TWO SECTIONS — 50 CENTS

Class of 1991 bids farewell to Dayton

By David Brown
Managing Editor

Tears, cheers, flash bulbs, ear-to-ear grins and speeches filled the hot gymnasium as the senior class at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School was ushered into the world beyond the 8:13 a.m. late bell.

"I'm sad but happy," said Susan Taub, arm-in-arm with classmate Joan Powell. "These were the happiest four years of our lives."

The student and faculty leadership reflected on those years June 20 at the graduation ceremonies of the high school which serves Mountainside and Springfield. Speakers reflected, and speculated, on the lives and the years and the happiness, leaving the graduates with nuggets of advice and some reminders.

"Graduation is a rite of passage," said Rachel Haine at the invocation. "Eighteen years have been devoted to preparing us for this day. Now the time has come to show the world who we are," she said, quoting William Arthur Ward: "Change, like sunshine, can be a friend or a foe, a blessing or a curse, a dawn or a dusk." It is up to us. May we have the strength to make change be the friend, be the blessing, be the dawn."

Student Council President Michelle Weinberg also looked to the past as a vital part of the future. "Four years ago, the members of our class entered the halls of Jonathan Dayton. We were curious, hopeful, fearful, and perhaps a bit anxious. We were freshmen," she said. "We came from different schools, various pasts and diverse backgrounds. Our differences quickly disappeared, however, as we all faced the same challenge: four years of high school. As we prepare to move on with our individual lives and go our separate ways, we realize the significance of all we've experienced in the past four years."

Senior Class President Larry Cohn advised his peers on the importance of individuality. "There has never been a class exactly like ours, and there never will be," Cohn said. "We are also all distinct and separate people, different from each other. We should keep these identities," he said. "They are what separates us from the rest of mankind."

The Class of '91 presented the high school with the state and American flags, and an official Jonathan Dayton seal.

Valedictorian Nancy Bolton tapped a parable from childhood for a valuable reminder. "Each of us is young, and part of maturation into adulthood is recognizing which leader to follow and which leader to abandon," she said, recounting the childhood parable of Henny-Penny and her falling sky. "When it comes right down to it, the bottom line is pick and choose carefully," she said.

Principal Judith Wickline seemed confident in the seniors' decision-making ability. "You see here before you one of the brightest classes that has ever come through Jonathan Dayton High School," she said. "This is a very close-knit group of kids," Wickline said, surveying the floor covered with white and blue mortar boards and abandoned programs. "I am very proud of this bright, enthusiastic, energetic and unique group of stu-

Routolo assumes county post

By David Brown
Managing Editor

Mountainside attorney Andrew K. Routolo Jr. was scheduled to be sworn in yesterday as Union County prosecutor at the Elizabeth courthouse.

Routolo, who was nominated by the Florio administration, was unanimously confirmed for the appointment by the New Jersey Senate last week.

"I feel privileged to be entrusted with the responsibility that comes with this office and this title," Routolo said. "I have an obligation to counsel the victims of crime with compassion, and to represent them in a court of law. Like every other parent and citizen in the county, I dream of the day we can keep our children safe from drug dealers and all criminals," he said.

"I look forward to working in concert with the community leaders and educators toward this goal."

Routolo, a resident of Westfield, graduated from Amherst College Cum Laude in 1974 with a degree in American studies. He attended Fordham University School of Law in 1978, and, upon graduation, served as law clerk under the Arthur Blake, assignment judge in Essex County, until 1979.

Andrew K. Routolo Jr.

After four years as an associate at two private law firms, Routolo was appointed to the Assistant U.S. Attorney's Criminal Division, where he served until 1984. He has been with the Westfield law firm of Mella and Routolo since 1986.

Routolo has also been involved in Democratic politics on both the state and local levels. He made an unsuccessful bid for the Assembly as a Democratic candidate in 1985, and was selected to chair the Westfield Democratic Committee the following year.

"I think it's an outstanding appointment," said Senator Raymond Lesniak. "I think Mr. Routolo has proven himself highly qualified through his work in the U.S. Attorney's office and in private practice. His reputation for professionalism and integrity is outstanding and remarkable, and I am confident he's going to do a commendable job as Union County prosecutor."

Senator Donald DiFrancesco was in accord with Lesniak's assessment. "He'll be a fine prosecutor," DiFrancesco said. "He has a strong background, and I was very impressed by his credentials. I believe he's the right man for the job," he said.

DiFrancesco and Lesniak joined with the state Senate in unanimously confirming Routolo for the position.

Routolo will take the reigns of the department from First Assistant Prosecutor Edmund Tucker. Tucker has headed the department since March 1990, upon the death of former prosecutor John Stampler.

As county prosecutor, Routolo will supervise 50 assistant prosecutors in the department, which employs approximately 200 professionals.

Three resign over ethics law

By Dennis Schaal
Staff Writer

Three members of the Zoning Board of Adjustment — an engineer, an architect and a realtor — have resigned due to provisions of the new Local Government Ethics Law, which went into effect May 21.

The three are Donald Hancock, a retired engineer who has served on the panel for more than 12 years and was the chairman for the past two; Daniel Falcone, a board alternate since January 1990 who runs an architectural firm out of 928 Mountain Ave., and Patricia Connolly, a Burgdorff Realtors real estate agent who has been a board member since the beginning of the year. Hancock and Falcone submitted letters of resignation effective May 20 and Connolly resigned June 10.

While the three offered slightly differing views on the ethics law as a whole, they tied their resignations to an interpretation of a provision which they said would preclude them from sitting on the board and conducting business before any local board or department.

Falcone said, for instance, that it was his understanding that as a current board member it would be considered improper for him to submit architectural plans to the Building Department under the new law.

The conflict of interest provisions of the new law were designed to prevent professionals and other business people who participate in local government from taking financial advantage of their positions. But some critics say that the law has driven many honest volunteers out of local government.

"The law was meant for corrupt towns, but if you're going to be corrupt you're just going to sign another piece of paper," Mayor Robert Vigilanti said Monday. "This is driving honest people out of government."

The Board of Adjustment will elect a new chairman to replace Hancock at its July 8 meeting. Vice Chairman Dick Picut has served as acting chair since Hancock opted to resign and said this week he has "no comment" about running for chairman.

The mayor and Borough Council adopted a resolution June 18 to appoint Jack Carter, a Planning Board member, to take Hancock's seat on the Board of Adjustment, and Ted Romak, a retired senior partner in the accounting firm Ernst and Young, to take Connolly's post. Falcone's replacement has not been tapped yet.

"I enjoyed my position and felt I was contributing something through my expertise," Falcone said this week. "The shame of this is that the ones of us who understand the ordinances the most have to resign."

Hancock argued vehemently that

July 4 plans progress

By David Brown

Mountainside and Westfield are teaming up to officially honor the achievements of a related team, though somewhat larger.

The two communities are preparing a parade to honor the local veterans of Desert Storm, their families and all other war veterans on Independence Day.

"This is the least we can do for the brave men and women who risked their lives for this county," said Robert Vigilanti, mayor of Mountainside. "We expect it will be a day to remember," he said.

According to Vigilanti's estimate, more than 70 veterans and their families will be honored at a special ceremony at 7:30 on July 4 at Deerfield School on Central Avenue in Mountainside.

"I think it's a great thing that Mountainside and Westfield are joining together to honor their local heroes on the Fourth of July," said Westfield Mayor Richard Bagger. "It'll be a fitting finale to the Independence Day celebration, and a way of saying thank you to all the servicemen and their families for what they've done," he said.

"We are making every effort to contact all local military personnel and their families," Vigilanti said. "However, we haven't been able to reach everyone, so we are asking them or members of their family to call us at the Mountainside Borough Hall for details," he said. Honorees or their families are asked to call the Mountainside borough clerk at 232-2400 for parade information, for which a rain date has been set for July 5.

"A number of the Desert Storm veterans from town are personal friends of mine," said George Yates, proprietor of the Mobil Station on Mountain Avenue and New Providence Road in Mountainside. "When a mother of one of the fellows comes through the station here in tears, it really moves you," he said. Yates has been active in support of the troops since the war began last fall.

"I think it's great that the towns got together on this," Yates said of the joint parade. "It's a shame it takes something like a war to get towns, and really the entire country, together," he said, "but we're going to try and keep the feeling going. They're still releasing the remains of American soldiers killed in Korea," he said. "We don't want anyone to be forgotten."

County adopts $216-M budget

By Alec Schwartz
Staff Writer

With expected dissension, the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders adopted its $216 million budget on June 20, 5-4.

Freeholder Alan Augustine remained consistent with his position on all budget matters as he voted against amending the budget, adopting the budget, expanding the cap, and reorganizing the county government.

On May 23, when the budget was introduced, Augustine and Freeholder Linda-Lee Kelly joined together in dissent, while the Democrats mustered the five necessary votes to advance it on first reading. At the time, Freeholder Chairman James Connelly Welsh criticized Kelly and Augustine for their nay votes because ailing Freeholder Gerald Green needed to be summoned from bed to push the budget through.

Welsh at the time said that since the introduction was merely part of necessary procedure, the nay votes were uncalled for. Augustine said that because he received his budget information only minutes before the vote, he was not prepared to vote for introduction.

"Introducing the budget would have sent the wrong message to the public," Augustine elaborated Monday. "I wanted people to know that I was opposing the budget. Voting for introduction would have indicated the contrary."

Augustine and Kelly were joined by Walter Boright and Louis Santagata when the budget was brought forward for adoption. Neither Boright nor Santagata were present for the introduction.

An ordinance to expand the cap from 4.5 percent to 5 percent passed with seven votes, with Kelly and Augustine dissenting.

Augustine said that although Welsh has professed that the budget will mean a decrease in the tax rate throughout Union County, that is truly not the case. He added that Elizabeth and Plainfield will see no decrease.

Augustine further stated that any decrease was not the result of any cost savings plans by the freeholders, but because the state was taking more than 80 percent of the welfare costs, and also adding substantial aid.

"There was all that pomp and circumstance when Florio came and presented that great big check," Augustine said. "But this budget is still up $8 million from last year."

Augustine criticized the recent appointment of the first deputy county council and assistant county council. He said he did not agree with spending $84,743.88 annually through June 1994 for the first deputy and added that the three assistants were each making around $35,000 a year. The total package over three years is approximately $738,000.

"The ubiquitous and ever burgeoning legal fees that we are paying soar into the hundreds of thousands of dollars," Augustine said. "That is a staggering amount."

Augustine also criticized the Voluntary Early Retirement Packages which the county offered. He said that the dents. They are individuals who have come together into a class, who have truly united."

 Cheers and flash bulbs kept beat to the awarding of the diplomas, from Janet Blackwood, the first diploma recipient, to Sandra Zotti and a contingent of foreign exchange students, the last.
 "This year's class did very well," said Frank Ortiz, Spanish instructor at the high school. "We try to teach them to be leaders, to educate them so that they become better than ourselves. It's a great class, and it's a pleasure to see them graduate," he said.
 Diplomas in hand and tassels hanging symbolically to the left, the graduates, respectful to the last minute, waited for the word before flinging their blue and white mortar boards with a roar into the high rafters of the gymnasium.

Where was graduate Gordon Chupko going? "I'm going to Disney World," he shouted, making a valiant attempt to pose for three cameras at once.
 Excitement flowed through the audience too.

"I would say we are somewhat relieved," said one father, camera at the ready hanging at his chest. "This day is really a proud day for everyone. The teachers, students and parents all deserve credit for this occasion," he said.

"I am definitely relieved," graduate Tom Cukier said. "But we're sad in a way too," chimed in his classmate Gabe King. "We won't get to see a lot of these people we spent the best four years of our lives with," he said, giving a congratulatory nod to another passing classmate. "But yeah, we're relieved," he said.

County board adopts budget despite dissension

VERPs were really not voluntary and said that people were not given a choice.

Augustine also commented on the proposed reorganization, which passed on second reading, 6-1, with two abstentions. Because the ordinance was amended, there will be an additional reading and final vote. Boright and Kelly abstained, with Boright commenting that there were too many grammatical and capitalization errors in the plan. Welsh asked that he furnish his objections to County Manager Ann Baran.

Augustine, on the other hand, criticized the substance. He said that no money would be saved from the proposed reorganization. He added that he is in favor of scaling down government, but not at the expense of efficiency.

"There is no question about the fact that under Democrat control, hundreds of jobs have been added," Augustine said. "The degree of nepotism and cronyism that has been allowed to exist is disgusting."

One of the problems Augustine cited with the proposal stems from the civil service provisions for bumping rights. When a position is eliminated, the person who holds the position is allowed to shift to another position, while displacing another worker to a third position, and so on. Augustine said that the problem is that the worker who moves laterally may not possess the physical skills to do the other job. He said that employees at higher levels may not have computer skills, which had not been required until recent years.

Board loses three over ethics

"ethics cannot be legislated" and that the new law "is an affront to all those practicing architects and engineers" because it "restricts the right to do business in a locality."

The new law imposes fines and disciplinary penalties for violating its financial disclosure and conflict of interest provisions. Members of local government will have to fill out detailed financial disclosure forms outlining virtually all sources of income under the law. The deadline for submittal is mid-August.

