhamer, who retired three years ago, was a professor of chemistry for 20 years, chairman of the Chemistry Department for seven years, and at various times served as assistant to the president, director of institutional research, and director of the evening and summer sessions. Prof. Swackhamer also was a highly recognized ornithologist and conservationist and was active in numerous civic affairs in Cranford.

Pastor gives thanks for benefit offering

The Rev. George C. Schlesinger, pastor of the Springfield United Methodist Church, Church Mall at Academy Green, has offered his gratitude to "all the churches and temples that shared in the community Thanksgiving service Nov. 24 for the offering gift of $182.50 collected for the benefit of the Overlook chaplaincy." The service was held in the pastor's church.

Bears have plenty of optimism

If you're a Brearley Bear fan, get ready for a busy weekend of winter sports action.

Six of Brearley's teams will get under way this weekend, with the two varsity and two junior varsity basketball teams premiering tomorrow and the wrestlers opening up on Saturday.

As for the boys' basketball team, the Bears will debut at Bound Brook tomorrow evening before returning home on Tuesday for a 7:30 p.m. clash with Roselle Park.

And the girls will take on the same foes, with just the sites switched: home against Bound Brook tomorrow and at Roselle Park on Tuesday.

The wrestling team, coached by Ron Ferrara, is very optimistic as it begins its 1982 season on Saturday at Roselle Catholic.

The team has many goals, Ferrara said. The Bears are determined to improve the quality of wrestling on all levels — freshman through varsity. They hope to have their first better than 500 season in several years, and possibly win 10 or more matches. And the team will also like its overall performance in the districts and the regionals to improve.

The Bears are well represented by all the classes but are dominated by the juniors and seniors. The team has eight returning varsity letter-winners but, for the first time in several years, they have some competition for starting positions.

Ferrara expects all returning wrestlers to contribute equally to a successful season, especially the varsity senior wrestlers — Ed Miller, Joe Lospinoso, Aurelio Sesto and Kevin Lombardo.

"We'll have a young team with more experience than we have had in the past, and we are looking forward to an exciting year," he said.

Brearley has been changed to District II so the team's schedule will be much different this year.

Even more excitement could come from the Brearley bowling team, coached by Vincent Albano. For the first time in eight years, the team will compete in the Mountain Valley Conference League.

The team will start six varsity bowlers, and the top five highest scores will qualify for scoring. Over 25 students, including a number of freshmen, are trying out for the team.

The returning varsity bowlers include senior Tom Vandewater, who last year broke the school record for high game with a 268 and the high series record with a 667; senior Jim Blackford and junior Ray Hensel. Other possible varsity bowlers include senior Eric Zank, juniors Elliot Wansky and Dan Irwin and sophomore Darren Myers.

The team will bowl 15 matches at Echo Lanes in Mountainside and Bowlarama in Somerville. Brearley's first match is Jan. 3.

Hockstein to lead Dayton girls

By RON BRANDSDORFER
When Art Krupp took over as the head coach of Dayton's girls' basketball team, he walked into a program that had won just one game the season before.

With the help of junior varsity coach Joe Cozza, Krupp was able to boost that total to three in his first year and to eight a year ago. Now may come the biggest hurdle of all: a winning record.

"We're looking for a .500 mark," he said. "Anything over that and we'd be ecstatic."

And that's especially true because Dayton will premiere with two of the best teams — Ridge and Governor Livingston — on its schedule before Wednesday's key home clash against West Orange. The annual regional holiday tourney, featuring Brearley, Johnson, G.L. and Dayton, will follow on Dec. 28 and 30.

If the Dayton girls have a problem, it may be a lack of depth. Only 15 girls have come out for the varsity and junior varsity teams, and Krupp believes that might cause some problems.

"We're hurt by a lack of numbers more than anything else," he said.

There certainly is no lack of talent, as the girls have proven by defeating Summit and Westfield in pre-season scrimmages.

The best player of all — and one of the finest in Union County — is shooting guard Linda Hockstein, a talented junior. Hockstein poured in 13.5 points a game last year and upped that to over 17 ppg. over the last 10 games.

"And we're still looking for some improvement in that department," Krupp said. "She's our leader on offense."

And Traci Karr may be the leader on defense. The junior has improved her offensive game but still loves to play defense.

"Traci is one of our better — if not our best — defensive players," Krupp pointed out. "She'll be important in our pressing defense and in our man-to-man defense. She'll probably go head to head against our opponent's best offensive player."

The Chairwoman of the Boards is another junior, Kathy Meixner, while junior Kathy Drummond has improved her offensive game significantly and could be a big scoring threat this season. She even tied in 24 points in one of the scrimmages.

The final starter will probably be a senior, Kathy Price, who has been in the Dayton program for four years. Price is "very reliable," according to Krupp, and is a consistent offensive and defensive player.

Coming off the bench will be junior Lisa Wood, who has been slowed by illness, and ninth grader Dawn Pohlman. Pohlman, a point guard, has drawn rave reviews during the pre-season.

"She'll be an excellent player," Krupp said. "She's probably as good as Linda (Hockstein) was as a freshman, and if she progresses the way Linda has, we'll be thrilled."

Despite the small numbers, Krupp plans to emphasize a quick-moving, defense-oriented system.

"We're going to try to run more and more," he said. "It'll really depend on how well we rebound. And if we can't run, we'll try to settle into a very patient offense. We're also going to be extremely aggressive on defense. We'll try to press all the time."

The season will begin tomorrow (7:30 p.m.) at Ridge and will be followed by Tuesday evening's (6 p.m.) game in Berkeley Heights and Wednesday's 4 p.m. home showdown with former Suburban Conference rival West Orange.

Summit Y teams power to swim league victories

Three of the four Summit YMCA Seals swim teams began their 1982-83 seasons last week ... and came out with season-opening victories. The Girls B team defeated Frehold, 98-93, as did the Boys A squad, 100-99. The Boys B team beat Madison, 104-84.

Multiple first place winners for the Girls B team were Cathy Vignolo (11-12 age) in the 50 yard backstroke, 50 freestyle and 200 freestyle relay; Jackie Press (15-17) 200 individual medley, 100 backstroke and 200 free relay; Amy Herr (eight and under) 25 backstroke and 25 butterfly and Cindi Wattis (15-17) 100 free and 200 free relay.

The Boys A had five double winners: Greg Wattis (9-10) 100 individual medley and 100 free relay; Mark Callahan (9-10) 50 back and 50 free; Robert Chesley (9-10) 50 back and 100 free relay; Sven Riebensahm (13-14) 50 free and 200 free relay and Joe Cicenia (13-14) 50 breast and 200 free relay.

Double winners for the Boys B team were: Rob Morris (8 and under) 25 free and 25 back; Chris Renkar (11-12) 50 free and 200 free relay; John Enama (11-12) 50 butterfly and 200 free relay; Jim Holt (13-14) 50 back and 200 free relay; Jay Cornell (13-14) 50 butterfly and free relay and Rich Gascoyne (15-17) 200 individual medley and 200 free relay.

Have A real OLD-FASHIONED CHRISTMAS TREE WITH sensational NEW-FANGLED Convenience

Everybody for miles around knows us ... we're Christmas headquarters for big beautiful Balsams, dashing Douglas Firs, scrumptious Scotch pines, old-timey evergreen ropings and ... our original one-of-a-kind wreaths are almost status-making with the local gentry. This year, we're still all out for charm and old-fashioned values but with none of the nuisance. Come see: —

STAND STRAIT — our own exclusive tree holder. We drill your tree to fit it, absolutely plumb, and ... when it gets home it stands tall and true, ready to trim 1, 2, 3, with no fuss! no muss!

ALL WRAPPED UP ... really! A clean car and house is our present to you. Pick your tree, then we'll plastic-wrap it in Vexar netting to protect its shape, keep things neat!

THIS IS A QUALITY GROWN CHRISTMAS TREE

During its growing years, this tree has beautified the land; cleansed the air; provided you with oxygen; and protected your water supply. It has been replaced by other trees to continue this ecological contribution.

