LWV president issues reminder to would-be voters

Mrs. Beverly Lerner, president of the Springfield League of Women Voters, this week issued the following reminder to residents who wish to vote in the primary election on Tuesday.

"This is a party election to choose candidates for the general election this fall and to elect party officials. County and municipal officers will be voted on. The entire New Jersey Legislature will be elected this year from newly-apportioned districts.

"Any registered voter is eligible to vote in the primary election simply by requesting a Republican or Democratic ballot at his local polling place, then enrolling as a member of that party. Any citizen wishing to change his party designation must abstain from voting in two successive primary elections.

"It is not necessary to vote the straight party ticket in November. The primary is your chance to have a say in the way things will be done — your chance to choose who the candidates will be this fall. Vote for the party of your choice on June 8."

Anyone wishing further information may call Mrs. Carole Symanski, 379-5191, or Mrs. Marge Halpin, 379-7158, voters service chairman of the Springfield League.

RUNNING FOR an unexpired term, to succeed Nicholas S. LaCorre, now a tax court judge, are Republican, Van Dyke J. Polter of Panwood, and Democrat, Mrs. Gerry English of Summit.

Two seats are open in Assembly District 9-B, which includes Springfield, Union, Montclairside, Cranford, Garwood, Linden, Winfield and Rahway. The district will probably be changed by 1973, following a recent court ruling that the redistricting carried out this year does not provide equal representation throughout the state.

Pupils take steps to raise funds for the good ship Hope

Students from Millburn and the Florence M. Gaudineer School in Springfield participated in a 20-mile hike May 23 to raise money for the hospital ship, Hope. Approximately 1,000 from several towns were involved.

Before the hike, pupils obtained pledges from interested persons who wished to support their cause. They pledged anywhere from one cent to one dollar per mile. Along the 20-mile route were eight official checkpoints where students had their cards stamped. Each checkpoint represented about two-and-one-half miles.

Involved students from Springfield were Kathleen Shaffrey, Anna Ciccell, Kathleen Walsh, Eli Shapiro, Joseph Walsh, Ed Rosen, Helene Dashuta, Leslie Bruder, Janet Oertel, Sylvia Primataroff, Lisa Simon, Rachel Freedman, and Phyllis Valenti. Some students, unable to march because of other commitments, showed their interest by making donations and pledges.

Together these local students have raised about $386.50 which will be used by the SS Hope to provide medical assistance, training, and facilities for underdeveloped nations. (Written by Kathleen Shaffrey)

A few pool memberships remain open as June 19 opening day approaches

There are still a limited number of memberships open for the Springfield Municipal Pool, which will open for the weekend of June 19 and 20, the Recreation Department reported this week. The department urged all interested residents to act promptly.

Applications should be filed at the recreation office in the Sarah Bailey Civic Center, Church Mall, weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The pool will be open on a daily basis from Saturday, June 26. It will be under the general direction of Stephen Magliano, recreation director. Stan Wnek is again pool manager, assisted by Marty Mikus. Tony Pilone, will return as recreation supervisor at the pool.

The Recreation Department announcement added:

"The members will enter the usually well-groomed grounds; grass cut, with the flowers and shrubs doing their beautiful thing. The pool water will look fresh and clean and blue. New lawn chairs will fill in among the old. Colorful plastic refuse containers will stand around the picnic area.

"A new handball court is ready for the ever-growing number of devotees of the game, and the bocce court and volleyball court are fresh and ready for a new season.

"Very few people are aware of how much effort goes before the fact — how many people must work for months — to make the pool ready; how much office work is involved from the first mailing, to the bookkeeping, to the badge making; how much is involved in the technical process of making the pool itself ready — the draining, caulking, painting, the check-out of the mechanics of the pump, the

there is the purchasing of supplies. The pool needs chemicals. The snack bar must be supplied.

"All of this effort would be meaningless without the manpower to keep it in operation, so since Christmas vacation when the college students were home the personnel for the pool has been hired."

