

Medical agency gets increased public support

Increased public support raised the income of the Leukemia Society of America Inc. to $9,804,070 in 1977, up from the $9,404,680 recorded the previous year.

The gains enabled the national voluntary health agency to continue the expansion of its triple programs of research, patient-aid and education, according to the annual report for the fiscal year which closed in June.

The biggest jump in expenditures was for patient services which rose to $1,206,315 from $1,740,189 for the same period last year, according to Harvey H. Richer, president of the Central New Jersey Chapter. The funds provided financial assistance in meeting the costs of treatment for 4,142 children and adults with leukemia and allied disorders compared with 3,638 in 1976.

Increases also were recorded for public health education which went from $1,469,886 to $1,538,934; professional education, from $353,345 to $793,137; and community service, from $1,065,210 to $1,098,213. Research support was steady, with the 1977 figure of $1,576,542 slightly ahead of the $1,572,589 for the year before.

The Central New Jersey Chapter is located at 1496 Morris ave., Union 07083.

Nurses trained to aid respiratory patients

Seventy visiting public health nurses recently received special training at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center in the home care of patients with respiratory problems. The program is part of a community outreach effort by the Medical Center's Respiratory Center for respiratory patients when they return home.

Dr. Gerald Weiss, director of NBIMC's pulmonary rehabilitation department, conducted "Home Care Training Program for Patients Receiving Respiratory Therapy." The symposium provided lectures, film demonstrations and "hands-on" practice for nurses in the home care of chronic lung disease patients—those with chronic bronchitis, emphysema, cystic fibrosis and asthma. Respiratory breathing devices were demonstrated and nurses were instructed on their proper care and maintenance. "Hands-on" equipment practice sessions were central to the course. Dr. Weiss said a follow-up program is scheduled for May.

Professionals who assisted Dr. Weiss in conducting the symposium are: Abraham Lister, respiratory therapist; Pat Molach, an expert in ambulatory oxygen devices; and Laverne Thomas, LPN, pulmonary therapist at NBIMC.

Newark Beth Israel Medical Center, a teaching affiliate of the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, is a member of the Jewish Community Federation of Metropolitan New Jersey, a beneficiary of the annual United Jewish Appeal—Metropolitan New Jersey campaign and a member agency of the United Way of Essex and West Hudson.

Seniors needed

The Tri-State Office of CARE, the international relief and development agency, is recruiting senior citizen volunteers for its fundraising efforts.

Senior citizens will be asked to set up booths in shopping centers and other public places to distribute information about CARE's work in more than 30 developing nations, and to collect funds. CARE also will assist clubs and committees of golden agers who wish to hold bazaars, movie nights—or other fund-raising activities to benefit the needy abroad.

Ara residents who wish to participate in CARE's volunteer efforts may contact Doris Forman, CARE Tri-State Office, 660 First Avenue, New York 10016.

Symphony director appears at Millburn

The New Jersey Symphony Orchestra will present the third concert on its four-ticket Millburn-Oranges series at 8 p.m. Jan. 29. The chamber music will be conducted by pianist Claude Frank.

The program will include Aaron Copland's "Orchestral Variations," Piano Concerto No. 17 by W.A. Mozart and Johannes Brahms' Symphony No. 2. Fleisher began his conducting career with concerts on the Mostly Mozart Festival at New York's Lincoln Center in the summer of 1970. In 1971, he directed the Boston Symphony. At Tanglewood and later, at Lincoln Center, he conducted a concert in memory of his late teacher and mentor, pianist Arthur Schnabel. He has appeared as guest conductor of many of the world's symphony orchestras in this country. In 1973, he became associate conductor of the Baltimore Symphony. In addition, Fleisher is music director of the Annapolis Symphony and director of the Theatre Chamber Players of Washington, D.C. He is professor of music at the Peabody Institute in Baltimore, where he makes his home.

Frank, who is German-born, lived in Nuremberg until he was 15, when he went to Paris and studied at the Paris Conservatory. Narrowly escaping the German occupation of Paris, he and his mother made their way to the Pyrenees which lacked an exit permit, they crossed on foot. They eventually were granted visas to come to the United States by an American consul who heard young Frank play. Frank made his debut with the Philadelphia Orchestra in 1959. He has appeared with the New York Philharmonic, Berlin Philharmonic, Chicago Symphony, Boston Symphony, Royal Philharmonic, London, Cleveland Orchestra, Philadelphia Orchestra, Buenos Aires and Sao Paulo Orchestras, Jerusalem Orchestra and the Concertgebouw Orchestra of Amsterdam. In chamber music he has performed with the Guarneri Quartet, the Juilliard Quartet and Alexander Schneider's chamber ensemble. He has been a guest artist at the Marlboro Music Festival for more than 12 summers. He teaches master classes at Yale, where he is on the faculty, and at the Aspen Music Festival, where he appears every summer.