"We never had difficulties in regard to ethics because whenever the slightest question came up the person would remove themselves from the decision-making process," Hancock said.

The former Board of Adjustment chairman blasted the bill's sponsors for not drafting a universal ethics law which held school board members and state officials to the same standards as local government officials. Trenton lawmakers are now considering such bills.

Vigiani stated that the nine-member Board of Adjustment, which includes two alternates, will have to contend with an additional vacancy in August when Frank Kelly Jr. resigns. He's moving out of the borough.

Unilock pavers replace blandness with beauty. They bring patterns, color and texture to driveways, walkways, patios and pool decks—making exterior areas more enjoyable to use and creating an attractive setting for your home.

Unilock's pavers are made from special concrete compressed in a mold under extreme pressure and compacted with high frequency vibrators. Jazz bassist Bucci Still playing his way

By David Brown
Staff Writer

Vincenzo Bucci never followed sheet music. He always played the music the way he thought it best — his way. At age 70, Vincent "Vinnie Burke" Bucci, Springfield resident and world renowned jazz musician, is still doing it his way.

"I don't believe in playing a tune the same way twice," said the silver-haired Bucci, freshly tanned from a winter in Palm Beach, Fla. "The beauty is in the variety, it's in the change," he said.

The spartan, white-walled room, converted from a garage, is indicative of Bucci's lifestyle and spirit, though clearly his music, which is anything but spartan. Bucci's improvisation, variation and creativity on the double bass have made him a legend in the jazz world. "I believe the jazz musician should always be moving ahead; he should always be searching for new sounds," he said.

For Bucci, the search began in the tough streets of Newark with the violin, a smaller version of the bass, in the '20s and '30s. "I used to practice the violin and I hated it," Bucci said, making a face. "Squeak, squeak, squeak I went, up and down the scale until one day I stomped it flat," he said.

From that time, at age 13, Bucci has been making history on the double bass. A discrete, stringed instrument usually at the back of the jazz band, the bass is the low boom boom boom one hears if one listens hard enough.

"It's tough to make a reputation on the bass," Bucci said. "It's not as prominent as the trumpet or saxophone."

Yet few people from the scores of trumpet and saxophone players through jazz's many periods have gained a prominence comparable to Bucci's on the bass. Next to Charles Mingus and Ray Brown, few bassists have moved in the same circles in the jazz scene. "You name the club, and I've probably played there," said Bucci, who divides his year between Palm Beach and Springfield. "The Copacabana, the Waldorf, Birdland, Carnegie Hall, the Blackhawk, I've played most of the famous clubs."

His colleagues? Again, you name the artist. Charlie Parker, Roy Eldridge, Cannonball Adderly, Duke Ellington, Count Basie, Woody Herman, Benny Goodman, Buddy Rich — the greats. In the '60s, Bucci hosted a jazz program on Channel 13 with a guest list featuring Billy Holiday and Roy Eldridge, among others. Bucci has recorded with all the major record labels.

Traditionally, jazz musicians have remained close to their roots, regardless of the commercial heights they may reach. Bucci is no exception. "I was a block president in Newark for so many years because I believe in helping people improve their lives," he said. "I was constantly questioning the establishment, and the establishment hated me for it," said Bucci, who outlived myriad death threats for his public criticisms of various city officials. "Suppression is the worst thing in this world, whether in music or on the streets," he said. "I have always fought for my freedom and the freedom of others, and I've ruffled some feathers in the process, but they'd have to kill me to stop me," Bucci said.

From his physical appearance, that's what it's going to take to kill Bucci. "I quit drinking and smoking on July 5, 1969," he said. "You have everything if you have you're health." If that's the case, Bucci has everything. He has practiced yoga for 24 years, and drinks freshly squeezed vegetable juice daily as part of a healthy body, healthy mind, healthy play philosophy. "All the guys I played with are passing on," he said. "Most of them are younger than me." Bucci said he gets a high from his health foods.

From talk of his plans, Bucci has no intention of going to that big gig in the sky anytime soon. "I've been planning to write an autobiography for a few years now," he said, flipping through a photo album, clippings spilling out between photographs of Bucci and Holiday, Bucci and Ellington, Bucci and Rich, and so on. "I would like to get down on paper my ideas about music, and the stories, there are so many stories," Bucci said. "But, I'm in no great rush. The longer it takes to write, the more stories there'll be."

Vinnie Bucci.

That his 50-year-old plywood bass was repossessed nine times, or that he was thought dead at birth and revived only through determination and a home remedy, that he championed the cause of freedom on the stage and the streets alike and many more anecdotes, strange, funny or touching, says the material is there for a book, a thick one.

"The feelings Vinnie Burke strives to evoke are love, relaxation and happiness laced with excitement," reads a program review. "To Vinnie Burke, playing is spiritual. It is a search for spontaneous, spirited composition...Vinnie Burke keeps it natural, free, relaxed and swinging. Vinnie Burke means freedom, no charts or arrangements. Jazz is still an uncharted, though densely populated wilderness. Vinnie Burke is Jazz."

Mayoral plates approved

By David Brown
Managing Editor

A bill authorizing the Division of Motor Vehicles to issue special license plates for mayors is getting mixed reviews in Springfield and Mountainside.

Sponsored by Assemblyman Gerald Naples (D-Mercer), the bill, A-235, authorizes the Division of Motor Vehicles to issue specialized plates to New Jersey's mayors and chief executives. According to the bill, the plates "shall be $25 in addition to the fees otherwise prescribed by law for the registration of motor vehicles."

"This bill was introduced years ago. It is not a priority bill, certainly, but I did decide to sponsor it," Naples said the idea for the plates originated in the summer of 1982, as the result of difficulties experienced by a local councilman in getting through police lines at the scene of an emergency. "These plates will allow for quick identification at emergency situations such as that one," he said.

Naples immediately addressed an underlying question about the intent of the bill. "These are not courtesy plates," he said. "They're not designed to help the driver out of an otherwise illegal situation," he said.

Naples, a former military policeman, said he has received "five or six tickets this year for parking violations even with my New Jersey Assembly plates. A person's position should have nothing to do with the legality of his actions," he said.

According to the bill, the person holding the plates must surrender them within 30 days of leaving office. A $50 fine is prescribed for anyone violating this provision of the law.

"I don't see how it would be particularly helpful to the police," said Sgt. Jack Yerich of the Mountainside Police Department. "It seems to me it would be more of a prestige thing." While admitting it might be beneficial in crisis conditions in larger cities, Yerich said he couldn't think of too many emergency situations to which mayors respond. "It's not the same thing as a firemen's special plates," he said.

"I think it may be a method of recognition for the time mayors give to their communities," said Mountainside Mayor Robert Vigilanti. "Just a way of expressing appreciation."

Vigilanti, whose license plate already reads "MTSIDE," said he would probably not opt for the plates. "It won't hurt anything," said Captain Hietala of the Springfield Police Department. "But in a small town like this, I don't think it would be particularly helpful. We know what the mayor drives," he said. "It's part of being a small town. But I can see the need for it in a big city where the mayor is not as familiar to its employees. But not in Springfield."

Springfield Mayor Marc Marshall could not be reached for comment.

Police collar over thief

police blotter

On June 20, Springfield police arrested an East Orange man in a Springfield supermarket for possession of a stolen microwave.

Responding to a call from store officials of a man behaving suspiciously around 2 p.m., police found William Jamison at the courtesy counter attempting to "return" a microwave oven for cash, claiming it was broken.

According to police, Jamison never purchased the item. Sgt. Peter Davis and Officer George Geisinger arrested the 20-year-old, charging him with theft by deception and shoplifting. Upon further investigation, Springfield police found Jamison to be a fugitive from the Orange police on similar charges. Jamison was turned over to the Orange Police Department. A Springfield court appearance has been scheduled for Monday.

SPRINGFIELD

Before you head for the beach on these hot summer days, head for the Springfield Library to pick up one of the recommended new arrivals.

Probably the most requested new biography is Patrimony by Philip Roth in which the novelist introduces his most endearing character to date, his father, Herman. Roth relates his father's struggle with a fatal brain tumor with compassion and, surprisingly, humor. Along the way we learn of the special relationship between father and son and the author's wonderful recollections of his Newark childhood.

A new non-fiction title that promises to be hot this summer is Silent Coup by Len Colodny and Robert Getlin. Subtitled "The Removal of a President," it hopes to shatter the accepted history of Richard Nixon's fall from grace by exposing, among other shockers, the military spy ring that penetrated the White House, which Presidential aide really masterminded the Watergate break-in, a call girl ring popular with the Democratic Committee which may have been the real target of the burglary, and new revelations about the CIA's involvement in Watergate.

Amy Tan's new novel The Kitchen God's Wife is already disappearing quickly from the fiction and rental shelves. It tells the story of Winnie Louie and Helen Kwong who for 40 years have kept certain secrets. Now that Helen is sure she is dying, she wants to celebrate the Chinese New Year by broadcasting her hidden truths. Comic misunderstandings and heartbreaking realizations ensue a group of women and their daughters share their past and hopefulness for the future.

In his latest novel Beast, Peter Benchley tells the story of a young Connecticut couple who disappear mysteriously while sailing in the waters off Bermuda. Benchley, the master of underwater thrillers such as Jaws and The Deep, this time creates a new creature who just might have been called up from the deep to punish mankind for polluting the oceans. Not a beach book!

The last recommendation this month is a new techno-thriller by Larry Bond titled Vortex. This time the author of Red Phoenix uses the civil war in South Africa as the backdrop for his writing. After government paratroopers attack the African National Congress's headquarters, AMC guerillas retaliate by assassinating the prime minister and most of his cabinet. The result is a full-blown war and an outstanding adventure story.

Springfield First Aid Squad kept busy

By Dennis Schaal
Staff Writer

The Springfield Volunteer First Aid Squad normally responds to about three emergency calls in a 24-hour period.

But June 7 was no ordinary day for the 48-member squad. In a 24-hour timeframe that ended at 2:30 a.m. on June 8, the contingent responded to 12 emergency calls and one transportation request. A total of 11 squad members put in 38 hours, treated 18 patients, and its two ambulances maneuvered 79 miles.

"Thank God this doesn't happen all the time," said squad Vice President Martin Gornstein this week in reflecting on the hectic pace of calls that day. "Everything worked out well, everything was covered."

The first call June 7 was a police page alerting the squad to an injured male in a car which had overturned on Rt. 24 in Springfield.

Just over two hours later, the squad responded to an industrial accident.

"When you go out and respond to a call you really don't know what you're going to find," Gornstein observed.

One of the most intense incidents that occurred June 7 was an 11:15 p.m. traffic accident on Rt. 22 in Springfield which involved a truck and a van. Eleven people were involved in the accident, but there were no serious injuries.

Gornstein stated that six squad members in two ambulances responded to the Rt. 22 incident.

Other responses on June 7 included transporting some elderly people who had fallen in the Summit Hill apartment complex; and an overlapping response to a person who had difficulty breathing and a trauma victim at 12:50 and 1 p.m. respectively.

Some volunteer first aid squads in New Jersey have confronted tough times in recent years because it has been difficult to attract new members.

Some squads have been forced to cut back services.

Gornstein noted that the Springfield squad has also faced personnel shortages and would require 10 to 12 more members to be "in a comfortable position."

He noted that the volunteers picked up 14 new members-in-training at "our most successful" open house which took place last April. These new members have received training in cardio-pulmonary resuscitation, basic first aid, and are responding to calls on crews with certified Emergency Medical Technicians. Gornstein said it is hoped that the new members stick with the squad and complete an 80-hour EMT course within two years.

The squad vice president said that several recent volunteers explained that they'd been residing in the township for the past five years and had been considering joining the first aid contingent, but hadn't gotten around to joining.

"It's possible that the open house provided that extra push," Gornstein said.

The squad also features a contingent of cadets, namely volunteers under the age of 18, who perform virtually all the duties of members other than driving the vehicles. They serve limited hours.

Gornstein said that if the squad can attract 10 to 12 additional members, then the force would be strong enough to respond to all calls with three-person crews. Currently, only about half the crews are dispatched in three-person teams.

Squad headquarters is on N. Trivett Street.

Gornstein explained that the squad only sends one of the two ambulances to accidents on Rt. 24 or Rt. 78 because it must keep one vehicle in reserve to cover the town. He noted that Springfield has backup arrangements with numerous municipalities and, in an emergency, could get the assistance of dozens of area ambulances within minutes.

Abolish parties

Abolish the Party system on the local level. Partisan politics has created such deviousness among candidates on the local level that issues take a back seat to personalities during election campaigns.

The Party system breeds mediocrity. It is exclusive. It is expensive. And it is ineffective in identifying a person's position on the political spectrum.

Our founding fathers left Europe in order to reform an unfair, stagnant governmental structure. Wide-eyed, they came to the New World and were willing to experiment, question and challenge. Like our forefathers, we are questioning, challenging and suggesting experimentation.

George Washington, in his farewell address, warned that factionalism served to "distract the public council and enfeeble the public administration."

Washington said it. But we Americans did not heed his advice. We have allowed the Party system to undermine any chance for sound government.

Party politics is so powerful that people no longer need identity to run for public office, but may be elected solely on the basis of the Party to which they are affiliated. Independents rarely win elections, because factions of Democrats and Republicans are so large. People, for the most part, fail to vote for a specific candidate, and instead pull a lever and vote for a line.