ADDED TREE USE

After this tree, has added joy to your Christmas let it continue to benefit the environment. Place it on your lawn as a bird shelter and feeder, or remove its branches for plant mulch. The remaining trunk can provide rustic wood of many uses.

Baron to captain college hoop squad

Cheryl Baron of Mountainside is a captain of both the Johns Hopkins University women's field hockey and basketball teams. She also serves on the Board of Intramural Athletics at the Baltimore school as vice president.

She is a senior majoring in public health. A 1979 graduate of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, where she captained the women's volleyball team and was a member of the National Honor Society and Spanish Honor Society.

Baron is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Myron Baron of Central Avenue in Mountainside.

Brearley standout to captain RU team

Barbara Lospinoso, a junior from Kenilworth and a graduate of David Brearley Regional High School, is serving as a co-captain of the 1982-83 women's gymnastics team at Rutgers University.

Lospinoso will be competing in the all-around competition and Coach Leslie Berman is counting on her to provide leadership and solid performances throughout the season.

Bulldogs in 'pretty good shape'

By RON BRANDSDORFER
When the Bulldogs and head coach Ray Yanchus reflect back on the 1981-82 high school basketball season, they see a 14-11 record and a lot of "what ifs."
"We could have easily won another five games," said Yanchus, the Bulldogs' veteran coach. "That's why we're going to concentrate on having a little more poise down the stretch, on not giving some of those games away. If we do that, we should be in pretty good shape."

After all, Yanchus knows that four seniors, all of whom saw plenty of action a year ago, return to lead the Bulldogs, who could be one of the teams to beat in the Mountain Valley Conference.

"It's going to be the same routine: 'On any given day...'" said Yanchus, whose team will host Ridge tomorrow (7:30 p.m.) in the season opener and will head to Berkeley Heights on Tuesday for a home game with Governor Livingston.

The Bulldogs, though, may be very tough to beat. They proved that a year ago, breaking out of a mini-slump in December to post a six game winning streak during January.

Some of last year's stars are a year better, while a pair of newcomers are expected to help quite a bit.

"We have four seniors starting who can play fairly well together when they're on," Yanchus said. "These players can instinctively react to what their teammates are doing. They don't need time to execute. Their movements are more automatic, spontaneous."

Yet team concept aside, everything will revolve around point guard Ron Fusco, a 5-7 senior who is Yanchus' type of player: tough, hard-nosed and talented. Fusco ran the show for the Bulldogs last year.

"Ron's shooting has improved tremendously," Yanchus said. "He's been running well. He's beaten and battered, but he keeps sticking his nose in there. He runs our offense and keys the defense by pressuring the ball."

All of which should make Fusco one of the top point guards in the MVC. He'll be joined in the backcourt by a soph, Greg Graziano, a steady player who impresses Yanchus with his court awareness.

"The Bulldogs' real strength rests with the frontcourt. Kyle Hudgins and Jim Price are the most familiar names to Bulldog fans, but Tim Walker might be the team's best all-around player."

Walker, whose brothers Kevin and Larry played for Yanchus at Dayton, is a 6-3 senior forward who saw limited action a year ago. But he's an improved player.

"Tim runs well, shoots well and jumps well," Yanchus said. "He can play around the basket or go out and shoot the jumper in the 15-18 foot range. And he drives very well to the basket."

The Bulldogs will be looking for some points from Walker and some solid inside play from Hudgins and Price.

Hudgins, the all-everything football standout, is also a talented basketball player. He was one of the team's top scorers and rebounders a year ago and should be even better this time around.

"Kyle's a real power player," Yanchus said of the 6-2 senior. "I think if we can get him to stay around the basket and to use his strength, he should be able to challenge a lot of people. He can really sweep the boards, and he's got a great instinctive reaction to the ball on defense."

Price is more of a finesse player inside. The 6-0 senior is a good shooter and an excellent offensive rebounder, and he can really zip on the fast break.

"Jimmy has some good offensive moves to the basket," Yanchus said. "He uses his body very well for his size."

Yanchus won't know for sure until the season begins, but he believes that the Bulldogs have a deep enough bench to allow him a bit of maneuvering.

There's plenty of height in the second group, with juniors Glenn Booker (6-3), Chris Knerem (6-2) and Chris Federico (6-2). Senior Glenn Delaney and junior Mike McNary are the subs at guard, while juniors Eric Wolf, Drew Greeley and John Fallon can play both guard and forward.

But all that talent won't matter at all, Yanchus said, if the Bulldogs don't execute the all-important fundamentals.

"We can't think we can get away with talent," he said. "Talent's just not enough. You have to be able to do the basic fundamentals: blocking out, passing, shooting, rebounding."

And, of course, in the Yanchus System, the emphasis is on defense. Tough defense.

"We're always pushing defense," he explained. "I think that defense has to be a part of the offense. Primarily, we're going to try to run off our defense."

From Day One, too. A year ago, it took the Bulldogs a few weeks to get their game together. Yanchus is intent on speeding up that process.

"We had the December blues last year," he recalled. "Then when January came along, we won six or seven in a row. We want to be ready when the season starts on Dec. 17. We've got to be ready."

He'll know for sure tomorrow.

Dayton matmen looking for improved team mark

By BOB BRUCKNER
Rick Iacono isn't looking for an early Christmas present from his Dayton wrestlers. Just simple improvement over last year's record will do just fine, thank-you.

The team kicks off the 1982 season tomorrow at the Governor Livingston Tournament in Berkeley Heights. And, according to Iacono, the Bulldogs have been working very hard to make the season opener a success.

"They seem more serious about wrestling," Iacono said. "They want to be successful and they are working harder to obtain their goal."

The GL tournament is a great place to start. The tourney provides the Bulldogs with a taste of the strong competition they will be up against in the upcoming Mountain Valley Conference dual meet season.

On the other hand, the tournament is very tough. Just ask Iacono.

"We realize that the tournament is tough," he said. "I am not interested in anything but what they (the team) can do. It is one of the best tournaments in the state. Only two Group II schools will be participating."

Dayton wrestlers will be up against, among others, Hunterdon Central, which has one of the best wrestling programs in New Jersey. Scotch Plains, Union, Plainfield and Westfield are the top Union County contenders in the tourney, while Millburn will represent Essex County.

Since the tournament will be a tough one, the Bulldogs have been working extra hard. According to Iacono, the team "wants to win" and that alone makes a big difference.

The Bulldog lineup isn't set yet, but most likely to wrestle in the lower weight classes will be Matt Locatelli at 105 pounds, Rob Sokohl at 112, Vince Castellani at 119 and either David Edlecreek or Anthony Romano at the 126-pound weight class.

In the mid-weights, Alfie Heckle will wrestle at 132 pounds and Tony Apicella will battle the 138 slot for the Bulldogs.

The 145 weight class is actually a tossup between Kevin Duffy, Dave Salsido and Matt Gilsenan, while the 155 slot has been earned by Kent Murray.

In the upper weights, Jack Vogel will tackle the 167 slot and captains Matt Kuperstein and Anthony Castellani will wrestle in the 185 and heavyweight slots, respectively.

Following the tournament, the Bulldogs have a tough dual meet schedule to follow. The action will begin with a tough dual meet against Johnson

Regional at Clark, while conference showdowns

Santa at Warinanco

Santa Claus will take time out from his holiday preparations to get a little exercise and spread some holiday cheer this Sunday at the Skating Center in Roselle's Warinanco Park.

He will appear in both the 1-3 p.m. and 3:30-5:30 p.m. sessions. Children can skate with Santa, give him last minute gift requests and get some Christmas candy.

The whole rink will come alive with the sights and sounds of Christmas in the form of a tree and decorations. General admission prices will be charged.

Skating at the center is held daily with evening sessions most days. General admission is $2.50 for adults, $1.75 for youth under 17 and senior citizens over 62 and 50 cents for adult chaperones. Skates may be rented for $1.25.

