

From The Editor's Notebook

By Tom Canavan
Editor In Chief

Not too long ago, I addressed a group of fourth-graders in the Cedar Grove school system because my nephew, one of the students in the class, told his teacher that he knew a "real live newspaper editor" who would love to volunteer his time to talk to the class.

When my sister called to tell me what a wonderful uncle I was, I expected the worst. She complimented me even before she informed me of my assignment.

So I went. Seated at the head of the class, I was surrounded by more than 30 9- to 10-year-olds who, after several lessons dealing with how to edit their own work, came prepared with a series of questions. Their editing lessons prompted my nephew to volunteer me for Show and Tell.

One of the first questions was, "What does an editor in chief do?" I began to explain my duties, but looking around at the class, I guess I forgot who my audience was because they simply stared back at me. I didn't think I was that boring of a person: I related that I write news and feature stories, I edit copy on paper and later on the computer, I design pages, I write headlines, I make sure all 12 of our Union County newspapers meet deadline so they are in the hands of my readers every Thursday like clockwork — and I sleep very little.

When I realized I had lost their attention, I said, "How many of you have ever watched Superman?"

Their eyes began dilating once again, and I knew I had them. Every one of them raised their hands.

"Do you know Perry White?" I asked.

They nodded.

"Well, I do what Perry White did," I said, not really sure what Perry White did except sit behind his desk and bark orders at Jimmy Olson and Lois Lane. Or, try to go out to get the big story, only to be captured by the bad guys and be saved — ultimately — by Superman.

I'm certainly not afraid to go after any story, but I don't expect, anytime soon, to be held hostage and tied to a wooden table which slowly approaches an oversized circular saw — only to be saved by Superman.

But I do feel a little like Perry White these days.

I've accepted a new assignment at Worrall Newspapers, one that adds a great deal more responsibility to my work week, but one that I'm looking forward to covering.

I've been appointed editor in chief of the company's Essex and Union County newspapers. I now have to ensure that 22 newspapers make Thursday's mail and newsstands.

When I told a few of my readers of my new assignment, their sentiment was, "You are a glutton for punishment." These are the people who had become accustomed to seeing me at Tuesday night meetings, Thursday night meetings, Saturday or Sunday afternoon parades and Wednesday night chamber functions. They're the same people who would call late at night on Tuesday expecting to get my voice mail system, and having me pick up on the other end.

To them, I say I'm not a glutton for punishment. I realize and believe in the importance of a local weekly newspaper, and I would do what it takes to ensure that news is provided to my readers. It's one of the reasons I've chosen this as a career and one of the reasons why I've accepted the responsibility of running 22 newspapers.

With that responsibility, sometimes I might feel more like Superman than I do Perry White. But, either way, "Don't call me chief."

Baran proposes $271.5M spending package

By Chris Gatto
Regional Editor

Union County Manager Ann Baran has proposed a $271.5 million 1995 Executive Budget, marking a 2.8 percent increase above last year's spending plan.

This year's package relies less on residential property taxes to balance the budget than had been required in previous years. "In 1990 property taxes accounted for 67 percent of budget revenues. This year 56 percent of revenues come from property taxes," stated Baran.

Union County Freeholder Frank Lehr, who was one of three freeholders on hand for a Jan. 26 press conference to introduce the budget, said he envisions further cuts being made in the package prior to its adoption. Much of the recommended budget includes economic development and transportation initiatives.

Baran offered several recommendations to close a $7 million budget gap and reduce reliance on property taxes. Those measures include increasing revenue from sources other than tax dollars, reducing expenditures and increasing employee incentives to practice economy in an ongoing manner, and increasing savings and the county's fund balance or surplus.

To increase revenues the county has sought to create new revenue sources such as grants, collect retroactive medical payments, and mechanisms to increase existing revenue sources.

Recommendations for savings and increased revenues were offered for the county-operated Runnells Specialized Hospital in Berkeley Heights. Runnells' recommendations insured expanding psychiatric services by adding 25 beds for a total of 45 in space formerly occupied by the Addiction Rehabilitation Unit which was closed in 1993 due to low occupancy rates. It is anticipated that this action would generate $1 million in new revenues annually by 1996.

New revenues also could be realized by increasing the number of private paying patients and obtaining a greater balance between indigent and private paying patients. Runnells is required by its state license to have 82 percent of its long-term care beds set aside for indigent patients. By changing policy to maximize the remaining 18 percent of beds to be filled by private paying patients, the hospital can realize an additional $650,000 annually by mid 1995, according to Baran.

A one-time settlement of the hospital's appeal to the state concerning undervalued appraisal of the new complex opened in 1990 will result in excess of $1 million recommended to balance the budget. Another $400,000 will be generated annually through other appeals.

Recommendations for future consideration include contract management of support services to contain costs, and lower starting salaries for new hires that would be in line with salaries offered at similar facilities in the area.

Also recommended as a way to balance the budget is an increase in user fees at the county's parks and recreation facilities; requiring copayments for medical expenses incurred by inmates from those with private insurance or means to pay for their medical care.

Spending cut reductions recommended include cost containment, measures for employee medical insurance and drug prescription plans. Baran's budget emphasizes that insurance coverage for employees will not be reduced, but provided in a more cost-effective way through utilization of preferred provider networks.

Baran said no layoffs are contained in the budget.

Workers compensation costs have been reduced through use of "light" and "modified" work assignments, saving 12 percent in 1994 and 43 percent since 1993. During a two-year period, $650,000 was saved. Baran seeks to reduce workers' compensation costs even further through safety training, improved accountability to identify and solve problem areas, and a permanent light and modified-duty program.

Increasing the county's fund balance or surplus was accomplished through institutional/management strategies to change internal budgeting processes by no longer funding programs based on previous year's expenditures. The process had penalized managers and employees who saved dollars and reduced expenditures.

This year's budget is balanced with a tax levy of 3.3 percent, the lowest in

Major initiatives

County Manager Ann Baran's Executive Budget calls for funding or support of major initiatives including:

- Development of a comprehensive public information/marketing program to support economic development and strengthen and improve public input into government's decision-making process;
- Implementation of a Youth Institute that will become a national demonstration model of early intervention, prevention and treatment for youth at risk of becoming repeat offenders;
- Construction of a new Juvenile Justice Complex that will bring an array of services under one roof for youth and their families;

Clubhouse preservation becoming county-wide goal

By Andrew J. Stewart
Staff Writer

Although the clubhouse at Oak Ridge Golf Course in Clark has been slated for demolition by the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders, the effort to preserve the building as a historic site has now become a county-wide movement.

Representatives of historical societies and area legislators from across Union County gathered on Jan. 26 to tour the clubhouse, which was originally built as a farmhouse in the 18th Century, and assess its historic significance.

Members from the societies in Roselle, Berkeley Heights, New Providence, Rahway, Springfield, Mountainside, Scotch Plains and Fanwood were on hand for the tour, which was conducted by Clark Environmental Commission chairman William Fidurski and former Clark Historical Society president Virginia Apelian. The two Clark groups joined forces to convince the freeholders to halt plans to raze the clubhouse to build a modern, updated facility on the site.

