SECTION B

I had lunch with an attorney/ Democratic Party supporter last week -- dutch treat, with the emphasis on "dutch treat" who said he would like to see a column about the media covering the media on a weekly basis. In other words, he was wondering if newspapers would have the courage to have a columnist critique the news coverage that appeared in the paper.

It's an interesting proposal, but I doubt many editors across the state would be gung-ho for that kind of evaluation. I know they would not like to hear this, but I believe the media in general need to take a step back and give an objective look at how we are covering the news — from the national level to the local level.

I think any columnist who were to tackle that kind of project would view the newspapers as many readers interested in politics do, and that is to draw conclusions before researching the facts. For example, there are two factions in Hillside that believe, depending on which side you talk to, that our Hillside newspaper is sympathetic to the other side. How does the newspaper explain that both sides feel the same way, so something isn't jiving? The best way is to say that a good newspaper will always try to be fair, and that may mean criticizing an action one week and commending another action by the same group the next week.

As the attorney at lunch said, "When both sides don't like you, I guess it just means you're doing your job."

As far as the media taking a good look at themselves, I think it's long overdue. I resent the "teasers" on broadcast news that try to lure viewers to their 5 or 6 p.m. programs. All stations are guilty of sensationalism in this respect because the anchors present the teasers as if the report will be the equivalent to the arrival of doomsday. Many newspapers are guilty of headlines "above the front page fold" that make the story bigger than it is.

But 4ry to get a group of editors to agree that this kind of self-evaluation is needed. It would be difficult.

Are most Americans fascinated by giveaways, scratch-offs and contests?

I didn't think I fit into that category until this week.

I was sorting through my mail at home the other night and came across an envelope filled with "valuable" coupons. In the middle of the pile of coupons was a note that said, "Congratulations, you have been selected to receive a free gift package valued at as much as $25.95." All I had to do was find an enclosed packet and remove the stamp inside and I would know whether or not I was lucky enough to have won 12 glossy fact-filled gardening cards at a $4.95 value, or 24 glossy fact-filled gardening cards with a deluxe safe-keeping binder at a value of $25.95.

Even though I have never gardened, don't ever plan to garden, have no interest in gardening, and don't even have a garden, I was hoping for the deluxe package. Why? Because we all want to win, and the win the best prize offered.

As soon as the company receives my gift certificate and can process the order and send me my deluxe binder, I'll be the owner of a gardening kit. I'm sure there are many readers, though, who have green thumbs and would be interested in the kit. Call me at (908) 686-7700, Ext. 329, and I'll send it to the first person who calls me.

Averting confrontation, court rules for Conservative Party

By Andrew Scott and Jay Hochberg

A Conservative Party candidate for the Board of Chosen Freeholders won a court fight Tuesday, gaining a spot for himself and his running mate that is higher on the ballot.

Saying the county clerk had failed to follow state law regarding the listing of political parties and candidates on ballots, Frank Festa of Scotch Plains won the case. Union resident Shawn Gianelli is his running mate.

Festa filed suit against County Clerk Joanne Rajoppi in Superior Court last month. The matter was to have been argued before Judge Edward Beglin yesterday, but he ruled in the plaintiff's favor, ordering Rajoppi to reposition the names on the ballot.

In addition to his complaint regarding being placed last on the ballot, Festa told the judge that Rajoppi had "left blank lines between candidates for the office... on the official ballot."

In a letter to Beglin dated Sept. 1, Conservative Party founder Tom Blomquist said he supported the candidate's suit.

"The Union County clerk has seen fit to place our candidates on the absolute bottom of the ballot," the letter states. "In doing so, she has left blank space above our candidates because there are no other independent candidates or third party candidates for some of the offices our candidates are seeking.

"The county clerks throughout New Jersey are partisan elected officials of the two major parties who are generally opposed to the emergence of a viable third party," the letter continues. "While this is understandable, citizen access to the ballot and rational design of the ballot is a fundamental right of citizens of the United States and New Jersey."

Rajoppi, a Democrat, was elected to the Office of County Clerk in 1995.

"The judge's decision was a win for third-party candidates," said Gianelli, who said he is a Libertarian but chose to run as a Conservative because the two parties share common philosophics.

"I'm eestatic, to say the least, at the judge's decision," said Festa, who represented himself in court. "The Conservative Party got buried on the ballot because the Democrats and Republicans are afraid of us. They're afraid we'll get a lot of votes."

The Conservative Party is the largest third party in the state, with more candidates than any other third party. The party also has fielded candidates for U.S. Senate and House of Representatives.

"Other counties recognize this and list us immediately after the Democratic and Republican candidates and able to skip a line or column. In the Independent presidential candidates on the ballot," Festa also said.

Both candidates said they felt, in this case, that Line F would be a better position. Line F contains candidates of the Reform Party. Rajoppi, who oversees the placing of candidates and their political party affiliations on the ballot, was represented by County Attorney Henry

Rajoppi explained the process in which the candidates and their parties are placed and why the Conservative ticket was placed last. The ballot shows public offices in rows: presidency, senate, congress, and county

According to the drawing, the party affiliations for this year's elections are listed in the following order: Republican, Democrat, Natural Law, Socialist Workers, Libertarian, Reform, Workers' World, U.S. Taxpayers and New Jersey Conservative.

Line I also contains Socialist Equality and Green Party candidates for various positions. Festa and other Conservative candidates were present at the drawing, which took place Aug.

"At the drawing, I asked the Conservative candidates if they had any problems with their party's position on the ballot listing," said Rajoppi. "They said 'no.' "

"One of the other candidates said that, not me," Festa said. "I expressed my dissatisfaction at being placed

Festa also said that at the time Rajoppi had suggested he request an order-to-show document from a judge for use in his argument to obtain another position on the ballot.

On the ballot, Gianelli's and Festa's names are bracketed with Conservative candidate for Senate Richard Pezzullo and Congressional candidate Dorothy DcLaura. "By law, a bracket, containing candidates running for different positions under the same party affiliation, is not included in the draw," said Festa, referring to case law.

Among the precedents cited by the candidates were Axtel v. Caputo and Richardson v. Caputo.

Freeholders to vote on audit of UCUA

Board is divided on type of study

By Jay Hochberg Regional Editor

When the Board of Chosen Freeholders meets tonight, it could decide to audit the Union County Utilities Authority.

