School health education programs are not doing a job in reaching students to prevent illness, according to a study conducted at the New Jersey Medical School of the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey (CMDNJ).

After surveying selected but unidentified high schools in New Jersey, researchers from the CMDNJ-New Jersey Medical School's department of preventive medicine and community health under Donald B. Loria, M.D., professor and chairman, concluded that the students have an inadequate grasp of health information and prevention of disease.

Initial studies included ninth and 12th graders and demonstrated, according to Dr. Loria, that poor understanding of health problems improved little throughout the high school period.

The findings were reinforced by a second survey, which profiled the students' smoking and drinking habits—two major risk factors in several serious illnesses.

"Medical science has conclusive evidence that primary prevention in the school system, but certain risk factors like smoking, drinking, and secondary prevention, screening and early detection of certain diseases—such as cancer, diabetes and chronic lung disease—can significantly reduce the incidence of these diseases and prolong life expectancy," Dr. Loria said.

He said that the logical place to begin this educational process is in the elementary school, where students are "falling miserably."

"The studies showed that 69 percent of ninth grade students responding to a comprehensive questionnaire displayed a 'poor knowledge' of health information as did 50 percent of 12th graders. Cancer, cardiovascular disease and mental health were areas in which all students did most poorly, although the older group was significantly more knowledgeable on human reproduction and venereal disease.

Results of the study of students smoking and drinking habits were equally disheartening. Dr. Loria said. Over a five-year period, little change was noted in the smoking habits of middle school students, while smoking among high school students moderately increased. A marked increase in alcohol consumption was noted among all senior groups in the same period.

Radio volunteers sought by CD for emergency needs

Civil Defense Disaster Control is recruiting "amateur radio operators" to assist in emergency communications. The Radio Amateur Emergency Society (RAES) is a volunteer organization of amateur radio operators who supplement CD-DC communications systems in time of emergency.

"Natural or man-made disasters pose a constant threat to the public. When disaster strikes, normal communications systems are often down or damaged extensively. At these times, amateur radio operators must be available to provide indispensable communication links," said CD-DC Emergency Operating Centers and various RAES stations.

Interested amateur radio operators are requested to contact local county CD-DC officials or write: Lloyd H. Manahan, chairman, RAES, CD-DC Communications Center, 290 Seventh Ave., Asbury Park, NJ 07712.

"Communications is the key word for successful response to disaster," commented Van Hise.

Energy office to guard against retail gas hikes

FEDERAL Regional Administrator Alfred Reichle announced this week an expanded retail compliance program for Region II designed to guard consumers against untoward retail gasoline prices during the peak summer driving season.

Region II (New York, New Jersey, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands) compliance officers have been ordered to begin immediate spot checks of dealer's prices, paying particular attention to retail compliance with price and octane pooling regulations.

"We believe the majority of the stations intend to be in compliance with these regulations," Reichle added. "But we wish to insure total compliance throughout."

The intensified FEA-monitoring program now underway also provides the opening of a gasoline hotline telephone numbers around the country, seven of them in New York and New Jersey. The New Jersey number is 667-2211.

Office personnel equipped with specific information will be on hand Monday through Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., to deal directly with consumer complaints and answer questions on gasoline prices and supply.

To help alleviate the FEA regulations, Region II will issue simplified instruction booklets to more than 1,000 service station operators in the two states. The booklets will explain price and octane pooling requirements in detail. Simply stated, price pooling is a system by which stations are required to post on each pump, both the maximum permissible price and the octane number of the gasoline being sold from that pump.

State test results: 'Springfield quite favorable'

Dr. Fred Baruchin, superintendent of the township's school system, this week released the analysis of the state educational tests given to Springfield youngsters in December 1975. Following is the school system's analysis of the tests.

INTRODUCTION
Springfield Township Public School students compare quite favorably to students in comparable communities throughout New Jersey, according to the last round of State Educational Assessment Program results. The tests, designed to measure the achievement of pupils in reading and mathematics, were administered in December of the 1974-75 school year to local fourth and seventh graders. The purpose of the testing was threefold: to aid local districts in progressing towards their educational goals; to provide information on the strengths and needs of respective students; and to make known to each student his mastery of the basic skills in reading and mathematics. In addition to providing local school personnel with the test results, township students, the state provided data for comparisons with four reference groups: the county, the State, suburban communities and district groups based on a variety of socioeconomic factors.

