Little entrepreneurs in big business

1st graders corner snack cracker trade

A class of first grade students at the Edward Walton School in Springfield have put buying and selling into practice through an economics project on running a store.

The project was developed by a student teacher, Karen Hager, working with Helen E. Golden and Vickie Hager. The idea was started by the first graders themselves, who kept asking questions about the economic world in which they live. Miss Hager explained.

To initiate the project, the children were asked: "How can we learn about the way our economy works?" Timely Walker replied, "Build a store!" Where will we get the money to run the store? "What can we sell?" "For how much?"

After deliberation, the children decided to sell crackers filled with peanut butter at a certain time each day.

An investment of 25 cents became the working capital to finance the project.

After a brief discussion the children agreed on a division of labor and working groups were formed.

They also worked out their own system of division of labor and then concluded that this made people and even members of the family more interested. The children involved themselves by taking turns "shopping" for or that a decision could be made as to where to buy the best quality peanut butter and crackers for the least money.

They learned that making the sandwiches worked them to be called producers of goods, and selling into practice through an economics project on running a store.

The children also learned that the children discovered that not all members of the family can be producers; some may be too young, too old, or disabled.

As they worked in their groups, the students learned to distinguish between goods and services and knew what was meant by wants and needs, production and consumption. They exchanged roles so that everyone could work in all areas.

Mrs. Golden concluded, "This activity provided a variety of experiences for the children, and thus helped to develop increased skills, attitudes, and understandings of our economic system."

The "happy, relaxed atmosphere" in the classroom gave the children a feeling of confidence so that the daily experiences helped them to facilitate language growth, as well as developing math skills. Mrs. Golden noted.

John J. Kaufman, principal, who was the first customer to purchase the peanut butter sandwiches, stated, "Varied learning experiences were provided for the children by negotiating their project with reading, writing, computing, listening, thinking, and creative development. These are the skills that will give meaning to their lives and make them a part of today's world."

Alternate plans on redistricting listed by board

In addition to its proposal for a major reorganization of elementary school classes, presented at its meeting last week at the Pinerose-Gardiner School, the Springfield Board of Education also outlined several alternative plans for redistricting to deal with the present decline of student population in the lower grades—which is expected to continue.

The board's proposals were given by the Raymond Childs, Thelma Sandrieter and Edward Walton Schools as a unit. All kindergarten classes and possibly pre-kindergarten group, would be located at the Childs School, Grades 1 to 3 would be at Sandrieter and Grades 4 and 5 at Walton. See editorial on Page 4.

Although the James Caldwell School would not be included in this reorganization, a second step would include the youngsters from Caldwell area—perhaps in another five years, with additional facilities in the building.

The board also discussed the possibility of the West Long Branch High School, which would be an all-comprehensive up to the 11th grade, and the other high schools, the James Caldwell, the West Long Branch, and the James Caldwell.

The following alternative plans have been presented:

Three instrumental music students from the Pinerose-Gardiner School, Springfield, have won seats in the Central Jersey Intermediate Band. The students are Eric Golie and Steven Hochstein, trumpet, and Michael "Tubby" Schenker, clarinet. Golie was the first choice in the band.

The announcement was made by Joseph M. Peirullo, instrumental music teacher at the Springfield School.

On Feb. 26, more than 60 instrumentalists auditioned for placement in the regional groups. A concert was held at Hopewell Valley High School, Pennington, Sunday.

Invitation to seniors

The time is now for those men over 60 who are tired of sitting and waiting for a telephone call to come down to the Springfield Recreation Department, at Church Hill, and sign other men of their own age. They are invited to check out the cards and shuffleboard every Monday from 1 to 3 P.M.

Township urged to act on summer day camp

By ARNOLD GOLD

Nell Prager, who was a Democratic candidate for the Township Committee last November, Tuesday night presented the Democratic majority on the governing body for establishment of a summer day camp at the Municipal Swimming Pool.

Speaking before some 20 citizens in the audience during the public discussion portion of the town meeting in the Municipal Building, Prager several times called for speedy action on a day camp. He noted that it had been urged by both parties during the local campaign last fall.

Committee member N.J. Stokes, a Democrat who heads the recreation committee, commented that the committee feels a day camp would be beneficial, but that there are problems "finance and facilities."

He said the pool is just breaking even and that the immediate goal is to maintain membership fees at $75 per family despite the fiscal squeeze. Stokes said that funds would be required to close and for a day-camp adjacent to the present pool area and to construct the needed facilities.

He added that the area is vulnerable to flooding, which poses another problem. Stokes stressed, however, that a day camp is under intensive study and "we should go ahead on it in the next year."

