Beth Israel plans cancer seminar for physicians

The Department of Medicine of Newark Beth Israel Medical Center will host a symposium on "Recent Developments in Breast Cancer" at 9:30 a.m. today, in the Medical Center Auditorium, 207 Essex Ave., Newark.

The program, for physicians, surgeons and medical students, will be the first in the George Gross Memorial Lecture Series and will feature three guests.

Marvin A. Kirschner, M.D., director of the Department of Medicine at the Medical Center and a member of the Epidemiology Section of the Breast Cancer Task Force, National Cancer Institute, Bethesda, Md., will speak on "Risk Factors in Breast Cancer."

William McGuire, M.D., professor of Medicine and chief of Experimental Oncology at the University of Texas Medical School, San Antonio and a member of the Breast Cancer Task Force, will cover "Estrogen Receptors in the Management of Breast Cancer."

George Gross, a lawyer, was president of the Prudential Building Maintenance Corporation and was active in "sewer" service organizations. He was originally from Jersey City but also lived in Maplewood, South Orange and West Orange. Upon his death from cancer in 1971, his widow, Mrs. Helen Gross of West Orange, and his brother, Stanley Gross, of Maplewood, donated funds to establish a lecture series in his memory. The series annually will present outstanding specialists in cancer research and treatment.

Canal officially historic

Now listed in National Register

Commissioner David J. Baran of the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection this week announced that the Morris Canal, which once crossed the state from Phillipsburg in Warren County to Jersey City in Hudson County, has been named to the National Register of Historic Places.

The National Register is a list of properties throughout the nation worthy of preservation for their historic, cultural, architectural or archaeological values. Sites listed on the National Register are eligible for federal historic preservation funds. Registered sites are protected against encroachments by federal, state or local governmentally-financed projects, such as highways, construction, demolition and the like.

In its heyday, the Morris Canal flowed through the counties of Essex, Hudson, Morris, Passaic, Sussex and Warren. Digging began in 1825 and was finally completed in 1836. An unusual engineering problem confronted the builders: how to get boats across the mountains that host the canal route. It was George P. Muddoch who conceived the ingenious plan of a system of "little railroads" on inclined planes, by which loaded canal boats could be lifted up or let down from one level to another.

James Kenwick, a Columbia University professor, brought the plan into being. Many other distinguished engineers of the day also had a part in the accomplishment.

The Morris Canal made it possible to transport fairly cheaply the anthracite coal of northeastern Pennsylvania to the iron industries of New Jersey, which had almost died because sources of charcoal for fuel were depleted. The canal also carried crops of the fine-quality iron ore mined in Morris County, and the various iron products produced by the revived New Jersey iron industries.

Childhood cancer discussion topic Wednesday night

A public forum on "Living with Childhood Cancer" will be held next Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Holiday Inn, 550 W. Mount Pleasant Ave., Livingston. The program, which will present a panel of medical experts and parents of children with cancer, is being sponsored by the New Jersey Division of the American Cancer Society and IMPACT (Interested, Motivated Parents Against Cancer Today).

Topics of discussion will include "Understanding the Child with Cancer," "Information, Knowledge and Communication About Childhood Cancer" and "Answering Unanswered Questions." The discussion leaders will include:

Dr. George M. Gill, Director of Oncology at Children's Hospital in Newark; Penelope H. Buschman, M.S., clinical specialist in nursing in Child Psychiatry; Geri Lodgren, R.N., Morris County Visiting Nurse; and Lorraine Wolnik, R.N., supervisor of the pediatrics department at Memorial Hospital for Cancer and Allied Diseases in New York.

Registration for participation, which is free, may be made through the New Jersey Division of the American Cancer Society, 200 Rt. 22, Union 07083.

For more information, call 663-7700, ext. 101.

Blue Shield subscribers told to check coverage of policy

In order that your Blue Shield policy will be as beneficial as possible when you need it, Blue Shield of New Jersey offers this advice: Check your certificate or benefits booklet to determine your coverage and if it's not adequate, arrange to obtain a better program.

The nonprofit medical-insurance plan brings this to the attention of its subscribers because many members still carry the old Series 500 program which covers, on the average, only about 50 percent of the charges for eligible services unless your annual family income is under $7,500 in which case the bills for eligible services rendered by participating physicians are covered in full.

Blue Shield has better programs which provide higher payments for eligible physician services—called the Series 750 and the UCR (usual, customary or reasonable) Fee Program. The Series 750 covers 100 percent of the charges for eligible services rendered by participating physicians when the family income is below $12,000.

For information concerning the Series 750, Members of groups should see their employee benefits manager, said Dr. Donnelly.

He urged direct pay subscribers to write to Blue Shield of New Jersey, Marketing Department, 22 Washington St., Newark 07102, for information concerning the Series 750.

School board again opposes county road-widening plans

The Springfield Board of Education Monday night strongly repeated its year-old opposition to county proposals for widening roadways to speed the flow of traffic in the residential areas of Springfield.

Speaking at the board meeting at the Raymond Chisholm School, Michael McIntyre, board president, charged that the county planners "are not interested in the safety of the children. All they care about is speeding traffic through Springfield."

The president noted that the Township Committee last week had also voted its opposition to the plan, except a parcel of old traffic routes to be widened in the Union County Planning Board. A similar proposal several years ago found the Township Committee in favor and the school board strongly opposed. That project collapsed because the school board refused to accept the widening of the front of the Chisholm School for road widening.

Any changes would affect both pedestrian and vehicular traffic in the roads between and leading to the Chisholm School (now used for board offices and special education instruction), the Purcell-Gaudinier School, St. James Catholic Church and school and two synagogues, Temple Sha'arey Shalom and Congregation Israel of Springfield, and their religious schools.

Another opponent, Howard Casadimitri, board attorney, advised against a lawsuit against the Board of Education.

Southward announced that police had kept the board apprised of the bridge repair schedule, and that traffic should be back to its normal pattern in another 10 days.

The board accepted the resignation of Robert Southward, chairman, and Robert Southward, board secretary, as announced by board secretary, Robert Southward.

Southward, who had announced earlier this year that he would not seek another term, stated that he plans to move to Treasure Island, Fla. in February following his retirement from the Prudential Insurance Co. He has also been an instructor for evening classes at Rutgers University in Newark.

A former president of the board, Southward was first elected in 1952. He has served ever since, except for 1971 and 1972. For the past year, he has been chairman of the building and grounds committee.

An attorney with offices in Newark, Schneider was elected to the Board of Education three years ago. He cited the press of business, as well as the great amount of time needed to function properly as a board member, in announcing his decision to retire from office.