Instructions, private sessions, private parties, advanced lessons and discount cards are available and there are lockers and a snack bar on the premises.

A second session of skating lessons will begin on Tuesday. Further information is available by calling the rink at 241-3263.

George Linen paintings going on exhibit at FDU

Paintings by the nineteenth century portrait artist George Linen will be on display at the Florham-Madison Campus Library of Fairleigh Dickinson University from Sunday to Jan. 31.

Included in the exhibit, entitled "George Linen, 1802-1888: A Selection of Portraits," are 21 paintings which were loaned to the library by private collectors, all of whom are descendants of George Linen. The Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and the George Griswold Frelinghuysen Arboretum of Morristown also made paintings available.

Born in Scotland in 1802, Linen was the youngest of 10 children. He was trained at the Royal Scottish Academy in Edinburgh and established himself as a painter of small portraits in England where he remained for 10 years. After his marriage in 1833 to Sarah Cartwright Davies, he left for the New World, which offered greater opportunity. In 1834, he went to Toronto and within a year he had moved his family to New York, where he opened a studio. By 1838 he had gained swift prominence, mainly through his portraits of popular statesmen such as Daniel Webster and Henry Clay.

His portrait of Clay in 1839 was awarded a silver medal by the National Academy of Design as the "best specimen of painting exhibited." He began exhibiting his works at the academy in 1837, where he was influenced by Henry Inman, one of its founders and a practitioner of the cabinet portrait.

After receiving the silver medal from the academy, his success was assured. In 1843, he moved to Newark, where he opened a studio, still retaining the one in New York until 1848. In the late 1840's he worked in Richmond. While there, he painted the Robert Henry Murray family, a picture which is now in the collection of the Virginia Historical Society. Through the fifties and early sixties, he painted in Baltimore, Washington, D.C., Alexandria and Terre Haute. Between 1855 and 1868, he maintained a residence on fashionable Washington Street in Newark. During that time, he continued to keep a studio in New York.

In the directories of both cities he is listed as an "artist" until 1868 and in the Newark directory as a "landscape painter" as well. The eclipse of portrait painting by photography may have inspired him to turn to landscapes.

In 1868, because of the fragile health of one of his sons, he gave up his house and studio and moved his family to a farm in Bloomingdale, now Riverdale, which he named "Glenburn" for his homeland. He died there in 1888. The farmhouse has been restored recently and the adjoining mill is now a restaurant called the Powder Horn Inn.

In 1941, a retrospective of his works was exhibited by the Richmond Academy of Sciences and Arts. His works are in the Maryland Historical Society; the Academy of Fine Arts, Philadelphia; National Society of Colonial Dames of America, North Carolina; the Virginia Historical Society; the Metropolitan Museum of Art; the National Portrait Gallery; and several private collections.

Linen's youngest grandchild, John S. Linen of Mountain Lakes, born in 1893, will be celebrating his 89th birthday at a family party the day that the exhibit opens. His daughter is Emma Joy Linen Dana, who selected the works for the exhibit.

A reception in honor of the opening of the exhibit will be held at 4 p.m. Sunday at the library. The public is invited. Further information is available from Renee Weber, curator of special collections, 377-4700, extension 516.

Penalties increased

New Jersey drivers who have their driving privileges suspended after Dec. 21 will face increased fees for the eventual restoration of those privileges, says Clifford W. Sneider, director of the New Jersey Division of Motor Vehicles.

The old restoration fee of $20 is being increased to $30 for all drivers who receive a notice of suspension mailed from DMV beginning Dec. 21.

In addition, the fees for taking part in either the driver improvement program or the probationary driver program are being increased from $20 to $40 on the same date. The fee for drivers convicted of drunk driving and automatically enrolled in the alcohol countermeasures program will remain at $40. Those drivers must pay a total of $70 in order to have their driving privileges restored at the end of the suspension period — $40 for the program and $30 for restoration.

The driver improvement program is available to drivers who accrue 12 to 14 points in more than two years. By attending the six-hour classroom program, given in two sessions, drivers can receive a three-point reduction on their records and escape the initial suspension.

The probationary driver program is for new drivers who accrue four or more points stemming from two or more violations. This is also a six-hour block on instruction dealing with driver behavior and attitudes and is also split into two sessions.

Reunion

Graduates of the Class of January 1953 of South Side High School, Newark, are being sought for a 30th year reunion early in 1983. Those interested in attending can contact the Class of '53 Reunion Committee, 800 Chestnut St., Roselle Park, 07204, or call 241-0234.

Storm fails to put chill on a party

By ADA BRUNNER

Some are adults and some are children. They are mentally retarded, emotionally disturbed, neurologically impaired, physically handicapped, blind, deaf, multiply handicapped. Many of them are in wheelchairs.

They are the people who are served by Camp Fatima, an independent, non-sectarian camp, free to all who need it, and the only all-volunteer camp in New Jersey.

On Sunday, they and their parents — nearly 300 of them — got together at the Knights of Columbus Home in Union for their annual Christmas celebration.

Despite the snowstorm, almost all of those who had signed up made it to the party. The few who didn't get there received their presents just the same; the packages were delivered to their homes by willing volunteers.

Santa Claus arrived by horse and buggy, provided by Henry Swift of Lebanon; Mr. and Mrs. Santa, in the person of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Popp of Union, handed out treats, including pictures of Santa himself, to all the children.

Bakeries donated cookies, other contributors gave not only money but all sorts of items, including wrapping paper for the gifts.

"People have been more than generous," said Sister Ann Dominic of St. Michael's School in Union, a member of the camp board since the program was established 16 years ago.

That has been true not only for the annual holiday party, but the year around, she noted.

Volunteers give of their time, individuals make donations and organizations present major gifts, such as the three wheelchairs — which — the Policewives of Union have given to the camp over the past two years.

When Camp Fatima was started, it provided just one week of camp to participants.

Now it is offering three weeks each summer at different sites. Though the camp has been held

Planned Parenthood moves to a new spot

Planned Parenthood is kicking off the celebration of its 50 years of service a month early by moving to a newly renovated location at 203 Park Avenue in Plainfield.

1983 marks the beginning of the sixth decade that Planned Parenthood has been providing Family Planning services to the women of the Union County area on a sliding fee scale.

"Our new quarters," states Joan C. Koehler, the Executive Director, "have been completely renovated to meet the individual needs of each patient. Our goal was to provide the community with a modern reproductive health care facility and we are thrilled that we have achieved that goal."

Planned Parenthood's new facility includes the main clinic as well as the Administrative Headquarters. An additional clinic is located in Elizabeth at 1195 E. Grand Street.

"The highlights of our new location," continued Mrs. Koehler, "are features that we just never had room for before. Now we can offer private counseling rooms, a laboratory, a patient education room, and an up to date Resource Center available to educators and the general public."

A professional staff of registered nurses and gynecologists provide a range of services that include: a thorough medical exam, contraceptive education and supplies, VD testing, pregnancy testing, cancer screening, counseling, community education and referrals as needed to other agencies. Bilingual services are also available.

Last year Planned Parenthood provided 4,000 women counseling, medical and social services related to their reproductive health.

The new clinic at 203 Park Avenue, Plainfield will open to the public Monday. The clinic hours are 9 p.m. - 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, and an appointment is necessary.

Gerontology center sets human sexuality course

"Human Sexuality and the Later Years" is a new course being offered by the Kean College Gerontology Center in the spring semester, according to Robert Famighetti, the director. The center is part of the college's Department of Health and Recreation.

The course, taught by Stuart J. Cohen, assistant professor of health and recreation, one of four offered by the center, will be given from 9:25 a.m. to noon each Friday starting Jan. 28. Registration begins Jan. 17.

Other courses also being offered during the Spring Semester in the Gerontology Center are "Basic Concepts and Issues in Gerontology" on Tuesday evenings, "Psychology of Aging" on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, and "Death in Perspective," which is being offered at three different times.