The Republican majority on the board, led by Freeholders Linda DiGiovanni and Linda-Lee Kelly, has called for an external audit of the UCUA's operations. In contrast, the Democrats have been arguing for a review of the authority's finances, saying changes have to be made to make the incinerator's rates competitive.

After reviewing proposals from private firms, ranging in costs from $25,000 to $125,000, the five Republican freeholders said they want the state to conduct the management study, which it would do at no cost to the county if the board passes a resolution requesting it.

"The audit will provide an outside assessment of the Utilities Authority to determine what has worked wrong in the past and will present new options for cost efficiency," said DiGiovanni and Kelly in a joint campaign statement. Both freeholders are seeking re-election this fall.

Public or private? If the freeholders pass the resolution, the county would enter into an agreement with the state Office of the Treasurer to examine the UCUA's internal operating policies and procedures.

The Democrat freeholders said they want the UCUA's dealings with an outside firm audited.

Discussing proposals the board had received from three firms, varying in price from $25,000 to $60,000, Freeholder Carol Cohen said hiring a private firm to examine the finances was preferable to studying the management structure.

That choice also was championed by Beth Gates, the director of the state's Division of Local Government Services, Cohen said.

While the financial auditors would review one year of records at a time - as opposed to the proposed state audit of five years of the management structure - it is the operations contracts and debt structure that has attracted the Democrats' attention.

County 'trailblazers'

Cohen said her ultimate goals are to have the UCUA's contract with Ogden-Martin, the firm that operates the UCUA solid waste incinerator, renegotiated and to have the authority's debt service reworked.

Freeholder Walter McNeil backed up Cohen, calling on his fellow board members to become "trailblazers." That, said Kelly, was what caused the county's problems in the first

"If we'd dragged our feet, we would have no incinerator," she added, referring to the county's acquiescence to a state order to construct an incinerator as an alternative to landfills.

Freeholder Dan Sullivan also said he favored hiring a private firm to look at the books, in part because the state has been unable to commit to a starting date of its proposed audit,

'Delay, delay, delay'

"It's been delay, delay, delay since February. I'm not going to wait until my grandchildren are grown for this great legislation," Cohen said, referring to a bill in the Legislature that would free counties from statemandated waste disposal plans. "Enough is enough. We should be able to get this off the ground."

The attention given to the UCUA's management and finances has snowballed this year. During the winter, Elizabeth Mayor J. Christian Bollwage began working toward freeing his city from its obligation to send its trash to the UCUA incinerator. Other mayors have joined him, seeking similar relief. Last month, the state Supreme Court ruled the state's trash disposal mandales unconstitutional

In other business

Other county business the Board of Chosen Freeholders may address tonight includes an application for funds under the state's Violence Against Women Act grant program. The county would use $76,680 to develop and begin a domestic violence training program for municipal prosecutors.

The freeholders will select a firm to conduct an auction of surplus county vehicles, office equipment and furniture on Oct. 18.

The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. on the sixth floor of the County Administration Building in Elizabethtown

It's time managed care companies start saving lives, not just money

What does drug abuse mean to our nation?

Money

The cost of substance abuse to our society is far reaching. The cost to which I refer is not always measured in dollars. The cost does not only include the clear cut costs of treatment, prevention, and health care, but it extends to the cost to the criminal justice system, the workplace and the lives of the millions of Americans who are affected every day.

Consider the following statistics: • A 1993 update, based on the Consumer Price Index, indicated the cost of substance abuse to New Jersey to be more than $4.2 billion. In addition to treatment costs, these figures embrace acute hospital care-related social costs of criminality and incareeration, injuries and accidents, and related illnesses such as Fetal Alcohol Syndrome and AIDS.

• One study found that for every $1 spent on treatment services, more than $11 is saved on social costs.

· Each year drugs and alcohol trigger up to $75 billion in health care costs. These costs cover drug-related medical conditions such as cardiac complications and sexually transmitted diseases, drug-prompted child and sponse abuse, victims of crime, AIDS and tuberculosis

• As un-treated addicts cost society approximately $43,200 annually. The cost of treatment ranges from $16,000 for residential to $3,000 for outpatient programs. The Rand Corporation reports that providing treatment to all addicts would save more than $150 billion in social costs over the next 15 years.

In all areas of medicine, if a problem is diagnosed early, it will be cheaper to treat and more successful. Given that, it seems amazing that physicians today have been reported to receive less than one hour of illegal-drug-and-alcohol training during their medical education. If physicians were properly trained to identify addiction in its early stages, these high costs surely would be reduced.

In 1960, there were fewer than 30,000 arrests for drug offenses. In 30 years, that number has soared beyond I million. This increase is taxing the entire system from jail overpopulation, to court room back-ups to overloaded parole and probation officers. With prison costs estimated at $20,000 per prisoner per year, treatment becomes a very economical

71 percent of regular drug users — 8 million people — are employed, 15 percent have reported going to work under the influence. Treatment must be an option to the employee. Managed care, in its effort to save money, is cutting back on benefits in this area. This appears to be short-term gain for long-term costs. The statistics show that drug-free workplace prevention programs cost $22 to $50 per employec, compared to $640 in annual work force costs incurred by untreated drug abusers.

Prevention is the trend in all health care. Managed care companies need to wake up and recognize the longterm savings of prevention and early treatment of drug abuse as well as other health problems. This article has shown billions of dollars being spent as a result of drug and alcohol use. We need to prevent the start of any use.

Drug education programs can reduce new drug use by half, and new alcohol use by a third among young people.

This can reduce the demand for drugs. Media campaigns can increase understanding of the risk and reduce the social acceptance of drugs. The Center for Substance Abuse Prevention is recognizing and developing new ways to mobilize communities to work together to prevent alcohol, tobacco and drug abuse.

The key is for society to realize it is everyone's problem. No one is safe from the effects and cost of substance abuse. People are dying, large dollars are being spent ineffectively and something must be done. Managed general public need to work together

Let's stop using our resources at the end of the road. A dollar spent now will save society in the future.

On Oct. 5, the Union County Coalition will hold a health care symposium, "From Managed Care to Managed Health" from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. This forum will further discuss the issue of behavioral health, prevention and policy development. The cost benefits of prevention in health care also will be discussed.

