Council calls for revising appointment policy

By PHILIP GIMSON

The Mountainside Borough Council approved a work session proposal by a 4-2 vote Tuesday to review committee appointment procedures and Rules of Council to establish a mandated procedure for requiring that all committee appointments be subject to the formal approval of the council.

Councilman Ronald Romak initiated discussion of the need to review the committee appointment procedures in light of the successive controversies generated by the reorganization of the Police Committee in January 1984 and 1985.

The resolution to review the committee appointment procedure was opposed by Councilman Robert Wyckoff and Councilman Bart Barre. Voting in Geiger during the January reorganization in a move that sparked outspoken criticism from Policeman's Benevolent Association (PBA) President Alan Kennedy. He was replaced by Councilman Werner Schon, who was removed the year before.

"The sooner we put this to rest, the sooner we can return to running the affairs of the borough the way our predecessors intended," Romak's letter stated. "The 1984 Police Committee was coming to some major conclusions when this issue erupted, creating an effective diversion."

In prefacing his comments at Tuesday night's work session, Romak noted that the issue of committee appointments dated back to the previous administration, and noted that "the time is past due that we give this a serious look." Romak said, "Hopefully, we'd like to get this problem resolved once and for all."

The debate over the committee appointment procedure revolves around the question of whether the mayor has sole appointment authority for the Police Committee under Ordinance No. 78-3 in relation to Rule of Council No. 12 which requires "the approval of the council" on all committee and special committee appointments made by the mayor.

During discussion of the matter, Councilman Schon noted that the exclusion of a council vote on any committee appointments made by the mayor would operate contrary to "a strong council-weak mayor structure of organization." Schon asked Borough Attorney John Post, "What do we have to do to correct it (the ordinance) if the council is in favor of that (police) committee and other committees be appointed by the mayor with the approval of the council?"

"The appropriate step would be to amend the Borough Code," Post stated, in explaining that under the current borough mandates, the police and recreation committees "are mayoral appointments and do not require the approval of the council."

Post claimed that because "there is now law at the state level, which addresses in any way, shape or form the appointment of a police committee," that the current council ordinance would be the determining mandate that the governing body would have to abide by in making appointments to this committee.

"What I said to you in January 1984 and what I say again to you tonight is that an ordinance overrides a rule of council," Post said.

"I do not agree with John Post's interpretation," Romak stated. "I do not think John Post's interpretation on this matter is correct. I think he's off based."

Romak said that he had consulted several attorneys on the matter and obtained a legal opinion from one challenging Post's judgment that the mayor could determine the membership of the Police Committee without the need for a consenting council vote under Ordinance No. 78-3.

A written legal opinion submitted by Romak from Bradford Bury of the firm of Bury, Czarnecki & Manahan concluded that "The proper and only fair reading of these provisions requires the approval of the Borough Council for any appointment made by the mayor."

Bury's opinion concluded that reading the ordinance in conjunction with state statutes and Rule 12, "leads to the conclusion that final approval of the mayoral appointment rests with the council. Any ambiguity in Section 78-3 of the rules and regulations governing the Borough Police Department should be resolved in favor of the requirement of council approval. A contrary interpretation would result in usurpation of the weak mayor-strong council form of government."

Councilwoman Hart said that the appointment of a police committee through the sole discretion of the mayor "flies in the face of democracy," Hart stated. "There should not be any single committee that should be appointed by one person."

Viglianti stated that the mayoral appointment of the Police Committee without council approval "seems inconsistent," when the council has to vote on Board of Health appointments "which do not have the central monies or manpower of the Police Department." He added, "It seems to me allowing the mayor to appoint these two committees without council consent could give us problems."

"I think it's proper for a mayor to line up people to be on these committees, and it's also proper for the council to have some input... I just want to make it clear that what I did as mayor, it was not only my right to — it was my responsibility."

—Mayor Bruce A. Geiger

Following comments from the council members, Mayor Geiger explained that he was carrying out his "responsibility" in making the appointments to the 1985 Police Committee. "I think it's proper for a mayor to line up people to be on these committees, and it's also proper for the council to have some input," Geiger stated. "I just want to make it clear that what I did as mayor, it was not only my right to — it was my responsibility."

In his letter to the governing body, Romak noted, "...while Ordinance No. 78-3 does not call for consent on council on Police Committee appointments, Rule of Council No. 12 certainly does."

The letter also quoted Section 40:87-15 of State Statutes, which notes, "The mayor shall nominate and, with the advice and consent of the council, appoint all officers in this subtitle directed to be appointed, including the filling of vacancies in all appointive offices which shall be for the unexpired term only." No appointment shall be made by the vote of a majority of the members of the council present at the meeting, provided that at least three affirmative votes shall be required for such purpose, the mayor to have no vote thereon except in case of a tie.

After quoting the statute, Romak's letter concluded, "While one may wish to argue the definition of 'officer,' one cannot help but admit the similarity between state law and our own Borough Code, the intent and spirit of which is certainly clear to any logical thinker and is covered by past precedent up until last year."

Romak's letter called for the governing officials to direct their attention to dealing with two major problems, the "continuing administration problems within the Police Department with both interim and long-term solutions, and the phenomenon of our excessively high legal fee expenditures and ways in which these fees can be brought under control."

In his written statement to the council, Romak quoted extensively from the transcript of officials' comments made at the January 1984 reorganization meeting.

He quoted Schon as stating at that meeting, "...if the council is a strong council, with a weak mayor concept, that (the ordinance) means that the council is being prohibited from appointing, consenting or agreeing to the specific appointments, which are being made."

Romak also quoted Councilwoman Marilyn Hart as challenging the mayor's use of the ordinance during the 1984 reorganization. "The only point I would like to make is that a week ago tonight, when three of us felt very strongly about the committee appointments, and three of us felt the other way, this ordinance was not invoked. In other words, past precedent, the council has always approved appointments to committees."

Following approval of the resolution to review the committee appointments, Romak asked the council whether it would be appropriate to review the 1985 Police Committee appointments based on the majority's dissatisfaction with the mayoral appointment discretion.

"I think you are being premature at this time," Viglianti responded. "Until that is set forth in law, I don't think the governing body has a right to proceed."

Tax impact varies on regional budget

By TIMOTHY OWENS

The impact of the Union County Regional School District's proposed $24.1 million budget for 1985-86 will affect each of its six communities differently.

The amount to be raised by local taxes — $17,972,850 for the current expense, budget and $274,000 for capital improvements — reflects a cumulative increase of $1,058,233 over last year. If the school tax is approved by the voters in the April 2 election, however, taxpayers in one of the communities in the district, Kenilworth, will actually pay $59,793.77 less than they did to support the budget last year, a drop of 5 tax points. Taxpayers in other municipalities, including Mountainside, which faces a hike of 7 tax points, and Springfield, which will see a 3-point rise, will pay more.

According to Harold R. Burdge Jr., board secretary, each community's share is determined by the percentage relationship between the enrollment figures for elementary and high school students within each community as of Sept. 30, 1984 added to each municipality's equalized valuations — the amount of tax rates. The percentage share for each town is calculated by the state.

According to the state's figures, there are 7,891.5 students in the six communities; 4,618 are elementary and 3,273.5 are high school students. In Berkeley Heights, there are 1,984 students, 1,203 of whom attend elementary school and 781 who attend the regional high school for a percentage of school-age students who attend the regional high schools of 39.36. In Clark, the total enrollment is 2,029 with 1,186 elementary and 843 high school students, for a percentage of 41.55. In Garwood, the figures are 559, 321 and 238, for a percentage of 42.58. In Kenilworth, there are 1,118 total students, 652 elementary and 466 high school, for a percentage of 41.66. In Mountainside, there are 800.5 students with 431 elementary and 369.5 high school, for a percentage of 45.16. Springfield has a total of 1,401 students — 825 elementary and 576 high school, for a percentage of 41.11.

These high-school enrollment percentages are then multiplied by each community's equalized valuations, which are as follows: Berkeley Heights, $765,480,002; Clark, $627,130,091; Garwood, $141,351,665; Kenilworth, $337,145,593; Mountainside, $337,145,593; and Springfield, $609,653,173. The ensuing figure is the amount of each town's equalized valuations which are assigned to its regional high school population.

This figure is then divided by $1,208,336,570, the total of the six communities' regional share of equalized valuation, and carried to seven decimal places. This final figure is each community's share.

Those percentages for each town, rounded off to two decimal places, are as follows: Berkeley Heights, 24.93 percent; Clark, 21.56 percent; Garwood, 4.98 percent; Kenilworth, 11.63 percent; Mountainside, 16.15 percent; and Springfield, 20.74 percent.

In terms of dollars to be contributed by taxpayers in each community toward the 1985-86 regional school budget, these percentages translate into the following: $4,660,142 for Berkeley Heights, an increase of $322,002.80 over its share of $4,338,140.13 for '84-'85; $4,030,314.77 for Clark, an increase of $262,523.44 over its '84-'85 share of $3,767,791.33; $930,929.70 for Garwood, a $44,531.63 increase over its $886,398.07 share last year; $2,173,479.23 for Kenilworth, a

Proposed 1985 budget includes minimal hike

The Borough of Mountainside introduced its proposed 1985 budget of $3,310,836.48 Tuesday night, which would call for a 2-point increase in the municipal portion of the tax bill.

According to Councilman Robert Wyckoff, who presented the outline of the proposed budget, the increase would amount to an additional $30.20 compared to last year for the average home in Mountainside, assessed at $151,000.

Of the total $3.6 million budget, the portion to be raised by taxes would be $1,454,282.83.

Wyckoff noted that while the municipal portion of the new tax bill would only call for an average increase in taxes of $30.20, the average homeowner would pay an additional $256.70 in property taxes due to a cumulative 20-point increase in the total tax bill.

This increase includes a 7-point hike in the Union County Regional High School budget for Mountainside homeowners, a 5-point increase in the Union County budget and a 6-point raise in the local Board of Education tab.

In other business Tuesday, Borough Administrator Jim Roberts noted that plans are underway to transfer ownership of the historic Dutch Oven House on Route 22 to the borough from the current residential owner of the property. The effort to relocate the home follows months of discussion in which the Mountainside Historic Preservation Committee had urged the council to save the Dutch Oven, built in 1755, from destruction.