The Gerontology Center offers courses for a certificate in gerontology on the successful completion of 24 credits sequence. It also offers both day and evening courses on the undergraduate and graduate level, conducts a conference each November, and holds an institute each summer.

In addition to these, the Gerontology Center is conducting a mini-course in January on "Survey of Programs and Agencies That Serve the Elderly," taught by Dr. Janis G. Ramoth, professor of health and recreation.

Information about the Gerontology Center, its classes and other activities may be obtained by calling Famighetti at 527-2605, or Dr. Ramoth at 527-2186 or 527-2098.

Sugarloaf trip set by ski club

Sugarloaf, Maine is the site for Union County College's third annual semester break ski trip.

"Sugarloaf is the closest thing to skiing in an Alpine Swiss Valley I have ever seen," according to Dr. W. Allen Ashby of Plainfield, faculty advisor to the group.

The UCC ski enthusiasts will leave in luxury buses from the campus faculty parking lot on Sunday, Jan. 9 at 9 a.m., and return after midnight on Friday, Jan. 14. The price, $215 for students and $230 for guests, includes bus transportation, condominium lodgings and ski lifts.

"One can ski to and from the lodging area. Arcades, local bands, restaurants and other recreational facilities are available right on the mountain," said Michael Geertsma, coordinator of the trip. Eileen Bender is president of the UCC Ski Club.

Harpo Marx, Charlie Chaplin, Judy Garland, Leonardo da Vinci and Jack the Ripper all had one thing in common: they were left-handed.

ONCE-OVER—Brenda Curtis, executive director of the Union County unit of the American Cancer Society, and Warren Knauer, M.D., executive committee chairman, look over "Fresh from the Garden State", the new American Cancer Society cookbook.

NORWEGIANS ABROAD

The three countries whose inhabitants most frequently go abroad on vacation are Sweden, Norway and Switzerland. When it comes to weekends abroad Norwegians lead the world, a new survey shows.

Cancer Society sells an exotic cookbook

How does Holiday Shrimp, New Jersey Apple Torte or Norwegian Christmas Bread sound? The recipes for these and many more can be found in "Fresh from the Garden State", a cookbook compiled by American Cancer Society volunteers from N.J.'s 21 counties.

"Fresh from the Garden State" would make a great gift for that friend who lives far away, bringing him recipes featuring the state's local produce. Perhaps preparing Norwegian Christmas Bread wrapped up with the cookbook would be a nice gift or as an appropriate gift for co-workers or associates.

"Each purchase represents a contribution to the cancer crusade," said Lois Gannon, Crusade Chairperson. "It provides funds for patient service, public and professional education and research aimed at conquering cancer."

The cookbook is available at the Union County Unit Office, 512 Westminister Avenue in Elizabeth and may be purchased with a tax deductible gift of $6 each. They also may be ordered by mail or phone by adding $1.25 for postage and handling.

Students from UCC to see 'Nutcracker'

The seasonal treat "The Nutcracker Suite" will be enjoyed by Union County College students at a Lincoln Center outing tomorrow.

The UCC part-time Student Government is sponsoring a bus trip to the New York State Theatre production of "The Nutcracker Suite." The charge, which provides orchestra seats and transportation, is $7 for students and $12 for guests.

Consumer affairs group issues a safety warning

The Union County Division of Consumer Affairs within the Department of Human Resources has issued a product safety warning in co-operation with the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission telling consumers of an explosion hazard with certain fireplace-powered water heaters used to supplement home heating systems.

Units involved were sold under the brand names "Hydroearth," "Hydroplace," and "Aqua Grate." Manufacturers of these units—Ridgeway Steel Fabricators, Inc. of Ridgeway, Pa. and Shark Manufacturing Corporation of Greenlawn, N.Y. are no longer in business.

"At least eight explosion incidents reported associated with the failure of these devices have occurred since 1977, resulting in one death and five serious injuries," warns Bloom, Director of the Division.

These devices are made of tubular steel or steel plate and resemble a fireplace grate or liner. Plumbing connects the unit to the hot-water heating system of the home. When there is a fire in the fireplace, furnace heat is either supplemented or replaced entirely by heat generated through the fireplace.

Slowing or stopping the flow of water through the unit (resulting from circulating pump failure, electrical power failure, or frozen pipes) may result in water in the unit boiling into steam. If the unit does not have an adequate pressure relief device properly installed, the build-up of pressure can cause an explosion.

CPSC urges consumers who have one of these units to have its installation checked by a qualified, licensed plumber who has specific knowledge of boilers, water pumps, pipe freezing problems, and pressure relief valves. Of particular importance is the location, pressure rating, and flow capacity of the safety valve. If there is no safety valve, have one installed with a pressure rating and flow capacity suitable for any type of fire.

The safety valve should be installed in the outlet piping as near to the unit as possible without risking damage due to overheating. It should be oriented according to the valve manufacturer's recommendation to avoid safety valve clogging. The outlet pipe from the unit to the safety valve should contain no valves or other restrictions.

The safety valve should be checked periodically by triggering it to be sure that it will relieve pressure. This should be done with caution, by a knowledgeable person, to avoid hot water scalding.

Information on the devices involved and what owners of these devices should do can be obtained by calling the Commission's toll-free Hotline at 800-638-CPSC.

Phobia release program set

The Mental Health Association of Union County announces that applications are now being accepted for the winter sessions of the Phobia Release Education Program to be held in Cranford.

PREP is open to anyone suffering from a phobia. Screening of all participants for the group is done in December with classes beginning in January and again in March.

Working in a mutual help group, PREP offers an intensive learning experience in a variety of fear management techniques for persons suffering from agoraphobia or individual fears of elevators, dentists, crowded places, flying, writing or making a signature in public and many other situations.

To receive an information packet and application call the Phobia Center at 272-0303 between the hours of 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

CPR course scheduled for Overlook Hospital

Overlook Hospital in Summit will offer a four-part Basic Cardiac Life Support (CPR) Course which is open to anyone over the age of 14. Classes will be held on Jan. 11, 13, 18, and 20 from 7 to 10:30 p.m.

Participants will learn one-and two-man CPR, infant and child CPR and Obstructed Airway Techniques for both adults and children. Those who successfully complete the course will receive an American Heart Association certification card.

There is a $25 fee for the course for the general public. The cost to members of a rescue squad, police or fire department is $10. Early registration is suggested because the class size is limited to the first 25 registrants.

Overlook Hospital will offer a two-session

"Physicians Only" CPR certification course.

The course, which is being offered to area physicians, will be held on Jan. 4 and 6, from 7 to 10 p.m., in Overlook Hospital's Wallace Auditorium. Attendance at both sessions is required for American Heart Association certification.

The course will cover topics such as the medical aspects, standards of care, adult and infant/child CPR and Obstructed Airway Techniques. Participants will practice on electronic recording manikins to develop proficiency in the skills of one-and two-man CPR.

Prior registration is required. Interested physicians may call the CPR Coordinator at 522-2365 for further information.

GED testing offered by UCC

Seventy-four adults participated last month in the General Education Development (GED) testing at the GED Test Center in Elizabeth operated by Union County College.

Anthony Baldassarre of Roselle Park, testing program director, announced that the 74 adults included 60 who took the test in English, 11 who were tested in Spanish and three who took the test in French.

The GED testing program is offered to all Union County residents who do not have a high school diploma, but have mastered the equivalent of material traditionally offered in the classrooms and wish to be tested and evaluated for their knowledge level.

Union County College's equivalency testing program at the GED Test Center at the Elizabeth Campus, 10 Butler Street, also administers the College Level Examination Programs (CLEP) tests. Students may receive college credits by demonstrating knowledge gained from life experiences outside the classroom. Seventeen applicants took the CLEP test in November. Credits earned through CLEP may be applied toward associate or bachelor degree program.

For further information on either the GED or CLEP testing times, contact Baldassarre at 351-3111. Testing is administered by appointment only.

UCC offering courses at off-campus sites

Union County College will offer 10 credit courses at three off-campus locations during the Spring Semester, it was announced by Dr. Leonard T. Kreisman of Westfield, vice president for academic affairs.

