PSEG gets OK to stall delivery of power plants

Public Service Electric and Gas Company announced this week that it has reached agreement with OldBridge Power Systems on a three-year delay in delivery of four floating nuclear power plants it has ordered from the Jacksonville, Fla. firm.

The agreement was approved by the boards of directors of PSEG and Westinghouse Electric Corporation, the parent firm of OldBridge Power Systems.

"This agreement," said Robert I. Smith, PSEG board chairman, "will give PSEG a period of two years to determine with more precision just what is going to happen to demand for electricity in the future. The agreement also means that during the two-year period PSEG will incur no additional financial liability beyond what existed at the end of 1977."

The action by the PSEG board will reduce construction expenditures for the New Jersey utility by $185 million during the next two years compared to the anticipated construction expenditures before discussions on delay began. Previously, the construction budget was $1.477 billion. It will now be $1.292 billion.

Slower than anticipated growth in electric demand, plus the uncertainty of future growth, brought on the decision to delay delivery of the floating nuclear units, Smith said. He noted, however, that the New Jersey Economic Policy Council predicted a five percent rate of real economic growth in the state in its report on the 1979 Economic Outlook for New Jersey.

Smith, a member of the State Energy Department's Advisory Council on Energy Planning and Coordination, said PSEG will be working with the department and other agencies "to determine the best sites for the floating plants."

The first two units had been scheduled for operation in 1982 and 1987. These dates are now 1984 and 1989. The third and fourth units, previously scheduled for 1990 and 1992, now have operating dates of 1993 and 1995.

Cancer Society finds cost of drugs soaring

The New Jersey Division of the American Cancer Society last year assisted 12,200 cancer patients in the state with medication, sick room supplies and rehabilitation services costing more than $1.3 million, according to the Division's 1977 annual report.

The soaring cost of new medications that are proving increasingly effective in arresting or curing cancer contributed heavily to this expenditure. Norma J. Hayman, president of the New Jersey Division, said in a preface to the annual report.

"In the last several years, remarkable achievements in prolonging lives and restoring vitality have resulted from developments in chemotherapy—both in using new drugs and in using drugs in new combinations," Mrs. Hayman noted. "Unfortunately," she added, "the cost in dollars is high, and rising steadily."

New Jersey's 1977 Cancer Crusade contributions totaled nearly $3 million, but frequently are restricted to special purposes and other sources of funds. Mrs. Hayman said the program brought the year's total income to $3.7 million.

Nevertheless, Mrs. Hayman points out, the sharply rising cost of medications has become a highly disproportionate and is cutting deeply into other vital programs aimed at prevention and public and professional education.

"Therefore," she says, "the time has come when the state division either must curtail the help it can provide to medically indigent cancer patients or we must gain fresh support." Emphasis is currently being placed on recruiting the known causes of lung cancer, notably cigarette smoking. Anti-smoking programs, ranging from K-3 school audiences to adult quit-smoking clinics, are included in the overall effort to reduce adult smoking by 25 percent and by youth 50 percent within the next five years. A new program called Fraget 5 and embracing all activities of the American Cancer Society is directed toward these goals.

Because of the encouraging results of the program, the American Cancer Society is directed toward these goals. Because of the encouraging results of the program, the American Cancer Society is directed toward these goals.

Protests urged on plan to drop school balloting

By HELEN REYNOLDS
 Springfield Board of Education members Tuesday called for "a great hue and cry from the public" against a special state study commission's proposal to abolish community-wide elections on school budgets.

The proposal was one of many major changes recommended by the special commission, which spent three years studying public school fiscal practices. State Sen. Wayne Dumont, a Republican from Warren County, headed the group which released its report to the press earlier this week. Robert McCourt, one of about 10 persons in the audience at a Springfield board meeting Monday night, said he is "very distressed about this proposal to take away local control." He asked the local board members to comment and the request unleashed a flood of agreement with McCourt's opinion: "There ought to be a great hue and cry from the public."

Member Gregory Clarke called the proposal to abolish local budget elections "a gross violation of the general problem" that the Springfield board has been trying to communicate to the public.

MEMBER PHILIP FEINTUCH said the issue of local control prompted the local board's futile effort to present Springfield voters with a property-tax request of $2.9 million Feb. 7 for daily operation of town schools. Dumont, State Education Commissioner Fred Burke and the state school board trimmed the tax request on the Springfield ballot to $2.8 million for current expenses.

"As a board member, would like the opportunity to express my own honest opinion to the public about what the schools need, so the local people can vote for or against it," said Feintuch. "I thought that's what I was elected to do, but the state says I can't."

