Slabber Of Youth Sought By Police; Victim In Hospital

A Summit youth who was stabbed in the abdomen Saturday in a fight in Springfield involving many persons remained under sedation at Overlook Hospital, Summit, as of Tuesday and could not be questioned by police.

Police said they found the knife that was used on the victim.

They could not determine ownership until the young man could be questioned.

Police said the fight took place in a nearby parking area of the Huttman and Bayle Co.

Questioning of more than 15 persons by police failed to reveal the real cause of the conflict or the name of the knife wielder. Lemmon had to undergo surgery, but his condition was then listed as satisfactory.

Police Chief Wilbur C. Handley, who led the investigation, said police were not sure how many persons might have been involved. All those known to have been involved were in their 20's, he said.

YOUNGSTERS ORGANIZE

Anyone (12 To 16) For Chess?

Any youngsters for chess? A newly organized group of chess enthusiasts in Springfield is looking for fellow chessmen to swell the ranks of a club which now consists of five members.

Sponsoring the drive to enlist new members, ages 12 to 16, are Scott Gordon, 13, founder of the group, and Myron Meisel, 12. Scott is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dymon Gordon of 25 Lyons pl. Myron is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Meisel of 45 Janet Lane. Both boys will be eighth-graders at Florence Gaudin Junior-Senior High School.

The two have been playing the game since they were about five years of age — a fact attested to by their respective parents.

The club, which is still in its organizational stages, meets daily in the backyard of the Gordon residence. Weekly sessions are planned during school months.

Scott and Myron have mapped out an unofficial system of determining a player's classification. The players are rated from beginners to senior masters. Ten points is given to a game winner and five to each player in the event of a stalemate. Losses are assessed five points.

Eventual aim of the club is to join the U.S. Chess Federation, thereby qualifying for a certificate of membership as well as a copy of the federation's official monthly publication. A file of news clippings on chess has been started, and a library of chess books is planned so members may keep abreast of happenings concerning the game.

Interested persons may contact Scott at Drexel 9-9642, or Myron at Drexel 9-3371.

district. An access road is needed to keep an entrance into the pool parking lot.

These are the major questions in which the township seeks answers, Falkin has pointed out, however, that questions concerning the overall alignment of Rt. 78 through the township also need answers. Last week the Township Committee again held over a variance request of the Houdaille or M.L.L. Quarry Co. (Houdaille) because of uncertainty of the route.

Falkin and members of the Township Committee met in Trenton with members of the State Highway Department some eight weeks ago to obtain answers to the same questions.

They have been in contact with the state almost weekly since that time trying to get information. Last week they asked Edgar Y. Cipson, assistant director, Department of Roads, State Highway Department, to assist in getting the information.

Cipson said that this was not his area and proposed that another letter be sent to the state. He told the committee that he thought they had not got an answer in their previous letter because of an oversight.

At that time Councilman Vincent Bonaguidi commented that he had been dealing with the highway department for some seven years on the Mt. 78 matter and that apparently everything they did not wish to answer was closed as an oversight.

Falkin said this week that he was determined to get the required answers from the state.

Playground Figures On Attendance Show Drain By Swim Pool

Pointing to low registration and attendance figures at the township's eight playgrounds, Recreation Director Ed Ruby said this week that the opening of the swimming pool had drawn youngsters away from summer playground recreation programs.

Total registration at all the playgrounds stands at 870, Ruby said, while other years at this time, registration was in the neighborhood of from 1,200 to 1,300.

Attendance figures present a picture with playgrounds like Henshaw registering 135 and

Hearing Aug. 21 On 2 Ordinances Of Health Board

Final hearing on two Board of Health ordinances will be held at 8:30 a.m. Aug. 21, in the Municipal Building, 137 for action in the Public Health-Nuisance Code of New Jersey and the future of unattended laundry.