The Spring Semester at the College begins Monday, Jan. 17, and all off-campus course offerings will begin that week.

Five courses will be offered at New Providence

High School, including "Principles of Accounting II," "Introduction to Contemporary Business," "Principles of Marketing," "Elementary Statistics," and "Psychology of Personality."

Two of those courses, "Principles of Accounting" and "Introduction to Contemporary Business," will also be offered at Elizabeth High School in the Spring.

The courses offered at New Providence and Elizabeth High Schools are all three-credit courses which will be conducted once a week in the evening for three hours.

Five courses are being offered at the Elizabeth Urban Educational Center, 10 Butler street. All courses at this location will be conducted in the afternoon, and those who successfully complete them will earn certificates of credit. They are: "Communication Skills I," "Introduction to College Reading I," "Individualized Instruction," "Decision Making," and "Elementary Algebra."

Union County College will also conduct a program of credit studies for senior citizens at 17 Union County locations, through its Senior Citizen Studies Center. The program enables seniors to enroll in college courses at locations that are convenient and familiar to them, such as their housing complexes, clubs and religious organizations.

Taught by Union County College professors, the 17 courses to be offered this Spring will be conducted at locations in Union, Springfield, Westfield, Elizabeth, Plainfield, Cranford, Linden, Rahway, Winfield Park, Hillside and Mountain-side. The courses range

DRESSING UP—Little girls have been dressing up on the holidays for centuries, making the important day even more special. This lovely girl is wearing Panne velvets with lace-trimmed satin blouse to add elegance to occasion.

Kids can learn from toys

Holiday toy buying can pose quite a problem for grownups who shop for playthings only once a year. It can put parents and grandparents in a quandary, too.

One way to avoid confusion when faced with the variety of offerings on store shelves suggests Janet Spencer King, editor-in-chief of Mothers' Manual, is to remember that toys youngsters learn from are toys they enjoy best and play with most. They are not, she warns, the ones most adults assume they are.

"Children learn from toys in many different ways," she says. "When imagination is the only limit, everyday objects are transformed. A set of blocks becomes a castle and a pile of cards a magic carpet.

"A child quickly learns that a ball rolls and a block doesn't. A toddler trying to balance a large block on top of a small one learns you can build higher the other way around.

"Toys that represent the world around them — garages, stores, homes, highways — teach children how society is organized and the roles that people play in its operation.

"Board games teach children the rules of social behavior — to take turns, be fair to their partners and not cheat."

A guide to "I.Q. Building Play Toys" is featured in the September/October issue of the magazine. The editors have selected an array of blocks, stuffed animals, trucks, dolls, stoves, garages, space station, building sets, board games.

This Christmas, get quality that lasts and a $3.00 Refund. Now you can get his favorite top-quality Hanes underwear in a variety of styles and fabrics. And you can get $3.00 by mail when you buy a total of six (6) Hanes men's or boys' underwear garments. So, for quality that lasts and a $3.00 refund, make it a Hanes Christmas.

Finding a 'right' gift for that 'special' guy

Pearls for your mother, teddy bears for nieces and nephews to cuddle on Christmas morning, a set of brandy snifters for your boss. You wisely started your holiday shopping in September and you should be just about finished - except for that one last hard-to-buy-for person on your list.

If you're dedicated to a search for "the" perfect gift for a very special gentleman, here are some suggestions from the men's fashion experts at J.C. Penny.

Find something different for the avid golfer who has almost everything: handmade antique replica clubs with hickory shafts.

Surprise the man who always dreamed of being an engineer with a fully operational scale model locomotive.

Satisfy the ultimate clothes horse with a brass valet.

PERSONAL MAILBOX—A gift that will be appreciated for years is a personalized mailbox that is enameled in bright red. Available from the Lillian Vernon catalogue, it's made in Sweden of steel and will hold a week's supply of mail, including all-size magazines and large envelopes.

REFRESHING AIR—The fragrance of Sencial Perfume provides an exciting air for today's active woman. There are many different kinds of perfumes on the market, giving a woman an almost unlimited selection.

New appliance provides help during busy season

The old saying "haste makes waste" still holds true today — particularly when it comes to shopping for new appliances.

Research by the Maytag Company shows that most people buy appliances during the fall and winter months, sandwiched between back-to-school, holiday shopping and other busy times.

It pays to take plenty of time and do careful planning when buying a major appliance. Kitchen appliances, for example, such as ranges and microwave ovens, come in a variety of styles, with a selection of options suited to meet specific cooking needs.

Having just introduced a new line of ranges and microwave ovens, the Maytag Company has brought its expertise to the cooking area and offers the following cooking appliance guidelines to consider. Careful shopping can save time, money and frustration.

Personal preference, available space and family lifestyle will determine which cooking appliance or combination of appliances to purchase.

Fresh air: a real gift

This thoughtful gift will give your loved ones a breath of fresh air all year round. The Oster Electronic Air Cleaner, available in two different models, can help keep the air at home or the office cleaner and fresher.

The air cleaner is a gift that will be appreciated by anyone who spends time indoors, as recent studies have shown that recirculated air in well-insulated buildings can be up to three times dirtier than air outside.

Your friends and relatives can enjoy cleaner air to breathe and fresher smelling rooms. In fact, this gift can help cut down on housecleaning and can help protect costly appliances such as the stereo against damage-causing dust.

Designed for home use, the air cleaner is being introduced by the Oster Company, which has successfully been meeting the professional air cleaning needs of hospitals, restaurants, bars, beauty shops, and other commercial institutions for years.

The unique triple-cleaning system, patterned after those of commercial air cleaners, is one of the most efficient home cleaning systems sold today.

FRIENDLY FACES—Part of the holiday season for kids is seeing those friendly faces they can play with and make Christmas seem that much closer. Here is Santa Claus and friends, such as a reindeer and his helpers.

Liquors add to festivities

Add some cheer and good spirit to your holiday celebration with one of many seasonal drinks enjoyed around the world.

From the wintry Scottish Highlands, where kilted clans gather 'round the hearth to share hot toddies, to the other side of the equator where iced "Hop Scotches" are favorites, 'tis truly the season to raise a glass of holiday cheer.

The producers of Bell's Scotch "Extra Special," the number-one selling scotch in Britain, are offering a free international holiday drink guide of popular potables from around the world.

To obtain a copy, mail a stamped, self-addressed business-size envelope to: Bell's Drinks Around the World, 888 Seventh Avenue, Dept. M, New York, NY 10106.

Special Ed class offered at Kean

Dr. Janet Prince of Berkeley Heights, and Dr. Marilyn Hart of Mountainside, both professors of special education and individualized services at Kean College have announced a new course for persons engaged in training or individualized services in industries or institutions.

The new undergraduate program is the only one of its kind being offered in New Jersey. It will cover such areas as training strategies, communication skills, audio-visual media and adult learning styles.

Persons interested in enrolling in the new program may do so by calling the Department of Special Education at 527-2264 or Dr. Price at 527-2125 or Dr. Hart at 527-2362.

Making right choice of present is essential

"Keep the joy in the holiday season by giving proper consideration to your choice of gifts to those you want to please. Consider how your gift will fit into the recipient's home, life, or needs. Remember, an ounce of prevention can prevent a pound of aggravation," states Director Ellen Bloom of the Division of Consumer Affairs, within the Department of Human Resources.

"Take as little cash as possible when shopping. Charging your purchases is a good way of making sure you don't let the pickpockets spoil your holiday." To help make your shopping chores easier and more successful, the Division offers the following suggestions to follow.

BEFORE YOU SHOP

Always provide yourself with a list that suggests a budgeted amount for each gift.

Before you go shopping, check the advertisements for the best sources taking into consideration where you must go to make the purchase, how the product is made, the model (if it applies), the color, the size and the price.

Check the Consumer Hotline (648-3295) for reliability of the firm you are expecting to do business with. Statewide consumer complaints are registered there.

