SECTION B

From The Editor's Notebook By Tom Canavan Editor in Chief

Teachers in the school districts that are in the midst of contract negotiations are committing the ultimate crime. Because negotiations between the districts and teachers' unions are at a stalemate in Hillside, Rahway and Union, teachers are laking out their frustrations on the students, who are the last people who should be drawn into the negotiations fight. Unannounced sick days, working only from bell to bell, and diminished homework assignments are some of the methods teachers are using against students to send a message to the districts. The message is: If you don't give us what we want, we can make the students suffer.

These are deplorable acts, regardless in what stage of negotiations they take place. If the negotiations teams from the boards of education and education associations reach a stalemate, they should immediately call in an arbitrator to settle the issue.

Better yet, once a stalemate has been reached, both sides should be willing to go public with the issues that have become obstacles and let the public get involved in the negotiations. Through the newspaper, which could act as the provider of information, both sides could present the offers that are on the table and allow the public to determine how much should be given in salary increases and benefits. After all, it's the public's money, and shouldn't the taxpayer have some say in how it is spent?

if the public had any say, teachers would not receive a raise during the entire length of se contract, they would be forced to pay into a health care plan like the rest of the real world, and they would be held accountable for the education of the district's students.

I can see teachers immediate-

And shouldn't the public have the right to have this kind of input? Again, it is our money that is being spent.

A majority, if not all, school districts do not want the public to "interfere" with contract negotiations. This is the sentiment from both sides of the negotiations table. A legitimate argument is that the issues would be blown out of proportion and little would be accomplished if the proverbial dirty laundry were to be aired.

But think about it for a moment. Under the current system of negotiating, what opportunity does the public have to tell both sides how much they can afford in taxes and how much they are able to spend to fund education, especially when approximately 75 percent of any school budget is salaries and benefits? The answer is that they don't.

The public can attend board meetings and voice their opinions, but the obstacle there is that boards of education and teachers' unions do not usually announce when contract negotiations will begin. And something that happens once every three years is something that will not be on the taxpayers' minds to remember.

It would be interesting to be a fly on the wall of a negotiations session that includes the hoard of education committee, teachers' union committee and at least two members of the public. Instead of having both sides represented, now all sides could be represented. The cost of education — the real cost of education - probably would be reduced and not so much of a burden on the taxpayer.

Freeholders approve $5.1M bonds for vo-tech

Staff Writer

The Union County Vocational-Technical School will be receiving about $5.1 million in county funds, thanks to the Board of Chosen Freeholders, which approved two bond issues Feb. 20.

The funds will be used to refurbisha 53,000 square foot building on the Vo-Tech school campus in preparation for a new, separate magnet high school. This new school will have its emphasis on science, mathematics and technology and is expected to open in September.

The bonds will finance the rehabilitation of the magnet school's building, which is 32-years-old and once belonged to Union County College. Superintendent Thomas Bistocchi called the building "unkempt and unused" and its labs "dilapidated."

The bonds will not be used for the school's budget. The magnet school will be included in the Vo-Tech's 1997-98 budget of $7.9 million. Bistocchi said that this reflects an 8.2 percent increase from last year's budget; most of this is the $500,000 in operating costs that will go into the magnet school.

Some of this money will go toward filling seven teaching positions at the school, including positions for English, history, social studies, mathematics, foreign languages, technology and a fitness and excercise position, all hired that day in anticipation of the bonds' passage. There will also be one counseling position and a "curriculum director" instead of a higherpaid principal next year at the magnet school. Bistocchi said that salaries would be "comparable" to public schools' - about $20,000 for a starting teacher.

Eventually, the school should have 24 teachers and about 275 students, but it will start with about 65 students next year. This will increase by another 65 students per year until it reaches it maximum.

The vote for the bonds was unanimous. But this small starting enrollment and the large bonds that made some freeholders question the magnet

"We've got a number of financial projects that are on our table," said Freeholder Walter McNeil, Jr. "We have your project, we have the Far Browns project, we have the project at the juvenile detention center and we will have to make some hard choices.'

Bistocchi was questioned by Freeholder Nicholas Scutari.

"You have to answer to the students at your high school. We have to answer to the students of this county - hundreds who will not be able to

'This is the way things are going. You want a freshman class of 150 to 200 kids? Fine. I'll put them in 50,000 square feet — and I'll tell you what, I'l get them by September.' Thomas Bistocchi,

Vo-Tech School superintendent

go to your school," he said. Since the money was going to the magnet school's facilities and not for the school's programs, "you could really, conceptually, run this school without this money.'

"If we're going to give our students an education for the 21st century, you have to pay for it," he said.

Later during the meeting, Bistocchi added, "Sir, if I built this the way I wanted to, I would be asking for $8

Scutari suggested that the county money going to the magnet school could be spread among the different school districts in Union County so that all of them could receive the same benefits as the magnet school.

He also said that he was concerned about the "hi-tech" nature of the school, and if Bistocchi would be coming back in a few years to upgrade the magnet school's soon-to-be outdated equipment.

But Bistocchi, who has championed the magnet school for several years, appeared to almost lose his patience at several points during the meeting.

Bistocchi, who said that he had 132 applicants to the school as of Feb. 20, said, 'This is the way things are going. You want a freshman class of 150 to 200 kids? Fine. I'll put them in 50,000 square feet — and I'll tell you what, I'l get them by September."

According to the concept paper for the magnet school, the school will collaborate with Union County College to provide an "intensive" program of science, mathematics and technology for preparing students for a four-year college program.

"This is keeping with the premise that New Jersey vocational school and community colleges be the primary providers and center of technological training," it said.

But Scutari said that such a limited curriculum might not give students opportunities to explore other fields.

Bistocchi replied, "One parent has a kid who is not interested in sports. What do we do, throw a set of shoulder pads on him?"

"The last thing this county needs is: a comprehensive high school," Bistocchi said. "What it needs is a science/technology school that will challenge kids."

At least one municipal Board of Education member has questioned the magnet school.

"I think their mission, if I read it right and read the law right, is preparing students for a more immediate entry into the workplace," said Rahway board member Theresa Mikajio, "and this looks like another college preparatory school.

