Aiding our downtowns

By Mark Hrywna

Regional Editor

Editor's note: The following is part two of two excerpts from Freeholder Chairman Nicholas Scutari's speech at the freeholders' Jan. 10 reorganization meeting.

Last year, with fiscal assistance from Union County, Elizabeth saw the development of the Jersey Gardens Mall and in Linden, the airport project is moving ahead swiftly. "The economic impact of these projects on our county is immeasurable."

Today, following the success in Elizabeth and Linden, I am proposing an initiative to assist our other communities in their economic development efforts. "Project Downtown Union County" will provide direct county dollars to those projects that focus on upgrading downtown areas.

I am asking that this freeholder board commit up to $5-million in capital funds, which will be awarded to municipalities on a competitive, rotating basis. To the communities that have projects that are ready to go, in fact we will be hearing from you shortly.

To the communities with projects still in the planning stage, don't be disheartened. We will provide you with enough time to submit your proposals for consideration. And we look forward to working together to help regenerate our downtown areas.

Lastly, I want to talk about our children. Progress has been defined as "serving the real needs of real people." It helps define this freeholder board's goals and vision.

"It's hard to believe that in Union County there are thousands of children who are about to start school who have not received their childhood immunizations. Union County, through its Board of Social Services and Rummls Specialized Hospital, immunized almost 10,000 children in Elizabeth in 1998 alone."

Thanks to the efforts of Freeholder Lewis Mingi, this immunization program is being extended to the city of Plainfield. But, we need to do more. There are still too many children in those other communities in need of immunizations.

In 1999, Union County will establish a mobile immunization

Budget proposal could mean tax decrease

By Mark Hrywna

Regional Editor

For the second consecutive year, Union County's tax levy will remain the same while the tax rate will decline by more than 1 percent, which should allow for a tax decrease in most towns.

Union County Manager Michael J. Lapolla presented his 1999 executive budget proposal to the Board of chosen Freeholders on Jan. 14.

The tax rate for county residents will drop about one-half cent, from slightly more than 47 cents per $100 of equalized value in 1998 to 46.5 cents in 1999.

The 1999 executive budget reflects the board's direction of combining delivery of quality services with fiscal conservatism. Lapolla said, "Union County has become the model for property tax stability."

After the second consecutive year, said Lapolla, there are no new positions proposed in the proposed $285.5 million budget and Union County continues to maintain a "AAA" bond rating—the highest ratings from Moody's Investors Service and Standard & Poor's.

Lapolla's budget proposal is $3.5 million more than the $282.2 million budget adopted by the all-Democratic freeholder board in 1998.

Freeholder Jim Mirabella, who chairs the board's finance committee, said he expects to begin budget hearings sometime in January or February. "Like the position we're in going in," said Mirabella, "We've had decreases the last two years and we're headed to another flat-budget, at least to start with."

The county's tax levy—the amount to be raised through property taxes—is declined approximately 4 percent last year and 0.5 percent in 1997. The proposed tax levy is the lowest since 1994. The changes in county taxes will vary among towns depending on the tax rates set by the county tax board.

Department heads will be invited to budget hearings where the freeholders will ask questions and "fine-tune" the budget, said Mirabella. He expects the freeholder board to introduce the budget sometime in the spring.

Obviously, the most important part of this budget is not raising taxes—but freeholder board conceivably "We've been able to maintain spending with an increase in programs, such as the Freeholder Scholarship Programs and Project Pucker Parks."

"This is County Republican Chairman Frank McDermott said.

"The freeholders can't put no tax increase, but they have still increased spending."

On the revenue side, the county's reliance on property taxes continues to decline. In 1998, property taxes provided for 53.25 percent of the budget while in 1999 it is expected that 52.6 percent of the budget will come from property taxes. The county's reliance on property taxes has dropped nearly every year since 1990, when taxes contributed two-thirds of the total $179.4 million budget.

The major changes in revenue from 1998 are an additional $4.6 million from surplus, $1.1 million more from welfare, $1.1 million less from the state prisoner program and $1.3 million less from state institutions. County revenues, totaling approximately $57.5 million, account for 20 percent of the budget while 11 percent, or $32 million, comes from grant revenue.

Grant revenues are expected to jump from $30.6 million to $32 million for 1999.

The budget proposal calls for $26 million of the county's available $41 million surplus to be used in 1999, making up approximately 9 percent of the budget. Twenty-million dollars, or 7 percent of revenues, will come from state institutions.

The largest piece of the budget pie—$84.9 million, or nearly 30 percent—is slated for health and welfare. More than 18 percent of the budget—nearly $33.2 million—will go toward "general government" while 16 percent, or $45.8 million, is set for "regulation."