WHEN YOU SHOP

Shop around comparing the price and quality of similar items. Keep in mind how long the item will be used, and the cost to maintain it. Take copies of any advertisements you are following through on so that you can have a reference as to the item's price and description. Read warranties.

Shop for them as you do price and consider their value when making your purchase. They can save you money by having the manufacturer stand behind his product. There is no difference between a warranty and a guarantee. It always must be in writing, state exactly how long it lasts, what parts are covered, and state how, and to whom you file a claim.

A full warranty covers all the expenses associated with the repair of an item, a limited warranty only those parts and labor outlined within the warranty book.

As with refund policies, paying a little extra for an item with a full warranty may save you money and frustration later if the product needs repair.

Know the stores' refund and exchange policy. New Jersey does not have a law requiring stores to offer refunds or exchanges, but, each store must state its own policy. Make it a policy to note for yourself the store's posted procedure before you buy.

AFTER YOU SHOP

Save all sales receipts, contracts, or warranties, boxes and bags. Be sure the date of purchase is recorded. It's a good idea to keep an alphabetized file where all sales slips and warranties are easily available.

IF A PROBLEM ARISES

Take your complaint to the company where the purchase was made. Find the person authorized to handle the complaint. If your problem is not resolved, write to the manufacturer. Keep a copy of your letter and the reply you receive.

If the complaint is not settled, file a similar letter with your Union County Division of Consumer Affairs, P.O. Box 186, Westfield, New Jersey, 07090.

CHOOSING TOYS

Director Bloom has special advice for all the Santas choosing toys and games for their children. "Choosing the right toy is no game—it's serious business at today's prices. The giver of the gift must assume the responsibility of the receiver's safety. Don't be caught by catchy commercials and peer pressure. Consider if the toy is entertaining or educational, of lasting value, and if you will be able to return it if it is defective, or if it isn't exactly what was wanted.

"Finally, don't impulse buy. Consider your purchases carefully at home before going to the store to prevent future difficulties. If you do encounter problems in your holiday shopping or subsequent returns, or if you feel you have been a victim of misrepresentation, contact the Division of Consumer Affairs at 233-0502 and talk to an investigator.

Toy selection, care reduces a risk of injury

Last year approximately 146,000 children required emergency room treatment for toy-related injuries. The best way to protect children from toy-related injuries is careful toy selection and proper supervision of children at play.

Ellen Bloom, Director of the Union County Division of Consumer Affairs, has put together some guidelines to help prevent the accident that could happen to a child.

"It's your responsibility to buy toys that suit the interest, age level and abilities of your child. Toys that are too complex and dangerous for young children invite misuse and possible injury," states Bloom. "Be aware of the terms of sale before you make your purchase. Investigate who the manufacturer is and check the warranties. You ought to know your options if a toy does not work or if your child is dissatisfied," adds Bloom.

Bicycles are one of the most dangerous toys for children. Never purchase a bicycle for your child to grow into as your child will not be able to control a bicycle that is too large for him. Make sure your child's bicycle is equipped with safety flags, reflectors, lights or any reflecting substance that will make your child visible to motorists.

Look for labels that give age recommendations and safety information, such as "Not Recommended for Children Under Three," "Flame Retardant/Flame Resistant" or "Non-Toxic" on toys that can get into small mouths. If there is no label, ask the store manager for more information.

Check for toys that have sharp edges, small parts or sharp points. Before buying any toy, examine the store demonstration model thoroughly. Make sure the toy has no removable parts that are small enough to be swallowed. This includes removable eyes and noses on stuffed toys and dolls and removable squeezers on squeeze toys.

Check toys for excessive noise. Toys that produce very loud noises can damage hearing. Propelled objects from projectiles can injure eyes. Small children should never be permitted to play with darts or other sport equipment with sharp points.

Make sure all instructions for use are clear to you. Explain to your child how to use toys properly and safely. Your child should understand his responsibility to turn off a battery operated toy and unplug an electric one.

Always try to supervise young children while they play. Make sure you keep younger children away from toys meant for older children. Chemistry sets or hobby equipment can be extremely dangerous if misused. Teach your older children to keep their toys away from younger brothers and sisters.

Insist that your children put their toys away so they do not get broken and to prevent falls. Discard plastic wrappings on toys at once before they become deadly playthings. Check toy boxes for possible hazards as well. Make sure they have lightweight lids than can be easily opened from the inside. The lids should stay open when raised. For extra safety be sure there are ventilation holes.

Never hang toys with long strings, cords, loops, or ribbons in cribs or playpens where infants can become entangled. The cords may become wrapped around a child's neck and may strangle him.

Examine toys periodically. Make sure you immediately repair broken toys or discard toys that cannot be fixed.

LONG NIGHTSHIRT—Old fashioned elegance is captured in this demure sleep-shirt, a welcome gift from California. Styled in luscious nylong tricot, the gown, which can also be worn off the shoulders, is lavished with lace at neckline and full sleeves.

Exotic grooming set gives touch of class

If the man in your life wouldn't have anything less than a Mercedes or Porsche, or a wardrobe of designer suits, then there's a prestigious grooming attache set that must be on your gift list. It is European, the "marbert man" executive collection.

"Marbert Man", presented as the international authority in fragrance, fitness, and grooming, offers the discerning man a double-compartment attache crafted of the finest European leather with brass combination locks.

It is a faithful interpretation of the case made famous by French airline pilots. One side is of business and the other for grooming needs and a fresh change. It may be used double or single.

Inside there is a totally masculine wardrobe of marbert man grooming aids. There are seven full-size products for fragrance, face, hair, and body plus four travel-size editions. At $550, it is the male grooming gift of the year and will be available at the most select stores.

In case you're in need of a few more mundane male gifts, this collection brings those international flair. Even the traditional Soap-On-a-Rope offers more than the expected amount of crisp, bold fragrance.

For shaving, there's a brown ceramic shave bowl with soap and brush. A copy of the European barber's bowl, it's what traveling Americans have known but found to be unavailable here.

This collection could be just one of the most inspired gifts an individual you could give.

Also timely, welcome gifts are fragrance-filled porcelains that please the eye and fill the air with a delicious scent. Elizabeth Arden's "Treasures of the Pharaohs" collection includes a magnificent array of porcelains, from charming miniature animals to elaborate dresser sets, all reflecting the exotic motifs of that sumptuous period.

These porcelain gifts provide the double enjoyment of a luxurious fragrance to enjoy now and a beautiful limited edition ornament to collect and enjoy for many years.

The gift sets pair complementary forms of favorite fragrances and the gift-wrapped singles carry special holiday festivity.

The Lotus and Papyrus fragrance candles, the Royal Pyramid jar and vase, and the Sacred Animals miniatures are some of the symbols wrought in porcelain.

An ornate grouping of Pharaoh's Treasures includes a soap dish, an elaborate tray and jar, and a sculpted head of Queen Nefertari.

'ALL DRESSED UP'—Dolores Gray, Tony Award winning actress, singer and dance, stars in the world premiere of a musical which will run at the Whole Theater Co., 544 Bloomfield Ave., Montclair, through Jan. 2, 1983.

A concert planned

The Ric-Charles Choral Ensemble, Inc., will present its third annual Christmas concert Saturday at 7 p.m. at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian Church, Plainfield, and Sunday at 8 p.m. at Summit High School under the baton of Charles "Chuck" Evans.

This year's concert will include "The Christmas Story," a cantata by H. Alexander Matthews; two Christmas spirituals by Noah F. Ryder and gospel selections. The evening will end with "Joy to the World" by Handel/Kuykendal. Guest soloist will be soprano Marilyn Thompson.

Additional information can be obtained by calling Alice (Frances) Cromwell at 464-6800, ext. 294 during the day, and Charles Evans at 753-1332 during the evening.

MARYBETH TATE of Roselle is among the dancers appearing in the New Jersey Dance Theater Ballet Company's version of 'Nutcracker' Sunday at 2 p.m. at Plainfield High School.