The senior member of the board, Caprio has served since 1961 and is a former board president. He has been finance chairman for the past several years with primary responsibility for preparing the school budget. He is coordinator of foreign languages for the Regional High School District Board of Education.

Michael McIntyre, board president, issued an appeal of Monday night for equal participation by men and women to seek election to the board. His invitation specifically included both those who have been regular participants at board meetings and others in the community who are interested in furthering the cause of education.

The Regional District will also hold an election this winter, on Feb. 4, but participation by local citizens will be limited to a vote on the high school budget. Both the Springfield members on the Regional Board, Natalie Wald and Soya Dorsky, are in the middle of three-year terms.

Springfield cited by Easter Seals

The Township of Springfield was among the recipients of Burrier-Free Design Leadership plaques awarded by the Easter Seal Society of New Jersey at the group's annual dinner meeting held recently in Hightstown, N.J.

The Springfield award was made in recognition of the township's barrier-free ordinance adopted in September. Springfield is the state's first municipality to adopt an ordinance calling for the implementation of barrier-free design features in the construction and remodeling of commercial and industrial buildings. The award was presented to Mayor Edward Stas Jr.

Other awards were presented to the New Jersey Turnpike Authority, Paramus Mayor Charles E. Held and to the Hightstown mayor, Council, Chamber of Commerce and the Hightstown News.

Thanksgiving joint service at Antioch Baptist

Giving thanks at Thanksgiving season through formal worship has been one of the more significant means of expressing the cooperative spirit with which the churches and synagogues of Springfield mark the approach of the year, the religious groups stated in announcing that this year the service will be held on Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Antioch Baptist Church on S. Springfield Avenue, of which the Rev. Clarence Alton is the minister.

Participating religious groups in addition to the Antioch Church will be the Emanuel United Methodist Church, First Presbyterian Church, St. James Roman Catholic Church, and Temples Beth Aham and Sha'arey Shalom. The Antioch Baptist Church will be the host.

These books are available to all residents and have been welcome companions to many whose reading had previously been severely curtailed by their inability to see normal type.

Learning Lab project focuses on cat skeleton

Jeannette Aronow's fifth grade class at the Edward V. Walton School south of the city decided to bring them back to Outdoor Education Center in the Watchung Reservation recently. This is a report on the project.

The project was a study of the skeleton of a cat. The students were given a book called "Bones." What we thought was going to be a rabbit turned out to be a cat. Some bones were missing so we used the bones we had together. The wire took the place of the missing bones. Then we sprayed it with shellac and mounted it. We enjoyed working on this project in Learning Lab.

The people that worked on this project were Kathy Flare, Stephen Dalman, Todd Litzman, Nancy Kennedy, Barbara Marinino, Nancy Haffel, Lisa Hartman, Keny Ford, and Linda Graziuso. We were helped by our teachers Jeannette Aronow, Ann Gawlik and Rosemarie Krosche.

Winter is reminder to have home heating system checked

By PENNY SHEARIN
Home Economist
Jesse Central Power & Light Co.

Now that the children are settled into school and the winter clothes and blankets are coming out of storage, it's time to have your heating system checked and serviced professionally. Make sure filters are cleaned or changed, both now and through the winter. You can help save energy by vacuuming radiators and registers frequently and by making sure they are not blocked by furniture or draperies.

Plan a weekend soon for installing storm windows. This is also a convenient time to check caulking and weather stripping around windows and doors. The few dollars invested in a caulking job will quickly be paid for in energy savings—and prevent further weather damage to your home.

Now is a good time to add insulation. If you already have three inches of insulation in your ceilings, adding another three inches can reduce the heat you will lose through the ceiling as much as 33 percent. If you have gutters about doing an insulating job yourself, phone a qualified insulation contractor to assure you that the job is done right.

Remember that lined draperies help retain heat.

S. Breier, 62; killed in accident

Funeral services were held Monday for Samuel Breier, 62, of Maplewood, a former resident of Springfield, who died Saturday in an auto accident in South Orange.

Breier was in Philadelphia, Pa., where he was president of the Philadelphia Chapter of the American Cancer Society, when he was killed. He was on his way to Philadelphia to attend a meeting of the chapter.

Surviving are his wife, Anita; two daughters, Margaret and Bonnie; a son, Robert; a brother, Arthur; and a sister, Florence.

Services were held in the Suburban Chapel of Philip Apter & Son, 1600 Springfield Ave., Maplewood.

Burglars hit lottery office in township

Police are awaiting lists of missing items from four business concerns, including the New Jersey State Lottery Commission, whose offices in the Varian Building on Rt. 22 were broken into Nov. 14.

Police said the burglars, who gained entry to the building by jimmying a rear door, broke into and ransacked the offices of the Lottery Commission, Varian Associates, the Service Brokerage Co. and the Westinghouse Credit Corp., but in all cases, items stolen were not immediately determined.

Other break-ins reported in the township during week occurred at Rayco Auto Service Store and Bamberger's Auto Service Center, both on Rt. 22.

Police were alerted to the burglary at the former at 7 a.m. Nov. 22, by a telephone alarm, arrived at the scene to find a door pushed in. Approximately $50 in cash had been removed from a rear door.

Police also are awaiting a list of missing articles from the Bamberger's building, which was entered Monday by burglars who broke a window and stole several tires. They thought to be among the items taken.

Eshleman talk slated

Ira (Doc) Eshleman, termed the official chaplain to the National Football League, will speak at the Evangelical Baptist Church, 267 Shunpike rd., Springfield, on Sunday at 7 p.m.

The responsibility of the chaplain of the NFL includes a chapel service that is held on Sunday morning, usually in a hotel, prior to the start of the season. Eshleman's duties include maintaining a high level of spiritual standards for the members of the team and to introduce them to an intimate walk with God.

George Allen, head coach of the Washington Redskins, recently said Eshleman was "one of the finest things that happened in the football world" last year.

Eshleman will come to Evangel after consulting with the Miami Dolphins at the Waldorf Astoria on Sunday morning.

Football squads from local high schools have been invited to come and hear Eshleman speak and then to march in after services in a period of light refreshments. The public has also been invited. Further information can be obtained by phoning 375-4351 or 467-1026.

Quality Hospital Care

...How do you know?

You can be sure at Overlook...

Safeguarding The Patient

Quality control is a term familiar to the hospital world, and more specifically, to your care when you are a hospital patient? How can you be sure that you are getting top quality care, delivered expertly and efficiently, as well as with every personal consideration?

Recently Overlook was selected as one of thirteen hospitals in the country to receive a Kellogg Foundation Grant, aimed to establish a quality assurance program (abbreviated herein to Q.A.P.) to serve as a model for community hospitals across the country.