Among the major capital projects slated for 1999 are the opening of the Andrew K. Rovito Justice Building in March, which will house the Prosecutor's Office as well as the Union County Employee Day Care Center. Projects to begin construction include the new County Police Headquarters and the Prosecutor's Evidence Lab at the Veneri Complex in Westfield and the new Juvenile Detention Center in Elizabeth.

The county manager is required to submit the executive budget by Jan. 15 pursuant to state statute.

Record surplus realized

By Mark Hrywna

Regional Editor

Union County ended fiscal year 1998 with the largest budget surplus in history—$41 million.

The county continues to use a portion of its surplus to offset part of the budget. The 1999 executive budget, which was presented to the freeholders last week, provides for $26.1 million of the $41 million surplus to be used. That would leave the surplus at approximately $34.9 million, between 5 percent and 6 percent of the overall budget, said County Manager Michael Lapolla, who is standard budget procedure. Fifteen million dollars would be approximately 5.3 percent of the $285.5 million county budget in 1999.

Lapolla attributed the surplus to cutting costs, better investments and pre-planning. "In some instances, he said, vacancies within departments remained unfilled until a designated date."

At Mirabella, chairman of the freeholders' Finance Committee, said budget conditions have been very advantageous and the county has been able to generate revenues. In addition, he said, "Department heads have been very cost conscious."

The $26-million surplus to be used will constitute more than 9 percent of the 1999 budget. Last year, the freeholders used $21.4 million of an available $39.5-million surplus. The $21.4 million was approximately 7.6 percent of the overall $282.2-million budget in 1998.

The amount of surplus utilized in the county budget has grown every year since 1991. From 1990 to 1991, the surplus used was approximately $4 million, which equaled about 4 percent of the total budget.

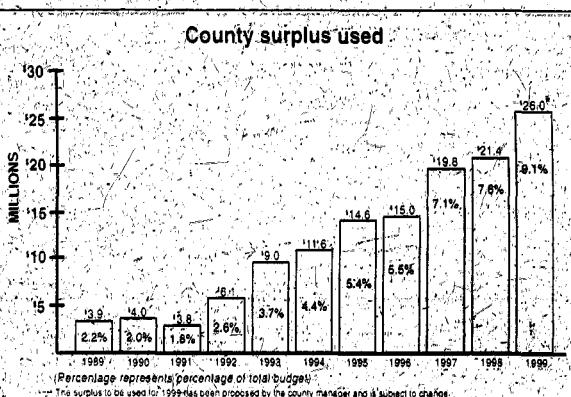

Since 1994, the surplus available has increased an average of 39 percent annually, while the surplus used has increased an average of 18 percent.

Union County Republican Chairman Frank McDermott said he would like to see the all-Democratic freeholder board follow the lead of the state. Gov. Christine Whitman, a Republican, announced in her State of the State address a proposal to provide homeowners with school tax refunds over the next five years.

Freeholder Vice Chairman Dan Sullivan, a member of the Finance Committee, said the surplus is a result of "prudent fiscal management" and the board's examining multiple policies and eliminating unnecessary leases.

County revenues have jumped by about $10 million, since 1993 and have held steady between $57 million and $59.5 million the past three years. County revenues increased by 15 percent from $47 million in 1993 to $54.2 million in 1994.

In the 1999 executive budget, county revenues are expected to contribute 30 percent of the total budget at $85.5 million.

McGovern named grand marshal of county parade

By Mark Hrywna
Union County Freeholder

John McGovern, the Irish football champion and tavern owner who has been standard bearer for the May Day Parade and McDevitt Association for nearly three decades, is the 1999 Grand Marshall of Union County's St. Patrick's Day Parade.

The popular Irishman recently was honored by the mayor and council for his many contributions to the Irish community.

County revenues have jumped by about $10 million, since 1993 and have held steady between $57 million and $59.5 million the past three years. County revenues increased by 15 percent from $47 million in 1993 to $54.2 million in 1994.

In the 1999 executive budget, county revenues are expected to contribute 30 percent of the total budget at $85.5 million.

McGovern first came to America to play in the All-Ireland champion-

"We're thrilled to have him and we're in the midst of grand plans for this year's parade, which is once again dedicated to and in honor of Saint Patrick," said Parade General Chairman Bob Langan.

The parade's Ceberry Brothers fund-raising event will feature live music by the Willie Lynch Band and the Charlie Zautin Band on Sunday from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus, 253 Union Avenue in Elizabeth.

Food, music, coffee and tea are all included in the $5 tickets, which can be obtained by calling Kathy Noonan at (908) 352-1477 or Kevin Dowling at (473) 594-1363. There will be a cash bar.

Ready to meet challenges

(Continued from Page 1) commitment to nearly 500,000 people who call Union County their home to do our absolute best as their representatives.

