Replies from parents arriving to survey on graduation date

By VICKI VREELAND Regional school district officials had received about 50 replies from parents by early this week in response to a survey on a new high school graduation The questionnaires were sent after students turned out at an April 18 Regional Board of Education meeting to protest a proposal calling for the postponement of graduation to Sunday, June 24. Graduation exercises had originally been scheduled for Thursday, June 21, but an additional school day. was needed to compensate for snow-closing. Otherwise the school calendar would have been one day short of the state-mandated 180 days.

Students presented the board with a 260-name petition, signed by seniors at all four regional high schools. They stated that a Sunday graduation would be a problem for seniors who had arranged to begin summer jobs the day following the original graduation. The students said they would like to see graduation held Friday afternoon, June Commenting on the petitions, Dr. Donald Merachnik, schools superintendent, said, "We know how the students feel, and now we want to hear from the parents.'

The board told the students that a Friday graduation would present two main problems: working parents, and a conflict with the Jewish Sabbath.

Merachnik said the parent responses. which are expected to come in all week, will be tabulated on Tuesday and results will be reported at a board meeting that night.

In other business, the board approved the operation of a district summer school from July 2 through Aug. 3 in the David Brearley Regional High School, Kenilworth. In addition, at all four facilities, driver education, weight training and conditioning programs will be offered.

The board also approved a two-year old Summer Evening Musical Theater, also to be held at David Brearley. Merachnik recommended approval for the program as an "excellent activity for our students and graduates.

Approval was also given for two choral groups to participate in out-ofstate competitions. From Governor Livingston High School, Berkeley Heights, 39 students will attend the Floridaworld Music Festival, Orlando. Fla., May 8-13.

Dayton Regional High School, Springfield, will participate in the Montreal Music Festival, May 18-21.

Board veteran rema outspoken in 12th year

Following her recent reelection to the Mountainside Board of Education, Patricia Knodell now approaches her 12th year of service on the board with some outspoken thoughts on education and the current problems facing the local school district.

Knodell's ambitions for the borough schools go beyond simply seeking progress, in the interest of striving to establish a level of performance that other schools can only hope to follow.

"My main ambition is to have the Mountainside school system act as a model system for small school districts throughout the state," Knodell states. "I hope that we can continue to provide a thorough education to all pupils while showing that we can operate efficiently.

Efficiency is just as critical as educational performance, according to Knodell, because small school districts throughout the state must be able to excel in order to avoid the threat of regionalization.

"We favor being in local control," Knodell states. "I believe a local district can be more responsive to the needs of students and taxpayers. In the (Union County) regional district for instance, I don't think residents have as much input in the running of the high schools as they do with the grade schools in the local district."

Yet Knodell also readily admits that the trend statewide is leading toward increased regionalization, especially in view of the declining enrollment situation evident throughout much of New Jersey.

"Our biggest problem here in Mountainside is still declining enrollment," Knedell claims. "I know some people think the falloff in enrollment is beginning to level off, but I think that his will continue to be a of objects in the field flighte.

Since 1967, the total enrollment of the Mountainside school district has fallen by almost two-thirds, according to Knodell. With only 478 students enrolled this year, Knodell predicts that next year's level will again decline sharply to an approximate total of 420 students.

The declining enrollment trend has made it ever more critical for the local district to restrict its operational costs, "because we have one of the highest costs per pupil of any district in the state," Knodell says.

One of Knodell's sharpest criticisms of contemporary education is in the area of faculty evaluation. "This is the one area where administrators throughout the state have failed," Knodell-contends. "They have not given enough time to evaluating the quality of instructors and to weeding out poor

"I'm not a believer in keeping a teacher that's mediocre or not performing up to standards," Knodell explains. "I believe in getting rid of teachers that are not doing the job."

At the same time, Knodell does not believe in evaluating teachers strictly according to tests results and statistical performance. "I don't think you can necessarily judge the quality of clasroom teachers based on the performance of the students. If you have a class of students with a low I.Q. level or a previous history of bad work habits, those problems may confound the efforts of a good teacher."

While she stresses the need for more intensive evaluation of the district's teachers, Knodell states that merit pay is not an effective means of improving instructional performance. "I can teachers, but I am not convinced anyone can come up with a system that fairly achieves this.

In assessing her goals for the future. Knodell notes that one area the board needs to continually improve on is in developing and upgrading its special service programs. "I'm concerned chiefly with those who are perceptually impaired. We must adequately prepare these youngsters so that they can take their place in the high schools.

Knodell also echoes the feelings of many other educators who believe in a strong commitment to computer education. "The computer is here to stay. We have no choice but to expand our efforts as much as possible in that direction.