Overlook has laid the groundwork for this grant through a long-standing system of medical audit, wherein special committees of doctors examine certain patient charts in special categories to be sure that high standards of patient care have been observed—a system of peer review. Such individualized review, however, was limited to a small number of cases.

Now, with the Kellogg Grant, Overlook has entered into a broad-scale computerized review of patient charts, looking at patterns of care in a system designed to cover an increasing number of patients, using objectively set criteria on a continuing basis.

Q.A.P. will evaluate the performance of Overlook's 600 active M.D.s in their delivery of care to 20,000 in-patients each year. Under Q.A.P., physician-specialists in each medical-surgical department take the major disease categories (those problems most common to Overlook patients) and set up explicit criteria for diagnosis and treatment of each major disease.

For instance, a recent study at Overlook showed that 100% of the hysterectomies done in the past year met the existing criteria to justify surgery as established for Q.A.P. by Overlook's OB-GYN Department.

Other studies at Overlook have shown the same high average (100% justification for surgery) for Gynecological sections and for duodenal ulcers.

Such findings for Overlook reflect the opinions expressed by leading experts elsewhere in the nation that 25% of surgery performed nationally is really unnecessary.

All Overlook, therefore, when your doctor tells you that surgery is necessary, you can be sure that your symptoms and tests have met very exacting criteria before the decision for surgery is recommended.

Transfusions vs. Risk

In quality patient care, the term "fully justified" is the key element. The use of blood, as studied and implemented at Overlook, is a prime example of this principle at work to safeguard Overlook patients.

Not many years ago, blood transfusions were practically automatic when surgery was performed. The standard "unit of blood" was ordered the theory being to strengthen the patient against shock and blood loss.

Every transfusion, although perfectly cross-matched, still bears the risk of hepatitis. There are tests to screen labor for hepatitis but even the most sophisticated of these tests, which are routinely performed at Overlook on all blood, do not identify hepatitis virus 100%.

In obtaining blood, Overlook uses only voluntary blood banks as sources, to eliminate the greater risk of commercial donors who are paid for their blood.

Despite all these precautions, the risk of hepatitis remains. Therefore, blood is only transfused today at Overlook when it is considered essential. Cases of severe hemorrhage or pronounced anemia would qualify under this "fully justified" criteria.

Furthermore, the use of packed cells (oxygen carrying red blood cells only) rather than whole blood carries less risk of hepatitis. Overlook's most recent study, January-July, showed the highest use of packed cells of any hospital in the state.

This Overlook is ever vigilant, constantly updating medical practice through the continuing medical education of its staff for the protection of Overlook patients.

Your Hospital Needs Your Support

Your generous contribution to Overlook's $500,000 annual fund-raising goal will mean many important needs... in respect capital equipment and new services to expand our commitment vital to your health and welfare.

Heart Attacks

Since the advent of Overlook's monitored coronary care unit, which was the first in the State of New Jersey, there has been a tremendous improvement in the sophistication of care.

Before the CCU, many heart-attack patients died of arrhythmia and failure of their heart's electrical system. In fact, one-year study reported by the Center for Heart Disease at Overlook occurred for this reason. But with the monitoring system, early recognition of arrhythmia, constant skilled nursing supervision, and advanced techniques of defibrillation, and drug therapy, Overlook's later study showed that no patients succumbed to failure of their heart's electrical system. Coronary deaths that occurred were due to other unavoidable causes.

The List Is Long

Hemiparesis, stroke, Caesarian section, gall bladder, diabetes, duodenal ulcer, trauma, hip fracture, prostaticectomy, concussion, pain... the list of disease categories is long and Overlook's physicians have established careful criteria for all of them.

In addition, Overlook has established pre-admission testing, so that patients can have their diagnostic work-up done in advance of admission, thus saving costly in-patient days and enabling better utilization of tight hospital beds and services.

Some day surgery is another new service that enables patients to have certain procedures done on an out-patient basis, eliminating the more costly and time-consuming overnight stay.

Board-Certified M.D.s

Overlook has an unusually high percentage of board-certified physicians on its medical staff—72%. Board-certified means that these doctors have taken post-graduate work, written research papers, kept up-to-date with their profession and passed the most advanced exams in their field.

The average patient trusts his doctor, has faith in his local hospital. According to a recent poll, most New Jersey citizens feel that the care they receive is good or excellent. New Jersey residents have good reason to feel this way. Regulations in this state are way ahead of most—and Overlook, in particular, has made every effort to keep in the forefront of New Jersey's medical advancement.

Enrollment sets record: 4,872 students at UC

A record enrollment of 4,872 students is reported at Union College for the fall semester. The enrollment of 1,922 full-time students and 2,950 part-time students represents increases in both areas, according to Dr. Saul Dirkin, president.

The current enrollment, he said, shows an increase in the number of older students as well as those who were in high school last year. "We have many over-25 students enrolled in special courses for adults; they attend classes on a once-a-week basis, rather than the traditional collegiate schedule of three-hour lectures a week," Dr. Dirkin said. "Our enrollment also indicates that a number of college graduates are returning to college for enrichment or career upgrading courses."

Dr. Dirkin credits much of the increased enrollment to rising costs, which have prevented many students from going away to college. Union College's low tuition of $59 a year, combined with its high transfer record, makes it possible for many students to save enough money during their two years at Union College to "permit them to transfer to residential colleges for their final two years. Union College is an independent, two-year college serving with Union County Technical Institute the community college needs of Union County. Under contracts with the Union County Board of Education, Union College provides academic programs and Union County Technical Institute, technical programs.

UC will poll high school class ideas

A poll of Union County high school students is under way at Union College, according to Dr. Frank Dee, dean of special services.

High school juniors and seniors are being asked to indicate what college-level courses they would be most interested in taking while still in high school and what class schedules would best serve them.

For the past two years, Union College has been accepting qualified high school students in regular college courses. Students require only the recommendation of their principal or guidance counselor to be admitted.

The college also accepts as full-time students high school seniors who may wish to get a head start on their college education. English and history courses taken at Union College are accepted by some high schools to meet state requirements in these subjects.

Credits earned by high school students may be applied toward an associate degree at Union College or may be transferred to four-year colleges and universities. High school students who may not be included in the current poll and who have suggestions, in writing, to forward them to Dr. Dee, Division of Special Services and Continuing Education, Union College, Cranford, New Jersey 07016.

Union College is an independent two-year college serving the community college needs of Union County. Under contract to the Union County Board of Education, Union College provides academic programs and Union County Technical Institute, technical programs.

UC alumni plan party

A card party and game night sponsored by the Union College Alumni Association will be held tomorrow at 7 p.m. in the Cranford College Center gymnasium. The affair is open to the public.

