Museum artist intimates life in his paintings

By Teresa Sokol

For Alejandro Anreus, art is life and life has been pretty good lately.

The 26-year-old Cuban-born Elizabeth resident enjoys the best of both worlds of his vocation. A research associate at the Montclair Art Museum, he is a working painter who has already received some critical and commercial success. He also writes a bi-monthly column on the visual arts for La Voz of Elizabeth.

And to top it all off, Anreus has just been awarded a $7,500 fellowship from the Oscar B. Cintas Foundation, which provides financial assistance to artists of Cuban birth or heritage.

Anreus works in all the media, producing vividly — sometimes harshly — emotional canvases that, even to the artist, are constantly changing in meaning. Critics have described his work as neo-figurative or expressionist.

"I started out being motivated by grand themes," Anreus says, creating "art that reflected social problems."

Gradually his focus shifted. His interest now is in conveying everyday perceptions and the role that memory plays in those perceptions.

"For me, memory is very important because I came here (to the United States) when I was 10 years old," Anreus says. "I have a whole life I left behind in Cuba and I can only maintain contact with it through memory."

A painting in acrylics titled "My Grandfather is Remembered," painted early this year, is lush with a tropical background of jutting palm trees, verdantly green hills and a mystically deep blue sky. The grandfather figure in the foreground is solid, but with face obscured in shadow.

"I'm haunted by his image," Anreus says.

His memories of Cuba translate beyond the palm trees and the greenery of the tropics. Anreus tries to capture "the slow and meditative pace...of what it's like to be there."

The painter tackles day-to-

day themes and dreams as in the just-completed "The Fading Memory of Desire," an eerily dark and light study of an encounter between a man and a woman. "He is about to touch her, but I think she'll stop him," Anreus says. "The problem with this painting is I don't know if she is really there or is a figment of his imagination."

Anreus began studying art at age 13 and credits his high school art teacher, Michael Tagliaferro, with clinching his desire to undertake painting and art as a profession.

"He turned me around from a kid with basic talent to someone who wanted it (art) as a vocation," Anreus says. Tagliaferro, who lives in Glen Ridge, still teaches in Elizabeth High School.

Anreus joined the Art Students League in high school, studying with distinguished artists Isaac Soyer and Anthony Palumbo. He also studied printmaking in Mexico with Jose Luis Cuevas.

At Kean College in Union he majored in art history because "I didn't have any clear ideas of what an artist is or his role in society. Not to mention it's how I make my living," he grins.

Anreus gained a perspective on history and on the art that is produced by history through Professor Alan Wallach, now a Smithsonian fellow. "The artist is not locked in an ivory tower," he says. "But neither can he be a mere propagandist. The way lies somehow in the middle, with plenty of contradictions."

Quoting Camus, Anreus remarks that the artist is "solitary and solidary...and that's pretty much how I feel about my role."

Anreus has been painting professionally since he was 18 and had been awarded the Cintas fellowship once before — a rare occurrence — in 1979. It takes him several weeks to conceive and complete a painting.

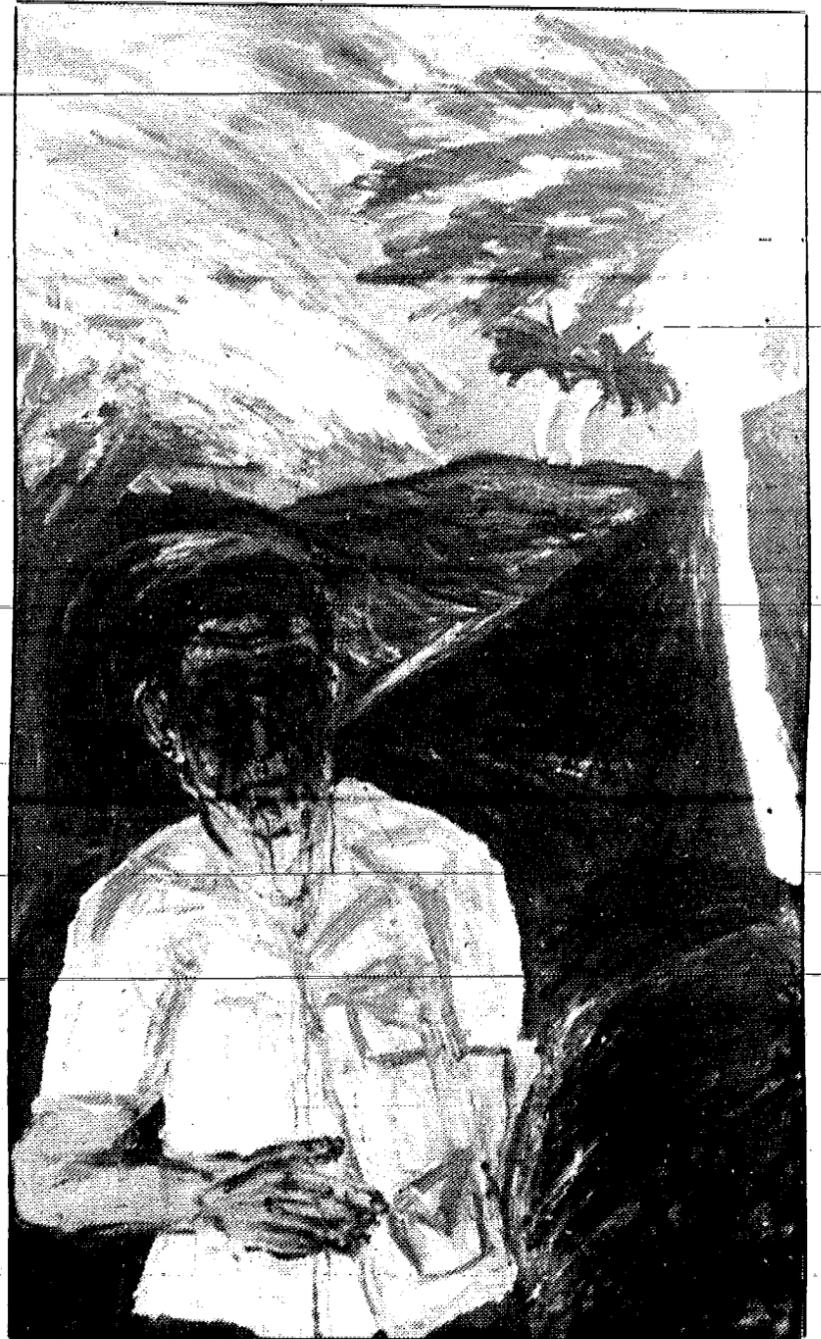

He uses a traditional approach, making "doodles" and eventually singling out one for a preparatory drawing. "Then I put all that stuff away and hit the canvas," working from life, photographs and memory.