State officials ordered the reduction in the local ballot request to conform with New Jersey "cap" law. The Dumont commission said state-mandated "caps" (spending limits) will force school boards to cut down and eliminate the need for local voters to watch the purse strings. Springfield board members said they would rather rely on responsible state officials as their budgetary watchdogs.

"I hate to be nasty," said Feintuch, "but I find it hard to rely on the judgment of people (legislators) who say, 'You in Springfield can only spend so much of your own money for your children's education and the schools who will present municipal elections under the direction of Sheila Kilbourne and Holly Quinlan.'"

The services will begin at 6:30 a.m. in the sanctuary of the Methodist Church, 40 Church Mall; and will be conducted entirely by young people of both churches. A special offering will be taken to support the work of the Overlook Hospital chaplaincy service. The two-act drama, "Easter Experiences," is drawn from the Bible. The first act, "Soldiers at the Cross," will be performed by Bob Ballard, Ingrid and Ralph Koerner. The second act, "The Road to Emmaus," will be depicted by Doris Holter, Karen Koerner and Rick Reininger. Lead singer and guitarist for the special musical group will be Miss Quinlan, assisted by Meg Day, Peggy Foster, Valerie Hendrix, Diana Lyon, Jackie Roche and Linda Ziemer. Residents of the community have been invited to attend the service with their families.

Budget adopted in brief session

The Springfield Township Committee formally adopted the 1978 municipal budget of $2.8 million at a special meeting Saturday.

PAST TENSE

ONE YEAR AGO
All five township school board candidates support the 1977-78 school budget, but register varying degrees of enthusiasm; voters will elect three of the five hopefuls to the board Tuesday.

Former township Recreation Director JIM ADAMS holds up a Township Committee vote on municipal employee salaries by opposing a 22 percent hike in the Community Pool director's salary... The Union County Regional High School District Board budget struggles to victory with a vote of 1,033 to 646; the $10 million budget carries five of the six districts, with Garwood showing a surplus.

TWENTY YEARS AGO
Local civic representatives form a citizens' advisory committee to map the future direction of the township. The committee will receive $5,000 worth of damage to the Balfour Sr. Club and tear down a wooden Easter cross on Academy Green. Plans for a Springfield united charity fund move forward as citizens begin to rally behind the idea.

FOURTY YEARS AGO
A portion of James Caldwell School is destroyed in a two-alarm blaze apparently caused by faulty wiring and an accumulation of old costumes on the building's third floor... Two firemen are overcome with smoke inhalation and one is cut with flying sparks. Classes at Caldwell are suspended and a Springfield school board meeting is held to take steps to repair the 32-year-old structure... Township Committee wants to improve a trailer barn within the township limits in anticipation of an influx of vehicles in the metropolitan area on the New York City 1958-30 World's Fair.

"I HAVEN'T FOUND MR. COCCAR, BUT I DID RUN INTO HAMILTON JORDAN A FEW TIMES!"

Easter message

By THE REV. GEORGE C. SCHLESINGER
Springfield Emmanuel United Methodist Church

A sage of remote antiquity declared that given a place to stand he could move the world. He was referring to the application of the lever and the fulcrum. The Easter experience is the fulcrum of Christian history. It has been profoundly affected by this experience, which directs attention to a cross-natal climax on Calvary where the Son of God gave death its noblest meaning.

The Resurrection, however, gives meaning to life by its witness that all life is important to God and that He who suffered death on a cross was not permitted to see corruption.

The man who died on a cross, and was raised on the third day, made immortality specific and serious.

We sorely need these qualities today as we seem bent upon substituting the cross at Easter with an Easter lily. Is this what we often treat immortality and the Resurrection in a casual fashion? We either ignore or forget on purpose, that both Resurrection and immortality are God's judgment. Therefore, neither should be treated as a whim of fancy. If not what we may relate to or add to the Easter experience that matters, but what has already been eternally decided by God the Father Almighty.

The Easter experience, the Resurrection and immortality, is God's judgment upon sin, death and life. In bringing again His son Jesus Christ from the dead, God has vindicated sacrifice, love, goodness and truth.

The Resurrection and immortality are not meant to be a success story where everything works out all right in the end, and neither does it fabricate the message that it does not make a difference what one does or believes.

A great apostle, Paul, witnessed before the world that it is not what one gives allegiance to and that God is not too good to damn us. The Resurrection and immortality are God's judgment that the grave will not become a hiding place, and, as the psalmist states, "neither heaven or hell will prove sufficient camouflage for the just and unjust."