The New Jersey Code, it was explained, was presented to put teeth into the municipal code. The code covers everything from any matter, condition or act which is, or may become, an annoyance, or interfere with the comfort or well being of the inhabitants of this community; to regulations covering proper location of certain houses and structures, inspection of premises and a section against spitting on the sidewalks or interior of any public building.

The laundry ordinance, brought before the board originally in June, and defeated, is an amended ordinance allowing laundrettes to operate without supervision until 6 p.m.

The proposed law provides however that such businesses may be conducted only when the management is under the supervision of someone in an adjacent store. The name of the person to be called in times of emergency must be posted in the laundrette and be registered with the board of health.

Dr. Robert Milligan, board member, explained that he was completely satisfied with the municipal pool from a health standpoint.

College Grads Train At NSC For Teaching

Students who have obtained liberal arts degrees from 17 different colleges are currently enrolled at Newark State College, Union, preparing to qualify for teaching posts in the fall.

Typical of the group, who have arrived at their teaching goal through a variety of interests, are Miss Shawna Kopf and Bernard Paulman, both of Union.

Shawna, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kopf, of 1214 Summit ave., Union, graduated last month from Rutgers, Newark. Although teaching on the elementary level was her ultimate goal, she majored in political science planning to pick up teaching credits after she collected her sheepskin.

Paulman, who lives with his wife and son at 808 Cedar ave., Union, is typical of many of the graduate students who tried other fields before realizing that teaching was their real vocation. Paulman, who graduated in 1953 where he majored in business, insurance and real estate consultant for several years. His business interests will take a back seat in September when he becomes a member of the faculty of Greenbrook School in South Brunswick.

Also enrolled in the course which will earn them provisional teaching certificates are graduates of Fairleigh Dickinson, Douglass, Upsala, Rider, Hunter, Skidmore, Ohio Wesleyan, Minnesota, Drew, Columbia, Bethany, Cheyney State, St. Joseph's, King's College, and Morris Brown College of Atlanta, Ga. The group includes majors in civ. music, history, political science, Spanish, psychology, physical education, physical therapy, home economics, economics, merchandising, English, business administration, and science.

The future teachers are taking a pattern of courses under Dr. Cathryn Eisenhardt and observe demonstration classes taught by Austin Byrne. The approximately 35 students are part of the 2,000 summer students enrolled at Newark State, which according to a report issued this week by Commissioner of Education Frederick M. Haublinger, has the largest summer enrollment of any of the six state colleges. There are 7,000 students in summer sessions in the six state colleges. Newark State is second with a total of 1,850 summer students and the balance are divided between Paterson, Jersey City, Gloucester and Montclair.

WHO'S TEACHING WHOM? Children in the summer sessions at Newark State College, Union, all in semi-orole around Miss Shawna Kopf and Bernard Paulman, both of whom are studying this summer at NSC for provisional teaching certificates which will qualify them to teach in the fall. Observing and apot teaching in the children's class is part of the course of study for the graduate students. Helping the prospective teachers to hone their teaching methods are, from left, Ilene Karph, Shelley Eglow, Paul Ambrase, Nancy Callahan, Gary Casel and Beth Schanken.

Expensive Items Lost In Burglary

The home of Dr. and Mrs. Martin Masterson of 1882 Quacker way, Union, was broken into last week and an $850 mink stole and other items were stolen.

Dr. Masterson, who is a dentist in Irvington, told Union police other items missing included a $100 portable typewriter, a $50 black transistor radio and a girl's yellow-gold watch, value unknown.

Police said entry was made by forcing a rear door, and the entire house was ransacked. It happened sometime Tuesday night or early Wednesday, the homeowner said.

Work To Begin At Warinanco On Round Lounge For Skaters

Work will begin next week on an ultra-modern skaters lounge in the Round, adjacent to the Warinanco Park Ice Rink in Elizabeth and Roselle.

Construction contracts totaling $142,011 were awarded last Tuesday by the Union County Park Commission for the spectacular building which will serve as an ice skaters' "warming room," snack bar and general headquarters for rink facilities.