The painter has enjoyed some commercial success, especially in Michigan, where he is represented by a gallery. His work is part of the collection of the Detroit Institute of Art there. Exhibits in Miami and Puerto Rico have also been successful, while one-man shows in Morristown and at Rutgers in New Brunswick have been critically acclaimed.

Anreus is married to art critic Debbie Blehart. "She is much more literary than I am," he says, explaining that she helps him title much of his work. The couple has a 6-year-old son.

The Cintas grant will be spent partly on supplies. "My easel is shot," Anreus says.

But mostly it will allow him to realize an artist's dream of studying and working in Florence next summer, during his vacation from the museum. Currently his work as the curator's assistant involves helping plan exhibits by researching the background of paintings and artists, putting together the curatorial files and compiling a checklist of the museum's inventory.

He has no desire to give up research, which adds another dimension to his life and art, to devote himself full time to painting.

"Painting is a pretty solitary thing to do. If I did it full time, it would probably drain the hell out of me," he says.

Anreus wants to continue his work at the museum, but another dream is to teach art at the public school level — to inspire some youngster as he was inspired by Tagliaferro.

"I like the idea of tradition to a degree," the artist says with a smile. "I would like to continue the ways of my old high school."

UCC in conference

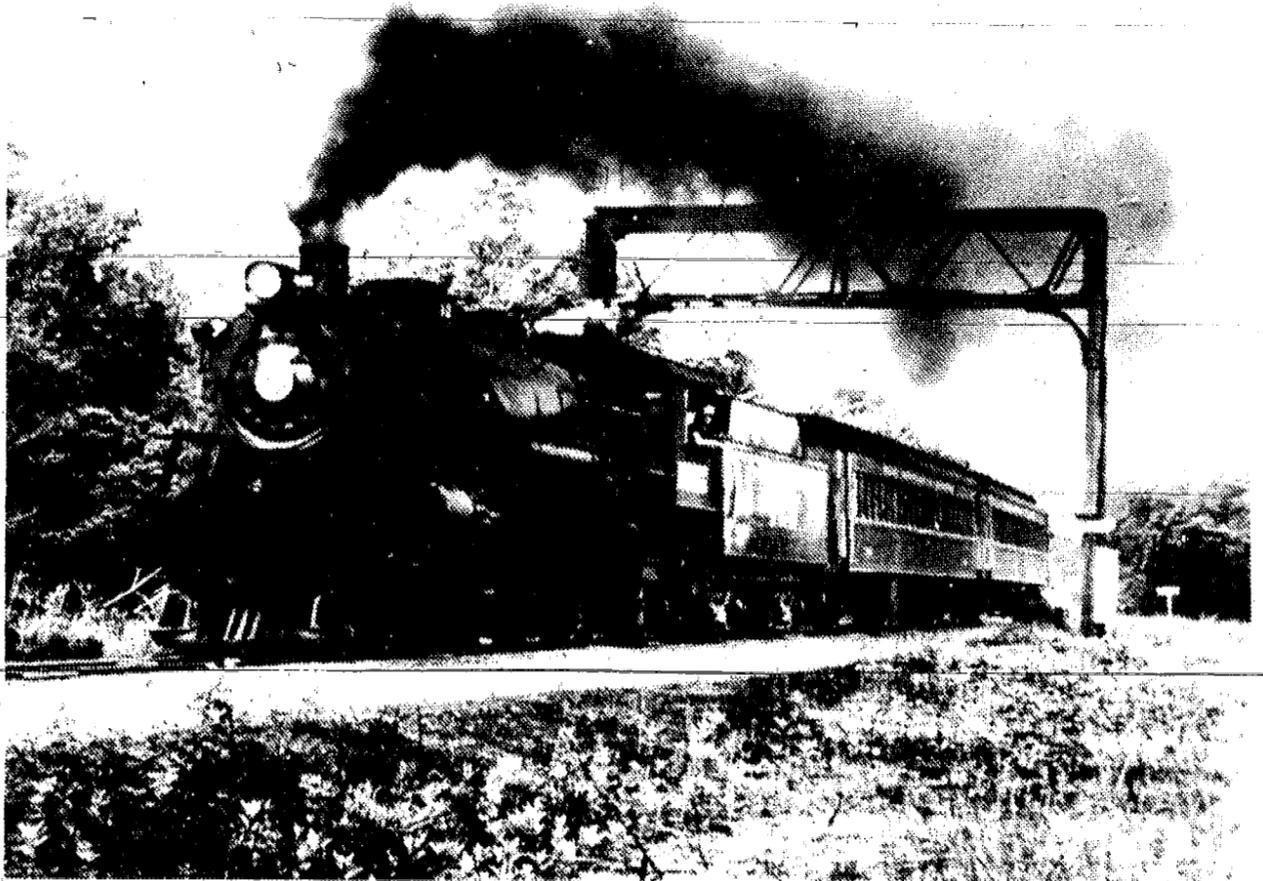

Union County College will be one of 20 participants in a national video teleconference sponsored by the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges Tuesday from 1 to 3 p.m., it was announced by Dr. Derek N. Nunney, UCC president.

All Union County area secondary school principals, guidance counselors, teachers and PTA members are invited to attend the two-way audio, one-way video broadcast entitled, "Community College Partnerships: The High School-Community College Connection." The focus will be on strengthening high school and community college partnerships and enhancing curriculum coordination efforts.

Featured in the program will be case study presentations by colleges and high schools with successful partnership programs in rural, urban and suburban communities; interactive call-in opportunities to exchange views with program panels; video clips from participating colleges and video greetings from distinguished community alumni. A roundtable discussion will conclude the program.

Highlights include distinguished national leaders Gerald L. Baliles, governor of Virginia; Ernest Boyer, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching; Madeleine Hemmings, executive director, West Virginia Roundtable; R. Jan LeCroy, chancellor, Dallas County Community College District; Dale Parnell, president of AACJC; Sen. Paul Simon of Illinois; Joshua L. Smith, chancellor of California Community Colleges, and Scott Thomson, executive director, National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Rebecca's forecast

For week of Sept. 25 through Oct. 2

ARIES (3/21-4/20) There's no use crying over spilled milk early this week. Many will find the lessons learned in recent months will stay with them for a long time. Later, insecurities fuel arguments. Sex or related issues assume importance for some and deep psychological probing is indicated in the months ahead.