Tickets may be obtained by contacting the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra, 213 Washington St., Newark 07101, telephone (201) 624-8203.

$15 million high schools budget adopted

By HELEN REYNOLDS The Union County Regional High School District Board of Education this week wrapped up a "reasonable" budget package of $15,000,000 to be delivered to the voters for an election Feb. 7.

The budget, unanimously adopted by the board Tuesday, includes $12,800,000 for current expenses, $209,465 for capital projects and $275,000 for bond debt service in the fiscal year that starts next July 1. This would be an increase of less than 2.5 percent over the current budget for the regional high schools. Jonathan DAYTON of Springfield, David Brearley at Kenilworth, Arthur Johnson at Clark and Gov. Livingston at Berkeley Heights.

The proposed budget calls for a local tax levy of $12,025,421 next year, including $10,800,000 for current expenses as well as the $1,200,000 budgeted for capital expenses and bond service. This levy would be an average increase of about 2.5 percent, but would vary from town to town in the regional district which includes Mountainside and Garwood, as well as the four municipalities where campuses are located. For Springfield and Garwood, the anticipated levy would represent a "reduction, rather than an increase," according to John O'Hara, regional finance officer.

Dr. Donald Merachuk, regional superintendent, said the budget increase "must be considered as reasonable" during a period of continuing, creeping inflation.

He said the Regional Board of Education not only obeyed a state mandated "cap," without seeking any waiver from Trenton, but also launched the $200,000 for current expenses and the $200,000 for capital projects. "Voters approved the debt repayments when they authorized bond issues," O'Hara said. He said the projected local tax levies include about $2,470,000 from Springfield, a cut from $2,266,813 this year; $1,611,523 from Mountainside, up from $1,521,432; and $1,596,847 from Kenilworth, up from $1,497,510—with the balance from the other three towns. An audience of 35, "most of them school staff members, had few comments, and no protests, at the formal budget Tuesday night on the Clark campus.

"I'm glad you like what you hear," commented the board president, Charles Vitale Jr. "This budget deserves support."

Largest single item in the capital outlay budget would be $100,000 to convert seven classrooms at Dayton into offices for the regional district. The district has been renting privately

Board weighs choices following 'cap' rebuff Springfield schools from kindergarten through eighth grade this week were ordered to stick within their budget "for the 1978 fiscal year, although state education officials granted spending-limit waivers to all of the other 147 school districts that had asked for them.

Springfield School District officials—stunned by news that their system was the only one that had asked for an increase in the cap—decided to appeal the state board's decision. They are now in the process of appealing the state board's decision.

Dr. Fred Baruchin, superintendent of the local district, said the Board of Education has three choices: 1. Cut educational programs by $2,000,000; 2. Virtually wipe out reserve funds held for major emergencies—such as replacing a roof or a heating system if it fails; 3. Launch a court case challenging the "cap."

Baruchin urged local citizens to attend the formal budget hearing at 8 p.m. next Tuesday in Chatham School and help district officials decide which course to take.

The state school board, meeting Monday in Trenton, decided cases of six school districts that had formally protested decisions by State Education Commissioner Fred Burke, who had rejected the first round of the appeal process.

The state board overruled Burke in four of the six cases, but upheld him on action in Springfield and Bergen. This meant Springfield and Bergen are the only districts denied an excess from the "cap" limit. Burke had already approved a $650,000 waiver for Bergen schools, which were seeking an additional $100,000. Burke had totally rejected Springfield's request for the $1,374 waiver.

Baruchin, learning of the state board action from the news media, had still received no formal notification from Trenton by Tuesday.

"I can only speculate on the reasons for the state board action," said Baruchin. "We haven't received anything officially yet."

REMINDER—Laurence G. S. Morris, a transplanted Englishman who works in a Springfield bank, posed last April in Israel in front of the huge bronze menorah that the British Parliament gave to Israel's Parliament. Memories of the April trip were revived for Morris when he received a letter from last month from an aide to the Israeli President, thanking Springfield-area residents for their peace prayers.