The mother of eight children, all of whom attended Mountainside schools. Knodell previously worked as a teacher in the district and now serves as a volunteer at Overlook Hospital. For the last 10 years, she has also taught Sunday school at Our Lady of Lourdes to be a top competitive gymnmast. What most people don't realize is that it also takes a tremendous amount of teamwork.

Local girls compete together in NJ gymnastic championships

It takes a rare breed of individualism

That elusive combination of individual effort and team spirt has propelled four young girls on Mountainside's Nexus Gymnastics team into the top competitive levels in the state. This weekend, 13-year-old gymnasts

Michelle Coraggio, Danielle Knieriemen and Adriana Chessa and Amy Ellison, 10, will be among the 12 Nexus team members participating in the prestigious New Jersey State Compulsory/Optional Gymnastics Championships. The other Nexus state qualifiers include Kristi Gudoski, Valerie Wussler, Michele Amstutz, Kim Hilsen, Laurie Budis, Cathy Lee, Jill Wanat, and Dana White.

What makes these four girls particularly special is that they have grunted and sweated with each other every inch of the way, from a point where they were simply trying to learn basic fundamentals to a time when they are now all capable of performing advanced stunts.

Four years ago, when the girls first started participating in gymnastics, the best athletes in the state for their age group was probably the farthest thing from their minds.

Each of the girls started out the rawest of novices, according to their coach, and had to overcome constant inhibitions about their ability to learn new routines and take on new challenges.'

"The girls have had to deal with a lot of fear and some enormous disappoints over the years," says the Nexus team coach, Elena Brown. "Things have not come easy or naturally to them. But they have perservered and provided tremendous support to one another as time has gone on.'

They have also matured considerably in discipling themselves to the grueling demands of their sport, participating in three to four practice sessions a week that have invariably left them staying up until 11 p.m. each night in order to complete their homework.

Yet, while there have been many sacrifices on the long road to qualifying for the state championships, the girls have also clearly thrived on participating. Michelle's mother, Diane Coraggio, explains that "It's truly surprising just how much the girls will give up in the way of social activities work on their routines. They obviously love what they do."

The team's coaches, including Elena and her husband Tony Brown and Rich Leff, have dedicated themselves to developing young gymnasts in conducting daily classes at the Nexus Gymnastics facility, located off Route 22 in Mountainside.

mere thought of competing against the and leisure time with friends in order to Month is dedicated to missing Mountainside vet

This April has been a month of commemoration for a Mountainside Vietnam veteran who has been listed as a prisoner of war/missing in action (POW/MIA) by the United States government for over 18 years.

Throughout the month, the Alliance of Concerned Americans for the Release of American POW/MIAs, Kenilworth, paid tribute to Capt. James Thomas Egan, who was captured shortly after his plane was shot down in South Vietnam on Jan. 21, 1966.

Each month, the Alliance honors one veteran-among the total of 2,491 American POW/MIAs whose whereabouts are still unaccounted for in Southeast Asia.

The Alliance's founder and president, Thomas Engkilterra of Kenilworth, who decided to dedicate his organization's attention to Egan this month, wears a specially engraved bracelet bearing the former Mountainside resident's name.

Egan's case is especially tragic, Engkilterra explained recently. "A South Vietnamese soldier who was being held with Egan, and who managed to escape, reported that after all the years Capt. Egan was in caplivity, the Communists took him out and executed him."

Yet Engkilterra said that this allegation by the South Vietnamese prisoner was never confirmed and Egan remains unaccounted for as a POW/MIA, who may still be alive somewhere in Southeast Asia.

Egan's parents, who moved out of the area last year, according to Engkilterra, still wait for word of their-son's whereabouts. "I am so sorry he (Egan) and his family couldn't have been helped before it was too late," Engkilterra said.

Earlier this month, the Alliance conducted an all-night vigil at the Kenilworth Veterans' Center, including a special candlelight ceremony for Egan and the 63 other New Jersey Vietnamese veterans still listed as raise the awareness of local citizens to the need to rally together to help bring these men home.

By any standards, Engkilterra's efforts were remarkably successful.

Little League opens season on Saturday

The 31st season for the Mountainside Little League will begin on Saturday with a parade at 9 a.m., followed by a full slate of games in all age brackets.

Members of the Little League will be joined by Girls' Softball League participants in a parade which will go along Wood Valley Road and Wyoming Drive and down Long View Road.

President Reagan and U.S. Senator Bill Bradley both sent congratulatory telegrams in recognition of the vigil. while Governor Thomas Kean and National Security Council Director Richard Childress sent letters expressing their concern.

"I was pleased to learn of this special vigil," Reagan stated in his telegram. "This event underscores our appreciation of those who have so nobly and gallantly served the cause of freedom.

Those who gathered at the vigil expressed their appreciation as they silently observed local Boy Scout froops light 64 candles, representing each of New Jersey's POW/MIAs, while the David Brearley High School band, Kenilworth, played Taps. The VFW honor guard was also on hand to raise the American flag and POW/MIA flags.

