Dolonich combines music and art

By BEA SMITH

Music and art have been as intimately related to Christine Dolinich as her musically inclined family. Dolinich, a Linden artist and pianist, was recently awarded first prize in a national competition for art relating to music.

"My family was very musical," said Dolinich. "My father, Anton Dolinich, who passed away less than two years ago, played guitar and banjo with groups. He was a great influence on me. He was a designer for an engineering firm and also taught me about drawing and perspective while I was growing up.

"My mother, Irene Dolinich, plays the piano. My sister, Pat Collier, now a sixth-grade teacher in Rahway, and my other sister, Winifred Burke of Farmingdale, who belongs to the Musicians' Union, and who has done studio work as a music teacher in Farmingdale, and I all studied violin and clarinet. There always was music in the house. The whole household also was very concerned with the arts."

Dolinich, who was born in Elizabeth, grew up Rahway, and moved to Linden in 1977, began her formal training at the age of five. She says that her "lessons in perspective and in classical piano remained with me from that moment on."

The studious-looking musician-artist, whose fine, long sandy-colored hair caresses her shoulders, has devoted much of her life to the arts. "When I entered the Douglass College fine arts department," she recalls, "exposure to current trends in performance art led me to understand that my musical training could be used to add another dimension to my artwork. Detailed comparative studies of specific works of art with specific pieces of music of the same period gave me a broad understanding of cultural history. Further influence in this direction came to me during my year at Oxford, where we had the Oxford University lecture courses along with small group tutorials. My professor was a painter and a pianist."

When she graduated from Douglass, Dolinich says, "my music became especially integrated with my work in visual art, as my collages grew into three-dimensional constructions, sometimes with movable parts that created sound, sometimes with accompanying musical background.

"As sound occupies space," she says, "it adds another dimension and quality to the work while it extends the boundaries of the piece. The viewer will then become immersed in the work."

Dolinich, who has been featured in solo shows at colleges, libraries and art centers throughout New Jersey and the Metropolitan area, has appeared in speaking engagements on panel discussions and radio interviews. She is named in James Collins' 1975 book, "Women Artists in America II," and the book includes a photograph of her assemblage and biographical data.

In addition to the first prize she received in 1981 from the American Music Teacher for her work, "For Clara Schumann," which will be reproduced on a cover of that magazine during 1984, she received prizes in sculpture, painting, graphics and drawing from 1975 to 1983.

COMBINING SKILLS—Picture captures the talents of Christine Dolinich. The talented pianist is also a skilled artist, as evidenced by her artwork above the piano.

"At an Artists' Books show at Rutgers," recalls Dolinich, "There were different books curated by Lynn Miller; traditional-type books with illustrations on art pieces. I displayed book book called 'The Truth Book.' It had legal sworn affidavit forms asking people to express the truth by their writing and visual aspects. I had gotten back an incredible assortment of things. I had put them together, you see, as a collage on display. It was for people who were interested in being in the book. One was from a minister, who traveled to India and had worked with Mother Theresa (who works with the poor people in India). She signed it and spoke of the importance of love."

Dolinich, who came to Linden in 1977 and became a teacher at the Linden Music Studio, took over the studio last year.

"I try to give the students an appreciation of the arts. We have art work hanging on all of the walls, including the waiting room. We also have drawing paper and materials, so that while the students are waiting for their lessons, they can draw or just look at the paintings. I want the children to grow up with an appreciation of all the arts. I think it's important."

Combines music and art

Dolinich explains that "we also have adult students who have always wanted to play instruments but couldn't afford to as children. They come into the studio with fears that they're older. But," Dolinich laughs, "they do very well. A person can learn at any age. Our studio is like a musical club. We have about 40 students, and the youngest is five years old."

She indicates that "there are a lot of current trends in the technology of music and art. They overlap into two different disciplines. "With video and films—in terms of using yourself in your art work—it has been going on for the past-15 years."

"All my work is in mixed media," Dolinich, who is now working on "Sound Pieces," three-dimensional art works that also function as musical instruments.

Dolinich says that "I have been studying the work of women composers; their works have been published briefly. I have read some publications and listened to recordings. There are just beautiful works by women," she declares. "All my life, I studied the works of Clara Schumann, wife of Robert Schumann. She would perform his works, but actually, she was a very fine composer in her own right. I have a rare book here," she says, "of Clara Schumann's works. Some were published in 1833, and I'm in the midst of studying them. I was very lucky to find this book."

"I am also working on a series of radio programs, a chronological survey of women composers; their historical background...it's not easy to find material on them. With each program, I will pick a long piece. For example, Amy Beach, an American composer, who died in 1944, published her works until 1917. She performed her own works but had to discontinue them, and her works were forgotten for a time."

"I'm very interested to see how many women composers I can find because it's almost like going back to your roots—to discover women were composing as far back as from the Baroque period."

Dolinich explains that "my strong interest is in the keyboard. Right now, I'm working on something—a piece about Maria Teresa Von Paradis. She was a classical period composer. She has a famous story. She was blind from the age of two, and her students would set out pegs in a pegboard, and she would compose in this unusual method."

"I'm also working on a musical art construction. It's a tape composition with small sections of Von Paradis, playing them on the piano and making a tape on fragments of the material. I will play fragments and taping that, I will use the tape machine, and play at the same time." The radio series, which was first aired Monday from 10 a.m. to noon over WFMU, 91.1 FM, will continue on March 19 and on April 23.

