SPACE PROBLEMS HAPPILY SOLVED AT CRESTMONT SAVINGS & LOAN

Families on-the-grow often create the need for more living space. Frequently this can be obtained by moving into larger quarters. Best solution in many cases, is to develop the necessary extra living space by finishing off extra rooms in attic or basement, enclosing a porch, and converting an attached garage.

Petrified Dinosaur Bones His Hobby! Trilobite Exhibits Them Sunday

By BARBARA GIBBONS

A collection of petrified dinosaur bones, owned by Springfield resident Stewart Fulton, will be among the more than 100 exhibits in the annual "Gem and Mineral Show" to be held Sunday at the County Park Commission's Trilobite Museum.

The museum, located on the Washington Reservation, the show will be open to the public, free of charge, from 1 to 5 p.m.

Fulton, who lives at 12 High Point, near the Springfield-Mountainide border, will have 14 examples of dinosaur bones on display.

The dinosaur would never recognize them.

Time, the elements and Fulton's skill as a collector have transformed the bones into colorful, highly-polished "marble" slabs.

Collecting and polishing old bones is merely an offshoot of his main hobby, the pursuit of fossils, explained a member and one-time officer of the N. J. Mineralogical Society, Fulton is most intrigued with collecting mineral specimens of petrified wood. His specimens, the bits of bone one summer while scouting for wood sandily in the wild muddy river area of Utah.

THE WORD "PETRIFY" means "turn to rock" and that's just what has happened to those left-overs of 75 million years ago.

How did the mighty dinosaur end up as a slab of shiny rock? The answer lies in the fact that the dinosaur's body was buried in mud and sand. Over time, the minerals in the mud and sand seeped into the body, replacing the soft tissue with hard mineral matter.

Each step carries away calcium particles, leaving bits of mineral in their place. The skeleton itself acts as a container, becoming a mold for the minerals. When the last bit of bone was washed away, the rock remains, looking pretty much like the dinosaur's original form.

But rocks, after all, are fragile and several kinds of bad weather succeed in breaking them up. In the end, some fossil doesn't look much different from the other rocks around it, even to the experienced eye of a hobbyist like Fulton.

Collectors get their first clues by the heart of a promising-looking rock of which they bounce it in their hand to see if it is slightly lighter or heavier than the surrounding rocks. Some fossils would be lighter because of the hundreds of tiny air spaces they contain.

The real test, however, is to slice it apart and see what's inside. Petrified dinosaur bones, such as Fulton's specimens, will reveal a marked lace-like pattern, dissolving the cell structure of the original animal's bone. Fulton uses a jeweler's diamond-toothed power saw for this operation.

All petrified matter can be polished, but the time and precious goods. What they look like depends on the nature of the minerals deposited there through time. Polished petrified wood is particularly striking — the grain is depicted by layers of minerals, each a different color — rich crimson, pink, bright, or amerald, green, lined translucent, silks, and opaque browns and oranges, bright as butterflies.

Small samples are often cut, polished and made into jewelry, Fulton explains. He has many such examples.

BUT NOT THE dinosaur bones.

"It would be a shame in this time of year," he adds. What Fulton has done with most of them is to slice them into half-inch thick sections, representing cross-sections of the bone.

The highly polished specimens are thin enough that the whole cell structure is revealed when held up to the light.

Fulton has no idea of the sort of animals his fossilized bones could have come from. He can only guess at their size. But some of the cross-sections are the diameter of dinner plates, leaving the observer to speculate on the enormity of their original owners.

Finding and finishing exotic rocks is only one of the busy Springfielder's hobbies, however. He is equally passionate as a camera bug. When he's not rock-hunting or picture-taking, he's busy as a participant member of the Springfield Rowing Historical Society.

Each step carries away calcium particles, leaving bits of mineral in their place. The skeleton itself acts as a container, becoming a mold for the minerals. When the last bit of bone was washed away, the rock remains, looking pretty much like the dinosaur's original form.

But rocks, after all, are fragile and several kinds of bad weather succeed in breaking them up. In the end, some fossil doesn't look much different from the other rocks around it, even to the experienced eye of a hobbyist like Fulton.