Israeli trip recalled

For American residents who have visited Jerusalem, news about peace negotiations in the Middle East seem to have more personal meaning. And one of those local residents is Laurence G. S. Morris, recently got a reminder from the Israeli President's home that the personal interest is appreciated.

Morris received a letter last month from Col. Israel Yarkoni, aide to Israeli President Ephraim Khatami, reviewing memories of a Springfield group's visit to Jerusalem last spring.

During these momentous times, "it is good to know that we have friends who care about Israel and its well being," the colonel told Morris in a handwritten letter from the presidential residence in Jerusalem.

Morris, a transplanted Englishman, joined members of Temple Sha'arey Shalom in Springfield on the pilgrimage to Israel last April. For Morris, it proved to be the most interesting of many journeys to different parts of the world, he says, and he has kept in touch with persons he met in Israel, including tour guide Tony Glend.

Recently, Morris also wrote to Yarkoni, who had been host to the tour group April 10 at a reception in the presidential residence.

Yarkoni "graciously sent me a reply, thanking me for our prayers and concern for Israel in these momentous days," Morris reports. The colonel said he is "hoping to see you sometime again in Israel and at the President's home."

MEANWHILE, Morris is enjoying memories of the trip last April—and has assembled a program of slides and a book for local residents who want to see how the trip went for the Sha'arey Shalom group.

One of the highlights, Morris says, was a film taken on a journey in Missouri near the Dead Sea.

"We included in our party a rabbi who brought a 'Sefer Torah,' the five books of Moses," Morris recalls, "and a Bar-Bat Mitzvah ceremony was conducted at the top of the Herodian fortress in the synagogue used by the Jewish community who occupied the stronghold during the Roman siege—more than 1,900 years ago."

Morris says he would be pleased to arrange a showing in their homes or hall for local residents who want to see the movie and slides.

Morris, who came to the United States seven years ago, is a veteran of the publishing industry who has written several books. Recently he has been active in a Springfield-based Jewish-related events in modern Israel to Old Testament stories.

A resident of Scotch Plains and an employee of National State Bank in Springfield, he also has written a number of magazine articles on religious themes.

In the correspondence with Yarkoni, Morris said he is sometimes asked why he, a Christian, wears a kippah with the Hebrew word "Zakora," or "Thou must remember."

"There are many of the sons of Japheth who love the descendants of Noah and we must realize that our first parents were inhabitants of the Garden of Eden," Morris wrote in his letter to Yarkoni.

Morris says that whatever their religion, he believes most people everywhere are praying for Israel to be preserved as a nation and have peace in our time.

Pennsylvanian puts her heart into all her art

The "Heart Series," a group of 20 original prints by a Pennsylvania artist and art teacher, Florence Putterman, is on exhibit in the meeting room of the Springfield Public Library until Feb. 20.

A spokesman stated, "Utilizing the heart shape, she symbolizes peace, seasons and environments."

Putterman received her B.S. degree at New York University, studied at Bucknell and received her master's in fine arts degree from Pennsylvania State University. She is an instructor in printmaking at Leaning College, Williamsport, Pa. Her prize-winning work has been included in numerous exhibitions and she is listed in "Who's Who in American Art" and "Who's Who of American Women." This exhibit is being circulated by Old Bergen Art Guild of Bayonne.

Illness tops '77 rescue report

The Springfield First Aid Squad reported a total of 1,061 calls in 1977, of which 691 were emergencies. The remainder included transportation and minor injuries such as dog bites and falls.

The squad said there were 125 motor vehicle accidents, 27 calls for heart ailments, 177 sick calls, two maternity cases and one psychiatric call. Springfield schools reportedly requested squad assistance 16 times and various sports teams in the community called the squad 16 times.

Oxygen was reportedly used by the rescue workers 215 times and emergency medical assistance was employed 20 times. There were 28 persons pronounced dead on arrival, and Medic II assisted the rescue 134 times.

Rescue workers visited 25 different hospitals, 12 nursing homes and 48 businesses, according to the report. A total of 12,458 miles were driven in 1977.

UNICO holds grape festival next Sunday

The Springfield Chapter of UNICO National will sponsor its second annual wine and cheese festival from 2 to 4 p.m. Sunday at the "Knoppies" of Columbus Hall, Old Shunpike road.

The festival will feature a display of traditional European folk art, tapestries, presses, casks and other equipment. Phil Statie, past president of the chapter, will elaborate on the festival's theme.

