Rain created flood -- but little damage

There were no reports of damage in Springfield as a result of last Wednesday's torrential downpour. However, there was a lot of flooding, especially around the Municipal Building where the water was estimated to be about two feet deep. In fact, there were rumors of youngsters bringing rowboats there.

The Legion Hall had to be pumped out and Brook street was heavily flooded. The police and fire departments received no calls to pump out cellars. The area around Wentz and Mapes avenues was cut off.

Race to California puffs on as reading program continues

The "Springfield Grand Prix" is well under way at the Springfield Public Library, according to Mrs. Helen S. Keller, children's librarian. One contestant in the reading contest, Gail Edelcreek, has completed the entire race from New England to the Golden Gate Bridge in San Francisco.

Each youngster is assigned to a "car" which is "driven" from one city to the next as each book is completed. The purpose is to get the children to read as many books as possible during the summer.

Following Miss Edelcreek David Baranek, Robert Shapiro, Betsy Wright, Randy Feuerstein, Maria Frieri, Ira Starr, Helene Solomon, Robert Cloont, Karen Wright, Ann Gomez, Robin Slovak, Christopher Conales, Sondra Nieman, Susan Glueck, Donna Alberti, Barbara Wans, Malinda Kintear, Tracey Gunther, Donnas Weitzner, David Deitz, Debra Starr and Debra Hockstein. Seventy-seven other "cars" are puffing along behind them at this point, Mrs. Keller said.

She said that the librarians have enjoyed listening to the readers' oral book reports as the race progresses.

Less sports-minded readers are attending the Tuesday morning story and music hours. The library will hold a puppet show later in the month for participants in both programs. The date will be announced later.

'Wild West' trip plans announced

The final trip sponsored by the Recreation Department this summer as part of the playground program will go to Wild West City, Newcomb, on Wednesday.

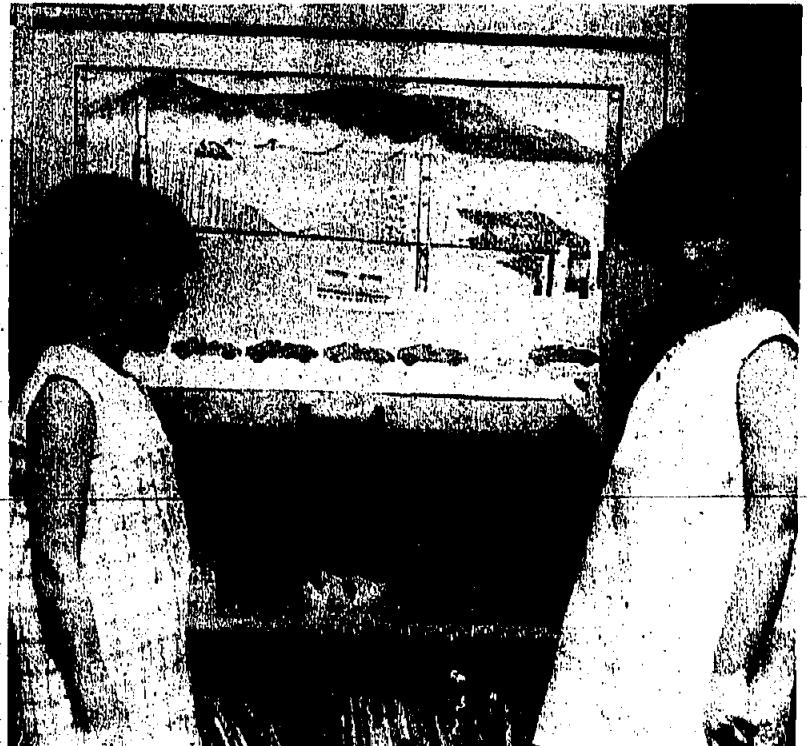

An exciting day was promised to the children by recreation officials "for in this little part of the old world there will be a reenactment of the history of Western America. They show the Pony Express, a stage coach holdup and covered wagons. There are entertainment and rides, refreshments and stores where children can buy souvenirs."

A $3 fee will pay for the bus and admission to the "city." The children were requested to bring a lunch and spending money. The bus will leave from the front of the Sarah Bailey Civic Center at 10 a.m. and return about 4 p.m. Permission slips and fees should be brought into the Recreation office as soon as possible, and children will be accepted on a first come basis, the announcement added.

Town teens plan a trip by Jefferson Airplane

The Springfield Teen Council will sponsor a trip to see the Jefferson Airplane Aug. 28 at Copeland Hall, Asbury Park. The price of $6 includes transportation and admission to the concert.

The bus will leave the Sarah Bailey Civic Center at approximately 6 p.m. For further information, readers may call any Teen Council member or the Recreation Department at 376-5884.

Seven-year old Maria Frieri looks to see where she will wind up when she finishes the reading contest sponsored by the children's department of the Springfield Public Library.

WILD BLUE YONDER—Boys and girls bid farewell to their inflated pals in the "Balloon Blast" sponsored by the Recreation Department recently in front of Town Hall. Each balloon carried a self-addressed postcard with a note asking the finder to mail it back. The boy and girl receiving cards from the most remote places will win prizes. Jack Appar, playground supervisor, reported cards already had been returned from Nudley, Brooklyne, Island Park, N.Y. and Amityville, N.Y.

2 Democrats ask questions of all the township residents

A questionnaire is being distributed by the Democratic candidates for the Township Committee, Robert Weltchek and Arthur Caprio. The purpose of the survey is to ascertain the experiences and opinions of the people of Springfield in a number of areas.

