Hospital celebrates 100th birthday with gala event

By Suzette Stalker
Managing Editor

In the tradition of an old-time country fair, Children's Specialized Hospital in Mountainside celebrated its 100th birthday Saturday with a colorful array of clowns and choral groups, refreshments and revelry and a community spirit which has been the core of the institution's heritage.

The event, enhanced by perfect spring weather, drew several hundred people to the hospital's New Providence Road headquarters. Party guests enjoyed varied cuisine donated by more than 30 area restaurants and eateries, and children took part in traditional carnival games such as bean bag toss and face paintings.

Entertainment was provided throughout the day by such groups as the Select Choruses of Scotch Plains-Fanwood High School, which performed popular shown tunes and patriotic songs; the Scotch Plains-Fanwood High School Sensations, which featured pop and jazz singing and dancing and the "Sweet Adelines."

Also on hand were the Button-downs of Pingry School; the Sharps and Flats from Roosevelt Intermediate School in Westfield; the Edison Intermediate School Jazz Band and "Yesterday's Melodies" Barbershop Quartet Rahway Valley Chorus, as well as Boy Scout Troop 39, all of whom received warm rounds of applause.

Wide receiver Stephen Baker of the New York Giants also took part in the festivities by greeting partygoers.

Visitors were also treated to a tour of the hospital, which houses 60 acute rehabilitation beds and 25 long-term care beds, and also operates an outpatient facility in Fanwood. A 30-bed unit in Ocean County is currently under construction.

Children's Specialized treats youngsters from infancy through age 21 who are afflicted with various illnesses and injuries caused by accidents.

Governor James Florio had proclaimed Saturday as "Children's Specialized Hospital Centennial Day," giving statewide recognition to New Jersey's only pediatric rehabilitation hospital. The facility first opened in 1891 as the Children's Country Home and has since become a landmark institution.

The hospital, which began as a summer retreat for children from urban tenement slums, has played a vital role in helping youngsters through advances in modern medicine during the past century. During the influenza and pneumonia epidemics in 1918, for example, the home served as an emergency hospital.

In the 1940s, during the polio epidemic, many young patients were rehabilitated at the hospital through the use of "Sister Kenny hot packs," which were named for an Australian nurse who developed the treatment. All the hospital's efforts were accomplished with the help of numerous dedicated staff members and volunteers.

"It is an honor that Governor Florio has chosen to recognize Children's Specialized Hospital on occasion of our centennial," remarked hospital president Richard B. Ahlfeld.

New Borough Clerk Judith Osty looks over some paperwork at her desk at Mountainside Borough Hall. Osty, who replaced former Borough Clerk Kathleen Toland, serves as secretary to Mayor Robert Vigilanti and the Mountainside Borough Council. The new clerk has been getting a lot of on-the-job experience lately at council meetings and during last week's primary.

New clerk gaining on-the-job experience

The Mountainside Borough Council knows how to break in a new member of its entourage — in a hurry. Judith Osty, appointed as the new borough clerk in late April, went through her paces with the governing body as it conducted two special meetings, a work session and a regular business meeting in the first four weeks of her tenure.

"It was a little hectic at first," recalled Osty this week, describing her new position as secretary to Mayor Robert Vigilanti and the Mountainside Borough Council. "It's been six years since I've handled this type of work and things have changed in six years."

Osty, a Clark resident, also quickly picked up valuable experience in another area of the clerk's responsibilities as she tallied the voting results in the June 4 primary. In primaries and regular elections, the borough clerk must be available to sort out problems with voting machines, voter lists and assorted challenges.

Osty succeeds Kathleen Toland, who served as borough clerk for some eight years. Toland said Monday she resigned because she "had progressed about as far as I could progress" in the borough. Toland is now employed as clerk in Fairlawn, a municipality of some 30,000 residents.

Toland, who had been appointed borough clerk in 1982, over the past nine years took on the positions of administrative assistant, secretary to the Board of Health, registrar of vital statistics and treasurer of school monies.

"I feel very positive about Mountainside and I only have good things to say about the people and the support and encouragement they gave me," she said.

Osty, appointed by the mayor and council at an annual salary of $26,000, must take courses to become a state-certified clerk within three years. Borough clerks become tenured after five years in office.

Osty has been on Mountainside's municipal payroll since Oct. 29, when she became an administrative secretary in the Borough Hall's front office and tax collection department. She previously worked as the principal clerk transcriber in Roselle.

The new clerk said she plans to soon begin taking the requisite courses to become a state-certified municipal clerk. She has been taking certification courses from Rutgers University in the tax collecting realm and intends to take that test shortly.

Just prior to becoming an administrative secretary in Mountainside, Osty worked as a secretary and sales assistant for Miller Northern Corp., a Roselle Park printing company.

The borough clerk's duties as secretary to the mayor and council include keeping the minutes, preparing resolutions and ordinances and keeping track of new laws, among many other tasks.

Osty sounds confident when she noted that despite her relatively hectic introduction to the duties of office, "it doesn't seem to be that difficult." As she progresses at the post, she will take time to assess what potential innovations to make in the operations of the office.

Pilot shares Gulf war experiences with kids

By Bea Smith

Even though Air Force Capt. Robert Dooley was unable to participate in the Operation Welcome Home parade in Manhattan Monday, he felt compensated by being able to talk to more than 100 students at Deerfield School on Friday.

Dooley, a career Air Force pilot who has been vacationing in his Mountainside home recently, had volunteered to tell of his wartime experiences in Saudi Arabia to his "alma mater — Deerfield School," before he had to return to his homebase in Germany on Saturday.

The Air Force officer, who was assigned to the 4th Brigade of the 1st Armored Division of the Army during the Gulf war, flew apache helicopters over Saudi Arabia and was among the first to be dispatched there from Germany. "We were a lot closer to the fighting that way than the Air Force," he recalled during a chat Friday evening.

When he came home on leave, he explained that his mother "threw a great big party for me, and one of the neighbors, Arlene Pancrod, said she had a son who went to Deerfield School, and she asked me if I was interested in telling the students about my experiences. And I said, 'Sure.' So, I got in touch with the social studies teacher at the school, and the next thing I know, I was talking to a lot of kids about what the war was all about.

"It was really neat," he exclaimed. "First of all, I spent my kindergarten days at Deerfield, and then sixth and seventh grades. It was like going home again. I talked to all three grades. They had opened the class divisions and I talked to about 100 kids. Gosh, it was neat. At first, the kids were kind of fidgety, then gradually, they became real attentive.

"They asked a lot of questions, and I was more than glad to answer their questions," Dooley said. "I let them know that war was not all Hollywood, and that many real people get hurt.

"It was really special talking to Deerfield School and flattering to see how interested they all were in what I was saying."

Dooley, who was born in August 1963 in Plainfield to Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Dooley, lived in Mountainside from the age of 3. "I attended kindergarten at Deerfield School," he said, "then attended first to fifth grades at Beechwood School, then went back to Deerfield school for sixth, seventh and eighth grades. I was graduated from Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield in 1981. Then I decided to attend the Air Force Academy.

"My commitment was to have a seven-year career after my graduation. Well, my seven years will be up in February of next year. But I have decided to stay in the Air Force on active duty indefinitely."

Dooley, who is stationed in Weisbaden, Germany, has been married for four years to Capt. Jennifer Dooley, an Air Force nurse, stationed in Weisbaden Regional Medical Center, an American Air Force hospital. "We were married just before we came to Germany. She came home with me on this last vacation but she had to get back. She left for Germany last week."

Dooley has been stationed in Germany since 1987. "I went there to fly F-16s out of Ramstein Air Base. When trouble started in Saudi Arabia, we were the first ones to go over there on Dec. 21 with the 7th Corps from Germany. We had three divisions and four brigades. I worked with the Army. I was assigned to the Army Brigade as an Air Force officer. I advised the Brigade Company on the use of air power in ground battles.

"I flew in a scout helicopter called 'a jet ranger,' and it was painted green. We made sure that the airplanes were going on target."

Dooley was constantly in danger during the "four months and four days." He recalled that "it was real exciting during the four-day ground war. We were so busy doing our job that we weren't really scared. It was only when we got back that we discovered how tense we were. But you know," he smiled, "we were trained so well...and everybody did real well! It was all quite impressive.

"During the air war, we were located just below Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and Iraq. We were all in that general area. We spent most of our time training and practicing...every day."

Dooley sighed. "We were part of the big movement out to the west. And we went after the Republican Guard. We did our job. We were told to kick them out of Kuwait, and that's pretty much what we did."

The officer said that after "they called a cease fire, we ended up staying in Iraq for the better part of a

Math program stresses practical applications

By Dennis Schaal
Staff Writer

At a juncture when the ability of the nation's students to perform basic math skills is coming under intense scrutiny, educators at Deerfield School have undertaken a progressive initiative to move the Mountainside school's mathematics program into the 21st century.

Throughout the school year, teachers and administrators have been evaluating the curriculum to find ways to emphasize an integral connection between school math and everyday life, to equip students with the skills to become problem-solvers in a complex, fluctuating world.

"We wanted to provide students with the application of math across the entire curriculum, not just in math courses," Dorothy Baldwin, Deerfield principal and instructional leader, explained this week. "When you get into the real world of work, there's often more than one way to arrive at a solution. There are a variety of ways to solve a problem."

Baldwin said the 490 students at the school, which houses grades K-8, have already begun to taste samplings of the altered math program, which she characterized as a "metamorphosis rather than a drastic change."

The principal noted that "people are excited" about the new offerings, which will shift into higher gear in September.

At its June meeting, the Mountainside Board of Education, in a 7-0 vote, ratified the changes by endorsing a new line of math texts and materials known as the Silver Burdett series.

A congressionally funded survey, the National Assessment of Education, concluded last week that only about 12 percent of eighth-grade students nationwide could perform the most rudimentary problems in algebra and geometry.

Dayton party to feature substance-free activities

By Dennis Schaal
Staff Writer

It will be the last opportunity for the 147 graduates of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield, which enrolls Mountainside students, to get together as a class before they disperse to faraway universities or distant jobs; a last chance to socialize as high schoolers before they return for their fifth- or 10th-year reunion.

The event is Project Graduation, the post-graduation, alcohol-free and drug-free party which will take place following graduation exercises on June 20 at the Westfield YMCA from 10 p.m. to 5 a.m. The theme this year, the second annual event, is "Midnight MADDness," the name borrowed from the acronym for Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

"No house party or nightclub will have the amount of entertainment we're going to have," explained Barbara Weinberg, who has coordinated Project Graduation for the past two years as president of Jonathan Dayton's Parent-Teacher-Student Organization. "The only thing we don't have is alcohol."

The PTSO president said she expects about 85 to 90 students to attend the party next week, down from about 120 last year. The event is free; roundtrip bus transportation is provided from the high school.