In explaining the purpose of the vigil, Engilterra said, "If we don't have people screaming for these men's release, we won't get them back. "We're still suffering from the ramifications of Vietnam. It was one of the ugliest wars of our time.'

HOME REPAIRS HARMFUL

Q. I've had my dentist repair my denture a few times. Should I do the job myself with a home repair kit?

A. No. Home repairs can be harmful to your mouth, and cost more money in the long run. Your dentist might find it impossible to repair your denture after you've attempted your home remedies.

Improper alignment of broken parts may cause an improper fit. Do-it-yourself reliners can irritate your cheeks and tongue, and make the denture fit poorly. Let the dentist be your "handyman," his tools and knowledge are better than the interest of better dental health. From the office of ROBERT A. WORTZEL, D.M.D.

Official says mayor 'confused' easement

By PHILIP GIMSON

KENILWORTH—Chairman of the Union County Board of Freeholders Charlotte DeFilippo accused Kenilworth Mayor Livio Mancino Monday of making false representations before county officials that the borough had obtained legally required easements for property damaged as a result of construction for the Morses Creek Flood Control Project.

In a sharply worded statement, DeFilippo also charged that the mayor "clearly represented" to county officials that the borough would pay 25 percent of the estimated $100,000 cost for fixing the property. Mancino told the borough council that Kenilworth's share of costs for repairing the property of Vito Saggese, located at 325 Ashwood Ave., would actually be covered under leftover funds from a $2.8 million county bond ordinance.

"As chairman of the freeholders it is not my public policy to carry on disagreements in a public forum with any mayor," DeFilippo stated. "However, Mayor Mancino of Kenilworth is confusing, perhaps deliberately the problem with the Saggese property," DeFilippo stated.

As the Leader went to press, the mayor could not be reached for comment. But at a work session Monday night, Mancino accused the freeholders of "missing the boat" on the Saggese matter, "The county is denying us the moneys," Mancino said. "I take exception to that."

"There is no question that 'A', number one, the borough of Kenilworth was supposed to obtain the easement within the municipality—the responsibility was theirs," DeFilippo charged. "Representations were made by the mayor and borough engineer at the meeting with the chosen board of freeholders that they had got some type of easement."

DeFilippo explained that to date, the county has not received a copy of any written agreement indicating that the borough had obtained the necessary easements.

The only written agreement between the borough and the property owner obtained from the county is a right-ofentry agreement strictly limited for the purpose of exploration and testing, which mentions nothing about granting access for construction purposes.

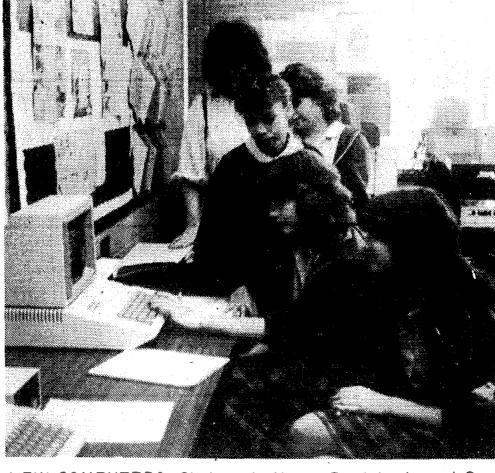

During a work session Monday night, Mancino told the council that this right-of-way for exploration and testing actually represented "an easement." The mayor said the borough attorney "drew up a legal agreement to allow us to go on the property...He and Frank (borough engineer Koczur) drew up the easements."

Councilman Bob Woods argued that this right-of-entry only represented "an easement to do surveys."

In additional comments, DeFilippo claimed that "at no time" did the mayor indicate to this board that he expected the borough's portion of costs to be covered under excess monies from the county bond, "I am at a loss to explain why the other municipalities (in the Morses Creek Commission) sould shoulder the responsibility for changes in th project being forced on the county because mayor Mancino and whatever local official failed to get an easement for this property."

DeFilippo charged that "rather than arbitrarily attacking everone, he (Mancino) should get back to the business of governing, this way the story and the problem won't get convoluted as it has been.

"Mayor Mancino has the reputation of trying to shoot people down," DeFilippo continued in her statement. "Accountability, not publicity is the county's aim. We are trying to complete, with or without the mayor's help, a vital flood control project."

Woman cited in $7,500 theft

KENILWORTH—A Kenilworth woman has been charged with 12 counts of theft from the City Savings Federal Loan Bank, 470 Boulevard. Police said Kathleen Cattano, 22, of North 20th Street, was arrested 7:30 a.m. on April 19 at South 25th Street.

