Town To Answer Taxpayers' Suit On Nursing Home

Committee Names; Township Attorney; Makes No Comment

Township attorney James M. Cawley this week will answer charges to a taxpayers' suit that the Township Committee acted illegally in approving a special exception use permit to Valeo, Inc. to construct a convalescent home on the corner of Mountain ave. and Shunpike rd.

It was named without comment by the Township Committee Tuesday to defend the suit.

Later Cawley said that he has been served by Valeo with notice of the application to intervene in the defense of the suit. Murray Simon, attorney for Valeo, has said that the firm has no intention of withdrawing application for the $200,000 facility.

The suit, which names the Township Committee and Otto Essler, building inspector, as defendants, was filed in Superior Court Feb. 24, by Lewis Weinberg, attorney for 17 residents of the Shunpike Association area, including Nick Montano, president of the group, and Ernest Weigle, its president. It asks that the special exception use that would permit construction of the convalescent home be put aside and that Essler be restrained from issuing a building permit pending outcome of the suit.

The special exception use was approved by the Township Committee Jan. 14 upon the recommendation of the Board of Adjustment.

Stamler Rejects Proposed Road Through County

Proposed Road Through Garden State Parkway

Proposed road through Garden State Parkway with the Garden State Parkway Authority. Stamler said that he has not been given details of the suggestion by Sen. Charles W. Summers of Cape May but that such a road would pass through the area and through Springfield and Union.

"I oppose most strenuously any proposal which would further chop up these town with roads," Stamler said. "The Merrittown-Parkway link is one of three road proposals announced last week by Sandman, a fellow Republican and president of the group, and Sandman said that the roads would not cut the taxpayers' cent because they would be financed by bonds to be sold independent of the township. The Merrittown link, for example, would come under the Garden State Parkway Authority.

The other two roads under consideration are: from Toms River to New Brunswick connecting the Garden State Parkway with the New Jersey Turnpike and from the Boardman exit of the Turnpike to Ashbury Park.

Stamler said that he is opposed to these roads for fiscal reasons as well. "It's erroneous to compare intra-state roads with interstate money-producers like the Turnpike."