The house is solidly constructed and has never been renovated, Fidurski said. Original features of the house have not been changed throughout the years, he said.

"It could be restored pretty easily," Fidurski said.

The oldest part of the house is a traditional English hall design with one large room downstairs and one upstairs. Additions were made to the house over the years, and are examples of the architecture of that period. The old kitchen hearth is covered with plastic laminate now, but is known to contain the original iron cooking utensils as well as a small brick oven, Fidurski said.

There are also many features that were unusual in the architecture of the period, such as the suspended staircase that goes all the way to the top floor of the house, he added. Most staircases of the time were only one flight to conserve heat, he said.

"It's in perfect condition except for multiple coats of paint," Fidurski said.

Most of the house was built with very large oak beams and floorboards, which are strong, and the windows in the oldest part of the house still contain some original panes of glass imported from Newcastle, England, he said. There was no major commercial glass production in America at the time, so the glass, which is distinguished by an amber or violet tint, was brought over, he said.

"A lot of this old original glass matches this," Fidurski said. "Some of this glass has to predate 1792."

The basement contains two large arches and the foundation is made of field stone. The huge oak beams and floorboards are easily visible overhead as well, and the cellar is dry considering its age, Fidurski said.

In the attic, the oak crossbeams are clearly marked with Roman numerals, which indicated which beams fit together, said Hazel Hargrove of the Springfield Historical Society. The Roman numerals were the easiest to carve into the wood, she said.

"You could take an axe and chop the three in, the Roman numeral," Hargrove said.

While the freeholders have offered to pay for the cost of moving the house off the site if a group wanted to buy it, that would be impossible because of the construction, Apelian said. The house would fall apart if it were moved and it also has to stay where it is because the golf course used to be a large farm which had been a part of the Bowne-Robinson family for generations, she added.

"If you move this house it would lose its historical value," Apelian said. The house has a lot of potential if restored, she added.

"This could be the most interesting historical house in Union County," Apelian said.

The house also could be an educational tool for the nearby Union County College campuses since it has many examples of 18th Century architecture, said Connie Klock of Scotch Plains. Architecture students could visit the house to study it, she said.

The area itself is historical because the Battle of Ash Swamp in the American Revolution took place near the house at the edge of the golf course property, said Walter Weingarten of Rahway, who re-enacts Revolutionary battles. Weingarten said the site would be excellent for a re-enactment of the battle, since many of the re-enactments he does are in small areas.

"Here, you can do more. It's open space," Weingarten said.

The historical society members were joined by representatives of Assemblymen Richard Bagger and Alan Augustine and state Senate President Donald DiFrancesco. Augustine has already sent a letter to the freeholders asking them to reconsider their plan, and Bagger and DiFrancesco's aides indicated they also may join in the preservation effort.

Sonja Burkett, who attended the tour on behalf of Bagger, said the assemblyman wants to know more about the house, part of which has been dated to between 1720 and 1740. "We're here gathering information," Burkett said. "It's something they all want to know about."

Irene Schmidt, DiFrancesco's legislative aide, said there are many possible uses for the house, including turning it into a historic site and a bed and breakfast designed for traveling businesspeople who like to play golf.

"International businessmen do not want to be in a hotel on a highway," Schmidt said. The ability to play a round of golf after business hours is a potential revenue booster for the county should the clubhouse be used for that function, she said.

Bagger has been involved in Clark's efforts to acquire and preserve the Robinson's Branch reservoir, which is owned by the Middlesex Water Company, and may be willing to help preserve the clubhouse as well, Burkett said. The reservoir's dam has been ruled unsafe and must either be upgraded or torn down.

Shields to be honoree of center's annual ball

The Center for Hope's 9th Annual Charity Ball will be the setting for honoring Peter M. Shields of Winfield with the Ray Russo Outstanding Service to Hospice Award.

The award, presented annually, was established in memory of Ray Russo, a former patient at The Center who tirelessly inspired and guided the organization until his passing.

Pete Shields, executive director of The Center for Hope Hospice, has been with the organization almost since its inception more than 10 years ago. Involved in assisting and providing aid to senior citizens in various capacities for most of his adult life, Shields came out of retirement to work for The Center for Hope after being approached by the founders, Peggy Coloney and Father Charles Hudson, president and vice president respectively, of the Hospice.

"At the time, I met Peggy and Father Hudson when I was director of Aging for Union County. They were applying for a grant for a hospice they had founded in Union," said Shields. "It was a little while after I had retired that I began serving as a volunteer for The Center. I was doing a pretty good job helping them find grants and assistance, so Peggy and Father Hudson asked if I would come work with them. Obviously, I said yes as it gave me the opportunity to continue aiding senior citizens and I always commended and respected the work The Center for Hope Hospice did for the terminally ill in the county."

Looking dapper and smart in a three piece suit, Shields, 76, goes to work at 8 a.m. each morning and stays busy through the early afternoon pursuing funding from various sources for the non-profit Hospice.

Coloney said, "Since Peter retired as the county director of Aging 10 years ago he has tirelessly promoted the cause of hospice care. He has been instrumental in the passage that has benefited the state's entire hospice community and has been extremely active in obtaining government grants necessary for the continuing operation of our program."

The ball is slated for Feb. 18 and will feature an awards presentation honoring Shields. Dinner, refreshments and entertainment will be provided.

For tickets to the dance call Don Barone at (908) 245-0783. For more information about The Center for Hope Hospice call (908) 486-0700.

COUNTY NEWS

UCUA, county to share in truck check costs

Under an agreement approved by the Union County Board of Freeholders, the Union County Utilities Authority and the county will share the funding of a special enforcement unit charged with controlling the load weights and traffic routes of trash trucks serving communities throughout the county.

The new control group, called the Truck Route & Weight Enforcement Unit, will operate as part of the County Police Department. One of the primary responsibilities of the unit is enforcement of the county-wide truck routes established for waste haulers traveling to and from Union County's Resource Recovery Facility.

"The residents of Union County — not only those living in the vicinity of the resource recovery facility, but in any part of our county — should not have an illegal string of overloaded trash trucks on their streets," said UCUA Chairman Blanche Banasiak. "It is essential that an appropriate mechanism exist to enforce weight and traffic regulations governing trash trucks in order to protect the interests of county residents."

"While in the past the UCUA has had the power to establish weight limits and traffic patterns for trucks traveling to and from county waste disposal facilities, we have not had the authority to enforce them. This agreement ensures control by appropriate county enforcement officers," Banasiak stated.

In addition to resident concerns, the impact overloaded trash trucks are having on county roads and bridges has been a matter of increasing concern to county officials.

"Naturally, the protection of our citizens and the impact excessive truck traffic has on the quality of their lives is our primary concern," said Freeholder Chairwoman Linda Di Giovanni. "However, we also have been alarmed at the skyrocketing costs of road and bridge repairs made necessary by the free flow of overloaded trash trucks on county thoroughfares. This new agreement will work to the advantage, not only of the UCUA and residents living in the vicinity of the RRF, but of all county taxpayers."