Like numerous other New Jersey communities, the PTSO is sponsoring Project Graduation "to diffuse drinking and driving after graduation" to avoid a tragedy, Weinberg said. She noted that the concept of this type of graduation party has gained momentum in the state in the past five years. One midwestern school, she added, has been putting on an event of this nature for the last 25 years.

Weinberg said the party "has something planned every 15 minutes. The kids are very full and very tired when they leave."

There will be an appearance by some unidentified celebrity look-alikes. Last year "Cher" and "Pee Wee Herman" attended. "Some of the kids thought they were the real people," Weinberg recalled. "I strung them along for a few minutes and then let them know that we really couldn't afford to spend $15,000 for Cher that night."

The event actually costs about $7,000 to put on. The school received a $1,500 grant from the state Department of Transportation for this year's party. The PTSO president said the group is currently about $1,000 short in its fund-raising goal. She noted that although a few churches have made donations, in general financial support from the religious community has not been up to last year's standards.

In addition to DJ entertainment, the students will be able to use swimming, volleyball and handball facilities. Three films will be available for viewing in a room decorated in a carnival atmosphere. There will also be large screens to capture dancers lip-synching and performing sing-alongs.

The party-goers will not leave hungry. Six-foot subs will greet the graduates as they arrive; pizza will be in full supply; an ice cream bar will open at 3:30 a.m. and breakfast will be served an hour later.

Souvenir T-shirts will be available that night. The shirts will be emblazoned with the names of every graduate from the Class of 1991.

many other states, but the study found that only 20 percent of eighth-graders in the Garden State could perform algebra and geometry at a seventh-grade level.

Early in the year, Mountainside teachers and administrators began evaluating the math course and analyzing the changes to be made. Their starting point was "Curriculum and Evaluation: Standards for School Mathematics," a 1989 publication by the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics.

Baldwin indicated that the standards in this study are based on four assumptions: math is an everyday activity; its influence permeates many fields; math instruction and learning is enhanced by leading students through concrete conceptual activities to abstract principles; and literacy in math is required in this technological society.

Throughout the school year, Baldwin stated, the teaching staff has attempted to emphasize the connections between math and the real world. Some students were assigned to interview a borough patrolman who explained how he uses math when he utilizes radar to crack down on speeders. Other students interviewed a medical technician who commented how math comes into play when calculating dosages of medicine.

"In essence what we're saying is that youngsters become better problem solvers when they can manipulate something, when they can move from the concrete to the abstract," the principal said.

month. During the cease fire, they set up a demarcation line. And we had check points. I was lucky to be involved in a medical corps — the Medical Civil Assistance Program. We took care of the wounded Iraqis after the civil war rebels and government troops' fighting. We took care of their casualties. When we got up there, they were glad to see us. We brought food, water and medical equipment. We were all volunteers," Dooley said.

Dooley said his "next assignment will be back flying F16s for the next three years."

He said he didn't know when he would see his family in Mountainside. "My father is a doctor and has a practice in Mountainside. My mother, Jacqueline, assists him in his office. And I have four brothers, Christopher, in Boston; Matthew, who works for the family business, Dooley Colonial Funeral Home in Westfield; Mark, who works for a bank in New York; and Charles, who works for a bank in Boston."

Dooley also talked about the war "to my brother's friends' group in the shore area, some of whom had written to me when I was in Saudi Arabia." He said he believes that "the kids growing up in Mountainside have it really good. I know I did, too."

"Now that I'm going back to Germany, I don't know when I'll ever come back again," he said sadly.

"But this time around, I'll really have something to remember, especially knowing that I got through to the kids. That was real neat."

UNILOCK the Statement in Stone

• PAVERS • RETAINING WALLS

Unilock pavers replace blandness with beauty. They bring patterns, color and texture to driveways, walkways, patios and pool decks—making exterior areas more enjoyable to use and creating an attractive setting for your home.

Unilock's pavers are made from special concrete compressed in a mold under extreme pressure and compacted with high frequency vibrators. They are strong enough to withstand the weight of the heaviest vehicle. A high freeze thaw resistance ensures that they will not crack. They resist the corrosive action of winter salts.

The 5-paver Classico system frees the imagination to make your driveway, walkway, pool deck or patio the centerpiece of a dramatic and distinctive landscape effect, using full and half circles, fans, sweeping curves and geometric and random patterns.

Couple use journey as basis for volunteerism

Rhoda and Murray Staub of Mountainside were among 210 men and women who were recently honored during National Volunteer Week by the Newark Museum for their contributions as members of the museum's volunteer organization.

The Staubs celebrated their recent retirement by taking an 80-day, 13,500-mile cross-country tour of the United States. When they returned to New Jersey, they signed on as volunteer docents-in-training at the Newark Museum.

Rhoda explains that their extended trek across the country was a conscious effort to get to know the United States. "Although we had lived in the Orient and had seen much of the world and the Far East, we realized we had not experienced very much of our own country."

In addition to being impressed by the "incredible diversity" of the United States, from the Memnonite farms of Pennsylvania to the Civil War spots in Virginia; from the Cajun country of Louisiana to Native American cultural sites; from the western regional art of Charles Russell in Montana to Wyoming's Buffalo Bill Museum, the Staubs "felt as though entire new worlds had been opened up to them," according to the couple.

The Staubs said that their visits to various places became more stimulating and were "really enhanced" by local volunteer docents, who were knowledgeable in the history and culture of the region and/or particular museum. North, south, east and west, volunteer-led tours provided the Staubs "with an enlightening entree into a topic or place."

Later this year, the Staubs will graduate from the museum's Docent Program. Rhoda has said that she initially eyed the docent training program as a "terrific opportunity for a course in art appreciation." Both she and Murray recognize that the boundaries of learning are limitless and they credit the program's professionalism and the people involved.

"We really have a serious commitment and an obligation...their expectations are high and we don't want to let them down."

The Staubs have two children and five grandchildren. When they are not doing their museum homework, they can be found organizing an upcoming house exchange for themselves in Europe. Rhoda, a retired geriatric social worker at Jewish Family Services in Elizabeth, recently became chairman of JFS's volunteer services while Murray, formerly an international operations manager in the apparel industry, also fits in some consulting assignments.

LITTLE MUSIC LOVER — Five-and-one-half-year-old Jeremy Salow, son of Barry and Jessica Salow of Sycamore Terrace, Springfield, recently performed a solo titled 'Everybody Needs Music' at a concert held at James Caldwell School, Springfield, where he is a kindergarten student.

Speak up for freedom

This year, in recognition of the 200th anniversary of the adoption of our country's Bill of Rights, our government has chosen a strange way to celebrate. Instead of reaffirming the truths that comprise our Constitution, the U.S. Supreme Court has decided to chip away at its foundation.

The First Amendment to our Constitution states that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

In a decision that blatantly contradicts that mandate, the Supreme Court has deemed it illegal for employees of federally funded family planning clinics to mention abortion to their clients as an option in family planning. Clinics funded by foreign governments that receive money from the U.S. government are subject to the same law.

Employees of such facilities, regardless of whether they have access to the information, will be forced to answer questions about abortion with a prepared statement: "We don't consider abortion an appropriate method of family planning."

Faye Wattleton, president of Planned Parenthood, a family planning organization that has chapters nationwide — including branches in Union County — has stated that the facility will forgo its federal funding rather than comply with the ruling.

We support the stance taken by Planned Parenthood and other federally funded family planning clinics that have chosen to oppose the Supreme Court's ruling.

By attempting to seize free speech from its employees, the government has overstepped its bounds. The government, like any business in a capitalist society, has the right to choose what services it will and will not provide. Therefore, the Supreme Court has the right to prohibit the clinics it funds from performing abortions. But the court does not — or at least should not — have the right to restrict speech because it opposes an idea. As Americans, we are guaranteed the right to speak about anything we please, including ideas that do not have the approval of our government.

Furthermore, it is a hypocritical body that legalizes a procedure and then calls the procedure "inappropriate." The Supreme Court has not been asked to preach on issues that come before it, but to determine their legality; and since the court has already determined that abortion is legal, it has no place asking clinic employees to attempt to hide that fact.

Unfortunately, the damage done by the Supreme Court goes beyond tampering with free speech. The court is trying to put words in people's mouths, a move reminiscent of the decisions made by fascist regimes.

Does the Supreme Court believe it has carte blanche to alter our constitutional rights? And if so, how far will the restrictions go? If the First Amendment is not free from dilution, perhaps the court will attempt to eliminate our right to oppose federal policies; eventually it might gag any media not controlled by the government, ultimately destroying the public's right to know.

We urge readers to fight for their First Amendment rights by supporting the passage of the Title 10 Pregnancy Counseling Act, which would require that all clinics give clients complete and accurate information about their options in family planning. Those who wish to support the act's passage should write to Speaker Thomas Foley, U.S. House of Representatives, Washington, D.C., 20515-4705.

It is essential that we show our support for the document that, 200 years ago, was created to guarantee us our rights as human beings. We must utilize our voices to fight for our freedom — before both are taken from us.

A MOMENT TO SHARE — Michele Fredericks, right, of Mountainside, admires Therese Gallagher Gallo's magna cum laude medal as they prepare to join the professional at Fairleigh Dickinson University's Florham-Madison campus commencement recognition ceremonies. Fredericks received a bachelor of arts degree in English/writing. Gallo, a resident of Mount Tabor, earned a bachelor of arts degree in fine arts. Fairleigh Dickinson conferred approximately 2,100 degrees during its 48th commencement May 19 at the Brendan Byrne Arena, East Rutherford.

Who says primary elections don't count?

Screening New Jersey

By Steve Aduabato Jr.

Who says primary elections are boring and don't count? Even though a minuscule number of New Jersey voters went to the polls last Tuesday, there were a number of fascinating, political and personal stories and themes that were played out.

The return from oblivion of a former statewide Republican superstar from Paterson who most political observers had long forgotten; the ouster of two veteran Democratic legislators from Middlesex County — one because some felt he was too arrogant and the other because party leaders felt he was too old; the election of a genuine political "reformer" who actually ran a clean issue-oriented campaign and won, and finally, a major embarrassment for a South Jersey GOP senator whose sights are set on the 1993 governor's race.

A closer look at this election that most New Jerseyans would rather ignore is in order.

Who says you can't go back? Not former four-term Paterson mayor and state Senator Pat Kramer? Kramer, a former Republican candidate for governor and shining star in New Jersey politics during the 1970s, returned to the limelight after 11 years by capturing the Republican nomination for senator in the 35th District in Passaic County. Kramer must still get elected in November against Democratic incumbent John Girgenti in this traditionally-Democratic district, but the moderate, charismatic and well-liked 58-year-old Kramer is solidly positioned to become a major player again.

Why return to the nasty world of politics? I call it the "Pat Riley Syndrome."