According to Det. William Dowd, Cattano allegedly stole $7,500 from the bank where she was an assistant manager, during the period from May 1983 through January 1984. A police investigation and an internal bank audit were conducted jointly, leading to Cattano's arrest last Thursday.

She was released later in the afternoon by Municipal Court Judge Aldan Markson to the custody of the chief probation officer. Dowd said the case has been referred to the grand jury.

Street vacation matter tabled again for review

KENILWORTH—The borough council again decided to revert consideration of a proposal to vacate a portion of North 15th Street back to the planning board Monday night for further review. Vacating the unpaved and unused "paper street" would remove the public right of way and divide ownership of the property between adjacent landowners on either side.

Though the planning board had already recommended that the council should act to vacate the property in an 8 to 0 vote last June, Mayor Livio Mancino advised Councilman Tony Montuori to take the matter back to the planning board for further review.

Last Thursday, Planning Board Chairman Vincent Foti expressed disbelief that the council was requesting the planners opinion on the matter when copies of correspondence relating to the board's recommendation on the matter had previously been circulated to the entire council.

"A sound transportation system of highways and public transit is essential to New Jersey's economic vitality and the safety, comfort and quality of life of every citizen of our state."

Robert VanBuren made that point recently when he announced the formation of the New Jersey Coalition to Support Transportation, committed to working for enactment of Governor Thomas Kean's Transportation Trust Fund program.

The new coalition is a broadly-based one. Its executive committee includes representatives of organizations that are often at odds on other issues, including the New Jersey State AFL-CIO, the State League of Women Voters, the New Jersey Business and Industry Association, Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company and other organizations.

What is significant here is the diversity of organizations supporting the proposal to establish a trust fund which would provide $3.3 billion in capital spending for highways and public transit over the next four years without a tax increase.

It is tangible proof of the growing recognition throughout the state that, as VanBuren said, "a sound transportation system ... is essential."

The danger, however, is that this growing recognition does not extend to Trenton, where virtually every proposal raised becomes entangled in political wrangling.

It would be well if our representatives in the state's capital were to remember another comment that VanBuren made when he announced establishment of the coalition: "There are no such things as Republican bridges in danger of collapse or Democratic trains that run behind schedule."

For charity's sake

Thank you for giving me an "A" for effort in your editorial on my proposed legislaton to permit state taxpayers to designate certain charitable organizatons to receive contributions from state refunds. I share your concern about which organizations would be worthy to receive such funds. That is why there are only 17 designated organizations in the legislation, while at least 13 will be selected annually by the state Legislature. After the committee hearings, even more organizations may be able to participate.

One item which should be corrected in the editorial is that the American Red Cross and the American Lung Association are included in my proposal, and along with 28 other organizations, would be eligible to receive contributions.

I welcome any comments on the bill, and I hope all the many large and small organizations will be able to participate in the program.

Scene around the towns

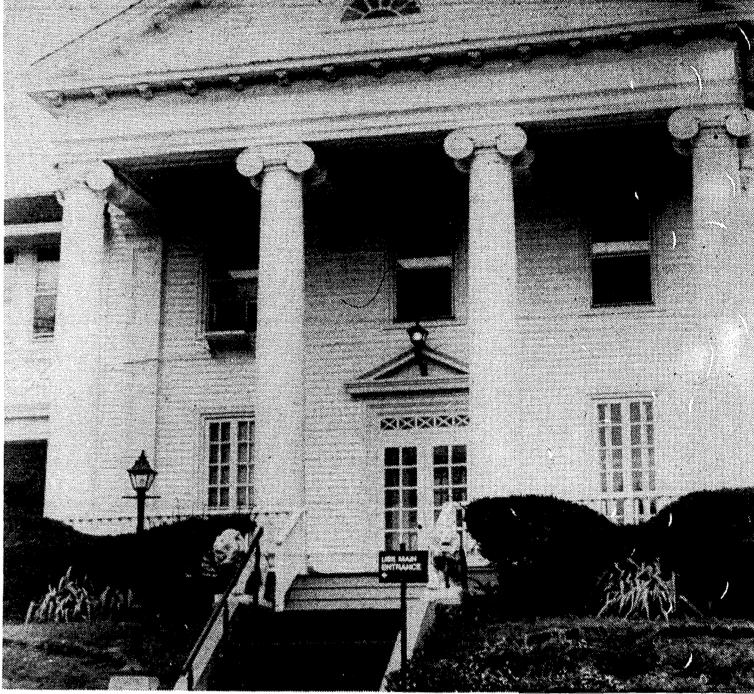

From Kenilworth, the site of last week's Scene, we're heading over to Mountainside for this week's challenge. If you recognize the columned entranceway, let us hear from you by 9 a.m. Monday. Write to Scene, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 3109, 1291 Stuyvesant Ave., Union 07083.