All proceeds of the event will be earmarked for non-profit civic and community charitable causes supported by Springfield UNICO, according to the festival chairman, Statie.

UNICO has also been responsible for the installation of the professional septic tank at Meisel Field and has erected food baskets for local needy families.

Joseph D. Leo, chapter president, said all members of the community are invited to attend the festival. Tickets may be ordered by calling Statie at 275-3341. UNICO members said donations without reservations will be limited. Donation is $5 per person.

Bicycle Man's parents laud son's good buddies

There is a Union man whose world is nearly confined to a room. But just last month, "Bicycle Man" found a "life line" to the outside world.

Part of that link began when students from a learning disabilities class at Springfield's Florence Gaudineer School, set up a Civilian Band (CB) radio base station. They quickly established a network of "good buddies" (other CBers) in surrounding communities.

The unidentified Union man is suffering from cerebral palsy and cannot walk but that made little difference to the students who know him as "Bicycle Man." They have since kept in constant radio contact.

On Dec. 22 Janet Frank, learning disabilities teacher, and John Westerville, Board of Education member, visited "Bicycle Man" and his parents at their home.

Although the CB fan's room is specially designed and contains an organ and complete stereo system, the pair said, the most important piece of equipment in the room is the CB radio.

"Bicycle Man's" parents said it is his "life line" to the outside world. At day's end the Union man's father repaid the visit to personally thank members of the Teacher's Per Base station and hand out candy bars.

SPECIAL REPORT
The House of Representatives has passed a bill that would allow federal agencies to use their own money to pay for the salaries of their employees. The bill is part of a larger package of legislation that would give federal agencies more control over their own budgets. The bill is expected to pass the House in the next few days.

First chair-- By Peter Heumann

Feeling sentimental and nostalgic, I brooded last night over the fact that I had just listened to the first chair of the Springfield Public Library's annual reading series. The book was "The Blue Ridge" by William A. Rake. It was a collection of stories and poems about the Blue Ridge mountains. The author is a well-known writer and has written many books about the mountains. The reading was held at the library and was attended by a large number of people. It was a very enjoyable evening and I enjoyed listening to the author read his own work.

YOU AND YOUR MONEY All workers don't file income tax returns

By JUDITH G. RHODES
There are over 211 million persons residing in the United States and over 17 million citizens living "abroad." Of this population only about 85 million are required to file income tax returns. Who is required to file an annual income tax return?
Persons who have received compensation for which a monetary value can be established are said to have income and may or may not be potential taxpayers, depending on the following conditions:
1. Single persons who are either citizens or permanent residents of the United States and who have a gross income of $2,500 or more during the taxable year must file a tax return.
2. Married persons who are either citizens or permanent residents of the United States and who have a gross income of $2,500 or more during the taxable year must file a tax return.
3. Single persons who are either citizens or permanent residents of the United States and who have a gross income of $2,500 or more during the taxable year must file a tax return.

1978 ELECTION YEAR

Forecast: a frigid future
The 1978 election year is expected to be a frigid one for many voters. The weather is expected to be cold and the economy is expected to be slow. However, many candidates are expected to run for office and the election is expected to be a close one. The results of the election will have a significant impact on the future of the country.

Township digs out from under --and worries about its elderly

Municipal Building at 376-5800, joined the Township Council in coordinating the recovery program last week. Cleri and the other four Township Committee members made personal tours of the town.

"The township road crews did a creditable job, working virtually around the clock from Thursday night on," Cleri said, "and the police, Fire Department and volunteer firemen responded very well."

Walter Kosub, township engineer, said all streets were cleared, at least for one-way vehicular traffic, by Saturday. The 16-inch snowfall had closed schools, many businesses and even stopped letter carriers from making deliveries Friday.

Postmaster Owen Morrison said Friday was the first and only day, in his eight years in office, when mailmen were unable to make deliveries.

Jonathan Dayton Regional High School reopened Monday, and Springfield's kindergarten through eighth-grade public schools were back in operation Tuesday.

Cleri said Township Committee members were "deeply moved," wherever they went Friday, to find neighbors helping each other dig out driveways and cope with snow-related emergencies. First Aid Squad members got through the snow to help the ill and victims of serious falls.

And one of the Township Committee members, Robert Wellchek, operated his own ambulance service for the hospital when he spotted a person with a fractured arm from a fall on the ice. Fire Chief Robert Day said his department, including volunteers, mustered 100 fire crews through the weekend "and prayed a lot." Even when streets were passable again, the chief said, many fire hydrants and catch basins remained buried in snow.

