Progress arrived, but slowly, in Springfield in 1967

Delay seemed to be the predominant feature in a basically uneventful year in Springfield. Lack of action as scheduled was most evident in anything that had to do with N.J. Highway Department activities in the township.

Other delays were chalked up in the construction of the new public library, in progress of the new municipal zoning ordinance and in planning by the Regional High School District Board of Education for capital expansion.

FAMOUS COUPLE -- John Hall, right, and Deborah Carver portrayed Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus in winter holiday assembly presented by the first three grades last week at the James Caldwell School.

Caldwell youngsters present assembly for winter holiday

The annual winter holiday assembly was presented by the first, second, and third grades of the James Caldwell School to a large audience of parents and students last Thursday afternoon in the Caldwell auditorium. The program started with a puppet show presented by Mrs. Stearns' third grade class. The puppets stayed to introduce each of the following acts. "Charlie Brown's Christmas" was enacted by the children in Mrs. Cross' second grade. Mr. and Mrs. Santa Claus (John Hall and Deborah Carver) appeared with the boys and girls in Mrs. Salder's and Miss Narel's first grade classes and joined them in song. Following a medley of holiday songs played on flutophones by Mrs. Stearns' class, they presented a puppet show based on the story of "The Puppy Who Wanted A Boy for Christmas."

Barbara Astley, Patty Smith and Tommy Ronco have their regular instrumental lessons and practice together as a group once a week. Ecker told the audience of parents and students that he was very pleased with the program the group has made. The choir concluded its part of the concert, singing "Mary Had a Baby," "Rommel Drum" and "Deck the Halls." Ruth Ann Adams and Diane Belliveau provided flute accompaniment for the song from the Netherlands, "Rommel Drum." The program was concluded with the playing of "Birthday Serenade" by the boys and girls from the fourth and fifth grades who make up the Caldwell School band.

Mrs. Perkins' second graders concluded the program singing the "Twelve Days of Christmas" and "We Wish You a Merry Christmas." At the end of this final number, the boys and girls walked on the stage and gave out greeting cards before wishing everyone a happy holiday season.

THE CALDWELL SCHOOL choir, band, and string ensemble combined talents to present a musical treat for the holidays last Thursday in the school auditorium. Elaine Scurtis, vocal music specialist, directed the choir in the opening medley: "O Sanctissima," "Carol for the New Year" and "The Night Was Cold."

The newly formed string ensemble made its first appearance under the baton of Wesley Ecker, playing "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star" and "Merrily We Roll Along." Paul Grigg, Cheryl Stewart, Linda Strasko, Amy Pederson,

Sabbath discussion at temple will probe topic of patriotism

"Patriotism: What is it? Where is it?" will be the topic of the sermon-discussion to be presented by Rabbi Reuben R. Levine at the Hanukkah week college homecoming Sabbath service tomorrow evening at 8:45 at Temple Beth Ahim, Springfield. Rabbi Levine declared, "This subject is appropriate for several reasons. On Hanukkah, we recall the struggle undertaken by the Jews of ancient Palestine against the established Greco-Syrian government. They fought for freedom of conscience and religious liberty. We can very well ask: 'Wasn't that unpatriotic?' But we do not ask that question because we take it for granted that such a rebellion is both justified and heroic. Today, the question of patriotism arises in connection with objections to our government's war policy, just what constitutes true patriotism, and at what point a person can be called disloyal because of his disagreement with government policy, has become a subject of debate. This is the area I would like to explore with the young people of college age at our annual homecoming service this year." Rabbi Levine extended an invitation to everyone and particularly to young men and women, to attend the Oneig Sabbath reception at which the discussion will take place. Will be sponsored by the Springfield Lodge of B'nai B'rith.

Dayton has 'College-In' for 100 juniors, seniors

Twenty-nine Jonathan Dayton Regional High School graduates representing 28 colleges returned to their alma mater in Springfield to conduct the school's first "College-In" for the benefit of 100 members of the junior and senior classes who are planning to enroll in these colleges in the near future. The "College-In" was organized by Principal Robert F. LaVanture and Guidance Director Charlotte Slinger.

This program, which was held in the school cafeteria, was a part of the college orientation interviews which are held every month. This phase of the interviews was introduced to give prospective enrollees at these colleges a chance to get first hand impressions, personal experiences and evaluations from local students at the schools. The "College-In" is a supplement to the visit of official college representatives who addressed the Dayton students earlier in the school year.

The 28 colleges that were represented at the meeting were selected by the guidance department after a thorough research and study of the most popular colleges selected by Dayton graduates over the past four years. Guidance counselors Marie Giannone, Helen Crawford and Mel Lefever were in charge of the survey and made the arrangements for the former students to attend and address the group.

The students and the colleges they attend include—Scott Tanne, American University; Margaret Hildep and Elaine Perlman, Boston University; Gail Wilner, Bradley University; Jim Bender, Cornell; Karen Wasserman, Douglass; Alan Cr-aham, Franklin and Marshall; Karen Weber, Gettysburg; Judy Waldt, George Washington; Alan Silverman, Ithaca; Tom Brownlie, Lehigh; Iris Conklin, Marietta; Richard Sneider, Muhlenberg; Bob Gleitsman, MIT; David Bass, Oakland University; Linda Spector, Ohio University; Andrea Jones, Paterson State; Bob Cohen, RPI; Samuel Josephs, Rider; Bill Burnett, Rutgers; Stuart Kurtzer, Syracuse; Fred Tizio, Tufts; Peggy Kramer, University of Bridgeport; Art Seikoff, University of Pennsylvania; Steven Piller, University of Pittsburgh; Bill Murphy, Wilkes College; Gary Simson, Yale, and Barbara Ragucci, Villanova.

Sandmeier School glee club, band present annual concert

The glee club and band of the Thelma Sandmeier School, Springfield, presented their annual holiday program in the school auditorium last Wednesday afternoon. The glee club, under the direction of Mrs. Dorothy Stallworth, opened the concert singing Victor Herbert's "Toyland." A specialty number, "Must Be Santa," featuring Mrs. Stallworth and the glee club, drew applause from the audience of parents and students.

The boys who were members of the glee club put on an exhibition of marching to the music of "Babes in Toyland." Glen Brown, physical education teacher at the Sandmeier School, worked with the boys to perfect their routine. After the glee club girls danced to the "Jingle Bell Rock" Bobby Groder played a piano solo: "Skating on the Ice."

The Sandmeier band, under the direction of Michael Paglia, performed two traditional holiday numbers. Another instrumental feature was the flute quartet composed of Abby

Sarokin, Debbie Lowy, Terry Herzlinger and Judy Horowitz.

After singing "My Favorite Things," from "Sound of Music," and "Christmas in Klarnet," the glee club closed with "Let There Be Peace on Earth."