"The staff keeps a very active program of games, athletics and special events going daily. Other recreation activities, especially arts and crafts, will be supervised by Lillian Johnson.

"She plans a daily arts and crafts program for the children and pre-school children from 2 to 4 each afternoon. There will also be an arts and crafts program for teenagers, for adults and for senior citizens."

Karen Cohen receives award for figure skating prowess

Karen Cohen, 16-year-old junior at Jonathan Dayton High School in Springfield, has been named the recipient of the Henry W. Kenarney Award for achievement in figure skating. Presentation of the silver trophy was made by Peter Erdman, at the annual meeting of the Princeton Skating Club at the Springdale Golf Club, Princeton.

Miss Cohen received the award for earning the most points in the 2000 membership drive in the past year. The point system of the New Jersey Association of Figure Skating Clubs is based on the level of figure skating tests and on placement in specific ice skating competitions.

In October Miss Cohen passed her sixth figure skating test. In January she passed her first two gold dance tests. In February she passed her final two gold dance tests to earn her a gold medal from the United States Figure Skating Association.

Scientists studying ants
 Note scouts, raiders, slaves

Ants make slaves of other ants by raiding nests of the same or closely-related species. Defenders are killed or driven off and pupae of the defiling ants are carried off by the slave-makers. When adults emerge from the abducted pupal stage, they accept the slave-makers as nestmates and readily assist in the domestic work of the slave-maker nest. Worker ants of the most highly specialized slave-maker species are themselves so specialized that they can do nothing else but conduct slave raids. For their day-to-day existence, they are wholly dependent on their slaves.

Raiders are both initiated and guided by color trails laid down by scout ants from the target nest back to the home nest of the slave-makers. Purdue University biologists, Register and Harvard biologist E.O. Wilson report in a recent issue of "Science" that they identified the source of the color trails and the chemicals involved.

Wilson and Register found that they could provoke raids by placing pieces of colonies belonging to slave species near slave-maker nests. When scouts discovered these pieces, they returned to their nests, apparently by odor trails to mark the course and location. Slave-makers emerged at once, went promptly to the nest fragments and attacked by driving away the defenders and carrying off pupae.

Going a step further, Wilson and Register ground up some slave-maker ants and painted trails on the soil with the juices from their bodies. Slave-makers picked up these trails at once, followed them to the end, and milled around in searching confusion since there were no colonies to attack.

Chemical compounds identified in analyses of plants that might be the sources of trail odors showed the presence of acetates in astonishingly large quantities. These trail-marking substances have other unusual properties - as Register and Wilson found out. Extracts of the plants alone attract the same species and attract them to the source. Some ants tried to attack the swab that had been dipped in the extract. When the gland substance was applied to the heads and bodies of ensnared species of ants they reacted by showing signs of extreme discomfort and by milling about aimlessly. By multiplying billions of ants that had just been attacked by slave-makers, it was shown that they had in fact been sprayed by relatively large amounts of acetates. Register and Wilson believe that the acetates sprayed by the attackers caused disorientation, panic, and this rapid retreat slaves by many colony defenders during an attack.

It appears that the acetates in the secretory glands of certain species of slave-making ants perform no less than a direct function in the life of the slave-maker colonies: defensive and offensive chemical weapons, alarm substances for "communication" within the colony and offensive "propaganda" substances causing confusion and panic in colonies of ants about to become enslaved.

Williams proposes FBI probe killings of police, firemen

WASHINGTON — U.S. Sen. Harrison Williams (D-N.J.) announced this week that he is asking that hearings be held as soon as possible on legislation which would bring the FBI into the hunt for murderers of police and firemen.

At the same time, a statement, Williams indicated a sharp attack on the administration. He revealed that Richard G. Kleingard, deputy attorney general, has informed him that the administration is opposed to "direct intrusion by federal investigative personnel in purely local matters such as murders upon local officials."

The Williams Bill — similar to the so-called Lindberg Law involving kidnappings — would require that if the killer of a policeman or fireman is not apprehended within 24 hours, he be considered a fugitive to avoid prosecution. The FBI would then be authorized to investigate.