Mikailo has said in the past that the school would result in a drain of the best students from Rahway.

She added that her school system already offers a number of science and technology-intensive programs, including the Carl Sagan science program at Rahway High School, named after the famous alumnus of the school. It would also be a "tax liablility" to Rahway taxpayers, she

"I'm not against the programs," she added. I'm saying that it draws from what Rahway offers in a diverse atmosphere.".

D.C. march creates movement in county

By Sean Daily Staff Writer

Say what you will about the Million Man March in 1995, but it started something in Plainfield.

Among the mass of men who participated in the march on Washington were a number of Plainfield residents, leaders of various youth groups

"It was great for black men to get together, but what we have to do is to go back to the community to be the best person that you can," said Barry Young.

And that they did. They formed the Youth Action Movement in Plainfield, a group that now gives mentoring, tutoring and parent conferences and encourages sports among about 3,000 Plainfield children ages five to 18.

When asked if YAM was needed in Plainfield, Young, the second vice president, said, "yes there was, but what we did in the Youth Action Movement... we re all leaders of youth so we just brought all that expertise under one roof."

In about one year, YAM has started stay-in-school programs, given programs on self-esteem and personal hygiene, been an "integral part," according to Young, of the Youth Summit at Hubstein Field with 3,000 participants and Parent Power in October. YAM has 60 members, residents who "use all the expertise of the community to effectively bring forth positive change for the youth of Plainfield," according to their mission statement Already, said spokesman Marty Cox, the group has been exploring expansions out of Plainfield - into the county, across the state and out of state "We've received some inquiries, just inquiries at this time," Cox said.

According to Freeholder Walter McNeil, YAM has been responsible for raising voter registration in Plainfield by 14 percent — by 22 percent in the poorest areas - and for reducing violence in the city's two jumor high schools with

In terms of numbers, though, probably their most impressive impact has been to increase the popularity of athletics "phenomenally."

O'Toole elected GOP chair

By Anthony Puglisi Staff Writer

Kevin O'Toole, an Assemblyman representing five Union County towns in the 21st Legislative District, was elected Essex County Republican Party chairman Feb. 20.

Among O'Toole's objectives as party chair are to "continue to recruit in the urban communities and build a coalition in the suburban communities." O'Toole represents Union, Kenilworth, Roselle Park, Summit and Springfield, and eight towns in Essex County.

"It is clear we have a responsibility to those who have come before us and to those who will come after to unite and expand our party," he

O'Toole, who had served as a councilman and mayor of Cedar Grove, served as Treffinger's chief of staff in 1995. He resigned after winning a seat in the General Assembly in 1995.

O'Toole was elected to fill the unfinished term of Jeanne Parke, who resigned Feb. 4 to accept a nomination by Essex County Executive James Treffinger to the Essex County College Board of

Marketing effort brings brewer to Summit By Jay Hochberg

The head brewer of McMullen & Sons was weary halfway through his five-day tour promoting his beers and ales. After all, until now the draft beers had been available only within a 30-mile radius of his brewery in England, and exporting to another continent requires a lot of talking. Tony Skipper, who also was Britain's Brewer of the Year in 1995, led a beer seminar at The Office restaurant in Summit on Feb. 20, where his Country Best Bitter draft ale made its American debut. The event was one of six "simul-tappings" of other McMullen brews held at other Office locations, including in Cranford. McMullen & Sons brews have been available in bottles in New Jersey, an end of the business the brewer said too will expand.

"What we find so fascinating is the enormous potential market here," Skipper said, adding that he hadn't expected American bars to serve "dozens" of beers and ales.

"We're into the quality end of the market," he added. "We use the best ingredients — hops from Kent, mult - and we're trying to produce a peerless line of English beers." It's been English pubs that have driven McMullen sales, he also said, explaining that locals like to drink local beer. And while the brewery isn't local to Americans, Skipper said his brewery is flexible enough to quench the thirst of the American

To draw attention to his drafts visually, McMullen said bartenders will pull on a handle unique in shape to draw each glassful. Another aspect that distinguishes McMullen kegs from others is the cask format.

A traditional English method of conditioning the brew, oak kegs are used to allow natural carbonization to occur. At The Office in Summit, McMullen Country Best Bitter was served in the cask format. Because cask ales are considered delicate and not fit for travel, they are uncommon in America.

What is known to American beer drinkers is the India Pale Ale style of brew, created in the 18th century especially for export to India. The ale would be brewed with a high alcohol content to survive the timeconsuming trip. Although travel is faster today, the style has endured and McMullen will market its version in

As for advertising, the company will not target the mass market.

'My County' contest

A poster contest titled "My County," to promote County Government Week, April 13-19, is being sponsored by the County Officers Association of New Jersey.

"The contest is open to all fourthgrade children throughout the state said County Clerk Joanne Rajoppi, who is serving as coordinator for the project in Union County. Sheriff Ralph Froehlich and Surrogate Ann Conti are the Union County Constitutional Officers, with Rajoppi sponsoring the contest.

Details, information and guidelines on the contest have been sent to public, private and parochial schools throughout Union County. The guidelines instruct students to create a poster that depicts all that's special and unique about Union County and how this relates to county government.

The deadline to submit posters is March 27. A winner will be selected by the judges and first, second and third runners-up, as well as a selection of three honorable mentions, will be awarded. The winners will receive certificates and be invited to meet the county clerk, sheriff and surrogate at the courthouse in Elizabeth.

Teachers, school administrators or parents who would like further information on the contest can call (908) 527-4998. Posters submitted by the students will be exhibited in the county courthouse during County Government Week,

PTA dinner held

The New Jersey PTA held a statewide dinner on Feb. 17, in celebration of the National PTA's 100th anniversary. The dinner was held in the Sheraton Hotel at Woodbridge with approximately 500 people in attendance, including Arlene Lampert, NJ ASBO president; Dennis Testa, NJ Education Association president and seven past New Jersey State PTA presidents.

Maryann Chimenti-Kolbeck read a proclamation received from Gov. Christine Whitman declaring Feb. 17, PTA Day in New Jersey in recognition of the achievements PTA has made over the years.

During the evening, the Union High School Junior ROTC presented the colors and the children from Wiltiam F. Hattoran School No. 22 in Elizabeth and the Kearny High School Marching Band performed.