The structure will measure 210 feet around and 70 feet across. A shell of styrofoam will house the skaters' lounge, lavatory facilities, storage lockers, dressing room, snack bar and manager's office around the periphery and a lounge in the center. The lounge will be equipped with an open hearth fireplace covered by a circular copper hood. A bright, warm color scheme is anticipated for the interior.

Workers are currently dismantling two "snapapart" steel temporary buildings at the rink site. Construction work will begin next week on the round building and is expected to be complete when the outdoor skating season opens in mid-October.

The lounge-in-the-round was designed by the Elizabeth architectural firm of Kaufman and Mc Murray. Dan Mc Carron and Son of Elizabeth was awarded the $90,038 contract for general construction. Other contracts awarded are Schrenell Co. of Newark plumbing, $12,079; Parker Sheet Metal, Pine Brook, ventilating, $10,018, and the George Schorer Co. of Kenilworth electrical work and heating, $19,980.

The men are William J. Lass of 1758 Oak Hill dr. and Joseph A. Rogues of 304 Broadwell ave., both Alrmen Third Class, and Gary A. Gray of 834 Grayview ave., who is an Alrman Second Class.

The men have assisted in the setting up of a casualty staging area in a base hangar. This training included the processing, treatment and preparation of patients for transport to specialized military hospitals, under a wartime type of situation.

The squadron, which is composed of physicians, nurses, medical corporals and administrative personnel, trains at McGuire AFB one week-end a month and takes the 15-day training period on an annual basis.

Car Owner Reports Saws, Drills Stolen

A Millburn man reported to Union police last week that about $700 worth of saws, drills and other tools were stolen from his station wagon while it was parked at the Brookside Swim Club.

Leonard North, the victim, told police the front side window was broken into and the tools removed. He said the theft occurred between 8 and 8 p.m. last Wednesday.

FOR MONTEIRO: TOMORROW THE WORLD

Wins U.S. Title, Looks Ahead To World Accordion Contest

Entering world competition is the dream of accomplished accordionist Edward Monteiro of Union. But he says he's not yet ready. Two years from now, though, he will be, the youngsters say.

Eddie, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Monteiro of 2711 Hickory rd. Union, recently took top honors in national accordion competition in Chicago. He won over a field of 56 entrants from all the U.S. All, like himself, were 15-year-oldsters.

While in the Windy City, Eddie demonstrated the newest accordion on the market at a workshop of the Accordion Teachers Guild, the same group which sponsored the contest. He won. The boy's teacher, Charles Nunzio of Nutley, was on hand to describe the instrument to the gathering.

The youngster returned home with the trophy he was awarded for taking first place in the accordion competition, and word from the ATG that he may be selected to attend a special music camp in Michigan. The latter is still pending, Eddie noted last week. He stated by the way, that it was his playing of Tschikowsky's "Vivita Concerto" that helped him to win the Chicago event. He noted that while that selection is 15 pages of music in length, it only took ten minutes to play.

The young accordionist first began playing nine years ago. He won his first contest in 1959, a $100 prize, that in 1960 in an ATG-sponsored contest to Nutley. The following year, Eddie took top honors in an American Accordion Association contest in New York, and won a scholarship that enabled him to continue his studies under Nunzio.

The youngster continues to visit his tutor once weekly. He has been the practice over the years.

Now, Nunzio has another student under his tutelage. Eddie's brother, John, who will enter the fourth grade at Battletown School, Union, in the fall. Undoubtedly, some of his brother's interest in the instrument rubbed off on John, who only recently began taking lessons under Nunzio. The latter taught Donald Hulme, 23, of Belleville, who became a world champion accordionist in 1961. Hulme, now a professional, is scheduled to open at the Americana Hotel in San Juan, Puerto Rico, next month.