For non-sports fans, Riley, the former coach of the world champion Los Angeles Lakers basketball team, who currently has a cushy job as an NBC sports commentator, has just decided to return to coaching, this time with the New York Knicks. Some guys are gluttons for punishment.

By all accounts, Pat Kramer is enjoying a nice, comfortable and profitable private life, but word was he missed the action of the political arena. For some people, politics offers an excitement that few other endeavors do. So, look out Senator Girgenti, Pat Kramer is back and he wants your seat!

Conversely, consider the Senate race in Middlesex County's 18th District between incumbent Democrat Tom Paterniti and challenger Harry Pozycycki. Four years ago, Paterniti beat this political "reformer" by 800 votes with the support of the party bosses, but this year, Pozycycki, with strong support from environmental activists and other grass roots groups, returned the favor and won by the same 800 votes. He ran an intelligent, issue-oriented campaign focusing on tax reform and land use planning, while the incumbent chose to engage in a nasty, often personal attack, against his opponent. Paterniti baselessly charged Pozycycki with alleged conflicts of interest and falsely accused him of raising taxes as a local councilman. He also ran an ad challenging the young lawyer's integrity titled "Tricky Pozycycki."

Paterniti, a supporter of the Florio $2.8 billion tax package, refused to debate Pozycycki on the important issues facing the voters, and his negative campaign ultimately backfired. So, it's goodbye to Senator Paterniti and it looks like Mr. Pozycycki is going to Trenton. Some say Pozycycki is too idealistic and politically naive to succeed in Trenton. I say thank God that decent, concerned and talented people like him still want to run and serve in public office. Good luck, future senator.

In the 19th District, 79-year-old, 18-year Democratic Assemblyman George Otowski was dumped by the party organization that intimated that he was too old and out of touch with the changing demographics of Middlesex County. Privately, the word was that he had become a liability to the ticket and would be vulnerable to the Republicans in the fall. Otowski was begged by party leaders to retire quietly without a scene, but the feisty former mayor of Perth Amboy refused to budge.

However, in a hard-fought, three-way race for two nominations, Otowski was ultimately the odd man out as he lost to Democratic incumbent Thomas Deverin and newcomer and former Notre Dame football star Jay Ziznewski. After the race, Otowski said, "I felt I had to run, win or lose. I figured if I'm going to go down, I'm going to go down with all my colors flying." While both Democratic nominees are highly qualified, Trenton is going to miss the "colorful," stubborn, but affable George Otowski. He was one of a kind.

And what about South Jersey's "Golden Boy" — state Senator Bill Gormley, R-2nd? The powerful Atlantic City senator, who ran a strong race for the Republican nomination for governor in 1989, was embarrassed in a big way when he captured only 54 percent of the vote against Dominick Capella of Ventnor. Capella charged the telegenic Gormley with being "too liberal"? In addition, the National Rifle Association was gunning for Gormley because of his longtime support of gun control. Rumor had it that a lot of other Republicans, including another gubernatorial hopeful, Christine Whitman, were aiding and abetting the Capella campaign.

Don't count Bill Gormley out of the 1993 governor's race, but this narrow victory in his own back yard doesn't help his chances. In addition, Gormley faces a strong Democratic challenger in November named Meg Worthington, as well as Independent candidate, Assemblywoman Dolores Cooper, a longtime Gormley foe. "Bill Gormley is like a petulant child who needs a spanking and Mama Cooper is going to give it to him," says Mrs. Cooper.

You can count on a lot of action in Atlantic City this fall. Who says primary elections are boring and don't count? Just wait until November.

Bush should veto civil rights bills

To the Editor:

President Bush should veto whatever civil rights bill is submitted and Congress ought to sustain the veto for no other reason than that there are enough civil rights already prescribed, not to mention the federal and states' constitution. Write your Congressmen.

Program will send a message

To the Editor:

The arguments in favor of a major new initiative against crime as proposed by President Bush are compelling. Since 1960, the number of murders has increased from 9,000 to 23,000 last year. Rape has increased an average of 6.3 percent a year since 1960, and similar increases have been recorded in other categories of crime. The United States now ranks as the nation with the highest rate of violent crime in the industrial world, and it is getting worse despite an $11 billion-a-year crackdown on drugs.

Since President Bush issued his 100-day challenge to Congress on March 11 calling for approval of his proposal, another 3,000 Americans were murdered, another 15,000 women raped, and 75,000 more citizens were robbery victims.

What makes the crime problem especially frustrating is that the number of arrests and prisoners serving time has reached record levels, the number of repeat offenders continues to rise. A Justice Department study in 1990 found that two-thirds of the felony defendants were known to have been arrested previously. Seventy-nine percent had at least one prior arrest, and a quarter had four or more felony arrests.

Four of every 10 persons arrested for felony crimes were out on probation and 34 percent were on pretrial release for a previous case that was still pending.

Behind these statistics are millions of victims whose lives and families have been shattered or in some way greatly upset financially and emotionally by serious crimes.

Despite good intentions and reforms, our courts remain bogged down by appeals and legal challenges. Every state, including New Jersey, has a long list of unresolved criminal cases that have been delayed by legal maneuvers and crowded court calendars. Multiple murderers waiting weeks from the death penalty as the courts are tied up helplessly in legal games.

The president's crime package seems to have little awareness of our courts. It would curb frivolous appellate petitions, cap the number of appeals and not set free, and it would speed mandatory sentencing. It would also speed the death penalty in cases where the crime is particularly heinous.

Courts would have the discretion to admit evidence obtained by police in good faith, and increased attention would be given to the problems posed by juvenile criminals who commit drive-by shootings and use guns to claim city neighborhoods as their turf.

Together with innovations in our prisons, including boot camps for juvenile offenders and mandatory drug treatment, the president's anti-crime program will send a message to our police officers and citizens that the war against crime is serious business, and that we are entering a new phase to recapture our streets and cities from the criminals.

Don't pay a fee for free service

To the Editor:

Several parents of newborns in the Elizabeth area have apparently fallen prey to a company that charges a fee for services available free of charge from Social Security. Reports have come in alleging that this company, located in Washington, D.C., has charged $15 for helping to process Social Security number applications for parents of newborns.

Some people have reported sending in the $15 fee but getting nothing in return. Those who do receive these services will get less than what Social Security provides at no cost whatsoever. This is because only Social Security can process applications for Social Security numbers.

The easiest way to get a Social Security number is to apply at the hospital where the child is born. To simplify the Social Security number application process for parents of newborns, Union County hospitals are offering the service free. Parents who have selected a name for their baby can authorize the state of New Jersey to send birth information to Social Security to issue a number.

All the parent has to do is check a block on the birth information form that is sent to the New Jersey Bureau of Vital Statistics indicating that they want this done. The state sends a computer tape to Social Security in Baltimore, Md., and Social Security cards are issued from there. It usually takes about two weeks to receive the card once Social Security receives the necessary information from the state.

The way to get a Social Security number for your newborn is to call, write, or visit any Social Security office. We can send you the application and you send it back with an original copy of the child's birth certificate and a document showing identity.

If an organization wants to charge you for a Social Security product or service, remember that your taxes have already paid for our services.

The council membership elected the following officers for the 1991-92 year: A. John Glockner of Westfield, president; Wayne Hampton of Bridgewater, commissioner; Robert Monto of Neshanic Station, vice president of program;

John Babcock of Boonton, vice president for finance; John Coburn of Cranford, vice president for administration; Robert Pfriendr of Hill-borough, treasurer and Kenneth Lipstein of Scotch Plains, legal counsel.

The business portion of the meeting included reports from the 1990-91 officers.

Highlighted accomplishments included Scouting for Food, which garnered 93 tons in food contributions; improved levels of leader training; a membership increase of 4.5 percent; quality, affordable and full summer camps, a balanced budget and the council being recognized as a National Quality Council.

Plaques of recognition were presented to the council officers who retired but will stay on board. They include Joseph Knapp of Fanwood, outgoing council commissioner and Finance Vice President John O'Sullivan of South Plainfield.

A contribution from Exxon Company, U.S.A. was presented by two Exxon retirees, Gordon Specht and George Groves. Both have been long-time Scouters in Westfield. They wrote a proposal to Exxon employees and retirees to be active volunteers. The Exxon grant will be used to purchase a laser printer for use with the council's current computer system.

Hospital cites volunteers

Children's Specialized Hospital in Mountainside recently honored more than 375 of its volunteers, including three residents of Springfield and three from Mountainside, for their efforts on behalf of the hospital during a special Volunteer Recognition Day.

Springfield volunteers honored were Isabelle Bosman, Barbara Pulis and Amalia Terry. Mountainside volunteers included Betty Anson, Jean Gallagher and Susan Haase. As part of the hospital's centennial celebration throughout 1991, the volunteers were treated to a retrospective look at the past 100 years of Children's Specialized.

"We're proud and appreciative of the ongoing dedication and service that the volunteers provide to our young patients," remarked Richard B. Ahlfeld, president of the pediatric rehabilitation hospital. "Our volunteers have been an important part of the hospital throughout our 100-year history."

Students march in opposition to incinerator

By Debbie Jordan Staff Writer

Nearly 200 students from elementary to high school ages marched from Rahway City Hall to Grover Cleveland School on Sunday to protest the proposed county trash incinerator...

The demonstration was organized by the Concerned Citizens of Union County to make residents aware of the dangers of incineration...

"The Rahway incinerator will be allowed to put out 1.6 tons of lead a year," said Pete Buross, a member of the Union County Concerned Citizens...

"During the march about 200 children carried hand-made signs and chanted, 'One, two, three, four - clean air is what we're fighting for...'"

Adrienne Savard, 13, explained why she is against the proposed incinerator.

"It pollutes the air, and a lot of my friends live around here," she said. Brandon Bodine, 11, said he, too, worries about his friends.

"It's right around my house and my school, and I don't want it to harm my friends or family."

Nine-year-old Gerald Vaughan commended himself for standing up for what he believes in.

"It was like being in a parade," Vaughan said. "People feel weird when they are looked at by other people. I felt like I had courage to fight it so I could have clean air."

Eight-year-old Stanley Williams said he, too, made a sacrifice when marching against the incinerator.

"My feet got really tired, but it was worth it," he said. "I want clean air."

Yaameen Goodson, 8, said he thinks recycling is the answer.

"There is a lot of litter, but there will be more by the incinerator," Goodson said. "I don't like people littering. I think they should recycle it."

Jen Carson, 13, said building the incinerator would be unfair to people who cannot afford to move.

"The incinerator is wrong because of its effects," Carson said. "People who can't afford to move will suffer. Young kids don't have the chance to move if they want. I think we should

A Children's March against incineration was held in Rahway on Sunday. Organized by the Concerned Citizens of Union County, the march began at the Rahway City Hall and ended at Grover Cleveland School in the city. compost instead. It would cut down on garbage by 60 percent."

Mary Rose Ronquillo, 13, said the garbage should be put in landfills instead of incinerators.

