Board Appointments Place Principal In Each School

S. Orange Educator Superintendent Aide; Promotion To Black

The Springfield schools will not only have a principal in every building next year, they'll have an assistant superintendent of schools as well. Some 50 persons jammed the Board of Education room at the Caldwell School Tuesday night and continued to form outside the door to hear Superintendent of Schools John O. Berwick recommend a new school principal alignment that included promoting Robert Black, teacher at the Gaudinier School, to the position of principal at the Chisholm School and the appointment of Joseph Anderson, principal of Marshall School in South Orange, as assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum and instruction.

Berwick's recommendations, which were unanimously passed by the Board, included naming Andrew Allen, who was appointed last month, as principal at Walton School. He was originally slated to head both Walton and Chisholm Schools. Members of the audience explained that the group was comprised of parents from the Walton and Chisholm Schools who came to demand that a principal be appointed for each school. When Berwick recommended early in the meeting that this be done, they offered only slight comment and a number of them drifted out of the building.

Study Curriculum
The principal plan will name the following as school heads: Black at Chisholm, Mrs. Elizabeth Powers at Caldwell, William Fallon at Sandmeier, Andrew Allen at Walton and Dr. Thelma Sandmeier at Gaudinier. Mrs. Powers is currently in charge of Caldwell and Chisholm Schools, and Fallon is in charge of Sandmeier and Walton.

The principals will study curriculum for the entire system under the new superintendent. Berwick's original plan presented to the Board last fall called for hiring two coordinators in the areas of mathematics and science and reading and language arts. It called for one principal to head both Chisholm and Walton Schools. Berwick said the plan had been changed because he was unable to find people who could fill the coordinator positions. Their function, which would have been to study curriculum and instruction, will be fulfilled by the principals, he said. "We still need someone to take charge in mathematics and science," Berwick said. "We will hold off on hiring someone to head the reading and language arts program."

In School Since 1958
Black has taught at the Gaudinier School since 1958, first as a fifth grade teacher and since 1960 as a seventh grade social studies teacher. His salary will be $9,000 next year. He has a B. A. degree in political science from Middlebury College in Middlebury, Vt., and an M. A. degree in administration and supervision of elementary education from Newark State College, Union. He has taken courses at Parson College, East Orange, in preparation for coaching, completing his work with high honors. While at Middlebury he was a member of Blue Key, a men's national honorary society, captain of the varsity tennis squad, co-editor of the college handbook, co-editor of sports for the yearbook, and a member of Phi Kappa Phi.

SCHOOL BOARD
Newly elected officers of the Springfield Chapter, American Red Cross, included popular and old-time songs. The entertainment sessions are part of the chapter's volunteer system which also includes teas for patients, birthday parties, nursing services, patient aid, therapy, recreation, clerical aid and supplies.

The Community Chorus is now making plans for a summer program of calypso and musical comedy melodies to be held on a Sunday night in July at the Springfield Community Veterans Hospital and the John E. Rummel Hospital for Chest Diseases, Berkeley Heights. The programs arranged by Springfield Chapter, American Red Cross, included popular and old-time songs. The entertainment sessions are part of the chapter's volunteer system which also includes teas for patients, birthday parties, nursing services, patient aid, therapy, recreation, clerical aid and supplies.

Parkway Tolls Shift Started This Week

The shift to the left for automatic toll collectors on the Garden State Parkway was started this week.

The New Jersey Highway Authority reported work under way on its program to relocate the 25-cent toll collecting machines from the extreme right lanes of across-the-road plazas nearer the center for each travel direction.

The first switches in the EXACT CHANGE lanes since the Authority set the program to take place at the Raritan and Ashbury Park Toll Plazas along the Parkway's northern seashore stretch before July 4.

Under the program, the 25-cent automatics will be shifted inward at each toll plaza to serve passenger car traffic and only manual collection will be provided in the outside lanes to handle especially the heavier, slower-moving vehicles like house trailers and buses which normally drive to the right and may pay a higher fare, the announcement said.

Manned booths will also be intermingled with the automatic collection units in the inside lanes, sometimes on an interchangeable basis, to serve those needing change or information.

The shift is designed to provide greater flexibility in serving peak direction traffic while eliminating the need for criss-crossing movements within the plaza areas, as motorists now weave left and right to reach either manual or automatic lanes, a Parkway spokesman said.

The Parkway-long toll shifting will be accompanied by expansion of the busiest plazas, installation of modernized equipment and erection of flashing neon EXACT CHANGE signs over the automatic lanes in use. Total estimated cost is $1,075,000.

THE FEMININE LOOK

Commentary on a recent National Editorial Association Study Mission Around South America

By TRUDINA HOWARD

15th of a Series
A DAY IN LIMA

There is a favorite story that people tell in Brazil about their president, Humberto Castello Branco. When the president of Brazil, who is notably tall, met the president of Peru who is unusually small, President Castello Branco said, "Please sit down, General." And President de Gaulle said, "But I AM sitting down!"

Which brings up a story that people tell in Peru about their president, Fernando Belaunde Terry. The president of Peru, who is neither tall nor small and an architect of some note, "has not got time to sit down," they say. He is too busy drawing plans for Peru.

Even when our National Editorial Association Study Mission Group, which was touring South America, met him one evening, almost the first thing he did was show us scale models of his favorite projects. And he never did sit down.

It is time, President Belaunde says, for Peru to be conquered by Peruvians.

And Peru is something to conquer.

More than three times the size of California, the country contains three distinct geographical areas including the stone curtain that is the Andes Mountains. The Andes extend through the entire length of the country, reaching a troublesome height of 22,205 feet and separate the coastal area from the Amazon basin area. The lowest pass is even 7,100 feet high.

PROCEEDING INLAND from the Pacific, the first area is the narrow coastal strip, 25 to 40 miles wide, where 27% of the population lives producing over 50% of the gross national product. Intensive irrigation makes possible the country's export crops of cotton and sugar in this rather dry area. Many fisheries are here also.

Next comes the high sierra, the zone of the great Andean cordilleras. This region comprises about 27% of the territory and 60% of the population including most of the Indians, but produces only 3% of the gross national product. While it contains the chief deposits of mineral wealth, it is high and difficult terrain and supports few roads and railways.

Last and to the east lies the vast, uncharted hill and forest lands and the tropical jungle lowlands through which the great rivers wind to the Amazon. This area, known as the "montana" occupies more than 80% of the country but it is sparsely populated, largely undeveloped and only partially explored.

The climate runs from temperate and dry on the coast, frigid to temperate in the mountains depending on the elevation, and tropical and humid in the eastern lowlands and jungle.

So the only easy thing about Peru apparently is the coast, and that is too dry for real convenience. But the president has suspicious improvement plans, and Lima, the capital on the coastal area, is a buzzing, handsome, gay, modern city. It was in Lima that we had the most elaborate hotel of the trip. I had two TV's, two rooms, two balconies, and believe it or not, two tubs, two showers, two sinks, and NO hot water! It wasn't because Peruvians do not have hot water, it was because of a break, and it was fixed. But it took six men to do it. Not two.

Lima has an estimated population of 2.5 million including its port of Callao, and the country has an estimated 11 1/2 million, the majority of which is Indian and mixed (Mestizo) largely of Spanish descent. It is considered to be the largest Indian-populated country in South America.

WE DID NOT SPEND too long a time in Lima. Those of us who went to Cuzco and Machu Picchu had only one short day there. Yet in that time, we took a tour of the city, dined at the old hacienda Restaurant of the Thirteen Colonies, saw one of the most memorable club shows I have ever seen — simply eight violinists and remarkable lights and a roof garden view — but a beautiful, visited a cutting institute for the teaching of English, Spanish or Indian dialects — and met the president of the country.

President Belaunde invited us to his presidential palace in the early evening and later a short greeting in a massive marble lined hall — along with some pertinent Peruvian information and refreshments, he took us to the spacious wood-paneled banquet hall and showed us, not food, but his bold and brave new ideas for Peru. Here were his favorite: housing, hydro-development and electric projects set up in-scale models on the tables.

Since Peru has a constant water problem with too little on the coast and too much in the Amazon basin some of the president's most ambitious plans concern water enterprises. Currently there is a massive hydro project underway by the government to bring water from the Amazon area to the coast through tunnels. But strangely enough someone has been there before him. There is always a touch of Inca to everything here. Very near the new project are old Inca tunnels which were built for the very same purpose and which are being used.

We were also shown miniature model roadway systems which the president also stresses. He feels that roads would open up new territory for the ever-increasing population and distribute it more evenly. More roads would also improve the agricultural growth and development which Peru sorely needs in order to feed itself.

Greater progress could be made, the president said, if there would be more loans and faster action. Peru is studied to death here, and while he promised the Alliance for Progress and U.S. AID he claimed it was full of delays and red tape and too slow.

We were also shown — and served — some full sized models of Peru's favorite social project, the famous Pisco sour. There were other cocktails as well, fruit juices and canapés so the meeting turned out to be a party too. The president, who speaks excellent English and used it during the entire visit, shook hands with each of us upon leaving and wished us well. But when he came to me, he said in Spanish, "Are you Costian?" And at that point, I almost said "si" in excellent Spanish.

PRESIDENT SINCE July 1963 when he was duly elected, Belaunde is 52, handsome, dark-eyed, thick, iron-grey haired and fairly tall. He is a member of one of Peru's old and aristocratic families and walks like it. Perhaps most notable of all, he is not a military man but an architect and attended the University of Texas. He also lectured, as an architect, at several U.S. graduate schools and spent some years in the U.S. before that, with his father. He has a reputation for being emotional in his speeches and adventuresome in his governmental plans but he is considered to be pro-western and the people of Peru seem to have taken to him like a duck to water.