Eddie, who has played at hospital fund-raising events, differs and, on other occasions — makes it a special practice to perform for retarded and crippled children such Christmas. He has given such performances at St. Mary's Hospital in Passaic and at St. Joseph's Hospital, Paterson.

The young virtuoso, who practices from three to five hours a day, says that world competition is at least two years away. As far as he is concerned, he prefers to wait until he knows he's ready. At that time, Eddie will be 17.

A graduate of Burnett Junior High School, he plans to enter Union High School in the fall as a freshman.

'SECONDS' OFTEN ARE BARGAINS, SHOP WITH CARE

All kinds of bargains are featured at this time of year. When you meet a bargain face-to-face stop and think before you buy.

Too often, money is thrown away on a bargain that isn't even worth the reduced price, says Carolyn Yuknus, associate home agent.

Bargains do exist, often in the form of "seconds." The overall definition of a "second" is that the merchandise has some imperfection that has occurred during the manufacturing process.

The imperfection could be as insignificant as a pulled thread or a slub in the weaves in a tablecloth or sheet, such minor flaw might hardly be noticeable. But the same flaw in a dress or coat might be glaringly obvious.

A "second" should be labeled as such. "Seconds" are not to be confused with "irregulars." This means seconds whose imperfections are limited to irregularities in size, proportion, color or weaves.

If obvious defects are missing, a clearly marked "second" can be a good buy. However, do avoid "seconds" at a first quality price.

You can do this by taking a few precautions when buying fabric by the yard or a complete garment. Always examine the weave, color, finish, dimension and the construction of a garment closely. Hold the fabric up to the light to note smooth, even yarns, unless uneven yarns are used on purpose for texture. Thin spots may be caused by uneven or broken yarns.

In yardage look for grain, regular selvages. The grain should run straight across from selvage to selvage. This is especially important in wash and wear materials, because the grain cannot be straightened before cutting when cross-resistant finishes have been applied.

The color should be uniform. Stray or blotchy areas mean poor dye penetration. In printed garments the design should be distinct, regular and properly repeated. A faint mark on these garments is that the design is not matched at the seams.

When you look for construction, note the seams for proper sewing. Check for pocket symmetry of sleeves, pockets and collars. The garment may look even on the hanger, but a truer test is to fold the garment down the middle.

MRS. LILLIAN JOHNSON - CREATING BEAUTY FROM THE ORDINARY

Artist... Author... Teacher... And Poolside Creative Arts Director

By RUTH WARTELL

Art has its place in the living room and in the garage, the back yard, the living room, and the cellar — at 143 Ballou was the home of the Lillians.

To Mrs. Lillian Johnson, artist, author, and teacher who is now directing the new arts and crafts program at the Municipal pool, this abundance of beauty intermingled with her everyday life seems perfectly natural.

In addition to her volunteer work as chairman of the newly formed arts and crafts program, Mrs. Johnson teaches day classes at St. Elizabeth's Academy in Covent, evening adult classes at Dayton Regional High, and individual students, many of whom became interested through their work at the adult classes, and is a graduate of the Newark School of Fine and Industrial Art, where she has taught at Saturday classes for children. Primarily a sculptress — "because that's what I'm best at" — she had a one-woman show in Newark in 1954 and has won a number of awards in her field.

In her opinion expending a large sum of money for a painting shows only the superficial approach to art, which she believes is something to live with rather than just look at. In her own home she uses sculpture and decorative objects in the casual way one treats friends as contrasted with just "company."

Museum guards notwithstanding, Mrs. Johnson not only believes that art belongs in everyday life but that, where sculpture is concerned, it should be touched. "You instinctively move to touch it, which is a nice compliment," she exclaimed during the interview as she pointed out a figurine in a strikingly veined dark-red wood. "Sculpture, by virtue of being three-dimensional, is made to be touched."

The piece in question was a clear but abstract depiction of Moses. In its asceticism resembling a Christ image — "perhaps I achieved this effect subconsciously" — it had a fine straightness in keeping with the closely held tablets of the law. Blending into the folds of the robe, hardly broke the vertical line. Implicit in every line of the sensitive head, in the eyes that seemed there without being defined, was the look of the dreamer.