"The world is not perfect, but they're making it worse with the incinerator," Ronquillo said. "The garbage should be put in landfills where it can help the land grow with fertilizers."

The student demonstrators signed a letter they wrote to Gov. Jim Florio's wife, who is believed to be concerned about the issue.

"We know that you are worried about our environment," the letter said. "So are we. They are trying to build a garbage incinerator very close to our school. Burning garbage is dirty, dangerous and expensive. Recycling and composting will work. Please help us save our health. Stop the incinerator."

The letter was signed "The Children of Union County" and contained close to 200 signatures.

Joe Brescher, a Clark resident who attended the demonstration, said the public's lack of knowledge about the incinerator is what its builders count on.

"The people who are building the incinerator are counting on our lack of information and technical knowledge, but we can come together as individuals and do something," Brescher said. "In the meantime, they are counting on our ignorance."

County offers summer employ

Union County Freeholder Chairman James Connelly Welsh and the Union County Private Industry Council announced plans for the 1991 Summer Youth Employment and Training Program...

"This year, 565 economically disadvantaged youth under the age of 21 will be provided with a variety of classroom training and work experience activities in the program, which will run approximately five weeks," Welsh said.

He added, "This is not just any job a youth might find for the summer. With this program, the participants will be tested before and after the program in order to measure growth in aptitude and job readiness as a result of summer program participation. In addition, each youth will be provided with seminars on labor market orientation which will concentrate on job seeking and job keeping skills and counseling."

The work experience segment of the program will provide 25 hours per week of supervised work activity at $4.50 per hour. This segment of the program will be operated by the Urban League of Union County, which will handle eastern Union County, and the Plainfield Mayor's Task Force on Youth, which will serve the western portion. Each agency will be responsible for the development of suitable work sites and for providing safe, meaningful and supervised work activities.

Additionally, as a pilot project, the county of Union will administer a countywide parks program in conjunction with the Union County Department of Parks and Recreation. The project will utilize work sites located within 19 parks scattered throughout the county. This project will utilize existing county staff to provide supervision and other participant services at no cost to the operating program. This in turn will save the summer youth program more than $33,000 in administrative costs, resulting in more youth receiving employment and training services.

"This is another example of Union County Government looking at new ways to do things for less. By eliminating the use of outside contractors, we are able to save costs and direct the dollars directly toward servicing more youths. By eliminating the 'middleman,' we can reach more disadvantaged young people and assist them in preparing for the adult working world," Welsh said.

Classroom activities will be provided to many participants. Activities may include auto body, clerical, building maintenance, computers, remediation or electronics repair. Participants in this program will receive a training-related expense of $3.80 per hour for participation in the program. Participants also will receive labor market orientation, counseling and pre- and post-testing.

For further information on available programs, eligibility guidelines, and to begin the application process as soon as possible, those interested can contact Marilyn F. Gwathney of the Union County Department of Human Services at 558-8000.

Bassano voices concern over state budget plan

Union County Senator C. Louis Bassano expressed concern that a possible plan by the Florio administration to use utility taxes to balance the state budget could result in rate hikes, but gave his endorsement to a companion proposal to replace the surcharge on utility bills with a unit tax.

Bassano, who has sponsored legislation calling for a unit tax on actual utility usage, which he says is more equitable than the current percentage surcharge on utility service sales, said he was not optimistic about the effect of accelerating collection of gross receipt and franchise taxes from utility companies.

"Taking $1.5 billion from the utility companies could force them to raise rates. We might be accelerating the need for utilities to seek rate hikes, which will add another burden to the taxpayer's financial load," Bassano said.

Currently, utility companies usually save money by using the "reserve" money for investments or capital projects. The senator predicted that if these funds are lost to the state a year earlier, utility companies will seek rate hikes to make up for the investment loss.

"Utility companies are correct in their concern that this acceleration could result in reduced cash flow and increased rates," he said. "This method might fill the state's shortfall, but could create deficits for utility companies."

"It's reasonable to assume that if you must use money earmarked for savings or another project to pay a tax bill a year early, you are going to have to find another source of money. In the case of the utility companies, that source could be the consumer."

Bassano also charged the Florio administration with copying a Republican idea by suggesting a unit tax on utility bills.

"The idea is a good one. We should have been doing this for years because it will result in a savings for customers."

Under terms of a unit tax plan, instead of the current 13 percent surcharge on utility bills, consumers would pay a flat rate on actual electric, gas or telephone usage, a method that would result in more constant utility bills. Currently, the surcharge on utility bills is based on sales of usage. The higher the number of sales, the larger the surcharge. This has resulted in skyrocketing utility bills in times of high sales.

"I have been seeking the replacement of the surcharge with a flat, per unit charge for the past six years because it favors the consumer. Perhaps now that the administration seems to be attracted to the idea, it will start moving through the legislative process," Bassano said.

"Apparently, the Florio administration is beginning to see the value in some of the plans put forward by Republican legislators in the past. I would welcome the opportunity to work with the administration on establishing the unit tax plan."

County to receive grants for health care

Assemblyman Neil M. Cohen, D-Union, announced the award of two state health care grants to help fight tuberculosis, AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases in Union County.

"The AIDS problem is growing at epidemic proportions," Cohen said. "The grants will help fight these dreadful problems." Cohen said the grants will help fund a Tuberculosis-

Human HIV activity co-op agreement that has been going on for almost 10 years.

The grants will be used to conduct tuberculosis surveillance and provide preventive medicine against the HIV virus and other STDs.

"I'm glad to see the state has channeled funding so the community facility can fight these problems," Cohen said. "The grant money will be spent to target areas with high incidences of tuberculosis, which coincides with high incidences of HIV and STDs."

Cohen said, after tuberculosis areas are targeted, patients will be tested. If they have tuberculosis, medicine will be administered to prevent HIV and other STDs.

The grants awarded to Union County by the State Department of Health amount to the sum of $57,239.

UNION COUNTY TAXES CUT!

$$$ An URGENT Message from Your Freeholder Chairman $$$

James Connelly Welsh
Chairman
Union County Board
Freeholders

CALL YOUR FREEHOLDERS TODAY -- TELL THEM TO VOTE FOR THE $6. BILLION DOLLAR TAX CUT

Dear Fellow Taxpayer -

For the FIRST time in recent memory, Union County Taxpayers will see the County Budget reduced by 4.4%. This TAX REDUCTION came about as a result of layoffs, early retirement programs, increased State aid from Governor Florio, streamlining of County Government; and generally saying "NO" to Department heads while requiring them to do more with less money.

Despite the reduction, there are many vested interests who are trying to get Freeholders to vote against the budget. I need your help. Please call the Union County Freeholder Board at 527-4100 and request your Freeholders to VOTE FOR THE TAX CUT!

Sincerely,

James Connelly Welsh

Cohen bill to assist cancer patients, families

Assemblyman Neil M. Cohen, D-Union, has introduced landmark health care legislation in the Assembly to ease the emotional agony faced by many cancer patients and their families when the prospect for life or death hinge on the high cost of a bone marrow transplant operation.

"Fighting the ravages of cancer is a tough enough battle," Cohen said in introducing the bill, which would require health care insurers to provide coverage for bone marrow transplants in their standard benefit packages.

"Given the level of modern day technology, it is unimaginable that cancer patients and their families must face such anguish and despair in trying to finance a transplant," Cohen added.

The measure, A-4873, was immediately referred to the Assembly Insurance Committee, whose chairman, Michael Aduabato of Essex County, has promised to give the bill priority attention, according to Cohen.

"There is genuine urgency involved here. Every day of delay means additional human suffering. Chairman Aduabato is sensitive to this concern and is as eager as I am to see this proposal become law at the earliest possible moment," Cohen said.

Cohen drafted the proposal as a result of the suffering experienced by a friend and her family. "My friend was employed full time and received comprehensive health and insurance coverage through her employer.

"Both her employer and the insurance company furnished her complete medical records prior to her being hired. After undergoing a battery of tests to determine her potential as a bone marrow recipient, she was assured that the procedure would be covered.

"Virtually on the eve of going to the hospital, she and her family were informed that the insurance carrier was declining to cover her treatment. Basically, she was told she was on her own.

"Only through the ability of her family to come up with the sufficient and significant funds for the hospital was the operation performed. If not for her family's ability to come up with the tens of thousands of dollars, she would have been left out in the cold, deprived of potential years with her family and friends. But there are thousands of people in New Jersey and elsewhere who have no hope of financing such a procedure without insurance coverage," Cohen said.

Typically, Cohen explained, insurance companies deny coverage for the procedure because they contend the bone marrow surgery is still in the experimental stages. Cohen said this contention is no longer true since bone marrow transplant surgery has become increasingly prevalent in recent years.

Nonetheless, he concedes that the procedure is far short of achieving its potential as a routine medical option and thus the federal government ought to commit resources to making the surgery available to Americans at all economic levels. In the meantime, he said, the passage of his proposal is a veritable necessity in the interests of promoting basic human decency.

Twenty-nine students inducted into National Honor Society

Twenty-nine new members were inducted into the National Honor Society at Mother Seton Regional High School in Clark at an annual spring induction ceremony. The induction took place at a general assembly attended by the administration, faculty and student body of Mother Seton and parents and friends of the inductees.

The new members of the National Honor Society were presented to Principal Sister Regina Martin, and the honor society pledge was administered to the members by Geraldine Welsch, moderator. Both new and present members and their families were honored at a luncheon after the induction ceremony.

versity and a juris doctor degree from Seton Hall Law School. Curran has been elected to the New Jersey General Assembly for four terms. She also has served as president of the New Jersey Board of Public Utilities.

Trivett hurls shutout as Springfield wins

By Mark Yablonsky
Sports Editor

Clayton Trivett threw a three-hit shutout and his teammates backed him up with solid fielding and daring baserunning, as Springfield opened its 1991 American Legion baseball season by defeating Berkeley Heights, 2-0, on Monday night in Springfield.

Trivett, who went 5-2 for Dayton Regional during the spring months, struck out seven and bested mound opponent Chris Roof, who struck out six and permitted just five hits. But Berkeley Heights was charged with five errors, compared to none for Springfield.

First baseman Vinnie Cocilovo, a Hillside resident, reached on an error leading off the last of the fifth inning, and soon reached second base by way of a wild pitch. Matt Gallaro then dropped a looping liner into right, putting men at the corners with none out. On Roof's pickoff attempt to first base one out later, Cocilovo took off quickly for home plate and ended up beating the throw from first.

The Post #228ers then added an insurance tally in the sixth in similar fashion. With one out, third baseman Terrence Young hit a hopper to third base that resulted in a wild throw and Young ending up on second. One out later, Cocilovo beat out a grounder to the right side, and a hustling Young came around to score all the way from second on the play.

