Dr. Kenneth W. Iversen, president of Union College, said the College Information Center is designed to help Union County residents find out what higher education and other services are available to them.

National issues affect local political picture

Party lines, many people believe, have little relevance in a municipal election. There is no Democratic or Republican side to a local issue, in the abstract, until one party or the other takes a stand based on a local, not national, philosophy of government.

Local candidates, the argument goes, should be judged on their individual capabilities and their stands on local issues, not on the accident of affiliation with a national party, or opinions on national issues.

We have always tended to agree with this stand. Now, we are no longer sure.

The nation, from the top levels of power in Washington to the grass roots right here down, is split on a basic issue of war and peace.

The divisions, of course, tend to cross party lines. There are Democrats who support the Nixon administration stand, and Republicans who oppose it.

The young people who are planning to mobilize for the elections this fall have raised a valid point. Party policy, and eventually national policy, is determined to a substantial extent by those elected directly by voters who know who and what they are.

Local officials have a major voice in selection of legislators and in the choice of national convention delegates. There is not the only voice that is heard, but it is one that is respected in many quarters.

Therefore, we are sure, local candidates for municipal office will be asked for their views on the conduct of the war in Indochina.

We believe that this year they have an obligation to answer the views of the voters on this subject in due course.

However, local municipal officials will continue to have great influence on those who represent us all in Washington.

Obviously, a dove or a hawk will have little room to express his views in the local governmental arena. He will, however, have a responsibility to follow his conscience in his function as a party leader.

The people of Springfield may well be mostly doves, or at least mostly doves, on most of the issues, rather than being confused pelicans still looking for leadership.

The best place for that leadership to start is right here in Town Hall.

Therefore, we urge the local candidates to start thinking out their stands on the basic national dilemma — and to be ready to make those views known when asked.

Credit cards are a big business. Mr. Chairman, as of June, 1969, over $13 billion in outstanding credit cards are now in existence in the United States. Over 1,000 consumer credit plans are now in existence in this country, and hundreds of thousands of businesses. In just one area of the credit card business — credit cards — the volume of outstanding credit more than doubled in the two-year period from mid-1967 to mid-1969. Our bill, Mr. Chairman, was modeled specifically after the bill pending in the Senate, which has since been passed and has for 2-1/2 months been languishing in the House. The refinements we have added to the Senate bill improve it substantially.

Our legislation first, bans the un-solicited distribution of credit cards; second, limits the liability of holders for unauthorized use of their credit cards; and third, requires that a cardholder be adequately notified of his rights and obligations. It also provides for the establishment of a fund to help establish the liability of credit cardholders.

Our original thinking was to require cardholders to be notified of their rights and those to be issued — to be of the variety. However, upon further consideration, it has been incorporated in our bill a provision which would permit consumers to renege on credit cards on an un-solicited basis.

U.S. Congresswoman FLORENCE P. DWYER Reports

Following is the text of remarks in the House by Representatives Florence P. Dwyer (2nd Dist., N.J.) on legislative matters of un-solicited distribution of credit cards.

Mr. Chairman, one of the most notable features of an American economy which has led the world in the ability to create and distribute wealth is the widespread and judicious use of credit, in the many forms in which it is available.

