Cost for development of the park has been estimated at $2.4 million, with $1.3 million to be used for the site and $1.1 million for the balance of the park for recreational use.

Cieri said he met with Freeholders Peter Okrasinski, Virginia McKey and Thomas Long to discuss changing the location.

"The Freeholders were very receptive to moving the site of the proposed firing range to Union," Cieri said.

"The firing range is located in a residential, industrial and commercial areas, and the purpose of the meeting was to object to it," Cieri said.

Biography of A.J. Liebling added to collection

Following are reviews of the recently received books at the Springfield Public Library.

By ROSE P. SIMON
REPORTER PAR EXCELLENCE
"Wayward Reporter," by Raymond S. Skalav

A prolific, vigorous, funny writer, Abbot Joseph Liebling, left his legacy mostly in personal records, in scattered documents and in the memories of friends and colleagues. His most memorable articles were in the areas of press criticism, pugilistic chronicles, book reviews, and front-line dispatches from France. Among his books—none best sellers—were "Between Meals," "Nostalgia Revisited," "The Sacred Science," "The Wayward Pressman," and "The Earl of Louisiana."

Liebling was born in 1904 in Manhattan. His education was unremarkable, but he was a self-styled intellectual and a self-dissociated himself as much as possible (with a few exceptions) from his religious and racial heritage. His third wife, the writer Jean Stafford, was quoted as saying, "Even herself didn't make him an intensely self-conscious Jew."

He was a brilliant student, with precocious literary talents and a Dartmouth (several years) and the Pulitzer Prize for Journalism at Columbia. He held for 30 years of newspaper, gained recognition for his contributions to the New Yorker (Notes and mments). Talk of the Town, The New York Times, and other publications were vied, but he focused on barroom chide, boxing, Broadway characters, women and picknick. Although he was not political, Liebling was a liberal, and he was in the forefront of the persecuted A. J. government and journalism, his appetite grew for his life, eventually causing his death in 1980.

MANIPULATION AND MASSACRE
"The Children of Jonestown," by Kenneth Surin

Most of them remember the brutal, sadistic concentration camp in Jonestown, Guyana, and the inconceivable day in 1978, when 278 children were massacred along with many adults. Jones' death is a self-dissociated himself as much as possible (with a few exceptions) from his religious and racial heritage. His third wife, the writer Jean Stafford, was quoted as saying, "Even herself didn't make him an intensely self-conscious Jew."

whether single, married, or divorced, in some sense they feel more or less uprooted. Special groups (those moving most frequently) to be considered are the families transferred by corporations, and those in the academic and professional worlds. There often is organized help—locating, buying and selling of homes, shipping of household goods, etc., but emotional problems remain. Recognizing the need for reducing relocation trauma, these two psychologists founded their own consulting service: Transition Inc.

This job relocation handbook is geared to assisting transplanted families suffering from anxieties, fears, and traumas. Checklists are provided to evaluate the risks and benefits before moving. Courses to be added in regional schools

The Union County Regional Board of Education Monday night authorized Dr. Martin Siegel, director of instruction, to reinstate several course offerings for the 1981-82 school year.

A total of six class sections in the district's four high schools are being activated for the new school year.

The six class sections were courses dropped during the 1980-81 school year because of declining enrollment, according to Siegel.

Based on Siegel's recommendations, the board agreed to go back to a grouping rather than a combining of courses.

Siegel said grouping was the breakdown of a class into two levels, above average and average.

Courses reinstated at Jonathan

Dayton Regional High School will include French II and French III.

According to Siegel, a return to grouping courses would create an above average and an average section in the district's four high schools.

If the board were to approve a reinstatement of the sections, they would be approximately $19,500, according to Siegel.

"The reinstatement of courses is the board's desire for a quality educational program at all four high schools in the district," Siegel said.

Budget restrictions and declining enrollment in certain courses forced the board last year to combine students in courses rather than to group them, according to Siegel.

High school fares well on minimum skills tests

The results of the New Jersey Minimum Basic Skills Test, administered in March to all students in grades nine and 11 at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield, have been released by Dr. Francis X. Kenny, director of Public Personnel Services for the Union County Regional High School District.

The minimum passing score on the tests was 75 percent correct on the reading test and 60 percent on the mathematics test.