"I think we will start hitting a little bit more, I don't think there's any question about that," commented Springfield coach Tom Long, whose team will play at home tomorrow night against Watchung Hills at 5:45 p.m., and at home against Union on Saturday at 10:30 a.m. "But we do have good team speed, and kids who are aggressive baserunners."

"I think it benefits any team to be aggressive. It's nice to be able to fall back on the fact that you have guys who can run."

Sayki hits slam

In recent Springfield Junior Baseball League play, a grand-slam home run by John Sayki and three hits by Brett Stein led R.J. Michaels past Liberty Transport, 14-2.

Stein hit a single, double and triple, while teammate Mike Quick added a single and double. Dan Fabeizio pitched two innings for Liberty Transport.

Fein competes

Springfield resident Karen Fein was among the 85 girls competing at the recent United States Gymnastics Federation Level 8 State Championships. Karen competes for the Maplewood Dance and Gymnastics Academy, and the Maplettes team finished fourth out of 16 teams.

Karen qualified for the Level 8 Regional competition with an all-around score of 33.20 (a score of 32 is needed to qualify for Regionals). In individual competition, she her highest score of the meet, an 8.45, on the floor exercise.

The U.S.G.F. Regional meet will be held May 11-12 in Maryland.

MAN OF THE YEAR — Hillside resident David Taub, center, is presented with his plaque as 'Man of the Year' by Henry Hascup of Lodi, left, the New Jersey Boxing Hall of Fame president, at a special luncheon last Sunday at the Town and Campus Banquet Center in Union. Taub, 84, has won countless other awards and is still active with senior citizens. At right is NJBHOF secretary Ray Spencer.

Schutz picks Washington Univ.

Jamie Schutz of Springfield recently announced his plans to attend Washington University in St. Louis and play basketball for the Bears next season.

Schutz, who was forced to miss a good part of the 1990-91 season with Dayton Regional because of an injury, appeared in only a handful of games, averaging three points per contest.

But Schutz, a team captain and two-year letterman, also lettered in soccer, playing goalkeeper. The 6-foot-5, 205-pound senior helped his team qualify for the state sectional playoffs.

The Springfield resident has enrolled in Washington

University's College of Arts and Sciences, and plans to major in political science.

"We're extremely pleased that Jamie has decided to attend Washington University," said Mark Edwards, the school's head men's basketball coach. "His academic background is outstanding, and we envision him adding a great deal to the quality of life at Washington University, both academically and athletically."

In the past season, Washington made its fourth trip to post-season NCAA Div. 3 play in the last five years. The Bears captured the University Athletic Association (UAA) championship and finished the 1990-91 campaign with a 19-9 record — their seventh consecutive winning season.

Legion ball adds two, drops 2

By Mark Yablonsky
Sports Editor

With the return of summer comes the return of American Legion baseball, and in Union County this year, 13 teams will compete for the right to advance into state tournament play.

With the loss of Cranford and Clark, the Union County Legion league has added Los Cubanitos of Elizabeth and Watchung Hills to its rank. The latter team, while a Somerset County squad, will play in Union under permission from state legion officials on a one-year basis.

But there are two even more noticeable events this year. For openers, the Union County League will compress its schedule somewhat, opening a week late — on June 10 — and finishing on or by July 19, with a one or two-day extension coming only if absolutely necessary.

More importantly, the league has altered its forfeit policy dramatically from what it was a year ago, when Clark and Cranford's departure had a big effect on the final standings. Instead of teams losing points when other squads forfeit out of the league before season's end, points will now be automatically awarded to teams that would have faced the departed squads. Last season, several teams had points deducted from their total after Clark and Cranford — whom many of the contenders had already beaten — dropped out because of two forfeits each.

"I'm glad we changed the rule," said legion county chairman and Roselle Post #229 coach Bob Catullo. "We noticed the mistake and we rectified it, which was good."

Yanks defeat Dodgers, 12-2

The following are the results of recent baseball play in the Mountainside Little League.

YANKEES 12, DODGERS 2

Solid defense from Matt DeAnna, Sarah McDonough and Derrick Whritenour led the Yankees. Offensively, Whritenour singled, doubled and homered, Stephen Cash doubled and drove in two runs, and Jeffrey Jenkins had two hits. For the Dodgers, Joshua Zawislak and Kevin Watt doubled, and Ed Barrett tripled.

ASTROS 10, RED SOX 1

The Astros did most of their work in the first inning by scoring eight runs right off the bat. Brandon Cantagallo, Andrew Dubno, Ryan Farhion, David Belden, Mike Debbie, Shaun Kroon and Eric Cantagallo all had hits. Mark Cantagallo and Tim Britt both struck out three batters. Chris Mason, Chris Fresco and Joshua Moss had hits for the Red Sox.

ASTROS 10, DODGERS 2

Hits from Eric Cantagallo, David Belden, Andrew Dubno, Tim Britt and Brandon Cantagallo. Mike Debbie and Mark Cantagallo had doubles, while Elizabeth Klebaur smacked an over-the-convex, grand-slam home run. David Weinglass, Kevin Watt, Edward Barrett and Lauren Beasley all had hits for the Dodgers.

ASTROS 6, YANKEES 4

Mark Cantagallo and Tim Britt each pitched a perfect inning with no hits and no runs, while Eric Cantagallo had two singles, Ryan Farhion a single and two RBI, and Elizabeth Klebaur and Mike Debbie two hits and two RBI each. Derrick Whritenour singled twice, Jason Guidicciptero doubled and drove in two runs, and Nick Mancinelli singled for the Yankees. Tim Gunther struck out two batters, and John Doorley whiffed one.

CHRIS CAREY
DH, BREARLEY

Ralph LaConte has coached many good players during his five years at Brearley Regional, and those players have been steady, day in and day out, and often at more than one position — kind of like Chris Carey.

Carey batted .328, collecting 20 hits, 20 RBI, 21 runs, five doubles and one game-winning run batted in. That was as a designated hitter.

From the mound, Carey owned a 5-3 record. He worked a total of 46 innings in nine games, while striking out 46 batters and walking 21.

"He's another baseball purist," LaConte said. "He's a thinker."

MIKE LILOIA
P, UNION

On the football field, quarterback Mike Liloia is a tough, hard-nosed leader. But on the baseball field, pitcher Mike Liloia is becoming one of the real premier hurlers, not only in the Watchung Conference and Union County, but maybe even in the state, too.

And after the kind of season Liloia had in 1991, it would be difficult to argue that point. Appearing in 72 innings, Liloia struck out 88 batters, walked 25 and allowed just 38 hits. His 7-4 record was accompanied by a nifty 1.75 earned run average.

And of his four losses, only one — a 12-2 setback to Elizabeth on April 23 — was by a decisive margin.

"He gives you his heart and soul in the game, he's just so intense," Union coach Gordon LeMatty said. "He just doesn't want to pitch, he wants to be in your lineup, too."

CHRIS VAN VLIET
P, ROSELLE CATHOLIC

Just a junior, Chris Van Vliet proved to be the King of the Hill for the Roselle Catholic Lions.

He put together a 9-1 record for the Lions. He gave up 32 hits and struck out 93 over 54 2/3 innings. He allowed a mere 12 earned runs to finish with an ERA of 1.53.

He helped his own cause by batting .402, one of the top marks on the team.

"Chris has proved himself to be the ace of the staff," Ryan said. "He showed all season that he knows how to control a game when he's on the mound. He's a strong, steady pitcher, a leader on the team."

BRAD EDWARDS
1B, RAHWAY

Offensively and defensively, Brad Edwards was one of the stars of the 1991 Rahway High School baseball team, and one of the reasons the Indians finished with a 13-11-1 record this year.

At the plate, the junior first baseman batted .400. He smacked eight doubles, five triples and four home runs. He knocked in 28 runs while scoring 16 more.

Defensively, he was a sure and steady glove for the Indians, committing just two errors all season.

Andy Huber was another of the main reasons why Dayton did so well this year. One of the school's top athletes, Huber was the team's top hitter, with 36 hits in 82 at-bats for a sturdy .439 average — which is ideal for a leadoff hitter.

Appearing in all 24 of Dayton's games, the hustling junior infielder scored 21 times, stole 10 bases, drew eight walks and struck out only 12 times. What's more, Huber also batted in 16 runs, which is outstanding for a leadoff man.

Defensively, Huber was charged with eight errors at shortstop, but only one of those miscues came after the 10th game of the season.

ANDY HUBER
SS, DAYTON

Derek Vanderkoooy is only a junior, but already he is putting up the kind of numbers that few players do.

Steady and consistent all season long, the right fielder socked 30 hits in 63 official trips to the plate for a .476 batting average. He added on 31 runs batted in, while doubling five times, and hitting one triple and homer each.

Vanderkoooy also scored 25 runs, and always seemed to be in the middle of big innings. One of his biggest moments of the season came when he tripled to tie the score, then came home on a base hit to pull out a 6-5 win over Brearley Regional on May 21.

"Derek is very coachable and has a great attitude," Park coach Jack Shaw said. "He plays baseball the way it should be played and he sets a good example for our younger players to emulate."

DEREK VANDERKOOY
OF, ROS. PARK

Among Greg Bennett's accomplishments for the Linden High School baseball team this season was his six home runs, which set a new school single-season record.

But the junior outfielder didn't just hit for power, he hit for average too, as his .400 batting average will prove. He knocked in 24 runs and his 27 runs-scored led the team.

"Greg is really quick on the bases," said Linden coach Joe Mahan. "When he gets on, he makes things happen. He's also got good speed in the field and a very strong and accurate throwing arm. I'm certainly looking forward to having him back again next season."

GREG BENNETT
OF, LINDEN

Roselle catcher Mike Massaro lived up to his own lofty reputation this season with another typically outstanding performance for the Rams.

He batted .418 for the season and hit a triple, three doubles and five home runs, including a grand slam. His 12 runs-scored and 16 RBI led the team.

Defensively, Massaro was equally excellent, and he used his reputation to his advantage. "Teams didn't try to run on us as much as they might have," Roselle coach Stan Kokie said. "They knew Mike has a super arm. It's strong and accurate."

Immaculata was one team that decided to test Massaro's arm and he responded by throwing out four runners in one game.

Massaro has accepted a four-year baseball scholarship offer from the University of Dayton.

MIKE MASSARO
C, ROSELLE

CLAYTON TRIVETT
2B, DAYTON

Clayton Trivett knows and loves the game of baseball.

And Trivett was one of the main reasons behind Dayton's 14-9-1 season, one that saw the Bulldogs reach the title game in North Jersey, Group 2, Section 2.

With intensity and determination leading him on, Trivett ended up batting .395, while scoring 16 runs, slugging five triples, two doubles and two homers. Defensively, the junior infielder committed just four errors all season.

And on the mound, Trivett hurled a total of 51 innings and went 5-2. He struck out 37 and walked 30.