Comcast Cable also provided the attendees with a satellite transmission from the national celebration event going on at the same time in Washington, D.C. Darlene Healin and Candy Fredericks from Ocean County Council PTA provided the centerpieces for the tables.

Chairwomen for the evening were Joan Simon, Union County PTA president; Judy Hyde, Hudson County PTA president and Carolyn Mulligan, Ocean County PTA president.

Mini-camp sign-ups

The Boys and Girls Clubs of Union County is taking registration for its spring Mini Camp, which will be held March 24 and March 31 through April 4, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Children will participate in a full day of activities including arts and crafts, group games, physical education activities, swimming and more. Registration wil take place at the Boys and Girls Club, 1050 Jeanette Ave. in Camp fees for a one day sesson is $15, and for the week of March 31 through April 4, fees will be $75 for the first child, and $65 for the second child, and $55 for every child thereafter.

A few of the kittens have a medical condition, but are in good health otherwise.

Cut insurance costs

New Jersey drivers can now save 5 percent on their personal automobile insurance premiums by taking a sixhour driving class from an approved motor vehicle defensive driving school.

The new program applies to drivers who take the course and have less than four violation points issued by the Division of Motor Vehicles. Drivers with suspended licenses will be ineligible for the discount. In addition, the discount will apply not only to future drivers but to anyone who has taken a defensive driving course during the three years prior to July 3, 1996. The discount applies for up to three years. After that, the driver would have to retake the defensive driving course to receive the discount.

Hebrew center will show off their 'Schmaltz'

By Bea Smith Staff Writer

Sybil Wyner's love of the humanities has been her key to success in writing parodies of Broadway musicals for a congregation, in teaching social studies in the Elizabeth High School and in teaching religious classes in the synagogue. On the evening of March 15, the Elmora Hebrew Center will offer its dinner and theater program for Purim, which Wyner, who does catering on the side, will prepare with the help of synagogue volunteers.

A full turkey dinner will be offered at 8 p.m. followed by "Schmaltz," a Jewish musical version of "Grease."

"Every year I write a play for the synagogue." Wyner said the other afternoon. I've been writing comedies for children in the past 30 years," she explained in a slight, southern drawl. "Within the last seven or eight years, I've broadened into the adult plays as well."

"Schmaltz," which took the delightful, exhilerated Wyner "two hours to write," is a parody of "Grease." "It has a Jewish flavor to it," she mused. "Well, it's not exactly like 'Grease,' but it does have a Smaltzville High School, with drama, music, song and dance of the 1950s. Our rabbi, Samuel Rosenberg, said 'any resemblance to the original "Grease" is purely coincidental.' He plays a disc jockey named Schlepper

"It took about two hours to write it. I sit down to knock them out like nothing," she chuckled. "Well, it's fun. When you do something you like it's not hard work. I chose the songs from 'Grease,' and I wrote the parodies for them. The show will run about an hour-and-a-half, and only members of the congregation can be in the play."

Wyner said that not long ago, she and the congregation established a theatrical group called the Elmora Players. "It has all adults and one child, a 12-year-old girl. Ophira Kopitnikoff, who plays a little sister who is a pest in 'Schmaltz.' The general idea of the play is about what the teachers put up with in school. I also have a scene in the psychiatrist's office which is a parody of different kinds of people who come to see a psychiatrist."

Among her other "parodies." Wyner said, "I once wrote a Chassidic Hee Haw, where everyone was all dressed up as very religious Jews. Last year, I wrote 'Grand Ole Opry,' Purim style, and I dressed all the men like women. and all the women like men."

Wyner was born in Athens, Tenn. - that's where that southern drawl came from. "I was raised there until I was 18, and then I came north for better opportunities in life. I got a bachelor of arts degree from Rutgers University, a master's degree from Seton Hall University." She also received degrees in continuing education from Temple University, a teaching degree in education from Bowie State College in Maryland, and a certification for teaching from Layola University

"I went to night school for 12 years to get my teaching education. I worked two jobs during the day, in an office in New York and as an administrator for the American office of the United Aged Home of Jerusalem. I worked there for about 18 years. Then about 13 or 14 years ago, I got my teaching job in social studies at Elizabeth High School. This year, I'm specializing in United States history."

Every one of her shows are successfully attended. "We get about 150 to 175 people," Wyner said. "We would get more, but the building won't hold that many anyhow. And there are fire laws. I also cook the dinners. I'm a caterer on the side, and I have a lot of wonderful volunteers good people — from the congregation to help me. I've done this for about seven or eight years. And I write children's plays, too. I teach the Hebrew School at Elmora Hebrew Center, and the children put on plays for the holidays. I have some lovely people working with me, and that's what makes it possible."

The versatile Wyner has also prepared material for a "Women's History Month." "I run a club at the high school called the Junior Executive Women's Club of New Jersey. They are composed of high school girls whom we try to guide in their future."

The playwright and her Elmora Players have had two rehearsals a week since the second week in

By the time March 15 comes around, "Shmaltz" will be "more than ready. It'll be well prepared and willreally go well with our luscious turkey dinner. Of that, I'm sure," Wyner said with her usual exuberance. "No question about it."

Children's theater company handles serious subject with kid gloves

Helping children to understand heavy concepts such as strife, death and war is always a challenge for parents. American Family Theater has accepted this challenge with gusto with their recent production of "Anne Frank: A Voice Heard," which was presented at Union County Arts Center on Feb. 23.

"The Diary of Anne Frank," long a staple in junior high school classrooms, tells the story of a 13-year-old Jewish girl who, with her family, fled to Holland to escape Nazi tyranny during World War II. The Frank family was hidden away in an attic apartment by Meip Geis, a friend of the family. Hardly daring to speak or move for fear of discovery and imminent death, the irrepressible teen recorded daily the ordeal of their livmg nightmare from the everoptimistic perspective of vouth.

