Holiday craft potpourri

Bilinkas 'pins' her craft on Christmas

For most of us Christmas comes just once a year. For Patricia Bilinkas, a graduate of Union High School and the creator of an original line of Christmas tree ornaments, yuletide is a year-round affair.

A special education teacher in Wharton, Bilinkas owns Pattypins, a company that produces specialty clothespin designs. Ornaments account for most of her sales.

An avid ornament collector herself, Bilinkas hit upon the idea of making her own when her mother, Marjorie Bachevski of Union, returned from a trip to historic Williamsburg with an addition for her collection, a tiny handcrafted wooden soldier.

Bilinkas was not impressed. "I took one look and right away I just knew I could do a better job," she says. "It was overpriced, the workmanship was poor and it didn't have arms."

Using a wooden u-shaped clothespin, Bilinkas began experimenting and the result was a much improved wooden soldier. She painted on faces and added black fuzzy fabric for headpieces. She called them grenadiers and they sold as fast as she could produce them.

Today, she laughingly refers to those first efforts as primitive. "My mother pointed out that my figures needed arms, for one thing."

Through trial and error she discovered a method of wrapping pipe cleaners in fabric and attaching them to the pins with adhesive. "I would hold the 'arms' tightly until they stuck and move on to repeat the process with the next figure. By the time I got to the end of the line, the 'arms' on the first one had fallen off," says Bilinkas, who uses empty egg cartons for a mini-assembly line and now uses a professional hot glue gun.

This month, seven years after her first grenadier, Bilinkas is celebrating the attainment of one of her most sought after goals, publication in the main issue of a nationally distributed magazine.

In the December issue of Family Circle, ornaments created and produced by Pattypins open the special holiday decoration section "Come Trim the Tree." Photographs and detailed plans on construction of a 16-piece nativity scene are featured.

Last year several of her pieces were shown in the magazine's special Christmas gift issue. She was pleased but determined to "make it into the main magazine."

This year's nativity scene consists of meticulously created figures all made out of wooden clothespins. "For me part of the challenge has always been to disguise the fact that the foundation is a clothespin, in much the same way another person might create a costume for a stuffed doll," says Bilinkas.

The three wise men are regally clad in robes of gold and silver brocade trimmed with decorative braid and tiny gemstones, wearing miniature jeweled crowns. Each piece is specially treated to guard against fraying or deterioration.

Bilinkas says she does not intend to ever recreate the nativity set and has already bequeathed it to her two-year-old niece Lauren. "The light of my life."

According to the artist, the camels proved to be the greatest challenge. "Once I figured out how to construct a camel using two clothespins as a base, the rest was comparatively easy." She admits to getting some of her most ingenious ideas at 3 a.m. "When that happens I can hardly wait 'till daylight so I can get to work on my latest inspiration."

Bilinkas work first came to the attention of the editors of Family Circle through an agent. On the day of the appointment to show her ornaments, the agent was unable to make it. "I just threw my hands up in despair and said well that's that. My husband Bill was the one who pushed me to go ahead anyway. As apprehensive as I was at the prospect, he wouldn't take no for an answer. He got me in the car, drove me to New York and said 'go on in there and show them your work.' I was really nervous about approaching them but they were thrilled with the pieces."

Their sole objection was that the ornaments might prove to be too difficult for the average person so Bilinkas created a set using felt. "Then I got a call from the executive editor. He told me to go ahead and do it my way, because the decorative touches made the ornaments unique."

A full-time teacher she says now that she was grateful when the idea of making her own ornaments presented itself. "I was very unhappy with my job at that time. I had been teaching in Bernardsville for six years and I just burned out. I was desperately looking for another way to support myself."

The artistic route seemed a natural one to follow. Her mother worked as a fashion illustrator when her daughters were young and today is a commercial artist in Union. Wife of Union Township's Fire Chief, the Bachevskis have been married for nearly 40 years.

Bilinkas' sister Barbara had aspirations to become an artist but instead became a nurse practitioner in pediatrics. Married to a surgeon she lives in North Brunswick.