While voter ignorance is a problem, the voters are not to be blamed. The system, beginning with primaries, encourages voters to neglect their obligation in a democratic society and causes voter apathy.

Politicians are categorized, not because they share a view on a subject, but because they wish to gain position on a ballot. It is absurd to think that all good politicians can be pigeon-holed into one of two categories. Citizens from state to state, town to town, and ward to ward, differ in social and economic philosophy. No one can say that because an elected official is a member of a particular Party that a specific platform is represented.

Democrats in Louisiana are behind the most stringent anti-abortion law in the country. The long-time Republican governor in Connecticut has one of the most progressive voting records in the Party's history. Several Republicans at the local level are against development, while some Republicans at the state level support it wholeheartedly.

Though these ideological differences exist, people still say they consider themselves Republicans or Democrats. Candidates should stand naked before the public and let each voter dress him or her in any color they wish. Let them stand for their actions, not an ambiguous symbol. And let them not hide behind those symbols. Nobody knows what ideologies the elephant or the donkey represent.

Also, without Parties, the need for costly, and often undisputed primary elections would be eliminated. The reason these primaries came into existence in the first place was to eliminate a problem with Party candidates being selected by either Party's elite. What the system has done, however, is eliminate viable choices for the sake of expediency and perpetual mediocrity.

This political system is the result of an experiment by Thomas Jefferson and others. This is not the final option, nor would Jefferson wish it to be. He said, "A little rebellion now and then is a good thing."

Then why has the system been allowed to perpetuate into its current form? Because without parties, politicians would find it more difficult to run for office.

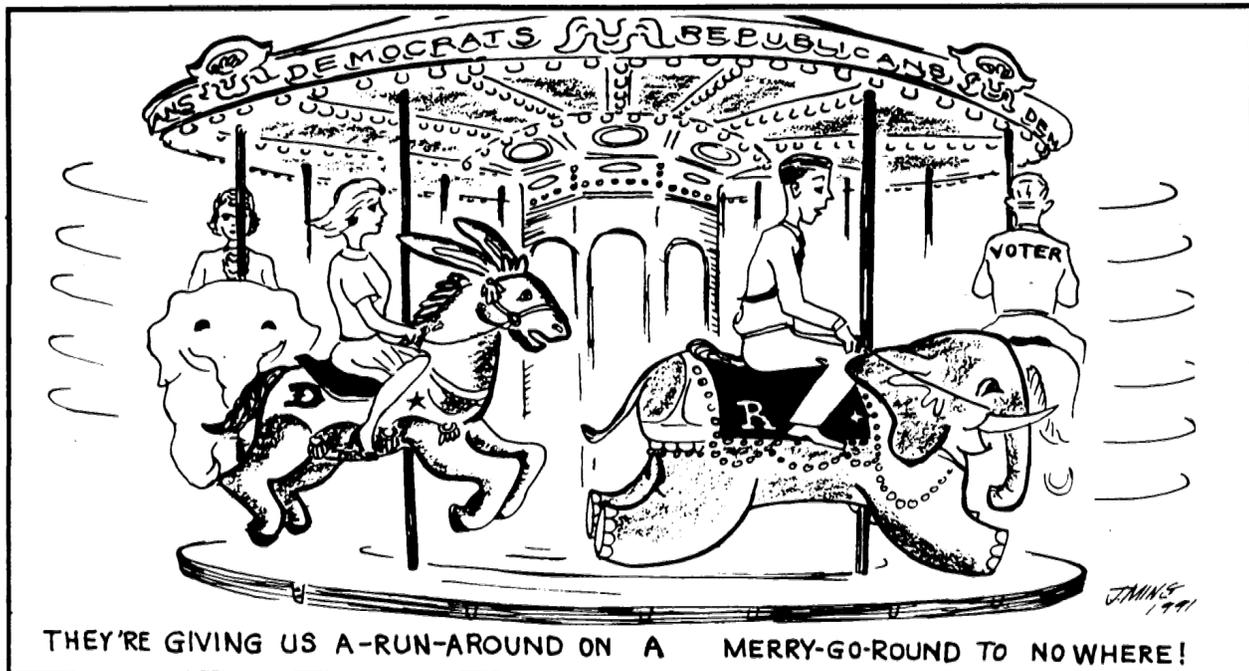

Instead of challenging the system, candidates turn skeptics. They say that having everyone run independently will make a voter's job more difficult and detract from already poor voter turnout. To them we say that issue-oriented voters will continue to vote, and the voters who do turn out will not be massing behind a party line.

Others say that eliminating the Party system will make the process exclusive and discourage poorer candidates. To them we say, look around. The current system is already exclusive.

Still others say that the result would lead to the forming of new factions, and that though a government may be called non-partisan, as 88 local governments in New Jersey are, parties still exist. They have a valid point, but by not including the information on a ballot, and by passing legislation which regulates promoting campaigns through party affiliations, the power of individual parties will diminish.

We think it is time to listen to Washington and Jefferson.

It's been 200 years. It is a good time to examine the course our great experiment has taken.

Must learn how to sustain natural resources

Sustainable is a word that has entered our vocabulary, as in sustainable energy policy, or sustainable agriculture. It's a word which says we can't keep going the way we are.

An explanation of "sustainable" in prosaic terms goes this way: If you have $100 in a bank, and the bank pays an annual interest of 5 percent, and you never withdraw more than $5 in any year, you're smart enough to be maintaining a sustainable account.

Are you smart enough to apply that rule to natural resources? Don't feel bad; you're no different than practically everyone else on Earth. But if you recognize how people are squandering resources, you must be very worried about the outlook for all of us!

Here in the United States, we directly or indirectly consume nearly our own weight each day in the stuff of which our economy and our survival are made: over 50 kilograms of oil, coal, minerals, food and fiber. We each spend more than $225 per year for the packaging our household products come in.

Compare that to those living on a subsistence level in the third world: one and one half kilograms of agricultural and forest products. As more and more conspicuous consumption appears in the world, environmental damage and resource shortages are bound to be more prevalent. Future generations here and throughout the world are going to have to adopt inconspicuous consumption.

State We're In

In an article appearing recently in Technology Review, Alan Durning says it well, using the rate of increase in advertising worldwide as a measure of the problem. Annual per capita advertising expense use, in constant dollars, went from $15 in 1950 to $46 in 1988!

1950 was the year the number of shopping malls in this country exceeded the number of high schools. In the last two generations, we in this country have consumed more of the Earth's mineral resources and turned them into heat, or scattered them to the four winds, than all the previous people who ever lived anywhere!

Yet in any example chosen, folks in this state we're in aren't any happier than their parents were. Indeed, crime, poverty and homelessness are all operating at higher and higher rates. We're not healthier. Our babies are not surviving at better rates. Something's not working as well as it should.

Some studies show that the world population has a sufficient energy supply to allow everyone on Earth, if we're all very careful and conservative, to survive and sustain ourselves at a level about like western Europe's. Of course, that means a vast American decrease in energy use to balance things out, since we use much more energy than western Europe does.

Nor does that take into account the world population's doubling in the next two generations or less. As has been stated by many economists, Americans use one-third of the planet's resources for only 5 percent of its people. Yet our culture is viewed worldwide as the one to copy.

So sooner or later, the ecosystem will tell us how to live. The way growth curves work, we're not likely to know we're in trouble before it's too late. Neither economies nor populations can grow forever. How and when inevitable crashes or declines happen should be a societal choice, rather than Judgment Day. Leadership here and abroad at the moment is lacking.

Sustainable means that we should take what we will from the Earth to live well, but not place future generations in a position of living less well than we do. Sounds like an ecological golden rule, doesn't it? It is!

Given the consumptive addictions we've developed, getting to sustainability isn't going to be easy or fast. Even the leadership to start isn't in place yet.

There are some hopeful signs though. When citizen groups working with my organization, the New Jersey Conservation Foundation, are asked to help design new neighborhoods in their towns, they always opt for environmentally appropriate settlement patterns, such as more paths, less pavement, smaller houses, greater variety of housing types, mixed uses — just like the good old days of neighborhood or village life. All of these suggestions mean greater resource efficiency and energy efficiency.

When you think about it, what makes us feel fulfilled hasn't much to do with how much gasoline we use or how many TV sets we have.

David F. Moore is executive director of the New Jersey Conservation Foundation.

Letters to the editor

Fact sheet will be beneficial

To the Editor:

I find that most of the time when a person dies who gets Social Security or Supplemental Security Income benefits, a family member or close friend knows that the Social Security office needs to be told about the death so that the monthly checks may be stopped. In fact, about 95 percent of death reports are made by family, friends, or a funeral director.

That's a pretty good record, but we think it's one that can be improved. There have been instances when checks have not been stopped and were cashed by family members to take care of burial expenses and other costs related to the deceased beneficiary. Newspaper stories have chronicled the worst case scenario when the checks keep coming long after the beneficiary has died.

When a person who gets Social Security dies, no check is payable for the month of death, even if he or she dies on the last day of the month. SSI benefits, however, are based on need, and it is assumed that the SSI check is needed to meet current expenses. Thus, an SSI check is payable for the month of death. Any checks that come after the month of death have to be returned.

We realize this can be confusing, so we are telling people that a good rule of thumb is to return any checks payable to the deceased when you report the death, and we can advise you accordingly. In addition, we are looking into ways we can increase awareness of the need to report deaths promptly.

One step involves providing funeral directors with improved benefit information they can give to family members. This spring we are sending them a new form that they can use to report a death to Social Security. That form has been combined with a fact sheet that has information on survivor benefits. Nearly every funeral director in the country will be contacted by mail with a request for cooperation. We hope funeral directors will agree that by using the new materials, they can provide better service to their clients as well as to Social Security.

The new fact sheet on survivor benefits will be helpful to family members who may not be aware that they may be eligible for monthly benefits on the deceased person's Social Security record. The fact sheet explains in simple terms who can get benefits and how to apply for them.

For information about Social Security survivor benefits, call 1-800-234-5772.

Support for reserves is appreciated

To the Editor:

Operation Desert Storm will probably go down in history as one of our most successful military efforts ever. That was due in a large part to the participation of the U.S. Army Reserve.

Beginning in August 1990, thousands of Army reservists were called upon to perform the missions for which they had been trained. By now the whole country is aware of the tremendous contributions they made to the U.S.' Operation Desert Storm effort.

Their success was, in turn, made possible by the generous support of the American people. First, and perhaps most important, was the wide-ranging support by the communities of the Army reservists who were activated. Local communities were particularly supportive of hometown units as they deployed. Without that, the activation would have been much harder to accomplish. But our Army reservists went with the blessings and good wishes of the American people. We all realize just how important that is.

Without a doubt, one of the most significant factors in informing the public was the news media coverage of reserve activations. Overall, both the print and the electronic media presented a fair picture of the issues and activities surrounding the mobilization. As a result, the public saw how well prepared Army reservists were and learned how important they were to the total Army effort.

The understanding that our Army reservists have received from their employers has been most encouraging. No one likes to lose a valuable employee suddenly for an extended and indefinite period of time, especially in times of economic uncertainty, but the response of the great majority of employers has been very positive. And many employers went beyond the requirements of the law and generously extended additional benefits to their reservists. As a result, Army reservists were able to deploy without worrying about their job security. Now, as they are returning, we are seeing that support continue as employers are welcoming them back into the work force.

And finally, the families of our reservists deserve special recognition. They bore the emotional, financial and physical burdens of the soldiers' absence. They supported their soldiers and that made a real difference.

Once again, Army reservists have shown themselves to be dedicated to serving their country. They sacrificed their time, they were separated from their families, and many lost income when they were activated. They needed your support and they got it.

On behalf of our fine Army reserve soldiers, I am privileged to thank all of you whose support made it all possible.

A NICE VISIT — Reliability testing, printed circuit board design, component evaluation and electromagnetic interference testing — as complicated as it might sound, these third grade students at Aldene School in Roselle Park recently experienced all of it first hand during a May 31 visit to AT&T's Quality Management and Engineering Group in Union. In this photo, Cindy Rygiel, technician in the Metallurgical Lab, removes a sample holder containing a bee. The scanning electron microscope allowed the students to see the eye of the bee magnified from 12 to 300,000 times.

APA announces grants

The American Paralysis Association, a national, non-profit organization, has announced its latest round of grants, awarded to researchers involved in regeneration research to cure paralysis caused by spinal cord injury and other central nervous system disorders.

Nineteen different projects located across the country will benefit from the $707,947 bestowed on the researchers, many of whom are new to the field, having moved from investigation of the brain and/or peripheral nervous system into that of the spinal cord.

This latest round of funding marks a milestone for the nine-year-old organization. To date, the total amount APA has invested in paralysis cure research has surpassed $6.1 million.

Although less than a decade old, APA has played an important role in some of the most important breakthroughs in neuroscience in the past several years. In one instance, the group helped fund the work of Dr. Martin Schwab, a Swiss researcher who has gotten nerve cells in the severed spinal cords of rats to reconnect, an accomplishment announced early in 1990.

Even more recently, researchers announced that the drug methylprednisolone, when administered in large doses, could dramatically reduce or limit the amount of paralysis resulting from spinal cord injury if administered within the first eight hours. APA helped fund the earliest research into this important drug.