Through panels, swap shops and exhibits, participants will receive the latest information and have an opportunity to share their ideas. The event is open to the public at Kean College's Downs Hall. Free breakfast and lunch will be served. For more information or to register, call (908) 686-6644.

The Union County Coalition for the Prevention of Substance Abuse is a CSAP-funded grant project, with Saint Barnabas Behavioral Health Network as the lead agency, which works with the Municipal Alliances to enhance the prevention efforts in the county.

Water company gets rebate Elizabethtown Water Company received its first monthly rebate check from Public Service Electric and Gas for its participation in a power conservation plan, which has reduced the electricity needs of the Elizabeth-town's water treatment plant. The electric utility's rebate and the reduced energy costs are expected to generate an annual savings of approximately $1.3 million for Elizabethtown customers. In the spring of 1995, Elizabethtown conducted an energy audit looking at equipment and operating procedures at its Raritan-Millstone Water Treatment Plant in Bridgewater to determine if there were ways to optimize the use of energy at the

As a result of the study, Elizabeththown replaced two electric motors in the high-lift pumping station with natural-gas burning, internal combustion engines. The high-lift pumps are used to move treated water from the R-M plant into the Elizabethtown water distribution system.

By replacing the motors, Elizabethtown expects to reduce its power costs by 20 percent.

The project, which cost Elizabethtown $2 million, is now completed and is expected to save customers $1.3 million annually, based upon a combination of energy savings and a rebate program currently in effect from the local electric utility. The rebate will increase in future years.

These savings are reflected in the rates approved by the Board of Public Utilities last quarter, which will take effect in the fall.

Planning yard work this fall? Be careful around the trees

A tree is a tree is a tree? Maybe — maybe not. Some trees look better than others. Some are healthier than others. And there's a reason why: It's all in the way the tree was cared for over the years.

With the first day of autumn only days away, now is a good time to examine a tree's foliage and trunk, before the leaves fall and temperature drops.

Is the foliage lush? Is the trunk strong, straight and

Those traits don't just happen; someone made it happen. In years past, it was a landscape professional or a tree care expert who handled such tasks as planting, staking, pruning, and the like. These days, however, more homeowners than ever before are becoming do-it-yourself gardeners and tackling yard and garden chores themselves.

As a result, companies that manufacture lawn and garden equipment are developing new products to make yard care quick, easy, efficient, and, of course, as effective as possible. In the case of tree care, the result is a wide range of newly introduced and useful products found at hardware stores and home and garden centers.

Staking

Freshly planted trees, as well as relatively young trees, are ideal for staking. Simply put, staking lets a tree firmly establish roots by helping them stay steady and upright despite the elements. For example, a properly staked tree is unlikely to be damaged by strong winds that can bend it and cause it to grow misshapen. A new product called a TreeStaKit is a complete staking package that features 21 feet of rope, reusable stakes, and a tree tube that makes anchoring a tree up to three inches in diameter a simple

Remember there are a variety of ways to stake a tree, so asking a local garden supplier's assistance in choosing the right method for you and your tree would be a good idea. Tree experts note that a young tree benefits most from staying staked for about two years, whatever the method of staking selected. After two years, most trees are ready to stand tall on their own.

Bark Protection

What's the single most prevalent cause of young tree death? Believe it or not, the answer is the damage inflicted by string trimmers and lawn mowers. Trees just a year or two old or those freshly planted in the soil, simply do not have a thick enough layer of bark to protect them. As a result, a gash caused by a mower blade slicing into it, or a cut made by a trimmer cord slashing into it, can leave a tree extremely susceptible to the often deadly onset of fungal diseases and unwanted insects.

One solution is about as simple as it gets. A new product called Bark Gard is a plastic shield, approximately eight inches high, that can be installed in seconds by just coiling it around the base of a tree. The result is a physical barrier between the tree and mowers and trimmers. The product comes in a natural brown color that blends with a tree's bark and also serves to reflect light away from the tree's trunk. Further, the product's manufacturers have made Bark Gard, with punched-out holes, to allow the tree to "breathe." It is priced at approximately $2.99.

Damage to tree bark, caused by trimmers and mowers during fall clean-up, is the most common cause of young tree death. Thinned bark leaves a tree susceptible to fungal diseases and insect infestation, but it can be prevented.

Wrapping Trees

Some homeowners find wrapping trees with burlap or other fabric materials helps protect them from insect infestation and cold weather. If this is the case, there's a product available to do those jobs, but not fall apart and look untidy after a short period of time in the sun, rain and/or snow. It's called Tree Wrap. Essentially, Tree Wrap is a weatherresistant, all-white material that can be wrapped around the base of a tree in overlapping spirals.

Once secured around a tree, it will moderate the temperature around the trunk, which lessens the chance of bark splitting caused by seasonal weather extremes. Further, Tree Wrap is designed to stretch as the tree grows, and tiny holes in material enable air and water to reach the bark's surface. Lastly, the product serves as a basic physical barrier to rodents and insects that may want to claw at or eat the bark. Many homeowners have discovered that using Bark Gard and Tree Wrap in tandem does the trick of protecting a young tree from the elements and animals, as well as mowers and string trimmers.

Of course, there are many other products out there that will get trees off to the start they need to lead a long, healthy life. For example, landscape fabrics placed atop the soil in a tree bed and covered with a layer of mulch, will moderate soil temperature and help retain muchneeded moisture. Pruning products, such as clippers and retractable saw blades, help bring out the lushest foliage possible and make shaping the tree easier. Take time on a weekend for a visit to the local garden center, where exciting new tree care products such as the ones referred to above are available.

Gardeners will learn a lot and their trees will reap the Celebrity opens to sound of 'Applause'

By Bea Smith Staff Writer

"It's nice to be here at the Paper Mill Playhouse, in this exquisite theater and to be so welcomed here in New Jersey," announced the beautiful actress, Stefanie Powers, at a unique press conference Friday afternoon in Foosaner Art Gallery. Powers, who looked absolutely fantastic, is starring in the Betty Comden-Adolph Green musical, "Applause" which was scheduled to open yesterday. "Applause" is an adaptation of the award-winning film, "All About Eve."