But apparently not the communists. According to a report on the president, "while Belaunde builds, communists try to tear him down." Moscow, Peking and Havana beam "hours of hate" into Peru via short wave radio, but the communists rarely itself is illegal in Peru and there are few communists. Peruvians apparently, "are too busy conquering Peru" under president Belaunde's Peruvian architecture to listen to foreign voices."

BUT PERUVIANS still have two extremes among themselves, to contend with: the "haves" and the "have-nots." There has long been a bitter gap between the wealthy white Spanish minority and the poor Indian and half-breed majority, but President Belaunde hopes to span the gap, not by taking from the rich, but by giving the poor a stake in the country through social reform and self-help programs.

Supported by the Action Popular-Democratic Cristiano parties, Belaunde stands for a reformist platform advocating social reform and economic development along the lines of the Alliance for reform, promotion of community and co-operative enterprises, education reform, adequate planning, decentralization, credit reform, tax reform, etc. Belaunde also stresses the opening of jungle areas to the east and the construction of an international highway along the eastern foothills of the Andes, as well as the other highways water supply systems. He has announced his adherence to the Inter-America system, and the Latin American Common Market and while he is very nationalistic, he recognizes the need for foreign investment and cooperation even though there has been a dispute with the American-owned International Petroleum Company, the Standard Oil of New Jersey affiliate that operates Peru's richest oil field on the north coast.

Be that as it may, he certainly believes in "foreign investment" at the airport. Generally speaking, upon leaving most countries, tourists are charged an "airport tax" and it usually ranges between one and three dollars, U.S. value, per person. In Peru, however, the airport tax was seven dollars, U.S. value.

There was only one place that was worse, and that was the next stop, Bogota, Columbia. It was $7.50.

Evidently Peru and Columbia take the quip, "Keep South America green," quite seriously.

Holds Annual Meeting Monday At Cannon Ball House

The Springfield Chapter of the American Red Cross held its annual meeting Monday evening at the Cannon Ball House, with Mrs. Robert G. Laurence, chapter president, leading the proceedings.

Mrs. Daniel D. Kalem, blood program chairman, reported on the success of the two recent bloodmobile drives which resulted in the collection of 134 pints for township use. Of this amount, 10 pints have been released to town residents, she said. One hundred seven volunteers served 362 hours on the two blood collections.

Mrs. Carl Ledig, treasurer, reported that the 1965 Fund Drive receipts total $4,415.82. She lauded the work of Miss Claire Dannheimer, fund chairman, whose efforts brought the total to within $967 of the fund's goal.

Motor Corps chairman Mrs. David Weinstein reported that 223 trips had been made covering 3,868 miles and representing 609 volunteer hours by 28 drivers. Explaining that the chapter now has only 14 drivers, Mrs. Weinstein issued a request for drivers, particularly men who could be available during noon time or late afternoon.

Mrs. Harry Quinzel, chairman for service to military families, reported that her committee has handled 22 cases, which included emergency leaves, early discharges and hospital messages.

She noted that the majority of the cases were handled by Mrs. Charles Sasse during her term as chairman. Mrs. Quinzel announced that 24-hour coverage is maintained by six night-duty volunteers. In addition to her coverage during the day.

Water safety chairman Mrs. Thomas Doherty reported that six instructors had been certified, and 271 swimming certificates had been issued for courses taught at the CYO Day Camp, the Springfield Community Pool and Baltusrol Pool.

Volunteer hours and services as reported by Mrs. Oliver O. Deane were: five volunteers and 30 hours provided at the East Orange Veterans Hospital for birthday celebrations and a tea; 11 clerical assistants worked 61 hours; 110 fund workers donated an undetermined number of hours; three office assistants worked 20 hours since the 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. office hours Monday through Friday were begun June 1.

She also cited the following groups for providing volunteer help to the chapter: the PTA for preparing, distributing and processing the volunteer questionnaire which provided 25 new volunteers; the First Aid Squad for giving eight-hour coverage at the two bloodmobiles by two squad members who put in 32 hours; and the Springfield Community Chorus for presenting concerts at the Runnells and East Orange Veterans Hospitals.

The public information report acknowledged the news coverage given by the Springfield Leader, under the editorship of Abner Gold.

Miss Mildred Golliner, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the following names for election to the Board of Directors: E. F. Baxter, 97 Forest dr.; Mrs. Charles Duca, 55 Troy dr.; John Grifo, 53 Mountain ave.; Mrs. M. H. Herzlinger, 53 Christy lane; William S. McRobb, 54 Spring Brook rd.; John O'Shaunessey, 129 Short Hill ave.; Mrs. John J. Roche, 39 Fieldstone dr.; and Mrs. Irving A. Tanner, 10 Essex rd.

Three Directors were nominated for reelection: Mrs. Oliver O. Deane, 252 Short Hills ave.; Mrs. Thomas Doherty, 34 Washington ave.; and Mrs. Carl Ledig, 188 Milltown rd. Members of the nominating committee included Mrs. Stephen Bero, Mrs. Daniel Kalem and Mrs. Carl Ledig.

Following the election of directors, the following awards were presented: Mrs. Henry C. McMullen, 30 year pin; Mrs. Carl Ledig, 20 year pin; Mrs. Thomas Doherty, 15 year pin, and Mrs. George I. Bowles, 10 year pin. Five year pins were presented to Mrs. J. L. Garland; Mrs. Henry B. George; Mrs. R. G. Laurence and Mrs. David Weinstein. Special volunteer pins were presented to Mrs. D. D. Kalem; Mrs. Jeanette Laxerman and Mrs. John Edwards.

Special acknowledgement was extended to UNICO for its financial support and to the Springfield Historical Society for use of Cannon Ball House as headquarters and office.

Following the meeting, refreshments were served by the ladies' committee, led by Mrs. Nye, chairman.

LEADER PROFILE

WALLACE CALLEN

"I came to the Springfield Democratic party four years ago at the time of the decline of the Democratic party. . . when the lights were going out," declared Wallace Callen, newly-elected chairman of Springfield's Democratic party. "In fact," he stated, "they just started to turn them on — with Jay Bloom being elected last year and with our new organization, which now encompasses college professors and doctors. We expect the Democratic party to grow and prosper — and we've got in mind many improvements for Springfield. We are planning a construction program this year."

Callen, who has served as party treasurer and finance chairman since he moved to 10 Mohawk dr., Springfield from Jersey City, four years ago, is county committeeman in the 10th District. He succeeds Mrs. Ruth Hillard, who had been acting chairman of the Democratic party since the resignation of Alex Blackman as party leader last fall. Callen was named in an election contest with Mrs. Hillard.

He emphasized, during a recent interview, the importance of the new party leadership's shift of control to a new group of Democrats, and that none of the new officers was active in the years before 1961 when the Democrats ruled in Town Hall under the leadership of former Mayor Vincent J. Bonadire.

Callen, who has an interesting list of credits, explained that he was born in Jersey City and was educated in Jersey City School systems.

"In 1936," he said, "I organized the Callen Press, later to become Callen Photo Mount Corp. in Jersey City. I am now president of the firm."

A spry, dark-haired man, who appears to have an overabundance of vigor and nervous energy, Callen speedily recalled the many local activities in which he has been involved — activities which kept him bouncing and on the move.

"My first activities, actually, were in the PTAs in Jersey City. Then my wife, Edith and I, helped organize a PTA in the Hebrew Institute in Jersey City. I became secretary of Congregation Oheb Shalom of Jersey City in 1953, and was introduced to a group of interesting citizens who were looking to improve the political scene in Jersey City, and to break up political machine that had been in power there for many years. Eventually, the group which I had joined, did succeed in making a change in government. They finally made it. It was a long fight," he mused, "and they are presently in operation."

During that time, he recalled, he was "given the position of deputy at elections. I wore a badge," he grinned proudly, "and I policed the polls to see that we would have an honest election. Actually, my career has been more law-enforcing than politics."

"My law-enforcement work took me into direct contact with the people. I chose to spend my time handling people and situations intelligently — with sympathy and understanding."

In 1958, Callen joined the Marine Patrol.

"It was a volunteer organization of the State of New Jersey, and a branch of the department of Conservation and Economic Development. I was training with the state police in law enforcement, my basic work being marine law, which included safety equipment, speed of reckless operators and so on." Three years later, he said, he was promoted to Deputy Area Commander in North Jersey, "and I worked with my commander Morris Rosenbloom, who also had the same feelings toward law enforcement. We weren't ticket-happy cops; on the contrary, we listened, educated, advised — and we also reorganized the whole statewide patrol reporting systems. At the present time, during the months of May to October, I spend about 80 hours a week in the volunteer work."

"I miss those five months of the season when the winter comes," he smiled wryly. "This is why I'm in politics. I'm also a member of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary and have the rank of Inspector-Examiner. I'm down there in whatever spare time I can find." Callen laughed, emphasizing the phrase "spare time."

Four years ago, he said, "we moved to Springfield, and my wife and I joined Temple Beth Ahm, where we found the people very friendly and hospitable."

Art Falkin recommended me to the Board of Civil Defense, and when I accepted the chairmanship, my first operation was to operate the Red Cross Blood Bank for the temple group, which included the collection and distribution of blood. (I'd get calls at 2 a.m.)"