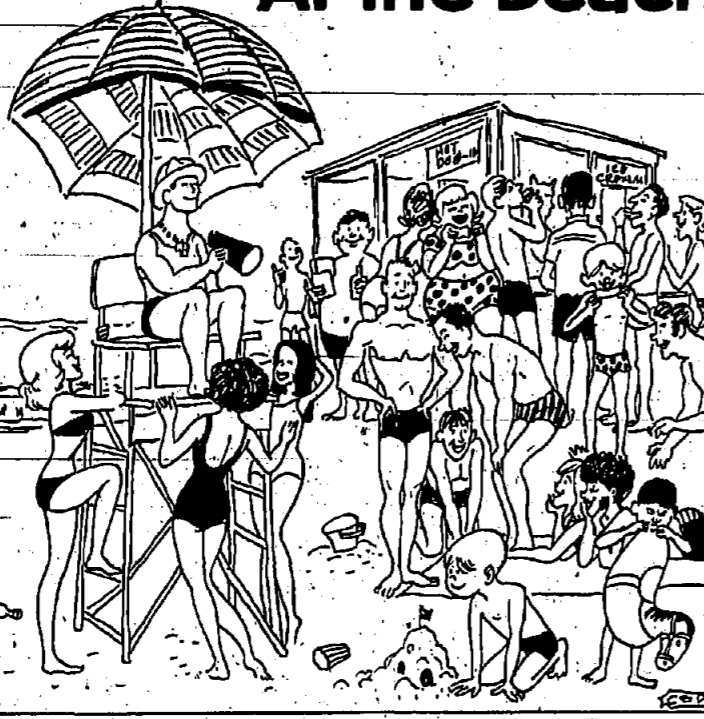

With the growth of credit — as with the development of other services and products — has brought with it certain dangerous side effects which a prudent people would do well to control, lest the dangerous undermine the benefits.

Among the most severe of credit's dangerous side effects has been the misuse of credit cards, a condition closely associated with the massive and burdensome distribution of such credit cards on an un-solicited basis.

At the Beach

For the American Civil Liberties Union of New Jersey, where pregnancy came to a violent end during the first three months, by painless, simple and safe procedures which cause no harm to the woman.

Such an easy procedure can only be contrasted to the grief and suffering caused by the present system of induced abortion. It has been estimated, for example, that between 800,000 and one million illegal abortions are performed each year in the United States alone. Many of these are badly done and, in some cases, self-inflicted, resulting in physical injury, mental anguish, and even death.

There are a number of joggers who use the beach before the present opening and after the proposed closing — business men and professionals who come home late, but who do not like to do their daily routine health that they go down to the field after dark.

Such a fence is locked to keep people out. There are good grounds for fear that the people who are locked out are not only joggers but also young girls, and young women — with good-looking grass, bleachers, track, and field house — and few who are not joggers.

Your Inalienable Rights

More and more public attention has been focused on the right of privacy in the home. A number of states have liberalized their regulations on abortion in recent years, but these have been completely from their criminal statutes, leaving it to the private decision of the woman whether or not to abort.

New Jersey recently appointed a commission to review the state's 18-year-old abortion statute which ambiguously prohibits anyone from intentionally causing the miscarriage of a pregnant woman without her consent.

In contrast to the law in New York and a few other states in which abortions are permitted fairly freely, the great majority of our states still consider abortion a serious crime, and a woman, once convicted, has no further legal choice in the matter.

From the point of view of civil libertarians, the answer is clear: The woman's right to terminate her pregnancy and her doctor's willingness to utilize one of the many safe and safe medical techniques available to accomplish this, are the only valid considerations in this matter.

These burdens, Mr. Chairman — higher costs, heavy losses, lasting independence together with more and more court cases — are ultimately but inevitably are assumed by individual consumers, consumers who are not in a position to pay for the cost of abortions or wrongful.

Consider the plight of such a consumer who has been the victim of a credit card, or misused or whose computerized account, though never used by him, has been charged and threatened with lawsuits and jail. His only recourse is to sue the merchant who placed in jeopardy. For such a person, the emotional drain, the loss of time, the legal expenses are more than he can afford to pay.

Among the most severe of credit's dangerous side effects has been the misuse of credit cards, a condition closely associated with the massive and burdensome distribution of such credit cards on an un-solicited basis.

KNOW YOUR GOVERNMENT

Another elevation in the nation's escalating "costs" or public debt has served to focus attention upon some of the fiscal foibles of federal budget procedures, points out the News and Features Association. Congressional attempts to control public spending have failed and the deficit has grown.

The concept of placing a lid on the national debt began during World War II when Congress passed the 73 billion limit. This ceiling was later a depression and World War II had helped raise the ceiling to $300 billion. Under the latest legislation identified, fourth year debt limit has gone from $365 to $380 billion. A "temporary" ceiling of $395 billion will be permitted during the 1971 fiscal year, as compared with $377 billion the previous year.

Numerous changes to accommodate federal deficit financing have led many congressmen to feel that the current ceiling is not adequate because it has become purposeless. However, legislative changes are being introduced by representatives, Chairman Wilbur D. Mills of the Ways and Means Committee contended that the "temporary" ceiling of $395 billion would issue help direct attention to the inability of Congress to control public spending under the current system.

