Regional board seeks to end ranking problem

By HELEN REYNOLDS
The scene is set in 1980. The Union County Regional High School District Board of Education is listening to protests from angry parents of many students who were graduated from eighth grade in 1978 at Springfield, Montclair, Kenilworth, Garwood, Berkeley Heights and Clark.

The parents are angry because they have just learned their sons and daughters rank below the top 10 percent in the Class of 1982 at one or another of the four Regional District campuses: Jonathan Dayton in Springfield (also serving Mountairside), David Brearley in Kenilworth (serving Garwood, too), Gov. Livingston in Berkeley Heights and Arthur Johnson in Clark.

"Why," demands one of the mothers, "didn't I know about this ranking system? I would have told my son to sign up for different courses. Is Typing 2 really more challenging than Latin 1? Why is it worth more points in the ranking system? Is it really as challenging as Accelerated Geometry? Why didn't someone tell me about this ranking system?"

In a Category 1 course, half a point will be added to the report-card grade when calculated for ranking purposes. (For example, four points on the report-card — a 4.0 or an A — will become 4.5 in ranking calculations.) A full point will be added in Category 2, 1.5 points in Category 3, 2.0 points in Category 4 and 2.5 points in Category 5. For example, in advanced-placement U.S. History, which is one of 10 Category 5 courses, the 4.0 report-card grade will be worth 6.5 ranking points.

In addition to the use of "weighted" grades, the ranking system also will incorporate bonus points for heavy course loads, called "brownie points" by board member Roland Hecker, who has challenged their use.

Hecker was in the board "camp" arguing that the number of courses taken by a student, so long as it meets a mandated minimum, counts for little. He said schools should set requirements of a minimum workload and then reward quality, not quantity of courses taken in addition to the mandates. Other board members and many parents are in the "camp" for the ranking system. (Continued on page 10)

Over 90 pct. exhibit competence on tests

More than 90 percent of the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School freshmen and juniors, who will be sophomores and seniors next September, demonstrated reading and mathematics competence as judged by state administrators of the minimum basic skills (MBS) test taken last April.

Dr. Francis Kenny, director of guidance for the Union County Regional High School District, said that local scores as reported to him by the state. He made no claims and offered no analysis pending receipt of the state's own interpretation of the scores.

Elsewhere, some educators were suggesting that test results show improvement in the teaching of basic skills, while others were saying the MBS is just easier than the now-defunct F. Gall M. Zichanski of Midland Park, N.J., earned perfect 4.0 grades in the just-ended semester at Bucknell University in Lewisburg, Pa.

"The funny part shows that with a slightly higher percentage of Dayton students showed competence in the MBS than was true throughout the Regional District, which also operates the Gov. Livingston campus at Berkeley Heights, Arthur L. Johnson at Clark and David Brearley at Kenilworth. But Gov. Livingston's scores were slightly higher than Dayton's.

The percent of students showing competence at all four categories of the ninth grade (GL, 91; Reading-Gov. Livingston (GL), 91; Math-GL, 86; Dayton, 91; ALJ, 91, and DB, 87).

Eighth graders (Class of 1979): Reading-GL, 88; Dayton, 94; ALJ, 94;

Dozing driver awakens to find nightmare real

The nightmare was real. But Gregory P. Nestler, 21, of Chester nevertheless escaped serious injury when he awoke to find himself, really in a car rolling top over bottom along the center divider of Rt. 24 near Baltusrol way, Friday in Springfield.

Chester said he fell asleep at the wheel of the east-bound car before the spectacular "accident" at 4:10 p.m. according to police. The car was demolished, but Chester emerged to tell officers that he was not injured seriously enough to require hospital treatment. The liquid cleaned some cuts on his back.

Joseph Fitzsimmons of Linden avenue, a pedestrian, suffered a scrape on an arm and a leg and complained of back pain after he was hit by a car on Morris avenue, near Mountain Avenue, at 1:05 a.m. Thursday, according to police. Officers said the driver, Maryjo Delleonore of Berkeley Heights, told them Fitzsimmons was carrying his eyeglasses in one hand and walked into the path of her car.

The driver, Michael Robinson of Oakland, was arrested on suspicion of drunken driving and leaving the scene of the accident. Police said Robinson was apprehended in Summit after he allegedly dropped off the passenger and fled.