Callen explained that he was then recommended by Mickey Biddleman, president of the city's United Jewish Appeal, to be city co-chairman. "And if the people do not already know the intricate details of the U.J.A., please allow me to

The following teacher appointments were made for next year: Mrs. Rosalind Dombey, a graduate of Bucknell University, who has taught in the Newark public schools, $5,800; Milton-Richoy, instrumental music teacher, 30 years of experience and B.A. and M.A. degrees from Trenton State College; $8,100, and Nell Guidara, graduate of Seton Hall University, $5,400.

Board member Joseph Bender said he is investigating the possibility of installing a closed circuit burglar alarm system in Sandmeyer and possibly Walton Schools. His ring could be heard at the Springfield Police Department.

Recent breaks and thefts in these schools have included three breaks at Sandmeyer School within the last two weeks. John O. Berwick, superintendent of schools, reported that he does not find cash on the premises because personnel was instructed not to leave money in the buildings.

Berwick said that he will discuss the matter of extra compensation for teachers who supervise the eighth grade five-day camping trip at Stokes Forest after Mrs. Lee Beno and Seymour Margulies, parent chaperones for this year's excursion, praised the job the teachers did. The matter will be discussed to the group who will plan next year's outing, Berwick said.

Dear Old Dad's Day

Oh, oh. See Daddy sleep. Daddy has blankets over his head. Daddy likes blankets over his head. It is Sunday. It is early Sunday. Oh, oh; see Daddy's head under the blanket. Oh, oh, Daddy's head is big. See how big is Daddy's head.

Oh, oh. See the paper sack. The paper sack is in the kitchen. Oh, oh. See what is in the paper sack. Oh, oh. The sack is filled with beer cans. Oh, oh. The beer cans are empty.

Oh, oh. See Daddy move his lips. Daddy is dreaming. Daddy is dreaming that he has an old-sneaker in his mouth. See the happy children. The happy children are in the hall. They are looking at Daddy in bed. There are many children. The happy children know what today is. Today is Father's Day. The happy children are now giggling. Daddy dreams about the happy children. He dreams that they are 15 Black Angus hiefters bellowing for water.

See Daddy open his eyes. Oh, see the color of Daddy's eyes. They are red.

Oh, oh. See the children jump on the bed. See Daddy under the children. See the children jump on Daddy. Oh, oh. It is a happy day. It is Father's Day.

Senator Williams Reports

By Sen. Harrison A. Williams

The 80th Congress presents a paradox — it is moving rapidly on legislation, yet prospects for a reasonably early adjournment this year seem to have vanished.

The explanation of this paradox is that the Congress is attempting to move much more in the way of major legislation this year than in the past.

Much of the impetus is coming from the White House. President Johnson has sent to the Congress no less than 80 messages this year.

And, with healthy Democratic majorities in both houses plus considerable cooperation from the Republican minority, the emphasis has been on moving legislation, rather than time-consuming maneuvering.

In fact, the only bill on which there has been prolonged debate is the Voting Rights Bill. In that instance, the Senate is moving ahead after five weeks. In years past, we were unable to shut off debate on a civil rights bill for months and months.

The Voting Rights Bill has passed the Senate and has been reported out of Committee in the House, where it seems assured of passage. However, because of differences in the two versions, it will have to go to a conference between the two Houses.

One of the most time-consuming bills of every Congress is the Housing Bill. It takes time to consider that measure because so many programs are encompassed in it.

We have just completed subcommittee hearings on the bill in the Senate and the Full-Senate Committee will soon take it up.

There have been numerous amendments offered, including some of mine. I am attempting to improve the Federal Open Space Act, which was part of the Omnibus Housing Bill of 1961, by increasing the federal contribution from a maximum of 30 percent to 50 percent and liberalizing the conditions under which the grants can be made.

Here's a box score on some of the other major legislation: Medicare — passed in the House, hearings completed in the Senate; Appalachia — enacted into law; Elementary-Secondary Education — enacted into law; Higher Education — approved by subcommittee in the House, hearings under way in the Senate; Water Pollution Control — passed both houses, ready for conference; Air Pollution Control — passed the Senate, no action in the House; Foreign Aid — passed the House, reported out of committee in the Senate; Presidential Succession — passed both Houses, in conference.

Also, minimum wage hearings under way in the House, no action in the Senate; Legislative Reapportionment — hearings completed in the Senate, no action in the House; Farm Bills — hearings under way in the House, no action in the Senate; and Excise Tax Reduction — passed the House, reported out of committee in the Senate.

On some of the bills which I am sponsoring or co-sponsoring, here is the record to date:

Immigration — hearings under way in both Houses; Repeat of 14 (b) (right to work) — hearings under way in the House, no action in the Senate; Flood Insurance — passed the Senate, passage expected in the House; Protect American Businessmen Against the Arab Boycott — hearings under way in the Senate, a version of the bill was passed in the House; Patent Pirating — hearings under way in the Senate, no action in the House, and Migratory Labor Bills — hearings anticipated soon in the Senate, bills have not reached the House yet.

Population Outstrips Campus Space; College Students Press For Answers

This is the first of a series of articles compiled by college students to focus new light on the pressing need for expanded higher educational facilities in New Jersey.

The series is from "A Report of the Committee on State Aid to Higher Education in New Jersey," prepared by the N. J. Regional Assembly of the U. S. National Student Association. It was submitted to the assembly earlier this year by Barry W. Metzger, a Princeton student, and Albert Record, a student at Newark State College in Union.

"During the past five years a great deal has been said about the inadequacy of college opportunity throughout the country — about the so-called closing door to college. A great deal has also been done.

In our own state of New Jersey college opportunities have been the subject of continuing dialogue between the individual citizens, civic groups and public officials. This paper represents the introduction of a new voice into this dialogue — a voice both firm and clear in intent and direction.

It is the voice of the New Jersey college student. From the inside — as high school and now college students — we saw the dangers of the closing door to college opportunity during the first half of the 1960's.

"We also saw what our parents, our state, and our national government did to guarantee us the opportunities we have today.

"There are disturbing signs on our campuses that the efforts of the past decade may in the long run prove to have been too little, too late. As we graduated from high school, we could see that the classes to graduate after us would be bigger and better — better in the sense that more of them would want to go on to college and more would be qualified to do so.

What about their college opportunities in New Jersey through the rest of this decade? Will there be enough college classroom and dormitory places for the high school students to graduate this June?"

"Many of us today are attending college only because of the interest and concern of others for our future when we were yet in high school. We now feel a responsibility, an interest, a concern, in the future of those to follow, and in the future of our institutions of higher learning."

"Thus a number of students from some 13 colleges and universities throughout the state, six months ago, began an intensive investigation of the facts of higher education in New Jersey. It was a thorough dissection, involving a view from the inside as well as from without.

"This report, the result of the work of several hundred, has become the voice of many thousands as students have expressed their concern and support. In barest terms, we have found past efforts to improve the quality of higher education in New Jersey a series of inadequate crisis actions."

elaborate.

"The U.J.A. is a major joint fund-raising organization, which, at the present time, serving possibly 50 organizations and agencies, both in Essex County, the local area and overseas relief. The money is used to give at least one meal a day to hundreds of refugees who are still stranded behind the iron curtain, and who are trying to reach their families," he said. "We're making every effort to help them to be reunited and to re-establish themselves as citizens either of Israel or any country of choice."

"In Springfield, the people have listened to our plea and as a consequence, have contributed generously, even to a 25-30 percent increase in choice."

funds over last year. My wife, Edith, organized the Senior League of Temple Beth Ahm, which is now successfully operating with more than 100 members."

Callen added, "And in my spare time, I help out the B'nai B'rith and the Boy Scouts and I also train boys from 14 to 18 on a boat—in law-enforcement. This will provide them with a good background and to get the feeling of sitting beside a cop and to get 'the other side of the story.'"

Callen said that when he first came to Springfield, he started to attend group meetings to see how a small town operates in comparison to a large city like Jersey City. "I was invited to join both parties," he laughed. "However, I felt that the Democratic candidates at the time seemed to have more to offer to benefit the city of Springfield. They had a swim pool, playground, sewerage, municipal improvements and other assets. I was asked to serve as Democratic finance chairman.

"From then on," he said, "I've been active in the party. I introduced prospective members, who eventually became members in the party on a continuing basis—to help the party grow."

"And this year, I was offered the chairmanship and a large majority of township committeemen felt it was my obligation to accept."

"So we can now move forward!"

Callen, who doesn't look as if he were a grand father, beamed proudly as he credited his children, son, Bernard and Mrs. Callen of Bayonne, and his daughter, Roslyn and her husband, Martin Horning of Roselle Park.

"Bernard has a daughter, who is five years old, and a son, who is six months old."

And my daughter Roslyn has a 10 month old daughter.

"At the end of June, my wife and I will be celebrating our 25th anniversary."

"I don't have to tell you how Mrs. Callen and I spend our spare Saturday nights, do we?"

"We have a very interesting extracurricular job," Callen grinned. "We're baby-sitters!"

Report to the People

From Your Congresswoman
FLORENCE P. DWYER
(6th District N.J.)

It sometimes happens that a perfectly sound, completely desirable public policy is presented in such a hurried-up and surreptitious way that it unnecessarily arouses public suspicion and threatens to become self-defeating.

Such, it seems to me, is the case with the Administration's proposal to have our shrinking silver supply by reducing the silver content of the half-dollar piece and eliminating silver completely from dimes and quarters.