The questionnaire states: "Art Caprio and Bob Weltchek, candidates for the Township Committee, believe that good government must legislate for the people; not against them. Let us know what you think by completing and returning this questionnaire. We will legislate for you."

A similar survey was conducted last year by then Democratic candidate Nat Stokes, now a township committeeman.

The candidates have indicated that every house in town will receive a copy of the questionnaire.

The items surveyed are as follows:

"Have any variances to the 1968 township zoning ordinance had an effect on your neighborhood? Has the residential character of your neighborhood suffered due to these variances? Do you think the township has acted in your best interest in this regard?"

"There have been some questions raised

FEMININE TOUCH — Ronald M. Heymann of Mountainview, state motor vehicle director, tridion smiles with Eastern Airlines stewardesses at Newark Airport. The airline is about to begin a human relations course for motor vehicle inspectors to make New Jerseyans feel as welcome in the inspection lines as they do today's jetliners.

Tact at inspection time Vehicle examiners in training

In response to past public criticism charging motor vehicle inspection station personnel with failure to service the needs of New Jersey's four million drivers, Gov. William F. Hughes' Motor Vehicle Council will be sponsoring a series of human relations training programs.

In a joint announcement by Heymann and Eastern Airlines officials, it was disclosed that the state's 700 motor vehicle inspectors will soon be going to school to learn some of the human relations finesse employed by airline personnel in their contacts with the public.

The program is a contribution to New Jersey by Eastern Airlines at no cost to the state.

"Public service and courtesy to car owners is a major concern to the division. This is the largest step in our series of expressed public criticism. With the help of Eastern Airlines, we are making every effort to minimize these complaints," Heymann said.

"To do the job, we've called in the help of the airline that prides itself on being very personable in a hurry," he added. Heymann and John D. Duffield, manager of Eastern Airlines Training School in Miami, said arrangements have been made to conduct an unusual special training program in ways to render good service to the motoring public.

Beginning this Monday, examiners from 40 inspection stations will be attending four-hour classes at two central locations—the Burlington and East Orange armories. Two classes of 20 students each at each location will discuss ways of assistance to New Jersey drivers during one inspection. The classes will be completed by Aug. 21.

A special session for station supervisors will be held today at Burlington.

In a first step of its kind, Eastern is contracting four professional instructors from its staff of 27. These men and women regularly spend their time teaching the airline's crew members on proper customer service and the art of accommodating the traveling public.

"This is a unique and positive step forward in developing a working relationship between government and industry," Heymann said.

"Courtesy should be contagious — it creates a better business climate. It is no reason why New Jersey drivers, who as taxpayers keep the inspection system operating financially, should be treated with anything but the best service," he added.

Announcement was made by William H. Bruce, president of the newly formed organization, with its headquarters at 60 Morris Ave., Springfield, that Consulting Engineers Council of New Jersey represents 99 member firms employing more than 2,500 people within the state of New Jersey. Prior to this time there had been two organizations with overlapping objectives.

Bruce further stated that all but three members of the predecessor organizations had submitted applications for charter membership. The newly formed organization is affiliated with two national organizations, located in Washington, D.C., the Consulting Engineers Council of the U.S. and the Society of Professional Engineers.

For AND About Teenagers

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I have a problem with a young man that greatly troubles me. He is in love with me, I am not in love with him. The problem is that every time I am around him and talk with him I feel guilty, because I know that I am putting him on. I feel more and more about my feelings for him, I'm not serious about him at all, but I feel that I owe this boy a lot of my time. When he calls me, I seem to find an excuse to go to his phone. Everytime I get involved with him, I become interested in someone else. I'm confused, because I don't want to hurt him any more, but I feel I am wasting his time and my own. I have to find some different way to tell him, because he seems to keep coming back again, I always accept him, I feel guilty if I do not. How do I handle the situation without hurting him? Each day I am around him I feel guilty."

OUR REPLY: There is no way to handle the situation properly that is to honest with him and with yourself. If you do not like the young man, don't lie to him and talk that you do. He will be as confused as you and will have a difficult time understanding your "hot and cold" attitude. Tell him that you like someone else. Say that you want to remain "friends" but you are unable to pretend that you like him best of all when you don't. He may appear to be hurt but he will not be as hurt as when it is really true that you have been putting him on.

The treatment plant is designed to handle a flow of 35 million gallons daily. The system serves a population of over 200,000 and some 400 industries, treating waste from the nine member municipalities together with flow from a part of Scotch Plains, substantially all of Mountainview and Windfield. Only part of flow from Woodbridge and Roselle Park is served.

The Blue Ridge Mountains were re-evaluated last year by a federal color wheel commission. Anyone looking for these scenic high spots is now advised to look for the Aqueduct Ridge Hills.

Thanks to the efforts of the local Chamber of Commerce, all signs leading to the Mojave Desert have been changed to designate the Great Western Low-Flood Basin.

On the other hand, the National Council for Truth in Tourism has succeeded in changing the name of the great Florida natural reserve to the Uvaldeglades.

As everyone knows, Niagara Falls was partially closed for repairs several years ago. It has been reopened, but the fall has been done over with braids.