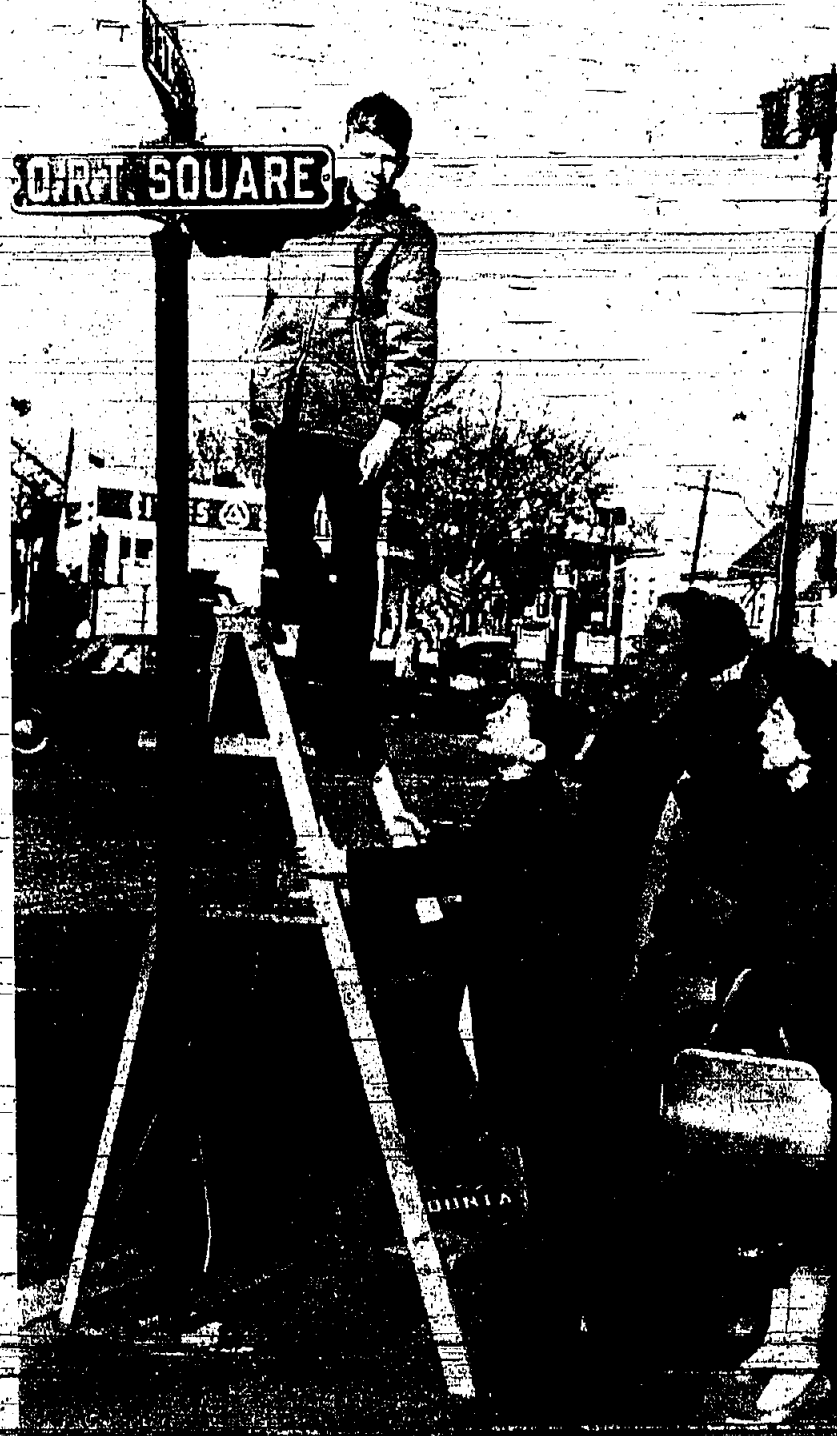

Stamler said that a Merrittown-Parkway link has been offered to relieve traffic on Morris ave. which the long-awaited Highway 78 will not completely solve. "In fact," said the senator from Union County, "we know that Route 78 will cause some problems of its own particularly around Burnet ave."

Candidate Mattice Sees Need For Bi-Partisan Government

Douglas C. Mattice, Democrat, is running for seat on the Springfield Township Committee this week citing a "need for a clearer policy regarding zoning procedures" and "a steady climb in taxes" as indications that "the people of Springfield have had enough of one-party rubber-stamp government."

He is running for public office, he said, because of a "desire to take a more active part in the affairs of the township" and a "need for bipartisan government and thought."

His qualifications for office, he said, are (a) an "ability to listen intelligently to both sides of a question and then to make a decision," and (b) that he considers himself "completely without prejudice toward any group or individual in the community."

Del Vecchio To Send Letters About 'Top'

Taking off on what he termed "a personal attack" Tuesday, Township Committeeman Philip Del Vecchio, a resident of Baltusrol Top, asked and was granted authorization to send three letters pertinent to that area.

He drafted letters asking direct mail delivery to the area, proposing "a service between Mountain side and Summit via Baltusrol rd." and expressing concern over what he considered inadequate lighting on the corner of Summit rd. and High Point dr. where a bus route from the Summit Bus Co. terminal in Mountain side, in the Edges-Jackey-Summit-Summit-in-Summit-Baltusrol rd. in Springfield and Summit. This, he said, would benefit the area and the residents who are not able to drive.

Board Delays Action Action was postponed by the Planning Board last week on the application by Anthony D'Amico, who for final approval of subdivision of two parcels of property on Caldwell pl. into five building lots.

He was asked to show plans for piping a brook on the property in accordance with a requirement of preliminary approval last month.

and that of Jay Bloom as of being Democratic candidate choices, he said. "The Democratic party has chosen two candidates ready, willing and able to promote its policies. If nominated, I will conduct a vigorous campaign at any level of the opposition changes. The opportunity we have had in past years is with us again. Unless we can make the most of it, "I wish to thank members of my party responsible for my selection," he said.

Industrial Group Seeking Relief Of Traffic Woes

Discuss Proposals With Springfield's Traffic Consultant

A spokesman for the Springfield Industrial Committee revealed this week that the group will press for the alleviation of traffic problems in an around the industrial park area.

The spokesman said specific areas of concern have already been discussed with the township's traffic consultant and the next step would be discussions with the Township Committee to find the best way to implement the ideas.

The committee met last week with the traffic expert, Enley Bennett.

Among the proposals, according to the spokesman, were: The implementation of adequate means for safe, exit and entrance to the industrial area in future development.

Intersections Enlargement of the radii of the entrances from Rt. 22 to alleviate traffic congestion at the intersections and acceleration lanes leading to and from the side streets, primarily in the Rt. 22 area.

No parking 300 feet back from intersections in all heavily traveled areas within the industrial park.

And also the need for a traffic signal on the Commerce St. extension.

The committee spokesman said it has been found that the present entrance and exits to the industrial complex are wholly inadequate for the type amount of traffic flow.

Enlarging the entrances from Rt. 22, the spokesman said, is "the only way to give the area some relief."

"The Committee feels there is a real need for a traffic signal at the intersection of this specific problem of traffic and it hopes some relief will be given in the near future," he said.

He said that a walk-in sign for the entrance to the industrial park is being considered, especially in proposals were the Committee, with Bennett, discussing questions.

Named Chairman Of Tercentenary

Miss Helen C. Reever

Miss Helen C. Reever was named chairman of the Springfield Tercentenary Committee by the Township Committee Tuesday, replacing Howard Casselman, who resigned.

In accepting the position Miss Reever said she hopes to expedite the program of the group this month.