The children who played musical instruments in this holiday program are members of the regular instrumental music program offered in the Sandmeier School under the direction of Paglia. The singers are members of the volunteer glee club that rehearses before school (and occasionally after school and during lunch hours) with the vocal music specialist, Mrs. Stallworth.

Contested election vital for educational progress

With the deadline for filing candidates' petitions to run for the Springfield Board of Education just a week away, the community again faces the possibility that the three incumbent board members may run without opposition for the three seats open.

At the same time, as today's deadline approached for candidates to file for the Regional High School District Board of Education, there appeared to be several contenders in the race for the one seat available.

The probability of a contest for the regional board membership is good news for the community. No candidate, no matter how capable, can represent the educational views of the entire community. The citizens of Springfield deserve a choice.

The local board, where there has been less public attention directed in recent months, would also be a healthier organization if members faced a contest for reelection.

Uncontested candidates have no need to render a full accounting of their service. The public, however, is certainly entitled to have the candidates summarize their views on education, as well as the amount of time they have invested in the board, the number of committee meetings attended, the number and type of responsibilities fulfilled.

All groups in the community are entitled to representation on the Board of Education, and all points of view.

We have difficulty believing that everyone in the community is perfectly satisfied with the service of all three incumbents. Even if their records had been perfect, and we tend to doubt perfection in anyone, the presence of a challenger or two on the ballot would, at the very least, serve as a stimulus to the three board members whose terms will expire next winter.

Now is the time, indeed, for all good men, and women, to come to the aid of the Board of Education by taking a more active part in the community's educational procedures.

Springfield Public Library reports on newest books for local readers

By EVA P. BROWN

The Springfield Public Library this week listed the following titles among the new books now available:

BIOGRAPHY

"Bashful Billionaire," by Albert B. Gerber. This is an unauthorized biography of the enigmatic Howard Hughes. A strange, Horatio Alger saga of a diligent, ambitious lad who, in turn, became a record-breaking pilot, a promotional wizard and a fabulous millionaire. Gerber has carefully and honestly searched out the facts that reveal the man behind the legend. No photographs are included here, as none are available of the publicity-shy Mr. Hughes.

CHILD EDUCATION

"How to Raise a Brighter Child," by Joan Beck. Here is a volume that merits an important place in every home where there are young children. It is a readable and authoritative guide to the methods by which a child can be taught at the correct speed during the early pre-school years, when the child's intellectual and emotional development of a child depends so much upon his parents.

CHILDREN'S LITERATURE

"The Conspiracy Against Childhood," by Eda J. Le Shan. A leading authority on child guidance and education speaks up against the severe pressures on today's children. The hyper-competitiveness in schools, morbid reliance on testing and college entrance exams are a few of the topics on which Mr. LeShan offers sensible, down-to-earth advice.

RETIREMENT

"How to Make the Rest of Your Life the Best of Your Life," by Henry Legler. An inspiring and superbly practical plan for learning how not to retire from life when you retire from work. Legler shows how to find the interests and activities which will be most agreeable, how to keep fit, beat insomnia and banish boredom and, most important of all, how to find inner strength and serenity.

JUVENILE

"The Hamakua Story," by Morrison David. A novel for the young teen-ager, set in the early years of World War II when Crete fell to the Nazis. Life and freedom and the fulfillment of war, as well as the folklore of Crete, make this a memorable book.

"New Year's Day," by Lynn Groh. Here is a little history of the celebration of New Year's Day, for young readers. When the idea originated, how customs have been carried down, both in the old world and the new, make a tale both charming and informative. Attractively illustrated by Leonard Groh.

"The Skies of Crete," by James Foreman. A novel for the young teen-ager, set in the early years of World War II when Crete fell to the Nazis. Life and freedom and the fulfillment of war, as well as the folklore of Crete, make this a memorable book.

CAPITAL GAINS IN CAPITAL GOODS?

Through the years, the volatile machine tool makers have been prime beneficiaries of capital goods upturns...and unsatisfactory performers during recessions. Recently, however, these cycles have been obscured by the nation's appetite for plant and equipment. Expenditures for this purpose have doubled since 1958—and, despite a rising base, the annual growth rate accelerated to a peak of almost 17 percent in 1966.

In this year's first nine months, orders were off 32 percent from the comparable year-earlier figure. Shipments were 10 percent higher and shipped the rate of new orders by some 20 percent. Backlogs, of course, declined accordingly.

Even prospective orders—at least from this industry's principal customers, the automobile makers—do not promise favorably for the months ahead. Unsettled labor conditions aside, it appears to me that the automobile manufacturers already are well prepared for a 10-million car year...and basic model changes have advanced from their machine tool producers some have doubled in price—and the entire industry has outperformed the market.

Clearly, current earnings and in some cases, past earnings, have been the deciding factor in the great time over, machine tool orders are being evaluated on reported profits rather than incoming orders. I cannot subscribe to this reasoning. Not only is manufacturing time on these mammoth units rather lengthy, but production pipelines have been choked for five years—so that the waiting line is long before work even begins. A further lag is introduced by the obstacles encountered by a corporation attempting to reverse direction. Massive capital programs cannot quickly grind to a complete stop; some over-capacity upon completion is unavoidable.

and not necessarily undesirable. But when demand resumes, most customers are in no great hurry to place orders. A need for additional equipment exists only when business finally recovers to its previous peak, then catches up with capacity which had been idle.

Recognition of this time lag is essential as a basic fact of machine tool life. Reported income is nourished by existing backlogs; future prospects lean on incoming orders. As a result, machine tool earnings frequently rise well into an economic downturn, but usually trail a general business recovery.

In historic perspective, these stocks typically have been evaluated on the basis of orders, not earnings. As the capital goods cycle approaches its peak, machine tool equities are available at uncommonly conservative price/earnings ratios...but they are not really on the bargain counter, for the handwriting of impending trouble is already on the wall.

Conversely, after the economy has passed a cyclical trough and incoming machine tool orders have begun to rise, price/earnings multiples are uncommonly high since profits lag well behind demand. At such inflated multiples, though, machine tool issues frequently are undervalued.

As I SEE IT, this is not the typical end of capital goods explosion. Actually, machine tool makers are operating at cross-currents—while several factors suggest that capital programs someday must resume their up-thrust with considerable vigor.

Despite the spending surge of recent years, this country's plant and equipment are antiquated. More than 25 percent of capital facilities are at least 15 years old, and over two-thirds were in use prior to 1962. Eventually, competitive pressures will dictate replacement.

In any case, the swift progress of modern technology continues to generate new products and techniques requiring manufacturing equipment which never before existed. (Corporations now spend more than $20-billion a year on research and development, and the trend is distinctly up.)

Investors in a position to ignore this industry's many uncertainties should concentrate in selections of issues geared to specific objectives...and depending on the degree of risk which can prudently be assumed. My advice, in any case, is not to plan on holding these shares more than six months.

Investment questions can be addressed to Mr. Arthur S. Pollack, who is a stockbroker with Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, in care of this newspaper.