Under the agreement, the UCUA will assume the costs of establishing and maintaining the enforcement unit through 1997, a financial commitment of $420,000. The county will assume financial responsibility for the second three years of the 6-year agreement.

Fines assessed by the team comprised of three county police officers will be deposited in the county's Environmental Quality Trust Fund. The control unit will conduct its enforcement activities for a minimum of 9½ hours a day Monday through Friday.

In order to provide the new team with the necessary legal authority to enforce the use of designated truck traffic patterns, the freeholders adopted an ordinance codifying the mandatory routes established in the Union County Solid Waste Management Plan. The ordinance also established a schedule of penalties to be paid by violators of the traffic rules and weight limit restrictions.

The agreement became effective immediately, following its adoption by the freeholder board. Officials said that qualified officers will be assigned to the enforcement task within the next few days.

COUNTY OF UNION 1995 EXECUTIVE BUDGET SOURCES OF REVENUE $271,490,253

Tax Levy Reduction Due to Court Takeover

County manager proposes 1995 spending package

Lehr, Di Giovanni and freeholders Ed Force and Linda Stender serve on the county's budget committee.

"The budget is our plan to make government more responsive to the citizens we serve who are our customers. Citizens want government to provide services in an efficient, cost effective way," stated Di Giovanni.

Some of the other initiatives the county has slated for 1995 include making strides toward having a "more user friendly" government. Each department will be required to have a survey developed to measure customer satisfaction.

A $2.1 million savings is expected to be realized by the county this year as the result of the state's takeover of the court system. In Union County, 540 employees became state employees on Jan. 1. The county remains responsible for maintenance, security and other support services. The takeover will be completed in 1998.

Unfunded state mandates, such as the courts, account for 59 percent of the county budget. These services must, by law, be funded by the county. Non-mandated services, such as the park system and Runnells, account for 25 percent of budget expenses.

Rewards offered to combat racist graffiti at Kean College

Continuing incidents of racist and anti-Semitic graffiti at Kean College of New Jersey have prompted college organizations and the Union County Crime Stoppers program to offer rewards for the apprehension and conviction of the individuals involved.

College law enforcement officials have been working in conjunction with the Union County Prosecutor's Office, State Police and the Bias Crimes Unit of the Division of Criminal Justice in an undercover effort to make an arrest in the case.

Most of the graffiti incidents have been in the College's Library, on walls and study carrels and desks. Swastikas plus racist and anti-Semitic words have been found during the fall semester.

Most recently, similar graffiti have appeared in bathrooms in two classroom buildings.

College President Elsa Gomez recently issued a statement to the college community, expressing the institution's sadness and outrage at the incidents.

"Bias-related incidents have no place anywhere and especially not on a campus which celebrates its diversity and multiculturalism," she said.

"Not one of us will tolerate bigotry, discrimination or bias. Laws of the State of New Jersey are being enforced on the campus and this will continue to be a priority," she stated.

Union County Prosecutor Andrew K. Ruotolo, Jr. said, "I am extremely proud of the professional response to these incidents by the campus police. I join in the condemnation of these incidents by responsible voices of the Kean College administration."

Several campus organizations have indicated they would put up rewards for the apprehension and conviction of persons involved in the graffiti incidents. While specific amounts have not been finalized, the Council for Part-time Students has offered a $1,000 award.

In addition, the Union County Crime Stoppers has announced it is posting a reward of up to $5,000 for the arrest and indictment of suspects in this case.

Nancy Ori has very busy 'careers'

By Bea Smith
Lifestyle Editor

Nancy Ori is a very pretty, very professional photographer who has an exceptionally busy agenda and loves every minute of the time she spends exhibiting, instructing — and taking pictures.

In fact, Ori, an instructor in the Summit area schools and the New Jersey Center For Visual Arts in Summit, also is a media specialist for Ciba Geigy in Summit, where she is in charge of major audio-visual projects.

The last day of her exhibition of photographs in black and white and color, "Shadows and Memories," which is being displayed at the Les Malamut Art Gallery, Union Library, Friberger Park, has been extended to Feb. 23. She travels around quite frequently, and tracking her down to talk about the exhibition is a feat in itself.

When Ori finally came to chat at this newspaper last week, she talked about her adventurous career in the world of photography. Specifically, she discussed her Union exhibition which is a result of her travels to Bodie in California and her documentation of a small ghost town from the gold rush days.

"Actually," said Ori, "the whole body of pictures is about a ghost town in Bodie. I'd been working in California for 20 years, and I started photographing the town 18 years ago. I really fell in love with it photographically," she added. "I got involved historically and just kept going back over the years."

Ori explained that "this body of work became my master's thesis in communication design at Pratt Institute in Brooklyn. It is a combination of a group of photographs as well as a critical document. I finished it about 10 years ago," she said. "This is the first time I've ever exhibited the whole group of pictures."

She said that although she was artistically inclined, in her undergraduate years at Elmira College in New York, where she received a bachelor of arts degree in fine arts. "I discovered that family painting and drawing were too slow for me. So, I chose photography," Ori grinned. "I'm in the instant gratification era, you know. I guess that had a lot to do with it."

She also studied with Morley Baer, "who is fairly well known in California, and a good friend of Ansel Adams," her long-time mentor. "And that's basically where my background came from."

She recalled that "since 1970, I have traveled throughout the world working on various photographic and video projects which have given me the opportunity to explore my popular and cherished places with my camera. They have led me again and again to the American west and Europe. Landscape and architecture has become a source of inspiration and discovery."

"Really, as I look at my work, I am aware of the major role that nature plays in the way I see and make photographs, the images that represent the spirit of a place."

And so, when the photos of the little ghost town were compiled, Ori called Viola Meskin at the Les Malamut Art Gallery, sent her some slides and "she was pretty quick to respond. It really was pretty simple."

She said casually, "I exhibit a lot. And I've been recognized internationally as a photographer. That's because I work for an international company, based in Summit. People in Europe buy my work. People in California buy my work, and I'm beginning a following here in New Jersey, where I was born. I have my own studios in Gillette."

The fact that Ori prefers "taking pictures and teaching — I've been teaching in the New Jersey Center For Visual Arts in Summit for five or six years and at the adult school for about 10 years," is the reason for her enthusiasm over "a new group."

"I just started a new group, the New Jersey Photography Forum, and we had our first meeting on Jan. 18 at the Watching Art Center. About 75 people attended from New York and New Jersey," she said. "I sent out a mailing and got quite a response from retirees down to college age people — from ages 20 to 80. Everybody brought work. It was really pretty exciting." Ori exclaimed. "It was fun to see. I felt pretty good for bringing them all together. It was pretty cool. We will be meeting once a month for as long as we can keep the energy going."

She reminded that "this is not a camera club. It's a group of serious photographers. The goal was really to flush them out — find out who they are — connect them with each other, and eventually exhibit together. Some are commercial photographers, beginners, retirees, professionals. But all are serious. And serious is the key word. My role is basically to push them together, make the evening move along and to facilitate the event and the interaction. It's nice to see everybody talking to each other in every nook and cranny," Ori declared. "It's really pretty exciting to see. They're really into it. I felt that my role was to pull them together and it worked. We covered photography as a fine art in landscapes, portraits, architecture and any subject realm, with large, medium and small format cameras."