This proposal is necessary and sensible. Over a long period of time, we have become increasingly aware that the mining of new silver has not kept up with the demand for this valuable metal for coinage and other manufacturing purposes. Silver is in such short supply, in fact, that if we continued to mint coins with the present 90 percent silver content, industrial users of silver (for jewelry, flatware, etc.) would soon be deprived and the volume of new coins would be sharply reduced below the level required by expanding business and the growing population.

Beyond the obvious need for action to reduce the squeeze on silver, however, the question of public acceptance of the new coins is vital. Coins are one commodity which everyone in the population uses — from tiny lot with his piggy bank to department store owners and big city bankers. To prevent the hoarding of present coins and avoid other disruptions in the money supply, the public must be convinced of several things: that the value of the new coins will not be reduced, that the change is needed; that the new coins will be technically acceptable and as convenient to use as the old ones, and that no hardship or dislocation will result from introduction of the new coins.

On the basis of last week's hearing before our Banking and Currency Committee, I am pretty well satisfied that each of these conditions will be met. There is no reason, so far as I can see, why the new coins should not be fully satisfactory and acceptable.

Ultimately, however, this is a judgement which only the people themselves can make. And in this respect, the Administration seems to be sacrificing a golden opportunity to assure full public acceptance by making possible full understanding of the change — and is doing so out of excessive caution and distrust.

There is good reason to believe, for instance, that the Administration purposely timed its announcement of the change to the new coins to correspond with the launching of the four-day orbit of the Gemini 4 spacecraft. The purpose, clearly, was to bury the coinage story under the mountains of mass radio-TV coverage of the astronaut — and it was successful.

This tactic was pursued further by scheduling hearings before our committee for the morning following the President's announcement — on less than 24 hours notice (the astronaut still in space and dominating the nation's front pages) — a degree of speed usually reserved for national emergencies.

COINCIDENTAL??

It was obviously a carefully calculated maneuver. This intensely public relations-minded Administration could not conceivably have allowed two such major news events to happen on the same day either accidentally or coincidentally. It had to be done purposely. Both operations had been in the works for many months. And while the Gemini 4 flight was subject to change because of weather and operating conditions, the coinage announcement could have been scheduled at any time. With the Administration very aware that, inevitably, its daring venture in space would overwhelm any other news story, it carefully waited until minutes after the flight had been successfully launched to announce the new coinage system and request immediate hearings.

Wondering why I asked Treasury Secretary Fowler to explain at our hearing the next morning, I referred him to his Department's excellent staff study of the proposed coinage change and the study emphasis on the need to obtain public acceptance of the new coins, and I asked him, in effect, why the Administration had deliberately hidden this change when public understanding was so important.

Visibly embarrassed, the best the Secretary could do was to pretend that the country really wasn't too interested any more in such space flights as the Gemini 4, that we'd gotten used to such exploits, and that this news didn't really obscure the coinage announcement — a position which that very morning's newspapers and TV news shows convincingly contradicted.

The ironic thing about this rather elaborate attempt to keep the news of the coinage change in the background is the possibility that the Administration could undermine its own objectives. Wide-scale hoarding of the present silver coins could seriously disrupt business and banking in the United States. Such hoarding would be foolish in view of Administration determination to keep the price of silver low enough so that the face value (or buying value) of the coins exceeds the value of the silver contained in them. But people sometimes act foolishly when lack of information and understanding lead to fear and distrust, and the new coinage system does, after all, represent the first basic change since 1792. The country's interests, I believe, would be better served by a massive program of explaining to the American people the advantages of the new coinage system — which won't go into effect for some months — and the dangers of removing existing coins from circulation before adequate numbers of new coins are available.

The Wrong Answer

The question is fundamental. When something has to be done for the country's welfare, should the Government take the people into its confidence, trusting that, with dependable information, people will do what's right? Or should it try to slip something by when everyone is looking somewhere else? The answer should be obvious, yet the Administration seems to have chosen the wrong one.

The House decision to cut excise taxes last week by a vote of 401 to 8 was a multibillion victory. Assuming the Senate confirms this action, it will provide a graduated stimulus to an economy which, some economists contend, is beginning to level off after a long upward climb. It will eliminate taxes which have long outlived their wartime usefulness. It will make the Federal tax system significantly fairer by removing a major source of inequity. It will — if manufacturers do what they should do and return the tax saving to their customers — put more purchasing power into consumer's hands. And it will free business of an annoying and expensive bit of bookkeeping.

For me, two of the worst excise taxes are those imposed on telephone and telegraph service and on retail sales of ladies' handbags, toilet articles, luggage and inexpensive jewelry. Having sponsored legislation to repeal these taxes, the House action was especially gratifying to me.

Children Raise $140 For Theresa's Fund

The Theresa Gargalowitz Fund has been enriched by $140 thanks to the efforts of four young Union girls who held a backyard fair and solicited their neighborhood in a door-to-door collection last week.

The four girls, aged 10 and 11, are Veronica Santeusano, Suran Leo, Ellen Hanton and Gail Nychay. They are neighbors on Standish ave.

Misc Gargalowitz, a Union resident who remains in a coma at Overlook Hospital, Summit, was injured more than a year ago in an automobile accident on Morris ave, Springfield, as she returned from classes at Fairleigh Dickinson College, paper last week announcing the fair, which the girls sponsored was a continual performance during the afternoon by a musical combo called the Continentals and composed of Union High School boys. The group volunteered its services and was responsible for attracting many visitors to the fair, say the girls.

The father of one of the girls contacted the Good Humor Company which sent a truck and has allocated 10 percent of its profits from the fair to the fund.

As a result of the story in this paper last week announcing the

Faces Grand Jury On Pair Of Charges

Magistrate Max Sherman Monday night held Richard Franklin, 68, Meeker st., Springfield, for the grand jury on charges of breaking into the Thelma Sandmeier School on May 24 and stealing two typewriters, a tape recorder and a film projector from the school on May 28.

After waiving a preliminary examination, Franklin was held in $2,000 bail and committed to the county jail in default of the bail.

Police had charged Franklin with throwing a rock through a glass door at the school on May 24, entering the building and attempting to force open a safe in one of the offices. Authorities had charged that Franklin returned to the school four days later, entered the building in the same way the building in the same way and this time took the four items, valued at more than $700.

In other action in Monday night's regular session of Springfield Municipal Court, Robert Paul Williams, 20, of 13 Marshall st., Irvington, was held for action of the grand jury after he waived a preliminary hearing on a charge of stealing $87 in coins from six washing machines at the Mountainview Garden Apartments on March 28.

Parkway Survey To Be Conducted Through Mailing

The Garden State Parkway will do the traffic surveying by mail during peak travel periods this summer in order to limit driver delays on the road while compiling information for improvement projects, it was announced this week.

Instead of stopping motorists for on-the-spot interviews about their trips during Sunday afternoons and Monday mornings, postpaid questionnaires are to be given them at survey stations on and off the Parkway to obtain the origin and destination information.

Bachman To Address Police Chiefs' Parley

Ralph W. Bachman, head of the FBI office in Newark, will talk on police training next week when the N. J. Association of Chiefs of Police convenes in Spring Lake.

Ernest E. McMahon, a dean at Rutgers University, will discuss professional education and Harold A. Lett of the National Conference of Christians and Jews will speak on police and community relations.

RESIDENTS FACE PROBLEM

N. J. Citizens Form Committee To Aid Higher Education

The formation of a Citizens Committee for Higher Education in New Jersey was announced in Newark this week as a first step toward solving the mounting crisis in the state's educational services.

Dr. Robert P. Goheen, chairman of the Citizens Committee and a founder of the group, described the situation as "most urgent" and the "single most important problem, and opportunity, facing New Jersey today." Dr. Goheen is president of Princeton University.

Addressing a gathering of founding members of the Citizens Committee at the Essex Club in Newark, Dr. Goheen recited the following facts and figures to support his contention that "New Jersey offers its youth just about the poorest chance of any state to get a college education":

This year 5,600 qualified students were rejected for admission to the residential colleges of Rutgers, The State University. This was a 25 per cent higher rejection rate than the year before.

Rutgers and the State colleges are finding it possible to accept only 25-35 per cent of the separate, qualified applicants seeking admission into next fall's freshman class.

As recently as 1957, some 57 percent of the state's students were obliged to go outside of the state for their college and professional education.

Many qualified young men and women currently in New Jersey high schools will fall to get a college education.

New Jersey students will be put to serious disadvantage as compared to men and women of their age groups in most other states.

The educationally underprivileged students of New Jersey are being deprived of the ability to compete effectively in today's highly complex American society.

New Jersey communities and industries are losing the trained talent and "educated human resources" on which the State's social and economic health depends.

"We are about to reap the harvest of years of neglect," Dr. Goheen said.

He pointed out that New Jersey, which ranks seventh among the states in per capita personal income, ranks 47th (fourth from last) in per capita expenditures on public higher education.

The Citizens Committee, which has already been incorporated as a non-profit organization, will maintain its headquarters in Newark and also an office in Newark.

Dr. Goheen pledged that the committee will be "active up and down the length and breadth of the State." He listed as objectives of the organization:

1. To insure that the people of the state are fully aware of the mounting crisis in public higher education in New Jersey.
2. To make sure that no citizen with children below the college age remains unaware of his obligation to demand adequate educational opportunities for them.
3. To urge and support measures which promise significant improvement in both the quantity and quality of public higher education in New Jersey.

He stressed the committee's intention "to insist on action and to resist inaction. Further delay and holding operations are intolerable."