Dolinich cannot seem to stress the importance of women composers. At school, she says, "I want to make sure that the female students have a sense of the history of women composers. I want them to know the many women who have composed, to give them the role models.

FROM THE PULPIT

By the Rev. Robert Paul

Since you cannot refrain from drinking, why not start a saloon of your own in your own house? Be the only customer and you will not have to buy a license.

Give your wife $70 to buy a cheap case of whiskey. There are about 240 drinks in a case. Buy all your drinks from your wife at just $1 per drink.

In 30 days, when the case is gone, your wife will have $170 to put in the bank and $70 to buy another case. If you live 10 years and continue to buy your whiskey from your wife, and die in your boots, your widow will have approximately $20,400 on deposit.

That's enough for her to restyle her life and marry a decent man and forget she ever knew a bum like you.

America has many luxuries, but the most costly of them in all terms of death, sickness, crime and accidents, is the use of alcohol. Alcoholism causes more deaths, and more human misery, costs more money, and blights the lives of people more than all the other forms of drug abuses combined.

If liquor is a disease, then it is the only disease that is contacted by an act of will, and it is the only disease that is bottled and sold.

"Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging; and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise." Recognize your weakness (sin) and invite the Lord Jesus Christ to be your Lord and Saviour, He alone can give you victory over temptation." St. John 1:12.

Dinner dance to honor Conti

Friends of Ann Conti, surrogate of Union County, have announced plans to hold a dinner dance honoring her on Friday, April 13. The dinner, which will be held at the Immaculate Conception Hall in Elizabeth, will feature dancing and an open bar.

As surrogate of Union County, Ann Conti is sponsoring the Union County Chapter of H.O.P.E. (Helping Other People Evolve), a statewide support program, for those persons who have recently suffered the loss of a loved one. This program is staffed by volunteers and is not government funded. However, there are expenses involved and a portion of the proceeds from the dinner dance will be used to assist the Union County Surrogate's Chapter of H.O.P.E.

Ticket information is available by calling 353-3335.

'Retirement' course

A seminar to help individuals prepare for their later years will be offered by Union County College's Division of Continuing Education during the Spring Session.

The six-session course entitled "Retirement—Transition or Trauma" will be conducted on Saturdays from 9 to 11 a.m., beginning March 10 at the Cranford Campus.

The seminar offers men and women still working an opportunity to explore the emotional and psychological impact that often accompanies retirement, Prof. Cynthia Niv of Springfield, dean of auxiliary academic services, said. It is also designed for persons already retired who may want to join others like themselves to discuss mutual interest, exchange ideas and obtain help in making decisions for the retirement years, Dean Niv said.

Weyman O. Steengrafe former director of continuing education at the College and a former director of the Westfield Adult School, will be the moderator.

Disc & Data

By MILT HAMMER

Pick of the LPs, "Dayton" (Capitol Records).

In the past decade, the midwest has been hailed as the breeding ground for several major rock 'n' roll acts, Styx, REO and Bob Seger, to name a few. Significantly, the same geographic heartland has produced Zapp, Roger, Steve Arrington, Lakeside, the Ohio Players and Dayton, the forerunners of contemporary soul-funk. Among the latter group, Dayton is emerging as a major force after an initiation that resulted in three critically-accepted albums and a spate of highly-successful concert appearances with such greats as Quincy Jones, Stephanie Mills and Ashford and Simpson, which established the band outside its home turf.

Shawn Sandridge, leader and guitarist for Dayton, has been active in the music business for more than 10 years working with such industry notables as Junie Morrison, and later recording group, Sun, with whom he stayed for three years. It was during this tenure with Sun that Sandridge and Sun cohort, lead singer, Chris Jones, decided to form their own group, Magnum. Six months after Shawn and Chris made the break from Sun, they changed the name of their brainchild from Magnum to Dayton.

Sandridge and Jones co-wrote all the material on the first two Dayton albums, "Dayton" and "Cutie Pie." These albums produced four noteworthy singles: the jazzy "Eyes on You" and funky "Dank" (from "Dayton") and "Cutie Pie" and the uptempo, "Body Shaker" (from "Cutie Pie").

The third album, "Hot Fun," produced an awesome cover of Sly and the Family Stone's "Hot Fun the the Summertime" and gained immediate major radio exposure last year. This album also saw the introduction of the multi-talented Rahni Harris as producer, writer, vocalist and keyboardist. Harris' creative artistry complemented and strengthened the Dayton Foundation.

Describing Dayton's music as pop-funk, Sandridge and company have crafted an album of uptempo songs and meaningful ballads aimed at a mass appeal audience.

Streamlined and revamped since the last album, Dayton is composed of Shawn Sandridge (lead and rhythm guitar, background vocals), Rhani Harris (lead and background vocals, keyboards, synthesizers), Kevin Hurt (drums and percussion), Rachel Beavers (background vocals) and Karen Harris Chappell (lead and background vocals).

'1984' casting slated Sunday

Casting for all parts in George Orwell's "1984" will be held Sunday at noon at the Actor's Cafe Theater, Franklin and Freemont streets, Bloomfield. Rehearsals will be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. Production is set for April 27 through June 2. Additional information can be obtained by calling David G. Kennedy, producer-director, at 429-7662.

Kennedy has announced that due to "unusual audience response," Agatha Christie's "A Murder Is Announced," is being extended for two weeks and will play through March 17 Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m.

John Osborne's "The Entertainer" will open March 23 and play through April 21.