"I like best the sharing of information and when people take that information and use it to the best of their abilities — and watch them grow. It's just as exciting for an 80-year-old person and an 18-year-old person when they see a picture of theirs developing in the tray for the first time. It's really like magic. It's the magic I like sharing with people and watch their excitement."

The group's next meeting will be Feb. 27 at the Watching Art Center at 7 p.m.

In addition to exhibition assignments throughout the winter and spring, Ori will conduct a New Jersey Heritage Workshop 1995 in Cape May from May 19 to 21 for a group of about 15 photographers. "Participants will focus on the understanding and documenting of the spirit as well as the material characteristics of the man made and natural environments of Cape May."

In her work and her classes, Ori utilizes her "creative and technical knowledge of industrial and commercial photography. That is based on 25 years of education, job experience, teaching and management in professional environments." She explained that she has been involved with "scientific marketing, public affairs and nonprofit organization clientele."

As a media specialist at Ciba-Geigy Pharmaceuticals, she said, "I am accountable for the implementation of major audio-visual projects for the division, such as motivational or training videos. As an instructor at Summit Area Community Schools, I offer evening instruction for adults in beginning and advanced photography as well as special one-night lectures." She also is a teaching assistant and instructor at the Ansel Adams Workshop in Pebble Beach, Calif., the Morley Baer Sante Fe Workshop in New Mexico. As an instructor at the New Jersey Center for Visual Arts, she conducts Cibachrome printing and special photo workshops.

It's enough to keep anyone busy, and happily, Ori loves all of her careers equally. In fact, she is already reaching into her future with video photography.

Her simple motto? "I just like to take pictures — and to keep busy."

Double film event is set

The double feature, a mainstay of the 1940s and 1950s cinemas, will be revived briefly at Rahway's 1,300-seat Union County Arts Center, Feb. 11 at 7:30 p.m. It will have a new twist.

Where the old style double feature usually consisted of first-run films, one or both of them of the low budget variety, the Feb. 11 Valentine's Day special in Rahway will consist of "Sleepless in Seattle," the 1994 popular movie featuring Tom Hanks, and "An Affair to Remember," the 1957 Cary Grant-Deborah Kerr widescreen romantic hit that inspired "Sleepless..." Also included in the program will be the original preview of the 1957 film.

"Sleepless" star Hanks, who was named Best Actor during last year's Oscars for his role in "Philadelphia," recently was hailed by the nation's theater operators as 1994's top draw for "Forrest Gump."

Tickets for the one-night-only Feb. 11 event are on sale now at $8 per person at the box office of the Union County Arts Center, 1601 Irving St. They can be ordered in advance by calling (908) 499-8226.

GOPA musical bows

The Gospel of Performing Arts will premiere its musical "The Streets Can't Have My Son" Feb. 9 at the Renaissance Conference Center in Elizabeth. This production marks the beginning of GOPA's new theater season.

According to 23-year-old writer and Elizabeth resident Carl Hicks Jr, the production is about the relationship between a mother and her son, who struggles between the death of his wife and the responsibilities of moving on. "His mother becomes concerned about his dilemma when he turns to a life on the streets," said Hicks. "But, he loses everything and his praying mother proclaims: 'The streets can't have my son'"

"The Streets Can't Have My Son" is Hicks' third play written expressly for the Gospel of the Performing Arts. His previous productions, "God Don't Need No Matches" and "Sand in My Shoes," were all received by both the religious and secular community.

"We did a three-city tour for 'Matches' presenting at area churches and a college in north New Jersey," Hicks said. "And, 'Sand in My Shoes' premiered as a showcase at Theater Row Theater in Manhattan."

Starring in GOPA's latest effort are Newark residents, Suzette "Su Su" Montgomery and Todd Dowdy, as the mother and son, respectively. Also appearing is television actor and comedian Derrick Fox of Elizabeth. Fox is best known for his female impersonation of his character Shante and for being a cast member on the syndicated television show Apollo Comedy Hour.

GOPA will present three shows of "The Streets Can't Have My Son"

Steele sings 'Elvis' tunes

"A Tribute to Elvis," starring Ronnie Lee Steele of Union, will be featured on the evening of Feb. 11 at the Chestnut Tavern, 649 Chestnut St., Union.

Additional entertainment at the Chestnut Tavern is provided on Thursday nights by singer-guitarist Julian, "the man of many voices," and Ted O'Connell of Springfield, who plays the keyboard and conducts sing-a-longs on Friday and Saturday evenings.

Additional information can be obtained by calling (908) 686-9875 or 964-8696.

DINING REVIEW

CORTINA

By Mark Devaney
Staff Writer

Once you're inside the restaurant, it's hard to leave.

Cortina's dining room. There is ample parking in the rear of the restaurant. A banquet room for 70 people is in the basement.

If after dining at the Cortina Restaurant in Cranford you are not utterly satisfied, perhaps you should no longer dine out, because I cannot think of a better evening eating experience than Cortina's.

Nestled snugly in the heart of downtown Cranford, across from the train station, the Cortina Restaurant is easy to find, and it's easy to find safe, well-lighted parking, but once you're inside the restaurant, it's hard to leave.

By the way, don't cringe when I mention train station. Because of Cranford's special improvement district, the first created in New Jersey, Cranford's train station stands as an eye-pleasing sight. And speaking of eye-pleasing sights, you'll be immediately struck by the marvelous original paintings that line the warmly lit room within Cortina's.

The paintings that are featured at the Cortina Restaurant were created by Joseph Dawley, whose gallery used to be right next store. Dawley is a bona fide legend; his "Mother Seton" hangs in the Vatican and the artist himself had been profiled in countless newspapers as well as Life magazine.

But before you forget that you're in a restaurant and not a museum, a waiter will be at your table to detail the night's specials, which is bound to leave you torn between a sumptuous selection of meat, fish and pasta dishes.

Cortina Restaurant's Northern Italian Cuisine literally challenges your taste buds; you'll want to taste as many offerings as you can, and with good reason — absolutely nothing disappoints.

I tend to pick the lead special, and did once again, which brought me in mouth watering contact with Veal Riccardo, veal buried in a pleasingly thick brown sauce smothered with huge mushrooms and shallots. My fiancée, Sherri, went for my second choice, Filetti Di Sogliola Duglere, sole filled with mozzarella, sauteed with fresh tomato, garlic and wine.

Usually we share a few bites of each other's entrees, but this time it was hard to part with even a nibble. And the same can be said of the samplings we had before and after the main course.

Take my word on this one, for an appetizer, order Funghi Ripieni Ai Granchi, mushrooms stuffed with crabmeat topped with Bernaise sauce. Simply put it's the best food I have tasted this year and will no doubt top anything else I eat in 1995, especially considering it cost $5.75, a mere pittance.

For dessert we dove spoon-first into Tiramisu, lady fingers, espresso, cream flavored with Kahlua and rum; and Cortina Grand Marnier Souffle. All the delicious dessert items are made by Janice Romanelli, who co-owns Cortina's with her husband, Frank.