TAURUS (4/21-5/21) The coming week suggests you be extra careful in travel, communications and daily dealings as mishaps in any of these areas are possible. Later, although there may be more to do, you are able to accomplish more than in recent months, health improves and you begin to feel more optimistic again.

GEMINI (5/22-6/21) You may consider changing your tactics before this week is over. Tone down bullish behavior and you will see results much faster; tact and diplomacy are key words. Later, the turning point in domestic, career or daily matters is reached, the strain of recent months recedes and new avenues open.

CANCER (6/22-7/23) Rumbles on the work front continue to be felt by many during this week. New directions may be thwarted and tried and true methods work best for now. Later, others refuse to be pinned down. Family members offer sound advice and clear up lingering health concerns once and for all.

LEO (7/24-8/23) This may be a hectic period for many. Luck attends travel and long-awaited news finally arrives. Later, you are able to organize your time better. Medical checkups are scheduled and improvements are on the agenda on the home front. Money interests continue to improve for many.

VIRGO (8/24-9/23) Be sure you can handle the additional demands that expanding opportunities will present, and keep in mind that another's cooperation is essential. Later, discussions help to iron out difficulties. Phone calls from family keep you up to date and happy celebrations complete this week for most.

LIBRA (9/24-10/23) This promises to be a rewarding period for many. Seize the opportunities that surface now and concentrate on you for a change. Later, you spruce up your image, fine tune the daily workings of your life and begin to reap overdue rewards in several areas of your life. Stick to your own plans.

SCORPIO (10/24-11/22) You may feel as though you're spinning your wheels early this week. Foul-ups are indicated and a change of course may be considered. Later, legal, educational or artistic matters draw your interest, finances continue to fluctuate and quiet time alone helps to restore your own inner balance.

SAGITTARIUS (11/23-12/21) Avoid impulsive decisions in money matters. Others may fool you as easily as you fool yourself during this week. Domestic and property matters continue to be of importance for many and be alert to goings-on with children. Later, you may be forced to see things in a new light.

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/20) Be forewarned that although you may expend tremendous efforts now, a disappointment or two may be lurking in the background. Elders or those in authority should not be counted upon at this time. Later, new friendships and group affiliations are indicated.

AQUARIUS (1/21-2/19) Your restless energies provoke conflicts easily all during this period. It's best to postpone new starts until you are more sure of what you really want. Later, control emotional outbursts. Personal and professional relationships are strained and the health of elders may be a real concern.

PISCES (2/20-3/20) This is a time when you must be conservative in financial matters. You may have dealings with tax, insurance, pension or estate papers and people, places or interests at a distance will assume importance for many. Later changes in residence or living arrangements may touch the lives of some.

ALL ABOARD—This 1928 Blue Mountain and Reading Railroad steam locomotive and 10 refurbished passenger cars will provide rail trips for visitors to the Hoboken Terminal Festival Saturday rain or shine, at the historic Hoboken Terminal at One Hudson Place from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. The highlight of this year's festival will be special steam train rides on a 10-car train powered by an authentic 1928 Blue Mountain & Reading Railroad steam locomotive. The steam train will make four one-hour round-trips Saturday, departing Hoboken Terminal at 8:30 a.m., 10:15 a.m., noon, and 1:45 p.m. Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for children 11 years of age and under. The train will be on display at Track 16 from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. for festival patrons to view, board and photograph. Souvenir steam train items will be available. On Sunday N.J. Transit will present a 'Back to the Future' steam excursion for rail fans, departing Hoboken Terminal at 11 a.m. for Dover. Tickets are $20 for adults and $10 for children 11 years of age and under. Tickets for all steam train trips are on sale at Hoboken Terminal and Newark Penn Station.

Ask the teacher

Parents should stay involved

by Beth Giordano and Fran Sullivan

Q. My daughter just started kindergarten. I started out having a nice conversation with her each day about what she did at school, but too often I find I'm just so tired I can't spend time asking her questions. I work full time. By the time I get home, cook dinner and clean up, it's time for her to go to bed. Forget my husband. He watches the news and puts her to bed if I ask him. I want her to excel in school, but is it really harming her if I don't make a big fuss every day? I think teachers should be the ones to motivate students — they don't do enough of that.

Lynn, Roselle Park

A. Spare the teachers. We sometimes think if the world collapsed tomorrow, teachers somehow would get a piece of the blame. Recently, two psychologists from the University of Rochester printed the results of a study which asked the questions, "Are some child-rearing methods better than others if parents want their children to do well in school?" The findings include the following quote: "Children doing well in school had parents we would call 'involved.' More than many couples, these mothers and fathers showed interest in things that are going on in their child's life be talking with them everyday about school, about homework or their youngster's other interests. They enjoyed spending time with the child."

Let us know how you're doing.

Q. Do you have any suggestions on how to convince one's brother to finish college? I am 15 years older than my 21-year-old brother and have received both B.A. and M.A. degrees. I'm a firm believer in education. My brother seems to have no interest. He attended Union College for about a year and a half and ever since high school he's worked in a restaurant as a waiter. How can I make him see it's important today to have a degree?

Mrs. B.H., Plainfield

A. Tough question. First of all, you can't make him see the reasons why. He has to see them on his own. And this may be difficult because a great many non-graduates today are extremely successful people. It makes no sense to harp on him to obtain a degree when it sounds right now like it's the furthest thing from his mind. While your concern is valid, give it some thought. Was your brother an interested student? How were his marks? Did he ever talk about events connected with school? Higher education is not for everyone.

Talk to him about life, goals, values and ambitions. Let him know you are interested in his life success, not the degree.

Parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles and anyone interested in what goes on in the world of education: Got a question? Write to us at ASK THE TEACHER, P.O. Box 1570, Cranford, N.J. 07016.