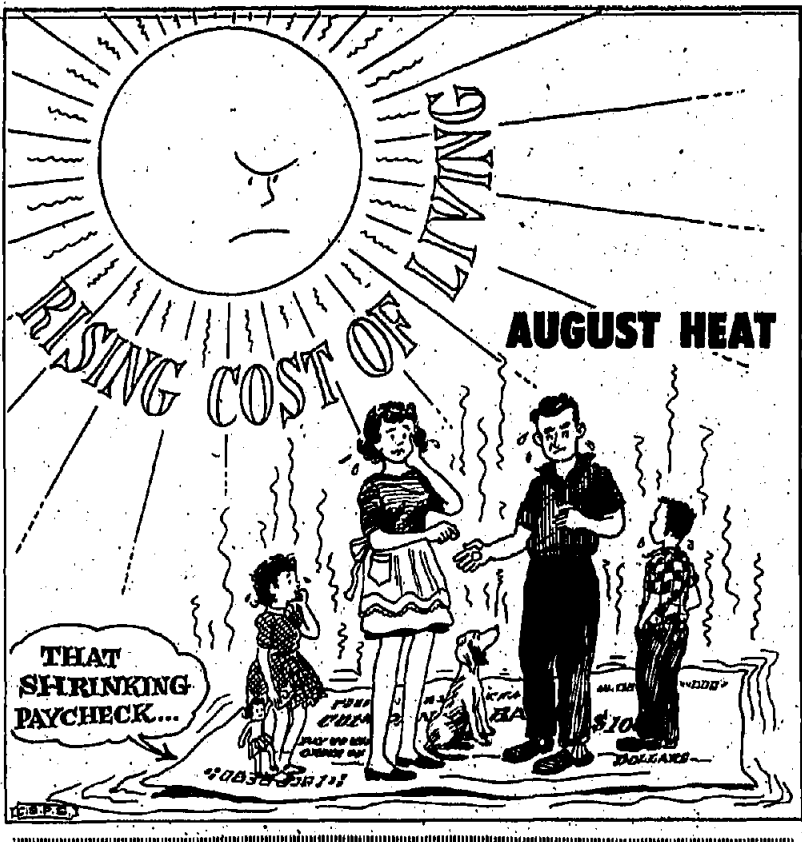

Those visiting Texas are advised to drop their plans for visiting the Alamo, since it has been completely forgotten.

On the other hand, the L.B.J. Ranch, some 3,000 miles from Bar Harbor and just down the road from the Bar Nixon, is great for bar mitzvahs.

Further north, the Baseball Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N.Y., has been closed for the season because the lawn is being redone in Astroturf.

In Utah, the Great Salt Lake is open only during daylight hours, since the iodizers are busy. Vacationers are also advised to avoid Enghlightown, N.J., Moscow, Idaho, Germantown, Pa., and Poland, Maine. They are all under investigation by the House Committee on Un-American Nomenclature.

All in all, we might all do better to stay home this year. After all, by silent proclamation of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, Union County is a Summer Festival. A. G.

Your Inalienable Rights

By Prof. Frank Askin

Few decisions in recent times have caused as much furor as the Supreme Court's ruling in Miranda v. Arizona. The case involved the permissible limits to which police may go in interrogating an individual believed to be involved in criminal activity.

The Fifth Amendment provides that "no person shall be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself." It is the right of silence that is the focus of the Miranda decision.

The Supreme Court ruled that he could not be held in custody without being advised of his rights. The Court also ruled that any statements made by a suspect without this warning are inadmissible.

The Court's decision is a landmark in the history of civil liberties. It ensures that individuals are aware of their rights and that the government does not abuse its power.

FOR THE BIRDS

By FARRIS S. SWACKHAMER, professor, Union Junior College

As the birds fly frequently above when you garden clubs about birds is one that is not often mentioned. It is the bird that is the most common of all birds. It is the bird that is the most common of all birds.

BUYING WISELY

From Better Business Bureau of Metropolitan New York, Inc.

Dear Larrie, My 15-year-old daughter has been living in the city for a year now. Last weekend she came home to visit and proudly told us that she had bought a vacuum cleaner, a color TV set and an expensive rug—all on credit.

Youngsters from playgrounds attend Seton Hall Theater

Bad weather did not deter the loyal group of children who took part in the midweek playground trip, which took them to the Seton Hall Theater in the Round in South Orange. The play was "The Timplary Bird," a musical mystery comedy for children. A handsome and colorful bird, a mean, stingy wife and a good-natured but not too bright husband, thunderous sounds and flashing lights created much excitement among the children.

Word games are a favorite pastime at Woodside. The children participated last week in a geography game and a spelling bee. Thursday the Red Devils, South Orange, Alan Snyder and Donald Thibierge learned to tie dye shirts in various shades of blue, purple and yellow. Each child brought two shirts and they clipped in for a box of dye.

Steve Krupinski, Kathy Ehrhardt, leaders in a kickball game of the Nancy La Matta, Gary Praelati, Dave Lanzetta, Tony Tauber, Joe Welsch, Janice La Motta and Kathy Worwick played against Jason Barone, Joe Praelati, Frank Romano, Steve Romano, Michael Rositter, Tammy Kemp and Wayne Dattal.

There were several stickball games early in the morning. The youngsters can now take advantage of the new, improved stickball field which has been completely paved.

The children have started to receive their postcards from the trip. The first postcard point of mailing so far has been Brooklyn for Irwin playgrounders.

In the softball championship, Steve Klarfeld was the winner with a record of 22 victories out of 24 games.

The children were very excited with the arts and crafts program this week. Many of the children made a butterfly, and some made a pocket, slip picture and it was one of the best.

In a softball game against Sandmeier the Irwin team included Steve Klarfeld, Johnny La Motta, Gary Praelati, Joe Pulino, Ronald Praelati, Frank Romano, Steve Romano, Edward Gerstein, Scott Worwick, Wayne Dattal, Steven Kotsberg and Frank Pulino. The boys played a good game but unfortunately they were defeated.

Red balloons, green ones and blue ones seemed to be everywhere in the balloon throwing contest. The winners were Jeremy Gill, Joe and Kevin Dory, first; John Smith and Brian Mercer, second.