Frank Romanelli, who hails from Naples, is the portrait of a charming host. He claimed that he knows virtually everyone in his place, which is believable since he visits each table and makes the sort of small talk that adds to a memorable evening. And the service, as illustrated for us through waiter Rob Toth, reflects the customer-first attitude of his boss.

"A reputation is something you build, year after year after year, and it could be lost in a few months," said Frank Romanelli.

He can be rest assured that not only is Cortina's reputation well-deserved, it will remain well-preserved. After 13 years in Cranford, I'd say the Cortina Restaurant possesses the vibrancy of youth and, like the finest of Italian wines, will only get better and better with age.

February 5-11

ARIES - March 21/April 20

If you find it hard to focus on your work this week, you should probably just take a break from routine. Do something for yourself for a change. Indulge in a favorite hobby, read a novel or just relax in front of the television. Sometimes you need to step back in order to forge ahead.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21

Difficulties may arise at home, but a little patience is all you'll need to work things out. Don't let jealousy get in the way of an important relationship. Remember, when you're happy for others, it's easier to feel happy about yourself. A business dealing will benefit you.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21

If you're feeling somewhat irritable, it's probably because you need more rest. Instead of taking your frustrations out on others, do yourself a favor and sleep in one morning. A social invitation will come from an unexpected source. On Friday, you'll learn something new.

CANCER - June 22/July 22

A long-term problem with a work associate will be resolved. You'll wonder why it had to take so long. A weekend getaway gives you something to look forward to. Outdoor activity will satisfy your sense of adventure. A letter from an old friend lifts your spirits.

LEO - July 23/August 23

Don't let that Leo pride stand in the way of an important friendship. If you're wrong, admit it. Looking to make a career move? This may be your lucky week. A friend of a friend will help you in some way. Don't ignore fitness, no matter how mundane it seems.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22

Hold your sarcastic tongue this week or you could end up in a heap of trouble. Not everyone understands your unique sense of humor. A long-awaited and very important document will arrive this week. A family member will have good news. There will be reason for celebration.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23

A midweek outing will serve as a nice break from routine. You'll realize that you work too hard and should leave more time for socializing. Your increased energy level and good mood will help you tackle projects with ease. Plans for an upcoming trip need your attention. Pay attention to tiny details.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22

Don't take your bad mood out on loved ones. If something is bothering you, it's best to be by yourself for a while. An adventurous friend will pique your interest in a new activity. Go for it. Now is a good time to take on bold adventures. A former love will be on your mind.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21

A series of unforeseen mishaps could disrupt weekend plans. You'll realize that some things are just out of your control. A moneymaking venture is not what it seems to be. Read all small print before making any type of investment. Luck will be on your side this Friday.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20

It will be an interesting week. If you're in the communications field, you could find yourself in the limelight. An opportunity to make more money could come your way. Just be sure you have the time before making any commitments. You may be called upon to help a friend in need.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18

Romance will be the highlight of the week. Whether you're looking for love or have been married for years, the romantic moments you have been craving will be satisfied. For Aquarians in steady courtships, this could be the time to make a stronger commitment. Perhaps marriage?

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20

Watch your spending this week! Although you are fond of the finer things in life, now's not the time to splurge. Don't be a pushover in a romantic relationship, especially if you're involved with an Aries. Stand up for your rights, and articulate exactly how you feel!

YOUR BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

The next 12 months: There will be periods at the beginning of this year when you feel as if life is going too fast and your progress is going too slowly. Take heart. You'll catch up by the end of spring. Use the slow period to collect your thoughts and decide where you want to be in the future. A new skill you learn this year will be extremely beneficial later on. It could lead to extra income and could open many doors in your career path. A family member will reach a milestone this year, and you will likely play a big role in organizing the festivities. Fitness and health are a focus this year.

Students display art

An exhibit of artwork by students from the Westfield public schools is on display at Children's Specialized Hospital, Mountainside throughout this month. The students, ranging from kindergarten through high school, are provided with "vast opportunities for creative endeavor." The schools' art educators teach them concepts of media, techniques, process, evaluation and analysis skills, as well as a basic understanding of exemplary works of art from a variety of cultures and historical periods. "In the Westfield school, we believe that the arts are our humanity," said Chic Hansen of the fine arts department, Westfield public schools. "The arts are the languages of civilization through which we express our fears, anxieties, hungers, struggles and hopes. The Westfield public schools' students are delighted to share their work with Children's Specialized Hospital and the community." Individuals or groups who plan to visit the display, which is open to the public Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., can enter the hospital's East Wing. For evening or weekend visits, one can contact the hospital's community resource coordinator, Susan Baxter, at (908) 233-3720, Ext. 379. The artists' works are for sale, with a portion benefiting Children's Specialized Hospital. Children's Specialized Hospital, reportedly New Jersey's only comprehensive pediatric rehabilitation hospital, is located on New Providence Road.

'Show-Off' is presented at Elizabeth Playhouse

"The Show-Off," the George Kelly comedy, which concerns an egotistical character, opened Jan. 27 at the Elizabeth Playhouse, 1100 East Jersey St., Elizabeth.

Producers Marlow and Karen Ferguson have announced that this is the third production in the newly-converted 1850s Third Presbyterian Church and facilities on East Jersey Street. The first play was Philip Barry's "Holiday" and the second play, "Kind Lady." All three plays were directed by Marlow Ferguson.

Ferguson was involved with the New York theater for 30 years. He was an Equity actor, a director, a writer for the BBC and his work won several awards. His wife, Karon, studied at New York University's Tisch School of Dramatic Writing, Columbia University and she has her master's in fine arts degree in playwriting.

"The Show-Off," which will run weekends through Feb. 26, features Patricio Cahue, Murphy Grimes, Lorraine Hernandez, Janet Kuryla, George Leaver, Kathy Mattingly, Penrod Parker, Kurt Roinestad and Gil Ron.

Performances are Friday nights at 7:30, $8 general admission; Saturday nights at 7:30, $6 for seniors and students, and Sunday matinees at 2 o'clock. Reservations can be made by calling (908) 355-0077.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

'Bach' set in Summit

The focus will be on Bach, both chorally and orchestrally, at the Calvary Chorale concert to be held Feb. 5 at 4 p.m. in Calvary Church, 31 Woodland Ave., Summit.

The chorale, under the direction of James S. Little, will perform two seasonal cantatas and Little also will conduct and play the Brandenburg Concerto No. 5.

Cantata No. 78, "Jesu, der du meine," will feature soloists, David Kimock, baritone, and Scott Williamson, tenor. Both men are students at Westminster Choir College, Princeton.

The Brandenburg Concerto No. 5 is one of a group of six concerti completed in 1721, and "it is the only one of the group which relies upon the harpsichord's unique character. In fact, this work is considered the first true keyboard concerto," it was reported.

"Christ lag in Todesbanden," was written for Easter Sunday using words by Martin Luther. It is Bach's only cantata "to weave the hymn melody and all of its verses throughout the entire piece. It opens with expression of sorrow, but the overall work represent Bach's own sense of the triumph of faith."