Many paths lie ahead for the Class of '78

Almost 74 percent of the Class of 1978 has already made plans to continue formal education in September, according to Charlotte Singer, guidance director of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School.

She said 226 of 307 students who were graduated June 26 plan to attend colleges, universities, trade and technical schools in 30 states and the District of Columbia.

Miss Singer said the portion of the class with firm plans for further education—74 percent—is about the same as that of previous graduating classes in the 1970s.

"A few more are likely to decide to go in September," said Miss Singer, noting that some post-high school institutions allow registration shortly before classes begin. She said the continuing education percentage for 1978 is likely to wind up in the 75 to 80 percent range that has prevailed since Dayton's first class in 1952.

Among the 74 grads with firm plans before they left high school, four-year colleges and universities are still far more popular than two-year colleges or technical schools—traditionally true of Dayton alumni.

Predictably, schools in their home state of New Jersey are drawing the largest contingent of Dayton grads (36 percent) to study. For grads going out of state, Pennsylvania remains most popular, 43 will be heading to schools there. And New York remains next on the list, attracting 17 from the Dayton Class of 1978.

Schools selected by the 286 include: In New Jersey—College of St. Elizabeth, Drew University, Fairleigh Dickinson University (no students), Glassboro State College (three), Kean College of New Jersey, Ramapo College.

The glory of Greece, past and present, will be spotlighted in an "Evening of Sight and Sound" at the Springfield Public Library Museum, next Thursday at 8 p.m.

The event has been planned to introduce the new exhibit at the museum, a display of the arts and crafts of Greece, both ancient and modern. Until the end of August, visitors will be able to view items from the collection of the National Organization of Hellenic Handicrafts, a group operating under the auspices of the Greek government.

These include some modern works as well as authentic reproductions of classical pieces.

Among the "sights and sounds" of the evening will be a brief introduction to the Greek culture followed by the performance of Greek ethnic dances by members of the Youth Group of St. Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Church of Orange.

Singers from the Metropolitan Greek Chorus will offer both secular and religious choral selections. Dr. Thomas Tsankalatos, professor of "material sciences" in chemistry at Rutgers University, will sing folk music, accompanying himself on the guitar.

Homemade cookies of traditional varieties will be served through the efforts of some members of the local Greek community.

Elsie Scouris of West Orange, a music teacher in the Springfield school system, has made several trips to Greece and has studied her Greek heritage. It is largely through her efforts that the exhibit was assembled and the performers for the special program were selected.

Union provides site for psychiatric clinic

The Union County Psychiatric Clinic began work yesterday on renovating two rooms in Burnet Junior High School in Union Township to replace the facility which it operated until last month at Elizabeth General Hospital. Benjamin Haddock, executive director, said the new clinic is designed primarily to serve patients from Union and Springfield. Most of them at present go in the clinic's office in Summit, he said. But Union residents in particular are handicapped by transportation problems since there is no direct bus service from the township to Summit. The county clinic's main office is in Plainfield, at 1258 South ave. and its Summit office is at 450 Springfield av. Until last week, it also operated at the Elizabeth General Hospital, but that is being taken over by the hospital's dental chairs and other equipment which the County clinic had at the hospital have been moved to Union and are being stored in Burnet until the new office opens. The county clinic served 2,979 patients last year, not including those on Medicare, with Union Township providing the fourth largest number. The total included 580 patients from Elizabeth, who received 4,180 hours of service; 284 from Plainfield, for 2,604 hours; 208 from Linden, 1,438 hours, and 170 from Union, 1,002 hours.

Help available in rehabilitation, committee told

Two Union County representatives of the New Jersey Division of Vocational Rehabilitation attended a recent meeting of the Springfield Township Committee at the invitation of Mayor William J. Conti. Constantine Shanon, supervising counselor, and Sylvia Schneider, county manager of the state agency, described eligibility requirements and services offered by their organization. "All people of working age who have physical or mental disabilities which are handicaps to employment can receive the necessary restoration services or training which will enable them to go to work. According to Shanon and Schneider, about 30 handicapped residents of Springfield took advantage of these vocational rehabilitation services in the past year. They expressed concern that "not enough handicapped people in the county and state know that there is a state agency which can help them to find and maintain employment, and which is a strong advocate against architectural barriers and any barriers that keep disabled people from working and living normally. Interested people can contact the Union County office of the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation Services at 192 E. Grand st., Elizabeth 07201, phone 351-5434.