Many actors, producers, directors, choreographers and writers took part in the Paper Mill event, which covered "three acts;," the first, meeting the principals of "Applause," including Comden, Green, Charles Strouse and Lee Adams, with a question and answer period following, plus more about the 1996-1997 season; a visit to the mezzanine for a "sneak preview" of a rehearsal of the show, and the third' a fancy buffet luncheon at the F.M. Kirby Carriage House Restaurant.

It all began when Angelo Del Rossi, executive producer, stood before an audience of news media, plus photographers loaded down with video cameras and special camera equipment, and announced the Paper Mill's new season of productions: "Applause," "Gigi," "Nutcracker," "Out of Order," "Jane Eyre," "No, No, Nanette" and "Man of La Mancha."

The program's "Overture," by Del Rossi, Robert Johanson, artistic director, both of whom welcomed the audience, started Powers and Ann Reinking, choreographer, both of whom addressed the audience and stayed for a question and answer period. "The Paper Mill," said Powers, best known for her successful, long-running television series, "Hart to Hart," "has been very generous to us. And I'm looking forward to a happy run — and a happy audience." She grinned her famous beautiful grin, and the audience went wild.

"We are still in rehearsal," added Reinking. "It's quite an adventure to do this show — we've changed three numbers, and we're still trying to keep it in its originality."

"ht's the perfect way to start the season," said Del Rossi.

"It's an irresistible opportunity with a formidable cast of characters,200 hardly something I could pass up.

these people. You see, I knew the well-known Mankiewicz family, Tom and Joe, and the rest. I grew up with them. Joe created the Sara Siddens Award, which is in the play. Nancy Reagan's mother decided to have an award in Chicago, and she lifted it out of the movie and recreated it. And I received that award in Chicago, as well as Margo Channing did in the film and the play. That's why 'Applause' means so much to me."

She also mentioned another coincidence - the fact that Tom Mankiewicz wrote and directed the pilot of "Hart to Hart." Powers reported that she and Robert Wagner, who played her husband in the TV series, had done an extensive tour of "Love

"We call Betty Comden and Adolph Green our 'Dream Team,' " explained Johanson. "That's because they are a real dream," said the artistic director of the Paper Mill.

The creators of the show explained that with the changes in "Applause," "we think we fixed it. We have three and a half new numbers in the show." "And," added Powers, "we're hoping that it will go beyond the Paper Mill. We want to go on tour for five months and then bring it to Broadway."

"Now for a trip through the rest of the season," said Johanson, "on Oct. 1 we will have a Meet the Artists at the theater at 7:30 p.m., a brand new production of 'Gigi,' which was first a film that was made into a Broadway production. Ours, which will run from Oct. 30 through Dec. 15, is different from the two preceding it. It's going to be quite a beautiful production with a beautiful leading lady, Tony Award said Powers, "rare indeed to have winning Liliane Montevecchi." such an assemblage of this talent. thandsome and talented Richard White. "And," said Johanson, "our restaurant next door will be serving an incredible French menu."

A symposium is scheduled for Dec. 3. "The Nutcracker" will be staged from Dec. 19 through Dec. 29 by the New Jersey Ballet. "Out of Order," a new comedy by Britain's Ray Cooney, will open on Jan. 1, 1997, and will run through Feb. 9, starring Paxton Whitehead. "That will be followed by my dramatization of the book, a new production of 'Jane Eyre,' Feb. 19 through March 29," said Johanson. "No, No, Nanette" will be staged from April 9 through May 25. "It won't be like the original. It will be a new version and will star James Brennan, who just starred in 'Crazy for You' on Broadway." "Man of La Mancha' will conclude the season from June 4 to July 20. "The winner of Tony awards for Best Musical and Best Score - featuring 'Impossible Dream,' will star Ron Raines, who is in the CBS soap, 'Guiding Light,' and who starred in our 'South Pacific,' and will share the bill with our very own Evita, Judy McLane," Johanson said, as the lovely and talented McLane smiled at the press audience.

"We also are revamping our educational system, 'The Star Program,' explained Johanson." "This is where we recognize our young people with a Rising Star Award. There are more than 6,000 students who will perform, and 1,500 teachers and advisors from High Point to Cape May here in New Jersey. Many appeared in our 'Life on Earth' this summer, and are an integral part of the program. It's amazing to find so much talent in our state. And we plan to see a lot of them."

The press then saw a rehearsal of the number, 'Applause,' with Powers, a large group of dancers and singers, and the choreographer, Reinkink, who really put the performers through their paces. Powers, who once had a popular exercise video, worked just as hard as the rest. A remarkable woman, she made it all look so easy.

The star of "Applause" couldn't join the luncheon party that followed at the Paper Mill's restaurant. She was too busy repeating and repeating and bettering her musical dance numbers.

And she did it all with a smile on that pretty, famous face.

Documentary tells secrets of the 'Hollywood Madam'

A few years ago Heidi Fleiss, a high school dropout in her late 20s, was arrested in California for "pandering," the legal way of saying she was operating a prostitution ring. This type of arrest is very common and By Jim Riffel would never had made national headlines except for one very important detail: Fleiss' list of clients allegedly Hollywood community. This news caused a major shake-up among the Tinsletown elite and made for "Heidi's Black Book" headlines in the National Enquirer and Star magazines. The names from the black book were never released and only a few people, including actor Charlie Sheen, admitted to using Heidi Fleiss' included some powerful names in the Documentary filmmaker Nick Broomfield, who most recently had directed a film about a female serial killer, decided to investigate the behind-the-scenes activities of Fleiss and her business and made "Heidi Fleiss: Hollywood Madam." The result is both interesting and disturbing.

Fleiss came from an upper class background: her father, a highly regarded physician, her mother, a caring and loving "hippie." The family included two sisters and a brother and they regularly took pleasant vacations together, spending plenty of time with each other. When Heidi quit high school at the age of 16 her life changed. She began to drift around and ended up starting a relationship with Carl Buckwaller, a 60-year-old man almost three times her age. Buckwaller was also one of the richest men alive and when Heidi turned 23, he gave her $1 million in cash and a Rolls Royce. Fleiss later left him because he would not remain faithful.