Play agenda is announced

The George Street Playhouse, 414 George St., New Brunswick, has announced its list of productions for the season.

The musical, "Raisin," produced by the Playhouse and the Crossroads Theater Co., will run through Jan. 23.

The Children's Theater production of "Cinderella" will be staged Saturday through Dec. 31. "The Doctor in Spite of Himself" will run from Feb. 11, 1983 to March 6. Crossroads will present "To Be Young, Gifted and Black," based on the writings of Lorraine Hansberry, Jan. 14 through Feb. 13.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 246-7717.

Irish 'Rosetta' slated Sunday

The Irish Club of Seton Hall University will present "Rosetta," an ensemble of early instruments, in a program of Irish music of the 14th through 18th centuries. The concert will begin at 3 p.m. in the student center on the Seton Hall campus, South Orange.

"Rosetta" is dedicated to the performance of popular Medieval, Renaissance and Baroque music on period instruments. The group specializes in original arrangements of traditional folk melodies of early music.

Additional information can be obtained by calling Dr. Robert Linnon at 761-9000, ext. 5117.

Pops series set for winter bill

The New Jersey Symphony Orchestra will present a concert for its New Brunswick Pops series Jan. 14, 1983, at 8:30 p.m. in Rutgers University gymnasium, New Brunswick. The program will be Trumpet Concerto Malaguina, a contemporary medley of songs conducted by George Manahan. Guest conductor will be Doc Severinsen.

A concert for Newark Pops Series subscribers will be held Jan. 16 in Symphony Hall, Newark, at 2:30 p.m. The program will be the same as the Jan. 14 concert.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 624-8203 or toll-free from anywhere in New Jersey (800) 631-3407.

Summer fare listed at Drew University

Paul Barry, artistic director of the New Jersey Shakespeare Festival in residence at Drew University, Madison, has announced that the theater has scheduled William Shakespeare's "War of the Roses," as its summer fare. It will feature 19 professional actors in more than 65 roles, 300 costumes, 200 weapons and about 1,000 stage properties.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 377-4487.

Concert set for midnight

The eighth annual midnight concert featuring the Brewer Ensemble in an all-baroque program, will be held Dec. 25 at the YWHA OF Metropolitan New Jersey, 760 Northfield Ave., West Orange.

The audience is invited to have coffee and doughnuts with the artists at 11:15 p.m., preceding the midnight show.

The ensemble features Edward Brewer, harpischordist; Yuval Waldman, violinist, and Virginia Brewer, oboist.

Tickets for the concert, which is partially supported by a grant from the New Jersey Council on the Arts, can be obtained at the box office and by calling the Y at 736-3200, ext. 523.

Pick of the LPs, "Two of A Kind," by Earl Klugh (Capitol Records).

Earl Klugh, unparalleled master of the acoustic nylon string guitar and composer supreme, creates music that simply defies categorization. Having accompanied and drawn influences from a list of performers that includes George Benson, Bob James, Chick Corea, Ray Parker Jr., Laurindo Almeida, Chet Atkins and Wes Montgomery, Earl has integrated jazz, pop and R&B to help forge a unique and irresistible genre to which only a select few others may lay claim.

Earl's new album, his ninth all told and first for Capitol Records, is a superior-quality collaboration with pianist-composer Bob James, the reciprocal of an association that began and flowed with the "One On One" album on which this talented duo combined in 1979.

To this project, Earl brought with him a lifetime of experience. The Detroit native picked his first guitar at the tender age of three, and by the time he was 17, Earl was ready to join George Benson's band, where the two six-string giants created musical nirvana for guitar enthusiasts. Earl eventually left Benson to join Chick Corea's "Return to Forever," contributing mightily to the dynamics of their characteristically electrifying sound.

Earl has recorded eight successful albums for Capitol's affiliate labels, Blue Note and Liberty Records, the last of which "Crazy For You," released in December 1981, was certified gold.

The last time Earl and Bob James got together, their "One On One" album also was certified gold and attained top honors on the jazz and easy listening charts. It seems as though every time they get together, the duo puts magic into the grooves. "When Bob and I get together," says Earl, "music is the prime consideration, and our prime objective. We put ourselves totally into making the music, and the results are very spontaneous. We just allow the situation in the studio dictate the direction in which we take the music...and with us that usually leads to a very special place."

"I couldn't wait to do 'Two of A Kind,'" adds Bob. "Our first album together was one of the real highlights of my career, but I was a little nervous about doing a second one because I was worried that the magic could only happen once. So, I was very relieved when we went into the studio again and found the same relaxed feeling as when we did 'One On One,' the feeling that this was just going to be something very special."

"Two of A Kind" is an album of classic beauty, featuring sophisticated melodic composition, richly-textured arrangements and crisply-executed instrumental interludes between Earl and Bob and their solid rhythm section of drummer Harvey Mason and bassist Gary King. Earl's compositions on the LP include "Sandstorm," "Where I Wander" and "Wes," while Bob wrote "The Falcon" and "Ingenué." Harvey Mason co-wrote "Whiplash" with Michael Lang.

Dance course scheduled by Whole Theater school

The Whole Theater Company Professional Theater School, 544 Bloomfield Ave., Montclair, has announced its winter and spring 1983 semester dance course curriculum.

An adult performing workshop has been added to the agenda. The course, which is designed for students with prior dance experience in modern and, or jazz dancing, will meet one evening a week.

The dance pieces will be incorporated into a scheduled performance in the spring. Choreography will be by instructor Nancy Goldstein.

The school also offers Dance I: Modern Ballet on both teen and adult levels, also taught by Miss Goldstein.

Additional information can be obtained by calling Linda Cane at 744-2933.

Opera slated in Springfield

The opera, "Die Fledermaus," will be presented in English with full orchestration under the direction of Ira Kramer Saturday at 8 p.m. in Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield. Produced and staged by Floyd Worthington, it will be the holiday presentation of the Community Opera of New Jersey, Inc., to Union County residents.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 467-2675.

Paper Mill extends run of 'Robert and Elizabeth'

"Robert and Elizabeth," which opened Nov. 3 at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, originally scheduled to run through last Sunday, has extended its run to this Sunday.

The musical play, which tells a true story of the courtship of famed English poets, Elizabeth Barrett and Robert Browning, features a ballet sequence, love songs, costumes, scenery and a 20-piece orchestra.

The newly-designed theater "is capable of handling the nine sets and 16 scene changes that are required to stage the production. The building itself also is equipped to provide maximum comfort to its patrons," it was announced.

Reservations and additional information can be obtained by calling the box office at 376-4343.

'Toys' fantasy continues run

Patricia Clapp's holiday fantasy, "No Toys For Sale," is being presented by the Studio Players at the Playhouse, 14 Alvin Place, Upper Montclair, Saturday and Sunday at 1:30 and 3:30 p.m.

Following each performance, the "characters" in the play will greet children in the lobby, where they will distribute candy.

Reservations are recommended and may be made by calling 744-9752 from 1 to 4 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m. daily.

Musical, 'Raisin'

The George Street Playhouse and Crossroads Theater Co. has booked the 1974 Tony Award-winning musical, "Raisin," at the George Street Playhouse, 414 George St., New Brunswick, through Jan. 23.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 246-7717.

Buddy Rich is postponed

The performance of Buddy Rich and his Band, featuring Steve Marcus on tenor sax and Andy Fusco on alto sax, scheduled Sunday at the YM-YWHA of Metropolitan New Jersey, 760 Northfield Ave., West Orange, has been postponed to April 17, 1983, at 8 p.m., due to Rich's illness.

It was announced that tickets for the earlier date will be honored in April. Additional information can be obtained by calling 736-3200.

Guide to Good Dining

Savor special dishes at New Chu Dynasty

By Gail Casale

When reading the weekly dining pages, you'll probably notice the many different kinds of restaurants the area has to offer. Whether your palate happens to be in the mood for seafood, beef or Italian style cuisine, there is certainly a worthwhile list to choose from. Add another fine Chinese restaurant to this melting pot—the New Chu Dynasty located at 124 Route 22 West in Springfield.