This is Union County's last reorganization meeting in the 20th century. Our next reorganization will take place in January of the year 2000.

To commemorate the coming century, I have asked Freeholder Linda Stender to chair a Millennium Celebration Committee that will preserve our past and celebrate our future.

We have offered the residents of Union County the opportunity to move forward. We bring them a vision of what the future could hold; of the promise we can offer our children when we leave this country to them.

Our hope, our goal, as we begin the year 1999 is your Board of Chosen Freeholders is to work with you to build a county that will meet the challenges of that century. On behalf of this board, I pledge our hard work, energy and creativity to meet those challenges.

A resident of Linden, Nicholas P. Scaturro, chairman of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders,

New York comedian brings his talent to the Garden State

By Jacque McCarthy
Associate Editor

An aspiring comedian from New Jersey typically encounters few opportunities for affordable, accessible training in the Garden State, while an abundance of classes and workshops are just across the holler in New York City. Summit Area Community School currently boasts a New York-trained improvisational comedian, Christopher Hoyle, who is teaching an improvisational comedy workshop, beginning Jan. 26 for 10 Tuesdays at Summit High School.

Hoyle, a resident of Chatham, is no stranger to Union County. A native of Michigan, Hoyle's family moved to New Providence for the last two years of his high school education. After graduation from New Providence High School, Hoyle went on to major in drama at Kenyon College in Gambier, Ohio.

"No improv at that time, but I acted in a few plays and got some good background and training there," Hoyle said.

Although an acting major, Hoyle's intended career was songwriting.

"I always wanted to plug away as a singer-songwriter," he said. "How I was going to make ends meet, I didn't know. The singer-songwriter thing is my labor of love, and my first love in terms of creative stuff. Acting seems to be where more action happens for me — more money flows, maybe friendships are formed. Some people say my skills are more marketable as an actor than as a singer-songwriter guy," Hoyle said with a wry smile.

Hoyle was introduced to the world of comedy through a summer job at a pizzeria in Summit during breaks from college. The owner of the pizzeria, known as Max, also was a stand-up comedian.

"He would take me along with him where he would go, 'Catch a Rising Star, Dangerous,'" Hoyle said. "I met Sam Kinnion and Gillette Gottlieb when they were on their way up, and saw Robin Williams and Rodney Dangerfield. Once in a while, I'd even get on stage at the clubs and play a couple of folksy songs."

Max-introduced Hoyle to Chicago City Limits, the New York City branch of the Second City improv school in Chicago.

"When I got out of college, I drifted into their workshops," Hoyle said. He formed his first improv troupe, New York Improv Squad, in 1984, with two other CCL students Tom Seth and Jeff Clinkenbeard, "who was our laugh getter," our comedic powerhouse.

The Improv Squad was eager to entertain, but new to the games. "When you first see a group of people doing it professionally, it's elegant, it's impressive, it's historical touch," said Hoyle.

"A lot of people don't understand what improv is," he said. "It's a Biblical message school by the great, albeit unwilling President Abraham Lincoln, we would have never been this far today. For referring and enjoyable look at presidential humor, see my book, 'Improv for Presidents,' available at $19.95 at The Elizabeth Playhouse, 1100 N. Jersey St., Elizabeth, through Feb. 14. Call (908) 555-0077."

Great seats are waiting at county arts center

There is a theater seat waiting for you at the Union County Arts Center in Rahway. It has been utilized by generations of audiences who visited the old Railway Theatre since 1928 — and it needs fixing with the help of a $50,000 gift.

The theater is undergoing a transformation to a beautiful and glittering performing arts center that the people of Union County and Central New Jersey can be proud of and enjoy.

The theater has a new marquee, a refurbished lobby, modern restroom facilities, new sidewalks, upgraded lighting and sound systems, and a resurfaced auditorium.

Opportunities to play a significant role in the continued renovation of the theater are available. With your tax-deductible gift, an inscription of up to 30 characters will be displayed on the back of your seat. Your inscription can denote a friend of Union County, or express your lasting concern for the future of the arts.

With your help, every seat in the theater can be the best seat in the house. For information on how to get involved, call the arts center at (908) 471-8226, or send your donation and inscription request to UCAC, P.O. Box 775-D, Rahway, NJ 07065.

offering. We were just blown away for us, it was like 'The Beatles at Shea Stadium,'" Hoyle said of his CCL training. "We looked up to the group that was doing it, and our teachers as well, so we followed in their foot steps. We weren't sure we could do that, but we loved it and got into the workshops, and the workshops are as much fun as watching the show. Then came that point where we stepped out and tried it on our own, and it worked."

"We started performing at a little club called the 'Triple Inn,'" Hoyle said. "We were performing on the street, we performed at the Improvita, warming up for the comedians there."