Much of the research that APA funds is in its pilot stages, the point at which it is usually the most difficult for scientists to obtain funding. Each grant applicant is subjected to rigorous peer review by 12 of the world's foremost neuroscientists who comprise the APA's Science Advisory Council.

In addition to funding pure research, APA is devoted to promoting greater communication among scientists. To this end, APA has announced plans for a symposium to be held next spring, which will highlight the results of APA-sponsored research.

"This symposium will provide an exciting forum for scientists to exchange ideas and information, and allow a more realistic assessment of the field and its future," said Dr. Margaret Brown, APA's director of research. "What will truly set the meeting apart from others is that it will foster an understanding of the science at the law level as well. We envision the layman interacting with, and benefiting from, the researchers and their presentations."

County votes Linden site for recycling unit

By Debbie Jordan
Staff Writer

The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders on June 20 approved 2400 Bedle Place in Linden as the site of a county recycling unit, which is expected to process 2,000 tons of aluminum, glass and newspaper.

Despite protest from Linden residents and a recent City Council decision to oppose the 8th Ward siting, the freeholder board voted 6-2 in favor of placing the facility in the former Mapes and Sprowl building. Freeholder Chairman James Welsh and board member Alan Augustine cast dissenting votes, while board member Walter Boright abstained.

Jeffrey Callahan, deputy director of the Union County Utilities Authority, said it is unknown when the plant will begin operating, but it is expected to be no later than Oct. 1. The UCUA will acquire the property July 1 and will begin upgrading it through minor interior and exterior renovations.

"We will be reaching out to the municipality and local residents to form a public information committee so we can keep them informed about our progress as we implement the project," Callahan said.

But city residents vehemently oppose the siting and plan to continue their fight to prevent the plant from opening. They fear the residential neighborhood will be prone to loud, heavy truck traffic, a decrease in property values, environmental problems and a bombardment of cockroaches and rodents.

A petition signed by 400 residents opposing the siting was presented to the Linden City Council at its June 18 meeting, when council members reversed an original decision to support housing the facility.

The freeholders, after hearing arguments from city residents, requested that council abandon its original decision and adopt a new resolution to include a vote count.

According to Welsh, the freeholder board originally received a vague letter from City Clerk Val Imbricco indicating that the mayor and council were in support of the project, but the letter included no supporting documents. During the course of public discussion, the question arose as to whether a vote was actually taken. The freeholders' request was later withdrawn when it was confirmed that there was in fact a vote, and that vote was positive. However, council submitted a second resolution anyway, which did not favor the project.

Welsh said the freeholders held more stock in the first resolution because it was submitted before council members were victims to public pressure.

"It's a matter of interpretation and personal opinion as to how much weight to put on each of the votes," Welsh said. "Most freeholder members have served as public officials before. They understood the body language of the two votes. If they support it one week, and a week later the votes turn around, which vote expresses the true sentiment of the mayor and council? I think anyone can interpret that."

Other issues were taken into consideration by the board, Welsh said. The freeholders felt that the UCUA sufficiently answered questions regarding traffic, who would operate the building, and the provision of an access road off Interstate 287 so no trucks would be required to travel on Bedle Place. Other deciding factors were the willingness of the UCUA to place a crossing guard near the site, the fact that the trucks will be the same kinds that travel along residential streets every day, and the provision of host community benefits for Linden.

Time was another deciding factor, according to Welsh, who said it took almost one year to get from the initial discussions to the actual votes.

"It was almost a no-choice situation for the freeholders," Welsh said. "To start over would seriously delay the project, possibly six months to a year."

Welsh added that the delay was costing the UCUA $37,000 a month in penalty clauses.

But when council changed its stance on the issue, Beatrice Bernzot, president of Concerned Citizens of Linden, said the freeholders should have honored home rule. When a governing body of a city conveys to a county that it does not want something, based on the feelings of its residents, Bernzot said, the county body traditionally honors the unofficial code referred to as home rule.

"This is a slap in the face to the mayor," Bernzot said. "There is a lot of money involved here, and someone is making a profit at the expense of the people."

"The freeholders have always recognized a city's right to make determinations of what will affect it," Bernzot continued. "They have always gone along with the city and its community, except in the case of the Bedle Place recycling plant."

Bernzot said residents will meet Friday at 7 p.m. in the 8th Ward park to form a city line coalition to continue the battle against the siting and to protect future interests.

"It is an impossible location, and nothing but the money involved should have determined that location," Bernzot said. "This is a Union County taxpayer issue. The UCUA has paid $850,000 to the corporation at the Bedle Place site 'just for the right to purchase the building. Then they are going to pay an exorbitant amount, in this real estate recession, of over $3 million for the building. They are socking it to the Union County taxpayers twice, and at the same time, killing a residential neighborhood."

Councilman Albert Youngblood of the 8th Ward said he is disappointed with the decision.

"I will be sitting down with the mayor and council to see what we can do, if anything, to reverse the decision," he said.

Mayor John Gregorio said he does not understand why the freeholders asked for the true feelings of the people, then disregarded those feelings when the time came to take a vote.

"It's a crazy thing," Gregorio said. "They asked for the true feeling of the city, and after the people of that ward impressed us, we listened and decided it was our obligation to reflect the wishes of the people. We voted against it, and now the freeholders pass it. I don't understand it. I don't think it was the right thing for them to do."

National Chorale to perform

The National Chorale's sixth annual New Jersey Festival of American Musical Theater opens with an Independence Eve concert at Echo Lake Park in Mountainside on Wednesday at 8 p.m.

This performance, a part of the Union County Summer Arts Series, and presented by the County's Board of Freeholders and the Department of Parks and Recreation, is sponsored by Merck & Co. Inc., which is celebrating its 100th anniversary in Union County.

Under the baton of Music Director Martin Josman, the National Chorale will present "The Best of Broadway," an all-new program featuring the music of Richard Rodgers, Cole Porter, George Gershwin, Stephen Sondheim, Lloyd Webber and Duke Ellington.

There is no admission charge for this performance or any of the other Wednesday night concerts in the summer arts series. Because of the anticipated large crowd, the rain site for the National Chorale concert is Westfield High School, 550 Dorian Road.

Additional support has been provided by Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Union County College, and Westfield Symphony Orchestra.

Additional information may be obtained by calling the Office of Cultural and Heritage Affairs at (908) 558-2550.

Dog decals available

Springfield Postmaster William G. Daniels announced that the Post Office is offering dog decals to customers who wish to take part in a campaign designed to alert letter carriers to households which contain dogs.

The dog decals are yellow and black, 2 inches in diameter and may be affixed to mailboxes or doors containing postal slots. "The decal will not only serve as a warning to letter carriers," Daniels said, "but also may protect homeowners from potential intruders."

Daniels advised that dogs are territorial by nature and will often attack if the animal feels its territory is threatened by an unfamiliar person.

"The Postal Service tries to do its part, by stressing awareness of dog bite dangers to its carriers," Daniels said. "It also relies on the support and cooperation of the community to help end these painful and costly injuries."

Postal customers can request decals through their carrier and can pick them up at their local post office.

Girlscouts get gold

Last month at Washington Rock Annual Awards and Recognition Dinner, 27 Senior Girl Scouts received the Gold Award, which is the highest award in Girl Scouting.

This Girl Scout of the United States of America Award symbolizes outstanding accomplishments in the areas of leadership, community service, career planning and personal development. The Gold award recipients must complete four interest badges, 30 hours of leadership work in student, church or other organization and 40 hours of career exploration.

Some of the Gold Award projects ranged from: a town event for 1st and 2nd grade Brownies, a fashion show and workshops for Cadette and Senior Girl Scouts to raise funds to send needy girls to camp, a drive to organize medical services to vaccinate homeless children at a Newark agency, writing and directing an Earth Day play at Washington Rock's Earth Day celebration and an event (Junior Jamboree) for Junior Girls Scouts and leaders at Camp Hoover, Washington Rock's Girl Scout Camp. Junior Jamboree included workshops on sewing Girl Scout patches, leader training, jazzercise and career exploration. Some of the responses from leaders at Junior Jamboree included, "Our girls don't want to leave, the weekend was very well run, I give alot of credit to the Senior Girl Scout for running an event for other girls."

Washington Rock Girl Scout Council would like to congratulate all of the Gold Award recipients for their outstanding accomplishments in Girl Scouting.

The following Senior Girl Scouts were Washington Rock Girl Scout Council's 1991 Gold Award recipients:

Clark/Winfield — Melissa Berto, Bolleen Carvalho, Melissa Dobbins, Kenilworth — Theresa Colabillo, Roselle Park — Margaret Louzek, Kathleen Nekasa, Suzanne Norrish, Union — Sharon Brune, Kathleen Gubara, Katy Posen.

CHECKUP TIME — These two Roselle Park cat owners took advantage of last week's free vaccination against fables by bringing their pets in for shots at the first ad station on Laurel Ave. The borough itself sponsored the inoculations.

Dubious fundraising addressed

Dubious fund-raising schemes, similar to those used earlier this year by the National Republican Senatorial Committee, would no longer be legal, under terms of legislation introduced by Assemblyman Neil M. Cohen and Thomas J. Duch.

The bill, known as the Deceptive Campaign Fund-Raising Reform Act of 1991, would prohibit the use of deceptive practices and tactics in political fund-raising campaigns.

"All of us who are committed to honesty and integrity in government were appalled when the NRSC resorted to such shocking, deceptive fund-raising techniques," said Cohen (D-Union). "And it was even more alarming to learn that New Jersey cannot use its existing Consumer Fraud Act to stop this shameful practice."

Cohen noted that the NRSC sent fund-raising letters to about one million Republicans nationwide, including 68,000 New Jerseyans. Enclosed with each letter was a $25 check which, when cashed, authorized the Republican Party to withdraw $12.50 from the recipient's bank account every month until he or she cancels the automatic deductions.

"The details of this bogus fundraising scheme were buried in fine print on the back of the check," said Cohen.

"If a private agency or corporation had used such questionable techniques to extract money from the public, they probably would be facing stiff penalties. There is no reason why groups such as this GOP fund-raising organization should be given a license to defraud and rip-off the public."

Duch noted that, although New Jersey Attorney General Robert Del Tufo sued the NRSC over the scheme, the New Jersey Superior Court rejected the suit on the grounds that the state's Consumer Fraud Act was not intended to cover politics.

"Our bill will close that loophole by supplementing the New Jersey Consumer Fraud Act to include deceptive political fund-raising practices," Duch said.

Under the legislation (A-4937), it would be illegal for a political committee to employ misleading or deceptive tactics, use false pretenses or promises, or knowingly conceal, suppress or omit any significant information when soliciting funds.

Violators would be subject to fines of up to $25,000 for each offense. The legislation also gives the State Attorney General the authority to bring an action in Superior Court for treble damages against those who violate the law.

Chairs roll at Merck

For the next five days, Princeton University will be the site of intense athletic competition as the 1991 National Junior Wheelchair Championships roll into New Jersey. The games are hosted by the Children's Specialized Hospital and are sponsored by Merck & Co., Inc. Both institutions are celebrating their 100th anniversaries this year.

Children's Specialized Hospital has sponsored a junior wheelchair athletic team for 10 years.

"We're really proud of our children and of all the athletes competing," said Andy Chasanoff, meet director.

This year, Merck has joined the hospital in supporting the athletes.

"For 100 years, we have had in common with Children's Specialized Hospital the long-standing goal of improving human health and welfare," said P. Roy Vagelos, M.D., Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Merck. "We are proud to join with them now to salute human spirit and triumph."

Vagelos and Senator Bill Bradley are serving as honorary co-chairmen of the games.

In addition to financial support, Merck has conducted volunteer drives at its three New Jersey sites — Rahway, Woodbridge and Somerset — to encourage employees to lend a hand. Other volunteers include representatives from United Airlines, Westfield YMCA Y's Men, Somerset Hills Hotel, Somerset County Park Commission, the Medplex Rehabilitation Center and Alpha Phi Omega, a statewide service fraternity.

The competition, which is the largest athletic event ever for junior wheelchair sports, will involve more than 300 wheelchair athletes, 5- to 18-years-old, representing 30 states and Canada. More than 35 New Jersey athletes will compete. The young athletes will compete in track and field events, swimming, weightlifting, table tennis and archery.

The games will be conducted under the National Wheelchair Athletic Association rules and regulations, and all officials must be NWAA certified. All athletes must qualify to participate via regional meets.

Children's Specialized Hospital, New Jersey's only comprehensive pediatric rehabilitation hospital, is located in Mountainside with 60 acute rehab beds and 25 long-term care beds. The hospital provides extensive outpatient and community services at its outpatient center in Fanwood and is currently developing a 30-bed unit in Ocean County. Throughout 1991, the hospital is celebrating its 100th-year history of caring for children and adolescents.

The Merck Company Foundation and Merck & Co., Inc., provide support for the enhancement of educational, community and public policy program. In 1990, combined company and foundation grants of more than $18 million were made to educational, civic, cultural, health and social service agencies in communities around the world where Merck has major facilities.