Oscar Hammerstein 2nd, the son of a noted theatrical producer, promised his father he'd forego the theater and study law. But Oscar Hammerstein 2nd's involvement in Columbia variety shows, his lack of enthusiasm for the law and his decision to marry, put him into the position of production manager for his uncle.

A talent for writing clever lyrics started him on his career as a librettist, working with, and eventually marrying, Richard Rodgers. He wrote several Broadway musical hits, among them "Rose Marie." Going Strong

By GERRY JOHNSON

In this day and age, a lifelong career at the age of 74 is out of the ordinary, to say the least. Even 65 years ago when Mort Eisenman of Newark Daily began his newspaper career, not many 14-year-olds had settled on a career.

"I was 14, a freshman in high school, when an instructor discovered my talent for writing," Eisenman, now 77, told a writer from the National Council on Aging.

His talent as a school reporter landed him assignments for the Philadelphia Inquirer and the Philadelphia Bulletin. After graduation from high school, Mort went to work full-time for the Bulletin as "real estate" editor and obituary editor.

At 17, Mort decided to do the patriotic thing and enlist in the army. When he was discharged after the Bulletin, the editor didn't have a job for Eisenman, but referred him to the Atlantic Press and Evening Union in Atlantic City, N.J. Eisenman was offered and accepted the dramatic editor position, a job which entailed interviewing celebrities as well as conducting a daily 15-minute radio newscast.

In 1938, the Depression forced the paper out of business and Mort moved to New York, where he was to be his future wife, Vera.

"After a month of temporary odd jobs, Mort took a job at a boy's camp in Maine which lasted for six years. When the camp director refused to keep a promise of partnership with Eisenman, he quit.

Determined to continue working with boys, Eisenman built his own camp, which started with only 30 boys and eventually grew to more than 150. Now, after 40 years of running the camp, Mort is pursuing his first love—writing.

"I loved working with the kids," said Mort. "But, I still have a desire to write."

True to his word, Mort Eisenman is still writing. He has completed his first mystery novel and has plans for many others.

LETTERS

SENIORS THANK FRIENDS

We wish to take this opportunity to extend our sincere thanks to Wilma Schenck, president of the Springfield Senior Citizens Group, for the letter to all the members of this group and also to the ladies of the Springfield Methodist Church for being so thoughtful in including high school graduates and me on our 50th wedding anniversary.

The girls of the church brought a lovely hot dinner to our senior meeting and it was enjoyed by all.

We were very surprised and pleased to receive letters from all our dear friends at our last meeting of the month.

The card stores must have sold out their 50th anniversary cards and Wilma really outdid herself, as usual, by baking us a three-tiered, beautiful white cake. We had party favors on the table and the room took on a very festive atmosphere.

We were very grateful for all this, but most of all, for the loving thoughts and wishes of our dear friends of group 50.

Our love and prayers go to Wilma as she leaves the office as president of our group and also to all the ladies who made it really special to belong to group three. She has tended to us as a mother hen does her chicks.

We are thankful too, that Ellen Carmichael and Ed Raby had this worthwhile vision to make all this happy times available to us in our twilight years. It is our sincere desire that all groups enjoy a lovely summer in the best of health.

Assemblyman Donald T. DiFrancesco

The no-fault insurance study committee, on which I have served for over a year, has just released a report on the automobile insurance problem in New Jersey.

The report deals specifically with two points: (1) the current system of rate-making by the State Insurance Department, and (2) the proposed no-fault system.

Under a JUA, the average middle-income citizen would save $100 a year, through taxes that would have gone to pay for government administration of the facility and through rate-making by the private industry.

A JUA also provides a means of subsidizing bad drivers under a plan similar to the merit rating system proposed by the administration. But because of the greatly reduced price tag of the JUA, the additional revenue can help keep good drivers' rates from being raised by the insurance facility program.

Union County's Summer Program for Economically Disadvantaged Youth (SPEDY) will employ more young people this summer than ever before, according to Larry J. Lockhart, director of the Department of Human Resources.

SPEDY, the short-term program to financially assist youths aged 14 to 21 whose family incomes are at or below the federal poverty level, will place approximately 1,800 youths, nearly 300 more than last year's program, in community governmental service work for the summer of 1978.