The Squad was well-received by New York City audiences, but the shows, although highly improv gigs, had not yet become lucrative.

"When you play in New York City, you don't do it for the money. You do it more to cause a stir and get your name out there," Hoyle said.

Hoyle continued to cause a stir with Falling Rock Zone, which performed mainly at colleges.

"We could have made our living playing college gigs," Hoyle said. "If we were not for the quality of audience feedback. 'College audiences can get you drunk,' you walk away saying, 'What am I doing?'" as opposed to a New York audience. They like dirty humor, as well, just not quite as gross," Hoyle added.

Dealing with audience feedback is just one of the things Hoyle tries to teach his Summit improv class in improvisational comedy, actors spontaneously build scenes around audience suggestions.

The year in film has worldwide importOn The Arts

By Jon Plaut

There is a piece of dialogue in "You've Got Mail" which not only summarizes this latest film written and directed by Nora Ephron, but perhaps the general theme of the year: "It occurs when a rich but dissatisfied Tom Hanks tells an attractive but struggling Meg Ryan he is flying away over despite their competitive stance in contemporary New York City that people like to buy coffee in Starbucks because they get to make decisions that are fully worth validating their life." "I'll take tall, skin-milk-thin," says Meg, "but I'm not a movie star, just please over there many of this year's best films focus on how thin the line is between romantic relationships and self-glorifying self-focus. It is also interesting to note that some of the top films in 1998 deservedly became distinguished by the creative force behind them.

Starting at the top, the best film of the year is the Italian "Life is Beautiful," starring and sag of life of the Holocaust conceived of by its director and star Roberto Benigni. A clown in the style of Chaplin and Keaton, the great talent makes us laugh and cry in his journey through powerlessness and responsibility, where there is still love and ingenuity. The establishing of relevance against overwhelming odds is a clear individual triumph whether the setting be in a small town in Massachusetts or Italy or Australia's Wild West. "Life is Beautiful" deserves it.

The best ensemble performance of the year is Meryl Streep's in the Irish "The Dancing at Lughnasa," while the best male performance is by Jeremy Irons in "Atonement." The interesting thing about these designations is not that both acts are so almost undifferentiated talent instead had another superior performance this year — "One True Thing," for Streep and "Lantana," for Irons — but that these films are the creative product of someone else, a great playwright — Brian Friel in the Irish drama, and contemporary journalistic forces in the Hong Kong story. They each astoundingly examine the frail life story of characters against the destructiveness of life's cruelty and events.

In a like manner, the British film

by Peter Weir

"Master and Commander: The Far Side of the World," features an always-bolshoi Vanessa Redgrave, but relies on the superb narrative and subtle character delineation between generations and epochs portrayed by the author, Virginia Woolf. And Martin Scorsese's "Slam," works because this independent filmmaker places his poem, and moving story about a young, angry black urban culture solidly within that culture.

For epic American movies search for meaning among contemporary life's anomalies and inadequacies. The Cohen brothers have finally made a movie I can thoroughly get into: "The Big Lebowski," its characters stumble about Los Angeles looking to make contact in a big metropolis, where home seems possible, in much the same manner that Woody Allen's collection of stars and personalities seek "dove" and self-realization, while destroying themselves and others, in the dazzling "Celebrity."

Joining this theme of seeking self-identity in a confusing modern life in which eternal values often are clouded by violence and pop culture is Steven Soderbergh's "Out of Sight," from the Jimmie Leonardo crime novel. And Steven Spielberg questions personal value and purpose in a movie war in "Saving Private Ryan," with perhaps the most perfect first 30 minutes of a film since "Yentl."

Finally, at the end of this year has come a classic film in the tradition of great literature from England, "Shakespeare in Love," written by Tom Stoppard; this frolic eventually turns serious and suggests the beginning of the modern age in Shakespearean art. In doing so, it affirms that art, much as the truly beautiful Nicole Kidman's subtle and energizing performance on the stage this fall in New York City in "The Blue Room," has once again demonstrated the power of the theatrical mirror.

St. James students maintain a strong faith in their future

St. James the Apostle School in Springfield joins thousands of Catholic schools across the United States in celebrating Catholic Schools Week during the first week in February. St. James School is among the 8,300 Catholic schools nationwide to participate in this celebration recognizing the contributions they make to the communities they serve.

The theme of this year's celebration, "Faith for a Bright Future," reflects the philosophy that focusing on the basics and demanding excellence helps to prepare children both spiritually and intellectually for the future. In fact, a higher percentage of Catholic-educated students continue their education in college.

St. James the Apostle school will highlight its theme at a Knowledge Fair to be held on Jan. 31 from 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in the school auditorium. Preschool through 8th grade students will be teachers for a day, as they present parents and visitors to their everyday curriculum. The Knowledge Fair is open to the public, free of charge, and registration of new students will occur at this time. For additional information, contact the school at (973) 370-5193.