"Good story material" was the artist's terse comment on this piece done in paduk wood and essentially less stylized than representational. Another piece of sculpture in the living room, however, was an abstraction which had been shown at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Done in a slim shaft of applexwood, it conveyed a concentrated effect of movement teaching upward. Its creator remembered with evident pleasure that the spirit of response it had evoked with evident recognition of this dominant quality, and added that she called it "Relieve after the rising movement of battle."

In a corner stood an attenuated figure of a bird in zebra wood. "It was a strange piece of wood, so long and skinny," she said in explaining the startling but effective proportions of the creature, from whose bent neck the beak extended to the floor like a long sword.

Characteristically the various pieces of sculpture showed a clean stripping of detail incidental to the artist's emotional intent, expressed in the joy of a craftsman in adapting the form to the material with an absolute harmony, and displayed a zeal for attacking a whole gamut of different materials.

breadth of her interests. A woman of rich exuberance, she does not stop to analyze where one art form leaves off and another begins. If you ask her to distinguish between art and crafts on the one hand and sculpture on the other, she will tell you that there is no real line of demarcation between the two.

She referred to passing to her treatment of the question in a pioneering text she has authored on the subject of modeling in paper-mache, in which she describes this pliable medium as "another form of sculpture, once techniques are perfected. She has written a book on sculpture also.

Besides her primary interest in sculpture, she paints, writes, and gardens. A painting of one of her own calls "Lilies hangs in her living room."

To some people a flower garden may be sacrosanct, but to this artist the feathery leaves and luminous bloom of a program which opened at the pool about a week ago with 75 youngsters in attendance exist with a minimum charge of $1 for a wide assortment of materials and supplies in which they can happily find self-expression.

For healthy recreation, as exemplified by the increased participation in the pool, she has been creative. She has worked with obvious intensity that she enjoyed it. However, she is not a living reminder — she agreed that the necessity for art to be taken up by children or displays in her home, which is a drag on their production. She included a number of panels on federal buildings, therefore, for increased government aid in such forms as commissions, and she has been active in planning a demonstration of the project. This project will depend on the local arts and crafts center, and the arts and the community and the artist.

She recalled that she had been enabled as a student to pay for tuition and supplies by working as a student helper under the Federal Arts Project of the Roosevelt War Relocation Administration. The project she said, had kept a lot of artists alive who couldn't have existed otherwise.

If teaching raises her enthusiasm, one main reason is that the opportunity helps people to participate in art. She actively she feels is as important as passive enjoyment in making art a meaningful part of contemporary life.

She sees as paradoxical the effect of the machine in taking over the functions of the craftsman, but at the same number of people taking up

Olympic Lists Half-Price Mondays

Mondays in August, starting next week, will be "half-price days" at Olympic Park. The Irvington Maplewood amusement park will cut the price of admission in half for the four Mondays.

Also due Monday is a new, free circus featuring the Corons troupe, a family of Czech light-ropes walkers, Vic and Joe, Argentine clown-skaters, and the Alberto Zoppa trained horse and dog act, round-out-the-bill.

The Egony Brothers, Danish acrobats, are this week's feature, through Sunday.

Olympic's 4th annual baby parade, one of the country's oldest competitions for profit children, is scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 22.

INDEED, FOR THIS sculptress everything in the wide world of art offers creative scope — is included in the

AS ONE WHO CAN NOT see boxes and marshmallows in unexpected contexts, Mrs. Johnson naturally claims an unorthodox location for this studio. While other artists conventionally cling to garrets, she has cast her lot in "a hole" — her basement where her plaster for casting is stored in a bright new garage and such studio necessities as a table, stool, chair, and light fixture, along with the domestic appliances, like a stove, sink, and refrigerator, are neatly tucked away in the utility room and garage.