Williams, in his statement, noted that he was concerned that this administration's overzealous effort to law and order ends with the lives of police and firemen.

Yesterday's ideas good for tomorrow Rutgers students seek to solve transit problem

Four Rutgers-University engineering students have borrowed a concept from the past in an effort to help solve future transportation problems between the College campus and University Heights campus of the state university.

The students, as part of a College of Engineering classroom research project, suggest linking the campuses with gravity-assisted tube transport system (GVT), similar in concept to a system built in Ireland in the 1940s and to the New York subway in 1970.

The modern concept, however, is much like that of the proposed GVT system. The concept employs a pair of steel tubes in underground tunnels of variable depth. Cylindrical, pressure-tight trains would travel through the tubes, accelerated and decelerated by gravity and atmospheric pressure.

The building engineers proposed the link between the two campuses as an alternative to the existing bus service which suffers delays at the Landing Lane Bridge bottleneck during changes of classes.

The research project was part of a senior class course in transportation engineering taught by Dr. George R. Glegg, associate professor in the Department of Civil Engineering.

The students, Gregory E. Ward, Robert H. Kopf, Anthony D. Pivano, and Thomas J. Glick, formed one of seven groups who were assigned to study the GVT system.

Other topics dealt with automated mass transit, the STOL, system pipeline construction and transport, new modes of rail transport, metropolitan airport design and offshore airport access.

The project conducted by the students were in addition to attendance, the normal lectures, readings and examinations on the course.

There are nineteen million ex-cigarette smokers in the United States: about one in five adult men in this country has dropped the habit.

Those who give up cigarettes report a great sense of satisfaction, of tremendous pride in being able to do it. To learn a new way of living, a way without cigarette smoking, is very rewarding to the ego—and to the ego's mate.

you can kick the Habit.

As You Approach Q Day

Many stress will occur as the decisive factor in giving up cigarettes. For those who realize that they can manage their own lives of great importance. They enjoy challenging themselves and, with an effort of will, they break the cigarette habit.

Then, some psychologists describe stopping cigarettes as an exercise in self-mastery, one that involves a demonstration of self-control. Others, often alluded to in many aspects of giving up cigarettes, they try to say, they do not, and they feel empty over their weakness.

This is a mistake, since many smokers fall in their first quit second, even their fifth attempt, and then finally succeed. Those whose "will" fails in breaking the habit are not weak but different. This approach may be less through determination and more through self-management behavior with patience and perseverance.

Self-suggestion, when one is relaxed about stopping one's feelings and thoughts about cigarettes can be useful. One health educator remarks, "Nothing succeeds like willpower and a little blood in the system."

To those of "stopping smoking as a self-denial" is an error. The ex-smoker should not believe that he is giving up an object of value. However dependent he may be on it. If he begins to feel sorry for himself and broods on his "suffering," they may well become more severe and intractable. He must recognize that the teaching himself a little positive, more constructive, more rewarding behavior.

Some smokers are more important to you than others. They are the people who are most important to you. They are the people who are most important to you. They are the people who are most important to you.

Keep A Track Record

Many smokers have found that a useful step in understanding their smoking is the keeping of a diary record on a scale like that below.

In your present withdrawal you may decide to eliminate those daily cigarettes that you find are rated 1, 2 or 3 on the scale, i.e., ones you want less.

As you may wish to give up first the cigarettes you like most. In any case keeping a journal will give you information about yourself, make you more aware of "what your smoking habits are."

Do You Believe In "Cold Turkey" Quitting?

For some, a gradual withdrawal is less painful and easier to tolerate. For others, if you are a really "addicted" smoker, psychologists favor the sudden, decisive break.

Some cigarette smokers shift to pipes and cigars—there is of course some risk of mouth cancer from these but overall mortality of lung and pipe smokers is only a little higher than among nonsmokers. If the smoke is not inhaled.

What about going to a cigarette withdrawal clinic?