Prager replied, "All we need to start is a small facility—basically a baby-sitting center." He added that response to such a program would indicate interest in an expanded day camp in the future. Prager said he was interested in such a program for children 6 and younger.

Committee member Donald Clancy, also a Democrat, noted, "We don't want just a baby-sitting service. The entire project is under serious study and we want to be sure of the ages we can best serve."

Stokes said that baby-sitting at the pool "is the responsibility of the parents. A day camp should take children perhaps 6 and older, so that we can give them some experience in things such as chess, arts and crafts and music building equipment."

Committee member William Ruocco, a Republican, who was elected last fall, com-

Man fined $470 in one of 12 cases heard on Monday

Twelve cases were heard by Judge Max Sherman in Springfield Municipal Court on Monday. The majority of them dealt with traffic violations, and one motorist received almost $500 in fines.

Albert Carpin of Clark paid $470 for driving 55 miles per hour in a 25-mile zone at Mountain Avenue. Also guilty of speeding was Douglas Livermore of Summit, who received a $20 fine for driving 47 miles per hour in a 25-mile zone on Shunpike road.

Genetta Butler of Plainfield was found guilty of careless driving when her car rode over a curb on Springfield Avenue and hit a sign. She paid $20.

Robert Robinson of Scotch Plains was charged $25 for driving without a license and operating an unregistered vehicle on Rt. 52.

Two Westfield residents paid $45 fines. Jacques Allen was found guilty of driving 40 miles per hour in a 25-mile zone at Mountain Avenue. (Continued on page 17)

Editorial comment
STATUS QUO
DON'T DO

Springfield Board of Health last week presented the plan with a meeting plan to meet with children from all three areas. We were shocked to see that plan was not met, not too many members of the audience at the Florence Caudron school, by a number of complaints about the minor details of the proposal.

Certainly, there are problems about the proposal to consolidate the location now being offered in the Chisholm. The plan is to have a large number of children from all three areas to be divided by grade level and not school district.

But also certainly, this plan offers a large chance for the people of Springfield to have an outstanding level of education which has made so many parents so proud over the years.

When the plan is implemented in the coming year, the savings in salaries alone will be considerable. By consolidation of classes, many will not have to pay for buses and any other non-costs.

Board members have promised some financial savings at the two public hearings to be held April 13 and 20, and we are sure the information will bear out our prediction.

Too many of the questions and comments that were made outside the financial aspects of the plan, seemed to reflect private fears.

Will my child have to suffer in a school which is not as good, for school over reasons, as the one he now attends?

Will my child, from such a positive background, suffer during a classroom with others less tenderly nurtured? And will he ever move to the hope that he will ever move to a school where he will be as happy as he is now?

How will my child get to school without a car available to take him there? And one asking this, they turned and asked if they had a car but left the question about still be asked.

The one doubt that remains in our minds is whether this plan is for youngsters at the Florence Caudron School who will still be constructed by a more traditional physical plant, even with an outstanding administration and faculty.

Walter Reed is a hospital - an Army General Hospital - indeed, the headquarters, in effect, of military medicine.

At least, it is easy to imagine that I can. For I am here at Walter Reed though my thoughts are very much in residence on the other "hill."

Given the phone, however, a voluminous supply of mail and other reading matter and daily visits from staff and friends, I've been able to stay in touch and keep things moving. Fortunately, too, the legislative calendar has been quiet for the time being.

So, if it had to happen, the broken came along at a fairly propitious time. And it's had some other positive effects on the real world, a little less tension and pressure, an opportunity to think more deeply and look at things from a different angle.

As for my thoughts as a fireman, I guess every guy's gonna want to be a captain. But I'm not going to help the public, I like to help people to help themselves.

Of chickens and men

Fowl's fine in med research

Biologically speaking, people and chickens have more in common than might appear on the surface. And the similarity is helping to benefit medical research, a Rutgers scientist says.

Robert L. Squibb, professor of nutrition at the College of Agriculture and Environmental Sciences, is working with medical researchers at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, D.C., on the pathology and biology of disease as it affects both chickens and humans.

A similar form of tuberculosis appears in both chickens and humans," Dr. Squibb says, and mumps and influenza are closely related in a poultry ailment known as Newcastle disease. Also, chickens are faster growing and thus more economical than rats, and have the advantage of emerging disease-free from the shell.

The emphasis in his work is to produce models of how diseases interact with basic biological rhythms.

"One of our findings has been that levels of both copper and zinc in the chicken brain decline before the observable onset of Newcastle disease. We hope that this may lead to more rapid diagnosis of both influenza and mumps in humans.