High Point Playground
Bruce Smith, leader of the boys had a good Friday against Washington.

Kevin Lamb was undefeated for the entire week in tetherball, challenging anyone in his age group. Mark Tupper, the new chess champion, had a victory over the old champion, Tom. In addition, Mark is the champion of four squares, while his younger brother Neil is still master of Tron.

Tuesday afternoon, under the leadership of James Ledford, some of the younger children went on a nature walk.

Kevin Lamb has brain power when it comes to something against people in a game of Scribbles.

Last week at Sandmeier Playground was spent with the members participating in a game of checkers.

A bench aids painting
When enrolling small pieces such as tables and chairs, a workbench makes a convenient working height. Place these small pieces upside down on the bench and paint the underneath surfaces first. Then, turn them right-side up and finish painting. A bench makes it easier to do the best possible job of applying the paint. And you'll be able to spot drips and uneven areas quickly.

Spare tire can prevent a drowning

The spare tire on your car will be the most important item in your trunk when you take along on your vacation, says the latest issue of the American Mutual Insurance Companies.

Few people seem to know - still fewer believe - says the magazine, that the mounted and inflated spare tire of a standard American car will float like a life ring and provide up to three adults with plenty of buoyant support. The big and rough for the spare tire is just what you will probably always have with you if your car is stuck in the water.

Is there the spare tire should be there too.

This life saving method is widely endorsed by police departments and water safety experts. The magazine notes that a tire of small diameter will not be as buoyant as a large one and... regardless of size the tire should be inflated as recommended by the manufacturer.

Never use this device as a floating toy - it is heavy and rough and may cause injury.

If you can't swim, move the tire to the drowning person by using a stick, pole or oar.

Never throw or pitch the tire from an elevated position as a person in the water may be hit by the heavy object and be knocked unconscious or severely injured.

Never consider this device as a substitute for knowledge how to swim or knowing conventional water rescue methods. The surest way to avoid drownings is to have every member of the family be a competent swimmer and Red Cross trained in lifesaving. Never swim alone.

Ask Amy

By AMY ADAMS

Dear Amy:

What is happening to our family? I have run into another doctor. When calling the second doctor and explaining the situation, the receptionist asked, "Do you have a welfare, medical or a medicare card?" I said her not but that I do have insurance and if it's not acceptable, I would pay a bill. The reply was "Sorry, the doctor is not accepting any new patients. I was then referred to another doctor. This continued until I was referred to a hospital emergency clinic.

reach my own doctor, his office would refer me to another doctor. I was referred to a second doctor and explaining the situation, the receptionist asked, "Do you have a welfare, medical or a medicare card?" I said her not but that I do have insurance and if it's not acceptable, I would pay a bill. The reply was "Sorry, the doctor is not accepting any new patients. I was then referred to another doctor. This continued until I was referred to a hospital emergency clinic.

At the hospital the same doctor and I was referred to my welfare or medicare card, and after informing them, they said they would refer me to a specialist with dialysis and diabetes. Just recently, the same situation occurred and again I was referred to a hospital. I had insurance forms that I gave to the credit office, but they told me to take them to the receptionist who then informed me she only handles welfare cases, turned her back on me and refused to assist me.

I had to run all over the hospital with a sick child in my arms trying to get assistance.

Why do we, who not only pay our own way but have to pay for welfare also, have to contend with being treated rudely and with disrespect while the "red carpet" seems to be rolled out for those with welfare or medicare cards? I realize they are human, too, and entitled to medical treatment, but is there any way to prevent such treatment to the "paying" patient?

J.D. (North Highland, Calif.)

It appears that there is more to this story than you have told me. However, if you feel that an injustice has been done to you (and it seems there has), please write to your State Health Commissioner and tell him what you have told me.

I have known the medical profession to be very impersonal at times, but I have never heard of this.

My readers comments are welcomed, especially those from California.

Please address all letters to: AMY ADAMS c/o THIS NEWSPAPER For a personal reply enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THIS WEEK'S HEALTH NEWS

By FRED GREENBERG, R.P.

Where do drugs come from? How are they developed? To answer the first question we have to go back many centuries. Traditionally the source of pharmacological products has been Mother Nature—the leaves, bark, seeds, and roots of plants found all over the world. Long before medicine even approached the state of being a science these materials were being used in a wide variety of mixtures and forms. Occasionally, some of the mixtures did effect a remembrance of a cure. Today, the search for new drugs from plants is a continuing and highly organized operation. Investigators travel to tropical jungles and far northern woods gathering up soil samples, seeds, roots and leaves. They bring samples of it back to the laboratory. The first step is to evaluate the effect of using such a drug for general human treatment.

Women's lib speaker at NSC calls for 'strike'

Newark State College coeds are very conservative when it comes to women's liberation, according to Mrs. Lucille Iverson, a spokesman from the Women's Center in New York City. Mrs. Iverson's comments followed a workshop she conducted for interested students and visitors in an Awareness Day program held at the college last week.

About 50 women attended the workshop for women only which was held at noon and later opened to men for further discussion. According to Mrs. Iverson, "A lot of the girls didn't understand what I was talking about, but the faculty women were great. They are the ones who know what women's liberation means. They are today's liberated women."

Mrs. Iverson encouraged all the women to take part in a strike to be held on Aug. 26. On that day, women should just not do anything, she said.

The purpose of the strike is to make people aware of just how much of a contribution women make to society. Applying pressure on society is just one step to three major goals of the movement—free abortion clinics, free day-care centers and equal pay for equal work, she added. Details about the strike and how to participate are available at the Women's Center, New York City, 212-691-1860.