If there is a clinic or program in your community, you may find it useful. The American Cancer Society favors such efforts.

Sharing your withdrawal experiences with others and working with them on a common problem can be very helpful. The clinic may well be considerably easier in various ways to stop smoking than you can do on your own.

However, remember, no clinic can provide a sure result. In this matter you must be both patient and physician.

How About Ashtrays?

One school of thought asks, do you have a box of whiskey near an alcohol? Their recommendation is to get rid of cigarettes, ashtrays, anything that might remind a smoker of his former habit.

Another school of thought asks a different view and even suggests carrying cigarettes to demonstrate to yourself that you can resist temptation. Know for yourself.

Investiture of NCE president to be held at commencement

The first formal investiture of a Newark College of Engineering president will take place tomorrow as part of the ceremony of NCE's 55th commencement exercises.

At an early point in the morning proceedings, Dr. Donald C. Lucas, chairman of the board of trustees for NCE, will invest Dr. William Hazlett, as the third President of the College, investing him with the official presidential seal of office.

The earlier officers who led Newark College of Engineering include the late Dr. Charles Collins, who was director from 1884 to 1918; the late Dr. Alan R. Callimore, who served as first president from 1920 to 1947; and Dr. Robert W. Van Houten, who retired as president on June 30, 1970.

Dr. Hazlett assumed his present office on July 1 of 1970 after a 40-year career at the college as a student, faculty member and administrator. He was named as president-elect by the board of trustees in December of 1969 after a year-long search for a successor to Dr. Van Houten.

Dr. Hazlett earned his B.S. degree in electrical engineering from the Newark College of Engineering in 1933, worked as a design engineer for three years and then returned to NCE as an assistant instructor in physics. He subsequently rose through the academic ranks becoming associate professor and head of the evening division's department of physics and mechanics, served briefly as associate dean and director of admissions, and was appointed dean of administration in 1959, a title he continued to hold until his appointment as president.

Dr. Hazlett was given the additional title and responsibility of vice-president, a post established at the time by the trustees in recognition of the substantial growth NCE has experienced in the past decade. As vice-president Dr. Hazlett directed much of the college's day-to-day operations and future planning, particularly in the critical areas of faculty recruitment, curriculum revision, campus construction and community relations.

Other NCE activities which have been attributed to him include the conception of the Greater Newark Science Fair in 1953.

100,000 doctors have quit smoking cigarettes... you can quit, too!

THE WEEK BEFORE Q-DAY
Think over your list of reasons why you should not smoke: the risk of disease, blurring of the taste of food, the cost, the cough, the bad breath, the mess and smell of morning-after ashtrays.
Concentrate each evening when you are relaxed, just before you fall asleep, on one dreadful result of cigarette smoking. Repeat and repeat and repeat that single fact. Drive home another fact the next night and another the next.

Dr. Silvan Tomkins distinguishes four general types of smoking behavior: An abbreviated summary of the types follows: Four Smoking Styles Habitual Smoking: The smoker usually hardly he aware that he is smoking. He smokes as if it were a part of his life. He smokes as if it were a part of his life. He smokes as if it were a part of his life.

ON THE AGENDA—At left, Warren Knauer M.D., of the Wuxler Clinic in Elizabeth and Benjamin Rush M.D., director of surgery of the New Jersey College of Podiatry and Dentistry, in Newark, look over the program agenda for a "Symposium for the Laryngectomee." Over 300 people who have lost their voice boxes to cancer attended the recent event in North Brunswick.

Laryngectomee symposium aids victims and their families

Nearly 300 laryngectomees from throughout New Jersey attended a "Symposium for the Laryngectomee" recently at the Holiday Inn in North Brunswick.

Representing Union County at the symposium were Frank Roberts of Hillsdale, Melvin Bell of Clark, Robert Hooprich of Linden, Mrs. Albert Hughes of Rahway and George Randall of Plainfield.

