THE WEEK THAT WAS—For the Springfield Board of Education, the eighth grade's annual week of study in a rustic setting was pleasantly unlike any other in three years: no court order or crowds of protesters debating who if anyone, should pay travel and living expenses (about $50 per student). For 146 participating eighth graders half at each of two five-day sessions this month. It was a week unlike anything in their lives: a wooded Y camp at Milford, Pa., as their classrooms for activities led from dawn for past dusk by their own teachers from Springfield. At left, pupil Bill Giordano finds his clipboard and a dead tree limb make an ideal desk for notetaking on a field trip. At center, teacher Marie Murphy leads students, seated in the dining hall, in singing the "people to People" song he composed for the program. After a day of field-trip classes and seminars, eighth graders still have energy for night recreation such as square dancing. Partners Matt Eick and Sharon Lipner, left foreground, and Robert Riccio and Barbara Marlanino, just right of center, dance energetically toward camera. Teachers in hats at left—William McNeec, wearing glasses, program coordinator, and Carl Mack-lock as they probably feel exhausted. (The same faculty members duplicated the program for the two sessions.) The Gaudinier PTA, donating $8,200, saved the traditional program after the school board decided to keep hands off because of legal rulings that participants' parents should not be assessed for the trip even if they are willing to pay. ## Fireworks show is back--with a bang Shifts in offing for principals Gates open at 7 p.m. on Fourth No 'freeloading' sponsors request

By PATRICIA GARRISON
Springfield school superintendent Dr. Fred Baruchin Monday night recommended that the Board of Education retain full-time principals for all four township schools.

If Baruchin's suggestions are approved, Helene Kosloski, assistant principal at the Florence Gaudinier School, will become principal at the Edward Walton School and Walton's current principal, Dr. Robert Black, will be made principal at the James Caldwell School.

Kosloski's present post will be filled by Joseph Ruddy, guidance counselor at Gaudinier, and the school will be served by one full-time counselor; rather than two. The changes were brought on by the retirement of Caldwell Principal Lillian Gushin.

Acting on recommendations from parents, teachers, administrators and the Union County superintendent of schools, James Clancy, Baruchin said he had decided against a plan to have one principal or head teacher serve two schools, he said the plan is "comprehending in any sense," despite the loss of a full-time counselor at Gaudinier.

Both the Walton and Caldwell Parent-Teacher Associations had issued statements against a part-time principal proposal, fearing a breakdown in parent-school relations, discipline and administrative efficiency.

The superintendent noted that his selection criteria were not unlike stipulations from parents and administrators.

"My first criterion was to protect the instructional integrity of this school district," said Baruchin, adding that, "in this age of state budget caps," economy also entered into his decision.

Although both the board members and the audience seemed pleased with Baruchin's suggestions, the board voted to table adoption of the proposal until July 5. Board attorney Seymour Margulies said the principals' contract says a job opening must be posted for at least 10 days before a decision on hiring is made.

Baruchin said the opening was posted June 20, requiring him to accept applications "until tomorrow." The superintendent, however, said he would stay with his choices despite the delay, adding that the board would be privy to any additional applicant information. He added that Ruddy had not applied for the job.

While some audience members questioned the benefits of switching personnel among township schools, (Continued on page 4) freeloaders met there earlier this month, and about 50 were back last Thursday when the county board met at Winfield Park Community Center. The crowd ranged from watching-preservation groups to Berkeley Heights residents opposing interchange plans to the Springfield delegation urging "no build."

Freelholder Everett C. Lattimore amended the Amalie-Rajoppi-Dillon resolution to: (1) rescind the freelholders' 1974 resolution, (2) go on record recommending that parkland not be used for the highway link and (3) ask DOT to seek a feasible alternative route for the missing link.

Rajoppi called the Lattimore measures "very good—I was delighted." All freelholders supported the amended resolution except the chairman, Walter E. Boright Jr., and Harold Seymour Jr., who both abstained.