AFT has made an unorthodox choice in including this serious tale in their theater presentations for children. They have succeeded in commumeating not only the grim reality of the Holocaust, but also the aweinspiring zest for life which was the unlikely byproduct of a threat to mortality

The play gently eased its youthful audience into comprehension of the

Frank family's difficult circumstances by keeping the musical numbers and the dialogue in the first five scenes simple and upbeat. In the opening number, the cast sang about the earth as "a very small planet spinning in space" and how it is "A Remarkable Place," introducing a theme of wontheme was continued in "Our Little Attic," where the audience was introduced to Anne and her family and their differing opinions on their new quarters — while Mr. and Mrs. Frank saw a cramped space with few amenities, adolescent Anne saw an adventure waiting to happen, and an old wooden table on which to write about it. In "Not A Whisper," Mr. Frank established the rules for maintaining their concealment, and in "Bright and Spunky." Anne was chastised for her teen-age lethargy by Mrs. Van Damm, who, with her husband and son Peter, had taken refuge in the attic

The audience was privy to the possibility of the family's extinction in Scene 6. The long-confined group finally let down their guard and dared to frolic in their cramped quarters. only to be interrupted by the threat of a raid. This scene represented a turning point for the production, as the audience experienced along with the cast the fear of discovery and then the joy of escaping detection. Here the play left the saccharin behind for a more realistic joie de vivre, as traditional celebretory Jewish music replaced previous lilting strains in "We're Alive."

Hereafter, the grave repercussions of Nazi oppression are addressed in an open style "Dear Friends" found Anne and sister Margo discussing what they wish they could do for friends who were not lucky enough to escape capture. "In Spite of it All" reflected the group's amazement at Anne's positive attitude in the face of adversity. Each scene was prefaced by a few words from the voice of Anne writing in her journal, allowing the audience to "turn the page" along with her as she candidly wrote about her experiences and feelings.

"Anne Frank: A Voice Heard" was sung and performed by an outstanding cast. Adam Hunt and Jessica E. Sherman were wonderful as Mr. Frank, and Mrs. Frank and Margo, respectively, as was Jimmy Blackman as Mr. Duesel and Mr. Van Damm, Clayton Reeze as Peter Van Damm. and Andrea Markowicz as Meip Geis/ Narrator and Mrs. Van Damm. Special note goes to Jennifer Lee Gamatese, who portrayed a properly spunky and defiant Anne.

AFT has presented professional children's musical theater at Union County Arts Center for the past two years. Established in 1971, AFT is the oldest and largest producer of musical theater for families and young audiences in the country. With a total touring attendance of 3 million. AFT travels to venues around the nation. Upcoming AFT presentations at UCAC include "The Wizard of Oz" on March 23, "Pinocchio" on April 27 and "Wiley & The Hairy Man" on

. In "Anne Frank: A Voice Heard," a frustrated Anne asks her father why they are forced to live in hiding, and is told that sometimes others unfairly assign blame for problems. For young minds, this presents a succinct conclusion to an emotionally charged and complex situation. It was hard for this reviewer to decide whether to feel up or down upon leaving the theater, both being appropriate reactions to ential story of Anno Frank.

Art Carlson specializes in blackand-white photography. His work can be generally grouped into three categories-landscapes, architectural studies and close-up views of both architectural and landscape subjects. He is largely self-taught and does his own developing, printing, mounting, matting and framing.

His exhibit at the Children's Specialized Hospital in Mountainside during the month of March features images from a trip to England, Scotland and Wales this past summer. Also shown in the exhibit are photographs from his extensive travels in the United States and Canada, including a driving trip to Alaska and back.

He has exhibited his work in several one-man shows, most recently ut the Les Malamut Gallery in Union, and has also participated and won awards in many art shows in Northern New Jersey. He is a past president of the Plainfield Camera Club and since retiring has operated an architectural photo studio from his home in Hillsborough.

There will be an opening reception in the east wing of the hospital on Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m. Light refreshments will be served and the public is welcome to attend. The children's Specialized Hospital is located at 150 New Providence Road in Mountainside, just south of Route 22. Follow the signs to the Ambulance Entry.

Sarah Crooks, a Brooklyn resident. uses various materials such as wood. hair, wire, fabric, soil, etc. to add to the complexity of the images she is presenting. They become both the ground upon which she works as well as the anecdotes which complete or amplify the narrative.

Mike Murphy tends to focus on clay and engobe as the ground upon which he works, but incorporating photographs and archetypal images which become the narrative, or personal elements the works are based on. He again adds materials such as paint or gold leaf to bring out the viewers' awareness of surface and the connection to the process or handmade.

Robert Sorenson's work comes out or the materials themselves. Rather than basing it aroung the use of an image per se, he uses the materials to create objects which are suggestive of, and in their creation related to. organic forms. These speak of human issues such as sexuality, fear, the unknown and the familiar. He works with plaster, clay, cast aluminum and wax, etc. to bring his works to a life of their own, modeled in a way on the natural processes of creation

Shelton is on par with recent release 'Tin Cup'

For those of you who liked "Bull Durham," "White Men Can't Jump" and "Cobb," Ron Shelton has a new video release for you. This time the former minor-league baseball player-turned-writer/ director takes on golf. In 'Tin Cup," a script that was commended by Roger Ebert, Shelton brings us some laughs and some colorful characters.

Once a legend on his college golf team, Toy McAvoy, played by Kevin Costner, took one too many long shots and landed in a Winnebago overlookinkg the less than lovely driving range where he now works. Roy's life is as barren and empty as the West Texas desert until his new student Molly Griswold, played by Reno Russo. arrives for her first lesson. Roy is smitten, only to find that Molly is. taking lessons to impress her golfpro boyfriend and Roy's longtime nemesis David Simms, played by Don Johnson, who is on the PGA

Roy tells Renee she is dating the "Anti-Christ" and tries to convince her she doesn't know the real David Simms, the one who "hates dogs, old people and children," but soon realizes it's going to take much more than talk to steal her away from David. So. Roy does what any other driving range pro from West Texas would do. With the help of his friend Romeo, played by Cheech Marin, he gets his golf clubs out of hock and makes it his mission to qualify for the US OPEN - ok, maybe this is a little farfetched, but it's a just a movie! We see just what a great golfer Roy is when he challenges and beats a confident golfer without using golf clubs. He plays with a baseball bat and some gardening tools. For this win he picks up some extra cash to help him in his quest.