She next went with Ivan Nagy, a 55-year-old filmmaker, who directed some television shows and films. Nagy had a dark side which included drug dealing and ties to prostitution. He introduced Fleiss to Madame Alex, a 60-year-old woman who operated a prostitution ring that supplied women to Hollywood big shots for more than 20 years. Madame Alex was a legend among the community. Fleiss went to work for her and soon after started her own business. It wasn't long before she had established herself as the new force in town, sometimes receiving up to $40,000 a night for her services. Her business was so sought after that she routinely was flying girls to Europe and Japan.

One of her workers is shown in photos in the film next to President Bush and President Reagan. The success was met with intense jealousy among her rivals and she was soon the target of revenge. In addition to her competition, Fleiss also was making enemies with the police. It's standard for call girls to supply the law with any information they might need regarding cases they inadvertently become involved in. But Fleiss never co-operated. This, and an incredible amount of greed, ultimately brought Hollywood's Madame to her end.

Reading Worrall Newspapers can be music to the ears

By Jacquie McCarthy Associate Editor

Infosource, Worrall Community Newspapers' free 24-hour telephone information service, has added an exciting new feature to its already exhaustive menu of informative subject options. "Music Previews Network," featuring reviews of new music releases from categories ranging from rock to classical, can be accessed starting today by dialing Infosource at (908) 686-9898 and entering code 0100.

Callers to the new network can enter a selection number from the following 12 musical categories to obtain a preview of current releases:

- · Rock, 101;
- Alternative, 102;
- Rhythm and blues, 103; Country, 104;
- · Jazz and blues, 105; • Rap and hip-hop, 106;
- · Soundtracks and collections,
- · Christian and gospel, 108;
- · Classical, 109;
- New age, 110.

In addition, the network offers callers interested in keeping abreast of the most current recordings in popular music a weekly preview of new releases at selection number

Music Preview Network reviews are provided to Infosource by Voice News Network in Chicago, Ill. Each music preview is three minutes long, with a brief background segment on the artist and album, followed by samples of five songs from the release. Some selections include entertaining diversions, such as a comedy break with comedian Jeff Foxworthy on the country preview.

Infosource Manager Erik Kent'is excited about the benefit the network provides to shoppers, who can now listen to cuts from a new CD from home before making the purchase. Account Executive Kevin Long pointed out another convenient use for the previews with the question, "Have you ever heard a song on the radio and you don't know the name of it? That drives me crazy!" According to Long, the network can be utilized not only to confirm titles of new singles, but also to make sure the song in question is on the release, saving time and effort. Funding for the network is pro-

tisment included in the preview. In this way, Kent advised, the service does not bypass the source of the actual merchandise, but actually incorporates businesses into the equation by providing a selection number to directly connect with the sponsor, enabling the caller to see if the intended purchase is in stock, ask for prices, or obtain directions.

Worrall Newspapers' interactive Infosource service began in May 1995, offering telephone access to information on subjects ranging from accounting, insurance, and safety to current time and temperature, national news and lottery results. Weekly calls for the new service averaged 500, a number which has increased to 1500 this year. The advantage of tracking the number of calls made to each selection allows definitive feedback for sponsors, who recieve an exact count of how many potential customers have been exposed to advertising. Sponsors are also assured of reaching a target market, since callers are selecting categories of specific interest.

Kent expressed the sentiment that Infosource is not just for advertisers, but a logical extension of a community newspaper established to provide information in a convenient medium. "We wanted to add something to our newspapers for our readers," said Kent. He stated that current statistics reflect that only 12 percent of American households are on the Internet, compared to the 98 percent with telephones. "You need a computer to access the Internet, but you only need a phone to use Infosource."

Infosource topics now include information on child care, senior citizen groups, job scarches, funeral planning, religion, television, sports, recipes, health care, and weddings. Timely subjects include Election '96. Autosource was launched early this month, providing information about new car models with the option of recieving a written report. The school closing selection has proven popular during stormy winter months. Infosource can be accessed from rotary as well as touch-tone phones, utilizing voice activation technology.

In addition to the new Music Preview Network, Infosource offers information on several arts and entertainment subjects, including book and movie reviews and com-

Both 'Kids 'N' Tots' can have fun learning about the arts

The New Jersey Workshop for the Arts, located in Westfield, is pleased to announce that registration has again begun for two highly successful preschool programs: Kids'N'Arts and Tots'N'Arts. Kids'N'Arts offers preschool children, ages 3, 4 and 5 years old, experiences in art, music and drama. Tots'N'Arts, available for children 18-36 months old accompanied by an adult, offers toddlers and their parents valuable musical and movement experiences.

According to newly appointed head teacher Diane Burkham, who doubles as art teacher, Kids'N' Arts is a unique program in that it offers students a far wider range of creative learning experiences than other programs. Burkham, who has been with the program since its inception in 1993, asserts that this fact, along with the highly dedicated nature of the staff, makes the program a must for area

In addition to Burkham, the staff includes Anne Curto, who teaches drama, and Ginger Haseiden, who teaches music and oversees the Tots'N'Arts program. All are highly experienced instructors of young people.

Four sessions are offered during the school year for each program, beginning Thursday, Sept. 19. Kids'N'Arts sessions will be held Thursdays from 9:45 -11:45 a.m. or 12:30 - 2:30 p.m. Tots'N'Arts will be held Thursdays from 9 -9:30 a.m. All classes are held at the New Jersey Workshop for the Arts office, located at 152 E. Broad St. in Westfield.

For more information, interested parents and youngsters should contact the Workshop office at (908) 789-9696, or browse our new website address at: http://www.westfieldnj.com/njwa.

Antique photos wanted

The Union County Arts Center, formerly the Rahway Theatre, a nationally landmarked vintage vaudeville movie-house, is seeking old photos of the theater from its early years, especially from its opening in 1928 to the '50s.

The Arts Center would like to supplement its pictorial archive with whatever additional photos and other memorabilia people may have collected over the years and are willing to share. Especially desired at this time, during restoration of the building's facade, are photos that show the kiosk-type ticket-booth that had been in use for only a short time.