BONY SOUVENIR of 75 million years ago is inspected by rock hobbyist Stewart Fulton of Springfield who will exhibit specimens of petrified dinosaur bones at the annual "Gem and Mineral Show" Sunday at the Trilobite Museum in Washington Reservation. Lacy-looking pattern depicts the cell structure of the extinct mammal's skeleton.

Prof. Downes Retires At NSC After 28 Years Of Teaching

Prof. James E. Downes, educator, author and expert in New Jersey history and politics, will retire at the end of this month from the faculty of Newark State College, Union.

Downes, professor of political science in the Department of History and Social Science, assumes retiring status July 1.

"We are losing one of the pillars of the college," according to Dr. Eugene G. Wilkins, president of the college. "We have looked to him always to see that the liberal standpoint was maintained."

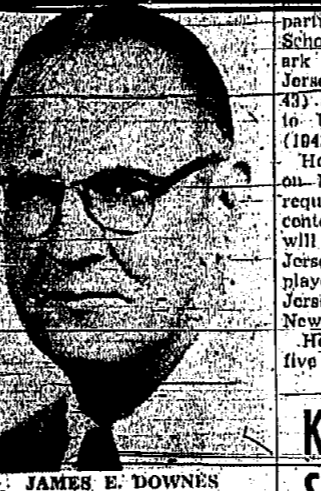

In the last class of his teaching career at Newark State, students presented him with a plaque, a gift certificate and a letter from the office of the President of the United States, at a luncheon given by President Wilkins to members of the faculty following Commencement.

Prof. Downes received a certificate of appreciation from Gov. Hughes for his "loyalty and devotion." He also received a gift from the faculty, and was honored at a statewide meeting of state college faculties.

Prof. Downes became a member of the college's resident faculty in 1945. Prior to that, he taught for 10 years in the college's Part-time and Extension Division. He also has instructed at Rutgers University, Montclair, and Jersey City State Colleges, and in several adult education schools.

Board Drops Plan To Pay Teachers Retirement Bonus

The Springfield Board of Education voted Tuesday night to eliminate immediately its two-year-old special service recognition program under which some teachers could have been given a "bonus" upon their retirement.

The Benjamin Franklin, who objected to the timing of the action, asked that it take effect at the end of the school year. Explaining that this protest was based on "moral" considerations, Mr. Josephson abstained on the vote. Joseph A. Bander voted against the proposal.

The board, which was paid out to teachers under the program, which was instituted in September, 1961.

The board, explained that the school governing body considered the program of doubtful legality.

The school board, in a memorandum distributed to all employees yesterday, explained that the decision to eliminate the recognition program was reached "with great reluctance."

The legality of the provision was doubtful and a positive answer could not be obtained without a court test, the statement declared.

The communication also noted that the payment provision was "permitted" since it was not intended that everyone would receive the maximum award. Evaluating individual efforts fairly and equitably would be extremely difficult, if not impossible.

The board also has a "strong conviction" that monies expended during a person's working year "would have greater benefit for all concerned rather than a 'bonus' upon retirement."

Who paid $850,000,000 for stamps?

(Estimated As The Volume Of Trading Stamp Companies In 1962 In The Reader's Digest June, 1963 Article "Trading Stamps - Who Gets What?")

... lady, if you save stamps, you did!

SAM AIDEKMAN*
(Good Deal's Country Boy)
SAYS:

"No fooling — stores that "give" stamps spent $850 million last year to buy those stamps from trading companies. Now, nobody knows out $850,000,000 and just forgets about it. YOU paid for those stamps in the form of higher prices — paid for them and then some! Now get ready to laugh. I, Sam Aidekman am advertising what my competitors have said. Right in this ad are quotations from executives who have spent years in this business. Their supermarkets give stamps: PLEASE read what they have to say about stamps: It does my heart good. They say what we've been saying all along. The only thing they don't tell you is to shop at Good Deal and save money. And, after all, that's what I'm here for, isn't it?"

*Sam Aidekman is Good Deal's president and the best friend a Housewife ever had!

SAFeway PRESIDENT ROBERT A. MAGOWAN SAID:
"Stores are piling promotional gimmick on top of promotional gimmick, and they all cost the consumer money. The only people I know who say that stamps don't raise prices are the people who own stamp companies... The man who could come up with a sound idea to get us out of the stamp business, could earn himself a million dollars from Safeway and others in the industry who feel the same way."