Roberts noted that an architect has prepared specifications for relocating the home, and that the borough is advertising to take bids on April 3 on a contract to relocate the Dutch Oven. If the bids are in order, Roberts said, he would request that the council act on selecting a contractor at the next regularly scheduled meeting after that date, on April 9.

Board calls for restrictive punishment of student vandals

Weekend detention enacted

By SHAWN EVANS

The thought of spending a Saturday or Sunday in classroom detention may be an ominous one for some students, but a 4-3 vote by the Mountainside Board of Education calls for just that.

The resolution involves implementing a three-hour in school detention to be held on a Saturday or Sunday as a more stringent punishment for the "willful and severe acts of vandalism of school property."

The issue, which acted as a catalyst for a board member "tug-of-war" during its regular Tuesday night action meeting, was introduced as a result of a request from Deerfield School teachers.

Mountainside Superintendent Dr. Margaret Kantes said the concerns of the instructors emanated from a recent act of vandalism in the school, and although the student was dealt with in the case, teachers are seeking more restrictive ways to prevent additional destruction.

Kantes said that while she would not like to see the weekend detention alternative misused, she said she does feel there is some logic to it.

"I can see some reasonable logic in this, but I don't want it broad and misused with this occurring every Saturday," Kantes said.

Board members discussed the issue at length, and at first, a motion was made to table the proposal for "legal opinion" and "parental input," but this proposal was defeated by a 5-2 vote.

A subsequent motion to implement the unique detention system was then approved, with favorable nods from Board President Camie Delaney, and board members Linda Esemplare, Nancy Rau and Pat Knodel.

"The pulling of a thermostat off the bathroom wall certainly deserves more than an ordinary detention," Esemplare said.

Other board members who opposed the detention said they did not think the measure was strong enough for someone who posed a "serious transgression and continuous disruption" in the classroom.

Some, however, did not think the "punishment" would coincide with the "crime," fearing that some students would be subjected to a weekend detention for "chewing gum."

Board member Robert Gardella did not agree with the resolution for several reasons, stating that the vandalism problems are not that bad and that this detention may paint a very negative image.

However, Gardella said if a student does take part in an act that causes destruction to the school property, a three-hour detention is not stringent enough.

"Hopping on a bike, riding over here for three hours would be no big deal to him (a student punished for vandalism); it would be just like riding over to a little league game."

Knodel disagreed with Gardella, saying the idea of serving a detention on a Saturday would have an effect because the child would be punished by being deprived of a day of leisure time.

But Gardella added that he has a problem paying a teacher to sit in a classroom on a weekend with the parents' responsibility to punish.

"This board has an excellent opportunity to stop bending so far to the left to cater to someone who is this destructive. I don't think we should ask the teachers to come in and babysit Johnny," he said.

Esemplare said she agrees that it's up to the parent to discipline the child, but that does not apply in every case.

"I agree that it's up to the parent but unfortunately in today's society, the parent is not always there, there are still some good ones who back the teachers' but there are those who feel teachers are always wrong," Esemplare said.

Board member Linda Schneider said she thinks the system is getting "detention crazy" and that she would never condone adding another detention.

"I think our staff is getting detention crazy and I think the place is running wild with kids to see what type of detention they can get next; we need to use a more positive approach," Schneider said.

Board approves $2.7 million tab

The Mountainside Board of Education approved its 1985-86 school year budget in the amount of $2,754,123 by a 5-1 vote, with board member Pat Knodel casting the lone dissenting vote.

Borough residents will vote on the $2,262,62 to be raised in taxes for current expenses, with no amount for capital outlay, on April 2 at the Deerfield School between 2-9 p.m. The annual school election will also be held then.

Board officials announced a special meeting for next Tuesday at 8 p.m. to discuss personnel in private session, with a portion of the meeting to be held in open session.

Knodel debates facts

Pat Knodel, a 12-year veteran of the Mountainside Board of Education, issued the following statement this week in reference to an article which appeared in the March 7 edition of the Echo.

"The Board of Education President, Camie Delaney, was quoted as saying that 'if the budget is defeated, board members will have to start applying to the county for funding to replace these cuts; thereby facing the threat of becoming regionalized.' This statement is not true," Knodel stated.

"When the school budget is defeated the Mountainside Borough Council is the agency which must review the budget and cut money from it if it so chooses. The county is not involved," Knodel added.

"Furthermore, if as a result of a budget cut, the board decided to eliminate the positions of superintendent and principal and establish one position of administrative principal this would not expedite regionalization," Knodel stated. "Just the opposite is true, for regionalization would eliminate administrative positions. I contend that to prevent regionalization we should make these cuts ourselves."

"Mrs. Delaney is further credited with saying that our enrollment decline has reached 'bottom' at 400 students. This is not true," Knodel said. "The five year projection which I have done shows a further loss of students down to 350 pupils in 1990. In June we will graduate 72 pupils. To date, we have registered only 21 pupils for kindergarten next September."

District moves on child abuse detection

By TIMOTHY OWENS
The Union County Regional High School District will become directly involved in the detection of child abuse and missing children should two policies approved on first reading at the regular meeting of the Regional District Board of Education March 5 be adopted next month.

One policy, dealing with child abuse and neglect, follows the lead of the state Board of Education, which passed a resolution in January calling attention to the responsibility of the educational community in such cases. The district's proposed policy contains five elements.

The first provision directs all school staff to report any knowledge and/or suspicion of child abuse and neglect to the school principal. The principal would investigate the report and if the suspicion is reasonable, report the incident to the state's Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS).

The policy also calls for a yearly review with the faculty of legislation, school policy and community resources related to child abuse and neglect. If the policy is adopted, the district would also provide periodic in-service training of staff in the detection of child abuse.

Under the proposal, students would be instructed on child abuse procedures for reporting such cases and community resources in their health classes. The district would also bring to the attention of parents the problems of child abuse and techniques for prevention.

The second policy is the district's response to a law signed by Gov. Thomas Kean late last year - Assembly Bill A-2024 - requiring local school boards to establish policies regarding detection of missing or abused children. The law mandates that school districts notify law enforcement and child welfare authorities when a potential missing or abused child situation is detected.

Under the policy, if a student is absent from school for a single day, when no information about the absence is known, a school representative will call the parent.

If the attendance officer is unable to make telephone contact with the parent of the absent student for three school days, the assistant principal will send a registered letter to the parent requesting he or she contact the school and explain the absences.

The letter will also inform the parent that failure to respond to the letter within three calendar days will result in reporting the absence to the local police and DYFS that the student is unaccountably missing from school.

If no response is received within the three-day period, the assistant principal will immediately report the absent student to the local police and DYFS as being potentially missing or abused.

Dr. Donald Merachnik, superintendent of schools, said that the policy is part of the district's recognition of its responsibilities to its students and the community.

The two policies will be up for a public hearing and final adoption at the next regular board meeting, April 1, at 8 p.m., at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield.

In other business, the board approved a "German Weekend" field trip for Dayton and David Brearley students. Barbara Oberding, teacher and department supervisor at Brearley, and Marion Gyoergy, will accompany five students from each school, who are enrolled in upper level German courses, to Blair Academy in Blairstown tomorrow and Saturday. The students will experience a "total immersion weekend," in which all of the activities, including hiking, singing, workshops, movie, sports, folkdancing and academic sessions, will be conducted in German. The event is sponsored by the New Jersey Chapter of the American Association of Teachers of German.

The board also approved sending students from each of the four regional high schools to the Columbia University Scholastic Press Conference in New York City, which started yesterday and continues today. The conference is designed to help students upgrade their school newspapers.

The district will also participate in the "Vocational School Olympics," to be held at Mercer County Vocational School in Trenton April 26 to 27. Stanley Grossman, director of vocational education for the district, requested that 16 of the district's top level vocational students, representing each of the high schools, be allowed to participate. The students will be accompanied by six vocational staff members.

The board also approved a request by Joseph Malt, principal of Brearley, that 16 students enrolled in the multiply handicapped and orthopedically handicapped special classes participate in a field trip to Gettysburg, Penn., May 13 to 15. The students will be chaperoned by three teachers and two aides as well as some parents. The trip, part of the students' study of the Civil War, will include visits to Gettysburg National Military Park, Eisenhower National Historic Site, the National Cemetery and a tour of various battlefields.

Expenses for accommodations, food and touring will be paid with funds secured through fund raising. Transportation costs will be paid from the special needs parent group account at Brearley, according to Merachnik.

The board also accepted the resignations of two faculty members. Richard Booher, biology teacher at Dayton, sent a letter of resignation effective June 30. Booher has taught in the district for 16 years.

Kathleen Jackowski, a special education teacher at Arthur L. Johnson Regional High School, Clark, currently on a child-rearing leave of absence, resigned effective immediately.

Merachnik to talk

Dr. Donald Merachnik, superintendent of the Union County Regional High School District, will speak on "Federal and State Regulations Governing Vocational Education" March 26.

Merachnik will participate in a program sponsored by the New Jersey Association of School Administrators at the Sheraton Motor Inn, East Brunswick.

The New Jersey Association of School Administrators provides continuing education seminars to provide in-service education for the state's school superintendents.

UCC board recalls West

The board of governors of Union County College adopted a resolution recognizing "the major role played by Dr. William H. West in the growth and development of Union County College as a long-time trustee and governor."

West, who was the retired Union County Regional superintendent of schools, died March 1 in Overlook Hospital, Summit, after a long illness.

West, who was a member of the board of trustees of Union College for 25 years, was the organizer and chairman of the college's Council on Educational Advisors for many years, and was a prime mover in the formation of the Union County Community College System in 1969, which was comprised of Union College, Cranford, and Union County Technical Institute, Scotch Plains.

The board also cited West "as a supporter and advocate for the college and for the community college concept" and "as a devoted public servant and good citizen".

The board expressed its condolences to West's wife, Dorothy; his daughters, Mrs. Shellenberger and Mrs. Barbara Berish; his son, William and his sisters, Mrs. Edna Hawley and Mrs. Helen Major.

decrease of $59,793.77 from its share of $2,233,273 for '84-'85; $3,018,149.02 for Mountainside, a $362,301.75 increase over last year's portion of $2,655,847.27; and $3,876,507.35 for Springfield, $126,667.15 higher than its previous share of $3,749,840.20.

Burdge, noted that taxpayers, especially in communities such as Mountainside, where there are increases, may feel frustrated.

"Unfortunately, each community has no real control on the gyrations in equalized value and school population," stated Burdge, a resident of Mountainside.