Nevertheless, Dr. Goheen added, the attitude of the Citizens Committee is politically nonpartisan. The main emphasis of the group will be on the need for funds to support an adequate program of public higher education in the state and the need to urge the state to find some appropriate method of applying the funds.

The committee ultimately will number between 75 and 100 members, Dr. Goheen said. Membership will represent a strong blend of the leadership of every major segment of the New Jersey community.

He mentioned the following as present committee members who were instrumental in the conception and organization of the Citizens Committee are: Orville E. Seal, president of the Prudential Insurance Company of America; Robert G. Cowan, Chairman of the Board of National Newark and Essex Bank; William H. McElwain, president of Jersey Central Power & Light Company; Donald C. Luce, president of Public Service Electric & Gas Company; James P. Stewart, president of DeLaval Turbine Inc., and E. Hornsby Wasson, president of New Jersey Bell Telephone Company.

Dr. Goheen said that a principal cause of the present crisis is the pressure of an exploding school age population on colleges and universities in other states. These pressures have limited the opportunity for New Jersey to "export" its own students. Until recently, space in private institutions largely met New Jersey's state needs at the undergraduate level. Also, an expanding student population within New Jersey has increased the pressure on already inadequate services.

"Our hope, as a Citizens Committee," Dr. Goheen said, "is to help lay a solid foundation of understanding for an educational structure which can serve the young people of the state, the enterprises of the state, and the state itself, for generations to come."

For the Birds

By FARRIS S. SWACKHAMER
Inspector, Union Junior College Institute, Cranford, N. J.

During the first hot spell of the season, the postman brought me a blast of chill, damp air in the form of the report on the continent-wide 85th Christmas Bird Count. It comprised 346 pages of fine print listing birds seen during the 1964 Christmas holidays in all parts of the United States and Canada. I was one of thousands of birders that spent a day from sunup to sundown searching out and listing feathered folk. In my area it was raining, ice was freezing on trees and streams were partly covered with slush.

Several students from Union Junior College and I worked with the Summit Nature Club in the Great Swamp — Watching Ridges area centered in Providence. The club counted 80 species and 15,818 individuals.

The tally takes only a day. It may be done on any one during the last 10 of December or first two or three of January. Each group, usually members of a nature club, gather at a pre-arranged spot before dawn and divide up the 15-mile diameter circle that is to be covered. At least eight hours must be spent in the field for the count to qualify.

The national editor does a thorough job of commenting on the highlights throughout the country, but I thought you might be interested in the story in New Jersey. Five hundred fifty-four observers traveled 6,308 miles on 7667 and in cars and tallied 389,082 individual birds. Nineteen areas in the state were studied.

Counts were made from the Atlantic Ocean to the Delaware River and from the New York State border to Cape May. They were taken along the shore, in the hills, on the coastal plain, in towns and cities and in open country.

If you looked at the figures with a wide rule nearby, you'd find that 43 per cent of the area of the state was under observation. Applying this factor to the number of birds sighted shows there were at least a million birds in the state in late December. This is undoubtedly far short of the actual figure.

The Cape May tally led the field for number of species with 114 different birds sighted. Close on their heels with 112 were the Oceanville birders. The latter was far out in front with

Union Junior Gets Grant Of $307,000 For New Building

U. S. Senator Harrison A. Williams, Jr. (D-NJ) announced in Washington, D. C., last week that the Health, Education and Welfare Department has approved a $307,000 grant to Union Junior College, Cranford, for a science building.

Sen. Williams said the grant is being made under the new Higher Education Facilities Act. Under the terms of the grant, Union Junior College has 18 months to begin construction of the science building.

The grant is one-third of the cost of the proposed science building—the maximum permitted under the legislation adopted last year by the Congress.

Union Junior College applied for the grant in December and was given New Jersey's second highest priority on Jan. 20 by the New Jersey Commission for the Higher Education Facilities Act.

Dr. Kenneth C. MacKay, president of Union Junior College, said the science building will contain three biology laboratories, preparation rooms, dark room, greenhouse, 14 faculty offices, science reference room, geology laboratory, engineering drafting room, student research room, six classrooms specially designed for science and mathematics, and two lecture halls, one seating 100 persons and the other seating 75 persons.

Dr. Nargiello Elected By Chest Physicians

Eugene Nargiello, M.D., superintendent and medical director of Union County's John E. Rumrill Hospital for Chest Diseases, Berkeley Heights, has been elected to fellowship in the American College of Chest Physicians. It was announced this week.

Dr. Nargiello is also a fellow of the American Geriatrics Society. He has served as the county health superintendent in 1960.

Elected To Board

The election of former Assemblyman James M. McGowan and former Assistant Prosecutor Richard P. Muscatello, both of Elizabeth, to the Board of Fellows of Union Junior College, Cranford, was announced this week by Harry Cooper of Rumson, board chairman of Cooper Alloy Corporation, Hillside, chairman.

LISTS PRECAUTIONS

Commission Calls For Safety In Outdoor Recreation

TRENTON, June — New Jersey citizens are being urged to practice safety in their pursuit of outdoor recreation. The State Department of Conservation and Economic Development this week listed specific precautions to be observed.

"Special care should be exercised with regard to water. Swimmers and boaters should observe basic safety practices. Swimmers should never swim alone, and inexperienced swimmers should go only where there is a lifeguard. All swimmers should avoid places posted against swimming or unfamiliar waters that may be dangerous. They should stay out of the water for an hour after eating, and persons who are over-tired or under the influence of alcohol should not swim," the department cautioned.

"A boat operator should be sure that his craft is in good condition before putting out. He should acquaint himself with the boat and its limitations in calm, familiar water. Overloading of boats should be avoided, and light-weight clothing should be worn. The load should be balanced from side to side and from bow to stern. Horseplay in a boat can be extremely dangerous.

"Weather conditions should be watched with great care. If winds are high or a storm is predicted, small craft, particularly, should not put out. If a storm threatens, boats should head for shore. Hikers should also exercise care. Experienced hikers should set a pace that will not overtax their companions. A physical checkup is a good idea before attempting a strenuous hike. A makeable kit should always be carried, especially in unfamiliar terrain.

"Cigarettes, matches and fire-producing devices should always be extinguished with great care in the woods and fields. This is especially true under present dry conditions.

HEALTH NEWS Emphysema is a chronic disorder of the lungs and breathing. Emphysema is causing an alarming increase in the death rate of men. Emphysema is caused by cigarette smoking and industrial air pollution. Statistics show that the death rate is up to 13 times higher among cigarette smokers than among non-smokers. A recent report from the University of Washington where damaged lung tissues were studied with an electron microscope also shows cigarette smoking as the principal suspect, but points out that other irritants may also be involved since rabbits some down with emphysema in large numbers and they are non-smokers usually not exposed to polluted air. Hurricane Season Has Come Around Again; Take All Precautions

Hurricane season has rolled around again, and during the summer and early fall persons living in the Atlantic seaboard states should look aloft to the weather and keep weather forecasts in mind, the American Insurance Association advised this week.

Summer vacationers at seaside resorts in particular should remember that the normal course of hurricanes is up the Atlantic coast and precautions should be taken for personal safety if a hurricane threatens.

A hurricane warning system already has been set up in Miami, Florida by the United States Weather Bureau to keep constant watch for storms and to track their courses.

Last year there were six hurricanes, and 14% of those moved ashore causing heavy property damage, much of which was covered by insurance.

However, most insurance policies do not cover damage caused by wave wash, rising water and flooding, the Association said.

Three of the 1964 hurricanes struck Florida. They were Cleo on August 26, (insured damage $65 million); Dora on September 10, (insured damage $12 million); and Isabel on October 14, (insured damage $2 million).

Another hurricane, Hilda, struck the Louisiana coast on October 3 causing insured losses totaling $25 million.

These storms hit the United States after two years — 1962 and 1963 — in which there were no hurricanes to strike our coast.

A hurricane is a tropical cyclone, carrying sustained winds of over 75 miles per hour in velocity.

In the last 50 years, 94 hurricanes reached the continental United States, an average of almost two a year.

In each of four years — 1916, 1933, 1964 and last year — the United States mainland was hit by four hurricanes.

One of the most costly hurricanes from the standpoint of property damage in the past 50 years was Hurricane Carol, which struck New York (Long Island), New Jersey, and several New England states in 1954. After this storm, insurance companies paid $129,700,000 in losses.

Also, in 1954, Hurricane Hazel swept up the Atlantic coast causing insured losses totaling $122,050,000.

In 1961, Carla rushed into

Texas and Louisiana causing insured property damage losses totaling $100,000,000.

Back in 1957, Audrey struck the Gulf Coast and caused 395 fatalities, although insured property losses were only $32,000,000.

Since then, hurricanes have taken some lives each year, but, thanks to advance warning by hurricane watchers the loss of life has been much smaller.

There were two hurricane fatalities in 1958, 24 in 1959, 65 in 1960, 46 in 1961, 70 in 1962, 11 in 1963, and 49 last year.

Obviously specific precautions should be taken when a hurricane threatens, because a windstorm blowing at more than 75 miles per hour can pack a lethal punch.

HURRICANE PRECAUTIONS

What to do before a storm: If a storm threatens anywhere from the Caribbean to the U. S. mainland, your radio or television set will give you the latest information from the Weather Bureau. When a hurricane is born, U. S. Weather Bureau observers usually track it before the storm hits the continent. Observation planes are sent up to fly around and through the storm to gather first hand information as to the intensity of its winds.

When a hurricane appears to be moving toward land, radio and television stations will break in with special bulletins telling of its position and the direction it is moving. Your newspaper will also keep you informed.