Wall Street Notebook

By ARTHUR POLLACK

HOLIDAY HYSTERIA NOT PRODUCTIVE WASHINGTON—The "holiday hysteria" over travel safety which grips the nation five times a year is not an effective way to deal with our transportation problems. It is superficial at best, negative at worst.

The nation's transportation problems are far too serious and complex to be treated as a seasonal weekend phenomenon, and, after considerable thought, I have become convinced that a corporation attempting to create a national transportation overseer. This transportation overseer, whether it be an individual, a bureau, or an agency would be charged only with coordinating transportation facilities. Existing administrative functions and responsibilities would not be disturbed.

In 1966, the five major weekends for traffic fatalities—Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Christmas and New Year's—accounted for more than 10 percent of total vehicle deaths. And yet, there were over 50,000 people killed at times other than the "hysterical" weekends.

Accidents aside, the highways are choked with traffic. We have just reached the two hundred million mark in population, and the "cult of the automobile" shows no signs of diminishing.

The same crowded, confused situation plagues the nation's airlines. If Federal Aviation Agency projections are accurate, we can expect a continuing process—not a series of unrelated, isolated movements. Unless we can begin to treat our transportation systems as integrated parts of a network, we will not meet with much success in solving the problems of tremendous growth.

Unless we can get away from discussions about the airline crisis, the auto crisis, and the rail crisis, and talk instead about the problems and promises of the transportation process, we will not be able to meet the challenge of the next 50 years.

total saturation in the New York metropolitan area airports by 1971.

Dangerously overcrowded air space at the nation's major airports already has been called a menace by pilots, air traffic controllers, and safety officials. Now, with the rapid approach of the Boeing 747, the realization exists that one plane will enter these crowded traffic patterns carrying 400 passengers. Airline officials brace for the holiday rush, but they know too well the day-to-day logjam of people and planes.

The railroads, too, will be inundated. Terminals will be jammed, trains will be late, passengers will be standing in the aisles. These facts of life in the transportation field indicate a need for much more than an occasional flurry of activity.

A transportation overseer—or czar, if you will—would do nothing else but coordinate the development and operation of the nation's transit systems. Under the overseer would come research, development, implementation, and evaluation of major transportation systems.

There are a whole host of government agencies now concerned with some aspect of transportation, and there are numerous private studies and task forces looking into this or that facet of this or that transit system. This is a piecemeal approach to an integrated problem. Moving people and goods becomes a continuing process—not a series of unrelated, isolated movements. Unless we can begin to treat our transportation systems as integrated parts of a network, we will not meet with much success in solving the problems of tremendous growth.

PROFILE—Mrs. Sydney Faber

By BEA SMITH

Mrs. Sydney (Joan) Faber of Springfield, who has devoted 20 years of her life to the rehabilitation of emotionally-disturbed people, continues to give many of her hours to those in need of help.

For the past three years, however, Mrs. Faber has been devoting her time primarily to children. She is director of the Children's Institute in East Orange, a special school for emotionally-disturbed children.

Mrs. Faber is the former Joan Kessler, and her father is the noted Dr. Henry H. Kessler of the Kessler Institute in West Orange. She says she grew up in the "atmosphere of rehabilitation," and it was a natural thing to follow in these footsteps.

The Children's Institute in East Orange, Mrs. Faber says, is a "day treatment center for emotionally-disturbed children, from three to 10 years old. We give daily classes with four children to one teacher-therapist. There are no geographic boundaries—the children come from everywhere."

"We are a non-profit, non-sectarian agency with all the fees on a sliding scale. Right now we have 16 children and next year we expect to have two more classes. Then we'll have 24."

"OUR NAME IS beginning to spread, and we are receiving wide recognition. There is a waiting list, however," Mrs. Faber states, "just as with all day centers."

Mrs. Faber explains that the institute has "an excellent professional staff and many professional educational programs."

She says that the center runs three to 10-week seminars each year for people in the field. "Our courses are in conjunction with local universities."

"We have supervised field workers in conjunction with universities or teachers in special education, social work and school psychology. And we have just instituted something new. We have established a foreign exchange internship for psychologists, psychiatrists, social workers, teacher therapists and people in the field of administration."

"We have done this," she says, "to broaden their experience and skills in working with emotionally disturbed children in order for them to take these experiences back to their own countries. The institute feels its obligation to share its knowledge and experience with others in the field. And we're doing it partly through the International Society for the Rehabilitation of the Disabled. It's sort of a clearing house here for the placing of one of their many projects."

MRS. FABER EXPLAINS that this is the "fifth year of operation for the Children's Institute," and our goal is to help children improve to the point where they can function in the community and return to regular classes in the public school system.

"We work very closely with special services personnel in the public schools in New Jersey. For example," she says, "if a public school refers a child to the institute, his tuition is paid for by the public school sending district under the new Beadleston Act, which provides that all handicapped children in New Jersey will be educated in the sending district in which they live."

The Children's Institute, Mrs. Faber says, is a member of the Professional Council of Day Centers for Atypical Children. "There are about 22 member centers in the Metropolitan area, only five of which are from New Jersey."

Mrs. Faber explains that the average length of stay in the institute is three years. "Some make it in two, some in four. Classes are from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. daily. The staff includes a teacher-therapist, a psychologist, a psychiatrist, a social worker and a learning disability specialist."

"We see the institute growing to be not only a school to provide complete services for emotionally-disturbed children, but also as a center for professional education and research."

Among the services provided by the institute, Mrs. Faber indicates, are "group counselling for parents, individual counseling for parents and children and diagnostic evaluation which is available to any child in the community, whether he is being considered for enrollment or not.

"We use trained volunteers in our classroom."

Mrs. Faber, who was born in Newark, was graduated from Miss Beard's School in Orange and Emerson College in Boston, where she received a B.A. degree. She did graduate work at Harvard University, the University of California and St. John's College in Annapolis. She has been director of the Children's Institute in East Orange.

"I SERVED AS director of occupational therapy in Arlington, Va., and special education director in Newark public schools. I received professional education at the Kessler Institute and served as supervisor of counseling and evaluation at the Occupational Center of Union County in Elizabeth. For the past three years, I have been director of the Children's Institute in East Orange."

Mrs. Faber lives in Springfield with her husband and three sons, Ronald, 20, Jed, 15, and Todd, 13. Her husband is associated with Putter Brothers in Millburn. "Ronald," she says, is going to be a tax lawyer. He's at Wharton School of Business, University of Pennsylvania, in his second year. Jed is a sophomore at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School and Todd is in the seventh grade at Gaudinier School."

Outstanding among the many organizations of which Mrs. Faber is a member are the National Remanufacturing Council, the American Occupational Therapy Association, the American Medical Writers Association and the U. S. Committee for the International Society for the Rehabilitation of the Disabled.

As far as the Children's Institute is concerned, Mrs. Faber says, "We want to have every facility possible for children all over one roof and have training facilities for other professionals—and carry out research, too. Not nearly enough is known about these children. There are so many of them and so few facilities. We need professional people to recognize these problems."