"The question of how many pieces she was actually working on at the studio, not other parts of the house, she says, and over the garage, she just laughed lightly. When asked of her attitude toward teaching, which time creating takes time, which means "a greater need

According to Mrs. Johnson's own plan, even those from the same background will be simultaneously utilized and beautified. She envisions the transformation of the city into a treasure chest, scraps of brown rubber into animals, log scraps into birds, empty cylinders into boats, broken tin cans into baskets decorated with discarded wallpaper, and tin snips with attached rulers into comic figures, Java tin cans, and translucent grape paper into collages — a plentifully endless list of items which, with audience imagination and the children's own natural intuition can be adapted for different uses than they were intended.

This approach, she emphasizes, is more creative because it gives children an opportunity to make something useful from an unexpected source rather than merely copying from nature.

Mrs. Johnson sees the pool as a real need by giving such a creative outlet. She sees that some degree of talent is present in every child — "the more talented ones of course do better" — and that practically the only children who are not creative are those who don't get the opportunity to express themselves. As limitations to such opportunity, she cites the high cost of materials and also parental "fastidiousness" about damage to well-kept furnishings from working with artistic paraphernalia.

THE MOTHER OF TWO children — Susan, 15, and 10-year-old Eugene who, much to her delight, will study at art school in the fall — this artist-teacher finds children the most apt pupils. "They're uninhibited, not afraid to fool around with materials and see what happens, whereas their elders, more concerned with hygienic something home to show off, are not content to start with anything less than a portrait."

The discussion about children reminded her that one of her young protégés was then at work in the backyard "studio" — the roof of a colonnade of branching trees, the earthy floor mottled with washed wood chips from the carvings of a succession of students, the furnishings wooden tables and benches. "A little girl was working in clay — her project a sort of ragged-bellied impatiens, an impromptu toppling of a wooden door.

FOOD POISONING
The summer months generally bring an increase in the number of people who are the victims of food poisoning. The most frequent cause is a poison produced by staphylococcus germs, which are both very vigorous and commonplace. These are the same germs that cause pimples and boils on the skin, and inflammation in the throat of the nose and throat. They thrive at room temperature in certain foods, especially meats, dressings, such as mayonnaise, and custard or cream pastries. While growing in food these germs produce a poison or toxin, which is irritating to the gastrointestinal tract. Although cooking kills the germs, it does not destroy the poison which they produce.

If food thus invaded and infected is allowed to stand at room temperature for five hours or more, those who eat it will probably become ill in from two to four hours. The symptoms have nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, cramps and prostration.

There are two ways to guard against this type of food poisoning. First, we must try to keep food from being contaminated by staphylococcus germs — not undertaking to prepare it with unclean hands, or if there are any infections on the exposed surface of the skin or symptoms of nose or throat inflammation. Second, all susceptible foods should be kept under refrigeration until it is to be served.

Diagonal - New Angle For Fabrics

by CAROL KURNON
Associate Home Agent

Diagonal fabric will be a fashion feature for the fall season. Whether you will be buying or making a dress with a diagonal weave, it is important to know how this fabric should be handled.

A diagonal is any fabric woven with a diagonal rib or bias effect, either imbedded or raised, on the face of any material in regular repeat formation. The diagonal runs from the lower left hand corner of the goods to the upper right hand corner.

Some of the more subtle diagonal weaves are familiar in materials such as flannel, coverwool, or silk serge, gabardine, silk, serge, denim, whipcord, and drill. They are usually treated as non-diagonal fabrics because the diagonal line is almost indistinguishable.

Fall fashions will feature unmistakable and prominent rib lines or twill weaves. These materials will require careful selection of pattern and special cutting directions.

Patterns for these diagonal materials should have not-in-slopes. Raglan sleeve design will require special cutting procedures. Patterns should have slim skirts, since flared skirts will force the diagonal line to run in different directions.

Simple classic designs without intricate scanning detail will keep the diagonal line going in one direction. Many patterns are marked "not suitable for this fabric."