Merck & Co., Inc., is a worldwide research-intensive company that discovers, develops, produces and markets human and animal health products and specialty chemicals. The company has 37,000 employees, 17 research centers, manufacturing facilities in 17 countries, and in 1991, will spend an estimated $1 billion on research and development. Merck was recently chosen for an unprecedented fifth consecutive year as "America's Most Admired Corporation" in an annual Fortune magazine survey of 8,000 top executives, board members and industry analysts.

Ogden supports 'living will'

"The right to live free also includes the right to die according to one's wishes," asserts Assemblywoman Maureen Ogden (R-Essex, Union), whose recently approved bill provides such a right. The bill, sponsored by Ogden and Assemblyman Gerard Naples (D-Mercer), would give New Jersey residents the ability to prepare "living wills" that control life-sustaining care if they become terminally ill.

The legislation enables competent individuals to draw up "living wills" that indicate their specific wishes in the event that they become incapable of making medical decisions. In addition, the individuals could designate a family member or other persons to make the decision for them. Hospitals and physicians would be required to abide by the "living wills." These are also known as "advance directives" for health care.

"I believe people have a fundamental right to accept or refuse medical treatment," said Ogden. "If they don't want their life sustained by artificial means when they are totally incapacitated and there's no hope of recovery, that should be their choice."

"Forty-seven states recognize 'living wills' and it's time for New Jersey to follow suit and give people who want to die with dignity the ability to do so," Ogden said. She added, "the goal of the bill is to assure that the previously expressed wishes of a patient are respected when his or her ability to participate actively in critical health care decisions has been lost or impaired."

She pointed out that the bill reflects the recommendations of the Commission on Legal and Ethical Problems in the delivery of health care, more commonly known as the Bioethics Commission. Living wills are also known as "advance directives for health care." The commission has held hearings and taken testimony from hundreds of individuals and many organizations for more than five years. The bill was supported by forty-one major health care, professional and religious organizations, including the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), American Jewish Congress, Episcopal Diocese of Newark, Medical Society of New Jersey and the New Jersey Association of Non-Profit Homes for the Aging.

Paul Armstrong, chairman of the bioethics commission, called that depth of support "... the overwhelming desire of the people of New Jersey to have their fundamental rights to control decisions about their own health care protected by law."

According to a 1986 Star-Ledger/Eagleton poll, 85 percent of New Jersey residents said that they would want to be allowed to die if they were terminally ill or in a coma with no chance of recovery and were being kept alive by machine. Eighty-four percent of New Jerseyans believe that in these circumstances, family members should be permitted to make these decisions in accordance with their loved one's wishes. And 72 percent of New Jerseyans believe the legislature should enact a law to protect these rights and to establish guidelines for decisions at the end of life.

The approval of the "living will" bill is important because of new federal legislation requiring all hospitals accepting federal funds to advise their patients of their right to contract living will.

Copies of a booklet on living wills, prepared by the New Jersey Commission on Legal and Ethical Problems in the Delivery of Health Care, are available from Assemblywoman Maureen Ogden's office at 266 Essex Street in Millburn, 07041. The booklet contains samples of three kinds of advanced directives and explains the issues one should consider in preparing an "advanced directive" or "living will."

County to honor Desert Storm vets

Union County has plans for a celebration and caravan on July 7, to honor the men and women who were stationed in the Persian Gulf during Operation Desert Storm, announced Union County Freeholder Casimir Kowalczyk, chairman for the event.

"In early March, President Bush urged all Americans to set aside this year's 4th of July to celebrate the homecoming of our troops from the Persian Gulf War," Kowalczyk said. "Our Freeholder Chairman, James Connelly Welsh, formed a freeholder committee of Alan Augustine, Walter McLeod, Gerald Green and myself to honor that request."

The motorized caravan (no walkers) will start at approximately 11 a.m. at Park Avenue and Front Street in Plainfield, and will end at the Elizabeth Marina, where additional festivities are planned.

"We are asking all Persian Gulf War veterans and/or their families to participate in the caravan and celebration," said Freeholder Chairman James Connelly Welsh. "We are holding the event on July 7 so as not to interfere with traditional municipal celebrations held on the Fourth of July."

The motorized route, starting at Park Ave. and Front St., will continue to Watchung Ave. and East onto Fifth St., which becomes South Ave., and through Fanwood and Scotch Plains to the South Ave. traffic circle in Westfield. There the caravan will take North Ave. into Garwood and Cranford, and into Roselle Park where it becomes Westfield Ave., through Elizabeth and a right turn onto Broad St. to Elizabeth Ave. then left onto Elizabeth Ave. to the end, and left to the marina.

At the marina, citizens will be ferried around the Statue of Liberty by the "Amber Jack," which can hold 100 to 150 passengers. With sponsorship, the boat fee will be nominal, and there will also be a concert at the marina at approximately 1 p.m.

"We will not use county tax money for the celebration," Kowalczyk added. "Exxon will hopefully donate the fuel for the ferry rides, but we do need monetary support in the form of corporate sponsors. We are not sure yet what type of a concert we will have, but it costs money. I am hopeful we can garner support in the form of corporate sponsors. We are not sure yet what type of a concert we will have, but it costs money. I am hopeful we can garner support from some of the many businesses and industries in the county."

The county's 21 municipalities have been asked to participate, as well as all the veterans groups. Additional groups will join the motorcade in progress along the way.

To date, donations have come from All State Legal Supply Co. in Cranford, and National Pen Corp., Kenilworth.

"I watched some of the New York parade today, and I got chills from seeing the love and support shown by the public," said Kowalczyk. "They did their parade with public support, and we just need a fraction of that support to make ours a success."

Desert Storm veterans and for their families wishing to participate, or companies wishing to sponsor the event can call the Freeholder Board at 558-2576.

Literacy class set

Literacy Volunteers of Union County will present an In-Service Workshop on Saturday from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on the fourth floor in the auditorium at the Elizabeth Public Library, 11 South Broad St., across from the County Courthouse. For more information, call (908) 354-6060, ext. 214.

In addition to serving as a methods exchange forum for the participating Basic Reading and English as a Second Language tutors, there will be a presentation of newly applied technologies, a general sharing of experiences, and a viewing of an excerpt from "Bluffing It," starring Dennis Weaver. Registration is suggested.

Service for summer

Summer services in Temple Sha'arey Shalom, 78 So. Springfield Ave., Springfield, will begin tomorrow. During the months of July and August, Friday night services will start at 8 o'clock and will be led by lay members of the congregation.

Conducting services tomorrow will be Chick Danziger; July 5, Roger Held; July 12, Susan Rivkind; July 19, Murray Hurwitz; July 26, Irene and Stuart Bolton; Aug. 2, Donald and Beverly Schwartz; Aug. 9, Karen Levine; Aug. 16, Herb Gerstenfeld; Aug. 23, Claire Metzger, and Aug. 30, Salo Enis.

Sha'arey Shalom summer services are "held in a casual atmosphere," it was announced. "This is a good time for families unaffiliated with a temple or synagogue to meet temple members, learn of the customs and traditions of the congregation, celebrate the Sabbath and learn and see first hand what Sha'arey Shalom has to offer."

The congregation has a growing religious and Hebrew School and a nursery school program. Throughout the year, there is an ongoing adult education program and an active social action committee. For the last several years, members "have been active in feeding the homeless in a soup kitchen in Elizabeth."

In the newly-renovated and expanded facilities, the social hall provides "the perfect spot to celebrate all social and life cycle events." Sabbath services are held Friday evening and Saturday morning during the non-summer months.

Sha'arey Shalom is a Reform congregation affiliated with the Union of American Hebrew Congregations (UAHC). The membership is from Union, Essex, Morris and Somerset counties, including the towns of Clark, Mountainside, Springfield and Union.

The public is invited to all Friday and Saturday morning services, it was announced. Information on membership can be obtained by calling the temple office at 908-379-5387.

brated on July 7 with the Rev. R. Sidney Pinch, pastor of Connecticut Farms Church, preaching. He also will preach on July 14 and July 28.

Springfield hurlers help club top two of three opponents

One-run ballgames and complete-game mound efforts were the rule of thumb for the Springfield American Legion baseball team this past week. All three of Springfield's contests were decided by one run with Springfield capturing two of them and receiving complete-game efforts from its pitchers in all three.

The 2-1 week upped Springfield's record to 5-4. Springfield took that record into yesterday's home game against Rahway. Springfield plays at Union tonight at 8:30 and hosts Roselle tomorrow at 5:45.

Wins came against Berkeley Heights 5-4 on Monday and Cubanitos 2-1 on Saturday. Westfield downed Springfield 2-1 on Sunday. At Berkeley Heights, right-hander Jay Desai hurled a four-hitter and struck out 16 to improve his record to 1-1.

With the game tied 3-3 and one down in the top of the sixth, Springfield's Andy Huber stroked a triple to right field. Mike Fronzak brought home Huber with a sacrifice fly to left field to give Springfield the lead for good at 4-3.

Desai drove in a run with a single in the top of the seventh to up Springfield's advantage to 5-3.

Vinnie Cocilovo wielded the hot bat for Springfield, going 3 for 3 with two singles, one triple, one run and two RBI.

On Sunday Cocilovo was a tough-luck loser as Westfield scored two runs off him in the bottom of the seventh for a come-from-behind victory. The winning run scored on an error. Cocilovo, 2-1, yielded six hits, struck out six and walked two in 6½ innings.

Springfield took a 1-0 lead in the top of the sixth on an RBI single by Jason Gibson.

Westfield's Dave Duels lined an RBI single to knot the game at 1-1 before a throwing error with two outs cost Springfield the ballgame.

Clayton Trivett improved his record to 2-1 with a four-hitter against Cubanitos. He fanned seven and walked five in seven innings of work.

Matt Gallaro delivered the big blow, belting a two-run single over the third base bag in the fourth inning for Springfield.

Trivett yielded an RBI single to Eli Gonzalez in the top of the seventh. Cubanitos had runners on first and third with none out, but Trivett struck out the next two batters and, after issuing a walk, got the next batter to line out to end the game.

Springfield is scheduled to play twice on Sunday with road games at Summit and Roselle Park. The game against Summit is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. and the Roselle Park contest is set for 2 p.m.

Team effort sparked Cubs to Little League triumph

When the Cubs defeated the Blue Stars 8-5 for the Mountinside Little League's Major League play-off championship two weeks ago, it was a total team effort that lifted them to victory.

The Cubs had to battle back from a 3-1 deficit to knot the game at 5-5 in the fourth inning before scoring three runs in the fifth for the title.

The Cubs' offense was led by the strong hitting of Kevin McDonough, Shaun Farhion, Pat Collins, Matt Farrington, Tom Tancred and Romaine Ritter.

McDonough singled and tripled for three RBI and Farhion singled and homered. Collins hit his first Major League home run and had three RBI. Farrington, Tancred and Ritter each stroked singles.

Stars' pitcher Brian Cantagallo struck out 11. Teammates Kenny Fisher singled, Robbie Gianotti and Jimmy Debbie had triples and Billy Stolting doubled in a run.

Baseball added

Union County College will add a baseball camp to its list of activities in its "College for Kids" program this summer.

The week-long camp is designed to teach youngsters, ages 8-16, the fundamentals of baseball. The camp will be conducted from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., July 15-19.

Students will be divided into two classes, one for those ages 8-12 and the other for those ages 13-16. Students will become individually involved in various drills for each position and organized games will be played daily between participants of the same age group.

The camp will use the Nomahegan Park fields opposite the Cranford Campus. All campers will receive a T-shirt. Participants should bring lunch with them to camp each day.

Union County College also offers summer sports camps in basketball, soccer and basic martial arts for boys and girls.

Soccer camp

The Kean College men's soccer program will conduct its eighth annual summer soccer camp for boys and girls, ages 6-17, on four different sessions, running now through early August.

Kean head soccer coach Tony Ochrimenko, last fall's New Jersey Athletic Conference Coach of the Year, will direct the camp.

There are four different sessions including the current one which began on Monday and runs through tomorrow. The other sessions will run July 14-19, July 21-26 and July 28-Aug. 2.

Ochrimenko led the Cougars to a 17-6 record and a berth in the NCAA Tournament last season. The squad was voted the top team in the state and won its fifth NJAC crown. He boasts a career record of 184-83-19.

Further information is available by calling Ochrimenko at 527-2936 or 761-0625.

Perhaps the most frightening thing to opposing coaches about Union first baseman Kristin Alvarez is not what she did on the field this season, but the realization that, as a sophomore, she's only going to get better.

Alvarez burned opposing teams for three doubles, five triples and four home runs on her way to a .338 batting average and 28 RBI.

Defensively, she committed just seven errors and posted a .965 fielding percentage.

"Before this season, I'd heard Kristin could hit," said Union head coach George Hopkins. "But she did a great job in the field as well. And she's just a sophomore. She's going to keep improving."

Roselle Park second baseman Kim Harms did just about everything a coach could ask of a lead-off hitter. She hit, she ran and she scored.

Harms, a sophomore, boasted a .391 batting average with 10 doubles, three triples and a home run. She struck out only twice in 92 at-bats. She stole nine bases. She drove in 16 runs. And her 33 runs scored led the team.

She was also sure and steady in the field, registering 53 put outs and 37 assists.