Mrs. Iverson distinguished her own ideas, as a member of the Women's Center, from those of other organizations involved in the women's liberation movement. She said that some groups are opposed to having anything to do with men. More moderate feminists, like herself, are opposed to the subservient position she believes is relegated to women in our society. They seek only to establish society in which there is no rule by sex and where people deal with each other on an equal basis, she said.

She criticized the view of women taken by Playboy Magazine and referred to the hiring of women as Bunnies as a form of exploitation. "The girls who do it are selling themselves out," she said.

When asked whether or not the Bunnies considered their work exploitation or a privilege, signifying they had arrived, Mrs. Iverson said she thought the strikers probably would be working as Bunnies.

"They don't know they're being exploited," she said.

Mrs. Iverson added that much of the work that is done by the Women's Center is to make women aware that they are continually being exploited and that their problems are the problems of all women.

She also said one of the first steps in liberating women economically would be for the government to come for being conservative. When one of the young men present protested that he didn't see any need for this, another young woman challenged, "Wouldn't you feel more liberated if you knew you weren't shouldering all the responsibility of supporting a family?"

According to Mrs. Iverson, Women's liberation is not just good for women. It would be good for everyone, she said.

She stated that we live in a society that likes to put segments of its population in inferior positions. She pointed to the vindictive attitude society generally takes toward its prisoners. "We don't make a real effort to rehabilitate them. Why does society even bother to keep them alive?" she asked rhetorically. "It's because they fulfill a need, so people can feel superior to someone who has done wrong."

Mrs. Iverson also stated that capitalist society has helped to reinforce the inferior position women now hold. "The inherent master-slave relationship of the capitalist structure makes it impossible to liberate women from a subservient position," she said. She backed the idea of a socialist form of government, where there were no longer any masters.

She was asked whether she thought a master-slave relationship automatically implied an oppressor-oppressed relationship. "Does a master always have to be an oppressor?" And someone gave an example of how a teacher in a classroom is a master there but not necessarily an oppressor.

Mrs. Iverson said that whenever a person is given power over another he eventually abuses his power.

One of the Newark State students commented that the students at the college were trying to eliminate the idea of a teacher ruling a class. The students there also seemed to be liberated, she said.

Mrs. Iverson said that whenever a person is given power over another he eventually abuses his power.

One of the Newark State students commented that the students at the college were trying to eliminate the idea of a teacher ruling a class. The students there also seemed to be liberated, she said.

Laundry aids costly?

If you do only a small amount of laundry each week, a do-it-yourself commercial laundry may be more economical than your own laundering equipment. Research showed it costs a person about 57 cents a load to use a commercial laundry, including the price of laundry aids. At home, costs varied with the number of loads a homemaker did in a week's time. Three loads cost about 78 cents a load. Only after five loads did the price per load go below that of the self-service laundry.

Mr. Louis Armstrong

Learn the seven warning signals of cancer. You'll be in good company.

1. Unusual bleeding or discharge.
 2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere.
 3. A sore that does not heal.
 4. Change in bowel or bladder habits.
 5. Hoarseness or cough.
 6. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.

Purchasing power of workers in U.S. increases in June

WASHINGTON—The purchasing power of the nation's rank-and-file workers rose moderately in June, as a large gain in take-home pay more than offset a further increase in consumer prices, the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported.

Gross weekly earnings of production and non-supervisory workers advanced to $102.48 in June, an increase of $1.63 from May and $4.83, or 4.7 percent, from June 1969. The over-the-month earnings pickup resulted from an 0.4 hour seasonal increase in the work-week coupled with a one-cent rise in hourly earnings. After adjustment for price changes, gross weekly earnings were 83 cents, or 0.9 percent, above May's level but were 1.7 percent below a year ago.

Spending earnings, or after-tax pay, increased by $1.71 in June to $105.08 for the worker with three dependents. Compared to June 1969, take-home pay was up $4.62, or 4.6 percent.

Real spending earnings—take home pay expressed in 1967-69 dollars to reflect consumer price changes—averaged 52 cents higher in June for the worker with three dependents. At $77.74, real earnings were 0.8 percent above the 1969 level but were down 1.3 percent from a year ago. Significant over-the-month increases in purchasing power occurred among workers in construction, manufacturing, and trade. June marked the fifteenth consecutive month that real earnings have remained below year-ago levels.

Refresher course to start for nurses

An intensive refresher course for inactive registered nurses who desire to return to active practice of their profession will be conducted at Saint Elizabeth's Medical Center, Livingston, from Sept. 29 to Dec. 11, 1970. The 10-week course, which is held 3 1/2 days per week, is designed for nurses who have not practiced nursing in the past year or more. The program of continuing education, which includes a refresher course in nursing, is designed for nurses in this area who are interested in returning to nursing but who are apprehensive because of the changes that have taken place in the profession since they last worked.

Qualifications for the course include inactivity in nursing for a minimum of five years; definite plans to do active nursing within the next six months; current licensure as a professional nurse in New Jersey or current licensure in another state with application on file with the New Jersey Board of Nursing; satisfactory health; and prompt receipt of application.

Mrs. Wanda T. Kremenetz, assistant director of nursing education, will be in charge of the refresher program, and inquiries about enrollment may be directed to the nursing service office at 992-5500, Ext. 365, between 8:00 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. The closing date for acceptance of applications for the fall program is Sept. 8.

Pharmacist issues tips for vacations

"Medication must occupy a paramount place in the planning stage of any trip during the vacation season," the New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association said this week.