All youths 14 to 21 who meet federal poverty criteria are eligible for the program. More than 200 persons attended a fund-raising cocktail hour for Richard McCormack, Democratic candidate for Congress, recently at the Villa Roma in Elizabeth.

Pappas then praised McCormack, a Kenilworth councilman, as a "dedicated and dedicated individual who will at long last give the people of the 12th District a genuine and forceful voice in the halls of the federal government."

State Senator Anthony Russo of Union voted to "do all in my personal power to ensure a great victory for Richard McCormack in the 1978 election."

Survival of freshmen is counselor's intent

Survival is the theme of last scores, to explain a series of orientations, registration procedures and career counseling transfer opportunities, and to assist who will be entering the college in the fall as full-time freshmen.

The orientation, according to Ronald Nakashima, director of the college, is scheduled for tomorrow at 9:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. and 1:30 p.m. Students have been advised as to which orientation they should attend, but those who have conflicts may attend the orientation most convenient for them.

Nakashima said, "It is a college student's duty to be responsible for their own actions, be it attending class or completing reading assignments."

He also advised them that while help is available from faculty, counselors, and administrators, it is the student's responsibility to seek out that help.

The orientations are also designed to review and interpret placement

6 percent rise in price index for May noted

With higher prices for food, housing, transportation, medical care and apparel, the Consumer Price Index for all urban consumers in the 18-county New York-Northeastern New Jersey area rose 0.6 percent between April and May. It was reported by Herbert Biensstock, who directs the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Middle Atlantic Region. Over the year ending in May 1978, consumer prices rose 5.4 percent, according to Biensstock.

The pretaxed CPI for urban wage earners and clerical workers was up 0.5 percent between April and May, 4.9 percent from a year ago. Biensstock pointed out that changes in the two indexes need not be the same because of differences in coverage as well as sampling variability.

Seasonally adjusted, the area CPI rose 0.7 percent in May, following an increase of 0.8 percent in April and 0.9 percent in March. Biensstock indicated that in the first 10 months of 1978, the index averaged 0.7 percent a month, compared to an average monthly rise of 0.2 percent in the last half of 1977.

With the Consumer Price Index for all urban consumers at 194.6 (1967-100), $19.46 was required in April to buy what $10 could in the 1967 base period. According to Biensstock, the purchasing power of the dollar was 51.4 cents in 1967 dollars, 43.2 cents in 1957-59 dollars.

Biensstock noted that more than two-fifths the overall April to May rise retroacted a 1.0 percent increase for food and beverages. The food at home or grocery store component, typically stable in May, rose 1.3 percent. Restaurant prices increased 0.4 percent and the alcoholic beverages index rose 1.1 percent between April and May.

Within the food-at-home component, the most notable rise was in the index for fresh fruits and vegetables, which rose sharply by 1.8 percent, largely resulting from higher beef prices. The fruits and vegetables index was up 3.3 percent, with sharply higher May prices for fresh fruits and lettuce reported by Biensstock. The cereals and bakery products index rose 1.8 percent over the month reflecting increases in bread prices. In contrast, prices turned down for eggs and coffee.

Between May 1977 and May 1978, food prices rose 8.6 percent. Biensstock pointed out that this was more than one and a half times the overall rate of price increase of 5.4 percent. The sharpest increases were in the meats, poultry and fish and fruits, and vegetable components, up 13 percent and 13.0 percent, respectively. The cereals and bakery products index, up 8.5 percent, also rose sharply over the year.

'Rip-offs' seen in solar energy

Adam K. Levin, director of the New Jersey Division of Consumer Affairs, recently called for a vigorous nationwide program of enforcement and education to keep the solar energy free of consumer fraud.

Levin said "one key to speeding the use of solar energy" is ensuring consumers that "governments will not tolerate solar energy rip-offs."

"There are dangers lurking in a developing field in which relatively new technology is being offered to consumers who lack the sophistication, knowledge or information to evaluate critically the claims and promises of sellers of home solar energy systems," Levin said.

Levin cited cases in which sellers of home solar energy systems have misrepresented their own technical expertise, the efficiency of the equipment and information concerning the qualifications for government grants.

"Already, the New Jersey Division of Consumer Affairs has started taking action in the solar energy field," Levin said, citing a recently filed administrative complaint against a solar energy firm.

The complaint charges that the firm, which sells solar hot water systems, made misrepresentations to consumers and installed "grossly defective" systems.