Miss Reever, library director in Springfield for 10 years prior to her retirement last month, is employed by the New Jersey Historical Society and is vice president of the Springfield Tercentenary Society.

She has an A. B. degree from the University of Pennsylvania, a B. S. degree from Drexel University School, and an M. A. degree from Columbia University.

Committee To Investigate Possible Redevelopment For Business Properties

A seven-man committee will investigate redevelopment possibilities, including urban renewal, for business property on the north side of Morris ave. west of Main st. The group will meet Wednesday with the Township Committee at 7:30 in the planning board room of the Municipal Building.

Named by the Township Committee Tuesday to serve on what was termed the business area study committee were Donald Rotwein, chairman of the Planning Board; Robert Miller, chairman of the Board of Adjustment; Will Salesky, chairman of the merchants' division of the Chamber of Commerce; Arthur S. Smith, assistant vice president of the National State Bank of Elizabeth and manager of the Springfield branch; Henry Grubbar, past president of the Chamber of Commerce and chairman of a previous committee that investigated urban renewal for this area; Ed Schwartz, chairman of the swim pool committee, and Ellis Armstrong.

Mayor Robert D. Harrelgrove has emphasized the investigatory nature of the group, pointing out that, although the feasibility of obtaining federal urban renewal funds will be explored, this is not necessarily the answer to the problem of revitalizing the area.

Considered In 1962 Urban renewal was considered by a Chamber of Commerce study committee in the spring of 1962. Philip Del Vecchio, mayor at the time, said that the idea was abandoned because of resistance by property owners in the area and because a federal inspector said the area was not sufficiently blighted to qualify.

The Chamber last fall developed a plan to construct a parking lot behind business property from Main St. to Municipal Building Lot 2 as a means of pulling more businesses into the area. The plan was approved by the Board of Adjustment and the Township Committee.

When the Chamber reported to the Township Committee that negotiations had broken down, the matter was thrown to the governing body for solution.

Mrs. Eleanor Worthington, township clerk, said it is not unusual for petitions to come in at the last minute.

Screen Applicants For School Position

The Springfield Board of Education is screening applicants for the position of superintendent of schools, which becomes vacant when Benjamin F. Newswanger retires in June.

The board president, August Caprio, said that a list of job specifications is being drawn up to facilitate the screening process. It is expected to take several months. A strong background in elementary school education heads the list of specifications, he said.

Interviews will be held with the final candidates when the screening is completed, and a consultant might be hired before the final selection is made, Caprio said.

Screen Applicants For School Position

Also Factor

The nature of the community is also a factor to be considered in making the choice, he added. The new superintendent is expected to serve a suburban community in which 70 per cent of the students go on to secondary education, that is, to college or where the average family income is $10,000 a year.

Job specifications and a description of the community are recommendations by County Superintendent of Schools William L. West, who advised the Board on methods of selecting a replacement for Newswanger last week.

Newswanger's resignation, which came in the aftermath of state legislation involving integration of pension money with social security, was accepted with regret by the Board last month.

When Is A Junk Not Really Junk

A motor vehicle is any vehicle not powered by muscular energy, according to law. The law was read Monday night to a young Springfield man charged with towing a junked car without a tow bar. The defendant, who appeared in court in his own defense, Frank J. Zurawski, 21, of 344 Mountain ave., Springfield, the defendant, contended that the car he was towing had no motor in it and was, therefore, not a motor vehicle. He paid a $25 fine, however, after Magistrate Max Sherman read to him the law which defines motor vehicles as follows: "all vehicles propelled otherwise than by muscular power, and which are capable of being used for the purpose of transportation."

Miss Florence Gaudineer Far From Phantom Of Myth And Religion

By MARIAN BROWN
It doesn't take an old-timer to know that the Florence Gaudineer School on So. Springfield ave. was named after Springfield's first school nurse.

But newcomers to the area may not know that Miss Florence Gaudineer, whose deeds are legendary in Springfield, is no phantom of myth and legend, but an alert young woman of 64 whose daily living is guided by a brain-full schedule of activities. She lives at 15 Saller rd. in Maplewood with Miss Harriet Smith, former second grade teacher at the James Caldwell School. Both retired in 1960—Miss Gaudineer after 37 years with the Springfield schools and Miss Smith after 43 years.

The interior walls are adorned with mementoes of the citations that have been awarded to Miss Gaudineer. "I tell Florence she doesn't need wallpaper," Miss Smith declares. "She can just paper the walls with her awards."

Miss Gaudineer's most cherished memento is a hand-printed and hand-illuminated certificate, dated Feb. 6, 1963 and bearing the gold seal of the New Jersey Board of Education, presented to her when the junior school was named in her honor.

The delicately printed letters tell that in her 30 years service to the Board of Education she had given of her own time to the community, been the confidante of agencies concerned with welfare, and that her services had been "conspicuously above the call of duty."

ON THE WALL across the room is the Coelia Gaines Holland Award presented by the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs in 1950. This citation refers to Miss Gaudineer as "second mother to two generations of school children."