Forman, a "no build" advocate, said she is under "no illusions" that the vote permanently ended debate over the watching alignment. Freelholder Annalife immediately warned anti-highway forces that they might make an alternative route more than the watching proposal.

Two Union township officials, Mayor James Conlon and Committeeman James Roberts, were on hand at the meeting to complain about appalling construction to efforts at preventing the final link. Rajoppi still serves on the Springfield Township Committee and, like all other members, has taken a "no build" stand, saying the link would destroy either parkland in the reservation or nearby developed property and would brighten neighborhoods for miles around.

But Rajoppi, anticipating a compromise from the county board, co-sponsored a resolution merely asking the state Department of Transportation (DOT) for an "in-depth" study seeking ways to "preserve the integrity of the reservation and improve traffic movement throughout the county." The resolution, also sponsored by Freelholder Tom Dillon, was introduced by Freelholder Anthony Annalife. Anti-highway audiences demanded stronger wording. They jammed the Scotch Plains Municipal Building when

60-Plus halts its operations

The Sixty-Plus Services for Older Adults is suspending operation until further notice.

Dr. May Daniels Gold, director, noted that she and the other volunteers, who have mostly recently run the service, are pleased that the Township Committee is seeking another professional director, hopefully in a part-time position.

Dr. Gold's resignation is effective tomorrow, 18 months after her original appointment in June, 1977, when Sixty-Plus was officially created to serve Springfield's older citizens through instruction and support. Telephone, transportation, home and lawn care and friendly visiting programs were initiated after a "base-line" operation began in the rescue of homebound people last winter. All Sixty-Plus services were given on a free, confidential basis.

Holiday deadline

Carroll's deadline for the 1978 award program is June 15. The award program is open to all students in the district who are in the top 10% of their class in each grade. All nominations should be submitted by noon on Monday, June 15.

Construction starts for motel

Construction is under way for a four-story Holiday Inn on Rt. 28 West between the intersection of the highway and the Echo Place shopping center. Harry Kolb, township building inspector, noted that the project, his within the highway commercial zone, where a motel is a permitted use requiring no special permission from any local agency.

Raymond Broydink, owner of the tract, had received permission a decade ago for a motel which would have extended from the highway to the shopping center. The project was abandoned in 1974 because of the highway widening. The project was revived in 1977 when the township was rezoned to allow a motel in the area.

Regional panel approves new awards regulations

The Union County Regional High School District Board of Education Tuesday night approved a list of rules for student awards and certification prepared by a board sub-committee formed to revamp the awards system.

Estimated cost of the new awards program is $5,000 annually for all four schools in the district with most spending for plaques and engraving. The board had been charged earlier when it spent about $8,000 on material prizes, such as jackets, for winning students in fall sports last year.

The new regulations will be in effect on the first day of the 1978-79 school year, which many students will see as no recognition for

Summer course at UC designed for pre-teens

Youngsters, 7 to 12, may attend Union College, Cranford, this summer in a special program, "Latin for Pre-teens," the culture and language of another country, according to Dr. Frank Dee, dean of special services and continuing education at Union College, 272-2600, who is retiring.

Spanish culture and conversation for children and French culture and conversation for children will be offered in two-week programs with classes meeting four mornings a week, beginning Monday, Dee stated.

Both courses will combine filmstrips, slides, songs, dances and traditional foods to give the students a sense of what it is to be French or Spanish and an incentive to learn vocabulary, the dean explained.

Spanish culture and conversation for children will meet from 10:15 to 11:30 a.m. and French culture and conversation for children, from 1:30 to 2:45 a.m. There will be no classes on July 3 and 4.

Dr. Edward Golda of Union, chairman of the modern languages department at Union College, and Dr. Adrienne Hawley of Westfield, associate professor in the department, will jointly teach both courses. Golda and Hawley have worked with young people in the past and have traveled extensively, allowing them to bring to their classes the best background of the cultural lives of these countries, Dee added.