POSTING NOTICE — Jean Dombrowski of Rahway, left, and Hope Schiller of Springfield, commercial art students at Union County Vocational Center, work on posters for the Union County Technical Institute and Vocational Center open house on Thursday, Feb. 9, at 4:30 p.m. Students in all programs will participate in the open house, which is designed to introduce the general public to the educational opportunities at the Technical Institute and Vocational Center.

Obituaries

Indians at YM will hit the trail
Indian Guides, Indian Princesses and Trailblazers (father-child programs of the Summit Area YMCA) will participate in winter weekends in the near future.

Indian Princesses will go to this weekend and Feb. 5-6 at Frost Valley, New York. Indian Guides are set for Feb. 11-12 and 18-19 at Central New Jersey Camps in Blairtown. Trailblazers will camp at Camp Spessart, "Dignitars" Perry Park this weekend.

Activities will include skiing, ice skating, tobogganing, hiking, tracking and winter games. In addition to indoor campfire programs, the camps are winterized, with meals provided by the camp staff.

There are more than 400 father-child couples in the local YMCA program for fathers and daughters (grades 1-3), fathers and sons (grades 4-7), and fathers-sons-and-daughters (grades 4-6). Tribes are active in Summit, New Providence, Berkeley Heights, Springfield, and other schools in the area.

Twelve species of whales, dolphins and porpoises are threatened with extinction, reports the World Wildlife Fund. U.S. Neen seal species and all dugongs and manatees, coastal crocodiles and marine turtles are also endangered.

authentic reproduction of a colonial kitchen, a workbench and a waterwheel will be on display. Student guides will demonstrate their newly acquired skills on these exhibits and share their experience with other students, who will also be allowed to try them.

The exhibit, a joint effort of the state Department of Education's Division of Vocational Education, Trenton State College and South Hudson Regional High School, will be open to the public the following hours: Monday, 7 to 9 p.m.; Tuesday, 12:30 to 2:15 and 7 to 9 p.m.; and Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, 12:30 to 2:15.

The following students will act as guides: Maureen Weir, Richard Fernandez, Bill Doerfler, Michael McNany, Donna Russo and Glenn Murphy, all of Springfield, and Joan Ciro and Michael Tesler, both of Union.

The following class projects are also included in the exhibit: first and second grade colonial cookbook, teachers Monica Gundrum and Mary Beth Gausepohl; third and fourth grades, examples of naturally dyed materials, Sister Mary Glaser and Anne Hill; fifth grade, colonial baking, Linda Lobozzo; sixth grade, map of New Jersey with counties and major cities, Sharon Anderson; seventh grade, colonial storybook, Maurya Parah; and eighth grade, colonial menu and chart of natural dyes, Patricia Cassa. Mrs. Parah and Mrs. Cassa are the local coordinators for the exhibit.

Other projects include shipbuilding, stenciling, sewing and crocheting. Visual panels will show a number of related topics of early New Jersey life and work. Illustrations were provided by Edwin Tamm from his books "Colonial Craftsmen," "Colonial Living" and "Tavern at the Ferry." They are used with permission of the Trenton State College.

Students from other private and public schools in Springfield, Mountainside, Union Summit, Elizabethtown and Hills will visit St. James to view the exhibit.

Sister Alexandrine, O.S.B., principal at St. James, said the traveling exhibit is an effective educational tool because students can learn many things under the leadership of other students, and people learn best when they learn actively, using real materials.

The exhibit is available free to New Jersey schools for one-week periods. Contact: John Jones, director of the project at Conrad Johnson, director of the Division of Vocational Education, Trenton State College, 1000 College Ave., Trenton, N.J. 08646.

St. James will conclude Catholic Schools Week on Friday, Feb. 3, with a special Mass at 8 a.m. for the school's 100th anniversary. Further information may be obtained by calling Kathy Ehrhardt, chairman, at 378-2685.

Seminar slated for secretaries
The Summit chapter of the National Secretaries Association will sponsor a seminar Feb. 4 at the Celanese Technical Center, 86 Morris Ave., Summit. The time is from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., including an hour for a buffet luncheon, which is included in the fee of $8 for the registration of the seminar.