The discussion also highlighted the mitigating effects of adoption several years ago to "lock-in" government debt by converting "trust fund" accounts — such as social security and highway — with the traditional federal government debt. Under the new plan, the projected deficit of $1.3 billion, however, the trust fund balance — with trust fund assets excluded — will be a billion dollars. The projected deficit of $1.3 billion, however, the trust fund balance — with trust fund assets excluded — will be a billion dollars.

Finally, in order to better safeguard innocent consumers against selling errors in cases where a credit card has never been used, a provision has been incorporated in the bill to require the issuer to establish that the card is in fact used. This provision would require the issuer to establish that the card is in fact used.

JOGGERS OPPOSE FENCE — The following is the text of a letter that we have just sent to the Regional Board of Education and to the Union County Park Commission.

"For a long time, the Boosters of Springfield and many others have been asking that something be done to stop vandalism in Metrol Field. We agree that this is a most worthy cause.

"Unfortunately, there are few vandals and many who are not vandals in the field. But unfortunately, the means being adopted to keep out the few vandals will also keep out the many who are not vandals. It's an eight-foot fence with a locked gate to enclose the football field, the rest of the field and surrounding areas. It's an eight-foot fence with a locked gate to enclose the football field, the rest of the field and surrounding areas.

"The hours and the details have not been worked out yet, but the present proposal is similar to that of the former years. It is an eight-foot fence with a locked gate to enclose the football field, the rest of the field and surrounding areas.

"We urge joggers, would-be joggers, and other members of the field, Public Health officials are stressing how important this is to the health of the community. It seems to us that Springfield should be just as eager to have the general health of the community improved as it is to keep the field locked."

"This is the end of our letter to the school board and park commission."

A MUSING from the desk

Entertaining can be a genuine pleasure in the summer months. It can also be a pain in the neck if the entertainment is not what you need.

The great outdoors is the most common arena for summer hospitality, so cutting the grass and mowing the lawn are big items on the agenda. My lawn mower has a bent control switch, so you can't turn it completely on or off. It must be mowed just the way it is.

At least twice I've mistakenly grabbed the metal cot between my feet and my forehead, and consequently spent there vibrating for what seemed to be a shockingly long time. If you get up early on a Saturday morning to do the lawn, you gain the advantage of braving the noisily quiet which sometimes makes you feel like you're in a vacuum.

The disadvantage is that the grass is usually still wet with dew, and you can easily end one of your feet slipping and sprawling in an uncomfortable close pedicure.

Raking up after mowing, you find all the little treasures your gnat's nest at the last mowing: bottle tops, cigarette butts, pull-tabs from beer cans, etc., ad infinitum. It always serves to remind you that you can expect the same things this time.

Williams tells of U.S. grant for new correction program

WASHINGTON—U.S. Senator Harrison G. Williams (D-N.J.) announced today the approval of a federal grant to fund an innovative correction program in New Jersey. Williams said the Justice Department has notified him that final approval has been given for a $197,547 grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Agency (LEAA) for the program in Newark.

Known as the "Newark Defendants' Employment Project," it will be only the third program of its type in the country, Williams said. The other two have been operating in Washington, D.C., and New York City.

The program involves a contract between the Essex County Board of Freeholders and the Community Information and Referral Services, Inc., Newark, which will run the project.

It provides for defendants brought before Newark courts to be referred, at the discretion of the judge, to the program for 90 days of counseling and rehabilitation. They can be referred, at their request, before trial. Or, they could be referred after conviction but before sentencing.

"If they prove receptive to rehabilitation and show they are capable of maintaining themselves as productive members of the community, they could go free," Williams said. A defendant who "misbehaves" in the program could be set free by virtue of charges being dismissed, or sentence suspended. A defendant who failed to prove receptive to rehabilitation would be subject to normal judicial process.

"THIS IS PRECISELY the kind of innovative project which Congress hoped to encourage," Williams said.

Williams said the LEAA program provides federal assistance to state and local law enforcement and correction agencies. "It is the kind of new direction we must seek in attempting to deal with the growing crime problem," he added.

"I am very pleased," Williams said, "that New Jersey, and specifically the city of Newark, has been selected as the site of the third such program to be approved."