"I think Kim was the top lead-off hitter in the County this season," said Roselle Park head coach John Wagner. "She's an excellent contact hitter, but she also hit for power."

Hopkins calls his shortstop Donna Milla "one of the best players in New Jersey." Her numbers certainly back him up.

The junior belted seven doubles, one triple and one home run on her way to a .430 batting average. She struck out only six times all season. She scored 28 runs and drove in 23 more.

Defensively, Milla was just as strong. She committed only two errors all season and finished with a sparkling .984 fielding percentage.

"Without a doubt she was our best hitter this season," Hopkins said. "And her defensive numbers speak for themselves. She's got a great arm and she makes all the plays. And I've got her for one more year."

Senior shortstop Kim Egan was one of the captains of the David Brearley Regional High School softball team this season and she lived up to the title. From her clean-up position in the lineup, she smacked five doubles and three triples. Her .450 batting average led the team.

A first-team all-Mountain Valley Conference selection, Egan does not confine her athletic talents to the softball diamond. She was an all-

MAURA GEOGHEGAN

Conference selection in basketball and she will be attending the University of Maryland next year to play field hockey.

"Kim is an excellent athlete and an excellent person," Brearley head coach Marge Egan said. "She's the kind of athlete who comes along once in a coach's lifetime."

Junior third baseman Leslie Haddick led the Linden High School softball team in several categories. Her .424 batting average led the Lady Tigers, as did her 18 RBI and 25 stolen bases.

She smacked 25 hits and came in to score 22 runs. She struck out just once all season. Defensively, she made only three errors at third.

"Leslie is an excellent ball player and an outstanding kid," Linden head coach Anthony Siano said. "She's constantly trying to improve herself. She's only a junior. I think that next year, she'll be an outstanding college prospect."

From her position in center, senior Lea Lelli anchored the Arthur L. Johnson Regional High School outfield defense.

"Lea was our best defensive outfielder," Johnson head coach Jim Revel said. "She covered a lot of territory out there and she did a great job."

Lelli threw out five base runners from her centerfield position and committed only two errors all season.

Offensively, she was just as impressive. She finished with a .411 batting average. She scored 19 runs and also drove in 19 runs.

"Lea really carried us this year," Revel said. "She really came through for us when we needed her to."

Senior outfielder Sally Kisch did it all this year for the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School softball team. She batted .365 for the Lady Bulldogs. She belted five doubles, three triples and a home run. She stole 11 bases on the season and her 30 RBI led the team.

"Over the last three seasons, Sally has been our most consistent hitter," Dayton head coach Arthur Krupp said. "Game in and game out, she is a great offensive player. She's our power hitter, and she came through for us this season as the clean-up hitter."

Sally will be attending Union College in the fall, and hopes to play for the Lady Owls next spring.

Roselle Catholic head coach Mary Kate Schiller calls outfielder Karen Kreitz "the team catalyst. Karen has a great attitude and she loves the game. Her enthusiasm would get the other girls going during a game."

Kreitz, a junior, batted .440 with two doubles and three home runs. She stole 23 bases, drove in 20 runs and came in to score 38 runs.

"Karen is a very good player," Schiller said. "She came through when we needed her. She helped keep the team playing together when the pressure was on."

One of the key components to Roselle Park's 17-9 season and appearance in the Union County Tournament final was the play of senior catcher Maura Geoghegan.

"Maura played a pivotal role in our success this past season," Wagner said. "She was so important in handling the young players on the team. Her experience helped make her a leader on the team."

Geoghegan finished with a .418 batting average. She had 10 doubles, a triple and one home run. She drove in 37 runs to lead the team. She also came in to score 28 runs.

On defense, she had 75 put-outs and eight assists.

A four-year starter for the Lady Panthers, Geoghegan has been offered a four-year softball scholarship to the University of Oregon.

Union's Shannon Schmitt was the only 20-game winner in Union County this season. The junior righthander finished with a 21-6 record. She allowed 40 earned runs and struck out 62 over 168 1/3 innings for a 1.66 ERA.

She also fielded her position very effectively. She made only one fielding error and she finished with a .987 fielding percentage.

She batted .260, with one double, four triples and two home runs. She drove in 18 runs.

"Shannon's not a power pitcher like we've had in the past," Hopkins said. "But she came through for us. Once she cut down on her walks, we really started winning."

Of all the impressive statistics surrounding Jessica DeLuca of Roselle Park High School, perhaps the most impressive was her class. She just completed her freshman season.

"Jessica is an outstanding pitcher and she showed tremendous poise for a freshman," Wagner said. "She maintained her concentration and stability on the mound like a real veteran. She pitched us all the way to the County final."

JESSICA DELUCA

DeLuca posted a 16-9 record with a 2.94 ERA. She proved to be good-fielding pitcher as well, with 17 put-outs and 24 assists. DeLuca was equally impressive at the plate. She batted .478, which led the team. She smacked three doubles, three triples and three home runs and drove in 35 runs.

Rahway's ace Tara Shipley has proved to be another good-hitting pitcher. She allowed 18 earned runs and struck out 158 over 131 innings en route to a 17-5 record. She also pitched a no-hitter against Shabazz on April 17.

Shipley, a junior, was strong on offense too. She hit seven doubles and six triples to drive in 18 runs. She finished with a .444 batting average.

"I've always said her statistics speak for themselves," Rahway head coach Harry Reiser said. "She works hard on the mound. On top of her pitching, she's developed into a good hitter, an excellent fielder and a fine base-runner."

WHO'S ON FIRST?

This week's question: Who are the only players in major league history to have hit more than 300 home runs and steal more than 300 bases in their careers? Here's a hint: there are two of them.

Last week's answer: Ted Williams played in 55 games between May 15 and July 16, 1941. During that time, he went 77-for-187 for a .412 batting average. He drove in 49 runs over those 55 games, and came in to score 59 runs himself.

Williams had a hitting streak of his own going during that period. From May 15 through June, he hit safely in 23 consecutive games. He missed four games at the end of DiMaggio's streak because of an injured ankle.

Incidentally, DiMaggio batted .408 during his 56-game hitting streak.

This week, Henry Hascup of Lodi and Pete Easton of Madison submitted a correct answer.

SERVING UP A LESSON — Faisal Khan, a youth tennis instructor with the Linden Recreation Department, teaches Linden resident Justin Biscaglia the finer points of the serve. The tennis lessons are free and are sponsored by the Recreation Department. Classes are held every Saturday from 9 a.m.—noon at Wilson Park.

Cranford Jaycees to sponsor annual 4-mile run

The 12th annual Cranford Jaycees Firecracker Four-Mile Run will take place July 4th in Cranford. The race will begin at 9:30 a.m. and will start and finish at Nomahegan Park on Springfield Avenue.

A one-mile "Fun Run" will precede the main race at 9 a.m.

Registration for both events begins at 7:30 a.m. at the Springfield Avenue entrance to Nomahegan Park, directly across from Union County College.

Lomnyaki Loiboku of Newark finished first in the men's division of last year's race with a time of 19:45. Margaret Koontz of New York City took the women's crown with a time of 23:14, fourteen seconds off the course record she set in 1988.

A trophy — the Frank Krause Cup — and $100 will be presented to both the first female and the first male finisher in the race.

All race preregistrants will receive a commemorative T-shirt. Runners who register on the day of the race will receive T-shirts while the supply lasts. Watches donated by Casio, a corporate sponsor of the race, will go to the top three finishers in each age group, first place teams in the partners categories and winners in the heavy-weight divisions.

The Central Jersey Chioprac

Society, another race sponsor, will host a running clinic to coincide with the Firecracker Four-Miler. The clinic will begin at 8 a.m. in Nomahegan Park and will conclude at noon.

Entries can be obtained locally from Gold Medal Fitness of Cranford or from the Cranford Community Center on Bloomingdale Avenue. For more information or for entries, call John Bashaw at 276-4818.

Use your imagination and discover your bridal personality

Wedding bells are in the air... Congratulations! You're getting married! If you're like most prospective brides, you're already dreaming of a magnificent wedding, a breathtaking gown and an unforgettable honeymoon with the most luxurious lingerie.

To help, most bridal magazines offer monthly countdowns that organize all those pesky details and keep plans running smoothly. But the big question remains: How do you make your wedding uniquely your own? Brides-to-be should consider the type of gown, location of the ceremony, even honeymoon lingerie that truly reflects their own style.

According to Modern Bride's Fashion Editor, Linda Weichenrider, "When choosing lingerie, you'll want to select something that reflects your own tastes. Traditional and conservative women may feel very uncomfortable wearing a sheer or revealing gown the night of their honeymoon."

She adds, "It's important to follow your instincts when making wedding arrangements so the day of the event you're comfortable and relaxed with the choices you've made." Here are five fantasy examples to spark your imagination.

Traditional

The traditional bride selects a long-sleeved, silk Empire gown, overlaid with Alençon or Chantilly lace and encrusted with tiny pearls. The length of her train hinges somewhat on the size of the room; a six-foot train looks silly in a private chapel. Her morning wedding takes place in a Gothic-style church or cathedral or in a dramatic synagogue.

After the ceremony, stretch limousines convey the wedding party to the reception. The setting: A rambling, Tara-like country club, perfect for dancing on the terrace to a local ensemble. Here, lunch and champagne are followed by an all-white, tiered cake covered in white sugar flowers.

For her honeymoon, she looks to sun, sea and sand in Hawaii, Paradise Island or Cancun, destined for a memorable two weeks. A long stretch of beach decorated with palm trees gleaming in the sunset is her fantasy backdrop as she makes her entrance in a traditional peignoir set from Val Mode Lingerie. It is a delicate spaghetti strap gown with a jacquard bodice, and a jacquard coat featuring decorative lace trim on the sleeves. From the waist down the coat is sheer and tied with a ribbon belt, a honeymoon ensemble perfect for every traditional bride.

Sexy

How daring are you? Daring enough to hold your wedding and reception under an Arabian tent on a New York rooftop? If so, a hot and sexy style may be right for you.

Things begin to warm up around 10 p.m., with the bride making her entrance in a body-hugging strapless sheath. The reception features the music of Anita Baker for slow dancing, and an enticing menu that includes oyster, creamy pates, grapes and figs followed by a dense, semi-sweet chocolate cake with mounds of fudge frosting.

For her honeymoon in Monte Carlo, the bride packs a sheer black lace teddy with a chiffon flounce and embroidered red roses.

Romantic

The romantic bride chooses an updated fairy tale wedding held on a yacht at sunset. Her gown recalls the bows and puffs of Lady Diana's white confection. Delicate pearls capture the glow of a thousand candles lighting the reception in the great room of the yacht.

Champagne flows throughout dinner, and dessert is a lacy, tiered white cake flavored with a hint of orange. After dancing until dawn to the music of Michael Feinstein, our heroine and her husband depart for Portugal, where they honeymoon in a 19th-century palace with a view of gently rolling hills leading down to the ocean. Her trousseau includes an ivory charmeuse gown covered with a flowing chiffon wrap detailed with sequins and pearls.

Sophisticated

Whether on Chestnut Street in Boston, or on Nob Hill in San Francisco, the sophisticated bride chooses a gracious townhouse for the setting of her wedding. Mixing the old and new, she wears a crystal-pleated Mary McFadden evening gown in spun silver or soft gold, offset by antique diamond teardrop earrings.

Her reception features dancing to the music of Peter Duchin, the finest champagne, and an impressive menu including caviar in new potatoes, smoked salmon, tiny lamb chops, and vegetables stuffed with herbbed cheese. Dessert is a hazelnut Genoise covered in rum icing.

For a sophisticated honeymoon, she and her husband have planned a theater week at the Savoy in London. Dining on the balcony with the Thames in the background creates the perfect setting for a romantic dinner in luxurious lingerie. The bride wears a dramatic black scroll patterned charmeuse gown featuring built up straps for a look of sophistication from the Jessica Lynn Collection. The matching full-length kimono robe with a rope tie is optional to cover the slit of the gown.

Playful

The playful bride is nothing if not spontaneous. She and her fiancé invite friends and family to a country party at a winery. When the guests arrive, they find the tasting room draped in white parachute silk. When they see the bride wearing a short, slinky white dress with layers and layers of ruffles, they suspect something is afoot.

After the brief surprise ceremony, everyone celebrates to Kentucky bluegrass music. The menu is down-home: southern fried chicken wings, cornbread, mini-tacos, sliced catfish on homemade biscuits, and the winery's finest wines and champagnes. As expected, the cake is unconventional: a replication of the bride's skirt, executed in spun sugar.

In keeping with her spontaneity, this bride has packed a smashing Val Mode Lingerie red coulette teddy with delicate spaghetti straps, button down front and a slightly flared and flirtatious bottom that she discovers can appear as a chemise or a pant for a secret surprise on her honeymoon down-under in the Australian outback!

Every bride-to-be dreams of a wedding that reflects her individual style. Concentrating on a single theme provides direction, and helps to organize all those details that keep your wedding running smoothly.

Once those elements are in place a bride can enjoy putting together her trousseau, from a selection of delicate lingerie — like Val Mode or Jessica Lynn lingerie, available at major department and specialty stores nationwide — to her bridal gown and even her floral arrangements. Taking the time to plan carefully means the reward of sharing a wedding that truly has your signature.