As far as Mountainside is concerned, its share went up partly because its high school population, as compared to its elementary school enrollment, increased, said Burdge.

Bellezza runs for BOE

Elizabeth Bellezza of Stoney Brook Lane, Mountainside, has announced her candidacy for the forthcoming election to the Mountainside Board of Education.

"As a concerned parent of three children and a taxpayer in this community for 12 years, I feel I can be a definite asset to the Mountainside School Board. I want to continue to help provide quality education in a cost-effective way," Bellezza said.

Bellezza has served on the PTA Board, Advisory Council, Reading Enrichment Program and as past editor of the PTA Newsletter.

She has been actively involved for six years in media productions within the school system ranging from individual classroom instruction to special projects and performances.

For three years, she also co-created, wrote and produced a cable television show for senior citizens under the aegis of the Junior League of Elizabeth/Plainfield.

Before moving to Mountainside, Bellezza was a writer for the "Captain Kangaroo Show" and was editor and columnist for Cue Magazine.

"With my experience, I feel I have an understanding of the needs of both families with children and those living on fixed income. It is vitally important to me that we continue to maintain and build a strong school system at reasonable costs," she said.

Vetter files for board

William B. Vetter of 336 Central Avenue, Mountainside has announced his candidacy for the Mountainside Board of Education.

Vetter stated that he is seeking election to the board because he believes in the Mountainside school system and wants the system to continue.

"The cost per pupil is still increasing and the budget constantly decreasing. Yet, we keep jeopardizing the home rule we currently enjoy," Vetter stated. "If we do not bring down these expenditures, the possibility exists that regionalization may be imposed upon us."

I wish to keep Mountainside a local school system, investigate what can be done to control costs, keep our fine school system and yet be responsible to the taxpayer," he added.

A committee to elect Bill Vetter is now being formed.

DiFrancesco said, "We currently have no laws on the books that specifically deal with a motorist whose reckless behavior behind the wheel results in an injury to another individual. My bill would establish the crime of assault by auto and impose a maximum jail term of 18 months for this offense if it involves serious injury, or six months if the injury is not serious."

The assault by auto aspect of the bill, combined with the other provisions that toughens the mandatory jail term for death by auto, will give us new weapons in our war to get drunk drivers off our highways."

Under the bill, a driver whose recklessness causes an accident in which another person is seriously

DiFrancesco explained that the new death by auto law imposes a three to five year sentence for the offense. In addition, it contains a stipulation that anyone who was under the influence of alcohol or drugs at the time of the accident serve a minimum of 120 days in jail or community service before becoming eligible for parole.

The senator said, "My bill would lengthen the minimum jail term or community service period to 270 days in these drug-related cases."

The legislation now goes back to the Senate for the approval of minor amendments made by and Assembly committee.

Incumbent makes bid

Linda Esemplare, a Mountainside resident for 22 years, is seeking her third term on the Mountainside Board of Education.

In announcing her candidacy, Esemplare said the major issues facing the Board of Education are increasing administrative costs, school taxes and cost per pupil in the face of continuing decline in enrollment.

The projected enrollment for September 1985 is 385 students plus preschoolers, according to Esemplare. Projected enrollments for the next four years based on the birth rate five years ago will be 367, 358, 359, and 345 students plus preschoolers.

"Administrative salaries alone for one full-time business administrator, one full-time superintendent and one full-time principal during the 1985-86 school year will be in excess of $120,000," Esemplare said. "School taxes will increase 4.4 percent and our cost per pupil will be $6,500.00."

"The Board of Education must begin to use classrooms at Deerfield School more efficiently so that they would be able to move the board offices out of the Echobrook building and into Deerfield School," she added.

"According to a facilities survey of New Jersey's public schools by Uniplan for the New Jersey Department of Education dated Jan 31, 1979, the pupil capacity of Deerfield School is 968. This move would then allow the Board to negotiate with the Borough Council for the use of the Echobrook building as a senior citizen/community center," Esemplare said.

"We cannot continue to ask the taxpayers of this community for more tax dollars for fewer students," she said. We must provide an efficient as well as a thorough school system.

In closing, Esemplare said, "Vote for me (No. 2) on Tuesday, April 2 at the Deerfield School to ensure that your educational tax dollars are spent wisely."

Candidate attends briefing

Dorothy Unchester, candidate for election to the Mountainside Board of Education, attended a school board candidate briefing on March 9 at the Holiday Inn in Parsippany. The New Jersey School Board Association sponsored this program which gave prospective school board members valuable information on issues such as educational governance, policy making, school finance and budgets, staff and community relations and collective bargaining.

"I found this program very beneficial to my understanding of the responsibilities of a school board member in the state of New Jersey," Unchester said.

MONKEY BUSINESS—Three-year-old Diana Guerrero, daughter of Susan Guerrero of Springfield, made a friend during a vacation trip to Argentina in February. A bad draw

One of the more senseless pieces of legislation that has been designated for a vote before the state Assembly would require that unclaimed winnings from the New Jersey Lottery be returned into the lottery pool after a period of one year. The bill would propose to change the current system, which reverts the unclaimed prize money back to the state to benefit education and public institutions.

In 1984, there was a total of $5 million in prize money, which if not claimed within the year, would revert to the state and be earmarked to aid public education or institutions.

Proponents of the measure, sponsored by Assemblywoman Maureen Ogden, have argued that the lottery is already generating enough funds for state-funded institutions and public schools. Indeed the figures are impressive. A total of $488 million in lottery funds was appropriated for various public institutions and educational programs in 1984, and since the lottery's inception in 1970, the amount raised for such purposes approaches some $1.8 billion.

These numbers are impressive, but there are other numbers which clearly indicate that the Ogden bill does not have the public's best interest at heart. While a substantial portion of the 1984 lottery pool went to the state, 42.4 percent, the share claimed by the winners was even larger, 50.2 percent. Another 6.9 percent was drawn in commissions by lottery agents, while 1.6 percent was spent for operational and promotional expenses.

The fact that the winners are already reaping 50 percent of the lottery pool is clearly an indication that they're already getting more than their fair share. Yet there is an even stronger point to be made. The extra money that would be gained by the winners' pool, $2.5 million (or 50 percent of the unclaimed $5 million), would have a relatively minimal effect on the lottery's overall prize structure. It would only stand to make the grand prize ticket holders and Pick-6 winners even richer and increase the stranglehold of the lottery on the small-time bettors, who would have slightly more money to play with in their hopes of winning a big jackpot. These "benefits" would come at the expense of $2.88 million (the 57.6 percent of the unclaimed prizes the state would lose) that could be used to buy textbooks, increase facilities for special education or aid financially ailing school districts and institutions.

Ultimately, Ogden's bill is a piece of legislation with misplaced sympathies and poor timing. It is a bill that would propose to place the interests of the player and gambler over public school students and other beneficiaries of the various institutions receiving funds from the lottery. The player's gain would also come at the expense of the taxpayer, who would be bound to get shouldered with the burden of making up the $2.88 million in lost state revenues. At a time when the Reagan administration is proposing to wipe out federal revenue sharing funds to states and cut back on many programs specifically delegated to New Jersey, it is a proposal that would best be forgotten — after it's voted down by the Legislature.

Letter to the editor

'Vested interests' criticized

As a resident of Mountainside for over 20 years, I have fought with others so that the "so-called Wilson Tract" would be put to better use than the desecration of that property for the building of another eyesore office complex that's prevalent all along Route 22. Here it is, the board that I had no voice in appointing, supposedly representing all the people of this community, takes the action to devalue my property and to succumb to the vested interests of Air Con and overlooking my rights as a citizen and taxpayer.

We have people in this town, or rather, borough, in responsible positions who have no vision, and who have a lack of concern for the environmental and traffic concern that this will entail supported by the shortsighted officials of the county and state who have contributed to this project.

I hope you all sleep well nights because about me you did not give a damn.

No winners in war between young, old

By CYRIL F. BRICKFIELD
The flames of generational conflict between young and old are being fanned again.

In newspaper and magazine columns, political commentaries and even in reports to the president and the Congress, younger Americans are being told that they are being "ripped off" to support a generation of "greedy, affluent" oldsters.

One recent column claimed that younger workers are being "unfairly taxed to support Social Security for the elderly." The columnist demanded cuts in what he termed "pernicious" Social Security cost-of-living adjustments.

Unfortunately, this is neither the first nor the last time we'll be dealing with such claims. For several years now, a host of so-called pundits have been telling us how well off the elderly are. They've been saying how "unfair" it is that countless millions of "affluent" retirees should continue to collect Social Security benefits, even though they themselves paid Social

Snow brightens in more than one way

By GERRY DIGESU

After it snowed heavily recently, our neighborhood changed completely, becoming peaceful and quiet under a white, clean blanket. Then when I started to shovel the next morning, a lovely transformation took place. The people who live in this cluster of homes and are usually only nodding acquaintances became a group of smiling friends, eager to help each other.

My friend took his snowblower, first cleared his property, then our sidewalk and drive. "That fella on the other side of me still hasn't come out to clean off his walk yet." He, often commented when his neighbor's quirks and habits didn't suit him. But I noticed he also cleared his sidewalk for him. "Couldn't see any sense in putting the blower away," he grinned sheepishly when I questioned him about his motives.

We took turns shoveling our cars free from the piled snow in the street in order to park in the drive and make room for the plow to come through. Anyone who had trouble maneuvering into the driveway was assured of help from his closest neighbor. Cheerful laughter followed hearty cries of "what-a-driver" as wheels spun in a struggle to get to a safe parking spot.

The young father across the street who nods politely to me the rest of the year kept up an amiable conversation as we struggled to clear our walks. I wondered if his thoughts were similar to mine: "He seems like a nice guy; I ought to get to know him and his wife better." So often we are misjudged as being aloof or uncaring when we're really shy about reaching out to a new

Security taxes throughout their working lives.

But how "affluent" are the elderly? Let's look at all the facts.

It is true that the economic condition of older Americans has improved considerably from what it was in the 1960s (before the expansion of Social Security and the creation of the Medicare program), when nearly a third of the elderly were living in poverty.

Nonetheless, the 65-plus population continues to have the highest poverty rate of any adult age group. Nearly 4 million of the nation's older citizens have total incomes of less than $4,800, putting them below the official poverty line. Another 2.2 million hover just above the poverty line, with total incomes of between $4,800 and $6,000.