DIVERSITY—Prep's current student body represents 83 New Jersey towns plus three boroughs of New York.

Human relations essay contest offered

The 10th annual Philip J. Hoffman Human Relations Essay Competition sponsored by the Metropolitan New Jersey chapter of the American Jewish Committee has officially begun, as announced by Susan Kogan of Short Hills and Joan Knoff of Summit, co-chairs of the competition committee. Other members of the committee are Thelma Flavin of West Orange, Bee Hoffman of Verona, Nancy Lasser of New Vernon, Barbara Levinson of Mountainside and Jeanette Pakter of Livingston.

A distinguished panel of the following judges will select the winning essay: Dr. Viyodi Anand, NJ State Civil Rights commissioner; Professor David Berry, executive director of the Community College Humanities Association; Shubert Haas, representative from the Organization of Chinese Americans to the NJ State Assembly; Dr. Ruth Legow, assistant adjunct professor of English at Rutgers University; and Alan Vegas, general counsel of the Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers of NJ.

All high school students in Essex, Morris, Union, Bergen and Passaic counties are eligible to submit entries on the following topic:

No one is perfect. Psychologists have found that our respect for individuals is strongly influenced by our notions about the groups to which the individual belongs. These groups may be created by differences of age, sex, race, nationality, religion or by physical appearance.

Share an experience that you have had or witnessed in which prejudice has been overcome. What motivated the change of attitude? How would you promote a more tolerant climate in your school or community?

Present your views through whatever medium you prefer: personal essay, short story, letter, poem or play.

Competition deadline is March 20.

The winners will receive awards of $400, $300 and $100. The school hosting the first-place winner will be given an engraved plaque. An honorable mention will be awarded to the student with the best essay from a high school submitting 10 or more essays, provided no other prize has been awarded to a student in that high school.

Copies of the essay competition announcement and further information can be obtained from AJC at 225 Millburn Ave., Suite 301, Millburn, NJ 07041, phone (973) 379-7843, e-mail: AJC@AOL.COM.

Inaugurated in 1981, the competition was established to honor Philip J. Hoffman, a founding member of the chapter and former national president of American Jewish Committee, who served as U.S. Representative to the U.N.-Human Rights Commission.

Founded in 1906, American Jewish Committee is the oldest human rights agency in this country. It is dedicated to building bridges of mutual respect and understanding among all religious, racial and ethnic groups. Lawrence J. Friedman is president of the Metropolitan NJ Chapter, and Allyson Gail is NJ area director.

Benedictine Academy senior-class members Lauren Walker and Kellen Smith greet Sheila Jones, mother of David Eric Bolden, during her recent visit to the Academy.

Academy seniors raise funds for youthful cancer patient

Benedictine Academy senior-class members Lauren Walker and Kellen Smith greeted Sheila Jones, mother of David Eric Bolden, during her recent visit to the Academy. Last July, Bolden was diagnosed with a malignant brain tumor. When Kellen, whose mother is a former coworker of Jones, heard about the situation, she decided to do something to help not only him, but also his family.

With medical costs so astronomical, she asked Adele Krosinski, principal, if there could be a collection among the student body to raise money to help defray some of the medical costs. Since the beginning of the school year, students have been donating what they can, when they can. Small funds have been held, helping the total to steadily increase.

It was hoped that Bolden would be able to visit with students who have come to know him and this situation throughout Kellen's efforts, she has made them aware of the financial tragedy facing the family. The form of cancer that Bolden is suffering from, glioma, having glioma, is very rare and considered incurable. Due to his weakened condition he was unable to accompany his mother on her visit to the Academy, located in Elizabeth. She thanked the girls for their generosity and most of all their much-needed prayers.

Seniors discover computers at Chatham center

PC Discovery Center, located in downtown Chatham, has taken the suggestion of one of its customers, Ruth Vanderveen of Morristown, and is offering a 10 percent discount to all customers over the age of 65.

Amy Struthier, an instructor at the center commented, "The older people who come here are a joy to work with, and it's terrific to see them getting started on the computer. They're smart, funny, and we have a great time."

PC Discovery Center offers classes for the true computer beginner as well as for the more experienced user.

and its policy of offering unlimited free retakes for a year virtually guarantees success.

Seniors often have different uses for the computer than younger adults. They're more likely to be exploring their family's genealogy and history, tracking their investments and charitable giving, and using the Internet to research medical and drug questions.

Former student Jane King of Denville is carefully transcribing in Microsoft Word the letters her father wrote to her mother when he was stationed in Europe during World War I.

PC Discovery Center offers six week courses and one-time, three-hour seminars on Microsoft products: Windows, Word, Excel, Access, PowerPoint and Publisher, as well as seminars on America Online, NetScape, Quicken and QuickBooks.