To achieve a chevron effect the diagonal fabric must be woven so that the wrong side is exactly the same as the right side. Cut the fabric in two equal lengths and place one length on top of the other so that one "right" side and one "wrong" side are next to each other.

Additional fabric is needed when you plan to use a diagonal for a chevron effect. Patterns that feature an interesting way of using diagonal material usually include special cutting directions.

As with any fashion feature, there will be both good and bad applications of the diagonal. Check the design carefully for the diagonal to run all in the same direction. Or for a chevron effect, that the points of the diagonal match.

Since more time and material is required in creating the diagonal effect, garments that are cut correctly will be more expensive, while ill or miss use of diagonals will be found in cheaper garments.

63 Dimes Sponsored Centers Treat Birth Defects, Arthritis

Local chapters of the March of Dimes finance 63 treatment centers for victims of birth defects and arthritis, including two evaluation clinics.

The information was volunteered this week by Edward J. Whelan, chairman of the Union County chapter of the National Foundation for the Prevention of Blindness, which was founded in 1947. It was just five years ago when the nation's largest voluntary health organization, after its conquest of polio, announced a new scientific assault on two major cripples — birth defects and arthritis.

This historic decision, Whelan explained, "was reached after March of Dimes contributions had financed the successful development of the Salk vaccine, the weapon that ended infantile paralysis as a public health problem in this country."

A concrete and dramatic example of the new March of Dimes program in Union County, Whelan said, is to be seen in the National Foundation sponsored birth defect center in Babes Hospital, Newark, and the arthritis center in Seton Hall College of Medicine and Dentistry, Jersey City. Medical Center, Jersey City, both clinics having been sponsored by grants of March of Dimes funds.

The Babes unit, which has held clinics weekly since February, 1962, can provide comprehensive diagnostic and therapeutic services for most any eligible child with a congenital defect through the existing facilities of the United Hospitals of Newark.

Whelan said that, since the treatment center for patients with juvenile rheumatoid arthritis was established in Jersey City in February, 1960, almost 300 patients have been referred to it. A special juvenile clinic held Thursday mornings in the out-patient department.

The local chapter chairman said he wanted to extend his deep appreciation of his organization "to the thousands in our county who supported our new program from its start."

"In arthritis and rheumatic disease," he continued, "which afflict 11 millions in the United States, we have dynamic leadership by the nation's top scientists and physicians. We have brought to reality new concepts of care for arthritis sufferers. We have a research program that highly qualified scientists believe will lead to major breakthroughs in the foreseeable future," Whelan declared.

Warns That Some Are Losing Out On Social Security

"Some persons who are over 62 years of age and still working may be losing out on social security benefit payments," Ralph W. Jones, District Manager of the Social Security Administration in Elizabeth, said this week.

A person past retirement age can earn as much as $1200 in a calendar year and receive payments for each month of the year. And persons who earn over $1,200 in a year may be paid partial payments.

The law provides that a person can have earnings of $1200 in $700 per year, and receive one-half the amount of earnings in excess of $700 up to $1700.

Some persons who are 62 years of age or older and whose earnings are less than $3048 yearly get in touch with your social security office about your eligibility for benefits," he said.

Residents of Union County should contact the office at 268 North Broad St., Elizabeth.

Warns That Some Safety Council Points Up Need To Know Sign Requirements

In pointing up the need for regulations concerning stop and yield signs, the Massachusetts State Safety Council made that 22,400 drivers were found guilty of disregarding such signs in the state last year.

The "stop" sign regulation, according to the council, requires that no driver of a vehicle shall enter upon or cross an intersecting street marked with a stop sign unless he has brought his vehicle to a complete stop at a point within five feet of the nearest crosswalk or stop line marked upon the pavement at the nearest side of the intersecting street, and shall proceed only after yielding the right of way to all traffic on the intersecting street which is so close as to constitute an immediate hazard.