TONY MENDOZA
3B, ROS. CATHOLIC

The Roselle Catholic High School baseball team put together a very impressive 20-5 record thanks in part to the stellar play of the Lions' hard-hitting third baseman, Tony Mendoza.

The senior led the team with a .455 batting average and he drove in 27 runs as well.

"Tony did a great job all year," said Lions' head coach Jeff Ryan. "He's steady and consistent in the field and at the plate. He's just a great all-around player."

Mendoza is taking his baseball progress to Lehigh University next year.

TIM ZAWACKI
OF, ROS. CATHOLIC

Among his many talents on the baseball diamond, Roselle Catholic outfielder Tim Zawacki this season displayed an amazing ability to hit in the clutch.

In both of the Lions' North Jersey Parochial B tournament wins, they trailed going into their final at-bat. And both times, it was Zawacki who stepped to the plate and knocked in the winning run.

Zawacki batted .414 for the Lions and his 26 RBI were second on the team. He also saw some time on the mound and finished with a 3-0 record, striking out 23 in 25 innings.

"Tim is a great player and a great person," Ryan said. "He slowed in the middle of the season because he was sick, but then he picked up again. And he really came through in the clutch at the end of the season."

Zawacki, a senior, will be attending Monmouth College in the fall, where he will play both baseball and basketball.

Mahan calls his outstanding catcher, senior Joe Marretta, "a really gutsy player." When you consider that he had to overcome a rotator cuff injury sustained during the football season, you can understand why.

Despite the injury, Marretta put together a solid year, at the plate and behind it, for the Tigers. He batted .416 and hit five home runs. He also drove in 34 runs.

"Joe had an excellent season," Mahan said. "He did everything we asked of him, offensively and defensively. He's an outstanding player and an outstanding person."

Marretta will be playing baseball at St. Peter's College next year.

WHO'S ON FIRST ?

This week's question: Who is the oldest pitcher in big-league history to win a Cy Young Award?

Last week's answer: Reggie Jackson, who was rightfully known as "Mr. October," hit over 500 home runs in his career, but he also holds the dubious distinction of being the only player in big-league history to strike out over 2,000 times — exactly 2,597.

Yet Jackson, who won World Series MVP awards in 1973 with the Oakland A's and in 1977 with the New York Yankees, was one of the biggest money players in baseball history — as his nickname so aptly suggests.

This week, Henry Hascup of Lodi submitted a correct answer.

Kean girls' camp slated

The 15th annual Kean College girls' basketball camp is scheduled to take place during the week of June 24-28, on the school's main campus in Union.

Based on the "mastering of basketball fundamentals," the week-long camp will be run by Kean women's basketball coach Rich Wilson. Union Catholic girls' basketball coach Kathy Matthews will assist Wilson.

The price for the camp is $125, and $110 if more than five players from any one school attend. A non-refundable deposit of $60 is required. Further information is available by calling 527-2436.

Owl golfers in nationals

For the ninth time in the last 10 years, Union County College's golf team is being represented at the National Junior College Athletic Association.

Casey O'Reilly of Roseland and Mike McCrea of Westfield are competing in the four-day, 72-hole tournament, which began on Tuesday and is scheduled to last until tomorrow.

Talented cast breathes life into Bard's play

By Lisa Batitto
Entertainment Editor

The New Jersey Shakespeare Festival kicked off its 29th season on Friday with a staging of the Bard's romantic comedy "The Tempest." If this production is any indication, patrons will be flocking to Drew University in Madison for years to come in order to see the plays the NJSF brings to New Jersey.

The play is directed by Bonnie Monte, who is making her production debut at the NJSF with "The Tempest." She assumed the post of NJSF artistic director in October 1990.

"The Tempest" is set on a magical island in the world of ancient Greece, and it tells the tale of banished Italian duke Prospero (Miguel Perez) who is now the exiled ruler of this island. When fate brings a ship carrying his old enemies to the island, Prospero stirs up a violent storm to revenge himself, and sets a whirlwind of events in motion in order to right past wrongs. With the assistance of his servant/fairy spirit Ariel (A. Benard Cummings), Prospero uses his magical powers to weave illusions around his captive enemies. During this, his daughter Miranda (Julie Moses) falls in love with Ferdinand (Barnaby Spring) — his enemy's son — and his other servant, Caliban (Conan McCarty), joins up with drunken castaways from the King of Naples' (Gordan Stanley) ship.

The play begins with the tempest that brings Prospero's enemies to the island. The effects used to recreate this scene are admirable. Unfortunately, most of the dialogue is muffled by the loud crashing sounds of the thunder and waves so unless one is familiar with the play, this scene could be a source of confusion. Future patrons are urged to brush up on their Shakespeare before seeing the show.

Following this turbulent scene, the action slows down and the focus turns to the polished dialogue that is Shakespeare's trademark and the acting ability of the principals. We meet three of the plays' central characters — Prospero, Ariel and Miranda. Shakespeare meant for Prospero to be powerful, eloquent and solemn and as played by Perez, the character is just that. Perez's commanding character is the opposite of Cummings' airy Ariel. With his cat-like moves and lean body, Cummings is the embodiment of the spirit. Perez and Cummings compliment each other perfectly on stage and each breathes life into their characters.

However, with Perez and Cummings demanding attention, it attracts closer scrutiny to Moses' Miranda and, unfortunately, her performance isn't in their league. Miranda is a girl who has been sheltered from the real world by her father, so she should be the picture of chastity and innocence. Moses seems to confuse innocence with youthfulness and at times she threatens to dissolve into a giggling little girl. Worse, there is no chemistry between Moses and Spring, who awkwardly plays Miranda's love interest Ferdinand. The audience never becomes convinced that these two are in love despite all of the fawning and swooning they do over each other.

With Prospero and Ariel providing the drama, and Miranda and Ferdinand on hand as the mismatched lovers, the only ingredient left is comedy. This is in heavy supply when Stephano (Fred Sullivan, Jr.), Caliban (Conan McCarty) and Trinculo (James Michael Reilly) appear on the scene. Sullivan nearly steals the show with his wise-cracking, booze-guzzling Stephano, a castaway from the ship carrying Alonso, the King of Naples. Reilly plays Trinculo with the proper mix of confusion and naivete, while McCarty's Caliban brims with arrogance and sleaziness. Caliban aspires to kill Prospero and rape Miranda, but he still is able to remain loyal to Stephano, who wishes to become king of the island.

The third group on the island is composed of Alonso; Sebastian, Alonso's brother, (Tom Pasley); Antonio, Prospero's brother and the usurping Duke of Milan, (Douglas Krizner); Gonzalo, an old councillor, (William Preston); Adrian, a lord, (William Preston); and Francisco, a lord, (Francis Henry). While this group tries frantically to find Ferdinand, who they believe perished in the storm, Sebastian plots to become the King of Naples by murdering Alonso. Each actor conveys the essence of royalty his part demands but the stand-out in these scenes is Pasley, who is both detached and conniving as the sinister Sebastian.

A. Benard Cummings as Ariel plays his heavenly tunes while Barnaby Spring as Ferdinand, Miguel Perez as Prospero and Julie Moses as Miranda dispute in a scene from "The Tempest."

Judges of senior art show named

Three artists, Rose Mary Gatto, Sandra DeGeneste and Bonnie C. Hagstrum, will judge and critique works at the Union County Senior Citizen Art Show. Curators for this year's contest and exhibit are Anthony Nicoli and Robert Yoskowitz.

The show opens at the Tomasulo Gallery, Union County College, Cranford, on June 27. The public is invited to meet the artists and judges at a reception between 1:30 and 3:30 p.m.

Gatto of Cranford is a member of the National Association of Women Artists and the New Jersey Watercolor Society. A recipient of numerous prizes and awards, Gatto's work is widely exhibited in New Jersey galleries and museums.

DeGeneste of Maplewood is a graphic artist and designer who currently teaches at Linden High School Vocational-Technical Building. She was honored with a Governor's Teaching Recognition Award last year.

Hagstrum of Summit is an award-winning sculptor and member of the Women's Sculpture Association of New York. Her work is currently on exhibit in a one-woman show at the National Academy of Sciences in Washington where it can be seen through Aug. 20. She has participated in many solo and group shows and her work is represented in collections throughout the United States.

Nicoli, professor of Fine Arts at Union County College, is the curator of the Tomasulo Gallery. He is a New Jersey State Council on the Arts Fellowship winner. Yoskowitz also teaches fine arts at Union County College. His paintings have been exhibited throughout the metropolitan area. An art historian, Yoskowitz also writes for several publications.

The Senior Art Exhibit will be on display at the gallery until July 25. Hours are from 1 to 3 p.m., Mondays through Thursdays and 1 to 7 p.m. Wednesday evenings. The show is sponsored by the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders, the Department of Parks and Recreation, Office of Cultural and Heritage Affairs, the Department of Human Services, Division on Aging and Union County College.

The first place winners in each of the six designated categories will represent Union County at the 25th annual New Jersey Senior Citizen Art Show in September. Additional prize winners will be selected at the Union County show and their work will hang in the freeholder's meeting room during August. Participating artists must live in Union County and be at least 60 years old.

Despite a few flaws, the NJSF does justice to Shakespeare's "The Tempest." Most of the actors are first-rate and are as talented as those found on any Broadway stage. The costumes and scenery deserve a special nod for conveying the fantasy atmosphere that permeates the play.

"The Tempest" will be performed through June 22 at Bowne Theater on the Drew University campus. Performances are Tuesday through Saturday at 8 p.m.; Sundays at 7 p.m.; Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday matinees at 2 p.m. Prices range from $5 to $30. Tickets are available by calling the NJSF box office at 377-4487, between 10 a.m.-6 p.m. Season subscription and group sales are available.

Harry Devlin, artist, of Mountainside takes time out to relax as he sits in his studio amid his work, including his architectural painting in the righthand corner.

Book chronicles Devlin's life

By Bea Smith
Lifestyle Editor

An attractive, informative coffee-table book, "Harry Devlin — A Retrospective," published this year by the Morris Museum in conjunction with an exhibition from January to March, has enhanced the career of the ever-popular artist who hails from Mountainside.

Although his career really needs no further enhancement, those who are familiar with the varied works of this versatile individual will be enchanted by the wealth of information and photographs offered to the public. The marvelous book, which was written by Barbara J. Mitnik, with a foreword by Thomas H. Kean, former governor of New Jersey and president of Drew University, has everything an art student, art enthusiast, or just anyone who is fond of Harry Devlin and his work could ever want.

In fact, Kean, in his foreword about "Harry...master of precision...and a man of abiding integrity," says that "to consider the vast array of illustrations, paintings, cartoons and writings that Harry Devlin has created is to consider the enormous potential of the human mind and graceful touch of the human hand."

on the shelf

The book, which also is considered a Devlin catalogue, was designed by Devlin's son, Brion, who was assisted by Michael Love and David Devlin. Photography was provided by another son, Nicholas Devlin, with Michael Bergman, Ray Jones and Mark Hennessey. The publication was underwritten by The Friends of Harry Devlin, and the project was supported in part with public funds by a grant from the New Jersey State Council on the Arts, Department of State.