KALPH BURGER, UNTIL RECENTLY A&P CHAIRMAN, said at a stockholder's meeting that stamps had helped to force an increase in prices.

AND LOOK AT HOW MAINS ARE DROPPING STAMPS!

The W. T. Grant chain discontinued stamps this past March; the J. J. Newberry chain has dropped stamps in its 80 New England stores; Acme has dropped stamps in its 42 stores in the Buffalo, N.Y. area. Fisher Food, a 75 store chain in Cleveland, Ohio has dropped stamps. Kansas has banned stamps outright in Wisconsin, Wyoming and Washington, stamp books are redeemed for cash only.

Halsey Elected By TB League

Warren W. Halsey has been elected secretary of the Union County Tuberculosis and Health League, Inc. This is the Springfield resident's first term in this position after having served on the board of directors for nearly 20 years.

A League ruling limiting reelection of directors who have served six consecutive years resulted in his absence from the board in 1962. However, this year Halsey again has been elected a member.

Halsey is also former superintendent of the Union County Regional High School District. He retired from that position in 1958. Halsey resides at 72 Denham rd.

variance was contrary to law since the Committee did not accept or reject the board's recommendations as determined by a public hearing before the adjustment body, but sought to impose conditions on the adjustment board.

The reference was to the return by the governing body of the original recommendation of the adjustment board, which the Township Committee maintains did not comply with enough rules for additional construction of a sewerage lagoon. The Committee added 10 conditions for improvement of the planned construction.

Mayor Arthur M. Falkin said he did not realize that the suit had been filed, but understood that an injunction had been ordered to halt further work at the Evergreen ave. site, and the letting of building permits.

The mayor said the Township Committee would not sue the plaintiffs who will defend the township in the suit.

The suit "will go into court and explain on what right we issued the variance."

Other arguments against last week's Township Committee approval are that the addition of a church shell on the grounds of the lodge was added to the 1,300 square feet of building space, is adding to an existing non-conforming use.

The plaintiffs also question the granting of the variance to the United Sisters of Newark, owners of the lodge, charging that the property has been leased by the group to James Breslin for a ten-year period and has been used as a piano area and bar and grill.

They say they feel that the addition of the church shell will bring more traffic into the area. They also maintain that the property is zoned for residential use, and that the plaintiffs are playing into the hands of the township by bringing the suit.

The plaintiffs point out that the case was initially heard in March by the adjustment board, but a public hearing was held on March 19 and the application was denied. The plaintiffs have a recommendation for approval.

The case was heard before the Township Committee April 24, a public hearing was held April 25 and the application was denied with additional recommendations to the board of adjustment.

The plaintiffs maintain that the application was denied for the reason that the plaintiffs are not the owners of the property, and the application independent of the recommendations of the governing body was returned to the Township Committee with recommendations for approval.

Approval was granted last Tuesday, after which the plaintiffs say, "an alleged" public hearing was held. They say this hearing was contrary to law since no questions were answered by the governing body.

At that meeting, speakers were allowed only statements from the audience, were allowed by the mayor and Committee.

Following last Tuesday's meeting, the plaintiffs said the group did not object to the existence of Evergreen Lodge. "We cannot object to the existence of the lodge," they said.

We are objecting to the expansion of the facility, in the expansion of a non-conforming use.

The complainants say they are further disturbed because, in their opinion, the variance was granted when no hardship had been proved by the owner of the property involved.

The home owners pointed out that the lodge is in a residential area in which houses costing $20,000 to $40,000 have been constructed.

Revoked Driver Nets 60-Day Jail Term

Peter J. Matzenbecker, 21 of Newark was fined $200 and sentenced to 60 days in jail Monday night in Springfield Municipal Court on a charge of driving while on the revoked list.

Magistrate Thomas A. Argyris fined George Plank of Elizabeth $50 for failing to have a license in his possession and $10 for having no registration on his person.

Heart Murmurs Often Normal
By Madison S. Spack, M.D.
Department of Pediatrics
Duke University
School of Medicine

Heart murmurs are extremely common in perfectly normal children. At least three out of ten normal children have a heart murmur at some time during childhood. These completely innocent heart murmurs are referred to as "functional" murmurs.

By definition a heart murmur means that the doctor can hear noises when the heart sounds when he listens with a stethoscope and a few simple tests that the physician can usually tell the difference between innocent murmurs and those that result from actual abnormalities.