In your dual capacity as nurse and attendance officer, you learned there was cause for absence other than illness and truancy. You helped supply children with shoes when shoes were needed and with clothing when they were ashamed to come to school," the citation reads.

It goes on to say that during the depression she had helped "many desperate families" secure funds and assistance through the proper agencies. A brass plaque in the dining room, presented in 1967, names her as Springfield Union's Citizen of the Year. Programs from a dinner-dance given in her honor by Union at the Club Diane told in a brief biography of the well-loved school nurse that it had been her custom to distribute baskets of food prepared by the churches, service clubs, and Junior Red Cross, to the township's needy every Christmas and Thanksgiving.

There are plaques presented by the Lions Club for "out-standing service through the years" in 1959 and by the Rotary Club for "real, authentic and untiring efforts in behalf of the community" in 1962.

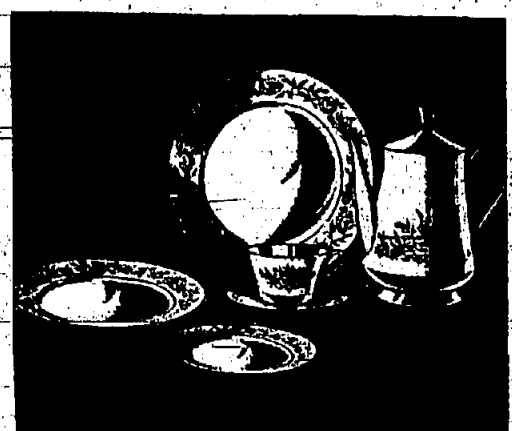

In 1959 she was made an honorary member of the New Jersey Society of Dentistry for Children for inaugurating a program of dental education in Springfield that was applauded throughout the state. Then there are the awards that come by word of mouth and those that are given in print. Her insurance, Alfred Parker, who was named Mrs. Parker's name on the Springfield ave. residence, is a testament to her. The former nurse used to pull him out of a swimming hole at Tooker ave. when he was playing hockey. "I was where they all were when they played hockey," Miss Gaudineer recalls, "and I used to pull them all out." Then she adds, "I never see the wrong idea."

LEADER PROFILE

JAY BLOOM

Jay Bloom is a man to watch. The 32-year-old fledgling politician is just beginning to try his wings in the aerodynamics of political flight, so he doesn't say too much about himself. Gradually, through the months to follow, the portrait of a candidate will emerge.

It has been less than two weeks since he announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Township Committee on the heels of his rejection by the local Democratic organization in favor of original party choice, Selwyn Schechter and Douglas Mattice.

His determination to run anyway indicated a primary battle for a while, until Schechter, deciding that a spring campaign plus a fall campaign would place too great a strain on his business commitments, withdrew.

Bloom was then unanimously selected by the Springfield Democratic County Committee as the party choice along with Mattice.

The young attorney has strong convictions plus a lawyer's shrewdness. And he knows he has not developed the ziltz political phrases that offer both an answer and an out-to-potentially-embarrassing question.

Any question is potentially embarrassing, because for every conviction a person holds there is a battery of opposing convictions.

So it becomes a moral and practical puzzle for a political aspirant to determine when he is carrying his views into honest battle and when he is merely tilting the windmills of opposition.

It should be interesting to watch his views unfold as he develops confidence. These, he says, are among his convictions:

- (a) "The only thing wrong with politics is the people who are not in it."
- (b) Municipal politics is more important than the average person realizes.
- (c) Diversity of opinion is vital on a local level and should be preserved. "If a man disagrees he has a special right to be heard," he said.

BLOOM WAS BORN in Newark in 1932, one of two brothers. His father was an appliance store manager.

When he was graduated from Weequahic High School he won the Busch and Lomb Award for straight A's in science subjects. If he had an award for the greatest improvement, he's have won that, too.

He explained that about halfway through his high school career he realized he wanted to go to college and had to earn good marks to do so. So he buckled down and boasted himself from a mediocre student to the super honor roll.

Although he was not to decide upon a profession until several years later, Bloom showed an inclination for architecture even in high school.

The English class was required to debate a topic on which all the students shared a similar strong view. When Bloom's classmates all refused to argue the unpopular view, he agreed to take the case for the underdog point of view.

He hustled to the library, turned to the necessary reference books and prepared a brief which was so well documented that he won the debate over the opinions of his classmates and his own as well. It was a matter of doing the proper homework.

BLOOM FUNCTIONS BEST when he has decided where he is going. Having decided to go to college, he worked easily and well at high school subjects. In college, he had to decide upon a profession before gaining momentum in his studies. He had to take a year out and work at a variety of jobs to do this.

At Lafayette College in Easton, Pa., he began as a science major with a special interest in the history of science.

Early elective activities included announcing over the college radio station and acting in college productions.

He left school in his junior year, he says, to gain "perspective," and worked at Airborne Accessories in Hillside, Newark Newsdealers Supply and Ballantine Brewery before returning to school.