Beginning at the beginning of Devlin's early life, with photographs of his parents and himself as a child, the book explains how Devlin became

Mountainsider immerses himself in the arts

By Bea Smith
Lifestyle Editor

What makes Harry Devlin of Mountainside so unique is that he seems to accept his genius and talent in such an unassuming way.

His unbelievable skill and versatility is endless — he's an artist, a writer, a cartoonist, an architectural historian, a loving and attentive husband and the father of seven children who have made him proud of their accomplishments.

And what's even more unusual about this man is that numerous articles have been written about him, and the Morris Museum has published a photographic biography called "Harry Devlin — A Retrospective," written by Barbara J. Mitnik, guest curator, with a foreword by former New Jersey governor Thomas H. Kean, now president of Drew University.

From pulp magazine illustrations, naval identification work, cartoons, comics, portraits and architectural paintings, Victorian and modern, Devlin has run the gamut of contemporary art. Throughout his life, he has worked with paint brush, pencils, pens, cameras, lighting, and photographs — and he also found time to collaborate on a number of books with his wife, Wendie Devlin, herself an author and artist.

Devlin's books include "American Romantic Architecture," 21 children's books, three films, and cartoons for Collier's magazine, the Newark Evening News and editorial cartoons for the New York Daily News.

During a recent chat, the 73-year-old Devlin modestly responded to a question on the Morris Museum book about him. "The book was written by a girl who really did a great job of research," he said of Mitnik.

He acknowledged that he has some portrait exhibitions coming up soon and that he recently finished a commission for a painting of Peck School in Morristown. "I'm also painting an old mansion. And before that, I just finished illustrating a new children's book which will be coming out in March 1992 called 'Grandfather's Summer.' It's the eighth of the Cranberry series written by my wife," he explained with pride in his voice.

"I've done mostly children's books," he explained, "but I couldn't have done any without Wendie. Recently, most of the painting that I've done has been 19th century domestic architecture."

Devlin sighed and then chuckled, "I love to paint homes that people live in. Portrait painting is the most difficult to do. I try to show my integrity as an artist, but it is difficult to satisfy the people."

Devlin, who was born in Jersey City, moved to Elizabeth with his parents and his brother when he was a young boy. He was creative early on and while he was in third grade in William Livingston School, Elizabeth, he drew a picture on the blackboard that impressed both his teacher and the principal. By the time he finished Hamilton Junior High School and Thomas Jefferson High School, both in Elizabeth, his artistic talents were established. Despite the fact that his parents wanted him to become a doctor, he continued to pursue his career in art. He had a part-time job at the Newark Airport painting insignias on U.S. Army mail planes. He also became interested in model aircraft construction, and he was able to construct a model entirely from observation.

He was graduated from high school in 1935, and attended Syracuse University, which Devlin said offered one of the few fine arts degree programs available. In his senior year, he met Dorothy Wendie, who would soon become his wife. She was known as Wendie to her family and friends, and she was art editor of the yearbook, while Devlin was art editor of the humor magazine.

After he was graduated, he obtained various jobs on magazines to do cartoons and after he was hired by Life magazine to prepare U.S. Army manuals, he and Wendie were married. That was in August 1941, and they lived modestly in New York City.

"During the war," Devlin recalled, "I did a lot of work for the Identification and Characteristics Section of the Office of Naval Intelligence." He joined the Navy in October 1942 and settled his wife and first son, Harry, whom everyone called "Herky," in Washington, D.C. During the war, Devlin produced technical drawings and paintings, but he also managed to create some humor with his caricatures and cartoons for posters and magazine covers.

After the war, Devlin began creating political cartoons for various newspapers including the Daily News.

During the McCarthy era, the News asked Devlin to draw a political cartoon in support of the Wisconsin senator, and he refused. He was promptly fired.

"That was a terrible time for the United States," he recalled. "Why McCarthy had the whole country scared to death. He was a very dangerous man. And when they asked me to do a pro-McCarthy cartoon, I refused, and of course I was fired."

Devlin did manage to work elsewhere after that. And, he said, he really loved doing cartoons more than anything else. "It's like drawing my alter ego. I enjoy doing cartoons immensely. They're very different from painting."

Also, he said, he loved doing illustrations with his wife. "I find them very creative," he said. "Working with my wife is very pleasant."

She's a very special person," he mused. "She can be demanding with her work, but I don't mess with her writing, and she doesn't mess with mine."

Originally, the Devlins' seven children were their best critics. Now that they are grown up, their father indicated, they still love the books.

They are Harry, 48, "the lawyer in the family; Wendie, 46, a writer; Jeffrey, 43, owner of an advertising production company and television producer; Alexandra, 41, an artist; Brion, 39, producer with an ad agency; Nicholas, 37, an artist with an interior design company; and David, 35, who is with an ad agency. "They are all related in the art field."

The Devlins moved to Mountainside in 1948, and they found a "charming mid-19th century house

WHERE TO DINE

A Guide to Find the Finest Dining in New Jersey

By Chris Smith

The Pizza Gourmet is nestled in unassuming fashion alongside the NBO clothing store and Seaman's furniture outlet on Route 22 East in Union. Although you can't see the entrance from the roadway, don't be deceived by the apparent lack of fanfare. The Pizza Gourmet offers Union County residents a surprisingly broad array of well-prepared Italian entrees,

Restaurant review

in portions large enough to satisfy both Paul Bunyan and his blue ox, Babe.

The dining area is spacious and capable of seating 50 for either lunch or dinner. A well-planned table scheme makes a big difference in the quality of one's dining experience. It is a relief to find that there are still eateries left in the world where you can feast and chat with your companions without having to scoot your chair forward or backward whenever people pass.

The Pizza Gourmet

Tom Koyas and his wife, Nadine, opened the restaurant in January. They are very kind and truly seem to enjoy the sight of customers loosening their belts one or two notches as they leave. "We came here because there are a lot of businesses in the area," said Koyas. "It's a densely populated area, and we want to let as many people as possible know about what we try to do."

The establishment offers a typical selection of appetizers, such as scungilli salad and a spinach saute, and an extensive list of entrees ranging from the zuppa de pesi to a shrimp frangese.

My guest and I shared two appetizers during our trip to The Pizza Gourmet: a fresh calamari salad and a plate of spicy-hot mussels marinara. Both of the dishes were delicately spiced and had a zest that was characteristic of the entire meal.

After the auspicious beginning, dinner continued with a shrimp scampi for my guest, and a wonderful, greaseless scungilli marinara for yours truly. Smiles tugged at the corner of our mouths when we noticed the veritable ocean-full of shellfish used for each of our orders. The Koyas simply chuckled in affirmation of our obvious contentment.

The family bakes its own bread each evening, and the product of their efforts is indeed flawless.

All of the ingredients were fresh and came to the table piping hot. It seems odd to mention that a restaurant serves their cooked entrees "hot," but if you eat out as often as I do, you've probably learned that you can't take anything for granted.

Currently, the Pizza Gourmet's dessert menu consists only of cannoli. However, the owner was quick to mention that he will offer an expanded selection with ice cream, including spumoni, in the near future. "We're just getting started," Koyas said. "There is a lot that we are planning to do here."

Appetizers ranged from $3.25 to $5.25, and entrees were very reasonably priced from $3.25 to $9.25. In addition, a broad lunch menu of hot and cold sandwiches and, of course, pizza round out the list of offerings.

The restaurant is open Monday-Thursday from 11 a.m.-10 p.m.; Friday and Saturday from 11 a.m.-11 p.m.; and Sunday from noon to 10 p.m. Deliveries may be requested for anything on the menu until closing time, and are made throughout the county.

The Koyas family does not skimp on their portions, so don't try to be dainty as you might elsewhere. Imagine yourself as the biggest, brawniest lumberjack that your latent childhood imagination can muster, and you will have the mindset needed to propel you through the mounds of steaming delectables that Tom and Nadine will happily place before you. I don't know if Paul Bunyan eats Italian food in your imagination, but if he does, you might see his trusty ox waiting patiently in the parking lot outside The Pizza Gourmet.

Periodic safety inspections can save lives

For every American lost during the 42 days of Operation Desert Storm several more died on our nation's highways because of accidents caused by mechanical failure of the vehicle. While both types of losses are tragic and unacceptable, many highway deaths can be avoided through periodic vehicle inspection and maintenance, according to automotive industry sources. Among these is the Coalition for Safer, Cleaner Vehicles, an industry/consumer group which claims inspection programs could achieve a minimum of a 15 percent reduction in vehicle crashes. This could save 6,900 lives, 510,000 injuries and $11 billion in related economic costs.

The more thorough the inspection, the more effective it has proven to be. It's relatively easy to spot a dangerous tire, but brake inspection is more demanding. And brake failure runs a close second to tires as the most common vehicle defect found in fatal accidents.

In Pennsylvania, one of 21 states with compulsory vehicle safety inspection, two wheels are removed for brake examination. Also, the vehicle is road tested for braking performance. Seventeen percent of their vehicles are rejected for brake problems.

In Virginia a third of vehicles are rejected because of faulty brakes. With their new inspection program in operation they saw a 48 percent decline in accidents due to vehicle defects.

Safety inspection programs have a good track record, according to authorities, boasting a 17 percent lower accident rate than states without them. In New Jersey, where safety inspection had been a part of motoring life for 52 years, only 12 percent of vehicles are rejected for brake discrepancies. And a recent poll shows 80 percent of New Jersey motorists favor mandatory annual vehicle inspections.

One equipment manufacturer, having checked 1,000 vehicles in Washington, DC, Chicago and San Francisco, reported 19.1 percent were found to have imbalance in the braking systems. This condition causes uneven stopping.

"Even the best state-mandated program is no substitute for a comprehensive examination of the braking system by a qualified technician," said Car Care Council President Donald B. Midgley. "If an owner will invest in the time to have all four wheels removed for a thorough inspection, he'll enjoy the peace of mind of knowing the totally system is safe and dependable or he will know that repairs are needed. With all four wheels removed a mechanic can inspect pads and rotors, drums and linings plus all hydraulic components.

"On late model vehicles this inspection also may include the electronically operated anti-lock braking system."

Because public awareness is one of the first steps toward safer highways, Car Care Council offers, free of charge, an informative pamphlet on the braking system. Send a stamped, self-addressed business size envelope to Car Care Council, Department BX, 1 Grande Lake Dr., Port Clinton, OH 43452.

Fluid leaks can threaten car's dependability

Remember the anxiety you felt the first time you noticed that puddle of water under your car at a rest stop during vacation? What a relief to discover it was only condensation from the air conditioner.