Lots of people recognized the Easter picture last week, including Kim Harms of Roselle Park, who wrote: "The picture is the Blessed Mother in front of St. Theresa's School on Washington Avenue. I know it because I go to the scool and I am in the third grade.'

Debra and Tom Sevchuk of Union had similar reactions. "We knew the scene because that's where we go to school," they-wrote?

Another student who recognized the photo was Laura Marie Olden of Roselle Park, who is in the fifth grade. "Every year, on the first day of school, my mother takes my picture standing there," she said.

Maria Calemme of Kenilworth doesn't attend St. Theresa's now, but, she noted, she is an alumna — a 1979 gradûate.

The Easter scene brought back memories for Mrs. Sande Baltus of Springfield. "In the old days," she wrote, "we used to attend mass in the school auditorium, which is right next to the statues ... We just saw and admired those beautiful statues on Palm Sunday, after mass at St. Theresa's Church — across the street. It's a very nice picture to have for one of our loveliest holidays. Thank you...'

L. McClement of Springfield, another reader who recognized the statues, wrote, "My nieces attended school (at St. Theresa's) and I have many pictures of First Communion, etc.'

"The lovely religious scene for the o week can be found at the front of St. Theresa's School on Washington Avenue in Kenilworth," Mildred E. Kendig of Kenilworth wrote. "It is so charming and inspiring I often stand and look at it in quiet moments.'

Others who recognized the picture were Norma Poles of Union and Thelma C. Klingler of Kenilworth.

On the bright side

Pie in the sky? No, it's just gook on the floor

"Where's the cheesecake you made today?" asked my husband poking in the refrigerator for his favorite dessert.

"The kids drank it after school." He didn't say a word, ask a question or make a comment; just walked away. After many years, he's learned not to ask why or how because, in his opinion, he never gets a reasonable answer.

"Have any cookies?" he asked disgustedly. I handed him the Nabisco assortment. Would he believe that the cheesecake never progressed past the liquid state while baking in the oven? He would. After a countless number of my fiascos in the kitchen, nothing surprises him.

I can't figure out if I do a poor job in the kitchen because I can't stand being there or can't stand being there because I usually leave a trail of disaster in my wake. Hand me a Bundt pan and I get weak in the knees. If there's anything I can't do it's bake. Once I made Christmas cookies and accidentally dropped one on the floor. It didn't break; it bounced. The kids threw another one down harder and it bounced higher. Bouncing cookies. Inedible, but fun. I don't know. once in a while.

Solution: I invested in a cookie press. Foolproof. Must have used the wrong combination of ingredients again. Every cookie was beautifully shaped and colored with food coloring when placed on the cookie sheet. When removed from the oven, however, the mass resembled a psychedelic pizza pie which had to be pried off the tray.

Guests shared a chocolate pie with us one evening. Heaped with whipped cream, the pie looked delicious but I couldn't figure out why there was so little filling at the bottom of the pie shell. Discussion brought forth the fact that I had bought a box of individual pudding servings and made only one for the entire pie. But common sense has never been my strong point. The next week, to make amends, I made my husband another chocolate cream pie. But then I walked in it.

"How did you manage to get your foot up on the table?" he asked. Well...the pie wasn't on the table. I set in on the floor of the pantry so it would cool in a hurry and forgot it was there. When I rushed in to grab some which ingredient was added or left out potatoes for dinner, I stepped in the pie, in error, but the kids still ask for them slid across the floor and landed in a Thanksgiving dinner at my house is a chocolate-covered slippers along with

My husband is one of those finicky eaters who inspects rather than eats. While I was making a lemon meringue pie, a round chunk dropped into the pot from the box of instant lemon pie filling. I quickly disposed of this foreign object before it found its way to his plate. Later, reading directions, I discovered it was the lemon capsule that dissolved in cooking to give the pudding its lemony flavor.

I tried a recipe for a pie where all ingredients are put into the blender, whipped and then put into the pie pan. Again — foolproof — couldn't miss. Not much. As I carried the blender to the pie plate, the bottom loosened and my pie was a river on the floor.

Next time I made it from the blender to the pie pan. After the pie was in the oven I smelled something burning and discovered the ingredients leaking out of tiny holes in the bottom of the pan. Must have been one my daughter had poked holes in while making play dough

Why my family insists on having heap. Had to throw out a good pair of puzzle to me. Maybe they like the laughs. The first year I cooked a turkey, I left the bag of giblets inside, and another time Rod had trouble carving. He couldn't figure out what was wrong with his approach. I had cooked the bird upside down and he was trying to carve the rump. But this time my mistake included a hidden benefit. The juices ran to the breast and we had our juciest turkey to date.

> Too much popcorn sends the lid off the top of our ancient popcorn pan and popcorn shooting around the kitchen. Too much water covering the hambone produces dishwater instead of navy bean soup. Oh well.