The problem is particularly severe for older women. The total median income in 1983 for women age 65 and older was $5,600 — only $800 above the official poverty line. One in every three older women living alone are in poverty. And the poverty rate among the minority elderly and those of advanced age exceeds 40 percent.

Those who proclaim that the elderly have achieved "economic parity" with the rest of the population conveniently ignore these realities.

Ironically, it is precisely the oldest and poorest of the elderly population — those who rely on Social Security for nearly their total income and who are most dependent upon Medicare to help with high medical costs — who would be hurt by the kind of wholesale, across-the-board slashes in these programs that are now being advocated.

For instance, a mere one-year freeze in Social Security cost-of-living allowances would force an additional half million older persons below the poverty line in a year's time, according to a study by Data Resources, Inc.

But — even putting aside these statistics — those who argue that Social Security and Medicare are "ripping off" the young miss the most fundamental point about these programs: They are family programs.

How much would younger workers and their families have to pay directly out-of-pocket to support their parents and grandparents if they were not receiving Social Security and Medicare benefits? Could "struggling" younger workers afford to pick up half of the tab for their parents' medical costs (which are, on the average, twice as high as their own), or provide several hundred dollars to their parents each month to make up for current Social Security checks and Medicare reimbursements?

One Florida retiree recently told the Washington Post about a meeting he had with several college students who didn't like Social Security. "I told them: 'You know what would happen if you didn't pay Social Security? Mom and Pop would come back home; they'd be asking you to send them a check!'"

"You could see those college kids suck in the air," he said. One girl said: "Oh, God!"

Granted, not all older persons would require such support from their children. And I would suspect that very few would want it. Still, when these programs are viewed in the broad context of the family rather than merely in terms of narrow self-interest, it should be clear that Social Security and Medicare are important and beneficial to younger workers as well as to older Americans.

That's why it's so sad that these tales of affluence are being given such credence, particularly when certain politicians are looking for any possible excuse to make further cuts in Social Security, Medicare and other social programs.

We don't need economic warfare between generations now, or ever. For in such a war, there surely will be no winners.

children. His grin reassured me we'll both try much harder to understand our kids' needs.

A spry septuagenarian shoveled her walk and drive herself and made me look like a weakling in comparison. "I'm just in much better shape than you, young lady," she laughed from across the street. Another elderly neighbor walked a good distance to the corner deli, bought a stack of daily papers and delivered them to those she knew wouldn't probably receive delivery today.

The grande dame on our block, usually too haughty to acknowledge others, was engrossed in conversation with our resident hippie family. The two men who argue each night over whose dog starts the neighborhood canine chorus when they're let out in the yard for their midnight run are leaning on their shovels, sharing a cup of coffee.

It's nice. Too bad it doesn't snow more often.

Wasserman questions colleagues

Former Board President Myrna Wasserman, in her campaign for election to the Springfield Board of Education April 2 made the following statement.

"As an independent candidate, I am asking the incumbent candidates running for re-election to evaluate their own performance. What can you point to with pride and rank as your accomplishments? Is our school district better as a result of your term on the board? Have our children received a better education because you were a board member? Have you focused your attention on education, or on real estate and politics? Has your interest been for the betterment of our children or your own interests and political ambitions? Have you fueled the fires of divisiveness or acted with the best interests of the majority of the people of Springfield in mind? Has your conduct as a board member been above reproach, and can it serve as an example for all to emulate?"

"I am asking the other candidates for the board to make a similar evaluation. Do you have the experience and background to qualify you to be an effective board member? Are you knowledgeable about school budget preparation? Are you truly independent, or do you have political obligations which must be fulfilled if you are elected?"

"As a former board member and president, I have the background, hard-won experience, and independence from political alliances and obligations to begin to make the board of education function effectively and be responsive to the educational needs of the children of Springfield," Wasserman concluded.

'Hand' looks for waves from public

A meeting to discuss the final implementation stages of the Springfield Helping Hand Program was conducted last week, Cynthia Matta, co-ordinator and chairwoman has announced.

Matta, a candidate for the Springfield Board of Education, met with Detective Lt. James Hietala of the Springfield Police Department and safety representatives from the three schools — Pat Hunter, James Caldwell School; William Young, Florence Gaudineer School, and Dr. B. Mullick, Thelma Sandmeier School — to present the Helping Hand applications and review the program.

An application and a description of the program will be sent home with students in each of the schools. Matta explained that parents who wish to participate in the program are asked to return to the safety representative a request form and an application.

Matta said the forms will be reviewed and processed and will include a state check of all persons over the age of 18 residing in the applied home.

The candidate said she has diligently worked for three years to implement the Helping Hand program in Springfield.

Working virtually alone, Matta said, she compiled the necessary information and implementation for approval by the Police Department and the board of education.

Matta stated the Helping Hand program will be in effect with the start of school in September. She said she intends to remain as co-ordinator of the program, working with the Springfield Police and the PTA.

Monaco blasts school's central administration

In announcing his decision to run for re-election to the Springfield Board of Education, Lou Monaco said that the central administration has an "inability... to operate the schools effectively."

The board, he said, needs a professional educational administrator who has a working knowledge of school operations. The central issue in this campaign, Monaco said, is the "inability of our central administration to operate Springfield's schools effectively."

According to the candidate, the board is "constantly embarrassed" by "administrative actions" by "insubordinate acts" that make the board "look ineffective."

"In fact, this board is working, and working hard to deliver the best possible education to the children of Springfield," Monaco said. "Unfortunately, the board receives little or no assistance from the central administration."

"I am a professional educational administrator, operating two facilities in Newark and one in Paramus. I have the expertise to assist the other board members in dealing with administration, staffing, budgets and most importantly, curriculum development.

The incumbent said that the decision to run again was difficult.

"It was not an easy decision, the board takes many hours away from family and career responsibility. The board is not fun. It pays nothing. It is hard work," he said.

Sambur points to accomplishments

Ned Sambur, a current member of the Springfield Board of Education, and a candidate for re-election on April 2, recently pointed out some of the major accomplishments of the board in 1984-85:

- 1) "Recertification of the schools.
- 2) "A start toward the return to educational excellence through the adoption of new and exciting programs.
- 3) "An expansion of existing programs including Reading, Gifted and Talented, etc.
- 4) "A return to cooperation and compromise among board members without compromising our children.
- 5) "The involvement of parents through the Citizens Advisory Committee.
- 6) "Purchase of the Caldwell property along with improvement of outdoor facilities for all our schools.
- 7) "A fair teachers settlement beneficial to all concerned.

"Contrary to what is perceived around Springfield," said Sambur, "the current board is not operating along party lines. Anyone who has followed the votes cast would see that the voting being done is based upon honest and open philosophical differences, with the children being our first priority."

"The change in this election from past years is that the candidates have the good of the entire school system at heart, not, as some people would infer, special interests."

"Springfield is in the midst of a healing process. North and south are talking. Programs such as after-school, pre-school, Helping Hand, etc. have town-wide support. Buildings and objects have taken a secondary position to programs and parent involvement. Just meeting state minimums are no longer acceptable.

"In July of 1984, the board expressed its confidence that I would completely fulfill the responsibilities of a vacated position by appointing me a board member. My job was not to support any side or group, but to work for the good of this school district."

"I have a vested interest in this school district. I will continue to have children in the system for the next 10 years. I want this district to be a leader in new and innovative programs."

"Our community has a right to expect and demand the best educational system possible guided by sound fiscal management. I encourage all voters who want the same as I do for their town to please come out and vote on April 2. Your vote will make the difference," Sambur concluded.

GOP convention is March 30

Union County Republican Chairman Alfonso L. Pisano and 1985 Republican Convention Chairman Lucille Masciale have announced that the annual Union County Republican Nominating Convention will be held March 30 at Roselle Park High School, Webster Avenue, Roselle Park. The convention will be called to order at 10 a.m. The doors will be open to the delegates and the public at 9 a.m.

The order of business will be: Nomination and endorsement of a Republican candidate for governor for the state of New Jersey. Nomination and endorsement of Assembly candidates in the 21st and 22nd legislative district. (Nominations in the 17th and 20th districts' legislative races will be deferred to meetings to be held with representatives from the legislative districts because those districts are comprised of portions of both Union and Middlesex counties, according to the officials). Nomination and endorsement of Republican nominees for freeholder. Richard Malgran, the present director of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, will seek nomination for a full term. In addition there will be Republican nominees to oppose the present Democratic Freeholders Charlotte DeFilippo and Walter E. Boright. To date, headquarters has been notified that Rahway Councilman and Municipal Chairman James Fulcomer, and former mayor, councilman and municipal chairman of Berkeley Heights, William Eldridge, will appear at the convention seeking the nomination for freeholder.

The convention rules require that any prospective candidate wishing to appear before the convention must notify Republican Headquarters prior to tomorrow.

In addition the convention will nominate candidates for state committeeman and state committeewoman. To date, the candidates are incumbents Charles P. Bailey of Westfield and Geraldine Mattson of Cranford, Scotch Plains Republican Municipal Chairman Richard Hatfield, and Elizabeth Municipal Chairman Blanche Banasiak.

All members of the governor's cabinet have been invited and they are expected to attend, as well as the state chairman.

Members of the 1985 Republican Convention Committee are Lucille Masciale, chairman; Rules Committee, Kenneth MacKitchie, Gary Lanzara and William Palermo; Credentials Committee, Donald Ludwig and Peg Brooks, both members of the Union County Board of Elections; and the Hospitality Committee headed by Mary Chappell of Linden.

JOHN FILIPEK—An assistant staff manager for New Jersey Bell Telephone Company in Newark, has marked 30 years service with the company. Filipek lives on Ashwood Avenue, Kenilworth.

Deutsch leads crusade to aid in fight of cancer

Barbara Deutsch of Mountainside will serve as chairman of the American Cancer Society's 1985 Crusade in Mountainside. The announcement was made by Ronald H. Posyton, chairman of the board of American Cancer Society's Union County Chapter.

In announcing the new chairman, Posyton said, "Barbara is very active in our community, and I am confident that she will conduct a very successful campaign."

"Here in Mountainside we expect to raise $4,000 this year," said Deutsch. "This money will be used to support programs in Union County for prevention, early detection and treatment of cancer as well as to provide assistance to cancer patients."

"Since a major part of our crusade goal is the saving of lives in Mountainside," she continued,

"local volunteers will be going door-to-door to distribute a folder called 'Your Colorectal Health Check.' It contains life-saving information about this highly curable form of cancer as well as cancer's general seven warning signals."