The Arts Center would be content merely to borrow photos long enough to have reproductions made for its archives, and return them to the lenders after Anyone wishing to contribute can call the Arts Center at (908)9 499-0441 on weekdays between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

Dance school grows into its new location

By Jacquie McCarthy Associate Editor

The past four years have been a time of growth and change for Rahway's own Union County Dance Centre, culminating in a recent move to its newly-renovated location in the Hung Fu Building at 1542 Irving Street, Rahway. Owner/Director Shawna Lee Lajeunesse related the history behind the endeavor, in which she translated her love of dance into teaching and entrepeneurship.

"I've been dancing since I was three," said Lajeunesse, a statement which reflects not only the intensity and longevity of her artistic life, but also her ability to relate to the youngest of students. These two factors drew Lajeunesse to teach evening dance classes.

Working as a dance instructor parttime, however, did not satisfy her creative muse. "I was doing the 9-5 thing, and I was teaching at night, and I wanted to be full-time in what I love to do." Lajeunesse said simply,

When a friend put her dance studio on Wescott in Rahway up for sale, Lajeunesse took advantage of the opportunity to live the dream. She purchased the studio and opened Studio 2000 in 1992 with approximately

As the number of registrants grew, the school moved to Jacques Ave., and was renamed Union County Dance Centre. When space became available downtown, Lajeunesse saw an opportunity to gain a more visible, centralized location.

The space has been completely renovated, consisting of a simple white linoleum floor with the letters UCDC spelled out with black linoleum in the front of the room. Above the mirrored walls, colorful masks and posters of dancers decorate the area. Pictures of former students, dating from 1992 through 1996, are proudly displayed in the office.

Union County Dance Studio accepts students age 3 through adult for afternoon, evening and Saturday morning classes. Instruction is available in ballet, tap, modern, jazz, and acrobatic dance. The school also offers adult fitness classes.

One special feature of the dance school is availability of training in advanced techniques, depending on degree of ability. Lajeunesse described two advanced classes, lyrical and pointe. Lyrical, she said, is a combination of ballet and jazz. Pointe is advanced ballet using toe shoes.

Lajeunesse, an Edison resident, is qualified to teach all levels and ages, and employs equally qualified instructors. Corinne Wneck of Rahway is a guidance counselor at Rahway High School during the week, and spends Saturday mornings teaching baby ballet and tap. Patricia Kurasz of Rahway instructs all levels and ages. When not dancing or teaching, Kurasz sings professionally, and has recorded with husband Joe Kurasz, a nationally-renowned contemporary jazz musician. Jennifer Kolbasowski of Clark majored in dance at Allen-. town College in Pennsylvania, and instructs modern, ballet, tap, lyrical, and pointe classes.

Although fall classes began this week, Lajeunesse stressed that registration is ongoing.

Union County Dance Studio classes bring good cheer to hospitals and retirement homes with recitals performed throughout the year. A troupe from the school showed off their dancing skills at Great Adventure in April this year, and the year-end finale, including musical theater and singing, is presented at the Union County Arts Center every June.

In spite of the swift success of the school, Lajeunesse was hesitant to expand upon the possibility of some of her students going on to study dance professionally, perhaps even achieving fame in the field. Most of her students were still with her, she said, and although they had learned a great deal in the past four years, none had yet reached an age or skill level warranting a prediction of success. "No one has left yet," she said with a furrowed brow.

Judging from the rapid growth of Lajeunesse's endeavor to date, this reporter has no difficulty predicting the clinical unit of the Center for Molecular Medicine and Immunology, in Newark, New Jersey, today announced the receipt of a five-year grant from the National Center Institute of the National Institute of Health which could total approximately $13.5 million. This grant is a "program project" involving several investigators at the research center and collaborating institutions who are working together on new methods to detect colorectal and pancreatic cancers carlier, and to treat these cancers more specifically.

Colorectal cancer effects about 134,000 Americans annually, killing about 55,000 while panereatic cancer. accounting for 26,000 new cases in the U.S. annually, kills almost 28,000 Americans.

Frank R. Lautenberg, senator from New Jersey, said: "These are terrible diseases causing considerable pain and loss of lives, and I am proud that our Garden State Cancer Center is making important strides to control these and other cancers, and has received this important grant and recognition from the U.S. National Institutes of Health, Over 2,000 New Jerseyans die of cancers of the colon and rectum each year, and we must do more to control and cure these tumors. as well as the highly lethal pancreatic cancer type." According to the principal investigator of the project, Dr. David V. Gold, "This grant will expand and accelerate our efforts to develop and apply new cancer-seeking antibodies against colorectal and pancreatic cancers, and to attach radioactive chemicals for diagnostic or treatment applications, which are methods that have been pioneered at our center for more than 13 years." "Further," he added, "we have been making progress in developing a blood test that could allow physicians to detect and diagnose pancreatic cancer carlier." "Most pancreatic cancer patients are diagnosed much too late to be amendable to curative interventions," Dr. Gold stated.

Regionalization of Cancer Research

"Efforts to develop methods to improve the delivery of therapeutic agents to human intestinal and pancreatic cancers growing in laboratory animals will comprise a major focus of this work," Dr. Gold commented, "but perhaps the most important aspect is our rapidly applying these new technologies to cancer patients in a 3-institution collaboration, involv-

The Garden State Cancer Center, direction of Dr. Amold Rubin; at the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, under Dr. Abass Alvari; and at the Garden State Cancer Center, soon to relocate to Belleville, NJ, under the direction of Dr. Malik Juweid and Dr. Robert M. Sharkey."

> "This major grant from the National Cancer Institute will further strengthen our efforts to spread new cancer research and treatment activities throughout our region, from southern New Jersey and adjacent Philadelphia to northern New Jersey and Staten Island," stated the president of the Garden State Cancer Center, Dr. David M. Goldenberg, "In addition to the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania, which has a comprehensive cancer center, Staten Island University Hospital will join us as another out-of-state regional investigative site," Dr. Goldenberg added. He commented further that "this regionalization of cancer research and clinical trials of new methods of treatment and diagnosis will help keep cancer victims closer to home."