"A wide ranging consumer education effort is being conducted by the New Jersey Division of Consumer Affairs," Levin said, "and the firm is being taken action in the solar energy field."

ECONOMICAL AND ATTRACTIVE—The home of Barnegat Woods, which is previewing its second section of ranch and townhouse homes, are priced from $24,990. The townhouse models, priced at $25,990, feature three bedrooms, country kitchen, dining room and a living room that stretches the full width of the house.

New section at Barnegat

Barnegat Woods, a small community of two and three-bedroom ranch and townhouse homes has announced the opening of its second section—49 homes and cottages nestled in a hilly tract of Barnegat. Prices start at $24,990, with maintenance fees because Barnegat Woods is not a condominium.

Each home is sold complete with its own patio and outdoor entertaining and private parking. Fronts are landscaped—both front and back are sodded—and there is an exterior storage shed.

Financing has been arranged for the second section, with 5 percent or 10 percent down-payment mortgages available to qualified buyers. Sales director JoAnn Leterra points out that with a 5 percent down payment of $1,300, monthly payments on the 30-year mortgage and local taxes are about $248.

"Barnegat Woods is being built by a small, reliable builder who keeps tabs on every stitch that goes into every home," she explained. "This means that we watch the buyer's money before he buys, and we make sure that our homes are economical to buy and excellent to live in."

But once people find it, they recognize the best value in home ownership anywhere in the shore area. And once you make and cooling costs below the main road, it's really very easy to find and quite conveniently located.

Mrs. Leterra said, "Barnegat Woods is located between Garden State Parkway exit 67 and Rt. 6, off Bay Avenue. Barnegat, near Gungahler River Road. The models and sales office is located a few blocks from the original project."

"It's a little hard to find because Barnegat Woods is not a condominium," she said. "But once you find it, they recognize the best value in home ownership anywhere in the shore area. Mystic Development can show you HOW

Andrew G. Vaitko, sales manager for Mystic Development Corporation, a Little Egg Harbor Township based builder, has announced inauguration of New Jersey's first Federal Housing Administration (FHA) new home commitments to be officially backed by a 10-year Home Owners Warranty program (HOW) in cooperation with Kennedy Mortgage Company of Cherry Hill.

A total of 28 individual conditional commitments were issued to Mystic Development, through Kennedy Mortgage by the Camden Branch of the Federal Housing Administration (FHA), a division of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

As issued, these special commitments permit 22 homes to be built at "Mystic Islands," as part of a 4000-home tract currently under construction in Little Egg Harbor Township.

Under the program, builders who are offering their homebuyers the benefits of a 10-year insurance policy covering the various mechanical and structural components will be entitled to special consideration from FHA in the administration of its inspection program. Provided, builders had to submit to a lengthy interim inspection system imposed by FHA.

FHA will require that construction exhibits be approved in advance, that the warranty be furnished to no one but the homebuyer, and that the builder maintain a good quality workmanship rating with the Camden FHA office.

The initial commitments issued to Mystic Development Corp. through Kennedy Mortgage are expected to result in a savings of both time and money. These savings will benefit the public and additionally assure homebuyers of a fast and speedy method of handling disagreements over major structural defects.

The first builder to benefit from this program, Mystic Development, has built 4000 waterfront and upland homes at Mystic Islands since 1969. As one of the charter members of Home Owners Warranty Corp. of New Jersey, all of their homes built since March 1977 have received HOW protection backed by the American Bankers parents argued that students should be given credit for the division heavier courses — as if rewarded to the extent provided by the previous ranking system. The bonus points were a compromise.

Regional board seeks to end ranking problem

 A student in the Class of 1982 will get two bonus points added to the report card grade for each course completed in excess of six per semester. For example, suppose a student earns 31.5 "weighted" points in seven courses one semester, an average of 4.50 per course.
 The two bonus points would raise this to a semester average of 4.79. If other courses, 31.5 plus 2, divided by 7, equals 4.785, rounded off to 4.79. Mereschuk's letter even explained that the division would be carried out to three decimal places, then rounded off to two.

 The averaging of the major courses won by Hecker's "quality rather than quantity" grade. Under the previous system, camp points from each semester have been just accumulated. For example, under the cumulative system, the student earning 31.5 points in seven courses would rank higher than the student with a better grade in each course, who took only six courses and got 30 points. With averaging, the six-course student with reported to colleges and employers along with his rank in class.