"And we hope to get the children younger and younger, to be able to recognize these illnesses at a very young age, so that we may be able to help them sooner in their young lives."

In Past Tense

ONE YEAR AGO

ARTHUR M. FALKIN will serve as mayor of Springfield. He succeeds ROBERT G. PLANER, who is retiring after a year as chief executive and will continue to serve on the Township Committee as commissioner in charge of public safety. Three Millburn youths ice skating on the Rahway River in Springfield discover the body of a Newark woman floating in the river near Rt. 78 construction. The guidance department at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School announces that 144 are named to the honor roll of the year's second marking period.

TOWNSHIP COMMITTEES

VINCENT J. BONADIESI, lone Democrat on the Springfield governing body, doesn't let holiday spirit distract him from firing a few parting shots at GOP-controlled Union County Board of Freeholders. Four Springfield teen-agers will appear in "Aladdin and His Camel" to be presented at the Maplewood Theater. They are JUDY VANCE, ANTHONY BRADY, DIANE ASHFIELD and CAROL ASHFIELD. A count of graduates of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School shows that 40 percent are attending four-year college courses. Of the 1957 male graduates, 45 percent are in college, while the female percentage is 35 percent.

25 YEARS AGO

Springfield residents give 109 pints of blood to the Red Cross. Of the 180 registrants, some could not give blood because of medical reasons, upon examination by doctors with the mobile blood donor unit. ARTHUR L. ANTI-STASSENIST

In reference to your "One Year Ago" column in "The Past Tense" of 12/21/67 Leader, I find absolutely no parallel between myself and Harold E. Stassen. Stassen has been a yes-man for the Establishment through the Council on Foreign Relations which advocates a one-world, socio-communal way of life. Although once a governor, Stassen's future is now past.

Although never a governor, my future is yet to come in "political" maturity. Poles apart from Stassen, I have always been an advocate of "one nation, under God," individual initiative, independent thinking and free speaking. I dissent if necessary! Like Abe Lincoln, my zeal for the American way of life may seem strong at times, but it's always honest. Like Abe Lincoln at age 42, I have not yet been elected to public office but I have served Springfield loyally on the swim pool committee and on many other important committees in my community and country. Senator CLIFFORD P. CASE Reports

The first session of the 90th Congress, the fourth longest in 20 years, finally came to an end in mid-December. Since then, the political commentators have been busy assessing the record. The consensus seems to be ordinary at best. Some think it was outright poor—in some respects, it certainly was. No one suggests it was distinguished.

Ironically, the first legislation the Senate tackled this session was still hanging fire at adjournment. Three years ago, disturbed by the problems faced by increasing Congressional procedures and improving operations, the Congress established a Joint Committee on the Organization of the Congress. It was pleased to be a member of the Committee, which put in many hours, first in hearings, then in working out recommendations which, though far from earthshaking, would help Congress to function more effectively.

After weeks of debate, the Senate approved a weakened version of the bill in March. Even so, when it reached the House, it fell victim to some of the very parliamentary roadblocks it was designed to reduce. Whether the House will finally accept the modest reforms proposed by the Senate is still uncertain, in large part because of the opposition of the House leadership and committee chairmen to any diminution of their present powers.

On the side of accomplishment, in such domestic matters as social security, air pollution, health, teacher training and model cities, the Congress enacted legislation some of which represents modest steps in the right direction. The model cities and rent supplement programs were barely kept alive.

In other matters of urgency, there was no final action. For example, three months after the House passed a bill to provide more effective protection for the exercise of constitutional rights, the Senate Judiciary Committee reported an amended bill to the full Senate. It has languished on the calendar ever since. Fortunately, the Majority Leader has now announced that he will make it the first order of business in the new session beginning in January.

The Safe Streets and Crime Control Bill did not even make it out of committee. Designed to provide protection against lawlessness and violence and to strengthen law enforcement, it too must get priority attention in the new session. Significantly, we must attack far more effectively poverty and injustice in American life.

The Vietnam war dominated the session. In the 22 years I have been in Congress, I have known no issue which has so pervaded the thinking of members and all aspects of the legislative process.

As 1967 wore on, it became apparent that the President was less and less inclined to consult with the Congress and particularly with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. As matters now stand, the Secretary of State is persisting in his refusal to testify in public hearings before our Committee, a position which I believe is indefensible in the light of the country's concern.

The domestic impact of the Vietnam conflict showed most clearly in the controversy over the anti-poverty program, the President's tax proposal and appropriations in general. Controversy was sharpened by the lack of clear priorities set by the Administration.

But one issue was unaffected by the war. That is the matter of "Congressional ethics." Both the House and Senate were forced to confront allegations of improper conduct on the part of their members. Rarely in history has either house been moved to discipline a member, but each house did in 1967. At the end of the session, however, neither house had acted on the larger question: how best to maintain high standards of conduct by all members and protect the integrity of the legislative branch.

A new year and a new session lie ahead. There is much to be done. When the Congress reassembles in January, I hope it will do so with a new sense of resolve to carry out its responsibilities fully in this time of national disquiet and urgent national need.

ALCOHOL AND GASOLINE DON'T MIX

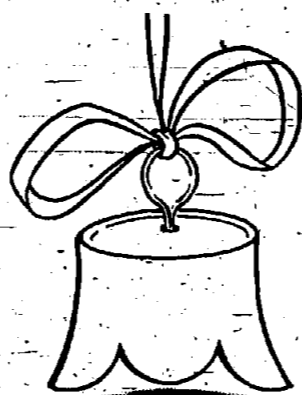

This holiday weekend will end in tragedy for far too many drivers... their families and victims. Don't gamble away your life, the lives of your loved ones for one more drink... or one careless moment. If you drink, don't drive. Always remain alert at the wheel. Be courteous to every driver and every pedestrian. Make sure your car is safe before you start, and remember to obey all traffic signals and signs. Drive with care... because safety is your business.

This New Year's Eve... and throughout the year-

A FEMININE LOOK

At Africa 1967

(Commentary on a National Newspaper Association Study Mission to eight African countries south of the Sahara.)

By TRUDINA HOWARD

Thirty-third in a Series

THE ANIMALS OF AMBOSELI

One of the joys of a visit to Africa is viewing the animals. The most popular places for this are Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda, but ours was at Amboseli in Kenya, and it was beautiful. When the warden in your car discovers an animal, he directs the car up as close as possible and then you sit and look and take pictures. It is fantastic. The feline family—the lions, cheetahs and leopards (there are no tigers in Africa) let you come so close you can count the flees on their noses and the ticks on their backs, but the gnu (also called wildebeest), zebra, and the small Tommydeer, the impa and such, spring away before you can get too near.