If you have a battery-powered radio, keep it equipped with fresh batteries for use in an emergency because hurricanes frequently knock down electric transmission lines, causing power failures.

If you live or are vacationing near a seashore, go inland if a hurricane is about to strike the area, and pick a place to stay on high ground. Hurricanes churn up the sea and when they hit, beaches and low waterfront areas may become flooded or swept by storm waves. And, high tides usually accompany them.

Go inland early, the experts advise. If your passage to safety is over a road that is likely to be under water with high tides. Rising tides frequently occur several hours before a hurricane hits, so move to higher land well in advance of the arrival of the storm. Travel during a hurricane is dangerous.

When you leave the living area, take plenty of food and water in thermos bottles or jugs with you. In particular, stock food that can be eaten without cooking.

If you are faced with riding out a hurricane in a house which is well built and away from the water, that's possibly the best place for you to stay. Be sure you have a stock of food ample for several meals. Sterilize and fill pitchers, kettles, pans, and thermos bottles with water for drinking — frequently the normal water supply is contaminated after a hurricane, and not safe for drinking. In many homes in coastal areas, residents also fill the bath tub with water for an extra supply.

Stock food that not only can be eaten with little or no cooking, but also food that can be kept without refrigeration. Your refrigerator will not be working if the electric power goes off.

Bring into the house or store in the garage any movable items such as porch furniture, lawn furniture, lawn swings, barbecue grills, garbage pails and other objects. A lawn chair, picked up by hurricane force winds, could easily be blown through a large picture window, possibly causing injury to a person or persons inside the house. Movable awnings should either be raised and tied securely or removed entirely. As a matter of course in hurricane areas, trees close to buildings should be kept pruned. Hurricane force winds can blow down dead or overhanging branches, and when these fall, they can break windows or cause roof damage.

If you have storm shutters which can be put in place over windows, put them up well in advance of the storm. In areas frequently ripped by hurricanes, some homeowners have a television service man take down TV aerials until after the blow. Be sure garage doors are closed.

After A Hurricane

After a hurricane: — Don't leave the house, except in extreme emergency, until you know roads and streets are clear, are free of rubble and fallen electric wires.

Stay home so you will not hinder first aid or rescue work. If you are not qualified to render important emergency assistance, stay away from areas heavily hit by the storm.

If you have to drive your automobile immediately after a storm, drive carefully and watch for fallen wires and tree branches. Near swollen streams or flooded inlets, keep watch for washouts and undermined pavements. Rescue workers as well as ordinary residents should drive with extreme care and be ready to cope with any contingency.

Never, under any circumstance, touch fallen or dangling power lines or electric wires and keep away from all wires and steel fences. In a violent hurricane, live power lines can become entangled with metal fences, telephone and other wires, and contact could be fatal.

If your water service is affected, boil drinking water until you have been told service has been restored and your local Health Department says that the water is safe to drink.

Always be careful with fire during and after a storm. Your telephone service could be disrupted by the hurricane, and you might find it impossible to phone the fire department. And, if you are successful in reaching the department, the response of fire apparatus could be delayed if the streets are filled with uprooted trees, fallen limbs, or rubble left by the storm. And, if the water service has been damaged, low water pressure could make fire fighting difficult.

FAMILY LIFE TODAY

SUMMER WEEKENDS

Fishing, camping, a tour to historic spots, the seashore, the sights of New York—it doesn't sound possible to weave these all into one vacation—but one family did just this—during summer weekends.

The Friday-night-to-Monday-morning summer weekend provides many opportunities for families to have fun together, to build memories that will carry throughout a lifetime. While most persons dream of fun and travel as part of a longer vacation, it is amazing how many memorable part of summer weekend pleasure.

Short trips are always the first possibility for these summer weekends, and in New Jersey are fortunate in having enough varied geography to suit all family members. One local family of five talked over vacation plans and came to the conclusion that each member wanted to do something different. Father wanted to go fishing. Mother wanted to visit places of historical interest. Joe wanted to go camping. Sally wanted to see the sights of New York City. All were accomplished on weekends. Then after Labor Day, the family was so pleased with the good times had, they immediately started talking about plans for next summer. They felt they had 1965 begun! And their planning was made greater fun because they had become better acquainted through sharing and enjoying the summer weekend experiences together.

Ask Amy

BY AMY ADAMS

Dear Amy: For many years my husband has corrected me every time I point to an object to which I want to draw attention. I am very demonstrative and poetic license rules my emotions. Is it considered poor manners to point a finger toward the object of your enthusiasm?

Dear Amy: Do you ever make personal appearances? Also, if a reader writes you with a problem, would you consider it proper if they continued writing to you as time goes by as other problems arise or to make comments?

Dear C. C. W.: Because of so many requests for a "personal appearance," I am going to guest a national television show in the near future. Watch this column for further details. If you want to take a look-see, I welcome mail from my readers. I have many people who have kept up a warm correspondence for years and we have become good friends as the following letter (one of many) indicates. Dear Amy: Since I wrote to you at Christmas time, my "gen" has indeed turned into a sparkling "precious stone." For my birthday on January 25th, she said "Yes," and we became engaged on St. Valentine's Day. We are planning on being married very soon.

I felt I should bring you-up-to-date with these latest happenings so that you may know why you might not hear from me in the future... not because I have forgotten, but because of circumstances. Many thanks for your nice little notes of reply which you have been so kind as to remember me with, and may the Lord bless you and guide you in your chosen vocation. So may I again say "many thanks," and remain as you have said, a friend.

Dear Amy: How do you change a man who talks too much? The man in question is my husband. Now that summer is almost here, he'll be sitting out on the terrace and talking up a storm to our neighbors like he does every year.

He... them all our personal business and everything that goes on in our house I've fought with him over his big mouth so many times, but it does no good. Any suggestions?

Embarrassed: If you have been fighting over this for years, and he still suffers from chronic indiscretion, there is little you can do to stop him. Persevere, my dear. The day is bound to come when he puts his foot in that big mouth. Then your troubles will be over—and his will start.

Dear Amy: I am only in the 7th grade but I must make an important decision in a couple of months, thoroughly confused.

Two different friends are trying to talk me into going to two different high schools. When one girl tells me about her school, I think, "That school is the one for me." Then when the other girl talks about her school, I want to go to that one.

It is a battle between St. Steve's and Augustine's. What should I do?

A 7th Grader: The intelligent approach in making the right decision is to discuss it with your advisor. Then visit both schools and decide which one appeals to you the most and make your choice. Girlfriends can be helpful, but in your case, you seem

BAKING RESULTS DEPEND ON PANS, EXPERT STATES

Best results every time are not a matter of luck in baking. Nor do they depend solely on a good recipe and good ingredients. The baking pans you use are important too, says Mary W. Armstrong, senior Union County home economist.

When making a cake it helps to use just the right sized pan or pans. A cake recipe that is right for a nine-inch square pan two inches deep will not give the best results in a larger shallower pan or in a smaller deeper pan.

Apart from the appearance of the finished cake, the cooking time will need adjusting. Use of too small capacity pans such as tin cake pans, layer cake pans or Turkhead pans will surely cause over-baking and cause the cake to crack in removing the cake intact from the baking pan.

Regulation cookie sheets or jelly roll pans are essential to making perfect cookies, she said. Pans with too high sides interfere with even browning and round pans are apt to crowd or misshape the cookies, besides using oven space inefficiently.

Some top-stove pots and pans heat better if the bottoms are not kept polished because black absorbers heat and shiny tin or aluminum reflect heat away. In the case of cookie sheets, however, a bright and shiny surface reflects heat so that cookies do not become too dark on the bottom before browning evenly on top, the economist said.

Cookie sheets should be the right size for the oven for best results. Select sheets or pans that will allow at least one inch and a half space on all four sides when placed in the oven.

The space allows the heat to circulate and brown the cookies. Without the circulation, cookies around the edges of the pan are likely to become too brown.

Don't overlook teflon pans for baking muffins and cup cakes. If you really want to save work, it's a real joy to lift the gems out whole and simply wipe them dry, she said.

Girl Has Real Problem - Talks Too Much

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I am sixteen years old, and have a very difficult problem. Speaking frankly, I am very friendly and very forward toward others. I have made many friends, but have lost quite a few because after knowing someone for a while, I begin talking too forward, too loud, and making foolish remarks without thinking. I have read many books about manners, etc., but have not gained anything from them. I am willing to cooperate, if there is some way to correct this bad habit. Can you give me some advice?"

OUR REPLY: The fact you have recognized that you have a problem is an important first step. Many individuals go through life talking too much and too loud, losing friends as fast as they make them — with the friends they lose being the ones "out of step." There's a saying you would do well to remember, "Always be sure your brain is in gear before opening your mouth." Or, think as well as talk. There is nothing wrong with being friendly. And, the ability to make friends is a great asset.

You can keep these friends if you learn to be a good listener as well as a good talker. This is not difficult. Develop an interest in your friends, their likes and dislikes. Ask them about their hobbies, their opinion on music, books, school, entertainment — and then sit back and listen. You'll discover there is as much "fun" in listening to others as in having others listen to you.

MILK MAKES EXCITINGLY DIFFERENT SUMMER DRINKS

What a happy coincidence — lots of milk and lots of warm weather in which to serve it! A tall cool glass of milk is refreshing and nutritious. Milk can meet every need, too. Minus the fat skim milk gives weight watchers low calorie nutrients. Plus some ice cream and other flavorings milk provides a special treat for anyone who can enjoy good eating.