Arthritis speakers offered

In Union County, the New Jersey Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation has been providing speakers to community groups, business organizations and senior citizen clubs. Lorraine Kowalski of Elizabeth is one of an active trained committee of volunteer speakers who talk on "Arthritis — Facts and Fiction." Her presentation includes an educational summary of the disease, the symptoms, ways to better cope with arthritis, and an explanation of the dangers of unproven remedies. As a public health educator for Visiting Nurse and Health Services in Union County, Kowalski "is able to give her audiences a comprehensive picture of the disease that cripples more Americans than any other health problem." Most people don't take arthritis seriously enough. Any community group that wants up-to-date information on arthritis should call the Arthritis Foundation for a free speaker. Learn more about how to recognize the warning signs, current treatments and research and programs and services available from the Arthritis Foundation. There is a new slide presentation, "People With Arthritis...and People Who Help."

To reserve a speaker for a meeting, organizations can call the N.J. Chapter at 388-0744 or write to the Arthritis Foundation, N.J. Chapter, 15 Prospect Lane, Colonia, N.J., 07067.

Mill's 'Yankees' give winning performance

By BEA SMITH

"Damn Yankees," another of the Paper Mill Playhouse's lavish musical productions, starring the inimitable Orson Bean, appropriately opened the season last week in Millburn as baseball juices were still running hot in the veins of fans. And this special production, directed by 99-year-old George Abbott, who collaborated on the book with Douglass Wallop back in 1955, with words and music by Richard Adler and Jerry Ross, amazingly still stands up to the times more than 31 years later.

lengths to undo young Joe's respectability and his need to beat the Yankees. And so does a curiously vicious reporter played by Susan Elizabeth Scott.

And while all of the plots and subplots are happening, something magical is happening on the Paper Mill stage. In addition to Bean, Reed, Gaines, Allison, Scott, Kenneth Kantor, Jayne Chamberlin, Doug Easley, Dirk Lumbard, Mary Stout, Kurt Ziskie and the rest of the performers in the huge cast are, with the assistance of the talented Jim Coleman, musical director,

Review

At show's end, one finds oneself doing a sing-a-long with the entire cast as all its members blast away at the tune, "You Gotta Have Heart." All the way up the aisle, to the parking lot, into one's car and the jammed up traffic before getting onto the street, one is happily shrieking, "You Gotta Have Heart."

The play is about the disheartened Washington Senators, who cannot seem to win a baseball game and would give anything to beat the New York Yankees. One over-enthusiastic fan, a middle-aged real estate agent named Joe Boyd, played by Don Wonder, exclaims loudly that he would give his soul if the Senators could beat "those damn Yankees!"

Enter — the Devil — in the form of Mr. Applegate, indiscriminately played by Bean, who takes Joe at his word, and following a fierce bargaining bout, manages to accept a clause in the agreement. The Devil turns middle-aged Joe into a young, exceptionally talented ball player called Joe Hardy, played by Davis Gaines, who takes the baseball world by surprise and puts the Washington Senators back on the map.

The only problem is that deep in his heart, Joe misses his middle-aged wife, his "old girl," Patti Allison, and finds himself frequently on her doorstep and eventually as her boarder as she herself mourns the disappearance of her husband, her "old boy, Joe."

Enter — the Devil's seductive disciple, red-headed Lola, sexily played by Alyson Reed, who attempts to seduce young Joe, as she curls herself around him like a serpent, a la Rita Hayworth, and lets him know in no uncertain terms that "Whatever Lola Wants, Lola Gets."

Mr. Applegate goes to undue belting out wonderfully appealing and heartening Adler-Ross tunes. Among the toe-tapping tunes are "Six Months Out of Every Year," "Goodby Old Girl," "Shoeless Joe From Hannibal, Mo.," "A Man Doesn't Know," "A Little Brains, A Little Talent," "Who's Got the Pain?," "The Game," "Near to You," "The Good Old Days" and "Two Lost Souls."

Bean, a truly polished professional, whose versatility is his trademark, is absolutely superb as Mr. Applegate. He handles magic tricks with ease, such as making a lighted cigarette appear and disappear, and he can hold his own in the musical numbers with his smooth, appealing voice. Bean also is sufficiently menacing as the Devil, himself.

The cast, as in all Paper Mill casts, is exceptionally good. Particularly enchanting are the near-operatic voices of Gaines, Reed, Allison, Kantor, Scott and Wonder.

And as always, competing for stardom with the best of them are the marvelous Robert Johanson, artistic director, and Michael Anania, scenic designer. The background scenes are unique in their realism. When a theater-goer thinks that a background scene such as the dugout and part of the stadium is the greatest, along comes a scene of Applegate's apartment in deep reds and blacks, a promising view of Hell, or a night club of Hell. The three-dimensional backdrops also are exceptionally impressive.

"Damn Yankees" is a wonderful season's opener. And one doesn't have to be a baseball fan to enjoy the show. If one wants a little fun, a lot of music, a boisterous story to go with it, and an extraordinarily talented cast, the Paper Mill will offer its audiences plenty of "heart."

Harvest fest slated Sunday

Celebrate early American life at Trailside Nature and Science Center's sixth annual Harvest Festival, rain or shine on Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. Admission is free!

The Westfield Five and Drum Corps will perform at 2 p.m. and 3 p.m.