There are generally two groups of heart disease in children. The most common type, congenital heart disease, is the result of faulty development of the heart before birth. The next most common heart disease in children is rheumatic heart disease.

Although many forms of congenital heart disease and rheumatic heart conditions can be quite serious, there may be children with either type of heart condition of a mild nature which allows the child to lead a normal life.

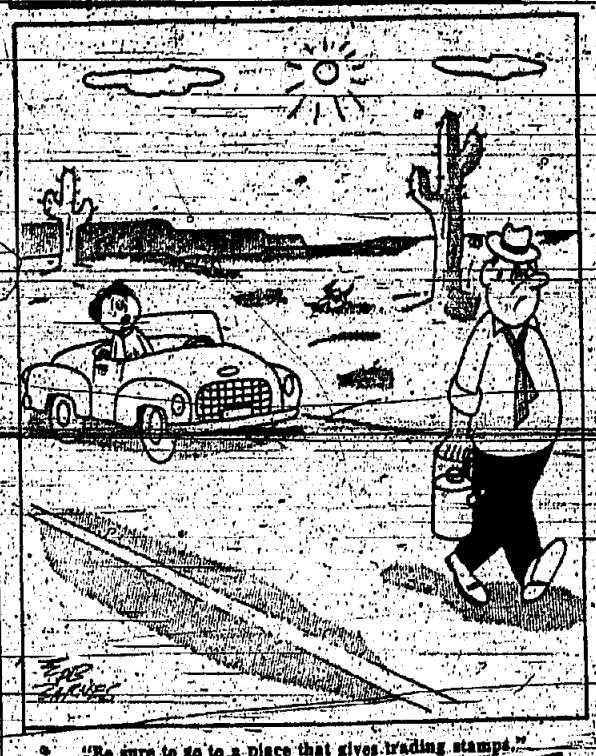

In congenital or inherited heart disease, if the condition is severe enough to cause symptoms, surgery may be performed to return the heart to normal. Such operations most commonly are aimed at closing abnormal openings between the various heart chambers.

There are other children who have heart murmurs from mild heart abnormalities, completely normal. These children require periodic medical check-ups but may never require correction of their defect as long as the heart function stays normal.

When a child has rheumatic fever, the main danger is that the heart may be involved with resultant damage to the valves as to the heart muscle itself. Many children will recover from an attack without the heart being damaged.

For reasons yet unknown completely, the onset of rheumatic fever is related to infections caused by a germ called the streptococcus. By treating the streptococcal sore throats with penicillin, attacks of rheumatic fever can be prevented. Also once an attack has occurred, the daily administration of small doses of penicillin for a month or more of long lasting penicillin can prevent further recurrences.

Know Your Government

From N. J. Taxpayers Association

WONDER WHERE THE MONEY WENT?
If your tax load seemed heavier last year, it's because Uncle Sam took the lion's share—about 70 cents—of the tax money when New Jersey's government last year lapped five billion dollars—an average of more than $800 for every man, woman and child in the State or nearly $3,300 for the family of four.

Millions of Americans who see a "square" only if it includes a tempting dessert have found new worlds to conquer in versatile frozen fruits. The awesome variety of frozen fruits and fruit combinations in neighborhood markets provides your household succulence and a wealth of intriguing dessert possibilities. Swimming Classes Expand Retarded Kiddies Program

This summer for the first time swimming classes will be included in the activities provided at Camp Bear, Mountain side, a day camp for mentally retarded children which is operated by the Union County Unit, New Jersey Association For Retarded Children, Inc.

The camp, which opens next Monday and runs through Aug. 2, will feature two swimming classes each week. Mrs. Barbara Schwartz, chairman of the Unit's recreation committee, announced this week.

The addition to the camp program was made possible through the cooperation of The Young Men's Christian Association of Rahway, which will conduct the aquatic classes. Mrs. Schwartz said.

In announcing the expanded activities, the recreation chairman pointed out that the ball playing, the games, the cookouts and the hikes provided at the day camp for many of the children attending their only opportunities for experiencing the fun and child in the State. The Taxpayers Association's 1962 figures represent averages for Federal and state governments which operate on July to June fiscal years and calendar year totals for the local levels of government. The figures do not include unemployment compensation and temporary disability employment taxes levied for purposes other than support of general government. Neither do they include license and other fees which are in addition to general tax impositions.