Deutsch is an active member of the PTA and has been involved in political fund-raising and campaign organizations. She is a volunteer for Westfield Mobile Meals and is the past president of the Elizabeth Chapter of Deborah Hospital. Deutsch has lived in Mountainside for 14 years.

The 1985 Cancer Crusade in Mountainside is part of a state-wide and national effort involving more than 2 million volunteers. If you would like to join in the fight against cancer, call the Union County chapter at 354-7373.

Genova pledges support for Kean

Peter J. Genova, Republican candidate for the state Assembly, district 21, in the special election to be held March 26, recently outlined his positions on what he said are the important issues voters will face in the upcoming election.

"The two most important issues that we face are the environment and taxes," Genova said. "The voters of the 21st district are concerned that our state clean up toxic waste and solve our pollution problem once and for all. That's why I'll support Gov. Kean's plan for a clean New Jersey. This program commits part of the state surplus to clean up hazardous sites, and means that New Jersey won't have to wait for the federal government to finally fund the Superfund program. We can't let politics interfere in our efforts to clean up our state."

"Cleaning up the state requires more than just voting for one bill or another. It takes leadership to enact laws to protect our air, water, and natural resources," Genova said.

"I also plan to support Gov. Kean's effort to reduce our taxes.

The surplus is very large this year in the state budget, and I support efforts to return a substantial part of it to the people of New Jersey. The governor's program will provide $795 million in tax relief this year, and over $2 billion over the next six years. Part of the package includes a one-time increase of the homestead tax rebate, a direct return of $100 million to property owners and apartment renters," he said.

"If the surplus is larger, I will support returning any extra to the taxpayers. Not only will this provide relief, it will stimulate the growth that has made New Jersey a state with low unemployment and fast growth," Genova continued.

"I have spoken with the 21st district's other representatives, Sen. Louis Bassano and Assemblyman Chuck Hardwick. We support the governor in his efforts to keep New Jersey's economy strong. It is imperative to the 21st district and the entire state that taxes decline and unemployment stays low. We think that the governor's program puts the state on the right course, and we support it," Genova concluded.

Alper offers answer for trash woes

A plan to harness methane gas produced from landfill sites state-wide was called for this week by Mike Alper, Democratic candidate for state Assembly in the 21st district.

Alper said that such a plan, if implemented, would help hold down rapidly rising rates charged by landfill operators and waste haulers who are running out of space for new landfills or must close existing ones for environmental reasons.

"Many localities throughout the nation are joining with private firms to put methane gas recovery technology to use, and the results have been promising," said Alper. "The recovered methane gas is used just like conventional natural gas, to heat homes and generate power."

"The Department of Environmental Protection should develop the standards and guidelines needed so we may begin a state-wide program for methane gas recovery," said Alper. About half the material in a typical landfill decomposes into methane gas, "so in addition to producing new revenue and saving taxpayer dollars," added Alper, "methane gas recovery makes dumps smell better, too."

"For example," said Alper, "high-tech incinerators employ sophisticated smoke scrubber systems so that they produce very little pollution, destroy almost all solid waste, and ease the pressure to find new landfill sites. Applied technology can lead us out of our solid waste quagmire in New Jersey."

Personal computers

What's in a microcomputer?

By JAN OWEN

Entertainment center, educational tutor, hobby helper and financial planner: a microcomputer can be all of these and more, thanks to an electronic device resembling a flattened plastic centipede.

This integrated circuit or "chip," combined with two other components, makes such incredible computer diversity possible. If you were to lift the back or top of a computer, you would see rows of these black rectangles — chips — "plugged" into a hard plastic board.

One of the larger chips, about the size of a domino, is called the microprocessor ("micro" for small, "processor" for controller). This is where the central processing unit (CPU) is housed. The central processing unit is the "brains" of the system.

That domino is like Grand Central Station. That small unit gets, interprets and follows instruction. It also performs math calculations and controls the work of computing. Since the CPU can only handle one command at a time, a place where the rest of the instructions wait to be executed is necessary.

Near the CPU, on this same plastic board inside the computer, there are rows of smaller "memory" chips to meet this need for additional storage. This is what makes a computer so flexible. Most of this additional memory is blank, waiting for directions. These instructions could be used to balance your checkbook, keep a client list, and play an arcade game.

Now that you know what a CPU is and what memory does, let's look at the third and final component that makes up a computer: the input/output (I/O) section. This is where we come in because this is the computer's link with the outside world. Input and output serves the computer's CPU in almost the same way as your body responds to your brain. Your five senses take information in, your brain processes it and then "output" results through physical expression, movement, talk, etc.

For computers, input/output describes the flow of information to (input) and from (output) the computer's CPU. For you to interact with this information though, units called peripherals must be connected to these I/O passageways.

Peripherals can be grouped differently from computer to computer. Basically, the more common peripheral devices are:

Display—A video window — perhaps your TV set — that lets you see your input and the computer's response.

Keyboard—Similar in operation to the typewriter, the keyboard allows you to enter (input) information, responses and commands to the computer. If you were to type in your name, it would automatically appear on your TV-like screen.

External Storage—tape recorder or disk drive. The set of instructions loaded into memory is lost each time you turn the computer off. External storage devices allow you to save those instructions. Then, when you are ready to use them again, you can load them back into memory.

Printer—Gives you a printed copy of the work similar to that from a typewriter.

Put the three most essential ingredients of a computer together: the central processing unit, memory and input/output. Add some peripheral units, and you have a complete system. The quantity of memory you choose, and which peripherals you select, determine the power and the purpose of your system.

Study finds job switch can be costly

The National Association of Career and Employment Services (NACES) Study of corporate employment problem-solving, conducted in the last quarter of 1984, has been published. It documents the trend toward increased employment change, while noting that this trend can be costly to employers, employees and taxpayers.

The study, directed by Dr. John T. Whiting, director of the NACES Research Committee, sampled more than 1,000 businesses and corporations in the Southern Connecticut, New York, New Jersey and Eastern Pennsylvania areas.

Study companies, representing Fortune 100 and entrepreneurial companies, privately- and publicly-owned industrial and service-oriented businesses, were asked for their observations concerning employment trends, their employment policies and whether they believed company employment problem solving was keeping pace with change.

The findings indicated that nearly one-third of the respondent companies had no policy concerning employee terminations, while many reported an increase in employment change, and that they were not keeping pace with the change.

Whiting, who is also president of CCS, a Career Management Employment Problem Solving Firm based in Morristown, noted that company employment policy tends to be developed as a "defense" against reaction from disgruntled terminated employees.

Whiting noted that a company's ability to change personnel is essential if the company is to remain competitive and keep pace with the rapid changes occurring in the economy and business sector. He noted that most employment policy is based on outdated assumptions that no longer are valid in today's business environment.

The study offers some recommendations for updating employment policy based on the premise that employment change is a normal and inevitable part of today's business operations and can be positively and cost effectively incorporated into the standard operating procedures of most companies.

Author looks at the future of housing

By ROSE P. SIMON
The following are reviews of books currently available at the Springfield Public Library.

THE FUTURE OF HOUSING

Redesigning the American Dream," by Dolores Hayden.
At one time in our history, it was the city or the nation which was the American ideal—the American dream. Today the ideal is based on the house. The author, professor of architecture and urban planning at UCLA, reviews the history of American housing, but focuses on the more recent trend toward the "dream house," its origin, and problems in our society.

These problems are complex, affecting every strata of our population in its economic, social, and political life. In addition to a housing shortage, there exist challenges by environmentalists, women's groups, civil rights groups, along with a sifting economy. Hayden describes the changing American family: predominantly two-earners, single parents (mostly women), young and elderly singles — none of whom fit easily into the post-war development projects. But it is necessary to consider these, and to involve individuals, families, citizen groups, local officials, national policy makers, planners and designers for the future.

For such planning Hayden suggests a national day care policy; more original approaches to jobs, housing and transportation; designing special solutions for specific neighborhoods; care for the elderly, redesigning and reconstructing older single-home family and public housing projects. New housing construction should be integrated with transportation, says the author, jobs and special services for specific constituencies; acoustical and visual privacy should be preserved, commercial areas should be zoned to regulate the excesses of outdoor advertising; and public safety for children and the elderly must be provided.

INTIMATE RECOLLECTIONS

"With a Daughter's Eye," by Mary Catherine Bateson.
The daughter of two remarkable anthropologists, the American Margaret Mead and the British Gregory Bateson — has continued in her family tradition as a linguist and as an anthropology professor at Amherst. This is a reconstruction of her relationships with her parents and of their's with each other.

She remembers them in terms of contrast. Margaret was small and chunky, Greg was tall and lanky. Her's was an enclosing lap, his seated body was like a "jungle gym;" her rhythmic movements were swift and sure, his were varied and often aimless. Margaret cared about people's perception of her, Greg flouted convention. She found her place between the realistic and the abstract, while busily pursuing social causes. Greg aimed at ever higher universal abstractions. Both parents lived profoundly unconventional lives, but worried deeply about the nature of order both in social life and in nature.

Mary, born in 1939, was the daughter of Margaret's third husband. They lived mostly in New York City (where Mary attended school) often sharing apartments with friends and spending summers in New Hampshire. Mother was at the Museum of Natural History, or Samoa, or Washington, D.C., where Greg was busy studying cybernetics and writing. Much later he explored Buddhism, eventually living in Esalen. Their mode of living offered the young girl many opportunities for adapting to different households, sharing with other children, and being reunited with her guiding parents periodically.

Bateson touches on the meaningful contacts with her parents, and their influence on her development. She describes Greg's subsequent marriages and offspring, her mother's work in Samoa, her friends and colleagues, her own marriages and career, the final illnesses of her parents, and their noteworthy achievements.

Revolution talk at meeting

The Springfield Historical Society will hold its next meeting Tuesday, at 8:15 p.m., in the Sarah Bailey Recreation Center, Church Mall, Springfield. President Kenneth Hendrix will conduct a short business meeting, and will announce the selections for the board of governors.

The guest speaker will be Matthew Grubel of Millburn who will also present his documentary film, "The Last Muster." This presentation is about the last British attempt to return New Jersey to the Crown during the Colonial era. Grubel will explain the reasons which initiated the event as well as the course of the fighting and its results.