 "You'll notice I'm carefully distinguishing between 'class rank' and 'academic average' (for the classes of 1979, 1980 and 1981)," Dr. Siegel comments. "There will be only one 'system' formulated for determining rank in class of these students, who will be sophomores, juniors and seniors in the fall. But there will also be an option of having it reported along with rank in class."
 But Dr. Siegel smiles when he makes any predictions about what "there will be" in the future. When parents see any preliminary results of a ranking system in the Regional District, protests and changes are likely to occur.
 Why all the furor in the Regional District about ranking systems?
 "It's a truism that 'honesty pays,'" but administrators must keep reminding themselves of that truism when it comes to ranking.
 "Not many years ago, ranking was handled by two people within a (campus), and they were the only ones who knew how it worked," Dr. Siegel explains. "Students and parents just walked for the outcome, and they didn't question how it was computed. ... But we didn't want it that way in the Regional District. We wanted the people to know, and to contribute to the development of a system. ... Making it public made it a public issue."
 So the school board and administrators do their best to publicize the procedures, but don't really count on its preventing the next onslaught by parents saying, "Why didn't you tell us about it?"
 Says Siegel: "We do tell, but many don't pay attention until preliminary rankings about what."

Air rescue unit organized by Common Cause says it will focus on issues

Col. Clinton L. Pagnano, state police superintendent, has announced that the State Police in cooperation with the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey has organized an Air Rescue Unit. The program began on Saturday.
 The program was made possible through a federal grant from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration and processed through the New Jersey Office of Highway Safety headed by the governor's representative, John A. Waddington, director of the Division of Motor Vehicles. The new service is designed to expedite the transportation of persons who have sustained life threatening injuries, thereby increasing the ability of the state to respond to such emergencies.
 The unit is actually an extension of the helicopter patrol secondary base located at Bedminster Township, Somerset County. The response area includes the counties of Somerset, Hunterdon, Morris, Union, Essex and portions of Warren, Sussex, Passaic, Hudson, Mercer, Middlesex and Monmouth. MED-EVAC helicopters operating from Bedminster are prepared to respond to calls for service from any point in the target area within 30 minutes depending on whether the aircraft is on the ground or in the air.
 It is expected, however, that most calls for assistance will be answered in less than 15 minutes. Support helicopters for the MED-EVAC area will be available on a need basis from the State Police Helicopter Bureau's main base located at Mercer County Airport near the City of Trenton.
 Pagnano said that the major purpose of this program is to provide for the speedy transfer of patients with life threatening injuries or illnesses. MED-EVAC helicopters can be used to remove victims from accident scenes to the nearest medical facility, fly victims from the scene to a major medical center, bypassing local community hospitals and transfer stabilized patients from various medical facilities to major medical centers for definitive treatment. Other MED-EVAC uses may include but are not limited to transport of premature infants to specialty care, transport of medical personnel to the scene of an accident, transport of premature infants to specialty care, transport of medical personnel to the scene of an accident, transport of premature infants to specialty care.

Common Cause says it will focus on issues. The Blue Peacock Players will perform "Folktales from the Orient" beginning at 1:30 p.m. Monday. Family choice: family doctor

Nearly half of all female medical students are opting for careers as family physicians, according to Dr. John J. Pastore, president of the New Jersey Association of Family Physicians. Citing a study made last year by the Association, Dr. Pastore noted that 44 percent of the women medical students are selecting family practice as their specialty and that the specialty is turning to in time of medical need. We welcome and encouraging all aspiring physicians to consider the specialty of family medicine for their career plans.
 Dr. Pastore noted that the specialty of family medicine is becoming increasingly important in the rendering of emergency care and transport of medical supplies, and that the specialty is becoming increasingly important in the rendering of emergency care and transport of medical supplies.

Average wage jumps 7.3 pct.

The average straight time pay of office workers employed in private industry in the Newark region rose 7.3 percent between January 1977 and January of this year, said Herbert Blenstock, regional commissioner of the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.
 In an analysis of findings from the latest survey conducted by the bureau of office workers in the Newark area, Blenstock noted that among the blue collar occupations studied, average straight time hourly earnings of skilled maintenance workers were up 8.3 percent over the year earlier. For unskilled workers, the 1977-78 increase also was 8.3 percent, compared to a 8.3 percent hike for 1976-77.