Checking Grime Rate Of Air We Breathe

Gadget Takes Samples As State Collects Data On Pollution

A smoke-eating device that looks like a cross between a vacuum cleaner and a cash register is a busy keeping check for the State Department of Health in the air we breathe.

The weird-looking gadget is installed in 30 test sites throughout the state. The atmosphere in this area is monitored by sampling machines installed in the Union Township Municipal Building and the city hall in Elizabeth.

Ultimately, state officials hope, the machines will help do something about air pollution by identifying harmful substances for the atmosphere and gauging the effectiveness of whatever control measures health officials are able to introduce.

Before the machines are used that way, however, the State Health Department wants to get the air sampling procedure operating smoothly.

lected for it by state officials. The business end of the machine is a rotating plastic tube which runs through a hole in the window in the atmosphere outside. A vacuum pump draws air through the tube past a filter which collects the particles of dust, dirt and other contaminants carried in the air that day. Once a day, a township health worker makes an impression from the filter on a roll of specially sensitized paper, noting the date and the hour in pencil.

The impression looks like a round, smoky spot, about the size of a marble. A scientist then takes a microscope and a great deal of other things to see what the air has been doing.

At the end of the month the Union health department sends the spot-dotted roll of paper off to the State Health Department's research and development lab where the spots are counted, checked, measured, tested and analyzed.

The roll-tape device of air-borne grime is as unique to an area as a fingerprint is to a criminal and the detectives of the microscope and test tube would not normally be signed to the cleaner all possible found anywhere in the state. Air which is truly "pure" and completely free of all matter of course that doesn't exist by "100" air the health experts upon the soft of crystal-clear atmosphere that might be found on a rare, and chilly, Sunday morning in spring in the middle of a mountain lake. Such a scene was once called by Blaine town in Warren County. Seven hundred and 22 hours of air samples collected during the month of March, 1962, failed to produce even one smudge which would indicate the "100" air category.

The more pollutants found in the atmosphere, the higher the "Smoke Index" score. City has the dubious distinction of having earned the highest "Smoke Index" score recorded during that six-month test—a rating of 283.7 for the month of February, 1962. However, Paterson scored a score of 269.3, was but a fraction away from tying the score. That Passaic County city can claim the title for consistency. On the basis of the six-month Smoke Index, Paterson won the high score at least half of the time.

Weather and wind play a big role in the atmosphere. There are other times they do it up by carrying in smog from other areas. These meteorological factors account for some otherwise surprising inconsistencies.

The test tapes in Union and Elizabeth put this area in the urban category—lower scores than those found in areas to the north of Newark and bordering New York and scores higher than those in South and Central Jersey.

PLAN MORE HEAT WITH EXPANSION

One of the most important aspects in home expansion is extra heating. According to the National Heating Installation Contractors Association, over 50 per cent of all home expansion projects require some kind of heating work.

To heat a new room with your present heating system, you must first determine whether your heating plant is large enough to handle the extra heating load. Now, if the heating plant is large enough, you must find out if the heating system's piping or duct work can be extended to the new room without expensive alterations to the heating system or major structural changes in the house.

A reliable heating contractor should be called in to check your heating system and to investigate the heating requirements of the new room. He is the only one qualified to advise you about the proper and most economical method of heating your new room.

If you find that your heating system is not expanded, an individual room heater may be installed if you want to heat a small room. But be careful in your selection, because room heaters are not always economical to operate. Moreover, heat is usually concentrated in some spot around the heater.

THE FEMININE LOOK

Commentary on a recent 11-country Newspaper Study Mission to Africa

Fourteenth of A Series
ANGOLA: THE HOSTERS WITH THE MOSTKAT
The sunny social side of Angola was so sunny, it was downright audacious. Beautiful, gorgeous, infectious. We were treated to a flight in a pair of new planes, to a trip on a private train, a sail in a yacht on the bay of Luanda and were invited to as many as three parties in one day—let alone one!

Well, anyway, it was a lovely visit. We were taken through the schools and the hospital, invited to a luncheon party at a fashionable restaurant where a live orchestra played all the top favorite tunes—American top tunes of course. We were as sympathetic while, and then saw a documentary movie on Angola at the local movie house (which was currently showing a Marilyn Monroe picture). After the movie, the ladies received a hand-carved African mask as a gift.