The rhino will condescend to let you come fairly close if he is playing Ferdinand, the Bull and lying down taking a sunbath. By the time he raises three and a half tons of rugged body off the ground, and shakes the ticks-birds off, he'd almost rather just try to out-gare you. But most of the time you find him standing, and then he turns in the general direction of your car and snorts and threatens you. He is near-sighted and really can't see you well, but he glowers in your direction as if he does, and crankily stamps his big, stumpy feet as if to take off in a charge at you. Sometimes he does, too; so the wardens treat him warily. Besides, he can move as fast as a horse if he wants to, and has been known to overturn a car and cut it down the middle. He may not have two sharp eyes, but he has two sharp horns right in the middle of his forehead, and they comprise the closest thing to a walking can-opener that you would ever want to see.

JUST THE OPPOSITE from this disenchanted creature is the disarmingly engaging giraffe. Everyone likes him. He is not like the elephant who can ruin the food supply of a native for a season just by walking or eating through his garden, or the lion who will kill lovely animals, or the monkey who will rob your best tree of its fruit.

The giraffe, called "twiga" in Swahili, seems to do nothing wrong. He eats the tops of trees which harms no one, he doesn't kill another and he doesn't go parading through private gardens. He simply flips his long lashed over his beautiful black eyes and gazes wonderingly at you. He's just a flirt, and he's nice.

The lion and other cats, of course, are not liked by natives or beasts—for obvious reasons. But for the tourists they are thrilling. One boy of lions we watched consisted of one male, eight females and two little cubs. We drove practically into their midst and they never even looked in our direction or moved, which amazed me. A couple of the "girls" were flat on their backs with all four paws flapping skywards. One gal sauntered over to papa lion, and gave him a little peck on the ear and kept going. With that, however, papa got up from his fixed English-manor-house position and sashayed AFTER her. "Aha!" we all said, "it's even effective in the jungle." After he pecked her back he began playing with the cubs and it was wonderful to see. What a family man he was! And what a plutocrat. He moved with great, regal, grace and never once gave us a nudge. We were completely snubbed.

WHEN WE RODE ON, we came across a trio of cheetahs, eating in the shade of a large bush. The grass was so high we barely noticed them, but the lone ranger did, and so we parked next to them. They were eating zebra or gnu, their favorite dish and again, were so engrossed, they didn't even look at us. Another time we saw one running and that was a symphony of grace—and speed. Cheetahs are the fastest of all animals and can reach 70 miles per hour.

We went viewing two times: in the evening and in the morning and, in that time, saw 13 different species and the glory of the sun and moon on Kilimanjaro. Besides the animals already mentioned there were monkeys, hyena, wart hog, and some ostrich. I thought there would be scads of insects in the camp and dutifully shook my racket before donning them, but there never was a one. I thought there would be snakes winding down trees and dropping on people, but I never saw one in ALL of Africa. I thought there would be jungle vines and thick, lush underbrush and swampy, soggy land but there was predominantly grassland and trees and scrub and rolling hills. I thought there would be jungle noises all the time but it was as quiet as church on Monday. Except for one little screech of an elephant and one IIEE series of chattering, which the cook told us in the morning was from a troop of hyenas who had come in to have a look at QUR layout for a change, there was not one peep.

NEXT: UGANDA AND THE END OF THE AFRICAN JOURNEY.

more milk when their heads and necks were held in enclosures cooled to 60 degrees than when they were housed in an 85-degree barn. Reduced cost is the main reason for cooling only cows' heads and necks to reduce milk production losses in hot weather. Most dairymen hesitate to air-condition their barns because of high installation, operating and maintenance costs.

STORING FRESH WATER by "injecting" it through wells into subsurface rocks is being tested by hydrologists of the Geological Survey, Department of the Interior and the city of Norfolk, Va. If successful, the method of underground water storage may have far-reaching applications in many coastal areas where surface storage is difficult or expensive. Hydrologists admit that experiments involving techniques for storing fresh water underground are not new. This test, however, will be the first time that large amounts of water will have been involved. Researchers hope that hundreds of millions of gallons of fresh water will be stored underground and held "in reserve" for several years.

Hadassah chapter to hold card party, buffet on Jan. 25

A buffet supper and card party will be held Thursday night, Jan. 25, at Temple Beth Ahm, under the auspices of Springfield Chapter of Hadassah. The supper, to be served at 7 o'clock, will be followed by games of cards and mah jong.

Proceeds of the affair will go towards Youth Aliyah. The local Youth Aliyah chairman, Mrs. Sidney Piller, emphasizing the services performed through this youth immigration movement, pointed out that Youth Aliyah has "graduated" thousands of skilled young people who constitute a potent and positive force in the agricultural, industrial and cultural development of Israel.

There are some 10,000 wards now in training in 267 Youth Aliyah villages, agricultural settlements and special schools and centers in Israel, where they are taught academic and vocational subjects plus recreational and cultural activities, she said.

Through this movement, under the auspices of the Jewish Agency for Israel, Hadassah had already helped resettle and rehabilitate in Israel nearly 130,000 Jewish youth from 80 lands, she said. Principal agency in the United States supporting the program of Youth Aliyah in Israel, Hadassah provides about 40 percent of the Youth Aliyah budget required for maintenance, education and special projects.

The Ladies' Guild of Holy Cross Lutheran Church, Springfield, will have James Schroeder, a school psychologist, as guest speaker at its meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Schroeder has chosen "New Ways of Dealing with Old Problems" for his topic. He is the school psychologist for the Roselle public schools, a position which takes him to five elementary schools and one high school. He also teaches part-time at evening classes of Newark State College. He received his master's degree from Seton Hall University, and will be working on his doctorate this year at Fordham University in New York City. Schroeder is a church member and the Sunday School superintendent at Holy Cross Church. Opening devotions for the meeting will be led by Mrs. Walter Gaestel. Hostesses will be Mrs. Henry Freudenberger, chairman; Mrs. Edwin Crump and Mrs. Stephen Wasko.

A June 11 wedding is planned.

The day the mouse roared.

You're in school for 12 years. But most of you will never make a team. Why? Because you're too light. Because you're a girl. Because you work after school and can't practice. Whatever the reason, it's a fact: The same kids make all the teams.

Today you can stand up and do something about it. There's a new kind of team at school. The President's All America Team. And everybody has the same chance to make it. Don't let the name scare you into thinking it's difficult. It's easy if you're irishape. Impossible if you're not. Every boy and girl 10 to 17 can try out. This is a test of all-around ability (not how good you are in one sport).

It's a test of strength, speed and endurance. You have to run, jump, sit-up, pull-up and throw a softball. Big guys have no advantage over little guys. Boys have no advantage over girls. This is the youngest, smallest, lightest, newest, strongest team in America. Last year 50,000 kids made the team and won an award and a badge from the President. Can you make the President's All America Team? You'll never know unless you try out. So do it. And don't worry about your size, sex or shape. After all, David beat Goliath. He didn't look easy. Samson's strength. And you can be the mouse that roared.