During the past year, CMMI, the parent non-profit, research organization of the Garden State Cancer Center, has alternated with Princeton University as the top recipient in New-Jersey of cancer funds from the federal government's peer-reviewed programs, "which bring only $13 million to the state annually." Dr. Goldenberg further said that "this new grant award will be an important foundation for the many research projects we plan to implement in our new facilities in Belleville, New Jersey, when we relocate there in October of this year:" The research center is renovating the former Essex County Hospice Center in Belleville under a grant from the U.S. Department of Energy and funds from an Essex County Improvement Authority Bond. Although CMMI purchased the 200,000-square-foot vacant hospital from the County, it reverts to the County in 25 years, with the Center leasing it from the local government thereafter. "This constitutes a favorable return to our County and its taxpayers by gaining a real asset in the future, while invigorating business activity and revitalizing an important facility in Belleville," said James Treffinger, Essex County

The first phase of renovation of Belleville Hospital involves the completion of an outpatient clinic, an imaging center, 2 floors of research laboratories, and a vivarium. "We are still in need of funds to complete the remainder, or 75 percent, of the building St. Joseph's Hospital and Medical ing, and are optimistic that this can be funds and private philanthrophy," Dr. Goldenberg remarked. Dr. Goldenberg said that "cancer remains Public Enemy No. 1, and I am therefore confident that our citizens will provide the support to allow us to build a major cancer research and treatment center for the many current and future patients in our region."

A $50 million development campaign is planned to be launched this fall by the Garden State Cancer Center Foundation. Beatrice D'Agostino, President of the Foundation's Board of Trustees and former chairman of Bancorp New Jersey, stated that "Cancer is an aggressive and terrible scourge afflicting one in three Americans. Therefore, the financial goals of the Foundation can be no less aggressive! The Garden State Cancer Center has become a promier research program in our state, based on rigorous peer review, which now needs the support of our entire community.

Lingering heat still threatens motorists

It's still summertime, and with an increased number of people driving to vacation getaways and other leisure spots, the physicians and staff at the Sleep Disorder Clinic at Morristown Memorial Hospital urge motorists to avoid getting behind the wheel when feeling tired or drowsy.

"According to estimates from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, approximately 56,000 accidents each year-more than 1,500 of which are fatal-are caused by drivers who are drowsy or fall asleep while driving," says Robert A. Caponac, M.D., FCCP, medical director of the Sleep Center. "Driving sleepy can impair judgement, reduce awareness, and slow reaction timejust as dangerous as driving while under the influence of alcohol or drugs."

Dr. Capone cautions those who believe that turning up the radio, blasting the air conditioning or having a brisk cup of coffee will chase the

Often, the danger signs of drowsiness include incessant yawning, wandering, disconnected thoughts, the inability to remember driving the last few miles, erratic driving between lanes and failure to acknowledge traffic signs. "If any of these symptoms occur, it is advisable to pull off the road and find a safe place, such as a highway rest area or truck stop, to catch a 20 to 25 minute nap," says Dr." Capone. "Resting longer than 25 minutes may result in increased grogginess upon waking up because you've gone into deeper stages of sleep."

Dr. Capone offers these suggestions from the National Sleep Foundation to help avoid driving sleepy.

IF CHILD OUT OF BALANCE

Whenever your child's body is thrown out of balance, his posture suffers and so does his back and other parts of his body The bad habit of slouching in a chair to read or watch television may cause this. So can carrying heavy loads of books to school. When this results in poor posture, back ache or other symptoms of physical distortion, treatment may be needed to set things right again. Backpacks for books are recommended because they help distribute the weight evenly. So is good posture -- standing erect, walking at a good pace, and keeping the stomach in. If your child's body is out of balance, however, sooner or later you can expect him to complain of persistent aches in his back or other parts of his body. This may suggest a possible spinal or pelvic problem that needs correction. Pain-killing drugs can reduce this discomfort, but they won't cure the cause. What may be needed is treatment to properly align the spine and sacrolliac and instruction in how to maintain good posture and good health

HEALTH/FITNESS & MEDICINE

Diabetes, if untreated, can cause blindness

Diabetes is a disease of abnormal sugar regulation in the body. Insulin, a hormone that processes sugar in our bodies, is either decreased in production by the pancreas gland or decreased in its place of action.

Diabetes affects every structure and cell in the body, since all cells process sugar in different forms to derive energy. The major avenues are vascular systems, that is the system of blood vessels which carry blood to and from the

The eye is not a priviliged site from the effects of diabetes. Diabetes, in its different forms affect the nerves of the eye, the retina, the lens system, and the manifestation of different diseases.

Insight into Eyesight

different processes are utilized by the body.

In the lens of the eye, this is manifested by swelling. This can have the effect of changing the refractive power of the lens, that is, a change in the strength of an eyeglass prescription. This can be temporary and reversed with proper medical management. However, when left unchecked, the lens continues to thicken and takes on more water and protein. The result is a development of a cataract — a state of clouding of the natural lens of the eye. In an analogy of the eye being like a camera, the retina is like the film. It is a thin membrane on which light impulses are passed from the lens to allow for processing and transmission to the brain to register vision.

In the case of diabetes, the blood vessels to the retina and throughout the body become fragile and leaky. This is manifested with a decrease in vision due to fluid infiltrating areas sensitive to light processing and good vision, for example, diabetic maculopathy or muscular edema.

If this state is allowed to continue, the retina becomes more starved for oxygen and begins to make more blood vessels - proliferative diabetic retinopathy. These blood vessels are even more fragile, with a tendency to bleed.

This begins a cycle and can lead to a destruction of the retina in terms of scarring and detachment, peeling away from its base. Since the retina contains nerves, damage to them is irreversible.

Another major source of diabetes is within the nerves to the eye, both in the processing of vision via the retina and optic nerve, and in the movement of the eye. In the states of oxygen deprivation to the eye and nerves, a weakness in eye movements or even paralysis may occur. Moreover, the optic nerve — the direct cable link with the brain - may develop a very slow dying process due to this oxygen deprivation.

Ultimately, the effects of diabetes on the eye depend on how quickly it is diagnosed and the speed therapy is started. Medical therapy, with a medical internist, involves the proper treatment and regulation of diabetes to better sugar levels. This is achieved initially with oral medications or later with insulin

Regular eye exams for diabetes, every six to 12 months, allow for early detection of retinal changes. Diagnostics involved include direct physical examination, an injection of fluorescein into the arm, and photography of the back of the eye.

When leaking is visualized, laser treatments are started to promote reabsorption of leaking fluid, decrease the proliferation of new blood vessels, and prevent bleeding.