The concert is free. An offering to support the on-going Calvary Chorale series will be accepted. There is a wheelchair access to the church.

For more information one can call (908) 277-1814.

Paul Leibow art set in Watchung Gallery

"Some art, such as Paul Leibow's," it was reported, "is not meant to merely hang on a wall. It projects from various surfaces, enveloping and transforming the room itself. Thus the enclosing chamber becomes part of the work, and the room is art."

Leibow's installation, "Elucidations (of the empty)" will transform the Lower Gallery of the Watchung Arts Center into a walk-through work of art. The controversial exhibit is being displayed through Feb. 28, with no admission charge. Gallery hours are weekdays and Saturdays, 1 to 4 p.m.

A reception for the artist, an opportunity to meet him and discuss his work, will be held Feb. 5 from 1 to 4 p.m. Refreshments will be served, and there is no admission charge. All pieces are available for purchase, it was announced.

"The art of Paul Leibow is both artwork and social commentary. A book jacket designer by day, he manipulates faces and symbols in multimedia, often in three dimensional form, to make a statement about society, politics or economics."

The current exhibit has been four years in the making, and uses currencies to describe culture. "The currency is also a metaphor for the behavior of our ruling political leaders," he explained. "Their manipulation of the media lures much of the population, thus allowing them to acquire and maintain power for their corporate parents."

Selected for the Watchung Arts Center's juried small works Metro Show in 1994, Leibow has had exhibitions in the New York - New Jersey area each year since the 1980s. Trained at New York's School of Visual Arts, he works in a studio in Mahwah.

The non-profit Watchung Arts Center showcases the work of established and emerging artists with monthly exhibits. Parking is free at municipal properties surrounding the site, it was announced.

'Commitments' stars due

The Clubhouse at 116 Watchung Ave., Plainfield, has announced that it will feature the stars from the movie, "The Commitments" Feb. 5. Doors will open at 7 p.m. Tickets will be sold for $12 each in advance, and $15 at the door.

The stars of Alan Parker's movie about a group of working class kids dedicated to making the big time as a Soul band will offer songs from the MCA sound track album with a 10 piece band. Among the songs will be the United Kingdom's hit single, "Try A Little Tenderness." The movie, originally released in 1991, reportedly broke box office records in Ireland and was number three in the United States. It won awards, was nominated for Oscars and Grammys and won two British awards. It was voted best film of 1991 in Japan.

It was announced that the sound track album is available on MCA records and, sold millions worldwide. It went Platinum in Australia and has sold heavily in South Africa, Germany, Scandinavia and other European countries.

CATS DESPERATELY NEED HOMES... Eight cats are being held in small cages by a local animal rescue group. These cats have become so obese from confinement in these small cages that they will soon have heart attacks and die if homes are not found for them. The cages are closed on three sides; only through the bars in front can the cats see any light, and the fronts of the cages face blank walls. These cats have no interaction with each other or with any living thing except at feeding time. If you can save an obese cat from this sad life, please call 201-763-8451. Call 24 hours. New house is created by 'This Old House' crew

Anyone who has experienced the hassles of a massive home renovation project knows how satisfying it is to see that project completed. Months of going without electricity, water and privacy seem almost worth it when the finished product stands before you.
 The Maitland family of Acton, Mass., experienced this pleasure first-hand this month as the crew of the public television show "This Old House," which spent the last six months revamping their almost 300-year-old farmhouse, packed up their tools and moved on to a new project.
 "When we sent that letter to 'This Old House' telling them about our house and how we wanted to redo it, we never thought we would see all of this happen," said Sima Maitland, as she gestured toward her home which was recently painted a brilliant fall orange with paint donated by the Glidden Company, one of the show's national underwriters. Products donated by manufacturers are one of the benefits of having a home renovated by "This Old House."

 Sima and her husband, Terry, have owned their home for 10 years. It was built in 1710 and is the oldest privately owned home in Acton.
 "It all happened so fast, I really wasn't prepared for the months of upheaval, but looking at the results, it was all worth it," she said.
 Every spring, Bruce Irving, the Boston-based producer of "This Old House," and his crew select a home in the Boston area for renovating. The team also chooses a home in a warmer climate for renovation during the winter months. The progress of these projects is aired before more than 10 million viewers every week.

 Thousands of people send letters every year asking that their home be considered for the show. The Maitlands dropped a letter to the show in January of 1994 after talking to some friends at a party about the Boston home featured last season.
 "We thought that if they could get on, maybe we could too," Terry said. "So, we sent them a letter on stationery that has a sketch of our house and the historical society seal embossed on the paper."
 The Maitlands quickly received a polite "thanks for inquiring but we get thousands of letters every year" response, and they thought their chances were over. A few months later, Irving called to ask if he could come see the house, and within two weeks the Maitland's home was cast in the starring role. The Maitlands budgeted $150,000 for the project, over the next six months they added a one-and-a-half story, 1,100-square-foot addition with a bedroom, full bathroom, kitchen, breakfast nook and laundry room to their farmhouse.

 Working with "This Old House" gave the Maitlands access to some of the most respected experts in home repair and renovation, which alleviated much of the tension that normally accompanies large home projects.
 In an odd way, the Maitlands were blessed with the demanding constraints that accompany the schedule of taping a television show. The crew had to make the budget work and the programs move ahead on time, in order to fit the filming schedule. In addition to those benefits, the project received site supervision, high quality workers and the opportunity for manufacturer-supplied products and equipment.
 For the first few weeks of the construction, Sima, Terry, and their three children — Eli, 11, Rebecca, 7, and Ethan, 5 — lived in the house through the first taping. But when the walls started coming down, the family lived in temporary residences until November.

 "The hardest part of a renovation like this is trying to keep some semblance of normalcy in your life," said Sima, a schoolteacher in a Boston suburb. "The kids still had to get to school and football practice and Girl Scouts everyday, no matter where we were. It was hard to feel normal."
 Viewers can begin watching the renovation of a 1906 Victorian farmhouse in the Napá Valley on Feb. 4, when the crew kicks off the second project of its 16th season. Check local listings for exact air time.

Artistic Furniture leases retail space on Route 22

Artistic Furniture, a distributor of upscale imported furniture products, has leased 13,000 square feet of retail space in the former Surrey Electric building on Route 22 in Union.
 The Route 22 showroom of Artistic Furniture is slated for a grand opening in April. In addition to the East Brunswick and Union locations, the company has warehouse space and a retail showroom in Secaucus. The Union building is located between Office Max and Seaman's Furniture, with on-site parking for 40 vehicles.
 Weichert Commercial Senior Vice President and Retail Director Milt Meyerson represented the landlord in the transaction and Weichert Commercial broker-associate Jack Galin represented the tenant. This is Galin's second transaction with Artistic Furniture. Previously, he negotiated a lease for 16,000 square feet of retail space on Route 18 in East Brunswick.