Company again. Fancy stir-fry vegetables. No fuss. I used a Pyrex dish, cooked the vegetables, then needed to add extra water so they wouldn't stick. When the cold water hit the Pyrex, the pot exploded. Peas or an occasional carrot still drop off the ceiling, but the Italian vegetables blend right in with the busy wallpaper pattern on our walls and ceiling. Come on over for dinner. If you dare.

New Jersey report

Senatorial courtesy a 'pernicious practice'

By GOV. TOM KEAN

One of the fundamental, underlying principles of our state constitution, as of the federal constitution, is the system of checks and balances that allows the three branches of government to maintain an equilibrium in governance. The philosophy of three "separate but equal" branches of government and the checks and balances that maintain that parity is one of the reasons our Constitution has been so successful over the centuries, and has made America one of the most stable and free societies in history.

This system of checks and balances gives the governor, under our constitution, the power to make various appointments to important positions in state government. In New Jersey the governor is empowered to make literally thousands of appointments, including judges, prosecutors, cabinet officers and many of their subordinates.

Balancing that power is the right granted to the State Senate under our constitution to advise and consent on those appointments.

I strongly support this system and I always will. I believe it puts on the governor proper pressure to assure that executive appointments are of the highest caliber. And it gives the Senate the power to make sure those appointments are, in fact, in the public interest.

It is because I support that system that I so strongly oppose a peculiar New Jersey institution known as "senatorial courtesy."

The phrase, I am sure, is familiar to many. What may not be so familiar is what the phrase really means, and how it circumvents the constitution.

Ordinarily, when I, or any other governor, make nominations for important positions, the nominations go to the State Senate. There, each individual nominee is considered first by the Senate Judiciary Committee, and then by the full Senate. That's the process outlined by the constitution. It is one which serves the public well, beacuse it provides an opportunity for senators and other interested individuals to explore publicly the qualifications of any nominee.

Nominees are normally interviewed by committee members and asked to testify publicly before the committee. There, senators may question the nominee about his or her qualifications and offer an opportunity for the nominee to answer any questions that may have been raised about those qualifications.

The process is open and public. It protects the interests of the citizens of this state, who are entitled to know that the people holding important positions in government are of the highest caliber.

It gives the nominee the opportunity to defend, in public, against any questions that may have been raised about his or her character or abilities.

In short, it provides for the free and open discussion of ideas; certainly a basic cornerstone of our democratic process.

The tradition of senatorial courtesy, however, shortcuts that idea of free and open discussion. This is why I, and so many others, oppose it and call continually for its abolition.

Senatorial courtesy is an unwritten tradition which allows any individual senator to stop and reject the nomination of anyone from his or her home county. Since most New Jersey counties contain more than one legislative district, this means that any single senator may meddle with the appointment of someone who is not even from his or her district.

In either case, senatorial courtesy allows that senator to completely block action on a nomination without offering any reason, publicly or privately. Simply refusing to "sign off" on a nominee is enough to leave that person hanging in limbo.

Some call it a blackball, many call it blackmail. In the past it has been used as both, and there is no reason to believe it won't be used that way again.

There is reason to believe, as I do, that senatorial courtesy violates our constitution and the fundamental principles of fairness that helped build our nation.

Further, this pernicious practice robs the public in two important ways: First, it deprives our citizens of their right to know how and why their elected officials act as they do. Second, it drives from public service many highly qualified people. It must be remembered that many of the nominations a governor makes are for positions that pay no salary and offer no material benefits. They are public service jobs in the truest sense of the term. College trustees and members of various commissions who perform valuable work for New Jersey for no salary or reimbursement fall in this category.

It is difficult enough to find men and women to fill these important positions. It is far more difficult when they know they may be subjected to publicity and controversy because their name is blocked by a senator who gives no reason why the nominee should not have the job. Many decline to serve rather than be subjected to such harassment.

Unfortunately, the issue of senatorial courtesy rarely makes the headlines unless it is being used to block an important appointment. But the maintenance of such a tradition requires the support of all senators, all the time.

Senatorial courtesy should be abolished. It is a tradition I oppose at every opportunity, and I believe it is one that every voter of this state should oppose as well.

Until we erase this outdated and unfair practice, it will continue to breed backroom politics and character assassination. I hope the voters of New Jersey will ask their senators how they feel about this issue and urge its timely end. We must make it clear that democracy requires the free and open exchange of information and that we will accept no less.

Changes will go into effect on Saturday for five NJ Transit bus routes serving area riders that changes in five routes serving Essex and Union counties and parts of Somerset and Middlesex counties go into effect on Saturday.

The five lines are the No. 8 Morris Avenue, No. 9 Clifton, No. 13 Broad, No. 39/48 Harrison/Union and No. 140/141 Somerville/Newark.