A variety of card games and other features will be available, according to Miss Suzanne Skilton of Cranford and Mrs. Jacqueline Sealord of Union, co-chairpersons of the affair. Prizes are to be awarded and refreshments served.

Permitted to be individual or group tables is welcomed but players are requested to bring their own decks of cards.

Tickets ($2) can be obtained through the Alumni Office, at the door tomorrow night. All proceeds will go to the Alumni Association's Development Fund.

UC professor presents paper

Dr. Edmund Thomas, a member of Union College's Psychology and Sociology Department, recently presented a paper at a two-day conference on social development of the University of Pennsylvania.

Dr. Thomas' paper was entitled "Problems and Prospects of Development: A Comparison of Some Models of Development." He presented his current approach toward development in underdeveloped countries should be examined before embarking on new planning and rehabilitation of resources.

Report from Washington

By Rep. Matthew J. Rinaldi

If the 1974 elections provided any clue to the shape of future campaigns, it seems clear that financial disclosure will be the rule for congressional candidates. The result of such disclosure became in fact the dominant issue of the 1974 campaign here in the 12th District. The program will consist of a disclosure of such subjects as the economy and inflation, which should have been the primary topics of the campaign.

New Year's party features Andrews

Consumers' Corner

Federal Trade Commission has issued final regulations requiring manufacturers and distributors of amplifiers to toll consumers about the power output claims for amplifiers in advertising claims. This regulation covers the power output claims for amplifiers used in home entertainment sets such as radio, record players, tape players and component audio amplifiers.

Purpose of the regulations is to give consumers uniform information they need before buying home entertainment products. Until now, new manufacturers have used numerous testing techniques that have resulted in a variety of claims for power output. Consumers have been misled because they did not have adequate information to use in making meaningful comparisons among advertised equipment.

The new rules require that information be substantiated when claims are made concerning power output, power band, power frequency response, distortion capability or characteristics of sound power amplification equipment. Exemptions will be permitted when a manufacturer's rated power output does not exceed 2 watts and this rated power output is clearly disclosed in all claims and ads.

EAT NO EVIL — Robert L. Haas, D.D.S. (left), chief of dental services at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center, explains to David S. Wolkestein, M.D. (center), of Union, orthopedic surgeon, and Mrs. Susan White of Hillside how Mrs. White's jaws were wired together to prevent her from eating solid foods. Mrs. White, who was admitted to the Medical Center weighing 332 pounds, gained weight because a back injury kept her in bed a great deal. Dr. Wolkestein cannot operate safely on her back until she weighs 180 pounds but previous diets and an intestinal bypass operation were ineffective in helping her to lose weight. The 'lockjaw diet' is a last resort.

'Lockjaw diet' may put patient on feet
Weight prevents an operation for sciatica

Mrs. Susan White of Hillside, a former patient at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center, may become a permanent cripple unless her 'lockjaw diet' works. Mrs. White, who is five feet, seven inches tall, entered the Medical Center early in September, weighing 322 pounds and unable to stand up straight. She complained of back and hip pains, and Dr. David S. Wolkestein, an orthopedic surgeon in Union, diagnosed the condition as sciatica, pain along the back and hip caused by an injury to or inflammation of the nerve roots. The sciatica may have been caused by a herniated disc, according to Dr. Wolkestein, who ruled out corrective surgery because of Mrs. White's weight. A herniated disc is a disc of cartilage in the spinal column which has deteriorated and ruptured through its protective covering and is pressing on the spinal nerves. The only alternative left to Mrs. White, in the opinion of her physicians, was intermaxillary wiring for weight control, more commonly known as 'lockjaw dieting.' On Sept. 19, her jaws were wired shut under the direction of Dr. Robert L. Haas, chief of the Medical Center's Dental Services, leaving only a small space through which a straw could fit for liquid intake. Mrs. Haas warned that 'lockjaw dieting' can be dangerous. Danties—associated with the Dental Services—perform the wiring only if it is requested by a physician for a valid medical reason. After a fall in 1970, Mrs. White began having back troubles which kept her in bed a great deal despite several diets, she gained weight. In October 1973, Dr. Wolkestein referred her to two surgeons who performed the bypass operation. She had 180 pounds in five months but suffered severe side effects and became ill. The bypass was closed in March 1974 and she eventually gained back the weight she lost. In the 10 months since the bypass was closed, she had been in the Medical Center nine times because of her back. With her jaws wired shut, she can only drink liquids through a straw. Her diet (500 calories per day) includes broth, skin milk, juice, water-down hot cereal, tea and Jello, melted by putting the tea over it. She also receives liquid vitamins and iron supplements. Mrs. White has lost 40 pounds in the past two months. Dr. Wolkestein will keep her on her diet until she is down to 180 pounds since he cannot perform surgery on her safely until she reaches that weight. He is hopeful that her problem may be curable without surgery once she loses the weight. Mrs. White's case is the first intermaxillary wiring for weight control performed at the Medical Center. Dr. Wolkestein graduated from Rutgers University in 1961 and received his medical degree from the New Jersey College of Medicine in 1965. He was an intern at Newark Beth Israel and served residencies in orthopedic surgery at Albert Einstein Medical Center in Philadelphia, United Hospitals of Newark and New York Medical College—Metropolitan Hospital. He is a member of the Essex County Medical Society, the New Jersey Academy of Medicine and the New Jersey Orthopedic Society and a diplomate of the American Board of Orthopedic Surgery. Dr. Wolkestein lives with his wife and three children in Short Hills and has his office in Union.

Heights knocks Dayton from soccer tournament

By MICHAEL MESKIN
After defeating West Essex, 3-1, in the preliminary round of the state tournament, the Jonathan Dayton soccer team saw its season come to an end when the Bulldogs were beaten by Berkeley Heights, 3-0.

Center forward Paul Krystow started the scoring against West Essex in the middle of the first quarter; he outlasted the charging opposition goalie and tallied on a low shot from 10 feet out into the net's left corner.

There was no scoring in the second stanza, but West Essex, state champions four of the last six years, pressured the tenacious Bulldogs defense.

Dayton continued the pressure in the third quarter. Center halfback Emmet Rueda scored on a low crossing shot past the lunging West Essex goalie into the left corner.

Toward the end of the quarter Krystow scored again as he capitalized on an opposition defender's miscalculation and drilled the ball past the goalie's left-hand side.

Dayton's offense finally got on the scoreboard in the middle of the fourth. The opposition scored on a penalty kick past goalie Sid Kaufman.

West Essex was very pleased with the work of the team. The defense was the key to the game as the unit played aggressively covering for any lapses in the back line.