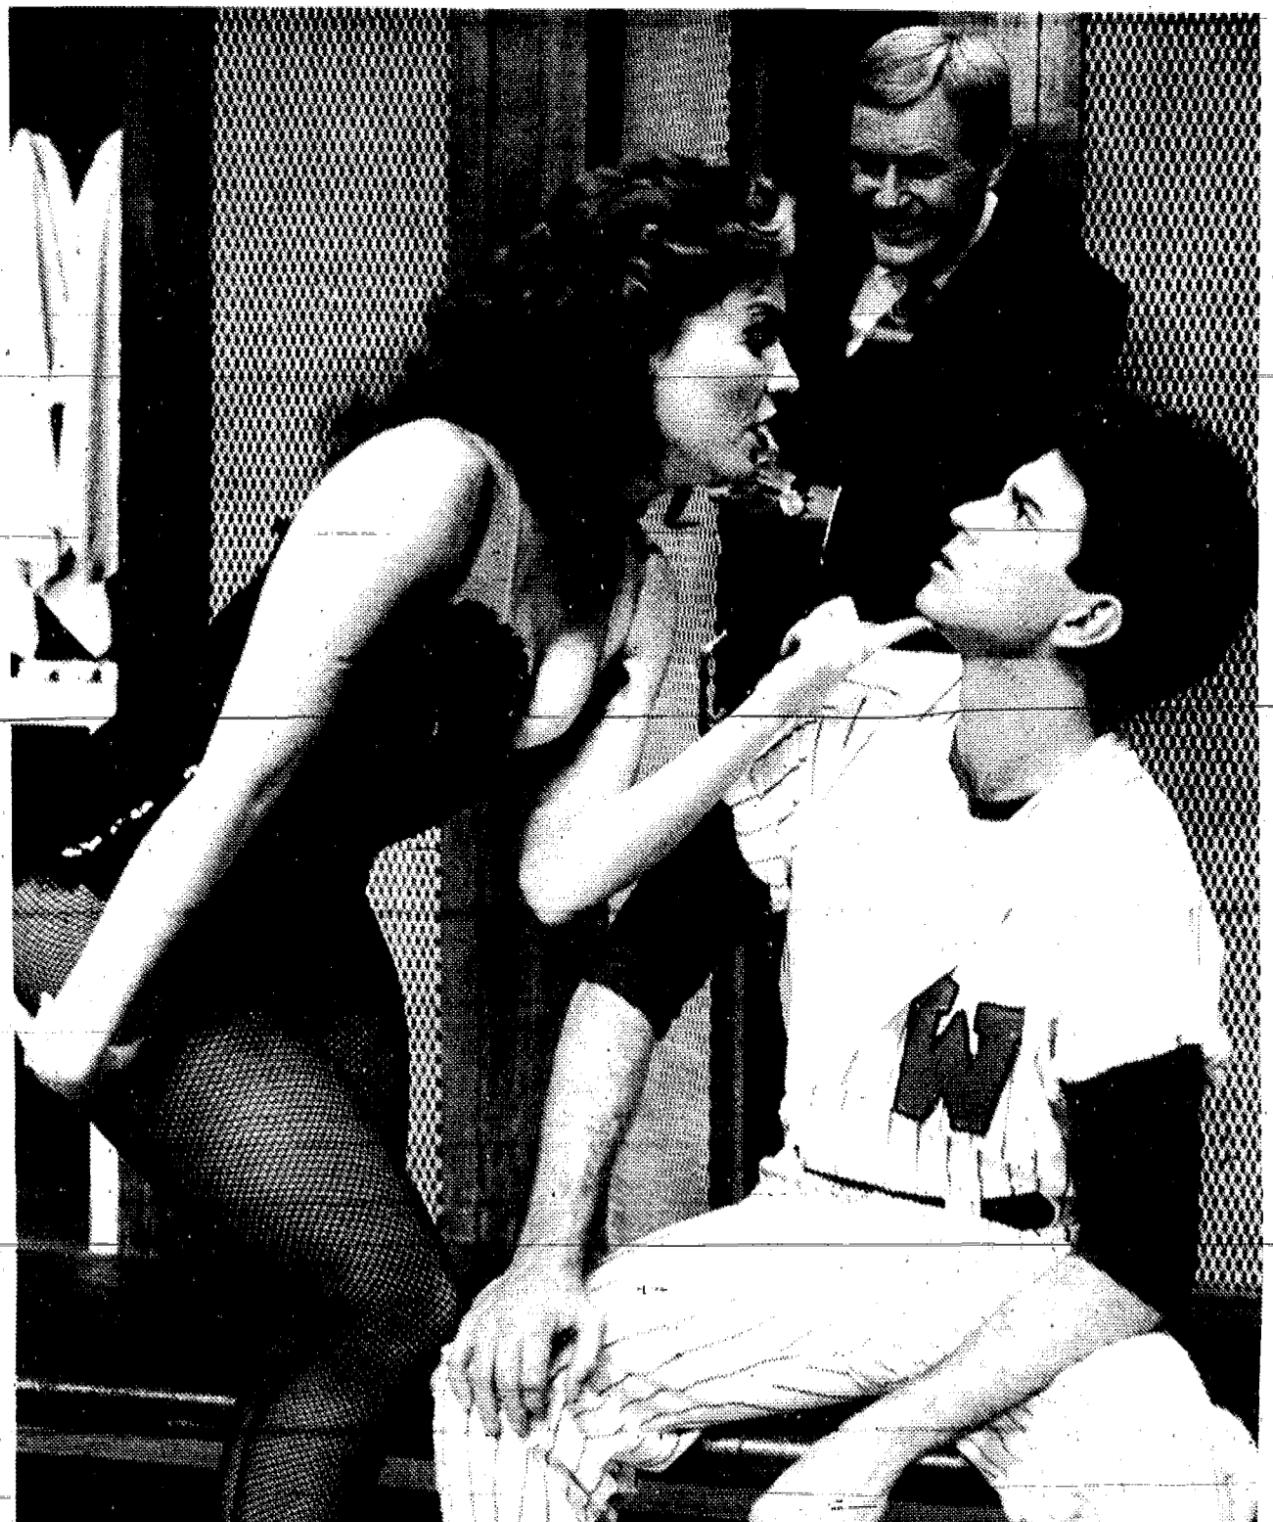

There will be demonstrations of native American and Colonial crafts including apple doll-making, beadwork, beekeeping, blacksmithing, quilling, cider-making, quilting, spinning and tole painting, plus butter churning and basket-making.

The Harvest Festival also will feature workshops for children to be offered every half hour. Choices include making bear claw necklaces, nature pins, or jumping jacks. Children also are invited to try candle-dipping and wheat-weaving.

There will be some craft items for sale, as well as doughnuts, honey, pumpkins, fresh produce and herb bouquets. Freshly pressed apple cider and other natural foods also will be available.

More information is available by calling Trailside, 232-5930. Trailside Nature and Science Center is a Union County Department of Parks and Recreation facility located on Coles Avenue and New Providence Road in Mountainside.

'AND LOLA WANTS YOU'—Alyson Reed, who plays the seductive Lola in 'Damn Yankees' at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, tries to seduce young Davis Gaines with the song, 'Whatever Lola Wants' as the delighted devil, played by Orson Bean, looks on. The show will run through Oct. 26.

Displays, entertainment at festival

A collection of cultural displays and entertainment plus an international cuisine will highlight the International Festival co-sponsored by Union County College and the County of Union on Oct. 2 at Liberty State Park, Jersey City.

The festival has been designed to celebrate Miss Liberty's 100th anniversary and the history of Ellis Island while focusing on the county's ethnic heritage, according to Linda Leifer of Cranford, UCC executive director of development and alumni affairs.

The evening's festivities will begin at 6 o'clock with a get-acquainted hour featuring wine and cheese and hors d'oeuvres, strolling entertainment, including an organ grinder, an accordion player and a mime performer. A March of Flags will be conducted by UCC students in national costumes carrying flags of Union County, the U.S.A. and flags of other countries.