The full-day session, sponsored by the New Jersey Division of the American Cancer Society and the New Jersey State Association of Laryngectomee Clubs, consisted of specialized speech therapy classes for the laryngectomee (persons who have lost their voice boxes to cancer), as well as general sessions for the laryngectomee's family and friends.

According to James C. Swick, M.D., of Newark, chairman of the symposium, its main objective was to "teach these laryngectomees who do not speak, so that they can function better in their community and in the world."

The seminar also focused on the physical, emotional and psychological problems of such patients and the most-rehabilitative methods which are available through the local units of the American Cancer Society.

Featured speakers at the symposium were Benjamin Rush, M.D., Director of Surgery, Newark and Warren Knauer, M.D., Associate, Wuxler Clinic, Elizabeth.

The speech therapy classes were conducted by James C. Swick, Ph.D., Professor of Speech, Indiana University, Licentiate Paul Scitignano of the Newark Public Department, discussed "How to Aid the Laryngectomee."

"While the laryngectomee attended their respective speech therapy classes, their families were counseled on the importance of

Support needed for psychiatric care

"Psychiatric service has been receiving poor support in New Jersey with state government expenditures the lowest of all states," Dr. Jay W. Fidler, medical director, told the Union County Psychiatric Clinic trustees last week.

Speaking at the trustees' monthly meeting, Dr. Fidler said the clinic was fortunate in having local support to "boost us above this bottom rung." The clinic, which provides psychiatric services for the emotionally disturbed in Union County communities and in North Plainfield, receives financial support from the state and from local government bodies, school boards, community funds and the freeholders.

The clinic's medical director noted that per capita support in Union County has, for a long time, been less than the state average. The staff has constituted six percent of all clinic staffs in the state while serving 13 per cent of the population, he said.

"During the past year much of the state has been finding new local funds and increasing the number of professionals while ours has remained static," he said. The result, according to Dr. Fidler, is that the clinic now has an even less-favorable ratio than in past years.

He observed, "Although our clinic is one of the largest in the state the ratio of staff to population served is one of the smallest. State reports, according to Dr. Fidler, show that the clinic provided six percent of state clinic services in 1968-69 but only 4.7 percent in 1969-70.

He told the trustees, "To keep up with programs we must constantly expand to meet the needs of the county. He noted that clinics participating in the state funding program have gone from 50 to 70 clinics, but that the clinic was lagging in providing a service to county residents.

Adding to the clinic's financial problems, Dr. Fidler reported, was a reduction of federal support for psychiatric services which "will mean that local support is essential to the maintenance of psychiatric services of all kinds."

Benjamin H. Haddock, clinic executive director, reported to the trustees that there was a waiting list of 59 on April 30 when the clinic had 553 open cases. The number of active cases by committee served follow:

Berkley Heights 13, Clark 12, Cranford 54, Elizabeth 138, Fairwood 22, Garwood 7, Hillsdale 25, Kenilworth 9, Linden 63, Mountainside 9, New Providence 14, Plainfield 168, Rahway 24, Roselle Park 21, Scotch Plains 46, Springfield 22, Summit 30, Union 62, Westfield 32, Winfield 31 and North Plainfield 62.