The majority of the Dayton students scored in the upper two test score ranges.

In mathematics 95.1 percent of minimum passing students scored at or above the minimum passing score.

Ninety-three and seven-tenths of a percent of the juniors tested in reading scored at or above the state Department of Education standards and in mathematics 91.5 percent met or surpassed the minimum passing score.

Rutgers prof offers clues for troubled transit

Transportation in New Jersey and throughout the country is in trouble, with rail and bus riders paying exorbitant fares and motorists straining the energy supply as well as risking damage to their cars on potholed highways and byways, according to Dr. James A. Dunn Jr., an associate professor of political science at Rutgers University's Camden campus.

Dr. Dunn believes he has discovered some clues for solutions to these problems—by comparing various modes of American transportation with those of three western European countries.

In his first book, "Miles to Go—European and American Transportation Policies," the MIT Press (Cambridge and London), the state university planned rail network in piecemeal fashion in which French railroads were brought under public ownership and points out the similar—but lagging—trend in the United States for the federal government to take over private ownership.

He also contrasts the relative success of mass transit in American urban conglomerates with the relative success of mass transit in West Germany, and examines the rise and fall of the road fund in Great Britain in terms of the perspective it offers on the American experience in highway building.

Dunn will present his views at a national forum next week when he testifies before a U.S. House of Representatives subcommittee that will help decide America's transportation policy on the American experience in highway building.

The expert from New Jersey's state university will discuss lessons that can be learned from the European experience in his June 25 testimony before the Subcommittee on Public Works Transportation, which oversees the House Committee on Public Works Transportation. Dunn laments, "I'm afraid that we still haven't made the decision that public planning can legitimately have a high-quality public rail system as a goal," he says. "We may-in fits and starts, highway system and its various modes of American transportation with those of three western European countries.

have seen much more innovation in providing alternatives to cars: better paths, transportation and what Germans call "traffic lanes," or streets that limit auto traffic through urban architecture, including repairing the area and removing curbs adding speed bumps, planting trees and installing benches and bicycle racks. Cars can get into villages, valleys and cities. Housing developments, suggests, should be designed with convenience in mind and not be located in out-of-the-way spots far from shopping and recreational areas. Residential areas should be built around transit stations and Harvard scholars from five foreign nations and Harvard, Berkeley, Purdue, MIT as well as Dunn from Rutgers-Camden, are being consulted in a multi-national research project on the future of the automobile. The project, Marshall Fund of the United States, by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology these researchers are to drive a 4,000-pound car (MIT) and involves help receive the dilemma of economic dependence on automobile manufacture and employment.

SSI: Delay can be costly

People who delay applying for Social Security retirement or survivor benefits for some time after they become eligible may be affected by the decline of the law which took effect March 1, according to John H. McCutcheon, Elizabeth Social Security district manager.

Under the new law, back payments are limited to six months before the month they apply if they are eligible.

More information about applications for Social Security benefits can be obtained at the Elizabeth Social Security office, at 212 Westminster Ave., telephone 800-272-1111.

Can you find the five areas in this room where cool air and energy are wasted?

The more areas you can find and correct in your own home, the more energy dollars you can save this summer. To test your energy awareness, check your answers against the five energy-saving tips below:

Lights: Turn off heat produced by lighting and other heat-producing appliances — TV sets, stoves, dryers, etc. — must be removed by your air conditioner.

Close windows and outside doors! Remind the kids not to hold doors open and let the hot air rush in.

Close the drapes! Or draw the shades. Keep out the heat of the sun.

Set temperature higher to 78°F! Running the air conditioner at its lowest setting won't cool your room off any faster. Don't keep the temperature setting any lower than is necessary for your comfort.

Install units on the shady side of the house. Direct sunlight falling on a window air conditioning unit increases its workload and costs more to run.

Check your energy awareness score!

- All 5 correct A wise energy miser!
- 3 to 4 correct An energy-conscious consumer!
- 1 to 2 correct Bush up on energy conservation!

Union man becomes Bar Mitzvah at age 65

By SUSAN SCHWARZ
Dr. Ezekiel Barber of Field Road, Union, started to work when he was eight years old, made his fortune as he went through middle age, started college at age 60, was graduated with a doctorate on his 64th birthday, and Saturday, at age 65, he celebrated a Bar Mitzvah in Congregation Beth Shalom, Union.