Among the exciting-milk punches, sodas and coolers, is a Buttermilk Splendor: Bananas Milk Punch. Mash bananas, blend in beaten egg yolks, milk and vanilla. Fold into beaten egg whites. Pour into glasses and add a scoop of ice cream. This is really smooth.

Apricot - Pineapple Nectar. Combine apricot nectar with crushed pineapple. Stir into chilled whole-milk. Pour into chilled glasses and garnish with a scoop of pineapple sherbert and a mint leaf.

Nipple Chocolate-Cream for Two. Beat together 1 pint chocolate flavored milk with six tablespoons maple syrup. Top each serving with a scoop of vanilla ice cream.

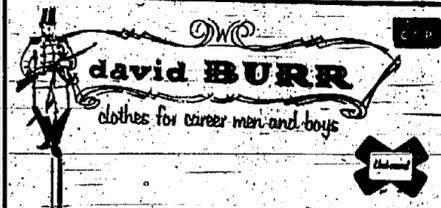

Frosted Mocha Milk for two. Beat together 1/2 pint coffee ice cream, two tablespoons chocolate syrup, three teaspoons instant coffee and one cup milk until well blended. Add one more cup milk. Top each glass with a scoop of coffee ice cream.

Buttermilk Splendor. Combine in a blender two pitted stewed prunes, one tablespoon prune juice and one cup buttermilk. Add 1/2 cup shaved ice. Swirl half a second and pour into a glass.

Peach Cream Soda. Into each tall glass put 1/2 cup crushed, sweetened fresh, frozen or canned peaches and 1/2 cup milk. Stir well. Fill glass two-thirds full with carbonated water. Top with a scoop of vanilla ice cream.

Department of Agriculture point out that only when it's made with whole milk can the product be sold as chocolate milk. If skim or partially skimmed milk is used, it must be labeled chocolate drink.

If cocoa or chocolate is made with cocoa is used instead of chocolate, it becomes either chocolate-flavored milk or chocolate-flavored drink.

YWCA Sets Summer Program Of Social Work Interest Group

Highlight of the social work interest group in the Summit YWCA's summer enrichment program for senior high school girls, to be held during the month of July, have been announced by the teen-age committee.

On July 6, Preston Wilcox, associate professor, School of Social Work, Columbia University, will be host to the group and will discuss "What Is Social Work? Opportunities in the Field." The girls will tour the university, talk to other professors and graduate students and attend a seminar being conducted for college seniors interested in the social-work field.

A visit has been planned to the Elizabeth County Court House, where Thomas DeLuca will take the girls on a tour of the building. This will be followed by a discussion on probation by Mrs. Faye Granberry, Union County probation officer.

On July 12, the girls will be the guests of Louis Berkowitz, executive director of the Education Alliance in New York. They will get a taste of the work that is being done in a large agency that employs many different kinds of social workers.

The social service staff of John E. Rummels Hospital will be hosts to the group on July 14 and will help to orient the girls to the opportunities for social workers in a hospital setting. Discussion will also cover allied fields such as occupational, recreational and physical therapies and the role of technicians. The field of geriatrics as a social work concern will also be interpreted.

Dr. Frank A. Fastek, assistant of sociology at Rutgers, will speak to the girls on July 18 on the subject of "Educating Culturally Deprived Children, New Jersey Summer Schools for Children of Migratory Workers." A film on migrants in New Jersey will be shown, and young people working with migrants from the Council of Churches program will talk to the girls about this social problem.

A speaker on the government's poverty program is also scheduled, giving emphasis to the philosophy behind the program and the career and educational opportunities that are available. The next two weeks of the four-week program will be spent in a variety of actual work experiences. Some of the girls will work with the recreational specialist at the John E. Rummels Hospital and some will work in the Summit "head-start" program.

The last week will be aimed at giving the girls an opportunity to learn about research and statistics, a vital aspect of social work. They will work with Howard Goehring, community relations worker, on a large Council of Churches survey in the Ironbound section of Newark.

Other interest groups in the Summit summer enrichment program include arts and crafts, dramatics and career opportunities for women. The program will begin on July 1 with an orientation session. Groups will meet from 1-4 p.m. on Mondays-Thursdays, and on Fridays from 1-11 p.m.

Girls in the 9th-12th grades may register for two-week sessions in arts and crafts, dramatics and career opportunities and for four weeks in the social work group. Since each two-week session in this format will be different, those interested may sign up for an entire four-week program.

Openings are still available in all groups. Registrations must be made as soon as possible. Some scholarship aid is available. Further information is available from Mrs. Alvin Griggs, teen-age program director, at the YWCA, 273-4243.

The board voted to recommend for approval to the Township Committee a request by John Appar for a variance to permit him to operate a printing business and maintain a residence at 70 Morrison rd.

It also recommended approval of a request for a special exception use by Joseph Caruso to establish a bar and restaurant in a store in Echo Plaza.

The board postponed action on a request by Bee Kay Restaurant to operate a restaurant at 230 Morris ave, pending receipt of additional information on parking facilities.

OUR DEADLINE is noon Friday for organizations, clubs, social, church news.

Picnic Of Baha'is Held To Observe Race Unity Day

On Sunday, the Baha'is of Springfield held their fifth annual picnic in observance of Race Unity Day. "Race Unity - Means for World Peace" was the theme of this year's observance. The picnic, which was held at Sunrise Lake in Watchung Reservation, was attended by about 50 Baha'is and their guests from Springfield and the surrounding towns.

Joseph C. Joas, chairman of the Local Springfield Assembly of the Baha'is of Springfield, said, "Our annual Race Unity Day picnic is a purely social get-together to help promote love and understanding between people of all races."

"Over 100 years ago Baha'is, founder of the Baha' World Faith, said, 'The well-being of mankind, its peace and security are unattainable unless and until its unity is firmly established.'"

"Through unity the world can attain a new and higher civilization, while the outbreak of another international conflict causes general destruction," stated Joas.

Democrats Plan Kick-Off Dance

The Democratic Organization of Springfield will kick-off its 1965 election campaign at a dance to be held June 25 at the Club Diane, Union.

Democratic candidates for the State Senate, Mrs. Mildred Barry Hughes and William F. Hourihan, Sheriff Ralph Orsello and candidates for the State Assembly and the Union County Board of Freeholders have been invited to attend the affair. Mrs. Hughes and Hourihan are presently serving in the State Assembly.

Henry Grabarz and George Merrill, Democratic candidates for seats on the Springfield Township Committee, and Marie Smith, aspirant for the Springfield tax collector's post, will be among those attending.

The dance chairman, Wallace Cullen, invites all Springfield residents to "come out and enjoy the festivities and meet the candidates."

The Millburn Adult School this week announced the names of this year's speakers in its Fall Lecture Series. The lectures will be held in Millburn High School.

The first lecture will be given Oct. 12 by Carey McWilliams, editor of "The Nation," and author of books on the problems of labor, agriculture and minority groups. McWilliams will discuss "Automation and the Abundant Society."

Another lecture will be given Oct. 29 by Robert S. Egan, Hong Kong bureau chief of the Los Angeles "Times." He will speak on "South Asia - The Rolling Point."

The final lecture will be given Nov. 23 by Vance Packard, noted critic of American society. He will discuss "What's Happening in the American Character?"

Township Official Explains Ban On Softball Games At Henshaw

Responding to a complaint that is no reason for us to be excluded from the playground. "What are such areas set aside for, if not for informal recreation?"

Ruby responded that the Henshaw Playground is not designed for softball or baseball. It is definitely too small, measuring no more than 150 by 150 feet, with volleyball and basketball courts in the middle.

"There are two ball fields less than a third of a mile away, at the high school. The new Rose ave. field, which is even closer, will be completed for use this summer."

Citing "many complaints from neighbors," Ruby commented that Springfield boys have ample opportunity to play baseball in the youth leagues and Babe Ruth leagues.

"Kids can always play catch in the Henshaw playground," the recreation director declared, "but no batting is allowed. We do permit some games under supervision in the summer, but with much smaller children and a very hard ball. The field is just too small for teen-agers."

PUBLIC LIBRARY OPEN SATURDAY

The Springfield Public Library will be open Saturday because school exams are taking place later than usual this year, a library spokesman said this week.

However, the library will be closed the following Saturday, June 26, and the rest of the Saturdays throughout the summer.

This Saturday, the library will be open from 9:30 to 5 p.m., the spokesman added.

Accident Blocks Traffic On Rt. 22

Traffic was blocked in the westbound lane of Rt. 22 for over two hours early yesterday when a "Honor-Train" collided with a car at S. Springfield ave, Springfield, police reported.

Police said both vehicles were heading west at 2:55 a.m. when the car came in contact with the truck's left front wheel, forcing the truck to jump the center island into the eastbound lane. It then jackknifed and turned over.

The truck driver suffered lacerations. Traffic was detained until 5:15 a.m., police said.

Yablonsky Hurls No-Hitter As Motors Down Elks, 2-0, In Babe Ruth Major Play

Stanley Yablonsky pitched a no-hit, no run game last week as Morris Ave. Motors beat the Elks, 2-0, in the Springfield Babe Ruth Major League. Dennis Murnane although he lost, gave up only one hit, that to Gerry Kurtz.

Bell, 6-2, behind the winning pitching of Joe Buccell. He struck out eight. Ralph Losanno helped the cause with two singles. Buccell, Gary Haydu, Gary Katz, Gary Kurts and Bill Gold all added singles.