Courses are offered both days and evenings, with new courses starting every week. Seminars and classes are available mornings, afternoons and evenings. There is also a lively after-school program for kids ages 4-12.

PC Discovery Center is at 10 Fairmount Ave., Chatham, (973) 635-2202. Visit the Web site at www.pcdiscoverycenter.com.

Students gaining ground in math, science

"More and more young people are improving their 21-23s along with their A-BCs," said Richard W. Riley.

A national panel made up of political and educational experts reviewed data that they believe showed many students in the United States making significant gains in math and science.

The panel, the National Education Goals Panel, recently released its annual report, "The National Education Goals Report: Building a Nation of Learners." The report details the progress the schools in the United States are making in science, and math.

For example, the 1997 report showed 27 states had higher achievement in mathematics compared to the prior year's report, and 47 states increased the percentage of students who received degrees in mathematics or science.

"This report confirms what we've known all along — that challenging students to meet high standards of excellence is the key to better achievement," said United States Secretary of Education Richard W. Riley.

He also noted that our public schools have turned the corner and are headed in the right direction.

Panel Chairman Governor James B. Hunt, Jr. of North Carolina said, "We also know there is much more work to be done."

The panel also offered the following goals that may help continue educational improvements:

- Keep schools safe, disciplined, and alcohol- and drug-free.

- Parents need to participate in school programs.

- Teachers should continue learning by taking professional development courses and seminars.

- The National Education Goals Panel is a bipartisan body of federal

Incorporate nature, science and culture into birthday parties

Trailside Nature & Science Center offers birthday party programs for children 5 years and older. Group size is limited to 12 children for preschool groups and 18 for 1st grade and up. Naturalist-led programs are 45 minutes and may be booked for weekdays or Saturdays. Planetarium shows are also available, are limited to 25 children and may be scheduled week days or the first Saturday of the month.

Upon request, some group programs can also be adapted for birthday parties. Please advise in advance if your group has special needs. To schedule a birthday party call Trailside at (908) 789-3070, weekdays, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Preschool Grade and Up.

- Shakes & Ticks: Fun facts about these popular animals; meet a turtle and touch a snake from "Trailside's" collection.
- Dinosaurs: Become a paleontologist and put together a dino-saur skeleton, then create your own prehistoric creature out of paper.
- Seasonal Safety Walk: Explore the woods and fields using your senses.
- Mini-Beasts: Uncover smaller animal neighbors such as earthworms, millipedes and slugs. April-October only.

Museum to get a closer look at some sizes and shapes.

- Busy Bees: Explore the world of honey bees using games and stories. Observe a live hive in action.
- Snowflakes: Discover fun facts about snow! Create a snowflake hunt and draw your own snowflake design.
- Rock 'N' Roll Rocket: Planetary Show: Join Rodney the Rocketeer on a musical tour of the planets! Explore the moon, Venus and Mars. Learn planetary basics, continue and the planet song.

• The Sky Inside: Ranger Show: Learn what causes the daily changes from daylight to darkness, what causes the phases of the moon and about the composition of stars.

First Grade and Up.

- Seasonal Iggy Walk: Explore the woods and fields to find out how plants and animals adapt to the changing seasons.
- Animal Neighbors: Find out about the mammals, birds and insects that inhabit our suburban neighbor-hoods. We'll look for clues that tell us about animals living in the Reserve, then play "Who Am I?"
- Birds: A Look at Packs: A slide presentation and activities about birds adapted to the season: spring peepers and frogs; fall migrants; winter feeder birds.

taken by spacecraft! Includes a song about the planets, dazzling special effects and lasers.

- Third Grade and Up:
- Insects: Learn about these tiny creatures and search for them in the woods and fields.

• I made This: "How did the first Americans live?" Find out about their customs, food and games!

• Dinosaurs and Space: Iggy Planetarium Show: Learn about light waves, the speed of light and general astronomy through objects, slides, lasers and planetarium special effects. Journey into another dimension with laser projections.

Following the 45-minute program, parties may be held outside at the picnic tables behind the museum. This area is covered by a canopy and is an ideal site in the spring, summer and fall months. During the winter or in case of inclement weather, the party room in the lower level of the museum, the auditorium in the visitors center, or the upper level of the museum can be rented for 30 minutes. Advance registration is required and rentals are subject to availability.

Buick presents a 1999 lineup that is 'fun to drive'

Ride, handling and power improvements provide the major product story at Buick as it celebrates its 95th anniversary. — as well as the 30th anniversary of its best-selling LeSabre.

Buick General Manager Robert E. Cole notes that Buick is emphasizing "fun to drive" refinements.