One of the paramount factors for the materialistic and egoistic preoccupation of our world, is that Resurrection and immortality have been relegated to a God who doesn't care. "Who lives a year out there" that a life here has no relevance to eternal life.

In the event of the Easter experience, the Resurrection of Jesus Christ, God's Word stands otherwise. It is true that while the good and the bad, truth and falsehood, blend together with little discernment and discrimination, the Resurrection of Jesus is the truth that immortality will be their separation—a separation from all that prohibits communion with God: sorrow, sin and death and transitoriness.

While current events attest that "though the cause of evil prosper, yet his truth alone is strong, though her portion be the scaffold, and upon the throne be wrong," the author of these words steadfastly maintained that this scaffold "sways" and influences the future.

The Easter experience has indeed swayed the future with the assurance that the dim unknown, who stands with the shadows, still keeps vigilance over His own—that Resurrection and immortality are His judgment as to whether we have made a right distinction between life, or death.

He who was the Resurrexer made it not waiting for eternity to decide his claim of right over wrong.

That is why the Resurrection, His immortality and His Father's judgment: He lives! He lives! Salvation tells us "He lives, He lives, I know He lives, He lives with us."

Are we committed to state those words for they are the essence of the Resurrection.

Because He lives, we shall live.

The Springfield Public Library lists the following titles among the recently received books:

LETTER-WRITING POET
"Anne Sexton," edited by Linda Gray Sexton and Lark Young. She was an exceptional correspondent who collected everything that touched her life—although she considered herself a "failed" poet. Her daughter, her sister remembered her as a much loved and over-occupied child. Born into a New England upper-middle-class family in 1928, she courted, stately sought love and approval elsewhere. Her flair for the dramatic, her flamboyance and flirtatious behavior brought the boys flocking to her. Yet she referred to herself deprecatingly.

Letters--League scuffle

GROWN MEN?
I have never seen a more blatant display of unprofessional conduct than that of Caldwell School on Saturday, March 11, when a "flag" broke out between two grown men coaching opposing teams. (In the recent basketball game, Caldwell basketball league for third and fourth graders).

What are our children learning by participating in township sports? I was under the impression that, aside from developing better skills, they would be learning sportsmanship. It is not surprising that these "men" coach again speaks poorly of our township Recreation Department. One coach in particular, while in his right even pushed and shoved children who happened to be standing in the hall at the time.

Both children and parents left Caldwell School shaken and upset. This is one playoff the children will long remember.

TOWN ACTION, COURAGEOUS!
I would like to take this opportunity to thank our township committee for their resolution to follow through on their prior resolution opposing the B-1 bomber and for cutting the military budget to eliminate waste. On March 14, the township asked that money saved from the B-1 bomber program be recycled by means of a transfer amendment, to the existing needs of our communities.

The resolution asks for a "redress of the imbalance between domestic expenditures and expenditures for the Pentagon by transferring funds, such as is called for in the Congressional Transfer Amendment. The thrust of the transfer process is to move money from programs not necessary to our national defense to programs that address human needs in ways that are accountable and responsive to the problems of people in our communities."

In addition, the resolution calls for the "establishment of a national career program that provides for retraining and employment guarantees to former defense workers and to their families. The DOT is a source of contingencies and industries affected by defense spending."

If all communities in the State of New Jersey were to pass such a resolution, we would help stop the drain of our tax dollars, help stop the brain jobs (as Senator Kennedy recently pointed out) to the south and Southwest, and help to revive our ailing economy.

PURPOSE QUESTIONED
After having witnessed the recent incident at the Caldwell Gym during the opening round of the playoffs of the small-fry league, I think it is a good idea to question the purpose of the league and to ask ourselves just what our children are learning in their first experience in a formal basketball game.

All of the children in the small-fry league this year are playing for the first time, unless they have played in an out-of-town league, as third graders have done. The purpose of the league program, and as such the fourth graders are playing their first year also.

Is the purpose of this program to teach the children the fundamentals of basketball, to have fun and to learn good sportsmanship? If so, then why is it necessary to include children who are not yet totally capable of the benefit our children could be deriving from this program.

During the playoffs, every child is not always given an opportunity to play; the rules of the league state that during the season every child must play at least one quarter, but not so during the playoffs. Therefore, some children who are given a chance to play during the regular season are made to feel their attendance, and more importantly their very self, is not of any value to their team because they will not be playing in the so-called "important" part of the season.

How many of these children will return next year to be made to feel the same way? Is the purpose of this program recreation and to teach all children how to play or is it to win a trophy?

I am not advocating elimination of all competitive sports, but I do feel that at this age all children should be allowed to develop, encouraged to play and that the focus of the program should be recreation and instruction—not competition.