Local results have undergone analysis and interpretations are required by the State Department of Education, and have been submitted, reviewed and accepted by that agency. Local school administrators and teachers have been able to identify strengths and weaknesses at the respective grade levels and plans have been formulated to correct deficiencies. The results of the state testing program constitute one phase of Springfield's educational management system, implemented in recent years to provide more definitive monitoring information on the individual progress of each student in basic skill learning.

The district is extremely satisfied with the strong performance of seventh graders in both reading and mathematics, and with fourth grade reading results. The results of the mathematics test at the fourth grade level were not comparable to other scores within the district. It may be understood that though this latter finding was somewhat lower than expectations, all test results generally exceeded

Residents protest blasting at quarry

A resolution opposing use of land on the Pluckemin Reservation for highway construction was approved Tuesday night by the Springfield Township Committee.

The township committee, which includes Mayor Robert Mason, Treasurer Charles J. Williams, and other members of the committee, approved the resolution after a long session. The resolution calls for the "no-build" alternative to the controversial roadway, which would require the acquisition of 100 acres of land in the township.

Committee member Edward Stas Jr., in introducing the resolution, noted the portions of the highway already completed to the eastern and western borders of the park can still be seen. He said that the proposed route would cut through the park and destroy the natural beauty of the area.

The resolution also calls for the township to acquire the land for a park and recreation area. It also calls for the township to acquire the land for a park and recreation area.

Congregation selects cantor for High Holy Day services

Cantor Samuel Koenig of Queens, will serve as principle cantor at the High Holy Day services of Congregation Israel of Springfield, successor to Congregation Israel of Newark and Young Israel of Springfield. It was announced by David L. Warner, congregation president, and Milton Warner, chairman for the High Holy Day services. The services will be held at the Florence Gaudin School, Springfield avenue and Shunpike road in Springfield. The traditional Hebrew service will be conducted by Rabbi Israel E. Turner, spiritual leader of the congregation, with English interpretation and readings.

A congregation spokesman said, "Cantor Koenig possesses a lyric tenor voice as well as an intensive Jewish scholarly background which renders his interpretation of the prayers meaningful and inspirational. He has studied music under Maurice Pinoff and voice under the Italian tenor, Carmine Capigliardi. He served as a full-time cantor for the past five years, his latest post being with the Seaview Jewish Center in Queens.

Congregation Israel of Springfield is the oldest Orthodox Jewish congregation in metropolitan New Jersey. Among its most recent projects are the purchase of a new synagogue building at 370 Newark avenue in Newark, Knesset Israel of Springfield, located at the congregation's present site. Rivervale opens first homesite

Just a short while ago, Rivervale, the country condominium, was just a concept and now, the first of three middle-rise buildings is open for inspection. The concept, quotes a representative of the builder, Paddock Associates, was to "give value to both buyers the perfect combination of gracious living and easy commuting."

Prospective buyers will note the beauty and tranquility of the lush green setting, with the building strategically set far back surrounded by huge trees.

Edgewood Country Club and boasts a swimming pool, health club and tennis courts. The sales office and homes are open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Leisure life at Channel Club Tower

Now that the initial period of "move-in confusion" has passed, the residents of the Channel Club Tower condominium in Monmouth Beach have had an opportunity to get acquainted with each other and the lifestyle of the Tower.

Most have already taken advantage of the pool, tennis courts and health club. The vicariously enjoyed the many amenities provided a setting for meeting new friends and planning activities.

Many of the owners have a common interest in advertising and chose the Channel Club Tower because of its proximity to numerous markets and yacht clubs. Others purchased at the Channel Club Tower because "because I'm a competitive skier. I like to ski in New York and decided that Channel Club Tower was the best buy."

Channel Club Tower, built at 1972 prices, provides features that escalating real estate costs would now prohibit. In addition to seven acres of landscaped 24-hour doorman service and valet parking, the Tower offers suites with entrance foyers and walk-in closets, wall-to-wall carpeting, fully equipped kitchen, in-unit automatic dish washer, double ovens, 22 cubic-foot no-frills refrigerator-freezer, trash compactor, and laundry rooms with clothes washer and dryer. All services and amenities at the Tower are included in the common charges. There are no hidden costs for the use of any of the facilities, and residents are free to access to all of them, from the exercise equipment in the health club to the restaurant lounge for private parties.

The social and recreational aspects of the Channel Club Tower rate high with residents. On the fourth of July, the staff held a poolside cookout.

The rapport between the residents and the sales staff is a great advantage for the Tower, a spokesman said. "The residents have become our best salesmen."