Plan to cope with reality of 'wedding aftershock'

Soon you will be married and like most newlyweds, you will probably feel a bit disoriented. No matter how wonderful your marriage is, it will not be exactly what you expected. Some things will be better than you hoped and some will be, well, just different.

The culprit is wedding aftershock, a term coined by author Charlie Michaels to describe the disorientation that occurs when the reality of married life is at odds with our expectations. Wedding aftershock can result in misunderstandings, hurt feelings and occasional chaos:

The grocery list was on the table this morning. You both came home bearing milk and bread.

Thanksgiving's approaching and you have invited your family to dinner. Your spouse promised your in-laws you'd join their family gathering.

Your charge card is rejected because it's over the credit laws. You didn't know anything was purchased.

It's little comfort to know that all couples encounter some amount of post-wedding trauma. Even when misunderstandings, are amusing, its disquieting to know when you are not completely in sync.

Most wedding aftershock can be avoided with planning. Unfortunately, most couples spend time selecting their china than they do planning their marriage. That's not so surprising. After all, everyone feel confident picking a china pattern. Who knows how to plan one's marriage?

That may soon change, thanks to a recently published book, Avoiding Wedding Aftershock or I Like You Even Better Now That I Know You, written by Charlie Michaels with her husband, Mike Brown, this book helps couples prepared for married life. While most prenuptial counseling focuses on the big picture-life goals, moral issues, should you marry, this book helps couples develop a common set of expectations for the day-to-day aspects of married life.

Individuals respond to a series of questions on such diverse topics as "Morning Routines" and "Things You Can Do To Show Me You're Sorry."

Answers are then shared and agreements reached on how differences will be handled. A list summarizing shared expectations becomes the couple's Marriage Pact.

Thoughtful implementation of your Marriage Pact will eliminate many misunderstandings and make it more likely that both of you will get what you want from marriage. It will also eliminate the tendency to role play.

When you love someone, it's natural to want to be your best for them. For many, that means trying to be the ideal spouse. The catch is that your idea of ideal will probably vary significantly from that of your spouse. Creating a Marriage Pact will give you the confidence of knowing what will make each other happy.

Michaels is a firm believer that knowledge is happiness in marriage. She explains, "Think of your partner as a box of chocolates. If you think you have chocolate-covered cherries, you'll feel disappointed when you come across a chocolate-covered caramel."

"When you know you have an assortment, you go into it realizing you'll like some selections better than others. That doesn't discourage you from indulging and loving it. You anticipate the variety and are more receptive to that occasional caramel."

Avoiding Wedding Aftershock or I Like You Even Better Now That I Know You is only available by mail. To order, send check or money order for $14.95 plus $2 postage and handling to Carmichael Ventures, Inc., P.O. Box 650, Dept. M. North Hollywood, CA 91603. California residents add $1.01 tax. Visa and Mastercard orders call 800-762-8848.

Creating a marriage pact is a rare opportunity to positively affect your relationship in a short time. In addition to being a delightful way to learn about each other, the sharing offers a short-cut way to emotional intimacy.

Invaluable for first marriages, the book is an absolute must for second timers.

Shopping for carpeting will brighten newlywed's home

It's that time of year again; those wedding bells are ringing. If you're one of those many couples who'll be setting up households for the first time this season, there's no doubt you've got many decisions to make. If floor covering is one of your concerns, here are some tips from Sandler & Worth, one of the Northeast's leading retailers of carpets and rugs.

If you'll be furnishing an apartment, you may want to consider investing in a couple of great rugs to add color and life to your rooms. There are many different styles and sizes to choose from and the rugs you purchase now can be moved from home to home for years to come.

Don't assume, however, that you must choose rugs. According to Sandler & Worth president Charles Levin, broadloom isn't necessarily a poor choice for apartments.

"Many people are afraid to consider broadloom carpet for their apartments because they think they won't be able to take it with them when they leave," Levin said. "But if you prefer to carpet your apartment, remember that broadloom can be pulled up and bound when you're ready to move on to make wonderful rugs for a new home."

If you do opt for carpet, Levin suggests looking at some of the "new neutrals," such as peach, pink-cast beiges, green-cast khakis, gray-greens or sage. These pale neutrals work very well as a canvas for the deeper and richer colors and textures now appearing on walls and in fabrics.

If you'll be furnishing a house, there are many different options to choose from, depending on the condition of the existing floors or carpeting. Wood floors can be greatly enhanced by rugs, as can existing carpeting.

For carpeting that is in overall good shape, but is worn down in high traffic areas, Levin suggest "layering" over those footworn spots: Put down a beautiful Oriental rug to unite a room's color scheme and hide flaws. "Size is not a problem with Orientals," Levin said. "They can be found in sizes as small as 2' x 3' to sizes as immense as 17' x 20'."

When shopping for carpets and rugs, Sandler & Worth suggest bringing a pillow or fabric swatch with you so there's no question of color match. If you prefer to see first-hand what the carpet or rug you're interested in will look like in your own home, you may want to try Sandler & Worth's Shop-At-Home Service.

Just call 1-800-SANDLER to set an appointment with a Sandler & Worth representative. They'll assess your needs over the phone, bring carpet or rug samples directly to your home, and even provide decorating advice if you need it.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Rare sea creatures are captured in artist's work

By Bea Smith
Staff Writer

Nothing has ever deterred Sheila O. Barrera of Rahway from her artistic creativity and endeavors — and nothing ever will.

"I've had many obstacles in my path throughout my life," Barrera said. "I've had to deal with dyslexia, illnesses, Lyme disease, the truth about prehistoric sea monsters... you name it... I've had it!"

Barrera, who will have an exhibition at the Les Malamut Art Gallery in Union Library, Morris Avenue in Friberger Park, Sunday through Sept. 13, will feature bronze sculpture, pen and ink, watercolors and oils, and will highlight her paintings on lake phenomena.

"In my work," she said, "I am mostly interested in showing aspects of the natural world that are not immediately noticed in everyday life. My series on 'Unexplained Lake Phenomena' especially emphasizes this, as sightings of these creatures are rare."

The 37-year-old artist declared that her education in art began at the age of 4 with my paternal grandmother, Onna T. Orick. She painted in oils, landscapes mostly, but some still lifes. She was a graduate of Potsdam University and taught in schools in upstate New York.

"Some of the fondest memories I have as a child are of my grandmother teaching me. We would sit down and draw together. She was actually a retired school teacher, and she always had a painting in the works. Whenever I visited her, she would encourage me to draw with colored pencils. And before I was 6 years old, she gave me oil paints, and I made a mess of them," Barrera laughed.

"You know, my mother says that my education started earlier. When I was about 2, I got myself into cold cream in my crib and made drawings. It took about eight coats of paint to cover the grease on the crib."

From the age of 2½, Barrera, then Sheila Orick, "had a problem with dyslexia, which means reversal. And I still have a problem with left and right, but that was the beginning of it."

Nothing, however, would deter her from reaching her goal. "As far back as I can remember," she said, "this is what I wanted to do. When I was about 9 years old I stopped painting. I made sculptures in school and at home. I still work a lot with clay. My mother has a 'museum' of my early work," she mused.

Barrera recalled that she also took ballet and studied piano. "I used to compose piano pieces during my high school years, and my piano teacher wanted me to become a pianist instead of an artist. I guess she was impressed with my creativity, but I still wanted to be an artist. When I went to college at Pratt University, Brooklyn, N.Y., I stopped studying the piano, much to the dismay of my piano teacher," she said.

She was graduated in 1977 with a bachelor of fine arts degree. However, during the time she was in college, the artist found working with color psychologically difficult and puzzling. "It's funny," she said, "but I had difficulty using color. I wouldn't use color very much. In fact, I'd only use one color at a time. So, I did print making. I majored in sculpture — one color, bronze, and I also studied jewelry making. I felt safer with gemstones."

"I found that I never could use more than two colors, and even when I did, they were always subdued colors — nothing very bright. I didn't know what the mystery was at the time, and I wasn't happy with the results of my work. I did get into one gallery with my bronze pieces and my jewelry. It was my first gallery exhibition." That was in 1985 at the Gallery of Illustration and Fine Art in Philadelphia, where Barrera exhibited about 20 pieces.

Prior to that, in 1980, she won a first-prize award in a Lunacon Art Show at the Sheraton in Saddle Brook for her bronze sculpture "Warrior."

"One day," she recalled, "I read a book called 'Dianetics,' and a friend of mine and I went to a Dianetics session where we sat down to talk about things we like, to try to discover what held us back. You find your answers, really," Barrera said. "It's a science."

She discovered that when she was in the fourth grade at Pashley School in East Glenville, she had done a vibrant, colorful painting of New York City. "I was working on it in an art class, and somebody came up behind me and said in a snide tone of voice, 'Ohh... what bright colors!'"

"I cried for a good long time. It made me so angry at the time. I was just crushed."

Barrera explained that once she'd discovered the reason behind her eventual "subdued colors," she rediscovered herself. "I immediately went out and bought a paint set and feeling very angry, I said to myself, 'I've just got to confront this.' So I took a vacation in the Caribbean, which is the perfect place to go to paint beautiful pictures. Even before I got there, I did a painting on the plane of a sunset. It was a watercolor. Since then, I've done hundreds of paintings and used really bright colors."

When that sunset painting was exhibited, she said that "five minutes into the exhibition, I sold the painting to a girl who said, 'I just love the colors in the painting. I just have to have it. How much is it?'"

"While I was in the Caribbean, I did some fine paintings with beautiful colors. But I always felt that there was something more to art than just beauty, and for the longest time, I couldn't put my finger on it. I wanted to say something more than 'things are beautiful.'"

"So," she said, "in 1985, I took a vacation with my parents up to Lake Champlain. Actually, it was on my honeymoon in 1982 in Argentina at Lake Nahuel Huapi when I had my absolute first contact with the subject of lake monsters, which in Canada they refer to as the Lock Ness Monster."

Her husband, Henry Steve Barrera, who comes from Argentina, and who "is one of the best automobile salesmen at Sansone Toyota in Avenel," took her to his homeland on their honeymoon. "One of the guides first mentioned that there was a legend or folklore that people had seen a creature that lived in the lake. The sites are beautiful there. It's a very inspirational kind of place, and it has all sorts of colorful local stories."

"I became interested then, and more so when I went to Lake Champlain. The people there swear they sometimes see something huge in the lake. And just driving on the roads, one can see billboards and signs that mention 'Champ' or 'Champee,' referring to the sea monster. I guess," she laughed, "that was a tourist attraction. I realize that one must have an open mind when people tell you stories. There are about 200 lakes all over Canada, and people keep saying, 'I saw something in the lake,' so I've been painting what they've been telling me," she smiled. "I'm not a scientist or a biologist, I'm an artist, and it's my job to tell their stories on canvas. And so I do."

Fascinated with the subject, Barrera said, "The man who probably inspired the whole series of paintings has his own sailboat, and back when I was at Lake Champlain — he was in his 80s then — took me out for a sail. He was a friend of my father's, and who could resist an opportunity to ask him about sea monsters. Well, we went all the way out and the water got a little choppy, and I said, 'By the way, did you ever see Champ?' So, he told me a story about how he did see the monster, which was about 40 feet long with a head that 'looked like a horse.' I could see that he was looking back in his memory, and 10 minutes later, when we were sailing back to shore, he saw my father waiting. My father is a very conventional guy, who would never believe such stories, although my mother has a more open mind. The old man, with a twinkle in his eye, suddenly said, 'If you believed that one, I have another one for you.' I really believed him, and to this day, I don't really know. That's how I feel about it." Later, he asked me to paint a picture of his boat, and I did a pen and ink, and put a sea monster in the painting. I really don't know how much of it I believe. But what I love is the mystery of the whole thing."

In 1989, she studied with Janice DiGiorgio of Clark, an art instructor at the Cultural Building in Rahway. "I took a painting class Thursday nights," she said.

That year, Barrera exhibited her works at the Celebrity Centre, New York, and at Artists For a New Civilization Art Show, New York City. The following year, she exhibited at the Rahway Public Library and the Wilhite Collectibles, Clearwater, Fla.

"Just as my career began to blossom," she recalled, "I was exposed to Lyme disease three times. And I would like to say that one should cover one's arms and legs with light material when one is in grassy areas. It is the most devastating disease anyone can have."

How did Barrera arrange to exhibit her 45 pieces at the Les Malamut Gallery in Union?

"Well, I called the library to ask how to register a business. I call my business 'Scenes of Beauty.' I was given some information and it was suggested that I talk to Seymour Meskin, whose recent death shocked me. He was so helpful and he knew so much about art. He talked to me about my paintings. I'm going to dedicate my show in Union to him."

"He told me all about the Les Malamut Gallery and told me to call his wife, Viola, who is president of the gallery. I'm bashful about things like that, so I didn't call her. But she called me. I was ill at the time. But I must say, it was Mr. Meskin who was totally responsible for getting me into this gallery."

Her work will consist of the Caribbean series... "about 30 pieces. And a series on Union County parks."

Barrera, who has just finished illustrating a book on Lake Erie monsters, by Dwight Whalen, said her husband "loves my paintings."