"Artistic Furniture brings a new venue of furniture to Route 22, catering to the discerning buyer who desires a unique selection of imported goods," Meyerson stated. "The location is ideal because the three mile corridor of Route 22 in Union is lined with national tenants selling every category of merchandise and attracting buyers from throughout the state. More than 80,000 cars pass this location daily and Artistic Furniture will capitalize on its excellent visibility from both the east- and west-bound sides of the highway."
 Weichert Commercial President Ronald M. Mahr said that Weichert's internal marketing of the property helped locate a tenant quickly. "Our team of top retail specialists has first-hand knowledge of retail requirements to help match buyers and sellers of landlords and tenants and negotiate transactions that benefit all parties," he said.

Play it again, Santa

The Prudential Degnan Boyle Realtors helped spread some holiday joy this past season with the donation of a brand-new videocassette recorder to the Adolescent Psychiatric Unit at Elizabeth General Medical Center. The gift was made in conjunction with the company's annual Community Service Outreach program, designed to benefit children in hospitals throughout Union and Essex counties. At the presentation are Edith Schneider, left, the director of Volunteer Services at Elizabeth General; Lois Goerning, a sales associate from the Union/Elizabeth office of The Prudential Degnan Realtors and a member of the company's Community Service Committee; Michelle Perna, director of the Child/Adolescent Psychiatric Inpatient Unit at Elizabeth General, and Rose Scharlat, sales manager of The Prudential Degnan Boyle Realtors' Union/Elizabeth office.

Four industrial transactions conducted in Union County

Jacobson, Goldfarb & Tanzman Associates, the Woodbridge-based, full-service commercial real estate firm, recently arranged four industrial transactions in Union County, according to JGT Senior Vice President Dan Frankel.

"Activity in the industrial market has been and continues to be strong in Union County," said Frankel. "This area in particular has been a hotbed of activity for both the sale and lease of industrial property."

Negotiated by JGT brokers, the industrial transactions include the lease to Cal Ostlund for 51,000 square feet of space at the former Ivex Building, 555 North Michigan Ave. in Kenilworth; the sale to Aircast Inc. of the 51,710-square-foot Electrical Industries building, 691 Central Ave. in New Providence; the sale of the industrial facility located at 7 Mark Road in Kenilworth to Gregory Press, and the lease to the Unistrut Corporation for space at the Geissel Manufacturing Building, 600 Swenson Drive, also in Kenilworth.

JGT Vice President Jack Sievers and Associate Vice President Ian Grusd arranged for Cal Ostlund, Inc. to lease the former Ivex Building. The 71,000-square-foot, one-story building is located one block from Route 22 and one-half mile from the Garden State Parkway. The renovated industrial facility features high ceilings, heavy power and wide bays.

"Relocating from Brooklyn, Cal Ostlund will utilize its newly leased space for the manufacturing and warehousing of trade show exhibits," stated Sievers.

JGT represented the building owner, GEBS Associates, Inc., and the tenant, Cal Ostlund, Inc., in the transaction.

Grusd and Senior Vice President Paul Giannone arranged for the sale of the Electrical Industries building. The buyer, Aircast, Inc., is a manufacturer of medical and athletic casts. The structure will be used for executive offices, research, development and for the manufacturing of medical supplies.

JGT represented the building owner, 675 Central Ave. Associates, while Eric Bram & Co represented Aircast, Inc. in the transaction.

In Kenilworth, Grusd and Sievers arranged for Gregory Press to purchase the free-standing industrial building. The 6,800-square-foot industrial facility is situated directly off Route 22.

"Gregory Press selected the facility because of its excellent location and because it was one of the few opportunities to purchase a free-standing building on the Route 22 corridor," said Grusd.

Gregory Press, a full-service printer, will utilize the space to house its printing operation. The transaction was co-brokered by Bussell Realty.

Also in Kenilworth, Grusd arranged for Unistrut Corporation to lease the entire Swenson Drive industrial facility. The Geissel Manu-

Automotive

With the touch of a button, the 1995 3000 GT Spyder VR-4 offers a touch of class enabling the driver to choose between a grand touring sports coupe and the world's only retractable hardtop convertible. In convertible form, the Spyder raises the standard of open-air motoring by combining aggressive performance and luxury accommodations.

Mitsubishi Motors' 1995 3000 GT Spyder VR-4 provides occupants with the best of both driving worlds — the aggressiveness and style of a world class grand touring sports coupe, or the civility and thrill of the world's only one-touch retractable hardtop convertible. The VR-4 is powered by a 320 hp, 3.0-liter, double overhead cam, twin turbo and twin inter-cooled V6 engine.

Sunroofs are back despite hardships in the seventies

Less than 20 years ago, automotive pundits predicted the demise of the convertible. General Motors seemed to confirm that prediction when it offered its "last" production convertible in 1976: an enormous Cadillac Eldorado with a 500 cubic inch engine and a folding canvas top. That Eldorado represented the end of an era in more ways than one.

At the same time that convertibles were beginning to lose ground to legislative pressures and diminishing consumer interest, a 21-year-old engineer from West Germany was already laying the ground work for the convertible's revival here in the States.

It was 1965 when Heinz Prechter founded the American Sunroof Company. A time when sunroofs were scarce and convertibles were common. After only two years in business, Prechter had developed a reputation as a clever engineer with an eye for unique automotive design. By 1967, operations were expanded to Detroit. The following year, 500 Dan Gurney edition Mercury Cougars were fitted with ASC's power sunroof. Called XR-7 Gs, the limited edition Cougars were among the hottest, most exclusive Pony Cars of the time, and Prechter's sunroofs were one of the Mercury's prized features. Today, the '68

Cougar XR-7G is a collector's gem.

By the mid-'70s, ASC was supplying original equipment sunroof kits for factory installation, creating a remarkable demand for the sliding roof panels. At the same time ASC sunroofs were growing in popularity, convertibles began fading away. Though hardly intentional, Prechter's first glass panel sunroof seemed like a nail in the convertible's coffin. Introduced in 1975, the ASC glass sunroof debuted a year before the death of the American convertible.

The late '70s nearly caused the demise of entire car companies, as sagging sales and an oil embargo thinned the ranks of the entire industry. Yet, ASC prevailed, managing more than 40 projects and modifying nearly 2 million domestic vehicles in 1978 alone. The recession that closed out the decade would not close the doors of ASC.

In fact, by 1982, ASC's continued growth and product line expansion dictated a change in name and a new corporate structure. ASC ultimately became the parent company for its three operating divisions: American Sunroof Company, Automotive Specialty Company and Aeromotive Systems Company. That same year, ASC and Buick helped launch the re-birth of the American roadster with the design and production of the Riviera Convertible.

ASC's international expansion also produced the Toyota Celica Convertible in '85, and the Saab 900 Turbo convertible in '86. By 1987, the Celica Convertible proved so popular that ASC became the world's largest exporter of cars to Japan. 1987 was also the year Buick commissioned ASC to build one of the decade's fastest accelerating cars: the brutally powerful GNX. While the Toyota Celica and Buick GNX were milestone cars in ASC's history, the Cadillac Eldorado, Chevrolet Corvette, Pontiac Firebird and Porsche 944/968 convertibles were no less significant.

ASC's Corvette Convertible was named one of the "Ten Best" cars for 1988 by Car and Driver. ASC also expanded its open-air technology to include the Dodge Dakota, a mid-sized pickup fitted with a unique folding top.