Inaugural Journey to be re-enacted

Washington's trip a Bicentennial project

Plans are under way to re-enact the journey George Washington took in the Spring of 1790, from New York to New York, to be inaugurated as the first president of the United States.

The idea for the Inaugural Journey was conceived by the Railway Historical Society and the New York State Historical Association. It is a fitting way to celebrate the nation's Bicentennial. A committee of historians, historians and other interested persons has been formed to plan the re-enactment.

According to Arthur J. DeBorja, chairman of the committee and general-secretary of the New York State Historical Association, "The goal of the program is to re-enact as faithfully as possible the many facets of the Inaugural Journey, including the carriage and business of the day and, of course, George Washington and his aides with their historical dress, ceremonies of welcome, Hudson River crossing and Inaugural Ceremony."

Committees are assisting in the preparatory and celebratory activities which are planned and members of Revolutionary Societies throughout the country are receiving committees. The Kwanan Club in the town of Ithaca will plan programs to celebrate one of our nation's most exciting historical events.

Plans call for the inaugural journey to begin at Mt. Vernon on April 10, and to end at Federal Hall in New York May 2. In between there will be stops in Baltimore (April 28), Philadelphia (April 29), Trenton (April 30), New York City (May 1) and Elizabeth Point (May 2). Also participating in the planned journey will be citizens on horseback, carrying the carriage by the Carriage Association of America members, the First Troop of the Philadelphia Cavalry, the Mounted Police of the City of New York, cavalry from Valley Forge Military Academy, and West Point Military Academy.

HISTORIC CARRIAGE—John Fairclough (right), president of the Bicentennial Inaugural Journey Committee, and other members of the Carriage Association of America are seen with the carriage that carried George Washington to New York for his inauguration to Carrie Miller, secretary of the committee, and Arthur DeBorja, chairman of the committee.

Season of Children's theater scheduled by Kean College

A full season of children's theater has been scheduled at Kean College, Union, N.J., for the summer of 1975. The series, which opens Oct. 3 with the Gingerbread Players and Jack's production of "The Emperor's New Clothes," will run through June 15.

The state Department of Environmental Protection has warned that the listing of dangerous exotic wildlife as pets in New Jersey is a violation of the state Division of Fish, Game and Forestry's permit mandatory.

"This recent tragic death of the four-month-old Jersey City youngster who was attacked by a pet monkey is an example why the state Department of Environmental Protection is essential to protect the public," said Commissioner David J. Harbin. "Many people do not realize that certain exotic species are dangerous and should not be kept as household pets."

Exotic scientific species such as monkeys, chimpanzees, tigers and snakes are not only dangerous to the owners, but also to the public. Exotic species are also carriers of diseases and can cause death of the owners, their family and neighbors, according to DHEP.

"Wildlife owners should contact the state Division of Fish, Game and Forestry (609) 999-6600 before acquiring any exotic wildlife. It is illegal to acquire a state permit to keep the animal."

Fair will display needlework show

Flemington Fair will display large amount of needlework and quilts on August 23-24 at Labor Day.

The 10th year-old fair will have the Fairy Needlework and Quilts show housed in two adjoining buildings this year.

Mrs. Cora Ann Turner, show superintendent, reports a surge of interest in needlework across the country and this is reflected in the increasing number of entries at Flemington Fair. In 1974, there were 20 exhibitors and more than 1,000 items on display, the largest participation in fair history.

Winners of the competition on the basis of originality, suitability and taste.

Dude ranch weekend scheduled by Dunams

Dunams of New Jersey, a division of the N.J. Division of Wildlife Management, will sponsor a weekend of dude ranching at the Peckskill Ranch, Peckskill, N.J., Sept. 26-28.

The "Dude Ranch" is a public television network to give in-service training to teachers.

The 12-hour films will be shown over all four NJT channels—2, 3, 9, 12, and 13—on Tuesdays at 8 p.m., Wednesdays at 8:30 p.m., and Thursdays at 11:30 p.m. The Tuesday showings begin Sept. 23, the Wednesday showings, Oct. 1, and the Thursday showings, Sept. 25.

Teachers, school administrators, and parents holding a bachelor's degree may earn continuing education credit through the program's sponsor, Monmouth College. Beyond viewing the television programs, those taking the course will have opportunities to form discussion groups, attend two workshops, and become acquainted with a variety of approaches to the area of human relations and classroom discipline.