Program Chairman Howard Wiseman commented, "This is a slightly different aspect of the valiant efforts of the Colonists' resistance."

Grubel is affiliated with the Morristown National Historic Park, has participated in authentic Colonial military musters, and has done extensive research on this topic.

Refreshments will be served by Hospitality Chairman Rose Miller and the members of her committee. The general public is invited to this event.

Science prize named for Lieff

Dr. Morris Lieff of Springfield has devoted the last 17 years to developing the Division of Science, Technology and mathematics at County College of Morris, Randolph Township. Now an award, to be called the Morris Lieff, Ph.D., Prize in Science has been established by his children to commemorate his 70th birthday and his service to the college.

Lieff's children, Beryl Benderly and Jonathan and Matthew Lieff, presented the college with a donation of $1,100. The prize will be awarded each year from interest derived from the principal. The first award of the prize to a CCM science student will be made this spring.

Lieff was CCM's first full-time faculty member when he signed on in 1968. The college was still in the planning states and its offices were in East Hanover. Lieff was previously with Middlesex County College, also a new institution, where he had spent two years establishing a science division. Earlier, he was a professor of chemistry and physics at Jersey City State College.

At CCM, he helped to build the Division of Science, Technology and mathematics that he now heads as dean. The division features both career programs - sending graduates out into industry with skills in the chemical, bio-medical, mechanical and electronic engineering fields - and strong academic programs producing some students who have gone on to both doctoral and post-doctoral research.

Lieff also has a long history in industry and research. He worked as technical director in building material research for manufacturing corporations prior to entering education. He is an expert in the field of fire protection engineering and is responsible for the development of spray-on insulation for steel beams and an insulating roof material.

In 1981, Lieff was invited by the U.S. Department of Commerce to join a panel of U.S. scientists sent to the U.S.S.R. to meet with Soviet experts on fire protection in the field of housing and other construction. Later, he translated a pamphlet concerning Russian fire standards.

Lieff, who holds the Ph.D. in chemistry from McGill University, is editor of several scientific books, member emeritus of the American Chemical Society, member of the Society of Sigma Xi, and a Fellow of the American Society of Testing and Materials.

The school family:

working with you to be the best.

We all want the same thing for New Jersey's public school children: the best possible education.

Today, they're closer than ever to getting it. But we know the price it takes to make sure they do.

It takes money. In education, as in so many things, you get what you pay for. You've paid for the best.

Now, the State is beginning to pay its full share, too.

But it takes more than money. It takes cooperation, honest dialogue, understanding different viewpoints. It takes working together for the same goal.

It's not easy to get the best — or keep it. But it's always worth it.

Temple Beth Ahm will honor Dennis

HAROLD DENNIS

Harold Dennis, immediate past president of Temple Beth Ahm, Springfield, will be honored at the Temple's Seventh annual dinner dance Sunday evening at the Short Hills Caterers, Short Hills.

Prior to serving as president from 1980 to 1984, Dennis was the temple's youth commission chairman, membership chairman, a two-term trustee and president of the Men's Club. He also has been a minyanaire for the past 15 years.

During his tenure as president, Temple Beth Ahm established a Nursery School, expanded its Youth Institute to include young people from nearby communities, and initiated a Scholar-in-Residence program.

Dennis has been active in the radio, television and appliance division of the United Jewish Appeal in New York. He also is past chairman of the Springfield United Jewish Appeal and Springfield Israel Bond drives.

He is involved in the consumer electronics industry as president of Consolidated Sales, Co., Inc., a manufacturers' sales representative organization in New York City.

Dennis' early life revolved around music. He began playing the piano at age five, performed at Town Hall in New York City at age 12 and was music major at Columbia University. For more than 15 years, he was a professional pianist, composer and arranger. He performed with the orchestras of Bobby Sherwood, Tommy Tucker and Gene Krupa, and traveled as accompanist for Tony Bennett, Steve Lawrence, Edie Gorme and Joe Williams.

Dennis and his wife, June, have resided in Springfield since 1957. They have two sons a daughter: Alan (married to Lisa, whose children are Jarret and Spencer), Marlon (engaged to Paula Greenberg) and Pamela.

Artist's work exhibited

The Middlesex County College Art Gallery will feature the works of Springfield artist Lawrence Koldorf during a solo exhibit of his works entitled "Sisters," a collection of oversized acrylic paintings of women, displayed in pairs, from Monday through March 29. The exhibit will be open to the public Mondays through Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Admission is free.

Koldorf explained, "In executing these paintings, I dealt with color harmonies, opacity and transparency, and negative and positive games. I relate to the subjects as I paint, so the colors have 'emotional' values. Getting the image exactly right was a major concern for me in creating these works."

"What has kept me at the canvas is my passion for how people look. Watching faces, reading faces, fabricating notions and stories about faces and about the people who wear the faces, intrigues me." Kaldorf said. "I strive to make a painting as arresting as the face (which inspired it) was to me. My color acrobatics intensify a painting in a way that is unmatched by living, breathing human beings. After a painting is complete, I gaze at it tirelessly. I want those who view my works to do the same; simply drink them in, the color, the face, the expression, endlessly. Looking and looking is half of what art is," Koldorf explained.

A recipient of an award in the Summit Arts Center Juried Show this winter, Koldorf's works have been displayed at many exhibitions and collections, including the Nabisco Corporation Headquarters, Hunterdon Art Center, Morris Museum of Arts and Sciences, and others. Among his professional affiliations, Koldorf is a member of the Artists League of Central New Jersey and the Portrait Society of America.

'CENTER FOCUS'—by former Springfield resident Loretta White, is part of her one-woman show currently on view at the New Gallery of the Educational Alliance, New York City.

Artist shows her work

The New Gallery of the Educational Alliance has announced that Loretta White, a former resident of Springfield with her art studio in Hoboken, will exhibit selected works in a one-woman show at its gallery at 197 East Broadway, New York City, through April 4.

White, who studied privately with Perry Zimmerman of Cranford, is a graduate of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, and holds a bachelor of fine arts degree from the University of Hartford Art School. She has also studied at SUNY at Purchase, N.Y. and at the Art Students League with Richard Pousette-Dart. Her creative efforts have included experimental work in poetry and performance-art, in New York, San Francisco, Paris, and Hoboken. Her most recent exhibit was a group show at the Elboho Space in the East Village in October.

The present exhibit, entitled "Inner Archaeology," is a selection of works that the artist likes to think of as artifacts that she has found on an inner journey in which the process of art was the vehicle for exploration and the means to transcendent experiences. Her works have a depth and resonance from layering techniques that suggest time accrual. Some have actually evolved over a period of years and have a mysterious and searching quality. In many, the image surface was a "field" in which she performed rituals, celebrated, drew maps, and invited the supernatural. Others are "plans" which she integrated inner and outer worlds.

The gallery hours are Sunday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Friday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Church to hold concert

Local artists will be the featured performers when the Congregational Church of Westfield, 125 Elmer St., Westfield, will hold an "Afternoon of Classical Music," March 31 at 3 p.m.

The church is holding the concert in conjunction with the Volunteer Auxiliary of Spaulding for Children. This is a free adoption agency for older and handicapped children.

The performing artists have all donated their services and the program includes "Carnival des Animaux," a sprightly four-hand piano piece by Saint-Saens, featuring Elizabeth Tipton of Westfield and Dr. Erwin Klingsberg of Mountainside at the keyboard, while John Cook of Westfield, fulfills the role of dramatic narrator. Tipton will also play a solo Chopin sonata.

Flutist Kelly Tyma of Bridgewater, an elementary music specialist at Oak Knoll School, Summit, will join Eugene Philley and soprano Charlotte Philley of Union, in pieces by J.S. Bach, Donizetti and Vaughan Williams. Philley is an active accompanist in the New York area and a solo recitalist.

A regular performer with the Goldovsky Opera Institute and the New Jersey Lyric Opera Co., Philley's program will include opera, folk songs and other pieces. She is a lyric coloratura who has the ability to charm, individualize and dramatize each rendition. Her musical accompanist will also include violinist Lily Harvitt of Mountainside. Harvitt teaches at the Newark School of Art and is affiliated with The Suburban Symphony, as are the other artists.

Tickets are a $7 donation or $4.50 for senior citizens and students and may be purchased at the Spaulding office at 36 Prospect St. or Rorden Realty, 44 Elm St., Westfield.

Spaulding for Children has found families for special needs youngsters throughout the state.

Area wrestlers continue state title bid

By WAYNE TILLMAN
For five local wrestlers, the dream of capturing a state championship begins tomorrow at Princeton University's Jadwin Gym.

Roselle Park has three competitors and Dayton and Brearley one apiece as the state tournament resumes tomorrow at 6:30 p.m. at Jadwin with the pre-quarterfinal and quarterfinal rounds. Action then concludes Saturday with the semifinals at 10 a.m., the consolation at 1:30 and the finals at approximately 2:30.

The Panthers will be well represented. Frank Croce will open his action at 134 tomorrow against preliminary round winner Bob Valaziotis of Wall Township. Valaziotis won a 7-0 overtime decision over Dover's Robert English last week and is 22-4. Croce, who won the Region III title, is 24-3.

Paul Feola at 170 pounds will tangle with Tim Woods of Northern Valley of Demarest tomorrow. Woods is 19-5 and Feola is 23-4. The other RP grappler competing is Jamie Shriner at 189, who placed third in the state last year. He is the top seed in the that weight class, but faces an uphill battle this weekend. Shriner, 26-2, will meet Rob Connor of Jackson, 26-2, in his opening bout. Connor advanced by beating Paul Vinges of Glen Ridge.

Dayton's only wrestler left is Region III champion Jim Yee at 102 pounds, and he takes his 25-2 mark up against Doug Weisman of Columbia tomorrow. Weisman, who won his prelim bout against Larry Pallante of Caldwell, is 19-6.

Brearley's Tony Siragusa, sporting a 22-0 record at heavyweight, tangles with Jim Jordan of Cedar Ridge in his first bout tomorrow. Jordan is 22-4 and pinned Moorestown's Bill Connors last week in the preliminaries. Feola was the only local grappler to advance from the prelims to tomorrow's quarterfinals as he decided Jim Heining of Delaware Valley, 13-7, at 170.

Also wrestling in last week's new preliminary round were Mark Farmer of Linden, who lost 15-6 to Jon Bovit of Cherokee at 115; Larry Guarino of Union, who dropped a tough 16-13 decision to Mark Fano of West Essex at 158 and Tom Verducci of Dayton, who was pinned in 1:19 by Kevin McMullan of Dumont at heavyweight.