Responsible for the fine defensive game were goalie Kaufman and the fullback contingent—Chris Trivis and Rick Morris.

The offensive play was spearheaded by a team slantdown, but there were some fine individual plays as well.

Wrestling team to hold sign-up

Registration for the Springfield midget wrestling team will be held on Saturday, Nov. 24 from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. at the Elizabethtown School.

The wrestling weight classes for the 1975 season are as follows: 50, 55, 60, 65, 70, 75, 80, 85, 90, 100, 110, 125, 135, 145, 160, 175, and heavyweight.

Any parents interested in helping or coaching this season should also plan to attend this registration, a Recreation Department spokesman added.

The Bulldogs could not sustain a solid offensive attack in the second half, individual defensive lapses hurt as the opposition immediately capitalized.

The Bulldogs played outstandingly in the first half probably as well as it did against West Essex. Gedge into the last two quarters, we were confident that we would win," says Krupp.

Bulldogs suffer 6th defeat; N. Providence sails, 42-0

Suffering its sixth loss of the season, the Jonathan Dayton football team was beaten by New Providence, 42-0, last Saturday. The team's record now stands at 2-6.

New Providence triumphed in the middle of the first quarter capitalizing on a fumble by quarterback Joe Grzaniak at the Dayton 23 yard line. The Panthers quickly moved to the one but were fouled as linebacker Jerry Rogness merely touched a fumble. This was the only threat of the quarter, as neither team scored.

The opposition got on the scoreboard at the beginning of the second stanza after Bruce Hildebrand was forced to punt from deep in his end zone. Beginning its drive on the Dayton 27 yard line, New Providence scored on a touchdown pass by quarterback Tom Grodzinski for 23 yards.

After linebacker Frank Croci intercepted a Brian Burke pass at the Dayton 21, Pioneer quarterback Paul Joyce (22.5 for 165 yards) hit end Dave Christ in the end zone with a towering pass. Left's placement was good, and the receiver stood New Providence 14 yards out on the half.

Not being able to sustain their temporary offensive attack, the Bulldogs relinquished the ball at their 47-yard line at the beginning of the third stanza. After three successive runs totaling 11 yards, Joyce found end Robert Thomas for a 23 yard pass to the Dayton eight where back Ted Blackwell barreled through the middle for the score. Left made it three for three with the kick.

Dayton threatened at the onset of the last stanza when lineman Bob Potomski recovered a New Providence fumble on the Pioneer 27 yard line. However, the Bulldogs were unable to follow up the play. Narrowed faced to the Pioneer 18 yard line, New Providence scored on a touchdown pass by quarterback Tom Grodzinski for 23 yards.

Soccer scene

If you asked a small group of youngsters in Union's Central Six School, such as Ricky Emme, Stephen Blum and Christopher Hild, Pearl Street in Elizabeth means anything to them, they would just shake their head and wonder why the question was asked in the first place.

The three boys mentioned were all members of the "mighty midgets" of the Elizabeth Soccer Club. Little do they know that 20 years ago a group of German immigrants met in the East River in Elizabeth to form the club that is now part of Union and holding corporation that owns and operates Parker's Grove.

The club was then called the First German Soccer Club of Elizabeth and their games were played on the old Pearl Street until 1928, when they purchased a field in Kenilworth. In 1933 the club lost the field in Kenilworth and was forced to reorganize. They changed their name to the Union Soccer Club.

Club Elizabeth. It was then that Elizabeth Soccer Club went back to Pearl Oval in Elizabeth until they made the move to Parker's Grove in Union in 1940. It was around this time that Elizabeth Soccer merged with the Liberty Sport Club.

I remember that when I was a little boy, my father took me out to Angela's Grove in Union to see his team, Newark Soccer, play their home games, and that game was over very early and we would take a ride to Elizabeth to see the end of the game. All I can remember is that we got on the bus and I was very nervous.

When they first moved to Parker's Grove, the field was in the back of the Grove, across the railroad tracks, and you would drive your car and park around the field if you were early enough. No matter where my father would park the car, a ball would hit it.

It was in 1963 some of the members got together and formed the Elizabeth Sport Club and Newark Soccer and merged into one team. It is now the home field for the team and the home field for the Newark Soccer Club.

Elizabeth will celebrate its anniversary this Saturday night at the Grove with a party preceded by a cocktail hour in the ballroom. Elizabeth Soccer battled Berkeley in a scrum on the 40-yard line for the score. The game was a close one in the end, but if you were on the sidelines, you would see the players against the Greek Americans were upheld, they are now in a tie for first place with the German Hungarians in the Central Six Division.

Methods used by coaches can mean destruction of their players' health

By HENRY HIRNE
Springfield health officer
The coach looked at the article of the basketball player. He touched it. No swelling, but the player said it hurt. The coach said to expect the kid. The kid had gone under fast, too fast and the kid had jumped again like a dancer caught in a fall, embarrassed while turning, limping, missing the shot. The team was already two points behind. Now the damn ankle.

The trainer looked at it. Nuh, it wasn't broken. The coach also groaned. Two points behind and the ankle was even puffed. Hurt meant pain. What do you expect from a sprain? A mile sprint, with no swelling, no pain. Just the ankle of a fifteen year old like a young horse. If they shot a horse every time an ankle was sprained nobody would win a game. Or if they yank a player from a game for a fall and a little hurt, then nobody would win who deserved it.

The coach sweated for his pay. After the trainer put the needle into the ankle the kid was able to go out to the floor again and make two baskets before the local anesthetics wore off and the kid limped in a way that brought the cheerleaders out and the pom-poms flared red and yellow into the dizziness and pain that lasted long after the X-rays showed the ankle bone fracture. The kid did not make the three-mile run in the way the coach's student did not. The student had collapsed in a dead faint after only a leisurely mile. The coach had told the track team how it was the fault of the parents, the pumping, and they should have let the kid run around the living room every day if there wasn't anything else, and he, the coach, was going to run their damn bellows off if they were used to it or not because if you collapse race in a while, what the hell, collapsing just shows you're out of shape and you better do something about it before it was too late.

Some climbing, the coach always said, that's another trick the kids got to master if they want to pass the course. Right from the first day, sweat them on those ropes so's they get used to it and inside where the fat cooks. Poke them up on the rope if they can't make the climb and give them the old hang if they fall. Sure, the coach said, they're not used to it all that well, but at that age kids don't have bellows, eh? And their hearts are like iron, take it from him. As for the bones, if the hand or the foot isn't hanging, man it ain't broke. The coach stood up there, teaching. The trouble with parents, they worry, he said. They keep diagnosing the kids. It's tough enough to be a parent without playing doctor all the time. Believe me, he knew.