Tuition for each course is $30 for Union County residents and $35 for all others. Registration information may be obtained by calling the division of special services and continuing education at Union College, 272-2600, extension 206 or 238.

Reduced fare IDs sent out
The Department of Transportation has mailed new identification cards to the 42,000 elderly and handicapped citizens enrolled in the New Jersey Reduced Fare Transit Program.

The cards, beige in color, have an expiration date of June 30, 1982, and replace the cards that expire at the end of this month.

Elderly and handicapped enrollees in the program may ride on intrastate bus and Conrail routes and most interstate bus and Conrail routes into New York and Pennsylvania at a reduced fare.

The hours of the program are all day on Saturday, Sunday and State holidays and weekdays from 9:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. and 6:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. To ride at reduced rates, riders must show the bus driver a reduced fare identification card.

Senior citizens, 62 years of age or older, who are not enrolled may apply at any New Jersey bank savings and loan association or County Office on Aging. Applicants must have an age proof social security number when enrolling.

Reduced fare tickets also may be obtained at any New Jersey bank or loan association by enclosing a photograph and a recent photograph of the enrollee. If the regular one-way fare is adjusted downward to the nearest five cents, if for example, a one-way fare is 40 cents, the enrollee pays 35 cents and the State pays 5 cents. If the one-way fare is 45 cents, the enrollee still pays 40 cents and the State pays 5 cents.

Cost of dinner at record high
The cost of a Sunday roast had dinner at home for a family of four in the New York-Northeastern New Jersey area rose 48 cents between March and April to $11.22, passing the $11 dollar mark for the first time in record, it was reported by Herbert Bluestock, regional commissioner of the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Bluestock indicated that most of the monthly increase was due to a 22-cent monthly rise in the three-pound roast of beef to $6.28. Among the other items, the salad course rose a net 19 cents, largely reflecting increases for the green peppers, up seven cents, and cucumbers and lettuce, each up six cents.

Reduce chance of skin cancer

As the summer sun gets hotter, thousands of people in Union County will flock to the beaches and lakes to get away from the city heat.

"Although certainly some sun is healthy and beneficial for a healthy body, extreme exposure to the sun's rays can be harmful," explained Dr. Warren Krauer, medical delegate to the Union County Unit. "Over-exposure to the sun can cause skin cancer, the most common and preventable form of the disease."

"It is fortunate that simple precautions can prevent skin cancer from developing and that early detection allows for 95 percent of superficial skin cancer to be cured."

Everyone who applies for a social security number, regardless of age or place of birth, must now submit documentary evidence of age, identity and citizenship or alien status, according to Robert E. Willwerth, social security district manager in Union County.

Kennedy is involved in financing more than 50,000 homes in New Jersey's first FHA new home warranty program.

Twenty-two individual commitments were issued to Kennedy on June 15 by the Camden branch of the Federal Housing Administration, a division of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. The program permits 22 homes to be built at "Mystic Islands" as part of a 400-home tract currently under construction in Little Egg Harbor Township, near Tuckerton area since 1969.

To date, this is the only warranty plan approved by the Federal Housing Administration.

Participating builders must agree to build all homes according to HOW's approved standards. The entire licensing program is administered by a subsidiary of the National Association of Home Builders which represents a national membership of over 6,000 people.

School boards object to state requirements

Lawrence S. Schwartz, president of the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSEA), last week told the Senate Education Committee at a hearing on high school graduation requirements that "we would hope that on an issue this significant, the legislature would not move without sufficient deliberation and comment from all sectors of the community."

Schwartz reported that the NJSEA's delegates assembly, which is the association's policy-making body, recently went on record in opposition to

Rise is noted in price index

The Consumer Price Index for all urban consumers living in the Northeast rose 1.5 percent between February 1977 and April 1978. It was reported by Herbert Bienenstock, regional commissioner of the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics. The increase largely reflected higher prices for meats and fresh produce, as well as increases for housing and women's and girl's apparel. Between June 1977 and April 1978, the annual rate of increase was 1.1 percent.