THEN—'AH THEN, we boarded that train. What an experience! I expected Sherlock Holmes to come out of the woodwork any minute. It was all green leather and walnut wood and re-carpeted floors. The train was no horse-drawn, and it was one of those side-saddle trains you see in European movies. Everyone had a compartment to themselves and the beds were really comfortable. The food, wine, cocktails and cigarettes were "on the house," or should I say "on the train."

It was called the Benguela Railway, and to make things even more interesting, this beautiful, old-fashioned train was pulled by a big black engine which had a wood log. Kacalypius wood at that. It was the sweetest smell. In fact, you'd say, "We were told that the Eucalyptus grows along the railway are among the best in the world. Everything they cut a tree down as they go, they put one in, and so the fuel supply is ever handy, and the forest ever thick."

WE LEFT Nova Lisbon on the night train, and through the mountains of the country to arrive at the next morning about 8. It was the most delightful train ride I ever had in my life. In Lobito we toured the town in a bus and then were taken on a tour of the hillside home of a sugar plantation owner. We were on the terrace, and from the hill top as far as your eye could see, there was sugar, sugar everywhere. Sugar cane fields look very much like corn fields to me—but I was told it WAS sugar.

FROM LOBITO we were driven by bus to the town of Benguela about 30 miles further down the coast. To stay at the new and modern M'ombaka Hotel for the night and attend a banquet given by the governor of the district of Benguela, Horizonte de Sousa. For those who wanted to, there was dancing afterward in the hotel night club. There were only 100 people there, just like New York, air-conditioning, open-air and sea breezes either, but sealed-in coolness and cold drafts from the mighty mechanical air-conditioning system. Have you looked at the map and seen where Benguela is? Well, it's far, I can tell you. And there they are with all the "atum."

Youth Rescued From Drowning Now 'Doing Well'

A 12-year-old Newark boy who was saved from drowning in Union County water last week is reported "doing well" at Memorial General Hospital, Union, yesterday.

The boy, Jerome Walker, was rescued from a pond behind the Potter Aeronautical Co., Route 22, by Fred Sigloch, 22, of 2714 Meister ave., Union, a guard at the plant.

Police said the youth had been playing in the pond with his friend, Jimmy Jones, of 237 1/2th st., Kentworth, and had gone swimming at the pond with Gerald Webb, 10, of 24 N. 8th st., Jesse Glasser, 14, of 252 N. 8th st., and Glen Bower, 6, of 200 N. 8th st., all of Kentworth.

The police said the youth went into the water although he could not swim.

Sigloch, who is a junior at Fairleigh Dickinson University, is working for the company during the summer. For the past few years, he had been employed by the company as a helper at the pond, where employees often went swimming. He holds a Red Cross junior life saving certificate. This year, Sigloch said, he was employed as an in-plant guard because the Potter workers are not taking the water.

The Walker boy was in the water about five feet deep when he slid under, his companions told police. After a vain attempt to

Overheard

Mrs. G. sent in the following statement: "Reading the article about our sister having a job for antiques and the other sister making fun of them, reminds me of my family. My sister and I (according to her) have an entirely different set of relatives. Anyone she likes is her relative, anyone she dislikes is mine. I had a lovely miniature of my mother, wearing a wig, when she was in her early twenties. I had it touched up and put into an exquisite filigree silver frame. My sister said, 'You can claim her as your mother if you want to. But she is no relative of mine - my mother would never have had a hair-do like that!'"

Ask Amy

Dear Amy:

For the longest while my wife was ill in a home and I was faithful to her to the end. Her illness had drained me of most of my energy and I had lost my balance. Now don't get me wrong, I'm not complaining, I loved my wife and she knew it.

After waiting a respectable length of time I started searching for another mate, and found one. I proposed, marriage and was accepted. Then I found out that she had a considerable bank account, (she didn't tell me during our courting days for fear that would be the only reason I would marry her).

Now my problem begins even before we are married and with out realizing it, she is getting the support of our future household and that for money will be used to support her in the style to which she is accustomed. She insisted that I create everything I had purchased as my new wardrobe and accompany her to some of the finer shops to make my purchases and she paid the difference. She changed our honeymoon plans to include the more exclusive places in Miami. Again she is paying the difference.