That's about the only kind of fluid leakage that doesn't warrant concern, says Car Care Council. Any other drips or puddles are omens of potential car trouble, even a safety hazard.

A common practice is to put up with a minor leak until it's convenient to get it fixed, especially when you're away from home. Delaying such repairs, which often involve nothing more than tightening a hose or replacing a gasket, can be costly.

The best way to find and/or prevent leaks is to keep the engine clean and check under and around the vehicle periodically for spots indicating leaks. Keeping gaskets, hoses and connections in good condition will prevent most of such problems from occurring.

In your own driveway it's relatively easy to locate and identify a leak. At night you can spread paper under the suspicious spot for close scrutiny the next morning.

In a rest stop or parking lot, however, you first have to determine if the leakage actually has come from your vehicle. It could be from the one which previously sat in that space.

Your next challenge: to identify the fluid. Color and texture are your main clues.

- Green or yellowish water near the engine is antifreeze.
- Red fluid comes from the automotive transmission or the power steering (although they are not the same).
- An oily liquid, usually without much color but with a pungent odor, is likely to be brake fluid.
- A thin fluid smelling like gasoline probably is just that. Leaking oil, antifreeze or gasoline around an engine is hazardous, the latter being the leading cause of car fires. It may be necessary to have a gas leak repaired before starting the engine.

Check fluid levels frequently on long trip, especially if there is a possibility of a leak. Caution: Never remove the radiator pressure cap when the engine is hot. You could be scalded.

No one particularly wants to look for trouble on a vacation trip, but an occasional check under the hood and around the car at a rest stop may prevent real trouble down the road.

A convenient guide for checks under the hood and around the car is available, free of charge, from Car Care Council. Send a stamped, self addressed business size envelope to Car Care Council, Department UH, 1 Grande Lake Dr., Port Clinton, Ohio 43452.

Check air conditioning frequently

How long has it been since you've had your car's air conditioning system checked out? If you're guessing more than two years, pay a visit to your mechanic, advises the Car Care Council. Even if it has been putting out plenty of cold air, an inspection is an inexpensive preventive measure.

Here are five main check points, several of which you may be able to do yourself:

Refrigerant level. The commercial name is Freon (R-12). If this needs topping off, it should be done professionally, says the council. It takes special techniques and equipment to charge the air conditioning system correctly, not only for the proper operation of the system but also to prevent loss of Freon. Escaped refrigerant contributes to the widening hole in the Earth's protective ozone layer.

Another hazard: the fluids in an air conditioning system, being under pressure, can be dangerous if released suddenly.

Oil leaks. Look for traces of oil that has been slung from the compressor onto nearby hoses or hood. This may be coming from a leaking seal, a potential sign of trouble.

Loss of too much of this special oil, which lubricates the compressor, can cause the pump to seize up, resulting in a hefty repair bill.

Worn or dried up seals also can cause loss of refrigerant.

Belts, hoses and connections. Periodic inspection of the drive belts, plumbing and connections within the system can prevent trouble. Again, an experienced mechanic will know that to look for, can locate insidious leaks and can make necessary repairs.

Electrical connections. Poor cooling or other malfunctions of the air conditioning system often can be traced to electrical or vacuum connections. Newer, more sophisticated systems have plenty of both operating blower, compressor clutch, air flow doors and just about everything else in these complex systems.

Sometimes a worrisome problem turns out to be nothing more than a vacuum leak or a blown fuse.

Bugs and leaves. Next time you're under the hood, take a look at the condenser. That's the thing that looks like a radiator, mounted just forward of the big radiator. If it has picked up a collection of trash, bugs and leaves, gently brush it off or hose it down.

A note for next fall: Once a week during the winter months, whenever the temperature gets high enough for it to "kick in," cycle the air conditioner for a few minutes to circulate refrigerant/oil through the system. This helps prevent damage to the compressor due to dried out seals.

On many cars the compressor is actuated when the defroster is turned on, helping to dehumidify the air, so the winter procedure may not be necessary. But when in doubt, concludes Car Care Council Council, do it anyway.

Mangels has 5 winners in Million $ Sales Club

Five sales representatives from Mangels Real Estate in Union were recently honored for receiving New Jersey Association of Realtors Million Dollar Sales Club awards for 1990, according to company President James E. Schoening. Frank J. Abbate, Joan Roessner LaForte, Aryne Harriet Mirro, Connie Oliveira and Ron Schoening all achieved "Bronze Million Dollar Sales Club Awards" from the state Association of Realtors.
James V. Brunette, secretary/treasurer of Mangels, added that the awards are particularly impressive in light of the depressed economic conditions of the New Jersey real estate market during the past year. "We are optimistic for 1991," Brunette said. "Our sales volume for the first four months was over $10,200,000. An increase of over 40 percent for this same period for 1990. This, despite the fact that the average sales price for that period was down by 8 percent to $142,000."

New board members named

The membership of Westfield Community Players held their 57th annual meeting, where they elected new members to the board of directors, announced the coming season's productions and were treated to a retrospective of costumes from more than 50 years of shows.

Returning president, Carole McGee, announced that the nominating committee's slate of officers was voted on by the membership. Newly elected board members include Activities Director Ingrid Casella, Secretary Maureen Zeffler, Director of Performance Arlene Wachstein, Director of Technical Construction Jack Petersen, Vice President of Production Brigid Marinaro, Director of Program Lou Casella and Publicity Director Victor Cenci.

These new board members join incumbents Vice President of Business Becky Paden, Director of Membership Letty Hudak, Director of Tickets Dolores Molowa, Facilities Director Gil Lane and Treasurer Bill McMeekan.

The productions for the 1991-1992 were also announced, with next year's theme being "Three Decades of Broadway," featuring shows from the '20s, '30s, and the '40s. Opening the season this coming fall is the show business comedy "Light Up the Sky," followed by the drama "Death Takes a Holiday." The musical "Cole," featuring the songs of Cole Porter, brings the season to a close.

McGee said that the board is looking forward to the next season and reaffirmed Westfield Community Players' commitment to producing affordable quality theater on a local level. As proof of that commitment, she added a season subscription of just $20 for three shows, representing a $12 savings over individually purchased tickets. Season subscriptions can be obtained by calling Letty Hudak at 233-6233.

After the business end of the meeting, a retrospective of costumes from more than 50 years of shows was presented. Coordinated by Becky Paden, Norma Scioscia and Barbara Sheldon, costumes from such shows as "The King and I," "Brigadoon," and "Ben Franklin in Paris" were modelled by various WCP members.

Devlin hailed in book

interested and adept in art as a youth, and how he pursued his career, even during his years in the United States

Navy during World War II, when he drew maps. It also traces his early interest in architectural design, which later gave Devlin the title of architectural historian in New Jersey.

There is a wonderful chapter on Devlin's "Golden Age of Illustration," which covers his complete works in this field, including photographs of his sketches, such as a caricature of Eddie Cantor in 1950 and the Devlin home and children in Mountainside in 1955. The chapter on "Wende & Harry" covers the year 1954, when Devlin was named vice chairman of President Dwight D. Eisenhower's "People on People" committee, and 1956, when he was elected president of the National Cartoonists Society. It also offers data, anecdotes and information on his personal and professional association with his wife, and their collaboration on children's books.

In the chapter on "Illustration Since 1955," which covers the failing market for illustrations, and Devlin's subsequent work, there is a great color drawing of his "The Birth of Public Transportation in New Jersey," a 1959 Tel-News illustration from the Collection of New Jersey Bell, and a marvelous pencil drawing of a Westfield street scene created in 1983.

Devlin, who has a passion for old architecture, said, "A measure of Romanticism marks those who love old houses." Some of Devlin's finest architectural works are shown in the chapter on "Portraits of American Architecture." Featured are a collection of Devlin's paintings which study architecture "within the context of the history of the era and the fascinating mood in which its buildings were conceived."

"Harry Devlin — A Retrospective" offers a fine tribute to a modest man, whose love of art and literature, wife, children... life, is thoroughly overwhelming.

and carriage house."

Devlin said, "Mountainside was a wonderful place to raise the children." And he created wonderful illustrations of his children at play outside his Mountainside home.

In 1954, he was named vice chairman of President Eisenhower's "People to People" committee, and two years later, was elected president of the National Cartoonist Society.

In 1963 Devlin illustrated and Wende wrote "Old Black Witch." And in 1967, he began his own project in which he wrote and illustrated a book for young people describing American architecture. It was called "To Grandfather's House We Go: A Roadside Tour of American Homes." It was full of illustrations of paintings he had started doing in 1954. In addition to being an educational children's book, the book became a "sourcebook for college courses in architectural history." Two years later, he finished his second architectural book for young people called, "What Kind of a House Is That?" And for more than 30 years, the Devlins produced children's books, of which the Cranberry series, beginning with "Cranberry Thanksgiving" in 1971, was the most popular.

"I must say," he smiled, "I had and still have a very varied, interesting life. Recently, I had an opening at Swain's in Plainfield of an exhibition of my new paintings. They were all on American domestic architecture, 19th century. They really were far more demanding than cartooning, which is sheer joy."

He explained that when he does his architectural paintings, "I work with a 35mm camera and paint from photographs that I take myself. The perspective is very, very important. Perspective is half the battle. And I have to see that the mood is correct."

How does he find his buildings?

"Usually, I stumble on them," he replied with a smile. "I travel here and there, and I might see something, and stop and get my camera out. Once I was traveling in New York, and I passed a house and came back three times to take a picture."

"And even at home here in Mountainside, we live on the old side of the tracks from Route 22. It's an 1852 house on a couple of acres, and it's very beautiful. The street is called Hillside Avenue. I love Mountainside. I've lived here for 41 years, and I think it's a very decent little town. My wife and my children think it's wonderful too. We have wonderful memories, wonderful children and I have a wonderful wife. We were able to combine two careers. Wende worked at her career and brought up seven children, and I don't know how she did it all."

Has he ever thought of retiring?

Devlin exclaimed, "No! What good would that do?" He grinned, "I'd still be doing what I want to do. And if I didn't have a painting to do, I'd be sadly misplaced."

Play shows dinosaur history

Ever wonder what it might have been like back in the days of dinosaurs? Dinosaur Dimension uses a variety of hand and rod puppets to portray the lives of the dinosaurs in prehistoric times, and what it might be like if dinosaurs were alive today. The show alternates sequences showing dinosaurs in their natural habitat with humorous hypotheses about modern-day dinosaurs.

Crabgrass Puppet Theater was founded in 1982 by Bonny Hall and Jamie Keithline, graduates of the University of Connecticut Theater Department. After eight years in San Francisco, Crabgrass Puppet Theater has brought its brand of theater back to the East Coast.

The performance will be on Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Downs Hall at Kean College of New Jersey, Union. For tickets, call 908-527-2088. Tickets are $3.