The council emphasizes that the "yield" sign of any type, including triangular and black letter and border calls for the same respect as the "stop" sign. The "yield" sign also calls for a full stop, as does the "stop" sign if it is necessary. And a driver failing to stop under such a condition can be charged with a violation, the Council states.

The council also points up the fact that no driver of a vehicle shall enter upon or cross an intersecting street marked with a "yield right of way" sign without slowing to a reasonable speed for existing conditions and yielding the right of way to all traffic on the intersecting street which is so close as to constitute an immediate hazard; unless, in either case, he is otherwise directed to proceed by a traffic or police officer or traffic control signal.

Approximately 500 people turned out Monday night to watch the 1963 New Jersey A.A.U. senior men's and women's high diving championships held at the Springfield Municipal Pool.

When Springfield's two local hopefuls, Fred Brown and Les Gerber, were announced as finalists, the local rooting section came alive.

CA Brown attempted a back one and one-half somersault with two and one half twists. He executed the dive to the tune of 4000 points and victory.

Gerber, a one-meter champion, is along with Brown a representative of the Summit YMCA.

Tornado--A Laugh To Us Here-- But It Could Become A Reality

Tornadoes, a phenomenon associated mostly with the central and southern states, can in fact occur any place in the United States at any time of year.

While many may laugh at the prospect of a tornado occurring in the New Jersey Division of Civil Defense and Disaster Control is concerned enough to alert the serious minded to the possibility and to advise simple precautions.

CD points out that tornadoes usually occur on hot sticky days with southerly winds and a threatening, ominous cloud.

Familiar thunderstorm clouds are present, CD says. An hour or two before a tornado, topsy-turvy clouds appear, sometimes being down instead of up.

Tornadoes occur mostly between 3 and 7 p.m., but they have occurred at all hours, CD advises. In most cases, they move from a westerly or south-ly direction at 35 to 40 miles per hour average. They have varied from stationary to 40 miles per hour. The average width is about 400 yards, but they have cut swaths more than a mile wide.

A tornado usually travels from 10 to 40 miles, with an average of 16 miles. They have been known to travel 300 miles. The speed of the wind inside one has been estimated at up to 300 mph.

Violent winds cause injury and destruction by uprooting trees, destroying buildings and creating a vacuum inside from objects blown through the air.

People in homes without basements, just sometimes he protects by taking cover under heavy furniture against inside walls.

In factories and industrial plants, a lookout should be posted after a tornado warning is received to keep safety officials advised of the tornado's approach.

Advance preparations should be made for removing workers to sections of the plant offering the greatest protection.

"Above all, keep calm," CD advises. "It may not be so exciting. People have been killed by running out into streets and by turning back into the path of a tornado.

A further advisory is to keep tuned-in radio or TV stations for latest forecast information, and to not call the weather bureau, except to report a tornado.

An individual request could be up telephone lines for radio and TV stations for dissemination to thousands in the critical area.

JACK STERLING, who stars in Meredith Wilson's hit family musical, "The Music Man," currently at the Gladiators Music Arena, Totowa, it runs until Sunday.

THE Golden Years

A good and conscientious husband comes forward with a new plan to pass his money on to his wife and children when he dies.

"I have life insurance with several companies," he says, "and when I pass on, the money will be frozen and left with the companies. However, Mama can write to any or all of the companies and request that they start sending her a check each month for up to $50 a month.

In addition, should she desire, she may write any or all of the companies and request an additional check each year of up to $500 a year."

"It is understood between the insurance companies and me (not Mama and me) that if anything is left when Mama passes away, the balance will be divided among our four children. Should any of the four be deceased at that time, the share would be divided among our three surviving children.

"The plan takes Mama off the spot. What I leave behind for Mama. With it left in this way she has enough to live as she sees fit. But if someone comes in Mama's estate for something, their marriage, or buy them a couple of thousand, Mama is off the spot. She can't get that kind of money.