"My mother always told us to be practical when considering a career. In fact she discouraged Barbara from pursuing art saying 'Forget it. You'll starve to death,'" laughs Bilinkas.

Once she worked out a production system Bilinkas secured the services of a sales representative and her work began to appear in major mail order catalogs across the country, including Garfinkels, Clymers and The Very Thing.

Problems arose when the orders came in faster than she could possibly fill them working alone.

She hired some teen-agers to assist on a part-time basis but was dissatisfied with the results. Whenever possible she also enlisted aid of family and friends.

Eventually Pattypins became so successful she took off two years from teaching to devote full time to the company.

When she found she was unable to meet an order from Neiman-Marcus for a set she calls Three-in-Service — maid, chef and butler magnetized for placement on a refrigerator door — she investigated mass production.

"I met with a manufacturing representative from Taiwan but I was not happy with the resulting product. I'm sure we could have eventually made improvements but there was the problem of a language and geographical barrier to deal with as well," she says.

When asked if she realized at the outset how enormously successful her figures would become, Bilinkas shook her head. "Definitely not. I didn't but my husband always felt the business could become as big as I wanted."

Bill Bilinkas affirms this by adding that "I would really like to see her maximize what I believe is a wonderful opportunity that has been created by her work."

Bilinkas has created thousands of designs on commission and for her own enjoyment. More than 200 stock figures make up 10 categories including professions, animals, movie character, storybook characters and sports figures.

Although ornaments are her hottest item, she has designed and constructed a Wizard of Oz mobile, and figures with pins and magnets. All of her items are produced in the basement of her home in a specially equipped studio commissioned by her husband.

All her work is copyrighted and she is constantly on the alert for new ideas and inspiration, admitting that she spends a great deal of her time exploring craft stores where she picks up miniature props, such as a tiny wedge of cheese for a mouse character, and may see something that will trigger an idea.

Bilinkas says she first displayed creative instincts when she was a child. "In those days our TV time was carefully monitored, and I was always downstairs creating things from rocks or whatever."

During her years at Kean College she worked summers for the Union Township Recreation Department under the supervision of Robert Drew. "I've always enjoyed working with young children. They have such vivid imaginations."

Bilinkas uses her creations as classroom projects. "Several years later the kids come back and tell me they are still using the ornament they made in class on the family Christmas tree."

She adds that looking back now she can really appreciate the strong educational background she received at Union High School, adding that her closest friend still lives in Union.

Bilinkas orders clothespins by the bulk, usually 1,500 at a time, and has learned to use every scrap to avoid waste.

At one point I found I was throwing out a lot of pins because of slight irregularities. I was working on creating a new design and while one side of the pin was OK the other side was kind of crummy. So I cut off the irregular side and made a peg leg pirate."

Finally, I put out a call one Christmas for professional cutting equipment and my brothers-in-law gave me a band-saw for my workshop."

Right now Bilinkas is busy trying to fill this year's Christmas orders and is at work on a set of custom ordered Scarlett O'Hara and Rhett Butler characters.

At the same time she's thinking ahead to next December. "It's not unusual for me to listen to tapes of Christmas Carols during July, it helps me stay motivated."

As for the future, mass production is still very much a possibility.

One of the projects described vividly by Bilinkas is a how-to book featuring some of her favorite ornaments with illustrations by her mother. Both are excited at the prospect of a joint venture. She also plans to design a chess set and hopes to enter the Morristown Craftshow.

Perseverance — as well as creativity — has played a part in her success says the owner of Pattypins. "It's not really all that hard. As long as you love what you're doing and if you're determined enough, you can do it."

Albatross is a bird of the sea

DR. JOHN B. WOLF

Professor, Union County College
American service personnel, quartered aboard ships plying the Great Circle Route that curves across the Pacific to Asia from ports on the West Coast, often see their albatross somewhere north of the Hawaiian Islands. Truly a bird of the sea, the albatross alights on shore only to breed.

A colony nester, the bird is common in the southern oceans, particularly in the vicinity of New Zealand. The North Pacific, the area traditionally transversed by the U.S. Navy as it protects a convoy of troopships, also is a haven for the albatross.