In the case of bleeding not resolved through these modalities, direct surgery on the eye may be necessary to evacuate the blood clot or attempt to re-attach any resulting retinal detachment.

For adults, a 1991 National Highway Traffic Safety Administration study showed the driver deaths in frontal crashes were 28 percent lower in air bag-equipped cars which only had lap-shoulder safety belts. The study also said that drivers of cars with air bags were 25 to 29 percent less likely to have moderate to severe injuries and 24 percent less likely to be hospitalized.

Air bags provide a high degree of protection for the head, neck, and chest in front-end crashes and have been so effective that some automotive companies are starting to make side air bags. Volvo has already implemented side air bags in some models of their cars and Ford is in the process of doing the same. Other car

Unfortunately, many parents who are driving with only their child and no other adult, prefer to have their child, especially an infant, sit close to them in the front seat.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and the National Transportation Safety Board both say that infants in rear-facing safety seats may be injuried if struck by a deploying passenger air bag. The bags deploy at an average speed of 130 mph to nearly 200 mph. Air bags can exert 1,100 to 2,600 pounds of pressure on the chest of a crash test dummy. Park Avenue has world-class design

The 1997 Park Avenue and Ultra, featuring a new world-class structure and new design, was introduced to the public almost one year ago at the North American International Auto Show in Detroit and at the Los Angeles Auto Show, both in January

Park Avenue customers prize roominess, rich accommodations and a quiet, comfortable ride - as well as an attractive value.

The most significant change is that the '97 Park Avenue consists of refinement of architectural components, primarily body structure and chassis systems, recently introduced in the Buick Riviera. Park Avenue is in fact a second-generation architectural design with a host of enhancements.

Park Avenue's robust architecture delivors a wealth of tangible customer benefits: a quiet, solid ride for the life of the vehicle, superior road manners and responsive handling, safety-cage construction for outstanding crashworthiness and superior comfort.

The '97 Park Avenue is slightly larger than the previous model in practically all major interior and exterior dimensions. For example, the wheelbase is three inches longer to increase the room available for the driver and five passengers. The greatest gains in interior spaciousness are front headroom, an additional 9 inch; front hip room, an additional 1.3 inch; and rear hip room, an additional 1.5 inch. While the new Park Avenue's trunk volumne is slightly reduced, from 20.3 to 19.1 cubic feet, its utility is improved because lift-over height is lower and the width of the opening is maximized with the use of diagonal cutlines for the decklid.

One innovation is a new seatmounted safety belt system for front passengers, designed so the shoulder belt fits comfortably irrespective of seat position and occupant size. An example of thoughful design is this safety feature: In the event of an air bag deployment, the doors automatically unlock in 15 seconds.

Buick's successful 3800 Series II V-6s will continue to power the Park Avenue Except for oil and filter changes, both the normally aspirated and the supercharged powerplants are virtually 100,000-mile maintenance free. Park Avenue's naturally aspirated Series II delivers 205 horsepower at 5,200 rpm while Park Avenue Ultra's supercharged Series II produces an impressive 240 horsepower at 5,200 rpm.

Park Avenue technical advancements include a higher-capacity fourwheel-disc anti-lick brake system, magnetic variable effort rack-andpinion power steering, several alumilens halogen headlamps and a more damage-resistant radio antenna embedded in the rear window.

Front and rear suspension systems are supported by rubber isolated subframes to block the transfer of road harshness and driveline vibration. A "cradle" design is used in front to mount not only the suspension but also the powertrain and steering systems while a T-shaped member carries the semi-trailing-arm rear suspension.

Engineers used state-of-the-art approaches such as torque-axis engine mounting and triple door seals to enhance comfort and quietness.

An example of the robust design is a one-piece cast magnesium cross-car beam that serves as a body structural member as well as the primary instrument-panel mounting support. Squeaks and rattles in the instrumentpanel are much less likely because the beam eliminates numerous individual brackets. Magnesium is an exceptional material having high strength and stiffness with very low weight.

In addition, the new Park Avenue's front structure is strengthened by using closed-section welded steel engine-compartment upper rails and radiator tie-bar, eliminating bolt-on structural reinforcements.

Buick offers additional options in Park Avenue

Among other enhancements is a new level of electrical architecture that means various systems can perform more tasks using fewer wires. For example, use of new multiplexing technology reduces the number of wires that go into a door by 75 percent, which translates into reduced complexity, less bulk for ease of packaging and improved reliability.

A single key opens all of the car's locks and operates the ignition. A separate valet key is provided to maintain trunk and glove-box security when Park Avenue is handed over to an attendant. The ComforTemp climate control system again has dual controls and adjustable rear-seat vents. Comfortable 10-way power driver and front passenger seats are a split-frame design which allows the seat bottom to be adjusted independently of the backrest. Four-way lumbar-support adjustment, standard on Ultra and optional on Park Avenue, also is power operated.

Buick's "Personal Choice" features have been increased from the previous Park Avenue, adding sound system and climate control settings. Previously, the remote keyless entry fob could be programmed to set mirror and seat positions, automatic door lock operation, perimeter lighting, delayed locking and security feedback.

William L. Porter, who headed its exterior design, said the new Park Avenue's styling was "in part inspired by the silky, undulating surfaces of the Riviera.'

A number of features which are optional on the Park Avenue arc standard on Ultra. For example, rainsensing windshield wipers automatically maintain forward visibility according to moisture on the windshield instead of with a fixed delay interval. A tire inflation pressure monitoring system alerts the driver if a tire needs more air.

On the Ultra, real wood interior trim, leather upholstery and a Concert Sound III entertainment system with nine speakers and eight subamplifiers - are standard. Most of the comfort and convenience features mentioned above are standard Ultra equipment so its option lists contains only a few items to suit specific tastes and applications. Ultra's exterior is distinguished by a grille-mounted Buick tri-shield badge, as opposed to the Park Avenue's stand up hood omament, and a specific Ultra wheel.

Park Avenue continues to offer a long list of standard features such as dual air bags, anti-lock brakes, remote keyless entry and traction control, standard on Ultra.

Convenience Plus electrical features continue with delayed entry and exit lighting, "theater dimming" interior lights, battery rundown protection, lockout protection on power door locks, and warning chimes for leaving on the parking brake, turn signal or headlamps and for leaving the key in the ignition when exiting.