FIRST-THINGS-FIRST
First-things-first is a good rule of thumb to use in painting. When painting a room begin with the ceiling. Next, wall should be painted at the upper left hand corner and working downward to the floor. If you're a "lefty" just reverse the order. Paint woodwork and trim last.

Risks are involved in exchanging gifts following holidays

"Do your Christmas exchanging early" has more meaning than just a slogan, says Carolyn F. Yukus, Senior County Home economist. It would be much simpler if right sizes, colors and choices had been selected before Christmas. But since this isn't always possible, a certain amount of exchanging must be done.

There are some risks involved in exchanging gifts. First of all, if a gift is returned to the store where it was purchased, you may be disappointed since the stock supply may be low and full range of colors, sizes and styles may not be available.

If this is a gift that you did not purchase, it may be necessary to pick out something else.

Store policies differ on giving cash refunds.

Some will credit a charge account, while others are reluctant to give cash refunds.

It may be possible in returning a gift that it is taken to the wrong store. The habit of many shoppers to remove all the tickets and tags and then wrapping the gift in any box may lead the gift receiver to returning the merchandise to the wrong store.

It is a wise practice to cut the price mark off the store tickets but leave the name and stock number on the item.

Some stores will accept nationally advertised brands whether or not they handled a particular model. It is best to check about this practice first before asking for an exchange. In view of after Christmas sales and inventories, most stores will refund or exchange for the full pre-Christmas amount for a published period of time. If gifts are returned after that time, then one must expect to receive a reduced price or refund.

A certain amount of gift adjustments are necessary after Christmas. As a shopper, you can help this situation by either exchanging necessary gifts yourself or else, give the receiver the full information as to where the gift was purchased and the price.

Plans were discussed at a recent meeting for the winter weekend of Jan. 19-21 at the Raleigh Hotel, Mrs. Warren Cohen, presided at the meeting. Refreshments were served and gifts were exchanged in honor of the holiday season. Mrs. Abraham Winston is chairman for the trip.

The group is also planning an evening theatre party at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, Feb. 4 to see the "Odd Couple." For reservations or information, Mrs. Anthony Matriciani may be called at 245-7640.

Ask Amy

By AMY ADAMS

Dear Amy:
Six years ago I married and my aunt had given me a platter, pitcher and sugar bowl as a gift for a china set. Included with the gift was a note telling me that the rest of the service would come. Well, 6 years have gone by and the rest of the service has yet to come.

This aunt was average, like the rest of my family, but she turned career woman, is quite wealthy now and just doesn't know any more. She never sent a card to my son when he was born, never calls her sister (my mother, the only family she has). My daughter, 9 months old, got a card from her and we were shocked. We thought perhaps she had a change of heart. To top it all off, her son is getting married, and just my parents received an invitation. There are only 4 nieces (including me) and nephews that go to make up the entire family. We never received an invitation. Now, one week before the wedding, my aunt sends us an invitation.

I have some pride and I replied that I, too, wouldn't go. Now everyone says that I should return the gift and say that maybe she could use more than I can. I am undecided. I don't want to be as ignorant as they. Please advise me.

Mrs. D.

Dear Mrs. D.:
There are few families who do not quarrel at one time or another. However, do not return the pieces of china your aunt gave you even though she did not complete the set as she said she would.

You accepted them graciously and it would be very ungracious to return them. Just forget it!

Dear Amy:
I sure hope you can help me. I am a 14 year old girl and I go to my boyfriend's house at times. We walk together, hold hands, sit together and things like that. (He doesn't like to kiss with other people around.) The thing is that he has 4 younger cousins who watch the two of us like we were babies. We tried telling them to get lost, but it didn't work... and we can't run off and leave them.

"What can I do?"

Mejissa

Dear Melissa:
It is not necessary for two 14-year-olds to look for privacy for the purpose of kissing each other. If you are ashamed to display your feelings in public, you should not do so in private. Lastly, I don't think that kissing other than a goodnight kiss is a healthy beginning for a friendship. Behave yourselves!

Dear Amy:
My father passed away recently. Prior to this, my husband and I received a wedding invitation which we accepted. The invitation is for 3 weeks after my father's passing and my husband feels obliged to attend.

Would it be proper for me to accompany him, should he go alone, or should we both decline? My mother and mother-in-law both agree that if I go, I should dance.

Also, would it be inappropriate to wear anything other than black? How long should I wear black in public (I don't around the house) and should I refuse all social invitations or would it be all right to attend, say, a niece's birthday party with our 4 children, or a dinner invitation to a friend's house?

I would appreciate your prompt reply as I am still somewhat of a novice and cannot think clearly, probably because this is my first experience along this line.

Mrs. R. N.

Dear Mrs. R. N.:
If the couple who are being married are closely related to you or your husband or if they are one of your closest friends, I would say attend. If, however, they are not closely related, decline with a note of explanation and regret. As far as dancing is concerned, I agree with your mother and mother-in-law.

Your religious and ethnic group of which you are a member dictates through heritage and custom the time period that black should be worn. Be guided by that.

I see no reason after about a month for you to refuse any social invitations whatever they may be.

Dwyer to pass up GOP convention

Rep. Florence P. Dwyer (R-12th District) announced this week she will not be a candidate for delegate to the 1968 Republican National Convention in Miami.

Though her decision has been made for some time and communicated to state-wide party leaders, Mrs. Dwyer explained, she decided to make it public "strategically" to quiet speculation. She said that "continued silence on my part would only create unnecessary confusion and delay in the choice of capable leaders to represent our party in the selection of its Presidential and Vice-Presidential candidates next summer."

Congresswoman Dwyer said her decision not to seek a delegate spot included both the state-wide at-large and the Congressional district delegate positions.

The six-term Congresswoman cited "time" and "the press of Congressional business" as reasons for turning down suggestions that she run for either a state or district delegate seat.

"It's obvious from the session we've just concluded," she said, "that 1968 will be an extraordinarily demanding year in terms of legislation before Congress. This fact plus the responsibilities of seniority on House committees make it prudent for me to concentrate my attention and energies on Congressional business and the representation of my constituents rather than take on anything new."

Mrs. Dwyer indicated, however, that she hoped delegates chosen from New Jersey will reflect the positive and progressive character of New Jersey Republicanism and will actively in the search for a Presidential nominee who has the capacity, determination and skill to rally the country to meet the great challenges we face today.

Banner '68 seen for N.J. economy

The New Jersey economy would appear to be in for an upward surge during 1968, according to a year-end forecast based on a statewide survey of business leaders conducted by the New Jersey Manufacturers Association.

Representative samplings taken from 336 Union County business concerns indicate this area will reap a full share of the general economic advances.

The results of the ninth annual association survey were made public this week by Leonard C. Johnson, president of the association.

They were based on responses submitted by the top executives of 2,536 business concerns throughout the state, and specially tabulated by computer at the association's headquarters in Trenton. The study is the most extensive of its kind in New Jersey, according to Johnson.