"END OF THE ROAD"
The State Department's Transportation after 20 years or more of battling against the public over the controversial Interstate Highway Number 76 is about to be abandoned. The State Department in its final effort to complete this road.

It is inconceivable with all the money and the amount of money being poured into the road, that the Federal Transportation Department along with the U.S. Congress has asked the various states to contribute to the cost of the road. This is the most expensive road in the state highway system goes billions ahead with its plan to spend $80 million of its taxes to complete an Interstate Highway that is 17 1/2 miles and in the process, completely devastate to the point of its final demise the last remaining vestige of nature's natural beauty in Union County, namely, the Watchung Reservation.

YOU AND YOUR MONEY Expense of seeking a new job deductible

By JUDITH G. RISOADES
Q. Could you please explain what expenses are deductible for trying to find a job? I have been looking for a new job for several months and my out-of-pocket costs are beginning to mount up.

Mrs. L.K. San Diego
A. To answer your question, you must first determine your status. Expenses of seeking or employment in the same trade or business are deductible even if employment was not obtained. Most of your expenses can be claimed if you itemize and then they are claimed on Schedule A. Travel and transportation expenses are deductible if they are for gross income on Form 1040. If you are trying to find a job through an employment agency, the fees that they charge are deductible, but only if you are seeking work in your current trade or business. No expenses of seeking a new kind of work are deductible. Further, you need not be currently employed when seeking work, but you must be searching for work in the same trade or business as your last prior job and within a reasonable period of time.

Q. We recently sold our home and are in a very complex. We were charged a prepayment penalty on our mortgage holder. Does this qualify as a deductible expense?

G. R. Santa Ana, Calif.
A. A penalty for the prepayment of a mortgage is deductible as interest in the year in which the penalty is paid. It should not be confused as prepaid interest. You may include any interest paid in your final payment on your home and the amount of the prepayment penalty in the year paid. Neither amount is allocable to a later year.

Q. I moved from Pennsylvania to Arizona last year. I worked in both states and I am confused as to how to file a tax return in both places or only where I am living now.

J. T. Tamm, Alt.
A. You must file a tax return in both states. Every person who has income from Pennsylvania sources must file a tax return. Annual drive nearing its goal for United Way

The 1977-78 campaign of the United Way of Eastern Union County is nearing completion, according to Richard Town, campaign chairman. He said, "We want to complete this campaign as soon as possible in order to insure delivery of services provided by the 14 human care agencies in Eastern Union County. We are enthusiastic about reaching our campaign goal."

"For those citizens who have not mailed their pledges or checks, the time is now for your response. The good feeling that comes from reaching out to help others is a great satisfaction with the knowledge that you are helping build a better community. For those who have already mailed your check and pledge, a grateful thank you for your enthusiastic support."

The towns of Clark, Elizabeth, Garwood, Hillsdale, Linden, Roselle, Roselle Park, Kenilworth, Springfield, Union, and Westfield are joined in the United Way of Eastern Union County. Day care, counseling, mental health, rehabilitation, emergency assistance, recreational opportunities, home nursing care for the sick, after-school youth programs, and other services are provided to children, youth, families, and elderly through the United Way.

3 to discuss mental health plan

The policy of increasing the number of mental patients discharged from state institutions and the problem of their care in the community and mental health centers will be discussed by a trio of psychiatric specialists at the annual meeting of the Union County Psychiatric Clinic on Monday, at the Methodist Church, Westfield, at 8 p.m.

Benjamin H. Haddock, executive director of the clinic, will be in charge of the discussion of deinstitutionalization of mental patients under a recently adopted state mental health plan. Taking part will be Dr. Charles Webber, acting medical director of the state's Marlboro Psychiatric Hospital; John Kopicki, vice-president of Elizabeth General Hospital which operates a mental health center; and Myra Hendricks, director of consultation and education at the hospital's mental health center.

"The subject of community care for former mental patients," said Carl Jacobson of Berkeley Heights, clinic psychiatrist, "has been debated in great detail by public officials and those in the psychiatric field. The transition has been hampered by the lack of funding and organization to provide the proper health and social services which these discharged patients require."

Jacobson expressed the hope that discussions such as scheduled at the clinic's meeting, would help find a solution to the problem clinic.

Trustees to the clinic's board will be elected at the meeting, following which the trustees will elect new officers. The board is made up of two members from each community in Union County who are nominated by the clinic's community committee.

The clinic, a non-profit organization which has been operating since 1962, is the mentally and emotionally ill is supported by grants from the