President Isidore Singer of Solebury said, "not only should the usual supply of analgesics, antacids, cold and cough remedies be taken along but that careful attention must be given to prescription drugs. Many persons require daily dosages of medicine, particularly patients with high blood pressure, heart ailments, diabetes, asthma and certain other ailments."

"Travelers must make sure they have a sufficient supply to last throughout their trip, especially since in many states out-of-state prescriptions may not be filled or refilled."

He urged all such patients to consult their doctor before leaving, inform him of the duration of the vacation and obtain the necessary prescriptions.

Singer cautioned drivers to beware of drowsiness caused by some drugs.

"It is dangerous to operate a vehicle after taking medications, for example," he said. "Travelers should check with their physician or pharmacist about the effect of their medication on driving capabilities."

He also urged special attention to handling drugs while traveling.

"All drugs should be protected from heat and direct sunlight and from rattling around," he declared.

"It is advisable to ask the pharmacist to pack them in such a way as to minimize danger of breakage. It is also essential to remember that the standard admonition to keep all medicine out of the reach of children applies while traveling too."

A child riding in a car might be tempted to get into the medicine kit, further, when unattended at a lodging place the drugs should not be left where he has access to them."

It is first aid kit, Singer said, should include medicine that has been found needed in past traveling experience and that may be necessary in accordance with the vacation's current state of health.

Careful planning in health care before leaving," he concluded, "can avoid inconvenience or even serious trouble that could spoil a vacation and maybe endanger a life."

Aim is to brake subway heat

NEW YORK—This city's long-suffering subway riders may eventually find some relief as a result of a project now under way at Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn.

Avoiding the often uncomfortable heat build-up in stations, platform areas and tunnels underground is the aim of a group of researchers at the college.

Members of the Department of Mechanical Engineering and PIR's Center for Urban Environmental Studies (CUES) are seeking to identify sources of heat and discover where it is released.

Subway train brakes are a major source of heat in the underground system, according to Prof. Clifford Wojan, project head.

"We know that equipment, terminal facilities and people generate heat," he said. "But we're more interested in the brake-generated heat, because that's the most difficult source to deal with."

"A tremendous amount of heat energy is generated in a short time when a 500-ton train going about 40 miles per hour is brought to a complete halt in less than 20 seconds," Prof. Wojan explained. "Since this heat isn't released all at once, the first task is to find out exactly where it leaves the train. Then, we can begin to search for ways to dissipate it."

Prof. Wojan and his co-workers hope the results of their studies will provide guidance for the design of new systems and renovation of old ones.

"If new or renovated systems are to be comfortable, heat from train brakes must be considered by designers. Platform temperatures can range far above the limits of human comfort in present systems," the Polytechnic Institute researcher said.

"On a hot summer day, temperatures down there are well over 100 degrees -- and they can go as high as 130 degrees in some sections of the station area."

3 savings groups agree on merger

Sheridan Schachner, president of Barton Savings and Loan Association, Alfred R. Marak, president of Arrow Savings and Loan Association, Newark, and Walter Hughes Jr., president of Essex Federal Savings and Loan Association, East Orange, announced this week that their associations have signed agreements agreeing to merge into one association. The new organization will be known as Barton Savings and Loan Association.

Formal applications seeking approval of the merger have been filed with state and federal banking authorities.

It is hoped that these authorities will act on the application in time for the merger to become effective before the end of 1970.

Schroeder, who will be president of the new association said.

Garrett has the main office at 1166 Raymond Blvd., East Orange, N.J. 07027; and 292 18th ave., all in Newark. Arrow has an office at 120 South Orange ave., Newark, adjoining the campus of the new N. Prof urges more help for retarded

"New ways must be found to deliver assistance to the mentally retarded and their families," according to Dr. Nellie B. Stone, professor of social welfare and director of the evaluation clinic at Newark State College's Institute of Child Study on the Union campus.

Speaking at an international conference of pediatricians and physicians in London, England, Dr. Stone noted that the social worker must actively seek out these people and offer available resources to them.

She added, "this aid will be delivered most effectively in the neighborhood where the family lives, preferably from neighborhood outposts. Sometimes communication can be improved by using neighborhood associations contacts."

Dr. Stone's address, appearing in the July issue of Pediatric News, indicates that a sympathetic relationship between the person delivering the aid and those receiving it is also important - the one helping must communicate in subtle ways that he respects and accepts the (other) individual's differences in values and patterns of living."

Dr. Stone noted that another way which the social worker can help is to "organize small groups of individuals of like backgrounds and all facing the same retardation problem - members of the group can give each other mutual support in a kind of encounter therapy."

Advisory committee to serve as liaison for new college campus and Elizabeth

A 15-member advisory committee, which includes Dr. John F. Dwyer, superintendent of schools, has been appointed to serve as liaison between the Elizabeth campus of Union College and the community, it was announced this week by Dr. Kenneth W. Iversen, president of Union College, Cranford.

In addition to Dr. Dwyer, LaRoy Colos, executive director of the Union County Urban League, and Joshua Higgins, executive director of the Elizabeth Human Relations Commission, were appointed to the list of professional leaders and concerned citizens who will serve on the advisory committee.

Also appointed were Oswald Board of 138 E. Seventh Ave., Roselle, past president of the Roselle NAACP; Mrs. E.L. Brantley of Cranford, civic leader; Walter Calvin, executive director of CAFED; Melvin Charles of 1122 E. Henry St., Linden, civic leader; Judge James Coleman of Scotch Plains; William Daniels, director of Academic Advancement, Newark State College at Union; James Davis, director of Management, CAFED; the Rev. UC is wrapping up its 3-year work on space project

They may never rocket to outer space, but more than 33,000 New Jersey residents share a new affinity with the universe, with the stars and comets, the planets and galaxies that surround the earth.