About a month old, the New Chu was recently redecorated with designs imported from Hong Kong. Attractive bamboo booth structures, colorful murals, lanterns and ceiling radiating a sky effect all create an authentic oriental atmosphere.

Owner Frederick Chu is no stranger to the dining business. Several years ago he was the mastermind behind the former Chu Dynasty which stood in this same spot. After a period of absence, Chu is back with a Chinese restaurant that is bigger and better than ever (seating capacity of 180).

Manager Vincent Tsang is a gracious host who assists with the service of each customer. If the menu tends to overwhelm you with so many dishes that you don't know which to order first, allow Tsang to help with some suggestions.

The menu features Szechuan and Cantonese specialties as well as American classics. Direct from Chinatown, Chef Wan Lau has many goodies in store for you.

For an appetizer, I highly recommend the barbecued spare ribs, chopped up bits of meat cooked tenderly on the inside and crispy on the outside, graced by a specially sweetened sauce. Definitely finger licking good. After indulging in this treat, your waiter may supply a hot towel for you to tidy up.

The House Special Soup (for two) complete with shrimp, lobster, pork, wonton and crispy Chinese vegetables is another noted item. Proceed with a selection from the Chef's Specialties. The Steak Kew, composed of chunks of filet mignon sauteed with assorted Chinese vegetables in special sauce, and the Subgum Wonton featuring shrimp, pork and chicken, are two offerings. The portions at New Chu are so generous that one order is satisfying for two people. If you're dining solo, you may prefer to take home what you cannot finish.

Top off your meal with the refreshing House Special Dessert (for 2) that will dazzle the eye as well as the taste buds. Served with a carved out pineapple boat displaying three scoops of ice cream and accompanied by fresh cherries and mushrooms, it's a treat not to be overlooked.

For those dining in groups of two or more, The Dynasty Deluxe or Family Dinners are ideal. Both include complete dinners and the former allows you to sample the chef's specialties (gourmet dishes named above) at a reasonable price.

The New Chu houses a soothing cocktail lounge. Enhance your meal with a favorite drink or maybe try something new. Inquire about the Dynasty Supreme.

Why not spice up your afternoon? Dynasty Luncheon Specials are served from noon to 3 p.m. featuring the "Special Combination" of soup, entree, fried rice, egg roll, dessert and tea.

There's also a take-out service available. Located next to Bamberger's Furniture, New Chu is open daily from 11:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. and until 1 a.m. Friday and Saturday. Major credit cards are accepted.

Union County has its own dynasty awaiting your arrival. Take a welcome break from your holiday shopping this weekend to enjoy the delights offered at the New Chu Dynasty Restaurant.

More weekend courses for the spring semester

Union County College's Weekday/Weekend College program, which enables adults to attend class on a once-a-week basis, has been expanded for the opening of the spring semester, it was announced by Dr. Leonard T. Kreisman, vice president for academic affairs.

Seventy-six sections of the College's more popular courses — the most ever — will be offered in the special program. With classes meeting only once each week for two-and-three-quarter hours, many individuals with limited time or transportation problems can attend college, taking any combination of day, evening or weekend courses, Kreisman said.

Weekend College enables the student who is busy during the week to earn degree credits on Friday nights, Saturday mornings and afternoon. In the Weekday part of the program, courses are scheduled for after-work hours and during daytime hours that do not interfere with home and child-care responsibilities.

For further information, call the Admissions Hot Line, 272-8580 or 272-8581.

Social security using interviews, not mail

Recipients of the Social Security disability benefits who were selected for medical review are now getting face-to-face interviews instead of receiving a multi-page form in the mail. According to John H. McCutcheon, Social Security district manager in Elizabeth, this includes recipients whose cases were selected for review prior to Oct. 1, but who were not contacted by that date.

In a move to reduce the anxiety that often accompany the review of disability cases, Social Security offices will be initiating the ongoing periodic reviews with face-to-face interviews rather than by letter, McCutcheon said. In addition, the number of reviews planned for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1 will be reduced by 20 percent.

The interviews are expected to provide recipients an opportunity to make direct personal input into the decision-making process at the earliest possible stage. Under prior procedures, many recipients had an opportunity to face those involved in the decision as to whether he or she continued to be disabled under the law only if the case was appealed to the hearing level.

According to McCutcheon, the face-to-face interviews will provide the Social Security Administration an opportunity to explain how the review process works and the recipient's rights and responsibility under the program. In addition, the interviewer will be able to terminate the review process where it is obvious that the recipient is still disabled within the meaning of the law.

The ongoing review of disability cases was mandated by the Congress in 1980 legislation requiring that most disability cases be reviewed at least once every three years. McCutcheon stated that he was optimistic that the new approach will be a significant improvement to the disability program.

Alumni sought for arts program

The New Jersey State Teen Arts Program is searching for young New Jersey artists, art educators, art administrators or technicians who have participated in teen arts programming before continuing into an arts-related career.

Information on these "Teen Arts Alumni" will be set in a registry, and will provide the Teen Arts Program with an opportunity to use these artists or educators in future teen arts activities.

The New Jersey State Teen Arts Program is a model arts-in-education program founded in 1969. Activities of the program include the annual state and county teen arts festivals, the literary publication Earthrise, master classes in music and dance, the interschool assembly program, teen arts exhibits, and the visual art exhibit at the New Jersey State Museum.

Those interested in the New Jersey State Teen Arts Program can write to Teen Arts Alumni, 841 Georges Road, North Brunswick, 08902, 745-3898.

Classes slated on childbirth

St. Elizabeth Hospital in Elizabeth, in maintaining the tradition of health-education services to the community, is currently accepting enrollment for the "Preparation for Childbirth" classes to begin on Jan. 3 in the hospital cafeteria.

Classes will be held weekly from 7:30-9:30 p.m. for six consecutive weeks. Participants may enroll in either the Monday or Thursday evening classes.

Aided by her coach, the expectant mother learns and practices body mechanics, the Lamaze method for natural childbirth, and simple breathing and relaxation techniques under the instruction of registered nurses who are certified childbirth educators.

A tour of the hospital's Obstetrics Department will include the hospital's birthing room, a new concept in labor and delivery which provides an atmosphere conducive to the patient's own home. Additionally, audio-visual presentations are included in the class program.

Mothers in their fifth month of pregnancy and their coaches are advised to enroll in the classes now in order to adequately prepare for their baby's arrival.

Storm fails to put chill on this party

Now it is offering three weeks each summer at different sites. Though the camp has been held at Monticello, N.Y., for the most part it has offered its programs at various sites throughout New Jersey; this year it met in Lebanon at the Baptist Conference Center's Camp Lebanon.

While long-range plans call for purchase of its own camp site, the organization is continuing to use whatever facilities are available.

In addition to the summer sessions, Camp Fatima has been able to offer weekend programs that draw an average of 150, including the staff as well as the campers.

All this is possible because the staff is made up entirely of volunteers. Sister Ann Dominic said.

The older campers help out with chores. Their reward is a weekly outing, perhaps to a movie or a bowling alley; but an equally important reward is that they feel useful. Sister Ann Dominic noted.

The rest of the work is done by a staff that comes predominantly from northern New Jersey. A total of 750 people have volunteered to date for at least one week of service, and many of them have given much more time than that. About 80 percent of the staff is of college age, between 17 and 22 years old.

The staff includes an experienced director, at least one registered nurse, a physician on call, a water safety instructor and the counselors.

There also is a support staff with a 3-to-5 ratio to the counselors.

Camp Fatima, which needs 270 volunteer weeks every season, assigns each of its counselors to a single camper.

The 1-to-1 ratio is important because of the type of campers who take part, including the 20 percent who come from institutions for the mentally handicapped and the many who are restricted to wheelchairs.

Children and adults with all types of handicaps are eligible for Camp Fatima.

"We try to get the worst cases," said Sister Ann Dominic — "the ones no one else will take."