Following the invocation by Dr. Robert W. Scott, pastor of the Third Westminster Church, Elizabeth, the salute to the flag will be led by Col. Henry Pryor of Cranford, director of the college's Educational Opportunity Fund program. Lisa Gwyn, a student at the Westminster Choir College, will sing the national anthem.

Sidney F. Lessner, chairman of the college's board of trustees, and Paul J. O'Keefe, chairman, Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders, will welcome the guests. Dignitaries will be introduced by Thomas Gallagher, chairman, UCC Board of Governors.

Chamber music by Lafayette Trio of Westfield will be provided during the buffet dinner from 7:30 to 8:45. The "international" menu will feature favorite foods from Mexico, Italy, France, China, Spain, Greece, Czechoslovakia and America.

After dinner speakers will be Dr. Derek N. Nunney, UCC president, and County Manager Donald Anderson.

The musical program will consist of songs by Gershwin and Negro spirituals as well as folk songs performed by Ed Pierson and Evelyn Bleeke.

Concluding the festival program will be a sing-along accompanied by a series of slides highlighting ethnic groups in Union County.

Various displays will be set up for viewing throughout the evening. A display entitled "American Immigration History through Family Photographs and Oral Interviews" is a compilation of photos of women immigrants and their families which, together with a synopsis of their life stories, make up a photohistory and slide show.

A second display, "Foods of the New and the Old Immigration," consists of photos contrasting German, Italian, Polish Portuguese and Russian foods with those of the immigrants from Korea, Japan, the Philippines, India, Cuba and the Dominican Republic and other parts of Latin America.

A third display will showcase crafts and artifacts from the 59 countries represented by the students attending the college's Institute for Intensive English.

Tickets for the International Festival are still available at $35 per person, which includes bus transportation to and from Liberty State Park. Buses will depart from UCC in Cranford, from UCC's Plainfield Center and from the County Administration Building, Elizabeth. Exact bus stop locations and departure times will be included with the tickets.

Further information can be obtained by calling 276-2600 ext. 409, 527-4900 or 233-7906.

MR. AND MRS. BUSSELL

Signorello-Bussell

Gina Marie Signorello, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Signorello of Sherwood Road, Union, was married recently to Bruce Bussell of West Webster Avenue, Roselle Park, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Bussell of Address Terrace, Union.

The wedding ceremonies were held in Holy Spirit Roman Catholic Church, Union, and the Pantagis Renaissance, Scotch Plains, where a reception followed. Rev. William Crum and Dr. Frederic Dworkin officiated.

Stork club

Emma Stein feted by Woman's Club

EMMA STEIN

Emma Stein, a member of the GFWC Woman's Club of Connecticut Farms, Union for 56 years, was honored recently at her home by the club's membership committee. Marion Mihalker, chairman, presented her with an "especially-designed pin signifying outstanding volunteer service to this community and to projects sponsored by the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Club." Mrs. Stein has served since 1930 in fund-raising programs and positions of leadership. She has been a past-president of the WCCF for 23 years.

The executive board of the club will meet at the home of Mrs. Theodore Johnson Monday at 8 p.m. Mrs. Joseph Cantalupo, president, will officiate. Co-hostesses will be Mrs. Joseph Fitzgerald and Mrs. Albert Leick. The art department members will start their craft projects at the home of Mrs. Rudolph Soell on Oct. 2 at 10 a.m.

THE SPRINGFIELD CHAPTER of Hadassah will meet tonight at 8 o'clock in Temple Beth Ahm, Springfield. Reporting will be fund-raising vice president, Phyllis Zlatin; Pearl Kaplan on a museum trip to be held Oct. 8; Janice Reisner on a harvest luncheon to be held Nov. 13, and Esther Hausner on tag week to be held Nov. 2 to Nov. 7. Frances Ostrofsky, program vice president, will present Rose Baum Senerchia, a coloratura soprano, who has sung at the Metropolitan Opera and Lincoln Center and has been commuting to Houston, Tex., to sing at the Houston Grand Opera. She will be accompanied by Gregory Buchalter, who will make his conducting debut at the Amato Opera. The public is invited.

Henrietta Lustig, president, who recently attended a Hadassah convention in Florida, has announced that "a scientific breakthrough that can save millions of lives of people affected each year with malaria has been developed by the Lautenberg Center for General and Tumor Immunology at Hadassah Medical School in Jerusalem. A by-product of the center's ongoing cancer research, the discovery provides a rapid, simple, sensitive immunological diagnostic test that identifies carriers of the disease."

THE AMICO (American Italian Cultural Organization) will hold a card party tomorrow in the American Legion Hall, Springfield. Refreshments will be served by the club members. The party is a fund-raising event to help support the orphans that the club sponsors in Italy. The club sponsor three children in the Arriano Orphanage. Tickets can be purchased by calling Helen Solla at 379-9517.

THE NEW JERSEY State Federation's Woman's Clubs of Mountainside, member of the General Federation of Woman's Clubs, will hold its annual garage sale Saturday in the Community Presbyterian Church, Meeting House Lane and Deer Path, Mountainside, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. There also will be a table of home baked cakes and cookies. Members and friends of the club are requested to donate saleable articles, household items, books, games, tools and clothing. Donations can be taken to the church tomorrow or the day of the sale.

Clubs in the news

The club will take a trip to Atlantic City Oct. 20 by bus to the Tropicana at 8:15 a.m. Further questions can be answered by calling Genevieve Gilmartin at 232-5181. The garage sale and trip to Atlantic City are both fund raising events.

THE CENTRAL JERSEY Region of Women's American ORT (Organization for Rehabilitation through Training), will participate in a champagne reception on Saturday at 8:30 p.m. to celebrate the 60th anniversary of Women's American ORT. The reception will be held by the officers of Women's American ORT, District III, which encompasses the entire state of New Jersey. The reception, which will be held at the J. Richards Gallery, 64 East Palisades Ave., Englewood, will feature artist SICA, who will be represented in the permanent collections of 17 museums and private institutions. Additional information can be obtained by calling 549-1155.

THE SPRINGFIELD Woman's Club will hold its first meeting of the season Wednesday at the Sarah Bailey Civic Center, Church Mall, Springfield. Guest speaker will be a volunteer from the Newark Museum. She will show slides and speak of "Old Newark." She is a former associate professor at Montclair State College, who holds the "Sixty Plus" television show for seniors. Refreshments will be served by the hospitality committee.