Williams said the project's sponsors estimate they will handle 400 persons during the program's first year of operation. The LEAA grant is for the period of July 1, 1970 through July 1, 1971.

The program will also be supported by a $74,464 grant from the U.S. Department of Labor, and $61,127 supplied locally.

The program will include 100 intensive and administrative positions and 25 field workers. Besides counseling defendants and their families, the staff will utilize other federal programs, such as manpower training, adult education, and medical services, to help rehabilitate defendants.

Williams pointed out that under block grants from the LEAA, which are channeled through the state government, New Jersey received $6,372,000 in the fiscal year which ended June 30.

Williams, a vocal supporter of the LEAA program, is cosponsoring a bill which would streamline the program and authorize additional grants under it.

26 coeds accepted as NCE fresh

The men at Newark College of Engineering can start counting now—they only have about two more weeks until classes start again and the fall season of girl-watching gets under way. And predictions are that it will be a good year.

A preliminary report by NCE's director of admissions discloses 26 new girls have chosen to be coeds at Newark College of Engineering since the school this fall, boasting an increase over a record number of women freshmen by one.

The new girls at NCE will keep the college's female population well over 100. Most of the coeds at Newark College of Engineering are day undergraduates although some will also be found in evening, graduate and technical divisions.

Traditionally there have been some women in nearly every freshman class since 1897 when NCE changed its name from Newark College of Arts, Science and Engineering to what it is now. It has only been in recent years that a sharp increase has been noted as more and

Pharmacy leader cites increase in drug abuse

The president of the New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association declared this week that juvenile narcotics cases in New Jersey have increased more than 5,000 percent in the past decade.

James Singer of Spotswood cited court clerk reports forwarded to the State Police as authority for his disclosure, and said the prospects for future teenage drug abuse are worse unless youngsters can be convinced experimentation with drugs is "both dangerous and foolish."

"For two years now our own association has been battling the rampant spread of drug abuse," the pharmacy leader said.

"More than 100 specially trained speakers have fanned out around the state to convey their expertise to the public. And still the menace continues. Between 1959 and 1969 the number of arrests involving juveniles jumped 6,000 percent and beyond question has continued to rise since."

"Perhaps this spiraling trend will be halted, and hopefully reversed, if our youth knew what they were getting into, not only from the standpoint of their health but their economic future."

"Many careers are foreclosed to those who are convicted of narcotics violations. Pharmacy is only one of two dozen or more professions whose applicants can be denied registration and whose employers can have their licenses revoked on expectation or non-renewed for narcotics conviction."

"Such conviction is reason for rejection for government employment or a teaching position. Service academies reject applicants with records."

"Unavailable to narcotics violators are licenses to hunt, or to operate a power boat. Driving a motor vehicle under the influence of drugs is punishable by license revocation and heavy fines."

In addition, one who is merely aware of the presence of drugs in the vehicle he is driving is liable for a two-year forfeiture of his license as well as subject to a fine.

Singer said jeopardy to delinquency is increased by the influence of drugs in the social and pleasure milieu. "It is imperative that we should avoid entanglement with the law."

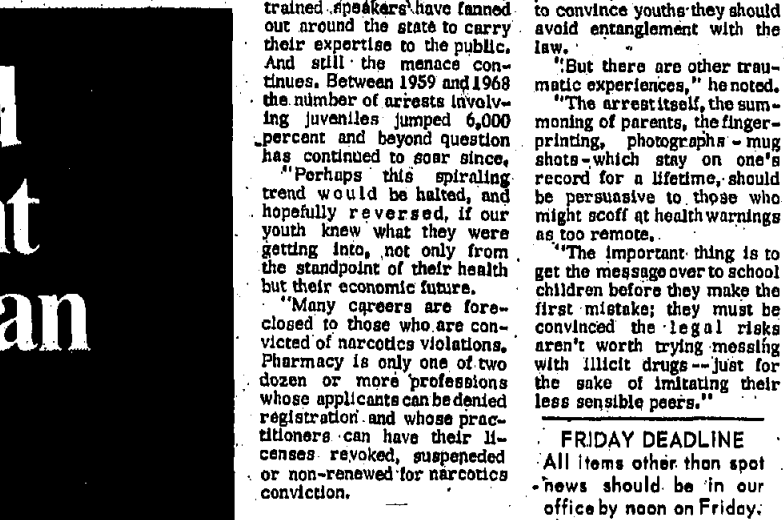

But there are other traumatic experiences, he noted. "The greatest, the summing of parents, the fingerprinting, photographs, mug shots which may on a record for a lifetime, should be persuasive to those who might scoff at health warnings as too remote."