Bear cagers improved in Berger's second year

By RICK BARBA
Although their record was below 500 at 9-13, the David Brearley Bears had a successful 1984-85 basketball season. The Bears nine victories were the most that they have won since 1977.

One of the primary goals that Bill Berger set when he took over as head coach after four years at Irvington, was to make Brearley competitive. According to coach Berger, it usually takes three or four years to turn a team around, but before you can be a consistent winner you have to become competitive. This was accomplished in Berger's second season.

Through Berger's instilling confidence and pride into his players, Brearley was not an easy opponent for anyone to beat. The Bears' "never say die" attitude kept them in many games against teams with much more talent.

Five of the Bears' 13 losses were by two points or less. One of the losses came against Johnson with the Bears taking the Crusaders to four overtime periods before succumbing, 52-50. Another overtime loss was a heartbreaker to the Manville Mustangs, 36-35.

The leading scorers this season for the Bears were Jerry Stickle, who averaged 11 points per game and John Barr with a 10 point average. Sean Marshall was the leading rebounder, averaging eight boards per contest.

This season also saw Brearley qualify for the state tournament for the first time in many years and even though the Bears were eliminated by Dover (55-35) in the first round, it was a good experience for the team.

Both the junior varsity and the freshmen teams enjoyed very successful seasons. The jayvees were 13-6 and the freshmen had a 14-5 record.

With the returning members from this seasons varsity combined with players from the junior varsity and freshmen teams, the future looks very bright for coach Bill Berger and the Brearley Bears.

Dayton ends 12-11; hurt by close losses

By RICK BARBA
The 1984-85 season was a winning one for the Dayton boys basketball team. The Bulldogs finished with a 12-11 record which would have been much better if "we could have won some of the close games," according to coach Ray Yanchus.

Two of the losses came in double overtime. In one of the games, Dayton lost to Bridgewater West, 66-60, during the Golden Falcon Classic Christmas tournament. The other loss came in a heartbreaking 78-75 loss at Roselle.

In that game the Bulldogs had a chance to end the Rams' 41 game home court winning streak, which ironically enough came to an end less than 24 hours later when the Rams lost to St. Mary's of Elizabeth, 40-35.

Another game which went right to the finish was when the Bulldogs lost to Governor Livingston, 74-70. That loss to the Highlanders cost the Bulldogs a berth in the state tournament.

The real heartbreaker came in the Union County Tournament when Dayton was edged by second seeded Rahway, 58-57. The game was very close most of the way, but unfortunately for the Bulldogs, they just could not get a break when they needed it. Even though Dayton lost to the Indians, this game proved to be a very good experience for the team.

The Bulldogs were led this season by guard Mitchell Nenner, who averaged 17.1 points per game and hit on 72 per cent of his free throws. Other players who were prominent in the Bulldogs' attack were Mike Graziano, who averaged 15.5 points per game; Carlos Hernandez, with a 14.7 average per contest and David Cole, who hit 54 per cent of his shots from the field and averaged 13 points per game.

The top two rebounders for the Bulldogs this season were Cole and Hernandez.

Two juniors who also played important roles for Dayton were Tommy Kisch and Tom Meixner. According to Yanchus, they were "worth their weight in gold."

It should add up to good things in Bulldog country in 1985-86.

MS golf tournament scheduled for May 6

Paul Zuckerman, chairman of the 12th annual Multiple Sclerosis Spring Golf Classic, has announced that this year's tournament, benefiting the Mid-Jersey Chapter of the National MS Society, will be sponsored in part by Doyle, Dane and Bernbach, one of the most prestigious advertising agencies in the country.

This year's all-amateur tournament will again be held at Plainfield Country Club in Edison on May 6 and will be limited to 54 foursomes.

The events of the day will include the challenge of playing at one of the top 100 courses in the country as rated by Golf Digest magazine. Prior to the 8 a.m. shotgun start, a continental breakfast will be served starting at 7 for the morning round golfers.

A buffet luncheon will be served between 11 a.m. and 12 noon.

followed by the 1 p.m. shotgun for the afternoon round. A cocktail hour, followed by the awards dinner, begins at 7 p.m.

The $200 entry fee covers greens fee, cart or caddy, continental breakfast, buffet, cocktail hour and dinner, favors and prizes.

Those participants who elect to golf during the morning round, will have full use of the club's facilities for tennis, squash and paddleball for afternoon relaxation. Arrangements can be made to play an additional nine holes of golf on the public course adjacent to the club for those who wish to do so.

Because of last year's enthusiastic response, all 1984 players have priority. All reservations must be received with checks by tomorrow. Contributions are tax deductible and will be individually acknowledged.

Further information may be obtained by calling 681-2322, 828-1455 (both 201 numbers) or (609) 586-5406.

Locals starring at Lafayette

Senior Marty Swanson, a member of the Lafayette College golf team who missed last season, will be counted on if the Leopards are to enjoy a winning season on the links in 1985.

Swanson, a graduate of Dayton Regional, averaged 82.7 strokes in 1981. His team opens the season March 28 at Franklin and Marshall. Another Lafayette athlete who is just finishing up a big year is Mountainside resident Mike Weinstein, whose 31-8 record in the foil was the top individual mark among all those on the Leopards' fencing team.

He helped lead Lafayette to an overall sixth place finish at the recent Middle Atlantic Conference championships.

Minutemen win two golds

The Springfield Minutemen wrestling team competed recently in the Union County League championships, and two competitors won gold medals and one a silver.

Champions were Dante Puorro at 62 pounds and Peter Carpenter at 87, while the second place winner was Anthony DiNorscio at 82.

For Puorro, this was his second consecutive championship. He and Carpenter will represent Springfield on the Union County All-Star team which will wrestle against an Essex County all-star squad.

Previously, the Minutemen defeated Linden (54-15) and Hillside (48-6). Winning against Linden were Puorro, Carpenter, Chris Colatruglio, Bobby Tranquilli, DiNorscio, Danny Murphy, Brian Heuer, Joe Roth and Michael Masi. DiNorscio and Roth recorded pins in just four and five seconds, respectively.

Against Hillside, winners were Colatruglio, Puorro, Tranquilli, Anthony and Michael Masi, Carpenter, DiNorscio, Heuer and Roth.

Netties split two contests

The Springfield Junior High girls basketball team split its two games last week, beating Verona and losing to Nutley. Julie Koppekin led all scorers with 16 points against Nutley, but the locals dropped a 47-25 decision. Jennifer Francis added four points, Liz Pabst three and Wendy Bartel two.

In the win over Verona, Springfield jumped to an 18-2 lead in the first four minutes and coasted from there. Pabst had a season high 18 points, while Koppekin added 12, Colleen Drummond, eight, Francis five, Bartel six and Carolyn Merkin two.

Brenda Hockstein, Sheri DeRonde, Jocelyn Hreben, Kelly Hartman and Kelly Jorda all played well. Springfield closes its regular season this Saturday at home against West Orange.

Hardwick is seeking Dems' help

Assembly Republican Leader Chuck Hardwick has called for Democratic support on a number of Assembly Republican-sponsored initiatives supported by Gov. Tom Kean in his State of State Message.

"The Democratic leadership says it agrees with the major proposals made by the governor, and now I am challenging them to move the legislation which would put these proposals into action," Hardwick said in a recent press conference.

Hardwick pointed to several Republican-sponsored bills, which the governor supports, including:

- the environmental trust bank to help build resource recovery plants, sewer treatment plants, and clean up hazardous waste;
- returning a total of $90 million of the state's budget surplus to homeowners and tenants in the form of an additional homestead rebate and tenant credit;
- reforming civil service for a less costly and more efficient government;
- placing a moratorium on the building of housing mandated by the Mount Laurel II court ruling so a solution that benefits all can be found;

- closing loopholes for criminals with the so-called "exclusionary rule" that would "keep criminals from being set free because of minor technical errors in arrest procedures;" and,
- establishing "Initiative and Referendum," which would permit voters to initiate meaningful reforms through ballot questions.

"What's at stake here is the quality of life in New Jersey, no less," said Hardwick. "What's more, with the exception of the environmental trust bank, none of these bills require any additional taxes," he said.

"These are not special interest bills, but significant reforms that the public is entitled to, and I hope the Democrats find the courage to support them," Hardwick said.

Hardwick said that he wants the voters to "be aware of what's at stake" and unless the Democrats (who hold a majority in the Assembly) support the bills, the governor's proposals to "restore a sense of pride" in New Jersey will not be satisfied.

UNION COUNTY ARTS CENTER
RESTORATION IN PROGRESS
738-7769

By PHILIP HARTMAN

She's a matron who has borne many children: those who remember the first "talkie" movies; the old-timers who guffawed with the slapstick craziness of Vaudeville; 1950's housewives who received free dinnerware and a show to boot at weekly "Dishnights"; listeners to the sonorous blasts of the huge Wurlitzer organ.

The theater on Irving Street, Rahway, has borne many things and more to nearly six decades of life goes from Union County and beyond. Throughout its history it has been at once unique and just as matter-of-factly average in its decline, coinciding with the demise of many Vaudeville theaters of its era, partly the victims of television and the changing times.

Today, those same people who knew or have heard of the theater's past — her children, so to speak — are raising the aching joints, putting structural implants where needed, scraping off the surface and replacing it with a new fresh makeup.

Rahway Landmarks Inc., an original band of nine people, now numbering in the hundreds, has, since January 1979, been raising funds as a non-profit group to restore the theater to its lost, but not forgotten, grandeur. Much of the early fund-raising went simply toward purchase of the old presentation house, the title of which was formally purchased and turned over to Rahway Landmarks on Sept. 11, 1984.

With the restoration now well under way, Rahway Landmarks members believe the theater can once again prosper — this time as an historical landmark and as the official Union County Arts Center, open to civic groups, recitals, concerts and the like.

But this restoration has been slow. "It's got to be done in stages, really, unless you've got an angel whose willing to give a million dollars," declares Daniel Costigan, one of the nine original founders of Rahway Landmarks and its publicity director.

At this point, refurbishment is going on only in the theater's lobby, which could open as early as next month for additional fund-raising events to fuel the completion of the larger, much costlier auditorium, Costigan says.

Opened in 1928, the Rahway Theater shows the good and bad of its age.