NJEA video series to study discipline, human relations

Walk into a conference session at most schools and you'll find some parents complaining. "There's not enough discipline" at the same time, others are asking, "Why are they so hard on my kids?" The choice seems to be between loose or tight control of students.

This fall, however, according to the New Jersey Education Association, teachers in New Jersey may find a way out of this dilemma: by using television. They hope to prove you don't have to give up discipline to have good human relations.

With the cooperation of New Jersey's Public Broadcasting Authority, NJEA hopes to have teachers-all-over-the-state enrolled in a new television training series on "Human Relations and School Discipline."

"Kids' term more self-reliant than teachers are encouraged to practice good human relations," said Donald H. McNeely, associate director of NJEA's Instructional Division. He has carried out arrangements for the statewide TV series to show how current psychological methods, such as transactional analysis and reality therapy, can help to improve relationships between adults and children.

"The series is designed to increase the effectiveness of teachers in their classrooms," McNeely noted. "But parents are first and foremost. We want to give them the information they need to help their own children."

The venture is the first in which New Jersey will use its public television network to give in-service training to teachers.

The 12-hour films will be shown over all four NJT channels—2, 3, 9, 12, and 13—on Tuesdays at 8 p.m., Wednesdays at 8:30 p.m., and Thursdays at 11:30 p.m. The Tuesday showings begin Sept. 23, the Wednesday showings, Oct. 1, and the Thursday showings, Sept. 25.

Beyond viewing the television programs, those taking the course will have opportunities to form discussion groups, attend two workshops, and become acquainted with a variety of approaches to the area of human relations and classroom discipline.

Victims of floods made eligible for unemployment aid

Persons displaced from jobs by storms and flooding in 12 counties that President Ford recently declared disaster areas are eligible for special workers who are not eligible for Unemployment Assistance (UIUA) program and should register with the nearest local unemployment insurance office immediately.

DUA payments are available to unemployed workers in Essex, Morris, Middlesex, Piscataway, Somerset, Union, Salem, Sussex, Mercer, Bergen, Burlington and Cumberland counties.

Joseph A. Hoffman, commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Labor and Industry, said eligibility extends to farm workers and self-employed in any of the disaster areas unable to work because of the floods and also individuals who had finished schooling or training for work within 10 weeks prior to the disaster and prevented from obtaining jobs as a result.

According to James A. Ware, assistant commissioner for income security, covered unemployed workers who are not eligible for benefits of at least $72 per week under any other unemployment insurance program may receive DUA payments.

Amounts said the weekly DUA payment will be calculated in the same manner as weekly amounts are figured under New Jersey's Unemployment Compensation Law, but cannot be less than $72 per week.

This type of program should have claims submitted immediately, he said.

Local Unemployment Insurance Claims offices are open Monday to Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Catholic schools will open Sept. 3

58,000 operated by the Newark will open on Wednesday, Sept. 3, on the elementary level are with 86,993 students, slightly less than last year, according to Dr. Robert T. Corrado, superintendent of the 272 elementary and secondary schools in the archdiocese. Dr. Corrado said no schools will be closed this year.

Projected enrollment figures for September indicate that the elementary schools of the archdiocese are expected to welcome 74,077 students, an increase of 2.4 percent from the last school year's total. In the high schools, the enrollment picture is more stable. There, the 50-high schools expect an enrollment of 23,896 students, a slight decline of 0.5 percent from last year. The overall total of 97,973 elementary and secondary students represents a decline of 1.9 percent from September 1974 to September 1975.

Compared with the previous year, the drop in enrollment was more severe," he said, "we feel that this decline of only 2 percent is an encouraging statistic. It reflects the obvious efforts being made on the part of our schools to not only provide a program in religious and secular education that our parents seek, but a program that attempts to convey the 'good news' of the Gospel to as many people as possible. We are pleased to note that the enrollment in our high schools has increased 1.5 percent. This is a reflection of the increased emphasis on early childhood education in the archdiocese as being another important factor in the enrollment picture. Twenty-one new kindergartens are being opened in the archdiocese this year, bringing the number of elementary schools that have 'kindergarten' to 100 percent of the schools.

Statistics relating to the number of religious teachers in the schools and slight increase in the number of lay teachers. The number of religious lay teachers continues to be approximately 10 percent of the total. The total number of teachers in the schools has increased 7 percent for the forthcoming year and tuition charges have

Board approves 'affirmative action' on 2nd try after warning from state

Hearing set on shared services

Dr. Lawton resigns as school physician

By BILL GARNETT

The Springfield Board of Education Monday night approved a resolution of "affirmative action" which had turned down at its last meeting. The board had received a letter from the state education department threatening an aid cutoff if the resolution was not adopted.