Generally, the survey outlook is for increases in all categories of business activity. More workers, particularly in the skilled categories, will be needed by New Jersey manufacturers, and will be paid higher wages for their labors. In addition to increased labor costs, New Jersey industry also expects to pay more for the materials to manufacture its products.

They expect to hire additional personnel, and 95 percent anticipate paying higher wages. The costs of production materials are expected to rise, according to almost 90 percent of the firms represented in the survey. Some 60 percent expect sales—and the prices of their products—to increase.

In Union County, opinions on the questions, in nearly every case, mirrored the attitudes in the statewide survey, with the latter in most instances by only a percentage point or two.

In two areas, however, Union County business executives displayed slightly more optimistic attitudes than their colleagues around the state, Johnson said.

Thirty-seven percent of the county respondents revealed plant expansion plans, as compared to only 34 percent on the state level. And, while the majority of Union businessmen anticipated increases in the cost of production materials, the survey figures were three percent less than the statewide estimates.

Regional schools will meet to discuss expansion plans

Meeting set for Dec. 14 to give data

Mountainside freshmen to spend year at Dayton

The Regional High School Board of Education will hold a public meeting on Thursday, Dec. 14, at 8 p.m. at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield, to announce our distribution of students and our long-range expansion plan.

Avery Ward of Kenilworth, board president, disclosed at the regular board meeting Tuesday night at Dayton.

"Basically," he added, "Mountainside freshmen will spend the year at Dayton, 1968, and 1969, then move to Jonathan Dayton. They will spend the year at Gov. Livingston Regional High School in Livingston, N.J., and all Mountainside students now attending in other words, they will be at Dayton for one year and at Gov. Livingston for their last three years."

Ward declined to give any details of just how the physical plant of the regional schools will be handled. He commented, "The whole program is under study by the architect and administrators and will be announced on Dec. 14."

Ward's plan included an addition to the facilities at Gov. Livingston, he replied. "You can draw that inference if you like, I can't say any more." Ward did note that board members were unanimous in their support for the new expansion plan.

The board will also discuss the expansion of the regional schools in Garwood. The board has had a problem for the past year and a half, since the opening of David Brearley Regional High School in Kenilworth, has been that enrollment has exceeded listed capacity at Gov. Livingston and at A. K. Johnson Regional High School in Kenilworth.

A storm of protest from Mountainside parents, however, influenced the board to drop one part of the proposal. This would have sent this year's Mountainside freshmen to Dayton, rather than Gov. Livingston. The group, some 150 youngsters, would have remained at Dayton for the full year, if that part of the plan had been put into effect.

Two other changes proposed at that time are now in effect. This year's freshmen from Garwood are at Brearley, rather than at Johnson. Older students from Garwood have a choice of whether to attend Brearley or remain at Johnson. Garwood parents have been asked to inform the board that all Garwood students will enroll at Brearley for the foreseeable future.

Freshmen from the Bannock Top section of Springfield now attend Dayton, although they would have attended at Gov. Livingston in past years. Older boys and girls from this area were given a choice of schools, whether to remain at Gov. Livingston or transfer to Dayton.

The plan was announced last spring. Officials expressed some concern over approval of any expansion plans by the Board of Education, even though overcrowded, they said, "Freshmen have had to be bused to other schools, and we are not sure if that will be a problem had been resolved."

Dayton moves to leave Watchung Conference

Rival schools have larger enrollments to compose squads

A request for Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield, to withdraw its athletic teams from participation in the Watchung Conference was presented by Dr. Warren M. Dayton, regional superintendent of schools, to the Bannock Top Board of Education at its meeting Tuesday night at Dayton.

He noted that the request came from Robert E. Vahner, principal at Dayton, with the support of Herbert Palmer, athletic director, Dr. Denis Miller. The athletic department faces a difficulty in scheduling games on an independent unit structure, as it is able to enter a conference of schools of similar size. I recognized that the board expressed no objection to the request.

Dayton has been a member of the Watchung Conference for several years. However, the enrollment has taken an upward trend. Particular success Kenilworth students were transferred from Dayton at the start of last year, with the opening of David Brearley Regional High School in Kenilworth, the local school has been by far the smallest in the conference.

Dayton this year has approximately 220 students. Many indications, in the senior class, appropriate teams for the number of seniors in each of the other member schools are Gov. Livingston Regional, Clark, 370; Cranford, 390; Hillside, 370; Rahway, 410; Scotch Plains, 430; and Westfield, 520.

Two other schools, Scotch Plains and Westfield, withdrew from the conference, because they felt that they lacked an opponent to compete with the larger schools, particularly in football which is played by 30 players on each side for a successful team.

They are Roselle Park High School and Archbishop Clark High School of Roselle, both now compete in the Garden State Conference, composed of schools the approximate size of Dayton, ranging geographically from Highland Park in Lakehurst to several metropolitan counties.

Following approval by the regional board, Dr. Dayton commented, the Bannock Top Board of Education will be in a position to accept the request. Holiday roundup of movie openings fills local screens with excellent fare

BY BEA SMITH A holiday roundup of film openings this past week is decorating the movie houses in our area.

"Gone With the Wind," current offering at the Clairidge Theater, Upper Montclair, has a new attractive face for moviegoers. The 1939 film classic, embellished in 70 mm. film (from its original 35 mm.) with stereophonic sound, has a new dimension on the curved Cinemascope screen.

For the younger generation, who will be seeing "Gone With the Wind" for the first time, it should be a memorable experience. Except for some shorter-than-we remember scenes (particularly the famous burning of Atlanta and the one where hundreds of soldiers are strewn along the ground, dead and dying), the picture proves to be a wonderful experience for all.

ON THE ORMONT THEATER screen in East Orange there is lighter fare — an excellent Italian comedy called "The Birds, The Bees and The Italians." Award-winning director Pietro Germi has a real winner with this romantic romp and marital misadventures.

ANOTHER CANNES-FILM FESTIVAL award-winning film, "The Tiger Makes Out," is the present film fare at the Art Theater, Irvington Center. This comic satire, starring the husband-wife team of Eli Wallach and Anne Jackson, is a broad adaptation of Murray Schisgal's off-Broadway play "The Tiger." It was filmed in Greenwich Village, and in addition to its adult-entertainment value, it offers a rather subtle message. "The Tiger Makes Out" is one of the funniest films in town and truly well-worth seeing.

This year's players outspeed alumni in annual Dayton basketball feature

BACK-COURT ACE — Richie Campbell, senior co-captain, is the star guard for the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School basketball team.

By MIKE CHOTINER

Last Friday night was a night that all the alumni who sought, perhaps, to relive briefly former high school glory might prefer to forget. The Dayton Varsity basketball team scored the alumni two to one behind the shooting of Tony Gromek. The varsity scored on 19 of 22 foul shot attempts.