DEBORAH WILL KICK off its statewide fund raising campaign by asking New Jerseyans to designate October as Deborah Heart and Lung Center Month, it was announced. Thousands of Deborah Hospital Foundation member volunteers in local chapters will participate in the major mail campaign to reach out to the community as both an awareness program and fund raising effort. Contributions raised through this major program go to support the internationally known Deborah Heart and Lung Center in Browns Mills. The center specializes in the diagnosis, research and treatment of heart and lung diseases. In 1922, Deborah started out as a tuberculosis sanatorium changing over to heart and lung diseases in the 1950's "when antibiotics eradicated tuberculosis." Since its founding as a non-profit, non-sectarian hospital, patients have been provided treatment at no cost. "Deborah counts on the support of compassionate people everywhere to insure that there can be no price on life," said Michele Petrucci-Maw, director for the State of New Jersey. More information can be obtained by calling 800-223-0135.

THE SUNNYFIELD Social Club of Union will meet Oct. 2 at the Wilson Park Recreation Center, Summit Terrace, at 12:30 p.m. Dore Kessler from the Bell Telephone Co. will present a film showing the history of the Statue of Liberty's observance of its 100th anniversary.

Music is compiled

BUDDY HOLLY

By MILT HAMMER

Pick Of The LPs, "The Legend," by Buddy Holly (MCA Records).

"The Legend," MCA Record's two record set compiling Buddy Holly's 20 most famous songs, has been released in all three formats by MCA.

"This is the definitive 20 song collection," said compiler Steve Hoffman, who also re-mastered the tracks. "We searched out the original tapes, many of which had not been played since they were originally mastered. The more cobwebs I saw, the more I knew we were on to something. We chose his best, most famous songs, the ones that have made him a legend."

Holly died in a plane crash on Feb. 3, 1959, after an active recording career of just under two years. His influence and stature have grown continually ever since, and "The Legend" offers more than ample reason why with songs like "That'll Be The Day," "Not Fade Away" and "It's So Easy," and the emotional and musical succinctness of Holly's performances. He achieved a guileless perfection from the very beginning. "There's a purity about his work," observed Hoffman, "that has allowed it to continue to reach people through succeeding generations. He wrote and played and produced his songs with a cleanliness and simplicity that makes them timeless."

Eighteen of the 20 tracks were recorded in live mono on quarter inch tape, with overdubbing limited released in LP and cassette formats. The collection was released last year on Compact Disc, but proved impossible to manufacture fast enough to keep pace with demand.

The new release is newly mastered from the original master tapes cut by Holly when he was with Coral, Brunswick and Decca records, three labels acquired by MCA in the early 1960s. The Legend is the first catalog title to be to an occasional harmony vocal and guitar. These tapes were played back on a tube-amplified reel-to-reel tape recorder directly into a Sony digital machine with absolutely nothing added, no echo and certainly no false stereo. The remaining two tracks, "True Love Ways" and "It Doesn't Matter Anymore," were recorded in live stereo on three track 1/2 inch tape with a full orchestra and are collected here in their original stereo mix.

Concert to benefit animals

Johnny Dirt will present "Dirt-Animal Aid," a rock concert to benefit "People For Animals, Inc." Saturday at the Dirt Club in Bloomfield. Four original rock bands will be featured. They are Private Sector, Maximum America, Dug Luggage and the Smoking Section and Pharoah. Entertainment will begin at 9 p.m. "A contribution will be appreciated if one cannot attend," it was announced.

The purpose of the concert is to raise funds for People For Animals, Inc. The group "aids homeless, abandoned, and abused animals and also operates the Low Cost Spay-Neuter Clinic at 433 Hillside Ave., Hillside. The purpose of this clinic is to halt the explosive birth rate that leads to unwanted pets." Further information can be obtained by contacting the Dirt Club, Bloomfield, at 748-6474 or People For Animals at 374-1073.

A concert is slated

The Colonial Symphony will open its 36th season Oct. 2 at 8:30 p.m. at Madison Junior High School with a concert featuring the Juilliard String Quartet. It has been made possible by a grant from AT&T.

Maestro Paul Zukofsky will conduct Arnold Schoenberg's Concerto for String Quartet and Orchestra, with the "world famous Quartet" as soloists. Also in the program will be Beethoven's Symphony No. 6 in F Major, Opus 68 — the "Pastoral" Symphony.

The Quartet recently received the Arturo Toscanini Artistic Achievement Award, the first time that a chamber group was so honored, it was reported. Over the past 40 years the members of the Quartet have trained many of the musicians active in chamber music today. They have performed in every musical capital and major music festival.

All members of the Quartet are American born and trained. Robert Mann, spiritual mentor of the group, is the first violinist and the only member of the original Quartet. The other members are Joel Smirnoff, second violinist; Samuel Rhodes, violinist, and Joel Krosnick, cellist, who performed with the Colonial Symphony in March, 1983.

Preceding the concert, John Countroulis, president of the Colonial Symphony board of trustees, will give a lecture pertaining to the music of the evening. The free lecture will be held at 7:45 p.m. in the music room of the Junior School.

Other concerts will be held on Dec. 5, with the music of Bartok's Second Suite for Orchestra and Brahms' Symphony 4 in E Minor, Opus 98; on Feb. 6, 1987, when the Berg Chamber Concerto for Piano, Violin and Thirteen Winds and Dvorak's Serenade in D Minor, Opus 44 will be performed, and on April 10, when Richard Taub will be the soloist for Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 2 in C Minor and Stravinsky's Orpheus will be presented.

'1776' to be presented

The Union County Arts Center, 601 Irving St., Rahway, in association with Masque & Mime Theater Foundation, will present "1776" today tomorrow and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 3 p.m. Tickets can be purchased by calling 499-8226, Monday through Saturday, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and Thursday evenings from 5 to 8 p.m.

Don Perkins, known to New Jersey Shakespeare Festival audiences, will assume the role of the irascible John Adams, a role which he has played 1,774 times. In a special performance on Sept. 26, Perkins will celebrate the magic number "1776" performances. To recognize the event, there will be a Revolutionary Honor Guard outside the theater and a special ceremony. Starring with Perkins will be Sam Kressen, star of the National Company of "1776," as Ben Franklin. Kressen also is known as the official Ben Franklin for the City of Philadelphia.