I don't know whether I should be pleased or embarrassed. Amy, does a man ever develop an ap-

Dear People:

Swallow your pride and your appetite will improve.

Dear Amy:

I have been happily married for 23 years. I love my husband and he loves me. I should have a worry in the world but here is my problem: I am 50 years old and my husband is 48. All of a sudden I am afraid of the difference in our ages. When he is ready to retire at 65, I will be 69. I am worried I won't be able to take care of him. Do I have a problem or am I "creating one"?

Sometimes I think I should get a divorce but I have no reason except the one I told you about. Am I being silly? We have no children.

Mrs. A. G.

Dear Mrs. A. G.:

It amazes me how people create problems where none exist. Of course you're being silly. But if you want to make yourself sick worrying what's going to happen 15 years from now, go ahead. Then your husband will have the problem of wondering how to take care of YOU!

Dear Amy:

You always seem to have good advice for people so maybe you will be able to help me.

I'm in high school and have been dating two boys. The first one was nice but I could not get along with him. The second one was a little better but I still don't like him. I would like to know if you think I should date a third one.

Please answer soon because if you don't I will have probably chosen one or the other and then regret it.

A Teenager

Dear Teenager:

Play it safe and don't make any decisions. Then you won't have any regrets. When a boy gives you an ultimatum, YOU give him one!

Dear Amy:

I've been wondering what I should do when a boy asks something nice. He's beautiful, so I guess I should say I like him. What do you think?

Amy

Dear Nancy:

Yes a compliment you don't say "Thank you" for, if you like it, thank, and if you don't, say, "What?"

Dear Amy:

My son always received good grades in school until he started the fifth grade. Naturally I became quite concerned and went over his work with him one evening and I discovered that the children in the class marked each other's papers and that the teacher accepted their grade as gospel and made no effort to check the work personally.

Now I never went to college, but when I reviewed his papers, I found that in many instances his answers were correct. Amy, will you do anything about a teacher who doesn't do her job. I have spoken to her already, but all she did was turn a deaf ear.

Amy

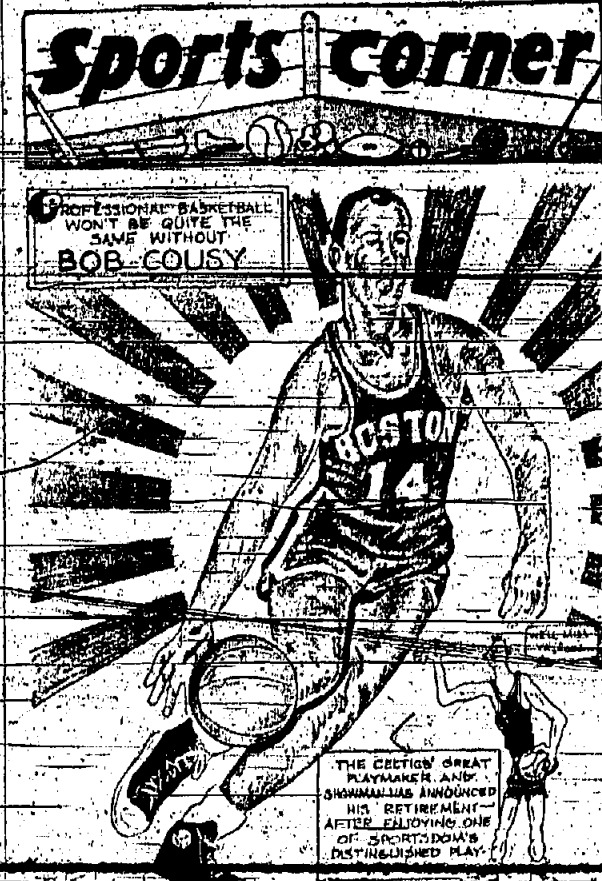

Dear Amy:

Write her a note stating your justifiable complaint and ask to talk to her before you talk to the principal. I think you will find her hearing improved.