The Black-footed Albatross, breeding in the Hawaiian Islands, is the most common in this region. It often follows ships. Known to feed on squid and fish at night, this long and narrow-winged bird is a regular visitor to the shipping lanes off the U.S. Pacific coast. I've seen it a mile or two from San Francisco, about an hour after steaming under the Golden Gate.

The Black-footed Albatross has a brown body, but its large size and heavy, hooked beak distinguish it from the dark shearwaters that ply the Pacific. These oceanic birds have thinner bills. They flap and fly closer to the water, whereas the larger albatrosses usually soar high over the forecastle set on the hull of a naval vessel or a merchant ship.

For the birds

Distinguished by a nostril opening through a tube, the albatross is part of an order of birds known as the Tube-Nosed Swimmers. The tubes enclosing its nostrils are separated and placed one on either side of the bill.

Unequaled in the power of flight, the albatross spends most of its life in the air, snaring its food from the surface of the sea, usually at night. Seemingly soaring for hours without flapping its wings, the albatross follows a ship for a long period. Closely watched, however, the bird makes short but quick motions of its wings that a chance observer may not detect.

I've watched the albatrosses soar around and above a vessel for hours. I had very little else to do. A passenger on one of the U.S. Navy's amphibious transports, I realized life on a troopship was "FOR THE BIRDS."

SENATE CITATION—State Senator C. Louis Bassano recently presented Evelyn Frank with a Senate citation congratulating her on her unselfish dedication and commitment to the senior citizens of Union County. Evelyn Frank is the president of the Union County Council of Senior Citizens and received the Senate citation at the annual legislative luncheon held at the Galloping Hill Caterers in Union.

Theater calendar now available

"We're Making a Play for You" is the theme of the New Jersey Theater Group's 1986/1987 Calendar, which lists the more than 50 mainstage productions available this season at the state's professional Actors' Equity theaters. From classical comedy and drama to experimental works by promising new playwrights, the offerings cater to "every mood and satisfy anyone's need for great entertainment," says

Heidi Holtz-Eakin, group coordinator.

She further notes, "On almost every day of the year a curtain rises on a professional performance in this state, and wherever you are, one of our theaters is within reach throughout the state."

The membership of the New Jersey Theater Group includes the Crossroads Theater, New Brunswick; Foundation Theater, Pemberton; George Street Playhouse, New Brunswick; McCarter Theater Center for the Performing Arts, Princeton; New Jersey Shakespeare Festival, Madison; Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn; Pushcart Players, Verona; South Jersey Regional Theater, Somers Point; Theater of Universal Images, Newark; and The Whole Theater, Montclair. The New Jersey Theater Group, the service organization for these 10 organizations, is "committed to the belief that the Garden State is rich in affordable, quality theater."

The calendar and other information material are available without charge at member theaters or by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the New Jersey Theater Group, 290 Hickory St., Teaneck, 07666. The New Jersey Theater Group is funded in part by the New Jersey State Council on the Arts/Department of State and by the Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation.

MARY WOOD

Rebecca's forecast

For week of Dec. 4 to Dec. 11

ARIES (3/21-4/20) Interests at a distance continue to be important. Travel plans are highlighted and legal papers may have important implications for some. Later, another plays all too easily on your emotions. New learning experiences are on the agenda and personal limitations begin to crowd you now

TAURUS (4/21-5/21) The focus remains on joint or shared resources. Tax or insurance documents are highlighted and new money saving techniques are implemented. Later, you shelve plans to accommodate obligations. Elders and those in authority may be difficult or demanding. Watch key relationships carefully!

GEMINI (5/22-6/21) Important events during this period will revolve around others and the mutual roles you play in each others lives. You may feel burdened by extra work or personal obligations toward mid-week although some compensation is forthcoming. Later, new meetings and social invitations.

CANCER (6/22-7/23) It's a good idea to review tax, insurance or pension matters during this week. Don't rely on another's aid. Moderation is essential to your well being at this time. Later in the period, look for invisible strings especially linked with favors, romantic interests and compromises!!