"Virus diseases generally tend to slow protein synthesis in a chicken's heart. This helps to confirm the old saw about resting in bed during a cold—strenuous activity might strain the heart."

Working with a wide range of similar studies,

Dr. Squibb and other researchers hope to piece together a picture of how cycles in protein synthesis production of amino acids, and fats, and other factors relate to disease.

Also important is how much energy an organism uses to fight disease and how the energy is diverted from other bodily functions. "All life giving functions have cycles," Dr. Squibb says. "Blood sugar, for example, varies considerably over a 24-hour period. For this reason it's probably better for a physician to take more than a single sample before diagnosing a diabetic condition."

"All organisms are interacting dynamic systems," he concludes. "A disease represents a disruption, sometimes called an 'infect' of that system. It's clear that the more complete a biological picture we can draw, the better health quality we can deliver. For both animals and humans."

School boards publish 'Fact Sheet'

Hundreds of public school fact sheets—average class size to the number of school buses on the highways—are listed in the New Jersey School Boards Association's "New Jersey Public School Fact Sheet" for 1971-72. The publication covers such areas as school districts, pupils, professional personnel, teacher salary guides, administrative salaries, school finance, physical plant, and elementary children set by the average up from 1969. It indicates that total state enrollments have swelled to 1.38 million, a projected increase of approximately 35,000 in four years. It states that over 2,000 school buses transport more than half a million children each school day.

The fact sheet shows a trend towards more vocational school districts: up 11 percent and more vocational schools up 18 percent. The number of appointed school boards, Type I, has increased by 23 percent, whereas elected boards representing one municipality, Type II, have decreased by over three percent. However, Type II regional boards have increased by over eight percent.

A free copy of the fact sheet may be obtained by writing the association at 407 W. State Street, P.O. Box 96, Trenton, N.J. 08646.

Economic Stabilization

Questions and Answers

Q. Can a landlord evict a tenant for filing a complaint against an illegal increase with the IRS?

A. No. Retaliatory action by a landlord against a tenant who exercises any right conferred upon him by the rent stabilization is prohibited. Under the rent regulation, retaliatory action includes under or unjustified convenience, violation of privacy, harassment, reduction in quality or quantity of services, or any form of threat or coercion.

Q. Does a landlord have to explain to a new tenant or a prospective tenant any differences between the base rent and the rent charged for the unit?

A. Yes. A landlord must inform a new or prospective tenant of the factual justification for the difference between the rent he proposes to charge and the rent charged for the residence between July 16 and Aug. 31, 1971, or an earlier period during which the base rent was established.

Q. I regularly defer the incentive bonuses for the employees in my firm until a future year. How are such items treated under the Tax Board regulations?

A. An item of incentive compensation paid to employees covered by an incentive compensation or sales, commission, or production incentive plan or similar arrangement which was granted to them during another wage year is not considered an item of incentive compensation for such employees for the wage year during which it is paid. Such items would not be subject to the 5.5 percent general wage and salary standard for the year of payment. However, an item of incentive compensation granted to such employees during any wage year and deferred to a later wage year is considered an item of incentive compensation for the year it is granted, and thus subject to the wage and salary standard for that year.

Q. My employer furnishes me with a car for my personal use. Does that count toward the 5.5 percent standard set by the Tax Board?

A. Yes. Such job perquisites are included in an employee's total compensation for the year, and subject to the 5.5 percent general wage and salary standard.

Q. I thought meat was very subject to price controls, but if this is so, why are meat prices rising?

A. Meat cuts are subject to price controls. Live cattle, calves, hogs, sheep, and lambs, however, are exempt from controls. If prices rise on these exempt items, retailers are permitted to reflect this increase in their costs by passing on the increase in the form of higher prices for controlled items to the consumer.

Q. I'm not sure whether my business should be classified as a health service or an ordinary service under Price Commission regulations. What should I do?

A. In any case where there is any doubt as to whether a service is a health service or whether a health service is a health service, a determination may apply to the office of the Internal Revenue Service in which the service in question is located for a determination.

Podiatrist to head April Walk-a-Thon of March of Dimes

Dr. Clark Miller, Roselle Park and Roselle Park, has been named medical director for Union County's March of Dimes "Walk-a-Thon," scheduled April 16 in 11 of the county's municipalities. Dr. Miller's appointment was announced by his Virginia McKenna of Roselle Park, director of the March of Dimes. Junior high, high school and college students are expected to take part in the fund-raising effort. Light-bright defects, each walker will acquire sponsors who will pay an undesignated amount for each mile walked. The conclusion of the five-to-six hour walk will be held in Warinanco Park, Roselle.