Third, Wasserman made some great catches in left field. Earlier in the week Stanley Yablonsky and Gary Kurts on the mound for Morris Ave. Motors beat Chapel Lumber, 7-2. Yablonsky helped his victory with two singles, a double and Ralph Losanno had two singles. Kurts and Lee Kronert added singles. Gary Haydu, John Schoch, Joel Schwartz and Joe Buccell played strong defensive ball.

Bankers Are Cinch For Championship

With the final week of the season looming, Crestmont Savings has all but clinched the championship of the Springfield Youth Major Baseball League for the second year in a row. Crestmont swept two games last week, turning back the second place Lions club, 3-2, with a ninth inning rally which yielded all the runs.

and hitting strongly. Randy Hinton and Warren Schlepner had the mound chores for the Legion. In another game the Legion lost to PBA, 7-5. Danny Silverman notched the victory and also hit a home run to help his own cause. Jayne Trucking beat PBA, 5-4, with Mike Hydock striking out 11 as he had fine support of the plate from Bill Harlow who connected for a four-bagger. Bernie Perlman, after missing two weeks of play, was the losing pitcher.

Ernie Roig had two singles for the losers and Mitch Weiner had a double. Benkus had a single and Joe Sarno and Wasserman were strong on defense. Roig made a spectacular jumping catch to rob Motors of a possible home run. In another mid-week game the Angletons won their sixth straight behind the three-hit pitching of Ronnie Azarewicz. It was a loose game as the winners scored twice on wild pitches in the bottom of the sixth. Mitch Weiner was charged with the loss. For the winners Richard Campbell and Alan Todres led the hitting attack, each collecting two runs for three times at bat. Barry Fishman hit a long home run into deep-right center for the losers.

Adults Like Exams' - Rutgers Dean

High school and college students just recovering from the shock of final exams may not believe it, but adult students actually like examinations and report cards.

A questionnaire sent to 1,899 adults in the Rutgers extension division by Dean Ernest E. McMahon disclosed that two-thirds of the respondents think a final grade is an incentive for study and that an examination is a helpful evaluation of progress.

Dean McMahon did the survey as part of an effort to find out more about how adult students differ from their younger counterparts. An expert in the administration of adult education, he feels that tested teaching methods often must be redesigned to suit particular adult groups and to fit their specific educational goals.

With an estimated 17-million American adults currently taking courses, there is an immense and growing need for information on whether teaching techniques developed for use with young students work with adults, according to Dean McMahon. He says it has long been known that adults can learn as well as children, but they differ in that adults are better motivated, more realistic, have more specialized interests and more heat by anxieties and feelings of failure than are younger students.

To help focus attention on the problems involved in teaching adults, the State University extension division last semester offered a course in "Techniques for Teaching Adults," in which 35 administrators and teachers of adult programs were enrolled.

ONE COURSE member, Dr. Stephen Ulrich, chairman of the Rutgers evening college's science department, who was a member of the class, insists the teaching of science subjects to adults and children is essentially the same. "There is no teaching as such," he says, "just inspiration to learn. The adult who continues his studies along with a job and home responsibilities is highly motivated, one of the prime requisites for learning."

Peter P. Aiello, another member of the class and statistical supervisor in the administrative office of the courts, trains employees of New Jersey's municipal courts. He has some graduate work at Temple University.

"The techniques I use for training my court personnel are generally the same which my professors used in teaching me," Aiello says. "These techniques must be good for adults because I never have to worry about absenteeism, discipline, or lack of class interest. I believe that all adult programs must be meaningful to the persons being taught."

Mrs. Jeanne M. Arnold was one of the four public school adult teachers in the class. "In teaching adults," she says, "you must begin by re-establishing proper patterns of study." She observes that today's youngsters often depend on the students' background and experience. Dean

ADULT EDUCATION ON THE RISE — Dr. Ernest E. McMahon of Rutgers University, Dean of University Extension Division of Rutgers University, examines a graph showing the doubling of adult students in the State University evening classes since 1950.

McMahon says, "If the subject is one in which the adult has little more background and experience than his younger classmate, it is often possible to use similar teaching methods."

300,000,000 Rise In May In Gallons Of Water Supplied

Elizabethtown Water Co. supplied its customers with 277,400,000 gallons of water in May, an increase of more than 300,000,000 gallons over May of last year.

It was the second highest monthly demand in the company's 111-year history, exceeded only by September of last year. About 400,000,000 gallons went to the city of Elizabeth, which Elizabethtown has been supplying since last winter to assist Newark, whose supplies are dangerously low because of lack of rain.

The daily average of the company was almost ten million gallons higher than last May. In 1954, the May average was 7.8 million gallons daily, while last month the figure was 89.4 million gallons daily, a 12 1/2 percent increase.

Elizabethtown Water officials said that their Raritan River supplies are in good shape and that, as yet, it has not been necessary to use any Spence Run-Round Valley reservoir water to supplement river flows.

There are no restrictions on the use of water in the 28 communities in Union, Somerset and Middlesex counties served directly by Elizabethtown. This is one of the few areas in the northern part of the state without restrictions. Elizabethtown officials attribute their present satisfactory water situation to adequate supplies from the Raritan and the expenditure of more than $40,000,000 since 1950 in expansion of pumping, filtration and transmission equipment.

Drought Affects Birds, Animals

"Save the birds and animals during the water shortage," Don B. Maxfield, executive director of the New Jersey Branch of the Humane Society of the United States, urged this week.

Maxfield called attention to the difficulty faced by birds and animals during the water shortage: "They cannot obtain water from their normal sources of supply, such as lawn sprinklers and streams." The Humane Society official recommends that water be kept in heavy food-tom containers and in bird baths — always in the shade to prevent excessive and needless evaporation.

In order to provide the necessary water for birds and animals, Maxfield suggested the following means of having water in drought-stricken areas: Secure and fill several small bottles, such as soft drink bottles, and place them upright in both ends of bathroom flush boxes. The bottles need no capping or sealing. This simple means of water placement can save as much as half a gallon of water per flushing and should save several million gallons of water, each day, if adopted by all public water users. A couple of bricks will serve the same purpose, the society official noted.

"If only one percent of the millions of gallons saved is used for thirsty animals and wildlife, much suffering will be avoided," Maxfield added.

Recreation Unit Sponsors Confab

Nearly 200 playground leaders will attend the Union County Recreation and Parks Association eighth Annual Playground Institute to be conducted Saturday at the New Providence Senior High School.

Miss Helen Dauncey, National Recreation Association playground specialist will conduct a morning session stressing playground objectives and techniques. In the afternoon Miss Dauncey will conduct a session titled "Activities For 6-8 Year Olds." Parallel sessions in the afternoon will be "Storytelling" led by Mrs. Ferguson of the Woodbridge Public Library and "Arts and Crafts Demonstration" handled by the recreation departments of Plainfield, Summit and Linden.

Enrollment to date includes playground personnel from Rahway, Linden, Scotch Plains, Cranford, Union County Park Commission, Plainfield, Summit, Hillside, Springfield, New Providence, and Montclair.

LEON GRUBER

Leon Gruber, proprietor of Gruber's Stores for Men and Boys in Irvington and Union and a third clothing shop in West Orange, celebrated his 40th anniversary in business last week with a dinner for his employees at Goldman's in the West Orange.

Singled out for service honors at the affair were two veteran employees of the Irvington and Center store, Edward Parent and Milton Kraus. Both received engraved gold wristwatches for their 30-year tenure.

Gruber established the business in 1923 in a small shop on Clinton ave., at Peshine Ave., Newark, selling only men's hats and caps.

His business growing rapidly, Gruber decided to expand and in 1932 moved to his present location at Irvington Center, adding men's haberdashery to his line. In a few years clothing was also added.

In 1948 Gruber opened a second shop at Union Center and this store too soon outgrew its facilities.

In 1958 a third shop was opened in West Orange and a ladies department managed by his daughter Mrs. Rosalyn Rosen, was added.

Besides Mr. and Mrs. Gruber and their daughter, a son Murray is also engaged in the business as a partner.

Five-Year Program Scheduled At School

The Union County Technical Institute has agreed to set up a five-year program for staff highway department employees on a three-night-a-week basis. The program will give participants the same status as if they were attending a junior engineering college. It was announced this week.

Leonard W. Simmons, of Roselle, president of the Union County Vocational Board of Education, which manages the institute, pointed out that the agency has been operating an evening three-year program for the highway department employees just below the level of engineer.

State Highway Department representatives recently conferred with the institute about a plan of setting up the five-year program as well as establishing new classes for northern New Jersey and one each for Central and South Jersey.

The institute has had a class of 18 students over its three-year period of operation of the course, Simmons said. He said, "The course opens a door into a new engineering block for the students."

Courses include elementary and advanced drafting fundamentals, highway drafting, surveying, chemistry, soil mechanics, strength of materials, concrete testing, asphalt testing mapping and computing, geology and contracts and specifications.

The five-year program also includes eight mathematics courses, four physics courses and three in human relations.

The new program, like the present one, will be conducted with the approval and cooperation of the State Highway Department and the New Jersey Civil Service Commission, Simmons reported.

(Sorry, dad, the model's not included).

Or give dad a Sylvan floating chair. The folding chair is made of natural aluminum with heavy duty saran webbing, and the Ethafoam floatation is secured with vinyl.

Another great gift for dad is the Sylvan aqua lounge. The aluminum and foam frame is covered with heavy, vinyl coated canvas. The jacket is water repellent, mildew treated with cold brass zippers for changing the jacket in seconds.