"The important thing is to get the message over to school children before they make the first mistake they must be convinced the legal risks aren't worth trying messing with illicit drugs—just for the sake of imitating their less sensible peers."

Law restricting garnishment of wages becomes effective

WASHINGTON—New job and pay protection laws affecting every employer and employee in the country become effective July 1 under the provisions of Title III of the Consumer Credit Protection Act.

The newly-effective law limits the amount of an employee's wages which can be garnished and prohibits the discharge of an employee because of garnishment.

The Department of Labor's Wage and Hour Division, which will enforce the law, estimates that more than 30,000 employees lose their jobs each year because of an employment policy of firing employees whose wages are garnished. Many additional thousands lose their incentive to work when their pay checks are reduced below subsistence levels through garnishment proceedings.

Wage-Hour Administrator Robert D. Moran says that the new garnishment restrictions will discourage ill-considered extensions of credit or reduce the number of personal bankruptcies and judgments cases the pressure on the welfare rolls.

He says that the new restrictions close a protection gap for America's wage earners. "It has made little sense," he claims, "for the government to spend billions of dollars each year to train people for jobs and find work for them, then stand by helplessly while loan sharks and other easy-credit merchants take away their salaries and their jobs through garnishment proceedings."

While the Wage and Hour Division estimates that the jobs of between 30,000 and 120,000 employees are lost each year because of their employer's aversion to garnishment, other places the figure much higher. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas in his recent book, "Pivots of Rebellion," states that this total must cover 200,000 a year.

Moran said his office has mailed nearly five million notices of the new law to employers throughout the country. He has nearly 1,000 compliance officers stationed in nearly 400 local offices ready to enforce the law, while assistants and assistants at Union College are ready to help employers understand the prohibition against discharge as a result of a year's imprisonment, a $1,000 fine or both.

Portuguese group cites 6 students

The Portuguese-American Scholarship Foundation has awarded grants to six Newark students in its fourth annual presentation.

Recipients of the $250 scholarships included Alan Pimentel of Rochon Park, Joseph N. Piacido of Perth Amboy, Celia Da Andrade Lima of Irvington, Joseph E. Ramirez of Newark, and Juana Almeida of Newark, and Ronaldo Cardoso, also of Newark.

A total of $6 awards amount to more than $1,000, having been distributed by the foundation this far.

Since its inception, the foundation has received annual pledges of $250 contributions from Donald E. Comen, executive vice-president of Vornado Inc., parent company of Two Guys.

Miss Lima is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paulo Lima of Irvington. A graduate of Irvington High School, she was active in the International Club, the Library Council, the Spanish and French clubs.

She plans to major in language studies at Bloomfield College this autumn.

'Shrewd' observation: All the park's a stage

The stage is set, the cast is rehearsed, and all is ready for the outdoor production of "The Taming of the Shrew" to be presented in Echo Lake Park, Mountaineer and Westfield tonight and tomorrow at 8:30. In the midst of rain, on either side, the play will be presented Saturday.

The Shakespearean comedy is sponsored by City Federal Savings and the cooperation of the Union County Park Commission.

The Echo Lake Park production will take place on lawn area near the lower pavilion in the park, on Monday and Tuesday, with a rain date Wednesday.

The play will be performed by members of the New Jersey Shakespeare Festival of Woodbridge who are now starting their tenth year presenting "Shakespeare in the Parks." For the past nine years this group has played to "standing room only" audiences and have presented over 300 productions of plays such as "As You Like It," "The Merchant of Venice," "Twelfth Night," "A Midsummer Night's Dream," and "Romeo and Juliet."