Molly, who is a therapist, agrees to help Roy with the menial part of video in March.

his game, and wouldn't you know it, he qualifies for the open and ends up competing directly against David Simms for the title. When it comes down to the wire Roy has to choose between taking the safe shot and winning the tournament or going for it and breaking the course record. This final scene is not really about golf or winning the girl, but is about being true to your own

Don Johnson's does a great job of playing the white-bread, country club boy turned pro-golfer oppposite Kevin Costner. Johnson's clean-shaven, tanned, good looks contrast just right with Costner's disheveled has-been persona. Shelton evokes a lot of empathy for Costner with this conflict — of course, not to the point of making Costner look pathetic. After all, this is Kevin Costner we're talking

"Tin Cup" may be a little too unreal for the avid golfer, and a little too silly if you're in the mood for a true film. But if you're just looking for some lighthearted entertainment, you might want to check it out. And see if you can pick out the cameos from golfers Craig Stadler and Gary McCord.

Carnival Productions, Rahway's award-winning theater company, is currently in rehearsal for its next presentation, "Agatha Christie's 'Murder at the Vicarage," which opens tomorrow at the company's theatre atthe El Bodegon Restaurant & Dinner Theatre.

"We're very excited to be mounting this piece," said Carnival's Artistic Director Bill Van Sant. "Traditionally, murder mysteries are among the more popular genres in theater, and nobody can touch Agatha Christie in that area." The company was inspired to stage a Christie mystery after last season's audience survey indicated interest in whodunits.

"Once we decided on a Christie, we sought to find a title that is not often associated with the stage," adds company General Manager Wendy Cinquanta, who also happens to be Mrs. Van Sant. "Most people know the solutions of the more popular titles such as "Ten Little Indians," and we wanted to give our audiences a real puzzle to mull over."

Mystery fans will recognize "Murder at the Vicarage" as the case which introduced legendary sleuth Miss Marple. Among the actresses who have taken on the role of the sleuthing senior citizen are Angela Lansbury in the 1980 film "The Mirror Crack'd,"

British stage and film star Joan Hickson, currently seen on the A & E Channel, and Dame Margaret Rutherford, who played the detective in a series of successful films of the 1950s

Appearing as Miss Marple in the Carnival presentation will be Ronnie Bromm of Rahway, making her debut after many years on NYC and Westchester County stages. Other Rahway residents contributing to the production are Randolph Chapio as the impetuous teen, Dennis; Michael Ream as the erstwhile Constable Jennings; and Mark Szabo as the charming but ruthless artist; Lawrence Redding; and Cinquanta and Van Sant, company co-founders who serve as producer and director, respectively. Rounding out the Who's Who of the whodunit are Daynon Blevins of Somerset; David Christopher of Cranford: Syndi Cirillo of Highland Park, Judy England of Lindon; Susann Katitan of Edison: Jean Kuras of Glen Ridge; Andrew J. Scopellit of Spotswood.; Arthur P. Trainor of Somerville; and Juilie Zatkow of Roselle Robin I. Edinger of Linden, also a co-founder of the company is stage manager.

"Murder at the Vicarage" takes audience members to the quiet village of St. Mary Mead, Miss Marple's home in the English countryside. When the nefarious Col. Protheros is found shot in the Vicar's study, everyone, including the intrepid Miss Marple, falls under suspicion. The cast of characters - and suspects is populated with imperious matriarchs, inept maids, dogged detectives, and many others, including the Vicar himself. Like all Christie's mysteries, each secret revealed leads the way to still another puzzle yet to be solved. Agatha Christie, whose books are outsold only by Shakespeare and the Holy Bible, is the most widely read authoress in the history of literature. In addition to dozens of novels and short stories, her theatrical works include "Ten Little Indians," which has been translated to the screen four times; "Witness for the Prosecution." and "The Mousetrap," the world's longest-running play, currently in its 45th year on London's West End, the British equivalent of Broadway. While Christie, who was made Dame of the British Empire by Queen Elizabeth II, wrote many plays herself, the stage version of "Murder at the Vicarage" was adapted by dramatists Moie Charles and Barbara Toy.

PHOTOGRAPHIC ARTISTS Nancy Bernhaut, Helen Luecke and Anne King will be exhibiting their work at the Donald Palmer Museum of the Springfield Public Library through March 6.

Nancy Bernhaut, a photographic artist who resides in Livingston, specializes in nature, landscape and still life color photography. With her Nikkormat camera she catches the interplay of color and light which is critical to the overall effect of each print. Photographic artist Helen Luecke from Westfield has always been inspired by natural subjects. From her earliest work of oil paintings of flowers to her current photographs of the natural world, she finds nature to be a compelling subject. Anne King of Springfield has loved her hobby of photography for over twenty years. She feels photographs offer a challenge for others to view life's humor, beauty and everyday living looking through someone else's eyes. Some of her accomplishments include acceptance into the 1986 New Jersey and You photography contest for the state's official calendar.

The Donald Palmer Museum is located in the Springfield Public Library, 66 Mountain Ave. Hours for the exhibit are Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m.; Tuesday, Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and Sunday from 1 to 3:30 p.m. For further information, call (201) 376-4930.

DU CRET SCHOOL OF THE ARTS is sponsoring its 18th Annual New Jersey High School Student Art Show. The show will be held in the du Cret Gallery at 1030 Central Ave., Plainfield.

All high school juniors and seniors from New Jersey are eligible to submit one piece of original work from their chosen medium, excluding sculpture, pottery and handcrafts.

The show will be open to the public, from Monday through March 7 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The opening reception is scheduled for tomorrow from 7:30 to 9

For further information, call (908). 757-7171.

MATERIAL METAPHORS, an exhibition of the works of Sarah Crooks, Mike Murphy and Robert Screnson, will be on display at the Watchung Arts Center Monday through March 29. A free reception is scheduled for March 9 from 1 to 4 p.m. Visitors may meet the artists, and refreshments will be served.

"Material Metaphors" brings to issue the use of varied materials as substrate, as medium and as metaphor.

Gallery hours are from 1 to 4 p.m. every day except Sunday. Admission is free at all times. Watchung Arts Center is located on the Watchung Circle. For further information, call (908) 753-0190.