The affirmative action resolution had been ordered by the N.J. Department of Education. The measure placed the board to prohibit discrimination on the basis of race or sex in educational and hiring practices and to require similar pledges from all its suppliers.

At the meeting, the board voted for the resolution. The resolution was adopted by a 10-4 vote. The resolution was adopted by a 10-4 vote.

Adams noted that he was voting against the resolution because it was not a "strong" resolution. He said he was voting against the resolution because it was not a "strong" resolution.

First, I object to being told by the state that we must pass this, but make it look like local initiative. Second, to pass it would imply past violations; therefore, in my knowledge, we have never setled for less than the best without a retraction.

Miss Rajoppi said, "Last time some members of the board felt that passing the resolution would be a step toward ending the discrimination practices, but that's not true. All we are doing is reaffirming something that we have done for years."

Caprio asked for the motion to be tabled until Cohn was back but Domington said, "It seems like a lot of talk over nothing. I agree with the board's philosophy of voting the motion down but I can't see any harm in passing it."

He proposed that the letter from the Office of Equal Educational Opportunity be read after one year, federal and state financial assistance could be suspended if the resolution was not adopted. She also asked that if passed an affirmative action officer and Committee would have to be appointed.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board rescheduled its September meeting to Sept. 22 to avoid a conflict with Van Kipper. Also scheduled for September was a public hearing on shared services between public and private schools in Springfield. The public hearing will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 9, at 8 p.m. at the Raymond Clubhouse, 222 Broad Street.

Monday, Sept. 8 for what McIntyre called a meeting to disseminate the information on...

New students become part of Dayton

Guidance director makes adjustment easier

By KAREN NAUYK

The guidance department at Springfield Regional High School is helping new students adjust to the school. The department is helping new students adjust to the school.

Each student was given a program of studies booklet, listing all courses available to freshmen," said Miss Singer, who has been the guidance director and her staff of six counselors have been working through the summer to adjust to life at the budding school a bit easier.

The ninth graders have already been advised of and registered for this fall's courses by changes in their grammar or middle school courses or because of discussions with parents or friends.

"Some wish to change and one subject and some wish to stay in the same subject," said Miss Singer. "Some students are taking a college preparatory program to a business one. They do have the opportunity to do this, but we prefer to declare a moratorium on changes from the end of summer school to the start of school in September. We like to see what the schedules are, because it's time to compute, it's better not to make any changes until the end of the summer school year. We like every student to have his complete schedule ready on the first day of school. In fact, this year we hope to have them mailed to the homes by the last day in August."

Pool open house reset for Sunday

By CINDY ZAHN

The Springfield Community Pool will hold an open house on Sunday. This event had to be cancelled from last Sunday because of inclement weather. All pool facilities will be available to residents of Springfield who have been members of the pool.

Also to be held Sunday is the adult Scrabble Tournament. Those participating have been asked to bring their own sets of pieces.

The Closing Dance will be held on Saturday evening, Aug. 30, from 9 to 12:30. Adult members attending are asked to bring their own glass containers are prohibited. The Ma Bake and Beauty Contest will be held on Sunday, Aug. 31, from 10 to 12:30. Adult members attending are asked to bring their own glass containers are prohibited. The Ma Bake and Beauty Contest will be held on Sunday, Aug. 31, from 10 to 12:30. Adult members attending are asked to bring their own glass containers are prohibited.

The "pretzel" show was held last Thursday. Nancy Hammel and Marianne Brabco were awarded first place ribbons for their popo stick set. Joanne Vassallo also won a first place ribbon for her best bowling skill. In the gymnastics category first place went to the set of Valerie Lisciani, Donna Alberti, Roseanne Messa, and Lynn Morelli, which highlighted the special talents of each of the girls set to class.

In the Trickle Trickle show, first place winners were Tom Kovacs and Jane Austin. Jimmy Hall and Nancy Hammel came in second, while Eric Zora, Michael Fruchter and Lisa Vargas came in third.

In the running broad jump event first place ribbons went to Marianne Brabco, Clara Heiger, Roger Nevins and Lee Whitlock. Amy Walsh, Mary Walsh, Stella Scarella, Eric Zora, and Kenny Vassallo took second place. Third place went to Gina Marlowe-Domen. Albert...