NJEA calling for mandate on some courses

New Jersey Education Association (NJEA) President Frank Totten has called on the state to require more courses for high school graduation and to use a variety of techniques to determine whether a student has mastered certain basic skills.

Totten, testifying on a bill sponsored by Sen. Matthew Feldman, told the Senate Education Committee the state should mandate course requirements along the lines suggested by the N.J. Committee on High School Graduation Requirements. That committee, appointed by the State Board of Education last year, recommended that the state require four years of English, two years of math, two years of history, one year of natural science and four years of physical education. Currently, only two years of history and four years of physical education are required.

Totten said local districts should be required to evaluate students often during their careers, using teacher observations and other guardian interviews, test results and other pupil records. These evaluations should enable districts to design programs to remedy shortcomings of students in specific areas.

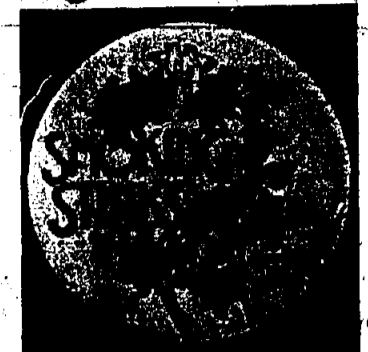

The NJEA leader said a student should not have to measure up on one single test, but rather should be judged by a wide range of assessments within each required course before going on to the following level.

Finally, the teacher leader suggested that students be allowed to take a fifth, or even a sixth year of high school if necessary to insure mastery of basic skills.

Anti-smoking theme aims at young women

An anti-smoking educational campaign specifically directed at teenage girls and young women is being conducted by the American Cancer Society throughout New Jersey. Its theme is "Smoking Stinks."

The theme is being carried out through wall posters, pins and T-shirt decals, as well as in public service announcements for press, radio and television. Its purpose is to discourage young people from smoking as the most direct means of reducing lung cancer among adults. The "incubation" period for most kinds of cancer is 20 or more years.

CONTRAST—Pin, sporting the logo of a new American Cancer Society anti-smoking campaign aimed at young women and teenage girls, contrasts the slogan with soft pastel colors of birds and flowers. The program will be carried out through wall posters, pins, T-shirt decals and public service announcements for press, radio and television.

The campaign is an outgrowth of recent studies which show young girls taking up smoking at a faster rate than boys. The same studies show lung cancer increasing among women at a rate that soon will surpass the incidence of lung cancer among males.

"The correlation between cigarette smoking and the onset of lung cancer, emphysema and other respiratory diseases is now indisputably evident," said Helen Avchen, public education chairman of the New Jersey Division, ACS, in announcing the new anti-smoking campaign. "It is equally evident that the rising rate of lung cancer cannot be turned downward without a sharp reduction of smoking among youngsters."

"The effects of a mother's smoking on her unborn child, resulting in low birth weight and circulatory problems also have become evident. Hence, the American Cancer Society's all-out effort through Target 5 to discourage young girls from taking up the habit and thereby avoiding the king of addiction that is hard to break," Auchin continued.

Target 5 is a five-year campaign to reduce smoking among adults by 25 percent and among young persons by 50 percent.

The "Smoking Stinks" campaign plays on the contrast between the beauty and fragrance of fresh flowers compared with the ugly odor of cigarette smoke. The TV spots feature a campus beauty whose cigarette smoking turns off campus heroes, legislators at the beach and even skunks that cross her path. The radio spots are parodies on fairy tales wherein lovely ladies turn frogs into charming princes.

In the "Smoking Stinks" sequences, the frogs are happy to become frogs again. The campaign's graphics feature flowers in beautiful pastels to understand the message of "Smoking Stinks." Educational programs featuring "Smoking Stinks" and other materials may be arranged through the public education chairman of local American Cancer Society units.