SPACES, PLACES, an exhibit of photography by Judith J. Friedman will be on display in the Kent Place Gallery. Monday - March 14.

Friedman says that her house, yard and neighborhood provide material for images. Moving from these intimate spaces to the larger landscape, she creates collages of images on the negative. The final black-and-white photographs recreate the way people visually explore landscape.

The Kent Place Gallery is located on the campus of Kent Place School, 42 Norwood Ave., Summit. The gallery is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. or by appointment with the gallery director.

TEEN ARTS TOURING EXHIBIT will be moved to Corestates Bank, 68 Broad St., Elizabeth on Monday, where it will remain until March 21.

The exhibit consists of 26 pieces of art selected from the 513 visual art works shown at the 1996 Union County Teen Arts Festival held in March at Union County College. The annual event is sponsored by the Union County Office of Cultural and Heritage Affairs, Division of Parks and Recreation.

For information about the Union County Teen Arts Program, contact the Union County Office of Cultural and Heritage Affairs, 24-52 Rahway Ave., Efizabeth, (908) 558-2550. TDD users call (800) 852-7899.

NEW JERSEY FILM FESTIVAL has scheduled the following shows for the Tomorrow — "Predictions of Fire." 1996, directed by Michael Benson. Profiling the controversial rock group Laibach, the most successful East European pop culture export of the 80s and 90s, this critically acclaimed and complex film looks at the dark history of the ex-Yugoslavia and the relationship between art and politics in the late-20th century. In English, Russian and Serbian, subtitled.

Saturday - "Predictions of Fire." Sunday - "Breaking the Waves," 1997. Set on the breathtaking north coast of Scotland, Lars Von Trier's new film is the story of a passionate young woman who marries a man shortly before a cataclysmic occurrence alters both of their lives. Awarded the Jury Prize at Cannes, this harshly beautiful elegy to sexual fulfillment and spiritual transcendence features a terrific performance by Emily Watson as Bess, whose very existence seems to stir up the passions long denied by her strict Calvanist community. From the director of "Zentropa" and "The Kingdom."

Film programs begin at 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday's programs will be shown in Scott Hall #123, near the corner of College Avenue and Hamilton Street, College Avenue Campus, Rutgers University, New Brunswick. Tickets are $5, $4 for Rutgers Film Co-op/ NJMAC Friends, and can be purchased at the door beginning at 6:30 p.m. Sunday's films will be shown at The State Theatre, near the comer of George Street and Livingston Avenue, 15 Livingston Ave., New Brunswick. If your home has a conventional thermostat, replacing it with a programmable model is one of the most practical and comfortable home improvements you can make. A good programmable thermostat can cut your monthly heating bill by up to 30 percent, prolong the life of your furnace and central air conditioner and prevent uncomfortable temperature swings.

You should consider upgrading to a programmable thermostat if you answer "No" to any of these three Does your current thermostat maintain a steady, comfortable temperature?

Indoor temperature changes as small as 2 degrees make people uncomfortable, yet many thermostats allow temperature swings of up to 6 degrees. A good thermostat hold the temperature within 2 degrees of the mation Administration, nearly 50 percent of U.S. homeowners try to remember to manually turn down their thermostats when their homes are unoccupied or before they go to sleep. It's inconvenient to make several trips a day to reset a manual thermostat. Plus, turning a manual thermostat down means you'll awake or come home to a cold house and have to wait for it to warm up. A programmable thermostat does all the work for you, automatically, with setit-and forget-it convenience.

• Are you trying to do manually what a programmable thermostat does automatically?

 Are you saving money by heat or cooling your home at the right times?

In most homes, on most days, there are lengthy periods when no one is home or when everybody is asleep. With a programmable thermostat, you get maximum comfort when you're there to enjoy it and maximum savings when you aren't.

Many home centers carry a wide selection of thermostats. A do-ityourselfer can install a programmable thermostat in about 10 minutes. The Concert rounds out a series and opens the holiday season

Roselle United Methodist Church is presenting the last in their recent series of concerts. The Bantry Boys will be presented on Sunday at 3 p.m. at the church. Tickets are $8 for adults, $5 for senior citizens and all children under 7-years-old are admitted free

The Bantry Boys are a New Jerseybased Irish folk band that has been performing in the Metropolitian New York and New Jersey area for over 12 years. They have performed primarily in local Irish pubs in the area. They have shared the bill with such popular Irish music performers as Paddy Reilly and The Wolfe Tones. They have also appeared throughout Ireland.

The current alignment has been together for 11 years. The Bantry Boys are a trio made up of Jim Dwyer. Bill Dwyer and Bruce Nelson. They feature Irish folk music that ranges from traditional ballads and historical songs to current popular Irish music recorded by groups such as The Farey Brothers and The Clancy Brothers.

The Bantry Boys music features the vocal harmonies of Jim and Bill Dwyer. Jim plays the guitar and Bill also plays the bass and tamborine. Bruce plays the bass and the guitar and normally serves as the introducer of their songs.

The group has performed in a variety of venues and is equally comfortable with poignant ballads as they are with rousing hand clapping traditional tunes. The roots of Irish music go deep in the group. Jim has been performing Irish music for over 20 years. His tenster Bill shares the same tradition and was one of the founding members of The Bantry Boys. Bruce has been with the group since 1982 and adds much of the musical background that their extensive following has come to enjoy.

Emphasis on training is part of education "The quality of the sales staff representing a home builder on site can make the difference between selling new houses and not selling them," said David Schoner. Coldwell Banker vice president responsible for the New Homes Division. "To ensure that the people representing our builders on site are the very best in the business, we place a great deal of emphasis on training and continu-

As part of their intensive education program for new homes specialists, Coldwell Banker's New Homes Division has retained industry consultant Les Newlands to provide an ongoing series of advanced training seminars. Newlands' program. "Taking It To The Next Level." helps real estate sales associates working on site to develop new skills in working with buyers.

"Selling a new house is not a matter of saying, 'here's the house, it has four bedrooms and two baths. "Schoner said, "Today's home buyers want to know how the builder's product and their lifestyle can fit together before they make any decisions. They will not buy a house until they are comfortable with the reputation of the builder and have all the information they need about the process of buying new construction.