LEO (7/24-8/23) This may be a time of crucial preparation for many. Getting things in order may be your top priority. Messages may temporarily deflate your spirits and another's support during this time may long be remembered. Later, you come to grips with nagging domestic troubles once and for all.

VIRGO (8/24-9/23) The goings on of others may raise important questions during this week. Someone's motives are apparent if you look carefully. Good news on the job front is indicated. Later in the week, heart-to-heart talks patch things temporarily. Help behind the scenes may boost finances.

LIBRA (9/24-10/23) Although unsettling moods usher in this period rest assured you're due for some special attention or recognition during this week. Shopping excursions may yield a bargain or long-sought-after item. Later, think choices over carefully. Romance blossoms. Expect news from a distance.

SCORPIO (10/24-11/22) Siblings, relatives and those at a distance will assume importance early this week. Unexpected obstacles or delays cause you disappointment and devising a new course of action may be your best bet. Later, you're overall material security grows and will continue through much of '87.

SAGITTARIUS (11/23-12/21) Important dealings with property or real estate will mark this period for many. Speculative ventures are highlighted and legal papers may pass through your hands in months ahead. Later, home surroundings are spruced up and far-reaching changes continue within key relationships.

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/20) The focus is on health, dependents' interests and private areas of your life. Inflammatory or infectious health problems are highlighted and your personal energy may be rather low. Later in the week, relatives provoke conflict. Let's just say this may not be the best week for most.

AQUARIUS (1/21-2/19) Try to make pending decisions early this week. As the week progresses you will find it more difficult to concentrate or organize yourself. Later, you continue to finish up lingering tasks. Domestic affairs run more smoothly. Expect more local travel in the weeks ahead.

PISCES (2/20-3/20) If you stick to your plans and goals during this period rewards are indicated. Chances are you may be in the limelight in the weeks ahead. Career or community status is boosted, but please keep immediate plans under wraps for now. Later in the week, mail or messages will assume importance.

Review course sets sign-up

The Clarion Review Course, directed by A.J. Pantazes, a member of the mathematics department at Columbia High School, Maplewood, is accepting registration from high school students who are planning to take the Scholastic Aptitude Tests administered by the College Entrance Examination Board on April 4 and May 2, 1987.

The purpose of the Clarion Review Course, at Newark Academy in Livingston, is, according to its director, to assure the student that he will achieve his maximum potential score on the all important S.A.T. Pantazes has come to appreciate in his years of teaching, the multitude of problems facing today's youth, the most important of which is perhaps the difficulty in being accepted by a college of his choosing.

"With college admissions officers surveying applicants more or less equal in intelligence, class rank, grades, extra-curricular activities, etc., the final decision is often predicated on the result of the S.A.T. While a high score on these tests will not automatically guarantee entrance to a particular college, it is perhaps the most important single factor in admission or rejection," Pantazes said.

The Clarion Review Course is offering courses in basic mathematical review and verbal skills to prepare the student for the S.A.T. Each class will consist of a maximum of 15 students. Classes are scheduled Monday evenings, Wednesday afternoons or Saturday mornings at the Livingston location.

Clarion Review is also offering evening courses for the Spring S.A.T.s, at the Adult School at Columbia High School in Maplewood, Montclair High School, Summit High School and Carteret High School.

Registration forms and additional information can be obtained by calling 992-6070 or 992-6010 between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m.

RESOLUTION NO. 832-56
 DATE: 11/25/86
 UNION COUNTY BOARD OF CHOSEN FREEHOLDERS

BE IT RESOLVED by the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union that it does hereby authorize the County Manager and Clerk of this Board to execute a contract with Melinda Sprague Mackenzie, Ph.D. for an amount not exceed $6,000.00 to provide management consultant services to the Nursing Department of John E. Runnells Hospital, said contract being awarded without the necessity of public bidding since the amount of the contract does not exceed the threshold requiring competitive bids; and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that said contract shall be charged to account 1-567-578-13-87 of John E. Runnells Hospital.
 APPROVED AS TO FORM
 ROBERT DOHERTY
 COUNTY ATTORNEY

I hereby certify the above to be a true copy of a resolution adopted by the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union on the date above mentioned.