"Our slogan says it's 'fun to drive for a real car,'" Cole said. "And this year's products, including our supercharged models, will be noticeable, while not dramatic, will be noticeable to car enthusiasts."

Cole notes that Buick continues to be the industry's No. 1 provider of supercharged cars; and its supercharged models have also performed well in competitive ride-and-handling tests by auto writers. Their performance, he said, is even greater in the 1999 models.

The midsize Regal LS's naturally aspirated V-6 liter Series II V-6 engine is now rated 200 horsepower at 5200 rpm and 225 lb-ft of torque at 4000 rpm.

Regal LS also has a refined ride and handling, among other standard and optional features.

The supercharged Regal GS, with 240 hp, and Regal LS both have enhanced traction control systems.

And the midsize Century — one of the best-selling Buicks — has a more standard traction control system, a more efficient braking system and significant ride and handling changes to build on its outstanding overall value.

The new model year is ones and subtle refinements for the full-size Buicks. The Higher Park Avenue provides an enhanced Concert Sound Entertainment system, improved tailfin appearance on Park Avenue and, on Ultra, standard Michelin tires.

Riviera, full-size coupe with world class body structure and often described as the most distinctively styled car of the decade, is offered in four new exterior colors.

LeSabre, offered in two new exterior colors, carries a powerful record of market success into the '99 model year — celebrating 40 years from its introduction as a 1959 model. The LeSabre name has been continuous longer than any other brand in today's Buick lineup. More than six million LeSabres have been produced, beginning with those first models of '59.

It was LeSabre, with a top quality rating in the 1989 J.D. Power Initial Quality Study, that led Buick to an advertising slogan of the mid-1990s: "Buick — the new symbol for quality in America." For the last six years, LeSabre has been the best-selling full-size car in the country.

All Buicks for '99 again offer GM OnStar as a factory-installed option. OnStar is an in-vehicle communication system combining Global Positioning System satellite technology and a hand-free, voice-activated cellular telephone to link drivers to a center where advisors are available to provide many kinds of assistance, such as emergency services and navigation and travel support.

All Buicks feature the corrosion protection of double-galvanized steel on all exterior panels except roof. All Buicks also are equipped with day time running lamps.

Buick is commemorating its 95th anniversary in 1998 and 1999. Buick Motor Company was incorporated in Detroit in May of 1903, moved to Flint that fall, and began producing automobiles for the market in the summer of 1904.

The line-up:

• Regal LS receives more power and suspension refinements and, together with the sporty, supercharged Regal GS, provides higher levels of standard safety equipment and customer convenience features.

• There is an increase of five horsepower in the naturally aspirated 3800 Series II V-6 engine standard in Regal LS. The engine also produces five more pound-feet of torque.

• Also new for Regal LS is a refined standard suspension. Increased shock absorber valving and more rigid chassis bushings provide improved ride isolation. New larger front and rear stabilizer bars reduce body roll.

• A new 10-spoke steering intermediate shaft with concentric isolator provides Regal LS and Regal GS with more precise road feel.

New safety features include an enhanced and more efficient front-wheel anti-lock disc brake system for Regal LS and Regal GS and a tire inflation monitor for Regal LS.

Passenger comfort features for Regal LS include a new optional automatic version of the dual ClimateTemp air conditioning. Regal LS receives a new standard AM/FM cassette radio with automatic tone control and Concert Sound II speakers and Regal LS and Regal GS receive a new optional Monsoon audio system with eight speakers.

• Century provides an all-new standard traction control system and improved standard four-wheel anti-lock braking system. The traction control system, which operates in all four speeds, regulates engine output to enable traction in slippery road conditions.

New safety features include a standard tire inflation monitor which senses if a tire is losing air, and an optional electrochromic dimming outside rear-view mirror.

Ride and handling has been refined in the Century suspension. Increased rear shock absorber valving and larger front and rear stabilizer bars reduce body roll.

Interior improvements include new standard Concert Sound II speakers in all models. A new optional Concert Sound III system in all models features eight speakers and an amplifier.

The "new generation" of Park Avenue, Buick's full-size sedan, is designed to make an elegant and tasteful statement.

Specific refinements for 1999 include an improved tail lamp appearance on Park Avenue, enhanced concert sound III system and, on Ultra, standard Michelin tires.

There are four new exterior colors:

Sterling Silver, Metallic, Titanium Blue Metallic, Gold Fiercest Metallic and Dark Bronze Metallic. Bright White Diamond became available on Ultra in the '98 model year. Park Avenue's instrument panel and door plates display a new Elite Walnut trim.

Park Avenue is again powered by the highly regarded 3.8-liter 3800 Series II V-6 engine. The hydraulic valve lifters, engine delivers 205 horsepower at 3200 rpm and 230 lb-ft of torque at 4000 rpm.