When a customer comes to see a new homes tract, the real estate agent on site only has a short time to determine what the customer wants in a house, and if that project can meet their needs. That kind of assessment requires specific communications skills as well as a thorough understanding of the builder's product and capabilities. Schoner explained: The agent must also help the builder understand what the buyer wants, if the transaction is to go smoothly. The key to successful new home transactions is communications — whether it is between the buyer and the real estate agent and between the buyer and the builder. Newlands' program helps agents develop the

Coldwell adds four more brokerages

Since the first of the year, Coldwell Banker's New York region has already acquired four more independent brokerages, according to Bruce Zipf, president and chief operating officer.

The acquisitions include Century 21 Arbor House Realty of Morristown, Fran Sammel Realty of East Brunswick, Jackson Realty of Jackson, and Kessler Associates of Redgefield, Conn. Each of the firms was rolled into an existing Coldwell Banker office. "We're pleased to be off to such a great in 1997," said Zipf, "and we have several more acquisitions in the works." These recent transactions bring the total number of in the works." These recent transactions bring the total number of acquisitions or "roll-ins" by Coldwell Banker's New York region to 14 in the past 12

As part of the Coldwell Banker organization, acquired brokerages and agents gain access to products, services and support systems not generally available to an independent brokerage. "The key to success in the industry right now," said Zipf, "is to provide value to the consumer. Clients expect more for their dollar than the traditional real estate transaction provides. The independents have come to recognize that they can't offer the services that Coldwell-Banker, as a national firm, can support."

Zipf said Coldwell Banker is selective in pursuing acquisitions to ensure a win-win situation for everyone involved, especially the consumer. "Not all brokerages will be good matches for the Coldwell Banker philosophy," said Zipf. "We want the change to benefit everyone involved."

to make waves in the States

Mercedes-Benz displayed its eagerly awaited SLK sports at the North American International Automobile Show, January 11-20, at Cobo Center. The fully-equipped new roadster begins arriving in the United States this month at a suggested retail price of $39,700.

The innovative SLK will set new standards in the two-passenger sports car market segment, and it will take its place among legendary sports cars that bore the three-pointed star. A high-performance engine, responsive transmission and sophisticated independent suspension assure sporty driving in the SLK, including 0-60 mph acceleration in what has already been reported at 6.6 seconds and a top speed of 140 mph. Already named as one of "Car & Driver" Magazine's "Ten Best," the new SLK supplements the well-known Mercedes-Benz SL models and returns the German automaker to the enviable position of offering sporty entries in two distinct sports car segments - last seen in the early 1960s with the 300 SL and 190SL.

The SLK has been designed as a sport car for all seasons and reasons. and this is made clear by the car's most unique feature - a fully automatic retracting hardtop. The current Mercedes SL models introduced the industry's first fully automatic operation for the convertible top, and the SLK takes this technology a step further. Pushing one button triggers a sequence of events that transforms the SLK from a closed coupe to a fully open roadster in 25 seconds. The folding roof retracts completely into a rear compartment, leaving a sleek, smooth appearance.

The retractable hardtop creates two cars in one, and also offers the refinement and structural integrity of a coupe. The hardtop provides increased securitty against theft, and the glass rear window with integrated defroster will not discolor."

ASR traction control, standard for the U.S.-market SLK, is another allseason asset. The system can control rear wheelspin with both the brakes and throttle. As one every U.SD.-market Mercedes-Benz, fourwheel disc anti-lock brakes are standard on the SLK.

The SLK features the first-ever use of the BabySmart system - a new technology which turns off the passenger airbag whenever a special ild seat is belted in. The BabySmart into the child seat, similar to the secunity tags sometimes attached to merchandise in retail clothing stores.

A low-power radio signal from the passenger seat prompts a return signal from the resonator in a BabySmartequipped infant or child seat, allowing the system to sense the presence of the seat and automatically turn off the passenger's front airbag.

Since the car's signal is essentially "reflected" back by the resonator in the child seat, the seat itself needs no battery or power hookup. The BabySmart system is a special benefit in a two-seater like the SLK, since rearfacing child seats are too close to the airbag and can't be placed in a rear seat. The seat itself is available as an accesssory from Mercedes-Banz dealers.

Since the Mercedes-Benz SLK is so comprehensively equipped as standard, there are only three factory options: heated seats for $595, metallic paint for $600 and a choice of telephone/CD changer combinations an integrated mobile phone/CD changer for $1,495 or an integrated portable phone/CD changer for $1,895. (A complete list of standard features is attached.)

Selective use of light-weight materials such as magnesuim and aluminum contribute to a lean weight-topower ratio of about 16 pounds-perhorsepower. With a curb weight of 3,036 pounds and 157 inch-length, the SLK is relatively light and short, emphasizing its sporty nature and contributing to its nimbleness.

All U.S. versions of the Mercedes-Benz SLK are equipped exclusively with a 185-horsepower supercharged. intercooled engine. Badged SLK230, the U.S. model shares the European "Kompressor" badge on the front fenders to indicate the presence of a supercharger, or compressor.

The SLK's crankshaft-driven supercharger is an adaptation of the Roots "blower," which was invented by Americans Francis and Philander Roots 130 years ago. Twin threelobed rotors turn at up to 12,000 rpm within the oval compressor housing, compressing incoming air. An intercooler then cools the pressurized air, which creates a denser intake charge to boost power further.

To conserve fuel and enhance component durability, the belt-driven supercharger disengages at idle via magnetic clutch. However, there is a smooth transition, with noe of the "lag" or sudden power surges that mar performance in some turbocharged cars (which use exhaust gas to drive the compressor). On the contrary, with its 200 lbs.-ft. of torque available from 2,500-4,800 rpm, the SLK230 rewards the driver with the smooth, flexible response one would expect of a larger displacement engine

Teamed to the SLK's supercharged engine is a five-speed automatic transmission that uses electronic controls and a microprocessor to adapt to road conditions and even an individual's driving style. For example, on inclines, the transmission will sense the road grade and delay an upshift to preserve climbing power. Then, on a descent, the transmission will downshift to take advantage of engine braking, just as a driver would do if shifting manually. In normal driving, the transmission shifts quickly and smoothly for optimal fuel efficiency. However, when the transmission computer senses spirited driving, it responds with crisper shifts at higher engine speeds.