Please address all letters to: AMY ADAMS, c/o THIS NEWSPAPER. For a personal reply enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Jayne Takes Over Youth League Lead

It is fairly common to hear of retired-sized fish being lost every year because of some weak link in the connection between the fisherman and the fish. This link can be prevented, but if the truth were known, the loss of the majority of angler fish could be attributed to a dodged equipment and not to a little poor fish. This apparent neglect of fishing tackle is usually a sign of a fisherman who will not invest in quality equipment and, consequently, it accounts for the large amount of tackle that is replaced each season. Good fishing tackle should give many years of excellent service, provided it receives a little attention after being used. It may be that certain anglers are somewhat neglectful and indifferent to keeping their gear in top shape, but it is hard to find an excuse for any sportsman who must spend a considerable amount of money for equipment and a fishing trip, being foolish enough not to check his tackle before heading out for the day's fishing. If you are planning a fishing vacation in the near future, now is the time to repair or replace worn tackle and check tackle.

It is shameful how many times good-sized fish have been lost as a result of using old, leaked lines. The usual fish you hear of is "The line was over the last time I used it, but you never heard of it last time." This is a very true statement. This is a very vital item of equipment and, regardless of how little you may feel it should be replaced, it should be replaced immediately to insure success.

The reason why fishing tackle will often fail at an official tournament, in the opinion of Robert D. Hall, Salt Water Editor, Sports Afield Magazine, is usually because of their being worn or frayed, or because of improperly tied knots. One of the most common causes for line failure is a worn and frayed line groove, which will create a surprising amount of damage to a new line. The average state-of-the-art line are not hard enough to withstand modern lines, such as Dacron, nylon or monofilament. Rod mountings can be replaced with ones that will resist this friction, a small price to pay for the advantages of using these new lines. Tackle retailers and shops or copywriting guides and lists are available.

So, the next time you lose a record-sized fish, don't blame or put the blame on faulty gear, you may be guilty, or neglect.

Air Power Topic Of Panel Session At Gaudineer

The vocational guidance program will be the topic of a panel session at the Air Force Academy, a panel of speakers on air power.

Col. Fred Hill of the Air Force Academy showed a film and discussed briefly the results of conducting the Air Force of a future. He and Capt. Paul Worthen of the U. S. Army Civil Air Depot spoke on the education of the Air Force to tomorrow's Air Force. Hill and Worthen are both graduates of the Air Force Academy.

...served the week of June 20-July 4 during which he hopes to "make all homeowners more aware of the precautions they may take to prevent burglaries this summer.

The chief pointed out that homeowners inadvertently leave traps to would-be burglars that they are away, such as a porch cluttered with circulars, an accumulation of milk bottles on the porch, an unlocked door, an empty garage with the door open, or a bulging mailbox.

He added that a completely darkened house at night, or one with the same light burning continuously, is a sure sign that no one is home.

Selander listed the following precautions for vacationers:

1. Connect a jump to an automatic timer to vary lights in the home on and off each evening. Close and lock all doors, including porch, basement and garage. Use up-tumbler cylinder locks on outside entrances and safety latches on the windows.
2. Be sure all screens are fastened from the inside.
3. Never leave valuables lying around; keep them in a safety deposit box.
4. If you are leaving for a vacation, notify your neighbor to watch for you.
5. Notify your police department when you'll be leaving and how long you expect to be away.
6. Cancel all deliveries, such as the milk, laundry, cleaning, etc. Also be sure to discontinue the newspaper or arrange to have it sent to your vacation home.
7. Have a neighbor or your postoffice hold all mail until you return.
8. Arrange with a friend to mow the lawn and sweep your sidewalk once a week. Also ask him if he'll pick up any circulars or handbills that may be left on your porch.
9. Wear your shades and blinds as you normally do, but also make an effective screen for the burglar.
10. Never advertise your departure with an item in the local paper. Give the story about your vacation to the newspapers after you've returned.

Tips for TODAY'S HOMEMAKER

From MARY ARMSTRONG, County Home Agent

Nation's Associated Greens Make A Pleading Salad Bowl

"A green salad, please," is a request made more and more by all kinds of restaurants and by both men and women. And this is one step toward optimum nutrition.

It matters not whether the salad be served as an appetizer or a hearty offering for the lunch-hour mainstay. It's a source of vitamins and minerals.

And even apart from the infinite variety of dressing possible, a green salad can be composed of a wide choice of ingredients. If you find yourself in the rut of serving the same type of salad week in and week out, just take a look around the produce counter.

Several salad vegetables are seasonally plentiful, now and come to us through speedy shipment from local growing areas.