Jazz, tap classes to be held by Guild

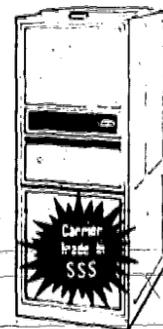

The New Jersey Dance Theatre Guild, 1057 Pierpont St., Rahway, will be host Oct. 5 to master classes in jazz and tap to be conducted by Charles Kelley of New York. Registration times are 9:30 a.m. to 10 a.m., jazz; 10 to 11:30 a.m., and tap, 11:45 a.m. to 1:15 p.m.

'Walk-throughs' satisfy home buyers

Builders are just as concerned in pleasing their customers as their customers are in being satisfied with their purchase. A builder-buyer "walk-through" prior to settlement will help insure maximum satisfaction on behalf of both parties.

A walk-through is an inspection of the new home prior to settlement, and it is an essential part of the purchasing process.

During a walk-through, the builder and the purchaser conduct a final inspection to identify any problems that need correction. It is important, therefore, to schedule the walk-through long enough before settlement that the builder has ample time to do any necessary work.

The most efficient method to handle a walk-through is with a checklist. The list should include everything that needs attention and a timetable to effect the repairs.

Home buyers should be aware that some items may have to be corrected after settlement. For instance, if the walk-through is in winter, the builder may have to wait until spring to make landscaping adjustments. Repair dates for such items should be agreed upon and a signed copy of the checklist should be left with both parties to prevent misunderstandings.

The walk-through is the time to ask questions and to take notes on the answers. Important questions to ask concern warranties and any limitations on coverage. Manufacturers' warranties and operating manuals on appliances and operating instructions for the furnace and air conditioning equipment should be obtained. Carpet and floor care are other items of importance.

If you don't know the proper questions to ask or do not know what to look for, ask a knowledgeable friend to accompany you on the walk-through.

The walk-through should be done with an eye to thoroughness. If minor problems are overlooked, the builder cannot be expected to send workers to the home every time a problem arises after settlement. The builder will probably want to correct minor post-settlement problems at some pre-specified time, such as 30 days after occupancy. Requests for these repairs should be made in writing. Usually only emergency request are handled by telephone.

The walk-through checklist should contain the following items. No single list, however, is applicable to every property, so to be thorough, an individualized list should be created for every situation.

Walk-Through Checklist

Outside Grading:

- Does the ground around the foundation slope away from the house?

- Does water form puddles in swales?

- Are there signs of erosion?
- Are the basement window wells clean and graveled?

Roof Structure:

- Are the shingles flat and tight?
- Is all flashing secure in place?
- Do gutters, downspouts and splash blocks drain away from the house?

Exterior Appearance:

- Are all windows and doors sealed and protected by weatherstripping?
- Are the trim and fittings tight?

Are there any cracks?

- Does the paint on surfaces and trim cover them smoothly?

Inside

- Are all doors and windows properly sealed? Do they operate easily?

- Are the doors and windows the type specified in the contract?

- Is all glass in place and not loose or cracked?

Finishes:

Appliances

- Do the major appliances operate properly?
- Do all faucets and other plumbing fixtures, including toilets and showers, work properly?

Basement and Attic

- Are there any indications of dampness or leaks?
- Are there any cracks in the foundation walls or in the floors?

Final Inspection/Certificate of Occupancy

- Has your local municipality signed off on your house?

Regulation could affect credit, loans

Consumers and businesses in many areas could face higher interest rates and dwindling credit on certain loans if the federal government enacts a proposed regulation, according to the National Council of Savings Institutions.

"The federal government wants to prohibit lenders from looking outside their own states to lend or raise capital for businesses and consumers for commercial real estate, apartment buildings, second homes and second mortgages," said John H. Rousselot, president of the Washington-based National Council. "This could have a disastrous ripple effect on local economics in terms of jobs, rents, credit availability, interest rates and savings institutions' ability to operate profitably."

Rousselot said the National Council has proposed to the Federal Home Loan Bank Board (FHLBB) alternative steps the agency could take to improve the quality of loans that thrift institutions make without destroying their nationwide sources of lendable funds.

The FHLBB, which regulates thrift institutions, proposes to restrict the ability of savings banks and savings and loan associations to originate or purchase many types of loans across state lines. The agency contends that many of the problems of troubled thrift institutions have been caused by lenders involved in activities outside their normal territories.

In an alternative proposal submitted to the FHLBB this week, the National Council argues that good underwriting, not geography, is the most important factor in determining the quality of loans. Underwriting is a lender's process of analyzing the risk of a loan and the lender's decision whether to accept that risk by making the loan.

"If a lender underwrites properly, he can put a sound loan on his books, whether it is secured by a property located across the street or across the country," Rousselot said.

A National Council task force of savings industry executives, led by George P. Rutland, vice chairman and chief executive officer of California Federal Savings and Loan Association of Los Angeles, prepared the organization's proposal, which recommends that the FHLBB take steps to improve lenders' underwriting policies and procedures.

"Our task force agreed with the FHLBB that there is a problem within the industry concerning imprudent lenders making and investing in bad loans," said Rousselot. "And we believe the federal government should take strong regulatory action to address this problem."

"But the FHLBB's current proposal would bring much of the national market in real estate and consumer lending by thrifts to a screeching halt," Rousselot said.

Over the past 15 years, a national secondary market for commercial real estate mortgages has developed that enables lenders to buy and sell loans to investors after the loans are closed. Thrift institutions' share of this market grew to more than 50 percent last year. Buying and selling loans nationwide helps lenders keep loan rates competitive and credit more available. It also allows them to accumulate lendable funds that they otherwise would be unable to raise in their local areas.

"Flexibility to operate interstate is essential for lenders to remain solvent. This is especially true for lenders located in economically depressed areas," Rousselot said. "And lenders in healthier markets depend on investors outside their territories because there often is not enough capital in these single areas to meet the demands of home

"Lenders often sell consumer loans to other lenders so that they have the new capital to continue making these type loans," Rousselot said. "So borrowers seeking loans for home improvements, college tuition, second homes and other large purchases could face a double-whammy of higher rates and scarcer credit if the FHLBB imposes restrictions on nationwide lending.

"We must continue to serve the demands of the marketplace while we address the problems caused by poorly run thrift institutions," Rousselot said. The National Council of Savings Institutions is a trade association of 600 savings and loan associations and savings banks. Its members hold $450 billion in assets, representing 40 percent of the thrift industry's total assets.