The '90s have been equally impressive for Heinz Prechter and his 2,000 employees. The Buick Reatta, Infiniti M30 and Nissan 300ZX were all added to ASC's expanding portfolio of convertible automobiles. In the 10 years that followed that first Riviera, ASC has produced more than 400,000 convertibles, working with 12 manufacturers and bringing 24 different convertible programs to market — a market that considers ASC to be the world leader in convertible production and technology.

With headquarters in Southgate, Mich., and 31 facilities on four continents, ASC is the world's largest OEM convertible supplier, accounting for nearly 25 percent of all convertibles sold worldwide.

Look for a mechanic with ASE certification

Winter is the ideal time for motorists to prepare their vehicles for cold-weather conditions.

An increasingly popular way of finding qualified mechanics, nowadays often called "technicians," is to look for automobile technicians who have earned national certification from the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence. ASE is an independent, non-profit organization dedicated to improving the quality of automotive service and repair by the voluntary testing of automotive technicians.

Consumers benefit from ASE's national certification program since it takes much of the guesswork out of finding a competent technician.

Because certification is voluntary, mechanics who have taken the time and expense to earn their credentials can be counted on to have a strong sense of pride in accomplishment.

Moreover, before taking ASE exams, many mechanics spend time sharpening their skills by attending training classes or studying on their own after work.

And while the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence does not certify repair establishments, only individual technicians, it stands to reason that employers who encourage their personnel to earn ASE certification will be dedicated to the other aspects of their businesses.

Here's how the ASE program works. Twice a year thousands of mechanics sit for ASE certification exams at more than 600 locations across the country. The exams, which have been designed by representatives from the automotive service and repair industry, vocational educators, and ASE's own in-house specialists, stress real-world diagnostic and repair problems, not theory. All testing sessions are administered in the field by the American College Testing Program, the same organization that offers college entrance and other professional exams.

The exams are no cinch to pass; about one out of three test takers fails. Mechanics who pass at least one automobile exam and fulfill the two-year work experience requirement earn the title of ASE-certified Automobile Technician, while those who pass all eight auto exams earn Master Auto Technician status. Technicians must recertify every five years in order to keep current with changing technology and to remain in the ASE program.

Certified auto technicians are issued blue and white ASE shoulder insignia as well as pocket, wallet, and wall-sized credentials that list the technician's exact areas of certification and the expiration date.

Because ASE offers certification in all major automotive repair and service areas, it's wise to ask for a technician who is certified in the appropriate area, say, brakes or engine repair.

Repair facilities that employ one or more ASE-certified technician usually display the ASE sign on the premises and post their technicians' credentials in the customer service area, so you'll know who is ASE certified and in what areas.

ASE-certified auto technicians can be found at every type of repair facility: new car dealerships, independent garages, service stations, tire dealers, specialty shops, and major franchises. There are about 350,000 ASE-certified technicians at work nationally.

For more information about ASE-certified technicians, send a business-sized, self-addressed, stamped envelope to: ASE Consumer Brochure, Dept. CR94, P.O. Box 347, Herndon, VA 22070.

Gas? Yes, Natural

(NAPS)—The next car you see zipping by on the road may be powered by natural gas. In fact, one that you may have seen on the speedway is a 700-horsepower drag racing car. Aptly named, The Natural Gasser, it can do a quarter mile in 9.38 seconds.

NGVs have a number of advantages. They are clean, economical (the current price of natural gas averages 80 cents for the equivalent of a gallon) and they are safe.

The Natural Gasser is one of 30,000 natural gas vehicles on the road today. By the year 2000, 1.46 million are expected.

The 1985 Ford Thunderbird, foreground, and the original 1955 two-seat model. Today, Thunderbird competes in the mid-specialty segment where it has been sales leader for five consecutive years.

A legend celebrates its 40th anniversary

(NAPS)—It's the fall of 1954. Steve Allen hosts the debut of the "Tonight" show.

Willie Mays stars as the New York Giants sweep the Cleveland Indians in the World Series.

Bill Haley and the Comets blast out of the soda shop jukebox with "Rock around the Clock."

And Ford Motor Company cruises down Main Street U.S.A. with the birth of an automotive legend—the 1955 Ford Thunderbird.

"With its high performance, the Thunderbird two-seater was instantly popular with the sports car crowd," said Ford Motor Company vice president Ross Roberts. Today, Thunderbird competes in the mid-specialty segment where it has been the sales leader for five consecutive years, and nine out of the last ten."

The original Thunderbird rolled off the line Sept. 9, 1954, at Ford's Dearborn (Mich.) Assembly Plant.

Throughout the next 40 years, Thunderbird went through numerous styling changes.

The 1956 model, for example, incorporated two hallmark changes, the external spare tire for increased trunk space, and the round porthole quarter window to eliminate blind spots.

The '58 Thunderbird, the first of three to receive Motor Trend

"Car of the Year," was lengthened by 30.4 inches over the previous year's model to add a back seat. But Ford designers kept the overall height to 32.5 inches to maintain the car's low-slung appearance.

The '83 model gave the public its first look at the innovative "aero" styling that was to become Ford's signature for the rest of the decade. Aerodynamic features included rounded corners, a sloping hood, sharply raked windshield and rear window and wrap-over aircraft-style doors with concealed drip moldings.

Other Motor Trend award winners were the 1987 Turbo Coupe, which added major functional upgrades, including an intercooler and dual exhausts, and the 1989 Super Coupe.

The 1995 Thunderbird continues to provide the kind of customer satisfaction that has made it the top-seller in the middle specialty market segment for six straight years.

The '95 Bird comes in two models, LX and Super Coupe, with a choice of V-6, supercharged V-6 or 4.6-liter V-8.

The current Thunderbird also continues as a powerful force in the NASCAR Winston Cup Championship.

Thunderbird is the longest-running nameplate of any Ford-brand product in the company's 92-year history.

When driving long distances be very careful of sleepiness

Driving, especially for long distances, reveals your true level of sleepiness. At the start of a trip, excitement makes a driver feel alert, but the alertness wears off once the trip is underway.

The New Jersey Automobile Club Foundation for Safety offers these tips to avoid driving tired:

1. Start any trip by getting enough sleep the night before. Plan to drive during times of the day when you're normally awake, and stay overnight rather than traveling straight through.

2. Avoid driving during your body's "down time." Take a mid-afternoon break and find a place to sleep between midnight and 6 a.m.

3. Talk with your passenger if you have someone else in the car. A passenger can also let you know when you're showing signs of sleepiness. If your passenger thinks you're getting sleepy, let him or her drive or pull over and sleep. A nap could save your life and the lives of others.

4. Make sure both people in the front of the car are awake. A driver who needs rest should go to the back seat, buckle up, and sleep.

5. Schedule a break every two hours or every 100 miles. Stop sooner if you show any danger signs of sleepiness. And during your break, take a nap, stretch, or get some exercise before getting back into your car.

For a free copy of "Wake Up!", send a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope to: Wake Up, AAA Safety Department, 1 Hanover Road, Florham Park, NJ 07932.