The proposed changes were discussed at four community meetings held in December in Union and Essex counties and at public hearings held in February.

Jerome C. Premo, executive director of NJ Transit, said that though some service is being discontinued, "only a small number of passengers will be left without alternative service. Some of the reroutings require passengers who currently have through rides to transfer to make the same trip. However, wherever applicable, continuing trip ticket privileges permit these riders to transfer without additional charge."

The No. 8 Morris Avenue Line is dropping service between Springfield and the Short Hills Mall, but affected riders in Millburn, Summit and Springfield can transfer to the No. 70 line. All but four of the Magie Avenue-Green Lane trips are being discontinued, affecting fewer than 20 riders in Union and Elizabeth, Premo said.

Service on the No. 9 Clifton line is being extended, providing service to industries located along Ramsey Avenue and Chestnut Avenue in Hillside. In conjunction with the rerouting of the No. 140/141 line, the No. 9 Clifton replaces service on the Hillside-Union branch of the No. 39/48 line, which is being discontinued. The No. 13 Broad line is no longer going to provide service to 40th Street in Irvington or Chancellor Avenue at Valley Fair in Newark. The extension of the No. 39/48 route is covering this service. The No. 39/48 is also providing service along Chancellor Avenue between Valley Fair and the corner of Clinton Place/Lyons Avenue. In addition, the rerouted No. 39/48 line replaces the service provided to Penn Station by the No. 13 Broad line.

The No. 38/48 Harrison-Union Line is renamed the No. 39 Chancellor Avenue/Kearny Avenue line and the service now provided by this line on the Hillside-Union branch via Vauxhall Road in Union and the corner of Chancellor and Maple Avenues in Newark is being replaced by portions of the rerouted No. 9 Clifton and No. 141 Somerville/Newark lines.

The new No. 39 Chancellor Avenue/-Kearny Avenue line is extended from Valley Fair, Newark, to 40th Street, Irvington, via Chancellor Avenue, replacing the No. 13 Broad line service along Chancellor Avenue. Service between Valley Fair and the corner of Lyons and Maple Avenues, now provided by the No. 39/48 line, is to be provided by the No. 13 Broad line.

The No. 39/48 is going to provide service between 40th Street, Irvington, and Penn Station, replacing the service now provided between these destinations by the No. 13 Broad line. Frequency of service between Valley Fair, Newark, and the central business district of Newark is increasing.

Four off-peak No. 140 express trips are being eliminated on the No. 140/141 Somerville/Newark line. However, alternate service is available between Dunellen and Newark via the No. 148 and No. 141 routes with a transfer at Mountainside. The No. 141 service west of New Providence Road, Mountainside, is being discontinued. Alternate service between Mountainside and Bound Brook is going to be available via the No. 148 route. For service to Newark, a transfer will be necessary at Mountainside.

Westfield service is being discontinued on the No. 140/141 Somerville/-Newark line. Service is being extended to Union County College in Cranford, which is expected to generate increased

The No. 140/141 is being rerouted via Salem Avenue and Liberty Avenue through Union and Hillside. In conjunction will the No. 9 route extension, this rerouting is replacing service now provided by the No. 39/48 Hillside/-Union branch. Intervals of service on the No. 140/141 line are being adjusted and coordinated with No. 49 Union

All No. 140 express service is being renumbered the No. 65 line, and all No. 141 local trips are being renumbered the No. 66 line.

"This is the first time restructuring and service level modifications have been made on these lines since NJ Transit assumed operation of them in October 1980 and July 1982. For some of the routes it represents the first change in over 40 years," Premo said. "We will continue to study the feasibility of restructuring of bus routes throughout the state to ensure that our service is responsive to the needs of riders. And, we will closely monitor what happens on these five restructured routes and make whatever adjustments are required in the future based on ridership demands.'

For further information on the changes, riders can call (800) 772-3606, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5

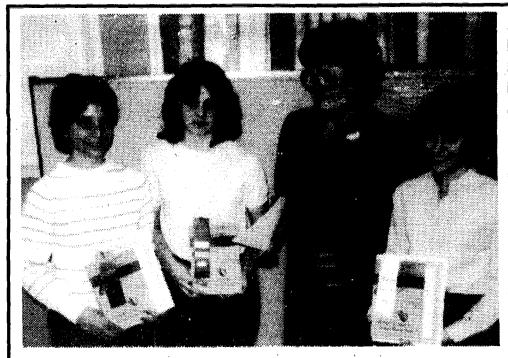

Parenting is support group topic at YWCA

Parenting may be one of the oldest professions but there's surprisingly little job preparation for parents. The Summit YWCA is sponsoring an eightweek Parent Support Discussion Group to encourage mutual respect between parent and child through cooperation, responsibility, and self-reliance.