He was graduated with a B. A. degree in history.

After graduation Bloom volunteered for Army duty and was assigned as a radio operator to the 7th Army Headquarters at Stuttgart, Germany. He served also as a courier of classified information between Stuttgart and Heidelberg.

While in Germany he sent his applications to law schools and took his law aptitude exam at Heidelberg.

HE WON HIS law degree in 1959 from Columbia University.

While clerking for Sidney Krieger of Newark, he "fell in love with the practice of law," he said.

'TERCENTENARY TALES' by John T. Cunningham

An Early Giveaway - N.J. To Duke Of York

Exactly 300 years ago this day, on the 12th of March, 1664, King Charles II of England affixed his approval on a land grant to his brother, James, Duke of York, and thus began the high-land series of events on which New Jersey's year bases its Tercentenary.

Three months later James then disposed of most of the land grant, but in his jurisdiction he retained the name "New Jersey." But that's another story; first James had to get the land himself.

England felt itself the rightful owner of all of North America, and the thought of Dutch colonies lodged between Virginia and Massachusetts irritated the crown. Ever since, those Dutchmen ranked British merchants who hungrily dreamed of the fortunes to be made by trading with an enlarged New World.

Pushed and goaded by the merchants and by the Navy, the Duke of York had little choice. Holland must go, by way if necessary, for a Charles' words, Englishmen "could 'paw' their estates in 'tain a war'."

Actually, though, war seemed unlikely to the councillors gathered about the King. Charles himself declared that New Netherlands "did belong to England, heretofore, but the Dutch drove our people out of it." King Charles erred; England probably had never set a man ashore the Hudson-River, but men bent on war were always notoriously "weak in history."

Events moved swiftly in the first days of March, 1664, although the activity in Whitehall "must have been carried out in almost secret." James Pepps, the inveterate diarist who recorded everything from secret court policy to scandalous court romances, made no mention of the dealings whereby James received his new land.

Another observer, however, wrote that the essential step "occurred but four days after unprecedented event."

The results of these secret March maneuverings are now clearly preserved in a parchment-parishment owned by the New Jersey Historical Society. This document, one of the key New Jersey papers in the collection, is embellished with an engraved portrait of Charles and an ornate engraved border.

Patience is the tool most required in understanding that parchment, for the hand engraving is difficult to follow. Latin introduces and closes the document. Worse, the entire 1,950-word paper contains not one mark of punctuation!

Charles saw the land, now called New Jersey as nothing more than "part of the Mayne land of New England." When he approved the March 12 transfer to "our dearest brother, James Duke of York," he probably had only the vaguest notion of the territory involved.

Apparently trying to hem in New England authorities as well as aiming to dislodge the Dutch, Charles gave the Duke of York "far more than New-Netherlands." The March patent included land in Maine, part of Connecticut, "Martha (Martha's) Vineyards" and "Nantucket" (Nantuxet).

Land and all the acreage southward to the Delaware-River. "Our said dearest brother" James received rights to extract any wealth that he could from "mynes, minerals, quarries" and "fishings, hawking, hunting and fowling." He received as well full and absolute power and authority to correct, punish, pardon, govern and rule all such subjects — as shall from time to time adventure themselves into any of the land.

In return for that right to seek fortunes and to rule with an iron hand, James could be asked to pay annually "fortie beaver skins when they shall be demanded." Land went cheaply in those days, especially in "dearest brother's" of the crown.

The Duke of York and his Navy-advisers acted promptly. James dispatched four ships, 400 men and a deputy governor to take over his new holdings. The fleet sailed westward in May with commanding officer and deputy governor Robert Nicolls earnestly hopeful that he might do his job well, for already a tide of governors had begun in England. The year of 1664 was a time when land meant little in palaces.

And even as his own men were on the high seas bound for New Netherlands, the Duke of York called in Berkeley and Carteret in June and gave away all the territory between the Hudson and the Delaware, Easy come, easy go — but at least in his June largess the Duke did call the land "New Jersey."

New Amsterdam succumbed in late August without firing a shot, although it stubbornly refused to recognize the correctness of King Charles' contention that Dutchmen had no right to live in New Amsterdam. Governor Nicolls assigned the name "Albania" to the region between the Hudson and Delaware Rivers and set about ruling the duke's domain.

Poor Nicolls struggled vainly to do his job well, for already a tide of governors had begun in England. The year of 1664 was a time when land meant little in palaces.

Report From Trenton

by State Senator Nelson F. Stigler (R.N.J.)

A lobbyist, as everyone acquainted with government knows, is a person who attempts to influence legislation in behalf of a particular group. Groups which employ lobbyists or lobbying tactics, in one form or another, include teachers' organizations, labor unions, business and trade associations, medical societies — in fact, almost any kind of an organization you can think of with special interests. Even a citizens' group which organizes to take a particular position on certain legislation can fall into the category of a "lobby."