The contemporary styling of the SLK includes cues from a rich heritage of Mercedes-Benz racing and sports cars, such as the supercharged SSK of the 1920s and the 300SL of the 1950s and 1960s. Notable design elements linking the SLK with its proud past include the long bood/ short deck proportions and the "power domes" on the hood, a tribute to the original 300SL.

The SLK design is one that looks toward the future, however, not the past. The taut wedge profile, short overhangs and wheels that fill the fender wells convey action and performance, even standing still.

Saab 9000 CSE is the top pick by the American Automobile Association (AAA) in its 1996 new car buying guide, Autograph. The 37-million member association selected the distinctive Saab 9000 CSE best in the $35,000 to $40,000 price range. Vehicles evaluated in AAA's Autograph represent almost every new model car, truck, minivan and sport utility vehicles available in the newcar marketplace.

This is the Saab 9000's third Top Pick award from AAA. Previous winners are the 1993 Saab 9000 CS 5-door hatchback and the 1995 Saab 9000 CDE touring sedan.

The 1996 Saab CSE scored extremely well in the overall ratings, earning accolades for such traditional Saab attributes as ride, handling, beaking performance and interior room. The 9000 CSE scored a "perfect" 10 in both the interior and exterior workmanship categories, as well as posting top scores for cargo space and ease of entry. Saab's 9000 series is rated as a "Large Car by the EPA, based on its generous cabin and cavernous cargo capacity. The standard engine is a turbocharged 200-hp 2.3L four-cylinder; a 210-hp 3.0L V-6 is available as an option.

David Van Sickle, editor in chief of the Autograph book, said the list of top-scoring cars "shows that the best have gotten better. They offer new features, continued quality and outstanding value to the consumer."

Potent Viper's a lethal machine

Since its debut as a concept car in carly 1989, the Dodge Viper RTY10 has devined the quintessential American sports car - big blocked, attention grabbing, fast, loud, untamed, and definitely a modern standard-bearer for pure American heritage and tradition. While Viper has remained virtually unchanged through 1995, the 1996 Dodge Viper RT/10 will mark the opening of another chapter in an emerging Viper history and tradition with changes in appearance and performance.

"Beginning with the 1996 model, a number of product changes are planned with each successive version contributing to the evolution and tradition of the marque," said Martin R. Levine, Dodge division general manager.

"We believe the original Viper RT/10 roadster, produced from 1992 through 1995, has secured a place in history as a vehicle that defined a new Chrysler way of business by taking on fresh challenges, and once again, defining the genre of what a pure American sports car should be," Levine continued. "The 1996 Viper RT/10 will open a new chapter in the legendary Viper story."

The first and most noticeable changes in the 1996 Viper are three new exterior design themes. Customers will have a choice of red exterior paint with yellow five-spoke wheels and yellow Viper logo decals; black exterior paint with a silver center stripe and polished aluminum fivespoke wheels; or stone white exterior paint with a blue pearl center stripe and white five-spoke wheels. All previous color choices will be retired at the end of the 1995 model year run. Interior changes to complement the new exterior color themes include red leather-wrapped steering wheel, transmission shifter knob and hand brake with the red and yellow exterior theme; and blue leather-wrapped steering wheel, transmission shifter knob and hand brake with the white exterior paint and blue pearl stripe. a new all-black interior will be provided with the black exterior paint and silver stripe.

Sliding access side window curtains, replacing the soft zipper curtains, and available removable colorkeyed hardtops are also new for 1997.

The legendary Viper side exhaust has been changed to a rear outlet exhaust system. It has less restriction for improved performance and a throatier sound due to a redesigned muffler system. Exhaust pipe routing follows the sills as inthe former system, but turns inboard forward of the rear wheels. The pipes pass over the rear suspension and enter a tandem muffler with dual outlets on the centerline of the car. The muffler outlets have a polished ceramic coating for a long-lasting quality appearance.An aluminum shield protects the trunk floor and fuel tank against heat from the exhaust system.

Viper's 8.0-liter OHV V-10 engine horsepoer and torque ratings are increased due primarily to the redesigned exhaust system. Horsepower increases to 415 bhp (306 kW) at 5200 rpm, with torque at 488 footpounds (661 N-m) at 3600 rpm. Internally, the engine also has a new windage tray to reduce drag due to excess oil rotating with the crankshaft.

The Viper driveline includes a more robust differential and stronger drive shafts capable of accepting up to 500 foot-pound (678 N-m) of torque. There is also a revised differential mounting system to reduce housing movement under heavy acceleration and deceleration.

Aluminum suspension components improve Viper's handling and provide increased ride compliance.High-ductility A206 cast aluminum control arms and knuckles replace welded steel control arms and malicable cast from knuckles. The change of material reduces the weight of the vehicle by 60 pounds (27kg). At the same time, the rear roll center has been lowered and geometry revised to reduce track change during ride motions, this makes the car more stable during hard cornering onrough roads. At the same time, the rear caster angle was increased from -6 degrees to +1 degree, improving straight line tracking. Front suspensin geometry is unchanged but the lower ball joint has been relocated from the knuckle to the lower control arm, reducing the bending movement in the arm under braking. This allows it to be lighter than with the previous configuration.

Front and rear shock absorber effective travel is increased for better controlby moving the pickup points farther outboard onthe lower control arms that the previous system. Higher rate springs, 18 percent rear and 12 percent front, and new shock absorber valving improve impact feel and increase high speed control. Shock absorber valving has also been recalibrated for better control at low temperatures.

The Dodge Viper RT/10 will be the first domestically-roduced car to use Michelin Pilot MXX3 tires. The carcass, tread and compound of these tires are tuned to the new suspension package to provide more stability. The most notable construction change is a significant increase in sidewall stiffness. Reduced road noise and improved low temperature and wet traction objecties have been achieved along with substantial increases in cornering and braking traction. Wet comering traction increased six percent in a standardized wet traction test. Peak lateral acceleration on the skidpad increased by over 5 percent. Stopping distance from 60 miles-perhour (96 km/hr) is reduced by over 13 percent.