City Federal Savings have sponsored the productions for the past three years. The public is welcome to attend the performances. Admission is free.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

CHILD AND PARENT
There we live in an age of slogans, try this one: "Fight juvenile delinquency - have a talk with your child today!" It is really a very good idea. A happy home is one of the strongest forces for good in any community. This is not to say that children from happy homes never get into trouble. They do - but the chances are not so great. In a happy home, there is a "working relationship" between parents and child. Problems are something to be talked about, worked out, and resolved together. A healthy situation exists when children do not hesitate to come to their parents for help and advice. They are certain to find sympathy and understanding, even if there is no quick and ready cure.

Inspection at terminals is proposed for trucks

Motor Vehicle Director Ronald M. Heyman has announced that he will recommend to Governor William T. Cahill that the Administration consider a system of state-supervised, owner-certified safety inspections to be conducted daily at truck terminals.

Heyman said the division has conducted an in-depth review of the commercial vehicle inspection system due to an anticipated increase in truck registrations with enforcement of the State's new "hanging point" principle.

Under the present system, the suggested revision is consistent with recommendations by Transportation Research, Inc., that daily state-approved, owner-certified motor-vehicle inspections would be safer and more stringent than the State's present once-a-year check.

 GOP candidate tours opium farms in Turkey

New Jersey citizens are literally being robbed of more than a quarter of a billion dollars annually by drug addicts in the state who must seek to support their narcotics habit, according to the GOP senate candidate.

Nelson G. Gross cited those official government estimates this week in calling for an all-out war on drug smuggling. "There are an estimated 10,000 drug addicts in New Jersey," said Gross. "Each of those addicts requires $10,000 a year to keep himself supplied with drugs."

Gross recently returned from Turkey where he checked into what is being done to stop the illegal export of opium from that country. "I was appalled by what I learned from the trip," said the 38-year-old candidate.

Public health care now chronically ill, says special issue of AMA 'Hospitals'

CHICAGO—Public hospitals, the "granddaddy" of the health care industry, have reached the crossroads in their long history. An in-depth look at the plight of the non-profit supported public hospital is presented in a special issue of Hospitals, Journal of the American Hospital Association, released July 15. The 11 articles examine the nation's chronically ill public hospitals and provide a rather bleak prognosis.

Their present struggle is seen by some as the long-awaited death rattle in a system which cannot be salvaged, but a newly published study indicates that many health care experts are exploring ways to keep the doors of the public hospital wide open. And there is good reason to keep the doors open. The more than 300 public, non-profit health care institutions provide more than 20 percent of the total health care in the nation.

Increasing third-party payment of medical costs and the universal view of health care as a right have led to the public hospital's predicament. The need for public hospitals, some studies show, but many experts warn that the closing of public hospitals could mean large cities "medical wastelands," where that the public hospital can even take on a unique new role in the nation's changing health care drama.

FOR YEARS CITY HOSPITALS were first in everything except the heart of the taxing a much larger role to public hospitals than maintaining adequate care for the medically indigent. Some, such as Lester Breslow, M.D., chairman of preventive and social medicine at UCLA, hope that the public hospital will become a "community" hospital in other words, it will provide care close to the people from all social levels within a defined geographic area of the city. Dr. Breslow and others see the emerging public hospital as a more segregated health care for the poor a matter of history.

The public hospital will doubtless remain the place where the back stops, where otherwise unmet needs are met. But the AHA analysis shows that experts see an upgrading of health care and a firm refusal to practice second-class medicine as public hospitals begin to gain more autonomy. Public hospitals have not solved all of the problems, the issue concludes, but more are beginning to find some answers. They are managing, not only to preserve their institutions, but in some cases to transform them into leaders in progressive health care.

The attention of the nation was dramatically drawn to these problems when the country's largest public hospital, Cook County in Chicago, was nearly forced to shut down in May. The article in the AHA Journal written by county's former medical director, Robert Freeark, M.D., indicates that with its dismantling from politics there is finally some hope for Cook County Hospital.

The studies reflect a definite movement away from government control of public hospitals, in general, affiliation with a medical school seems to produce the greatest advantage for an ailing public hospital, but other possible approaches include a "public benefit" such as in New York City, a direct governing commission (as at Cook County Hospital), or transferring management to public trustees (as in the case of the University of Michigan).

(Unless a taxing district is also created, as usually is the case with a governing commission, the city or county retains the responsibility to finance care for the indigent.)