Dr. Barber admits that he is not a very observant Jew, but he knew that he had to have a Bar Mitzvah because of a promise. He could not become a Bar Mitzvah at age 13 (which is the age most Jewish boys are Bar Mitzvah) because his family was having financial trouble.

At this point, he says, "I've accomplished all I've set out to do in my life—except this."

Having a Bar Mitzvah ceremony was important to Barber not only for Jewish reasons, but because he had made two promises to his mother before she died. The first was to finish high school, the second was to become a Bar Mitzvah. He not only kept his word on both promises. He started college at an age when most of his peers would be retiring and got his bachelor of science degree in one year from the State University of New York. He earned a master's degree from Kean College of New Jersey in Union in six months. He also earned a Ph.D. in social anthropology from International College in California.

At the college, Barber studied on a one-to-one basis under Professor Raphael Patai. "The college," said Barber, "is not prestigious, but he (Patai) is."

Barber's teacher impressive credentials. He was awarded the first Ph.D. from Hebrew University in Jerusalem, and he has written several hundred articles and more than two dozen books. Although Barber got started later than Patai, he is quickly working his way toward Patai's publishing mark. Dr. Barber has had several books published, and "The House of India: Images and Reality," a new book, will be published this month.

Most of what Barber has written has been about India. He has studied the country and has first-hand knowledge because he and his wife of 46 years, Estelle, have owned a house in India since 1966 in addition to their home in Union. They live in India for two months of every year.

The couple fell in love with the country while on one of many overseas journeys. Barber has been around the world seven times and in Europe 11 times. In September, he will travel to Israel for the eighth time and repeat his Bar Mitzvah at the Wall. "Originally," he says, "it was supposed to be done there."

Since he could not get to Israel for his birthday, he had to settle for a ceremony in Beth Shalom, and it became an international event. Many of the 75 guests in the synagogue (a reception followed at the Town and Campus) came from India, Israel and all over the United States to see Dr. Barber call up to the Torah and read a section from the Prophets.

The guests at the service also heard a Bar Mitzvah speech that was somewhat different from the usual "Today I am a man" speech one hears from a 13-year-old.

DR. EZEKIEL BARBER is seen studying for his Bar Mitzvah ceremony at home on Field Road, Union. Dr. Ezekiel, at 65, celebrated the event Saturday morning in Congregation Beth Shalom, Union. (AndRich Studios)

Dispute over playoff system

Who's No. 1 in junior baseball league?

By RON BRANDENBERGER
Springfield's Junior League took a lesson from the striking Major League last weekend and took its baseball off the field and into the clubhouse.

The change of scenery created a bit of controversy in the township, as the director of the Junior League's Major League resigned and a group of parents had to be evicted of the Springfield Pool field by police during a Saturday evening sit-in.

All the off-the-field excitement started back in March when Craig Mettice, then the Major League director, devised a new playoff system to handle

"an emergency meeting was called because Mr. Mettice's schedule was against all the policies this league had followed for 19 years," he continued. "We voted to override Mr. Mettice's schedule and go to a double-elimination format. Any team that lost two games would be eliminated."

Prior to that decision, Crestmont lost a spot in the playoffs by suffering Masco Sports, giving that team its second loss and bumping it out of the playoffs. That meant Crestmont, Keyes Martin, the Elks Club and Carter Bell advanced to the next round of playoff action.

Royals, Giants breeze to softball league titles

The Royals and the Giants picked up championships last week in the Springfield Girls' Softball League.

Coaching the Royals to the Upper League crown were fathers Bob Wasserman and Steve Rosenthal. For Wasserman, it was title No. 2 in two years, since he directed a team to the Lower League championship a year ago.

The Royals received a bye in the first round of the playoffs and knocked off the Yankees who had stopped the Yankees in the second round of play. That meant a showdown with the Cinderella White Sox, a winner over the Indians and the Red Sox, in the final.

The Royals took care of their final opponent easily, closing their championship season with a 10-2 record and a 2-2 victory over the Sox.

Elina Haise and Kathy Drummond combined their pitching talents in the championship game.