Humane Societies pick leaders for auxiliary

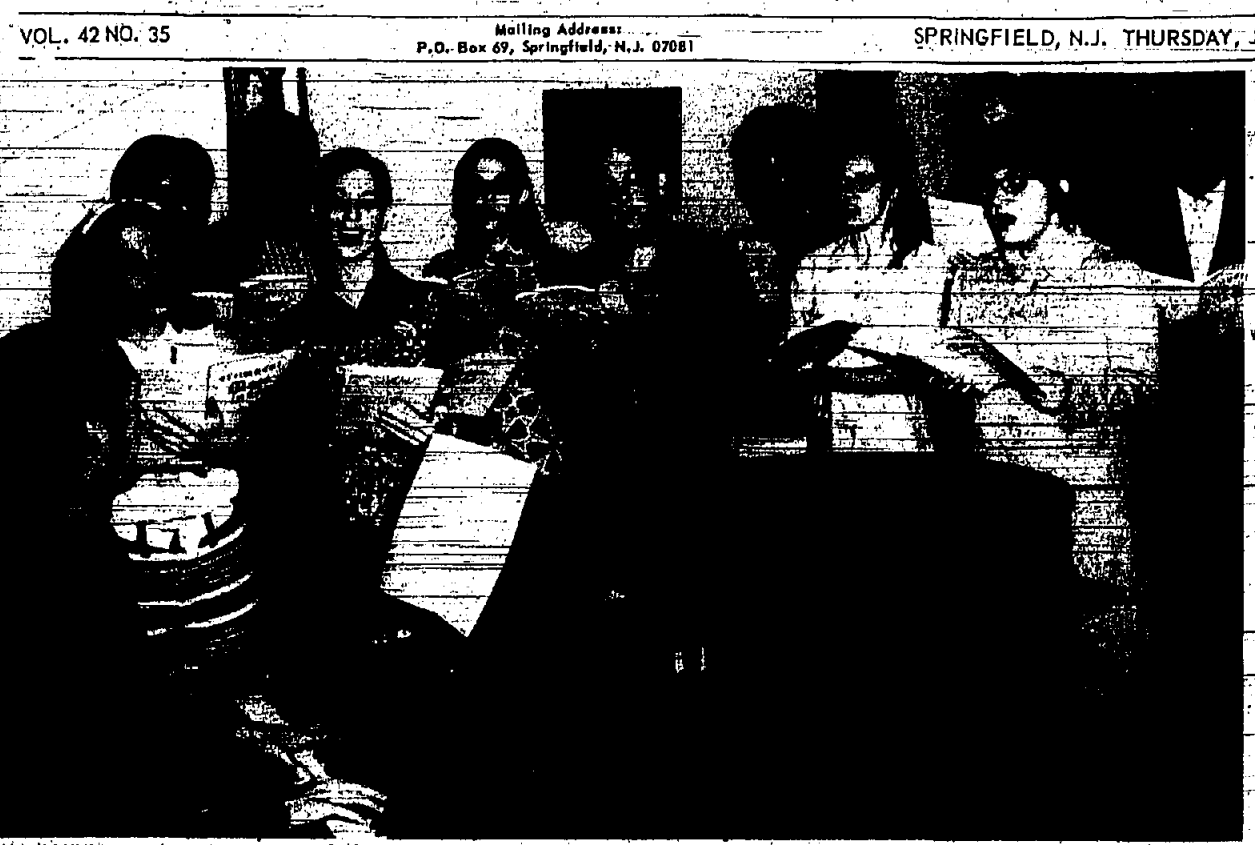

The Associated Humane Societies of New Jersey Ladies Auxiliary has elected Beverly November of Inland as president for the 1971-1972, Miss November has long been active in the animal welfare movement. Elected vice-president was Mrs. Fannie Baker of Newark. Secretary is Mrs. Roseann Trezza of West Orange. Elected as Treasurer was Mrs. Marie Stewart of Newark.

Educators counting pluses, minuses in Dayton survey

Board gets report from study group

Middle States rating checked each decade

Both commendations and recommendations were a part of the final report submitted recently for Jonathan Dayton Regional High School by the evaluating committee of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

(This article was prepared by a Regional District spokesman. This newspaper was uninvolved in the study.)

Accreditation by Middle States certifies that in the association's judgment a school's educational purposes are soundly conceived, and that its educational programs have been intelligently devised to fulfill them. High schools are evaluated every 10 years.

The Middle States report said, in part: "We find Jonathan Dayton a student body with high potential as measured by intelligence and academic ability tests." The report suggested a five-year follow-up study of all students after graduation, and this recommendation is expected to be implemented in the fall, according to Robert L. Vantoro, principal.

"We commend the Board of Education, the superintendent of schools, and the members of the administrative, supervisory and teaching staffs for achieving a recognized level of high quality education for the students. There are many aspects of the program to be recognized for excellence."