She said that she has met people from all over the world and has heard from people in different languages who are interested in the legendary sea monsters. "I consider myself a folk artist. And since I heard the stories, it seems to me that I did see something way out in Lake Champlain. I could have sworn I saw something there, but when I looked again, I just saw waves. And," she laughed, "I realized it was the back of a boat."

Summer arts festival concert series announced

The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders has announced that the Department of Parks and Recreation's 1991 Summer Arts Festival concert series began on June 19, with a Jewish Heritage Night Concert.

The 11-week series will feature a different type of musical group each Wednesday, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m., in the amphitheater area of Echo Lake Park, Mountainside. Concert admission is free, and patrons should bring lawn chairs or blankets to sit on.

According to Freeholder Vice Chairman Elmer Ertl, "The season's first concert, Jewish Heritage Night, featured The Hester Street Troupe. The trio included Jay Seifach, Alan Sweifach and Jim Bazewicz of Cranford, and was brought back this year due to their popularity in the past."

The Hester Street Troupe took its name from the Lower East Side of New York. It was on Hester Street that many of the newly arrived immigrants lived, pushcart vendors sold their wares, weddings were held in the street and back yard, and Klezmer bands were in the forefront of Jewish entertainment. The Hester Street Troupe brings their audiences back to that time with their interpretations of popular and older Yiddish songs, Klezmer melodies, Freilachs, Hebrew and Chassidic melodies, as well as English songs with a Jewish flavor. The 1991 concert schedule is as follows:

- July 3, The National Chorale sponsored by Merck & Company Inc.
- July 10, The Big Band Sound sponsored by the American Federation of Musicians, Local 151 featuring The Music Makers.
- July 17, Broadway Review featuring Tuxedo Junction.
- July 24, Country-Bluegrass Festival featuring The Warrior River Band.

- July 31, The Ocean County String Band sponsored by McDowell's Total Comfort Company.
- Aug. 7, Polka Night featuring Joe Stanky and His Cadets.
- Aug. 14, Italian Night featuring The Marty DeRose Review.
- Aug. 21, Do-Wop Night sponsored by First Nationwide Bank featuring Last Exit and Earl Lewis & the Channels.
- Aug. 28, Gaelic Night sponsored by The Elizabethtown Gas Co. featuring The Paddy Noonan Band, The Parlin & District Pipe Band and The Deirdre Shea Irish Dancers.

In case of rain concerts will be held on the same date and time at Trailside Nature & Science Center, Coles Avenue and New Providence Road, Mountainside.

The check had already come and gone. "You have to try our mashed potatoes," said Sally Reese, co-owner of the Rose L Pub. "They're just like home," she said. "Better."

She was right.

The mashed potatoes and gravy, like the entire meal, was indicative of the atmosphere, service and prices at the Rose L Pub, located on West First Avenue in Roselle — unpretentious simplicity, just like home.

From the subtle floral prints on the wall of the cozy dining area to the hospitable service, the Rose L Pub is an ideal find for people in search of an alternative to the overcrowded, over-rated "restaurants" in Union County.

Reese and her partner, Sadie "Winkie" Regan, have clearly achieved what they intended when they opened the combination restaurant and pub more than one year ago. "We've tried to provide people in the area with a simple and inexpensive place to dine in a relatively informal setting," Reese said.

While she was unquestionably accurate in her characterization of the establishment's specialty of "home-cooking," if every home had Head Chef George Waked in the kitchen, her business wouldn't be booming.

The menu, like the scheme of the dining room itself, which is a combination of colonial, gothic and victorian in style, offers a comparable assortment of appetizers, entrees and desserts at affordable prices.

From mouth-watering American buffalo wings to delicately spiced stuffed shrimp, the menu offers an abundance of appetizers, averaging $3 each. An assortment of properly-priced soups and salads are also offered as a warm-up to the main course.

The dinner and luncheon menu crosses all ethnic boundaries while

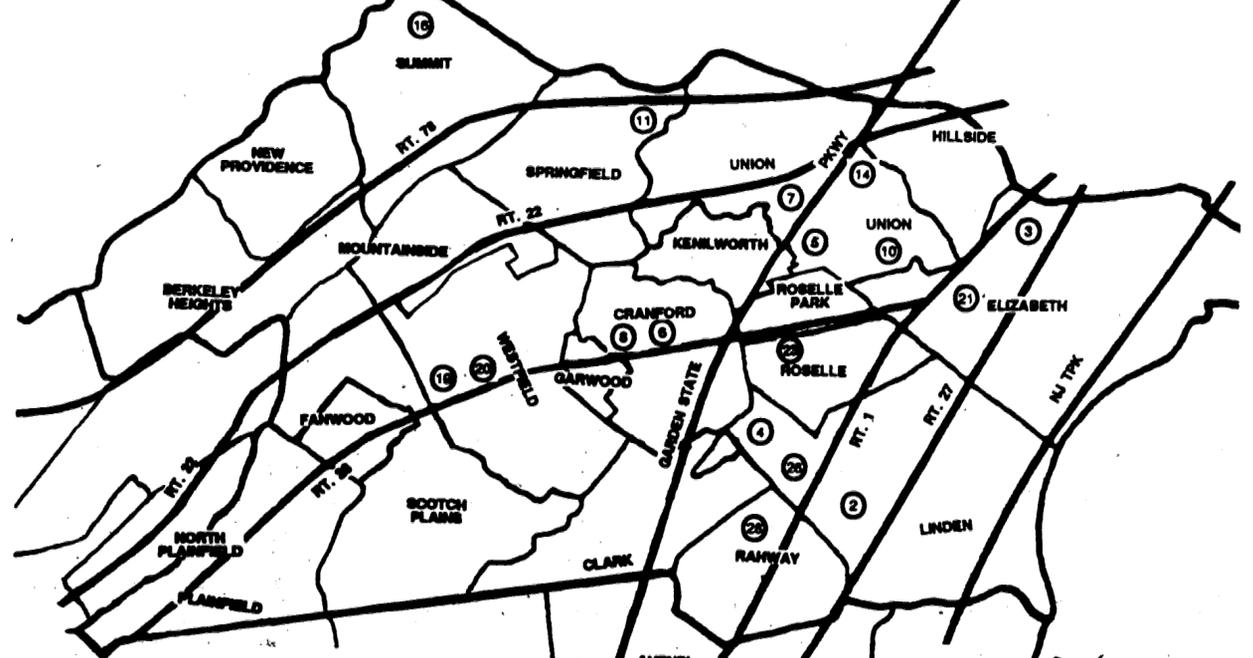

For those who prefer fine beers or wine and a pub atmosphere after dinner, the "pub" of the establishment is located only a few steps from the main dining room. Comfortably out of ear-shot, the pub opened several months prior to the dining room.

"Rockin'" is an accurate adjective to describe the pub. A variety of Thursday night events, including live entertainment and sing-a-longs, such as the current Oldies Night, set the tempo for the '50s, be-bop atmosphere of the cozy public house.

The evening's coup de grace was the apple pie a la mode. When Sally and Winkie say "homemade," they mean "homemade."

Like most of the desserts, the apple pie came straight from the ovens of various Roselle residents. Healthy portions of rice pudding, cheesecake and carrot cake, among others, are under $2, though well worth more. The entire evening, which included a drink in the pub and tips, cost under $30.

The Rose L Pub is open Tuesday to Sunday and takes all major credit cards. Reservations are recommended on the weekend.

Cheap break jobs are not worth the savings

Imagine this. You're driving down the road and the car in front of you stops abruptly. You put your foot on the brake and nothing happens. Your brakes aren't working!

This scenario might be your worst nightmare. But a low cost brake job could make it a reality. In fact, it is estimated by the Car Care Council that brake failure is the most common mechanical deficiency leading to motor vehicle accidents. The vast majority of these brake failures stem from neglected maintenance.

A low cost brake job is just what the name implies — a cheap fix-it for your brakes. An average low cost brake job means that your brake shoes or pads will be replaced and your drums or rotors turned for $49 to $79 an axle. But there is a lot more to your brake system than just shoes or pads.

According to Barry Clark, brake product manager at Wagner Brake and Lighting Products, there are at least 13 major components in the braking system of today's typical car, including the master cylinder, calipers, wheel bearings, hoses and springs. To avoid brake failure and to keep your brakes at peak operating condition, you should have your entire brake system inspected every 20,000 miles.

There are also specific symptoms that you should watch for, such as squealing or grinding noises, pedal vibration, unreliable stopping, grabbing brakes, a pedal without pressure or excessive pedal effort. If any of these symptoms appear, you should seek help from a professional immediately.

In 1983, Wagner developed Total Brake Service (TBS), a complete system inspection program, to detect brake problems before those symptoms develop. "We do more than just replace the shoes and pads. TBS will bring the brake system back to its original performance level," Clark said.

Replacement of other worn brake parts as well as the shoes and pads is critical to driving safety. A low cost brake job does not replace hoses and often reuses the hardware, like springs and clips, in the wheel assembly. This could lead to potentially dangerous situations, explained Clark.

The temperature in the wheel assembly can reach 500 degrees Fahrenheit, and hardware is subjected to a tremendous amount of stress. Brake hoses, which are under the car and exposed to the weather, can also wear over time. A spring without tension or a hose that has burst can lead to brake failure or brake lockup. These parts should be carefully checked, and replaced as needed, whenever your brakes are serviced. Your family's safety depends on it.

A total system inspection, with emphasis on preventive maintenance, can end up costing you much less in the long run.

"If a brake job is done right the first time, you won't have to go back and pay more to fix something that was damaged by a part that should have been replaced," said Ray Lloyd, a service dealer in Metairie, La., who has specialized in brakes for 39 years.

Quality of replacement parts is also a potential problem with a low cost brake job. Cheaper, "generic" brake parts are not as reliable and can wear out faster than quality products. Brand name products may cost you more, but the lifetime warranties offered on premium products by some manufacturers offset the cost.

"Most of my customers notice the difference in performance right away," Lloyd said.

Before you have your brakes repaired, you should make sure you know exactly what you're getting for your money. Ask the service manager if they provide a total system inspection and a written estimate before work begins.

You cannot put a price tag on the security of reliable brakes, and a low cost brake job may cost you more than you expect. If you get regular inspections, replace all worn parts, and maintain proper fluid levels, you can have an efficient brake system, assured Clark.

"Remember," Lloyd said, "if you get into your car and it won't start, it may be a hassle. But, if you get into your car and it won't stop — you're really in trouble."

Hints on how to save gas

Transportation accounts for more than 62 percent of all America's oil use, with most of this amount consumed by automobiles and light trucks, the U.S. Department of Energy said.

It is important to recognize that properly maintained vehicles consume less energy and that all motorists, therefore, can influence U.S. energy consumption.

Here are some tips from the DOE that can help save gasoline, money, and the nation's valuable energy resources:

- Turn an engine off rather than letting it idle for more than one minute.
- Change spark plugs, air filters, fuel filters and get tune-ups at regular intervals.
- Keep your vehicle's tires inflated at the manufacturer's recommended maximum pressure.
- Anticipate upcoming stops in the general flow of traffic and avoid sudden stops and starts.
- Be aware that with most vehicles, fuel economy drops when speed increases over 55 miles per hour.
- Don't carry unnecessary weight in your vehicle.

Weichert boasts $1-M club

For the 16th consecutive year, Weichert, Realtors has had more New Jersey Million Dollar Club members than any other real estate firm in the state.

In a recent announcement, company president James M. Weichert reported that 327 Weichert sales associates attained entry into the prestigious New Jersey Million Dollar Club in 1990.

Membership is based upon a sales associate's annual sales volume and total marketed listings.

Most significant about the number of associates attaining that honor, according to Weichert, is that the figure represents a 9 percent increase over the previous year's record.

"In what was a very challenging year for home sales, not only was our company able to maintain our No. 1 position for the 16th year in a row, but we actually recorded a substantial increase in our number of Million Dollar Club producers," the Weichert president emphasized. "This is a remarkable achievement for these individual associates who met a tough market head on, with determination, hard work, and genuine dedication to the needs of home buyers and sellers."

According to figures supplied by the New Jersey Association of Realtors, 2,289 sales associates from the approximately 3,500 real estate offices throughout the state qualified for the New Jersey Million Dollar Club in 1990. Sales associates with Weichert, Realtors accounted for almost 15 percent of that total.

Dammont's 'snappy' artwork is on display

The works of Frederick Dammont will be seen in a photography exhibit entitled "From Here and There: Nature-Art-Architecture," at the offices of the Polish-Slavic Credit Union, located in Union, from June to July.

Dammont, a professional physicist and award-winning amateur photographer, is a veteran of six one-man shows and numerous group print shows. His preferred medium are slow-speed 35 mm. film color slides, eventually used in presentations of his photographic essays. The essays, compiled in the course of worldwide travels, reflect the more photogenic cultural and aesthetic aspects, characteristic for the visited geographic areas. Selected slides are then reproduced as C-prints via 4 inch by 5 inch internegatives.

It is Dammont's opinion that besides the means of expression exercised by professional pursuits, it is most satisfying to find a totally independent outlet for creativity; in his case, photography, allowing him countless hours of enjoyment, which he hopes to share with his audiences.

Located at 667 Chestnut St., Union, the office hours are noon to 7 p.m. on Mondays through Fridays, and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday. For further information, contact F. Dammont at 201-482-5744.