COACHES: The time the coach made the fat kid run around the track for a scheduled three miles. In the old days the Spartans would have banished the fat kid to the woods and let the wolves get it. Sparta, that is, the doctors were fada-ou.

Dingfelder, Geliot in Kean joint recital

The flutist, Ingrid Dingfelder, and harpist, Marlene Geliot, will present a joint recital in the Eugene G. Wilkins Theatre for the Performing Arts at Kean College, Union, Nov. 20 at 8 p.m.

This concert will benefit the Eugene G. Wilkins lectures series and will include works by J.B. Loeffler, J.S. Bach, Gabriel Faure, Debussy and a new work by Marc-Vivien Dutilleul for flute and harp. Dutilleul has just been completed and is dedicated to the recital artist.

A native of Germany Dingfelder now resides in West Orange and has studied with Jean-Pierre Rampal and Julius Baker. She has performed in recitals at Tully Hall and all over the United States. Next July she is being sent by the State Department to San Salvador to perform with different orchestras in the country. At present, she teaches flute at Kean College of New Jersey.

Geliot was born in Paris and at the age of 14 was awarded the first prize for harp at the Paris Conservatory. She has toured worldwide and this is the second year of her collaboration with Dingfelder.

Tickets for the concert are priced at $4 and $3 and may be obtained by calling the Music Department at 972-2100. There is free admission for students and senior citizens.

Gypsy moth ruin down 89 percent in N.J. woodlands

Woodland acreage defoliated by the leaf-eating gypsy moth declined by a dramatic 89 percent in New Jersey this year, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA).

Officials of the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) reported that only 28,102 acres were defoliated this past summer compared to 258,425 in 1973.

In the Northeast, gypsy moths defoliated 750,000 acres in seven states this past summer. In 1973, the insects damaged 1,777,000 acres in nine states. Maine and Massachusetts were the only two states to report increases this year, whereas no defoliation occurred in New Hampshire or Vermont.

Stanley F. McNally, state supervisor for the USDA's Plant Protection and Quarantine Programs in Trenton, attributed the sharp decrease primarily to an unusual combination of weather conditions, an insect-virus, control by parasites, and extensive state, federal and private control programs.

Defoliation was reported in nine of the state's 21 counties this past summer, as compared to 14 in 1973 and 16 in 1972.

Rocketing inflationary costs make a rate increase essential.

Inflation has had the same kind of effect on PSE&G as it has had on your family's budget. The cost of just about everything has gone sky-high these days.

PSE&G's basic rates must cover these costs which are taking off. An ordinary wood utility pole has doubled in cost in just two years. Common electric service wire has increased 69% since 1972. A ton of asphalt costs us 73% more than it did two years ago. Another example — 14¢ out of every dollar you now pay us for electric and gas service goes for environmental protection.

And we don't like it any more than you do!

Two new booklets explain why electric and gas bills are increasing. To receive your free copies, simply return coupon.

Yes, inflation is sending costs sky-high Yours. PSE&G's. Everyone's. And we don't like it any more than you do.

We will receive $59.5 million over the coming year — but $32.7 million of that total must be paid out in taxes. PSE&G will be left with less than half of the rate increase.

The interim rate increase was granted while the PUC considers our total rate increase request for $257.4 million. The amount left after taxes (less than half) will be needed for all the sky-rocketing costs described above. There is no alternative. We simply couldn't stay in business without adequate rate relief.

Yes, inflation is sending costs sky-high Yours. PSE&G's. Everyone's. And we don't like it any more than you do.

Jobless aid units to close Nov. 29 for new computer

The 41 local unemployment insurance program offices of the New Jersey Department of Labor and Industry will be closed Friday, Nov. 29 in order to complete installation of a new statewide computer system.

Joseph A. Hoffman, commissioner of the Department of Labor and Industry, said this week's new computer system will be in operation immediately. Commissioner Hoffman said.

"The new installation when completed will provide a more effective computer system to handle the massive data required in the unemployment insurance program. It will also expedite the payment of benefits to unemployed eligible claimants," he said.

"Computer difficulties in the past have caused serious problems in program operations in the department," James Ware, assistant commissioner for Income Replacement, said. "Most recently, this kind of difficulty occurred in the charge back of unemployment benefits to employer accounts. We have managed to correct the situation with the new computer system we are certain that this and other errors can be avoided."

Foremost among the reasons for the new computer, Ware said, is faster service for eligible claimants. He added, "We wish to cut to the minimum the time it takes to process unemployment claims and get the checks out."

The Housing and Community Development Act is directed at the elimination of urban blight and assisting in housing low and moderate-income citizens. It consolidates previous federal code enforcement, model cities, urban renewal, open space, sewer and water and other categorical programs into one annual block grant, thereby giving broad discretionary authority to municipalities for planning and implementing their federal aid programs.

Productivity falls for third quarter

Reflecting a decline in both output and man-hour productivity in the private U.S. economy, the key 50 raising American living standards fell in the third quarter of 1974 at a 3 percent seasonally adjusted annual rate, according to Herbert Biensack, the U.S. Department of Labor's assistant regional director for the Bureau of Labor Statistics, who heads the BLS office in New York.

Biensack said this week that productivity movements or output per man-hour changes impact price and cost stability and American living standards. "Output per man-hour is the critical link between the cost of labor and the price of goods," he said.

"When output per man-hour is declining and the cost of labor is rising, it is likely that the price of goods will also increase. If, on the other hand, output per man-hour is rising, compensation may rise without affecting the cost of labor and the price of goods."

"Compensation per man-hour, which reflects wages, costs, employer Social Security contributions, and other employee benefits, rose by 5.9 percent between the third quarter of 1973 and the third quarter of 1974," Biensack noted. "This increase in compensation, combined with the decline in output man-hour, resulted in a 3.3 percent rise in unit labor costs."

"Since 1972 price increases have outpaced wage gains. In that year average weekly earnings of production and non-supervisory workers in the private sector rose by an average of 7 percent, more than double the 3.3 percent average earnings gain of 6.3 percent was just about offset by the effect of higher prices, as the Consumer Price Index rose by 6.2 percent."

"This year, the shift became even more pronounced with average weekly earnings up about 7 percent over the year while consumer prices have surged by 12 percent."

"While weekly earnings of non-supervisory workers in the private sector have now risen to $19, close of $11 a week above the figure a year ago in September," Biensack said, "we find that real net spendable earnings, or the purchasing power of weekly earnings that the worker has left after taking account of federal tax liabilities and the loss of purchasing power due to inflation, was down 5.2 percent in September from the level of a year ago."

There's enough water in the atmosphere to cover the surface of the earth with a sheet one inch in depth.