There's nothing wrong with lobbying per se. In fact, historians tell us it's one of the things our founding fathers had in mind when they wrote into the First Amendment of the United States Constitution "the right of the people . . . to petition the Government for a redress of grievances."

Lobbying takes many forms. It may include distribution of literature, letter writing campaigns, discussions of the pros and cons of certain bills in informal face to face talks with legislators, "formal" appearances before legislative committees, and so forth.

Lobbying also can — and frequently does — cost huge sums of money; for advertising, printing — or sometimes plain writing and stining, and outright political contributions — and here's where the problems begin.

Often a lobbyist will take special pains to conceal the fact that he's pushing legislation for a special interest group which stands to benefit from it. He poses as "just a plain, ordinary public spirited citizen." In fact, there are enough "public spirited citizens" in Trenton to fill the State House; and when the legislature is in session, you can be sure they do.

Some lobbyists have occasional dual identities. This was dramatized last week when a man named Leonard Coyle appeared before the Joint Appropriations Committee as a lobbyist for the Association of Nursing Homes. He came to plead the case against passage of a bill which would provide a $1.50-an-hour minimum wage for nursing home employees. It just so happens that Coyle, in addition to his lobbying activities, is secretary to the Senate Minority — a job by the way which is supposed to be full time, and which pays $9,000 a year. To me, there are serious questions of morality and conflict of interest when a man on the public payroll appears before a legislative committee as a lobbyist for a pressure group.

This is the sort of thing which could be brought before the public eye and better considered through passage of Senate Bill 77-77, designated as "Lobbyist Control Act" which would require the resignation of all lobbyists who the Secretary of State of New Jersey. It also would require the reporting of all funds over $500 contributed or spent relative to lobbying; and it would make violations of this bill a misdemeanor.

The need for passage of this bill should be obvious to every member of the New Jersey Legislature.

Mr. Higgins attended Springfield public schools and was employed as treasurer for the National Railway Publication Co. in New York City until his retirement nine years ago. He was Township Clerk from 1957-1963. He is survived by his wife, Marie.

Blaze Damages Diner On Rt. 22

A fire extensively damaged Swiggle's Colonial Diner on Rt. 22 in Springfield. Firemen fought the "evacuation of patrons and backing up traffic as well as the extinguishing of the fire." Fire officials said the blaze started in the exhaust ducts in the kitchen of the dining-in the westbound lane. There were no injuries among the hundreds of patrons, who were escorted to the regular "diner" by Patrolman George Siesel.

The blaze did extensive damage in each of the diner. Fire Chief Ormond Mosker directed the regular "diner" volunteers, a ladder truck, two engines and a rescue vehicle. The blaze was extinguished in less than two hours.

FIFTH OF A SERIES The Two-Year Public College

STATE, FEDERAL FUNDS APPEAR TO BE COMING TO BUILD 2-YEAR COLLEGES IN N. J.

This is the fifth of seven articles about two-year public colleges prepared by the New Jersey Educational Association. New Jersey's 1962 County College Act, approved by Gov. Hughes recommends an appropriation of $1.7 million in fiscal 1965 for county colleges. With an unspent $200,000 available from fiscal 1964, this would provide almost the State's share for the three colleges already approved. The Legislature must act on the Governor's recommendation.

Fifteen counties are now in various stages of planning a two-year college. Residents of Ocean County approved a referendum in November authorizing their board of freeholders to build one. Freeholders in Ocean and Atlantic counties have passed resolutions authorizing the college and are in the process of naming a board of directors. Cumberland's freeholders are considering a resolution.

Great plans are to build a $1 million college for 900 students, perhaps in three phases for 300 students each. Atlantic's proposal is to build a $2.1 million school for 500 students and to add a second section later for another 500 students. Cumberland County is planning a $1.8 million college for 400 students. With two later additions, the school would accommodate 1,200.

A study committee appointed by the Middlesex freeholders has recommended establishment of a $6 million two-year college, possibly at Raritan Arsenal, which is being closed by the Defense Department. Cape May County has submitted a similar county college plan to the State Board, which is verifying it and is scheduled to act in February.

Studies have also been completed in Burlington and Union counties and are now being made in Bergen, Hudson, Morris and Somerset. Just beginning county studies are Mercer, Monmouth and Essex. In Camden County, voters have approved a referendum on a county college, but the freeholders have taken no further action.

(The next article in this series explains how a county establishes a college under the County College Act.)

F.B.I. Special Agent Presents Talk At Kiwanis Club Meeting Last Week

Prozer spoke of the general jurisdiction of the bureau in connection with cases involving crimes which go beyond the bounds of any one state. He spoke of the problem of bad checks, of forgeries and of phony payroll checks which are cashed in areas where there are large numbers of workers.

Most important, however, is the storage of money, the matter of stolen cars. At least 50 percent of these cars, Prozer said, could be eliminated if people would take more care to take their keys out of their car and to close the windows and lock the doors whenever the car is left unattended.