Lynn Jones, senior institute staff member of IBM's Systems Science Institute in New York City, will address the morning session. The afternoon session will be an exercise to demonstrate "barriers to communications." Registration forms may be obtained from Shirley Lenoff, CIBA-GEIGY, 356 Morris Ave., Summit, Rm. A-212. The deadline for registration is Jan. 26.

board—final unless the courts intervene. The district must set aside all but $127,863 of these reserves by June 30, 1979, or cut its educational program in 1978-79.

Baruchin said the district has tried to solve all school problems that must be prepared for a major problem, such as the failure of a heating system, in a school building. The school board has pointed out that local school buildings are from 18 to 77 years old, "and this district has long believed it would be foolish to close our eyes to the likelihood that problems will develop in old buildings," Baruchin said.

Required to cut reserves or spending—or both—the local Board of Education "will want to hear what the public desires," Baruchin predicted. The budget hearing next Tuesday at Chisholm is open to the public, he emphasized.

It appeared likely the local board will be reconsidering cost-cutting proposals, such as closing Maple School, that have brought protest crowds in past years. One board member, August Caputo, has already criticized the board for failing to reconsider the Walton proposal before protesting the budget "cap."

OATH OF OFFICE—Freedholder Walter E. Boright, formerly of Kenilworth, receives oath of office from Springfield attorney Stanley M. Bruder. Boright's wife, Pamela, a Linden elementary teacher holds the Bible. Boright has been elected chairman of the Union County Board of Chosen Freedholders.

Ar. Buehler, "but most thought a very good job had been done."

The committee quickly and quietly dispensed with other agenda items, including an appointment, proclamation, and announcement. Mayor William Cleri proclaimed next week Catholic School Week, citing St. James School as having "made a substantial contribution to the education of our children."

Cleri's proclamation also noted the "excellence and quality" of the St. James faculty. The mayor's son, William Cleri Jr., was appointed to the recreation commission and the committee also accepted the resignation of municipal worker Judith Catriveda.

A special hearing will be held Feb. 8 for St. James's "love restaurant," which is charged with violating Alcoholic Beverage Control regulations by serving liquor to minors.

A buffet supper will be served at midnight. Tickets are on sale for $18 a couple. When his work day is done, he likes to settle for a sedentary, rocking chair existence. Sherman looks to the future and finds other pursuits to occupy his time and interests.

A leader in interior decorating for 50 years, Sherman continues to operate his business, going to work every day. When his work day is done, he likes to settle for a sedentary, rocking chair existence. Sherman looks to the future and finds other pursuits to occupy his time and interests.

When he was a young adult, Sherman studied piano for two years, but he was just starting in the decorating business then, and his practice time was limited. He was married and his wife Shirley was an accomplished pianist, so Sherman stopped the performing to his spouse. However, since her death, Sherman developed the need to express himself musically. He bought a piano for himself and began studying with Carmela Cecece, of Chatham and West Orange, about a year and a half ago.

When he returned to the keyboard, there were some problems, such as "the virtual refusal of the fingers to move," Mrs. Cecece said. But with a comprehensive program of finger drills, scales, arpeggios and Czerny exercises, a "gradual but definite" improvement has taken place. His fingers are responding amazingly well at this point, according to his mentor.

A conscientious student, he has clearly defined his practice schedule for his family and friends. They are not allowed to call him between 6 and 8 p.m. If they do, he will simply hang up on them. Says Sherman: "The time begins my practicing when I must stop. Sometimes, when I am exceptionally tired, I almost feel like playing the piano, but it is so satisfying to the heart and mind that I must continue."

Last June for his 50th birthday, Sherman's two daughters, Theresa, a party. He chose the occasion to make his musical debut with a recital for friends and family. He performed works by Liszt, Chopin, Mozart and Brahms.

"A lover of Chopin, Sherman began his studies with Mrs. Cecece with the demand that she give him a "crash course" in that composer's work; since his "Sherman's" days were "numbing."

The teacher says, "With his indomitable spirit, Mr. Sherman will never be diminished, either musically or in any other way."

PIANO LESSON — Max Sherman, 80, of Springfield plies the keyboard under the tutelage of Carmela Cecece.

Be careful

Avoid purchasing foods that are packed as individual servings. Generally speaking the extra packaging boosts the price.

USE SKILLFUL. If your oven is filled up with roasts and casseroles—and you need to heat the rolls—use your electric skillet. Just sprinkle the rolls lightly with water, cover and heat at 225 degrees. You can also heat French bread this way—just wrap it in foil first.