Gromek, the tallest varsity player at 6-5, had one of his best games of the season. He scored 20 points and converted six of seven foul shot attempts. Gromek also led the team in rebounding.

Balance, however, was the key to the varsity success. Ralph Losano the rangy junior starter, scored 18 points and Cliff York, recovering his health, scored 11. Although he did not score many points, Rich Campbell played a fine offensive game, leading the varsity in assists. Dave Margulies and Don Cubberly both played a tight man-to-man defense.

The unsuccessful alumni, led by Frank Monticello, seemed sluggish. Monticello played an adequate game, scoring 15 points and leading the alumni in rebounds. Mike Dropkin and Bill Murphy also played moderately well. The alumni were simply unable to keep up with the varsity and could not contain their explosive offense.

In the past alumni games have been more closely contested and pressure-filled. On Friday night, pressure was not a factor. The varsity players remained poised, yet they lived up to their motto, "Pride and Desire."

Head coach Ray Yanchus said he was pleased with his team's fine performance, much of which can be attributed to his emphasis on team spirit and desire. Coach Yanchus described the alumni game as only a tune-up game, an important upcoming conversation with Roselle and Hillside.

Earlier in the evening, the junior varsity basketball team ripped the Dayton faculty team, 37-15, in a less formal game. Although competition was not keen, spirits were high, and the antics of the faculty proved rather amusing.

Frank Buccell led the JV scoring with some 18 points, while Keith Brownlie, Marty Josephs, and Dan D'Andrea worked inside. Bucchi and Phil Stokes fed and shot from the outside.

Norman Pollack at 5-5 jumped center for the faculty, while Vincent Albano and Manuel Perera answered all over the court. Bob Scuthers also played for the faculty and led the team's rebounding. Mike Iannelli played basketball.

Wrestlers lose in annual bouts against alumni

Last Friday night saw the alumni defeat the Dayton Varsity wrestlers by a score of 28-11. Several varsity reserves killed out the alumni roster.

In the first match, sophomore Tom Campbell pinned alum Gary Browning. The boys wrestled at 98 pounds. At 115 pounds, junior Dave Pierson also won by defeating Joey Priori.

In the heavier divisions, the varsity had difficulty. Wrestling at 123 pounds, Joe Sarno had little trouble with Bruce Borras and won by a 4-0 decision. Sophomore Robert Lyons was impressive in defeat, as he lost by way of a 1-0 decision to Barry Snyder, wrestling at 130 pounds.

Jimmy Williams had to fight hard to outwrestle senior Gary Vosburgh at 136 pounds. Vosburgh rallied late in the match, and the final score stood at 5-4, in favor of Williams.

Wrestling at 141 pounds, alumnus Howie Goldhammer went all three rounds with John Rainey and beat him by decision. Ted Ramos was impressive at 148 pounds, but Sri Cohen wrestled extremely well to conquer Ramos by decision.

At 157 pounds, alumnus Howard Rubenstein defeated Gary Jayne, a sophomore, on points. Al Silverman pinned Bill Chisholm, a senior, wrestling in the 167-pound weight class. Heavyweights Rich Moskowitz a junior, and Harlan Bauer went three rounds, with the decision falling to Bauer.

The final score of 28-11 seemed lopsided, but the varsity wrestled well and many of the defeats came on decisions. The varsity is composed of many young wrestlers, and promise of development is indicated.

Town meeting

siren sounded for two hours.

When he called the Police Department, Neibart said, he was told the department had no record of anyone to call in case of emergencies at the building.

Both Mayor Arthur M. Falkin and Police Commissioner Planer said that they would check on the matter immediately. Mayor Falkin added that committee telephone numbers are listed in the directory as part of the municipal listing, as an aid to residents in precisely this sort of emergency.

As the meeting closed, the committeemen paid tribute to the services in the past year of Falkin, who will relinquish the title of mayor at Monday's organizational meeting, while remaining as a committeeman.

They also lauded Jay Bloom, long Democrat on the committee, who did not seek re-election this year. Bloom was absent on Tuesday because of illness. Committeeman Philip DeVecchio presented him, in absentia, with a municipal citizenship award.

"I would say more," Falkin commented, "but the night decide to be a candidate again."

Tuberculosis patients

Christmas arrived a few days early this year for the more than 100 Union, Monmouth and Hudson County patients currently hospitalized at the Glen Gardner Sanatorium, Glen Gardner.

For the seventh consecutive year, members of the Board of Directors and the staff of the TB — Respiratory Disease Association of Central New Jersey — sponsors of the 1967 tri-county Christmas Seal Campaign — recently visited the institution to extend holiday greetings to the patients and present each of them a gift package.

All young men who meet the necessary requirements may take the written examination without prior application, Kelly said. Applicants who take the exam will be notified of the results; those who pass will be instructed to report to Division Headquarters, West Trenton, for the medical and physical examination. Coffee on house again on 'Pike

Holiday travelers are finding the right cup that cheers on the New Jersey Turnpike.

Free coffee. An eight-year-old tradition on the Turnpike, the practice was expanded to include Christmas Eve as well as New Year's Eve this year.

Known as the coffee best steps to offset driver fatigue and "highway hypnosis," cups of the brew were given gratis to all patrons at any of the Howard Johnson restaurants on the Turnpike from 9 p.m. Christmas Eve to 7 a.m. on Christmas Day and will be given during the same hours New Year's Eve to New Year's Day.

The New Jersey Turnpike was one of the first highway agencies to institute the practice, which has been adopted nationwide. A cup of coffee promotes safety. It not only involves getting out of one's vehicle, creating a change of environment, to overcome the hazards of fatigue and drowsiness, but also the coffee tends to make one more alert—a remedy for boredom and inattentiveness.

"Holiday travel," said Turnpike Authority Chairman Joseph Morecraft, Jr., "can be most trying and deserves every possible safety measure."

On Parkway too...

The Garden State Parkway will give out free coffee, tea or milk on New Year's Eve and morning of its 11th annual safety drinks program, and the motorists won't even need an invitation this time, it was announced this week.

All riders stopping at a Parkway restaurant between 11 p.m. on New Year's Eve and 11 a.m. next Monday will be offered a safety drink on the house. Their hosts will be Howard Johnson and Holiday House, the two operators of Parkway restaurants at its various service areas. During the previous 10 New Year's safety programs, the New Jersey Highway Authority issued invitation cards from its Parkway toll booths to exchange at any of the road's restaurants ahead for free drinks.

Authority Chairman Sylvester C. Smith, Jr., urged all motorists on the Parkway during the festive New Year's period to pause for a refreshing break in travel at the service area restaurants and make use of the concessionaires' courtesy.

As the card to be passed out notes, this is really one for the road...and safety.

WHOLE WHEAT The ancient Phoenicians and other eastern civilizations used stones to crack whole wheat for a cereal food they called "bulgh." Today, bulgh, wheat processed by modern automated methods is one of the nourishing staples CARE uses in its feeding programs for the world's hungry people.