Melissa Novalis, who has a master's degree in Psychological Education, will lead the group. Novalis will offer parents a realistic and practical approach to meeting the challenges of raising children today. The groups will be offered Mondays, 7:30 to 9 p.m., beginning Monday and continuing to June 25 (no class May 28); or Tuesdays, 9:30 to 1, a.m., starting next week and continuing to June 19. Babysitting is available, by advance registration, for the morning sessions.

Registration information is available by calling the YWCA, 273-4242.

Kutsop's one-hitter follows a no-hit gem

Junior Sharon Kutsop continued her mastery of opposition batters by following up a no-hitter she pitched April 19 two days later with a one-hitter Saturday as Jonathan Dayton defeated Scotch Plains 15-0 in Springfield. In the no-hitter, Dayton crushed Newark East Side 18-0 in softball action in Springfield.

Kutsop, who is undefeated in six decisions, struck out 10 and walked one in Saturday's five-inning contest. The shutout was her third straight. The pitcher also helped her own cause by hitting a three-run homer and singling in three trips. Teammate Carmela Carpenter also drove in three runs while going four for four. A single leading off the first inning was the only hit Scotch Plains could manage off of Kutsop has racked up some impressive statistics while giving opposition batters big trouble. She has struck out 53 batters in 34 innings - a 1.56 strikeout per inning ratio - and hasn't given up an earned run in her last 26 innings.

In her pitching gem April 19, Kutsop struck out seven and walked none. She would have had a perfect game if not for a second-inning throwing error which allowed the lone East Side batter to reach base.

Award-winning athlete is modest about talents

By VICKI VREELAND

Brian Piccolo lived a full life until cancer stripped it away from him at a young age. He is remembered for his courage, his humor and his love of life. A pretty heavy legend for a 17-year-old to follow, but Richard Policastro, the 1984 recipient of the Unico-sponsored "Brian Piccolo Award," is on the right Policastro, an athlete in his own right at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, is among other things, modest. When asked why he thought he was selected the recipient, Policastro replied, "I guess for being active in sports, not a trouble maker, and a decent student.'

According to his football coach, Anthony Policare, Policastro was named "Most Valuable Back" this year, along with being team captain. 'He received honorable mention for the second time in the Mountain Valley Conference," Policare continued.

"Since I have known him, his single most outstanding athletic performance has been to score three touchdowns against Governor Livingston High School," Coach Policare said, "he was also 12 out of 13 for 128 yards."

Policastro plays quarterback and defensive back corner on the Bulldogs. and starting pitcher and outfield for the varsity baseball team.

Policare also mentioned that the high school senior was voted "Mr. Prestigious'' at this year's homecoming dance. "That is the most prestigious award," Policare said, "because his peers voted it."

Golf Digest.

"He is very popular, outgoing, sociable, and a very coachable athlete. He is a good example of your all-American boy type. He is a good sound student and popular with his classmates," Policare said.

Policastro lives with his parents, Joseph and Judith, on Warner Avenue in Springfield. He said he was, "shocked and honored" when he found out he had been selected. "It was funny. I was talking to my brother about it and I said I would like to get it. And then I got the news." Policastro said.

His baseball coach, Stan Wnek, also praised Richard's disposition and athletic abilities. "He's the kind of kid that dosen't give 100 percent, but 150 percent. He has a good attitude and I think he has a great future ahead of him," Wnek said.

The Unico Chapter of Springfield-Mountainside selected Richard from recommendations offered by Peter Falzarano, the athletic director at Jonathan Dayton. "He is a good athlete and a very personable young man," Falzarano said, "and he is an asset to Dayton's athletic teams."

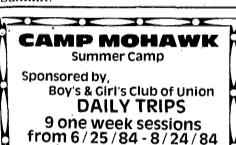

The issuance of the Brian Piccolo Award is an annual event for Unico. It was established shortly after Piccolo's death in 1970. The group, a national nonpolitical and non-sectarian civic organization, was founded in 1922 to unite Americans of Italian descent and fight discrimination.

The namesake of his award was no stranger to Policastro. As an athlete, he was familiar with the career of the Chicago Bears running back and All-American football player at Wake Forest, who led the NCAA in rushing. "I was honored to be thought of for the award," Policastro said.

Policastro described his athletic ability as "natural," but was quick not to short-change his coaches. "I get a lot of help from my coaches," he said. "Coach Wnek is a good coach and he has been doing it a long time. Of Coach Policare, he commented, "He's taught me a lot of aspects about football. He's a good guy."

Springfield Township Commiteeman William Cieri, a member of Unico, said that he's known Policastro for a number of years and believes the athlete, "exemplifies the spirit of Brian Piccolo.'

Policastro will be honored at a dinner tonight at the Villa Restauraunt, Summit.