They are the students, teachers and adults who participated in the federally supported "Operational Astronomy: The Earth and Beyond" project at the Sperry Observatory at Union College.

Numbers alone, however, do not reveal the full import or long range impact of the three-year project. According to Mrs. Marjorie Wooster of Clark, director of the project, who has issued a final report on the program which certifies on Monday.

Funded through a $490,000 grant under Title III of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, the project offered special workshops and astronomy courses for students in grades through 12 and for teachers and other interested adults.

During the first year, a pilot program was conducted at the Cranford schools. The programs developed here were later made available to students and adults throughout the state.

While astronomy is taught in elementary and high school science courses, the opportunity for students to hear lectures from experts in the field, to see first hand and to use the tools of the astronomer, to observe the sky through a telescope, has broadened and enriched students' knowledge of astronomy, Mrs. Wooster reports.

This, she said, was a major goal in establishing the program and one that has been more than successfully met, judging from comments of teachers, parents and the students themselves.

The moon will go on the shady side

Not much to look at, not a telescopic view, it is the way Patrick J. White, director of the Sperry Observatory and professor of astronomy at Union College, Cranford describes the partial eclipse of the moon expected to take place on the horizon of the sky over the state on Sunday, Aug. 16.

However, with the moon low on the horizon, the eclipse covering four tenths of its surface, an unaided viewer might suspect a total eclipse on the horizon.

"The eclipse can be seen with the naked eye and will not be enhanced by use of a telescope, White noted, and no special visit is warranted at the observatory.

"The moon in the moon will begin pulling the disk at about 8 p.m. The eclipse will last into the early hours of Aug. 17.

3 attorneys reappointed

Those reappointed for the new year are Milton A. Epstein, chairman of the board of the Federal Savings and Loan Association, Jersey City, chairman of the 25-member group; William V. Helm, Roselle Savings and Loan Association; and Leo B. Wojcik, Elizabeth Federal Savings and Loan Association.

The new appointee is Edward M. Sullivan, Queen City Savings and Loan Association, Plainfield.

Springfield voters and other local property owners are now eligible to purchase federal flood insurance at subsidized rates, Mayor Henry J. Bulfinch announced at the Township Committee meeting Tuesday night at Town Hall.

In other business, the governing body named Raymond W. Forbes as deputy mayor, as its some changes in its structure in trying to have local merchants reduce the amount of litter on their sidewalks and parking lots.

Bulfinch said that all present property owners will be able to purchase flood insurance at the subsidized rate. The program is under the temporary designation, designed for an emergency basis, authorized by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The town must provide a detailed map of the flood plain in order to qualify for a permanent designation, the mayor added, and this is being done.

He read portions of a letter from George Sarantopoulos, federal insurance administrator for the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

"THE LETTER stated: 'We are able to obtain more precise boundary maps of the areas of your community which are most exposed to flooding, we can make federal insurance available immediately under our present regulations only by temporarily designating the entire community as an area of special flood hazard. Under this designation, which will also become effective on the above date, only existing properties will be eligible to purchase flood insurance.'

"Properties which are newly constructed or substantially improved after the effective date will not be authorized to purchase flood insurance until the level of special flood hazard has been more precisely delineated and they will be eligible at that time only if they are not within the area of special flood hazard as they are then identified."

"Once the detailed mapping of the area has been completed, which we hope will be in the very near future, buildings which have been constructed or substantially improved after the effective date, and which are located outside of these areas of special flood hazard will be able to purchase flood insurance at subsidized rates along with presently existing properties."

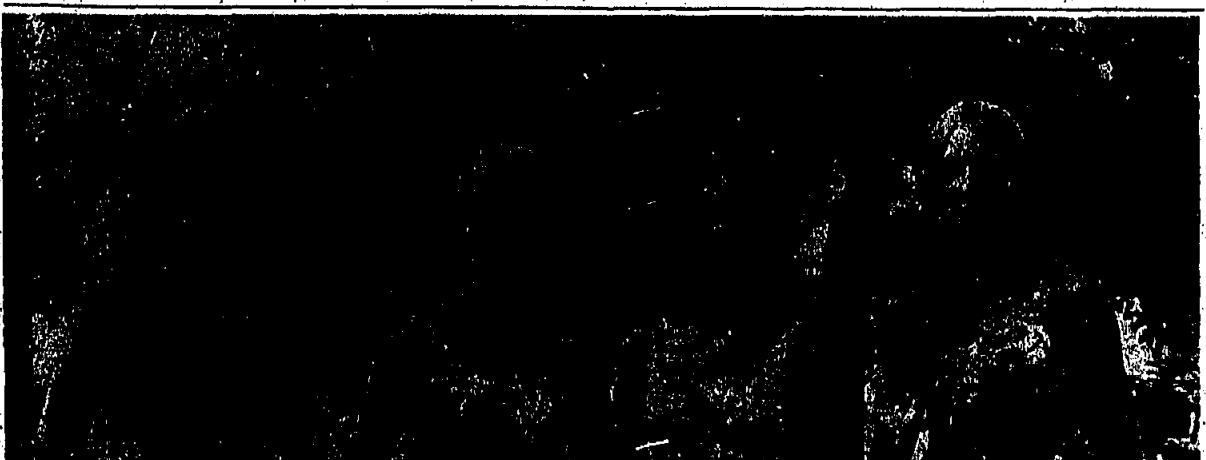

"Properties which are newly constructed or substantially improved located within these more precisely delineated areas of special flood hazard will not be eligible for flood insurance until we have had an opportunity at a later date to re-evaluate rates and competition in the community at which time these new properties will be eligible for flood insurance only at actuarial rates or rates which are available at actuarial rates for presently existing properties. This re-evaluation study is being completed."