In spots, the plaster is cracked, fabric on the seats is faded, it's dusty and dank smelling.

However, belying its modest brick exterior, it's still a sight to see from the inside.

As one passerby outside the theater described its heyday, "You had a feeling you were coming to a theater just a step down from Radio City."

Larger than one would expect, the 1,440-seat auditorium could be called grandiose. In fact, it's cavernous, with several sweeping tiers of seats, including a balcony, and a large circular gridwork punctuating the ceiling some 45 feet above the floor. At the middle of this gridwork, the crystal chandelier once hung, suspended by a thick cable that lowered the ornament to the floor where its dozens of glass bulbs could be changed. (Having become unsafe with age and a nuisance to maintain, the chandelier was removed shortly after World War II.)

Many of the seats are the originals. In the balcony, the original aisle standards remain, complete with a large R on their sides, signifying, of course, Rahway. The R could also stand for red, the dominant, although now faded, color inside. Heavy red curtains drape from both sides on the auditorium walls, hiding the tangle of organ pipes from the Wurlitzer. The drapes also run along the top front of the stage.

Nearly everywhere, ornate plaster relief decorates the walls and ceiling. If examined closely, literally dozens of different figurines and shapes can be seen. Recent photographs reveal that under the dust, the relief is colored by various subtle and pinkish hues.

Up and behind the hall, the theater's movie room still holds the original projectors that showed some of the first talking movies and later, in the 1970's, adult films. "The previous owner leased to a firm in New York City to show X-rated movies, exclusively. Through a legal technicality, they (the town) were able to close the operating license. Needless to say, the town was up-in arms," explains Costigan.

Behind the projector room are the large fans, where during construction in 1927 a tragedy occurred when a worker was drawn into the blades and killed.

Five dressing rooms are located to the right side of the stage, beneath which is a room "large enough for rehearsals," Costigan says.

To get most places in the theater, especially its upper reaches, one must climb up and through a maze of passageways molded of concrete. The theater's poured concrete and steel construction — which once prompted the advertisement, "Rahway's only Fireproof Theatre" — makes the structure sound, says Costigan.

"The theater is all poured concrete. The only wooden part of the whole building is the stage," Costigan notes.

In the lobby, bar relief, known technically as frieze, forming an ornamental band around the room, is being restored by Conrad Schmidt Studios, New Berlin, Wisconsin, a company specializing in such restorations. This restoration requires exactitude: wax impressions of the old bar relief must be pressed to make new tiles.

Decorative costs in the restoration alone could cost $345,000, including walls, ceilings, all paint and gold leafing. That figure will not provide for new seats, plumbing, carpeting, electrical work and new lighting, and final costs will run significantly more, says Costigan.

Thus far the rehabilitation, except where specialists are required, has been completed by Rahway Landmarks volunteers, says Sandra Sweeney, president of Rahway Landmarks. Some items, like a temporary furnace that is being used to dry new plaster, have been donated "at cost," Costigan adds.

Throughout, attention to detail is primary.

"We're going to restore it primarily as it was," says Costigan, adding that a special place also will be afforded for the theater's memorabilia, such as those pieces of "Pink Pine Dinnerware" used as a publicity stunt to draw people in the '50s and early '60s.

"It's one of the last examples in this geographic area of a past era," says Costigan.

But for all this to come to pass, he adds, "We have to keep raising money as we go along. That never ends. We've got a lot of expenses, and right now the expenses are exceeding the income."

Benefits on tap for heart, lung units

Arthur Murray Dance Studios are sponsoring a "Lung Power" Dance-A-Thon Saturday, March 23, for the benefit of the American Lung Association of New Jersey from 7 to Contestants will register sponsors who will back them with pledges based on the number of hours they dance in the contest. All contestants will have sponsor forms on which sponsors can indicate their pledges. All contributions are tax-deductible.

The three dancers who return the highest dollar totals in pledge donations will share a $300 prize and each will receive Dance-A-Thon trophies.

In addition, contestants can also compete for other prizes.

Every contestant who returns more than $200 in pledge donations will have his name entered in a contest for a "trip for two" weekend in Atlantic City.

Rebecca's forecast

For week of March 14 through 21

ARIES (3/21-4/20) Be careful of the toes you step on during this period; others may be unusually sensitive now. Money headaches continue for all to some degree, and romance is so-so. Later, friends come to the rescue; accept invitations; and hush-hush discussions could change the source of your income very soon.

TAURUS (4/21-5/21) You may take a hard stand on certain issues early in this week and woe to the one who tries to push you in another direction! Close alliances may generate some added tension. Later in this period, continue to build your long term security; advancements on the job are forthcoming; and learn to relax.

GEMINI (5/22-6/21) This is definitely a week to stick to the tried and true. Take no unnecessary risks and steer clear of odd or even dangerous circumstances. Issues at a distance need more control. Later, weed out unreliable friendships; follow your own hunches now as others may only confuse you or be misleading.

CANCER (6/22-7/23) The start of this period is likely to see a rift within an important alliance; you still continue to sever troublesome ties; and someone from the past once more enters your life. Later in this week, unexpected gains are likely if you have the courage to break with the past once and for all.

LEO (7/24-8/23) Health, career and dependants' interests are likely to be uppermost in your mind during this period. This is a good time to put the finishing touches on agreements that will boost your finances in months ahead. Later, you may feel the need to get away; indulge yourself if possible in a change of scenery.

VIRGO (8/24-9/23) Romantic, creative or children's interests are so-so early in this week; avoid financial arguments and be more receptive to alternatives. Be extra careful in travel and don't allow in-laws to interfere or meddle. Later, siblings can promote your worry; and put off purchasing that new car for awhile.

LIBRA (9/24-10/23) Expect some important decisions in home, family or property interests during this week; agreements are difficult, though not impossible, to achieve. Later, don't allow pride to get the better of you; financial changes continue to be challenging; and important new cycles have their roots in this year.

SCORPIO (10/24-11/22) Messages or correspondence highlight the early part of this period and boost your spirits as well. Local travel is on the agenda; expect an extra errand or two. Later, domestic squabbles are indicated; clandestine involvements may tempt many in month ahead; and new interests begin to surface.

SAGITTARIUS (11/23-12/21) The financial theme dominates the start of this busy week and seeing eye to eye with another may be difficult. Tax or insurance may assume importance. Later, expect to be on the go. Others may not take too kindly to your present schedule. You can make inroads to your longterm domestic security.

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/20) Be careful to avoid an overbearing attitude early in this period, especially were personal or financial matters are concerned. Learn to keep quiet about future plans. Later, good news is on the horizon with only minor details to be resolved; important approvals are on the agenda. Use your mind!

AQUARIUS (1/21-2/19) This is sure to be a banner week for many in career related matters. Travel plans to include a special someone are sure to be on the agenda; property matters are auspicious; and keep financial discussions under control. You almost can't make a wrong decision in the coming year; confidence soars.

PISCES (2/20-3/20) Expect one change after another during this week; plans are simply unreliable and people even more so. Later, personal or private troubles may escalate and your best bet is to try to clear up old or lingering matters once and for all. Be careful of making erroneous financial commitments.

FAMILY MEMBERS Muffin, left and her 12-week-old puppy Teddy, were rescued by Union residents Elaine Kolan and Lenore Cotler recently after local residents, concerned for the safety of the animals, contacted the Unionites. With help from Carol Hilton of People for Animals Inc., Muffin and Teddy were taken to a local veterinarian where they received medical exams and vaccinations. Because the dogs have a strong emotional attachment to each other, Cotler and Kolan hope they can be adopted together. Anyone interested in giving them a home should call 964-3774 or 687-7289.

Band seeking top students

The search is on for the top high school musicians in New Jersey.

This is the 19th year that McDonald's Corporation is recognizing 104 of America's finest young musicians who will represent their states in the 1985 McDonald's All-American High School Band. Area high school band directors have been asked to nominate their two most-talented musicians to the All-American Band, which will perform in some of this country's most famous parades, including the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade in New York City; the Fiesta Bowl Parade in Phoenix, Arizona and the Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena, California.

Each year, high school band directors throughout the U.S., Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico are invited to nominate their outstanding students to the All-American Band. Official nomination forms have been mailed to 25,000 band directors, and the nomination period is March 15-April 30.

'Round 1' makes debut

By MILTHAMMER

Pick Of The LPs, Two "goodies" on the Capitol label for your listening pleasure.

Sawyer Brown cements success as best New Star Musical Group of 1984 for the nationally televised "Star Search" competition with a debut album, "Round 1."

The five-man group has been seen and heard by millions, broadening its initial "Star Search" exposure with appearances on such shows as "Good Morning America," "Entertainment Tonight" and "Hee Haw," among others.

A refreshing blend of pop and country, Sawyer Brown combines musical expertise with an energetic stage persona that make the members one of the most visually recognizable new country artists today. A playdate at New York's Carnegie Hall in the spring of 1984 sold out in less than four days, kicking off a national tour in which they performed with such luminaries as George Jones, The Oak Ridge Boys, Tammy Wynette and Jerry Reed.

This year will see them embarking on a major concert tour with superstars Kenny Rogers and Crystal Gayle. Included on this album is the already released single "Leona," which is currently making its way up the Top 20 with a bullet on the country charts. The follow-up single will be the energetic "Step That Step." All in all, "Round 1," produced by Randy Scruggs, makes for a delightful 10-song package that guarantees cross-over listening and one good time.

The songs are (side one) "Leona," "Feel Like Me," "Used to Blue," "It's Hard to Keep a Good Love Down" and "Step That Step; (side two) "Smokin' in the Rockies," "Staying Afloat," "Broken Candy," "The Sun Don't Shine on the Same Folks All the Time," and "Going Back to Indiana".

Poet-composer-musician Frank Mills, a native of Canada who gained international success through his single, "Music Box Dancer," now releases an LP of the same name on Capitol Records.

The title track, a self-penned achievement that became a hit in 26 countries, garnered him an award by Broadcast Music Inc., commemorating one-million logged performances (50,000 hours) of the single in the United States. Along with the title track, the LP contains 12 original cuts written, composed and arranged by Mills. Making his public debut as pianist with the group, The Bells, Mills has subsequently earned hits with such songs as "Stay Alive" and "Fly Little White Dove Fly."

He has received a Grammy nomination and is a three-time Juno Award winner, twice for instrumentalist of the year and once for composer of the year for "Peter Piper."