Willis appointed coordinator for housing, development act

New Jersey community affairs commissioner Patricia S. Sheehan this week designated assistant commissioner Sidney J. Willis as coordinator of the department's efforts in administering the Housing and Community Development Act (HCD) of 1974.

"This new federal legislation provides extraordinary challenges for the state, through the Department of Community Affairs, to work with and assist its municipalities in receiving all the funds to which each is entitled," the commissioner said.

The federal guidelines for the Community Development block grants require detailed applications, which must include three-year community development and housing plans and an annual program. For the first time, she continued, the Community Development process and housing programs are joined together.

In submitting its annual application, a municipality must also indicate what its overall program is community development or housing, or a combination of the two.

STRICTLY PERSONAL

Dear Pat and Marilyn:
What can I do about my boss? Do I have to tell him that his sloppy dress and smelly cigars are repulsive to many of our customers? When you walk into his office, you could cut the smoke with a knife. His clothes are unpressed and out of style. This man looks unkept that it is hurting

Dear Secretary:
You can do what you were hired to do — secretarial work. If the boss feels he needs help, he can enroll in the local charm school. Don't try to recycle him or you may lose your job.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:
I hope you can help me with my problem. My husband, Rod, was married before and this woman is driving me crazy. Susan and Rod had to get married and the child is now 2 years old. They were married only a few months because Susan was sleeping with anyone and everyone. She was the one who wanted the divorce but, as soon as Rod and I were married, she started calling and won't leave us alone.

Dear Ruth:
This girl has been married twice since the divorce and this must be some kind of record. Yet she continues to harass us. Except for her, we are very happy. We've considered moving or taking legal action against her. We've asked her to leave us alone. What else can we do? I don't want to hurt her feelings? George Devereaux

Dear Pat and Marilyn:
I'll bet you've never heard this one. When my wife wants the children to come home for dinner, she rings a cowbell. I swear it can be heard in Rome. I've asked her to think of another way to call the children but she continues to ring this darn bell. Jan is great as they say and I hate to be picky but I can't stand this bawling act. How can I tell her without hurting her feelings? George Devereaux

State Y Federation elects new president

John Feldman of Clifton was elected to succeed Morris Keiser of Maplewood as president of the New Jersey Federation of YMHAs & YWIFAs at the organization's 54th annual meeting at the Carriage Trade, East Orange.

The federation directs the operations of the six New Jersey Y camps — Cedar Lake, Mah-Jee-Wah and Teen Camps at Milford, Pa., and Long Lake and Round Lake Camps and the Senior Adult Center at Lake Como, Pa.

Jazzman Burton, quartet in concert Tuesday at Kean

Jazzman Gary Burton, who has been named "Best Vibist" by Downbeat and other national music magazines, will appear in concert with his quartet in the Wilkes Theatre for the Performing Arts at Kean College on Tuesday at 8 p.m. The performance, sponsored by the college's co-curricular programming board, is free and open to the public.

Burton, a native of Indiana, attended Berklee College of Music in Boston, and is currently a member of its faculty. His first work recognition as a soloist with pianist George Shearing and saxophonist Stan Getz, and has since been credited with changing the technical and musical possibilities of his instrument with a four-mallet mastery that has established new concepts and standards.

His current album, recorded on the German ECM label and distributed in this country by Polygram, include "Crystal Silence" and "The New Quartet."

The Burton group includes leading electric bass guitarist, Steve Swallow, guitarist Mick Goodrick and Pat Metheny, and drummer Bob Moses, who has recorded and performed with many jazz and rock artists, including Roland Kirk and Miles Davis.

A special guest appearance at the concert will be made by the popular New Jersey jazz group, the Morris Nixons Quintet.

Van Peebles, 'black Chaplin,' author at Kean on Monday

Merlin Van Peebles, who has been described as a "multi-media maverick" and a "black musical score," will appear in concert with his quartet in the Wilkes Theatre for the Performing Arts at Kean College on Monday at 8 p.m. The event, free and open to the public, is part of the student-sponsored Townsquare Lecture Series at the state-supported college of liberal arts and sciences.

Van Peebles, whose Broadway production of "Ain't Supposed to Die a Natural Death" received seven Tony Award nominations, will display many of his performing talents in his Kean College appearance — singing, rapping, evoking images, characters and caricatures in a bravura performance that embodies his personal and uncompromising vision of the "black experience" in the United States, said a Kean spokesman.

Van Peebles first won attention when his made-in-Paris film, "Story of a Three Day Pass" was selected as France's entry for San Francisco's International Film Festival in 1967. He returned to his native land as a new kind of black man "after writing novels in self-taught French, teaching himself moviemaking and sometimes dancing in cafes for economic survival."

In 1969, Van Peebles introduced a new kind of record album with "Free Soul," followed by "Ain't Supposed to Die a Natural Death" and "Serious As a Heart Attack," evoking in words and music the lives of ghetto blacks in Watts, Harlem and Fillmore.

In 1970, Van Peebles emerged again on the filmmaking scene with "Sweet Sweetback" which (unsubsidized) produced and directed with himself in the starring role and provided with a "MARRIED WORKING WOMEN"

The labor force participation rate of married women rose from 26 to 42 percent between 1953 and 1972, according to the U.S. Department of Labor.

Defeated Dems outspent GOP in campaigning

Springfield Republicans, whose Township Committee candidate, William Busceno and Norman-Banner, received less in contributions than their Democratic opponents, according to figures released last week by the Union County clerk's office.

Statements filed with the board in compliance with the 1973 N.J. Campaign Contributions and Expenditures Reporting Act, show the local GOP campaign committee received a total of $2,066 in contributions and disbursed a total of $2,004. The Springfield Democratic Organization, which controlled the township election, received $4,000 in contributions and disbursed a total of $4,000.

The reports, filed on three separate dates — Oct. 4, Oct. 20 and Nov. 20 — show the Democrats donated funds in both parties areas from contributions of $190 to the Democrats, which are not required to be itemized, totaling $2,466 for the Republicans; $3,854 for the Democrats.

Donations of more than $100, which must be itemized, show the Democrats received $600 from the Union County Democratic Committee, and checks for $200 and $100 from their own candidate, Stanley Bruder. Donating $250 each to the GOP cause were two township residents, Norman Lawrence of Tully road and Frank Raccoppo of Hillside avenue.

Itemized expenditures made by the party on behalf of their candidates also were listed in the statements. The most striking difference in amounts spent appears to be in the area of campaign literature, which has the Republicans reporting a $225 expense for brochures, while the Democrats' purchases in this area were approximately $1,000.