Folk Song Concert By Lomax Slated At Newark State

Alan Lomax, considered the foremost collector of folk songs in the world, will present a folk concert Monday at 8 p.m. in the Little Theatre of the College Center, Newark State College, Union.

Sponsored by the College Center Board, the program is free and open to the public. Tickets may be obtained by contacting the Informational Services Office of the college.

Lomax also will lecture to students and faculty on the same day on "The Saga of American Folk Songs" as the third speaker in this year's M. Ernest Townsend Memorial Lecture Series.

A former director of folk music for Decca Records, Lomax now is trustee and director of artistic excellence for the Sterling Forest Folk Song Festival Foundation in New York. He currently is mapping the folk song features of the world for the Rockefeller Foundation. His 100-odd monograph albums survey the folk music styles of half the world.

In charge of the Library of Congress' Archive of American Folk Song at the age of 27, he added some 10,000 recorded folk songs to the collection.

making it the largest and most complete enterprise of its kind in the world. Later he edited for Musicraft the first album of authentic folk songs to appear in America, and produced the first five albums in the Archive of American Folk Song series. He introduced Burl Ives, Josh White, Woody Guthrie and other folk singers to the national radio and record audiences.

Collaborating with major European museums, Lomax produced the World Library of Folk and Primitive Music, the first 17 albums of which have been published by Columbia Records. His personal collections from the bases of national archives in Scotland, England and Italy. Westminster Records has published his 11 LP survey of Spain.

Leaving government service after nine years in 1942, Lomax was heard on the BBC Third Program and "Back Where I Come From" over American networks. He made two documentary films about the United States and Britain, two ballad operas for the BBC, and a folk musical in London.

In 1946 he produced "Midnight Special," the first folk song series presented at the New York Town Hall, and later presented Folk Song '59 at Carnegie Hall. Lomax has compiled 12 books on folk songs. His Penguin "Book on American Folk Songs" appeared in 1960. That fall Doubleday published "The Saga of American Folk Song," a singing history of the U. S. A. by Lomax.

Dems, GOP Socialistic Candidate Charges

Harold P. Poeschel of Scotch Hills, New Jersey, Democratic Party candidate for the United States Senate, issued a statement this week urging "responsible" Americans to decide "Which is more important to you—loyalty to your country, or loyalty to your political party?"

Poeschel charged that both the Democratic and Republican parties "are now promoting international socialism." "It is their purpose," the candidate said, "to convert the United States to socialism. This happens to coincide with the aim of international communism."

City Federal Buys 100,000 Tickets

City Federal Savings has purchased 100,000 tickets for the World's Fair, according to an announcement this week by a Fair official.

The tickets, among the last to be ordered from the Fair at a discount prior to the Feb. 29 deadline, will be sold at all five City Federal Savings offices in Elizabeth, Union, Linden, Kenilworth and Elmora.

City Federal is an official World's Fair ticket and information center, having already sold 32,500 tickets to Union County residents, the announcement added.

Film On Bees

A film on bees, 10 years in the making, is scheduled to be presented at the evening workshop services of the First Baptist Church Sunday at 7 p.m. The public has been invited to see the film, which is titled "The City of the Bees."

Antiques Show Set At Church Tuesday

Sure and not only the Irish will be lucky this St. Patrick's Day, for Tuesday marks the opening of the 22nd annual antiques show and sale at the parish house of the Springfield First Presbyterian Church.

Hours of the three-day fundraising event will be 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday.

Thirty-nine dealers will provide displays requiring two complete hours of the parish hours at 37 Main St. Exhibits will include old glass, silver, china, tinware and collectibles.

Perennial favorite, the country store, will be back with an assortment of snappy chuses and old-fashioned candies. Pamphlets will be available.

Home cooked lunches will be served at the colonial tea room by waitresses in period costumes. Baked goods, including made-cakes, will be available for sale.

Mrs. Emil Meyer is chairman of the event and Mrs. Robert Potter, co-chairman. Both members of the Ladies Benevolent Society, sponsor of the affair.

The antiques show and sale is traditionally a display of items steeped in our country's heritage. Mrs. Meyer said. "My purpose is of interest to all lovers of Americana."

Churches Form County Group To Fight Racial Discrimination

A permanent Union County Council on Religion and Race was formed last week at a conference of white and Negro church leaders and laymen at the First Methodist Church, Westfield.

The council, which will be interreligious and bi-racial, was approved by unanimous vote of the 65 persons who attended.

It will function to exercise spiritual leadership in the area of civil rights.

The conference in Westfield was an extension of the recent Conference on Religion and Race, held at Atlantic City, which itself was a state counterpart to the national conference held earlier in Chicago.

The Westfield conference was recommended that one of the first things that the Council consider should be an all-day county-wide meeting to be held by June.

Churchmen at the session stressed the value of a county-wide meeting, which they hoped would have almost complete representation of churches in the county.

The recommendations were made after a series of group discussions in which participants spoke about methods of improving the civil rights picture in the County.