Park Avenue Ultra's supercharged version of the 3800 produces 240 hp at 5200 rpm and 280 lb-ft of torque at 4600 rpm. Projected fuel economy is unchanged, 19 miles per gallon city and 28 mpg highway for Park Avenue and 18 mpg for the supercharged Ultra.

Park Avenue again provides an unusually strong architecture of cage construction and such safety features as side-impact air bags, four-wheel anti-lock brakes and such advanced features as doors that automatically unlock 15 seconds after the key is taken out of the ignition.

Park Avenue's suspension system has been widely praised by auto writers for its responsiveness. It includes MacPherson struts in front and multi-link trailing arms at the rear, mounted to the body through rubber isolators, welded steel struts/torsions. Rear air shocks automatically adjust to maintain proper vehicle height regardless of the load being carried.

An optional Grant Touring package again includes a heavy-duty suspension, dealer-programmable magneto-variable effort steering, steering wheel, 16-inch aluminum wheels, 3.05 tire ratio, 225/60R16 Eagle I-S Touring tires and leather-wrapped steering wheel.

Park Avenue again has Refresh Choice features, operated by the remote keyless entry/fob that include memory mirror and seat position, automatic door lock operation, parking lighting, security feedback, driver's seat and mirrors, and memory radio and climate control settings.

A Driver Information Center provides buttons on the instrument panel to select such information as oil level and life, coolant level, calculations for fuel economy, miles to empty, pressure of fuel used, tire pressure monitoring and two trip odometers. The two-line, 16-character electronic display can show cellular telephone numbers when equipped.

Riviera is not only Buick's styling leader but also the most distinctive styled car of the decade, in the opinion of many auto writers.

For '99, the full-size luxury coupe is offered in four new colors: Sterling Silver, Metallic, Blue Metallic, Gold Fiercest Metallic and Dark Bronze Metallic.

One of Riviera's most exciting features is its engine: the 240-horsepower supercharged 3800 Series II V-6.

Riviera's high technology has been widely acclaimed in the news media. The supercharged engine is connected to the 475SE HD's six-speed electronically controlled four-speed automatic transmission.

The engine delivers 240 hp at 3200 rpm and 280 lb-ft of torque at 4000 rpm. Despite such spirited performance, Riviera still offers fuel economy, as projected at 18 miles per gallon city and 22 mpg highway.

A group of programmable features called Personal Choice again allows the owner of a program each of two remote keyless entry/fobs with different settings for memory door locks, delayed locking, security feedback with remote locking and perimeter lighting. Optional are memory, driver's seat and mirrors, and memory radio and climate control settings.

Riviera is almost as famous for its world-class body structure as it is for its exterior design. The rigid design minimizes road-induced vibrations transmitted to passengers so that the car feels quiet, solid and secure. Crash zones are engineered to progressively absorb impact and dissipate impact energy.

Riviera is the best-selling full-size sedan in the United States for the sixth straight year. In the 40 years since its introduction for the 1959 model year, more than six million LeSabres have been sold.

The passenger LeSabre again features the acclaimed 205-horsepower 3800 Series II V-6 engine connected to the all-new electronically controlled four-speed automatic transmission.

Fuel economy for '99 is again projected at an excellent 19 miles per gallon city and 26 mpg highway.

LeSabre's Personal Choice feature entry/exit allows each of two drivers using separate fobs, to activate pre-programmed settings for memory door locks, delayed locking, security feedback and perimeter lighting.

Both Riviera Limited and Custom continue to offer a Xtrac Luggage Package with hot/cold air suspension, 16-inch aluminum wheels, integrated variable effort steering, 190/60 R16 tires, GoodYear Eagle G7X2 16x16R16 Blackwall tires, feather-wrapped steering wheel and automatic level control Amplitude II exterior colors are three new colors for 1999: Sterling Silver Metallic and Dark Bronze Metallic.

Dues made a major change in its models for the 1999 model year, replacing Limited, Roadmaster, Super, Century and Special with the Executive, Electra and Fleetmaster 225. The Roadmaster name survived briefly and the Century name has been back since 1993.

Taking care of your car affects the resale value

Keep your car looking nice does more than make you feel good; it helps your wallet as well. A well-maintained vehicle may be worth twice as much as a neglected one at trade-in time.

Dealers like a car that requires minimum repairs before being put on the market. One of the first places an appraiser will look, for example, is under the floor mats to check the condition of the carpeting. Take care of the interior fabrics. And, to prevent rust, repair minor dings and scratches as soon as possible.

An average price of more than $16,000, today's cars represent a major expenditure for most families, an investment which deserves better care than most vehicles ever receive.

Make a special effort to protect that investment. It will pay off not only at trade-in time but during the years you're enjoying your vehicle.