Major Republican disbursements were as follows:

- United Advertising Co., Newark, for poster advertising, $205; Ralph Demetrio of Springfield, headquarters signs, $50; J. Bell, telephone service, $40; Information Systems and Services, Elizabeth, mailing labels, $154; Springfield Leader, advertising, $148; Anthony Mancilla, Irvington, signs, $140; Garden State Graphics, Irvington, brochures, $225; Hec's Pastry, Springfield, $100 for lunches; Gino's Restaurant, Union, $82 for dinners; pay to challengers written on election day, $46.

Expenditures made by the Democrats on behalf of Bruder and Edward Fanning, included:

- White Printing Co., Union, campaign flyers and picnic tickets, $1,000; American Legion, Springfield, rent of hall for party, $80; Cheese & Spice, Millburn, party food, $80; Boulevard Mart, Jersey City, wine for party, $395; Koris Signs, Newark-headquarters signs, $98; Ruth Schwartz, Springfield, reimbursement for the party, $1,000.

Caldwell: Shaw model? Local playwrights say yes

ARTISTS AT WORK — Sid Frank, left, and Ron Brown, both of Springfield, Colloquio Dec. 6, 7, 12, 13 and 14 at Lincoln College, East Orange.

Did the Rev. James Caldwell — "Pigskin Parson" of the First Presbyterian Church who played a vital role in the 1970 Battle of Springfield — serve as model for a character created by George Bernard Shaw? That is the conviction of two contemporary playwrights — Sid Frank and Ron Brown, both of Springfield, whose musical, "Rebel," will be produced next month by the Halfpenny Playhouse at Lincoln College.

"The musical, with book by Frank and songs by Brown, is based on Shaw's melodrama, 'The Devil's Disciple,' which deals with the American Revolution, the actor taking place shortly before the Battle of Saratoga.

The play's leading characters are Dick Doolittle, the American rebel, the British general John (Gentleman) Burgoyne; a minister, Anthony Anderson, and a gangster's girlfriend. The last figures prominently in the drama, for in each occupied town the British have hanged a leading citizen "as an example to others." In the play's setting, the victim is to be the minister but Doolittle assumes his place; this is the event from which the action flows.

"There is convincing evidence," claim Frank and Brown, "that the character of Anderson was inspired by Caldwell — said from the fact that he was a Presbyterian minister."

In "The Devil's Disciple" and "Rebel" at one point Dick Doolittle says to the minister, "You haven't done much thing George up hill and down dale as I have, but you've prayed for his defeat; and you, Anthony Anderson, have executed the service, and sold your family Bible to buy a pair of pistols." The Dictionary of American Biography states, "Caldwell belonged to the 'muscular type' of Christianity.

Consumer unit to check stores on unsafe items

Joining forces with the U.S. Consumer Protection Safety Commission, Springfield Township Consumer Affairs Committee (CFACT) officers Tom Proctor and Bill Blum have embarked upon an inspection of local stores to bring to the attention of the retailers any items they may display for sale that have appeared on the United Products List. The retailers will be asked to cooperate by removing these items immediately from their shelves.

The local officers declared: "Toy safety is everyone's business. Only through this concerted effort of the retailer, the consumer office and the educated consumer can the ever-increasing figure of injuries be curtailed. These statistics, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, show 20 million Americans each year are injured by products used in the home, 150,000 are permanently disabled and 30,000 are killed.

"Such statistics should serve as a grim reminder to the consumer as to his responsibility when purchasing a toy for a child. Examine the toy carefully. Check to see if it seems it could be easily broken, leaving sharp exposed edges, or easily swallowable.

"Dolls should never have pins in them. Make certain that the bow in the hair is sewn in, not glued. If the ornaments on the toy, such as button-like eyes or buttons on the clothing, can be checked off by a child, don't buy it.

"Should a toy for an older child contain a poisonous type of glue or paint, avoid it. Can you be sure a responsible adult will always be available to supervise? Avoid flammable toys and clothing.

"A toy that is often an unnecessary cause of injury. Make sure you know the size of the (Continued on page 24)

Federal cutbacks will have impact on school lunches

Decisions taken by U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Carl Borst have reduced the variety and amount of surplus food available to school lunch programs, causing consternation in some New Jersey school districts, but according to a spokesman for the firm which caters the lunches at the Union County Regional High School District's five schools, it will be several months before the total effect of the cutbacks will be realized. As far as the Springfield elementary school system is concerned, at least one staff member, dietitian Frances Kim, says the supply change is beneficial to the students.

Speaking for the high schools, Abraham I. Rosen Sr., president of the caterers, the Ja-Ce Co., New Brunswick, said, "They have cut out all supplies of prunes. Today it is strictly protein we're getting. In the past, we received butter, oil, shortening, flour, oats, wheat, rice, macaroni, etc., etc. That whole concept has changed. However, it is still too early to tell what the total effect the change will have on our lunch program. We've had only one delivery of commodities so far, and are waiting for the second one."

Rosen said his firm has been forced to go to private suppliers to make up for the foodstuffs no longer supplied by the government, including all flour and oil-seed products — and this will result in increased costs to the school districts. Under the same concept, the state has varied a menu as that of the Union County district would be purchased from private suppliers, but you must remember that the school lunch program is predicated on what is termed the "Type A" lunch.

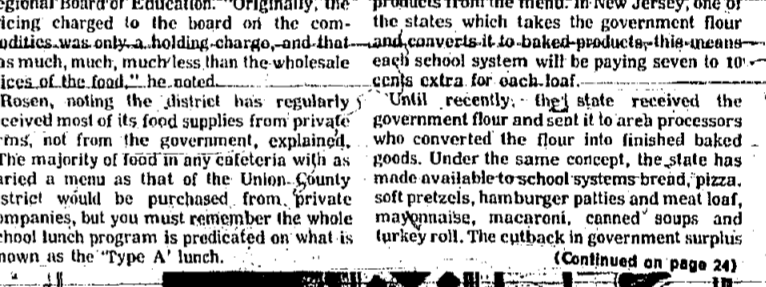

There is one disadvantage seen by some regarding the elimination of flour and oil seed products from the menu: In New Jersey one of the states which takes the government food commodities to be holding change-over, and had each school system will be paying twice as much extra for each loaf.

Until recently, the state received the government flour and sent it to area processors who converted the flour into finished baked goods. Under the same concept, the state has made available to school systems bread, pizza, soft pretzels, hamburger patties and meat, beef, macaroni, macaroni, etc. The cutback in government surplus is one of the reasons why the school lunch program is predicated on what is termed the "Type A" lunch.

Because of cutbacks by the U.S. Department of Agriculture in the amount and types of surplus foods offered to schools, the Regional district must deal more often with private suppliers, which means increased costs.