"FORBES RECALLED that he had complained of litter in commercial areas several times in the past. He declared, 'I am doing it myself. I don't know what procedure can be brought on the owners to instill some civic pride, it is a disgrace.'

"I've seen cow towns in Kansas with more pride than this town has in terms of our so-called merchants. I'm almost ready to urge a citizens' boycott of these stores."

Several other commitments expressed general agreement, as did members of the audience during the public discussion period. Commitment No. 2006 said that the town's inability to hire a full-time sanitationer who can meet standards has hampered Board No. 2007.

Mobile data center of Union C. to visit this area Monday

Union College's traveling College Information Center will make a one-day stop in Springfield on Monday, it was announced this week by Fred LaLent of Chatham, contractor.

The educational and vocational-opportunity information facility on wheels will be at the Antioch Baptist Church, 50 Springfield Avenue and Mackay Street, from 1 to 7 p.m.

Serving as advisor to the center during its Springfield stay will be Robert Johnson of 21 Ruby St., a member of the Springfield Board of Education.

This is the first summer that the center has visited communities in Union County to interest young people and their parents in higher education. The College Information Center is a service offered by Union College and financed by the Bayway Refinery of the Humble Oil and Refining Company and the Bayway Chemical Plant of the Enjay Chemical Company, Linden.

According to LaLent, the College Information Center is equipped with college brochures, film strips and viewers. Prospective students will be assisted in filling out college applications and forms for financial aid. The center is staffed by members of Union College's counseling, admissions, and financial aid staffs, and by representatives of the Union County Technical Institute, Scotch Plains.

Painting is stolen from parked car

Peter Crofts of Scotch Plains called Springfield police last Tuesday to report that a painting in an antique gold frame was stolen from his car which was parked in the lot of the Springfield Stock House. The painting is valued at about $1,000.

The distributor was stolen from a car owned by Mrs. Elton Kure of 825 Mountain Ave., Springfield, last Wednesday, police said. The car was parked in the lot behind the apartments, 477 North 10th St.

The bicycles, one belonging to Paul Duban of 140 Shunkle St. and the other to David Kessler of 47 Britfield Dr., both of Springfield, were reported stolen Friday from the Springfield Municipal Pool, police said.

Events of June, 1780, recalled by historical plaques in area

This is the first of two articles tracing markers and memorials which can be found in the area along the route that led to the Battles of Monmouth Farms and Springfield in the Revolutionary War.

By ADA BRUNNER

On most days, a haze hangs over the Arthur Kill where that narrow strip of water separates Elizabeth, New Jersey, from Staten Island, New York.

With more and more bridges, tunnels, and ferries, the Arthur Kill is becoming a major thoroughfare. But the attention drawn to the haze over the Kill and to the question of what is to be done for it.

One hundred and ninety years ago, the air over the Arthur Kill was clear, but other patriots had their eyes on the water and the land that surrounds it. They were watching intently as British and Hessian troops crossed from Staten Island to Elizabethtown and marched off to the direction of Morristown, where George Washington had his headquarters.

An amateur historian standing on the New Jersey shore of the Kill and looking over the water finds it hard to picture that scene, with ceaseless gouting, the smokestacks now rise. There is not even the cry of a seagull to recall that earlier era when the land was lonely and wild.

On the New Jersey side of the Kill is Elizabeth, New Jersey. Elizabeth, then Elizabethtown, and half a dozen blocks away from the Kill, at Florida Street, is a plaque declaring that Elizabeth Avenue is "probably the oldest road in New Jersey." The street looks old but not historic. The traffic is too heavy, and the atmosphere is one of grayness.

About 15 blocks beyond Florida Street, at the corner of Elizabeth Avenue and High Street, is the first real reminder of what happened along this chain 190 years ago—a statue of a militiaman. If the visitor interested in history can find a place to park—a challenge in this area on a business day—he will find this plaque on this statue:

"On this spot at daylight June 7, 1780, began the fighting against the British forces moving toward Springfield. Here 2nd General Sullivan at the head of the advancing column, Oct. 26, after the British retreat from Springfield, General Hand has attacked and drove back the 22nd Regiment of the British main position at the point of Springfield on this ground, Sept. 10, 1780."

The plaque is the first of a series of historical markers which will be placed along the route of the British retreat from Springfield to Morristown, New Jersey.

"Once the detailed mapping of the area has been completed, which we hope will be in the very near future, buildings which have been constructed or substantially improved after the effective date, and which are located outside of these areas of special flood hazard will be able to purchase flood insurance at subsidized rates along with presently existing properties."

"Properties which are newly constructed or substantially improved located within these more precisely delineated areas of special flood hazard will not be eligible for flood insurance until we have had an opportunity at a later date to re-evaluate rates and competition in the community at which time these new properties will be eligible for flood insurance only at actuarial rates or rates which are available at actuarial rates for presently existing properties. This re-evaluation study is being completed."

"FORBES RECALLED that he had complained of litter in commercial areas several times in the past. He declared, 'I am doing it myself. I don't know what procedure can be brought on the owners to instill some civic pride, it is a disgrace.'

"I've seen cow towns in Kansas with more pride than this town has in terms of our so-called merchants. I'm almost ready to urge a citizens' boycott of these stores."

Several other commitments expressed general agreement, as did members of the audience during the public discussion period. Commitment No. 2006 said that the town's inability to hire a full-time sanitationer who can meet standards has hampered Board No. 2007.