Also mentioned in the discussions were the need for open housing, open commun-ties and open churches; improved mortgage financing for Negroes; and a variety of other topics related to civil rights.

The Westfield meeting was coordinated by Mrs. Slank, Dwyer of Cranford, who had attended the Atlantic City conference.

Lighter Look Stars In Men's Suits

The trend to lighter colors in men's suits, heralded last year by the return to popularity of silver grays, has gained real momentum for the spring and summer of 1964, according to the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear.

KEENAN WYNN models the Aulin Leeds one-button Ramo model suit. It combines comfort and easy elegance styled with hand-shaped tailoring techniques that mold the fabric to fit. The model shown is in blue olive lutescent material with clover leaf lapels, slat-vented jacket with no breast pocket. Trousers have plain front and side tabs. This and other lutescent shades for spring are available at Denison Clothiers, Route 22 at Springfield rd., Union.

The emphasis on lighter colors is so strong that it virtually dominates the style scene. It is evident in all three types of clothing: traditional, conventional and high-style. In both the high-style and conventional suits many of the new lighter colors will have a definite lutescent. These lutescent surfaces are achieved in the weaving of the cloth by using yarns of one color in the warp (the length of the fabric) and of another color in the filling (the width).

Some of the lutescents are brilliant, others are more subtle. The colors range from the very popular light grays to combinations of green and blue, blue and gold, tan and olive, blue and gray, as well as many others.

Traditional natural-shoulder suits, while avoiding the lutescents for the most part, also owing to the use of lighter colors. The traditional also use lighter grays, olives, tans, blues and myriad mixtures of the same.

The trend to lighter colors, however, does not obviate the wearing of darks. There are, of course, times and occasions when dark suits are both correct and desirable. Nevertheless, darks will no longer dominate the style picture and men will welcome the opportunity to add wardrobe space and variety.

In both the conventional and high-style suits the trend to two-button suits also continues and increases. The high-style

Tips for TODAY'S-HOMEMAKER

From MARY ARMSTRONG, County Home Agent

Those who don't eat many vegetables are missing much enjoyment. Fresh asparagus, corn, tomatoes and other products, when in season, are enjoyed by most people. Winter opportunities are even more varied. Today's marvels of refrigeration and transportation provide many items fresh all year.

Because supplies are a little smaller and demand is greater, "special" prices of processed vegetables may be less frequent than in some times. However, even in late winter, a variety of good things are available in a larger than average supply. Canned asparagus, spinach and beans, frozen broccoli, spinach, cauliflower are among these. Three canned vegetables, almost staple items are peas, corn and beans, are also in somewhat larger supply than a year ago. Frozen French fried potato sticks are also a little greater.

You can build many interesting menus around these vegetables. Frozen peas and corn are likely to be a little less economical purchase this spring, but with the canned stocks up, there's no need to be concerned. Canned tomatoes and juices are in smaller supply than last year's unusual abundance, but canned tomatoes are one thing no cook—cook or nutrition-wise homemaker can skip entirely. From almost every angle canned tomatoes are a better buy than fresh tomatoes when out of season in New Jersey.

Watch for specials when they do occur. You might see a can for the price of 2, or "for a dollar" now and then rather than a reduced price for a single can. The keeping qualities of canned goods make it easy to buy when price is advantageous.

What do you do with plain garbanzo, variety vegetables? Here are a few ideas. Cream-cooked eggs—a luncheon dish; heels with tangy orange sauce as a main dish; accompaniment; broccoli with egg garnish; cauliflower au gratin; and of course, green beans almondine, cream chowder; cupped peas with chopped mushrooms.

Fresh kale soup with frankfurters makes use of one of the low cost winter vegetables, and candied yellow squash is almost as good as candied sweet potatoes at a much lower price.

For And About Teenagers:

One Girl's Views On Going Steady

THE WEEK'S LETTER: Always in your articles, you talk about going steady, saying it leads to "trouble" and to early marriage. In my opinion, you don't have to be going steady to get into trouble or get married early. It is the individual person's behavior that counts. Some people treat their parents and is everything the other boys are not. I know parents always want their children to be happy, but they are not the ones that will have to spend the rest of their lives with that person.

"If someone feels old enough to go steady, shouldn't they be allowed to do so? Do you have to be not a teenager to be in love? The way people talk, you'd think teenagers are a crazy, mixed-up bunch of kids who can't do anything right. I've always been told that a child is every thing their parents make them. Do you agree? Some people don't seem to understand that everyone makes mistakes. Mistakes are human."

OUR REPLY: Everyone makes mistakes, it's true. It is human to make mistakes. BUT mistakes are usually caused by a lack of knowledge or experience. Put an untrained worker at the controls of an airplane, machine, and he will probably make mistakes. He hasn't been properly prepared for the job. That is why teenagers have parents—to give them a little more training. It's a difficult assignment—but parents make them feel that all you have to do to drive is be big enough to see over the steering wheel.