The committee, made up of 28 educators, said it found the course offerings and their organization a "laudable implementation of the philosophy of a high school and an effective effort to meet the needs of the community."

Chairman of the evaluating team which spent three days at the school was James C. O'Leary, executive secretary of the Middle States Association in East Rochester, N.Y.

COMMENTING ON the school's student activities program, the committee said that "provides for the wide and varied interests of the student body" and that "the fine, young student leaders are concerned, articulate and constructive in their efforts to make the program a worthwhile experience for all Jonathan Dayton students" and to be commended. "We feel they are a credit to the school and the community."

One of the principal tasks of the committee was to evaluate the school's progress in foreign languages. "The department is well-organized unit, attributable in large part to a highly capable, coordinated staff," the report had been designed to provide students with the opportunity to develop competency in foreign languages.

Social studies: "The members of the visiting teams wish to congratulate the department for its fine staff, the nature of the program and the devotion that the members of the department have shown in keeping the subject of the excellent school it has always been."

One of the recurrent recommendations in the mid-committee reports of the committee was the lack of adequate physical facilities which, according to La Vantoro, will be alleviated to a highly satisfactory level in the near future.

Few surprises and fewer votes on primary day

There were no surprises — and hardly any votes — in Springfield balloting in the primary election on Tuesday. With no statewide candidates on the ballot and no contests for nominations within either party, only 450 voters turned out to register their party preference. That is less than 5 percent of the town's total of 9,568 registered voters.

An usual for the township, more of the Republican Party faithful turned out to demonstrate their faith than did the Democrats. GOP totals generally ran about 100 above the Democratic figures.

Top vote-getter for either party was Matthew J. Hinds, GOP incumbent state senator, with a total of 267. Totals for his running mates for senator were Francis J. McDermott, 256, and Jerome M. Epstein, 251.

Totals for the two GOP candidates for Township Committee were William A. Ruocco, 251, and Norman Barnes, 247.

Other Republican results on the township level were: for an unexpired term as state senator, Van Dyke J. Poller, 250 for the General Assembly, Herbert H. Klein, 255 and C. Louis Bassans, 256; for an unexpired term as

The local Cancer Crusade chairman, Arthur Caputo, this week announced that Springfield's cancer fund drive goal for 1971 has been surpassed. Caputo stated, "Well over $4,500 was collected throughout the community by the district captains and block leaders assigned to this program. The generosity of the residents contributing to such a worthwhile research cause is sincerely appreciated. This annual crusade is dedicated to cancer research as well as to the rehabilitation of literally hundreds of thousands of individuals affected by this deadly disease."

The Union County Cancer Crusade was carried out during April and May. Springfield's crusade chairman, Arthur Caputo, said, "Any resident who has not had the opportunity of contributing is urged to do so since these cancer research funds are so urgently required. Any contributions may be sent to the district captains or directly to my home."

The nation's fight against cancer is continuous, particularly in light of the fact that approximately two out of three families will be affected by this disease. Cancer research, therapeutic assistance and public awareness of the warning signs of cancer are therefore the ultimate goals of the Cancer Crusade."

Caputo congratulated the "dedicated district captains and block workers" who participated in the ultimate goal of the Cancer Crusade. "These residents indicated a willingness to actively work in this crusade which required the giving up of a great deal of their weekend leisure time. Without their efforts, the Springfield drive would not have reached the financial goal."

Head-on crash ends chase from Irvington to Springfield

Four persons were seriously injured Monday night when a head-on crash ended a police chase on Springfield Avenue, Springfield, just inside the Union line.

The incident began about 11:25 p.m. in Irvington when police there said they saw a car driven by Daley E. Johnson, 42, of Newark, going the wrong way on a one-way street. Police began chasing him, but she went through a red light and continued skidding. Following this she made a u-turn and went through another red light, the report continued.

Another police car from Irvington joined the chase which went up Springfield Avenue through Hillsdale. Midway up the road, Springfield