Other team members of the Royals included Crissy Clarke, Terri Freeman, Amy Greenman, Kathy Drummond, Jennifer Felberbaum, Lisa Montanari, Michele Rogauskas, Elena Rosenthal, Robin Silverman, Dana Wasserman, Nancy Quatrecas and Stacey Piferigo.

The second-place White Sox were coached by Jocelyn Glassp and Donna Bluhm and team members were Cynthia Balala, Lisa Balala, Betsy Burnett, Jenny Fabricant, Joyceann Glassen, Andrea Librizzi, Holly Macaluso, April Peterson, Dawn Polihman, Sherri Solomon, Dawn Severini, Kimberly Sommer, Nancy Stein, Lori Vogel and Mary Plata.

Over in the Lower Division, the Giants outdid the Cardinals and the Mets to become the winless Padres to set up a championship showdown.

The Giants won that showdown, 3-1, behind the route-pitching performance of Leslie Weinger. Coached by Lance Bartel and Mark Epstein, team members included Diane Barreiros, Felice Barreiros, Jennifer Epstein, Cynthia Gomes, Adina Lubetkin, Jenny Mattice, Laurie Pedersen, Nancy Rosenthal, Alison Saunders, Staci Uchitel, Brenda Hockstein and Weinger.

The second-place Mets were coached by veteran Nancy Benigno and Hilary Feig. The team members were: Michele Afflitto, Marianna Roffa, Daniella DiPalma, Tara Marcantunio, Karen McCourt, Fumelia Nardanz, Melissa Pederson, Stephanie Ruella, Cherylann Schmidt, Jennifer Scilla, Laura Hyslop, Jane Roth and Stephanie Schlosser.

League participants received awards in a post-tournament ceremony.

the league's odd number of teams. According to the so-called "Metlice System," the first team to suffer two losses would be eliminated from playoff action and then the remaining four teams would proceed in a round-robin format until a winner was declared.

"I'm midway through the new system, the League's Board of Directors got together in a special emergency meeting and voted to change the format," said the league's president, Harry Weimerman.

The board's decision was met with a great deal of opposition from parents and players alike. "I don't think it's fair to eliminate a team after just two losses," said one parent. "It's unfair to the kids and to the coaches who have worked so hard to get them to this point."

Carlos Hernandez was the big star for Springfield at the Junior Olympics state meet at Hopatcong High School.

Hernandez, who had broken the local junior record for the eight pound shot a few weeks earlier and won at the district level, unleashed a throw of 45.1. That was just half an inch off the state record and good enough for second place in the event.

Pete Peltino also bettered his personal record in the shot put, jumping with a leap of 15-3 good enough for third place at the state level.

Kathy Pedersen was a fourth place finisher in the junior girls shot put with a toss of 30-7.

Also competing in the meet were Missy Peterson, Jim DiMino, Andy Gomes, Jim Simoni, John Lussner, Mitch Friedberg, Leah Marko and Gregg Walsh.

Baseball team shooting for tournament crown

By ROBERT A. BRUCKNER
The Springfield American Legion Baseball team will be looking for another winning week in Union County League play and will now concentrate on the 1981 Springfield Tri-County Baseball Tournament.

That tournament, which will feature eight teams, will begin this evening when Clark and Livingston get together at Ruby Field at 6 p.m. game. Action will continue on Saturday with a triple-header-Roseville-Florham Park at 10:30 a.m., Westfield-Parsons at 1:30 p.m. and Springfield-Caldwell at 4:30 p.m.

The winners of the Clark-Livingston and Roseville-Florham Park games will meet on Sunday at 12:30 p.m., while the winners of the Westfield-Parsons and Springfield-Caldwell will meet on Saturday, July 4 at 10:30 a.m. at Ruby Field.

And the way Springfield coach Mel Vargas sees it, Post No. 228 has a good shot at reaching that championship game.

"Our first priority right now would be to win the tournament," Vargas explained. "Second, we would like to go to the regional tournament, but we can't worry about that until we've won the American Legion League title first. We can't worry about the state championship yet."

Bulldogs' Smith to play in all-star football game

Matt Smith will foot right at home on Saturday when he joins all-star football players from all over the state in the New Jersey Interscholastic Coaches Association's third annual North-South All-Star Football Game, which will be played at Rutgers Stadium in Piscataway beginning at 4 p.m.

Smith, an all-Suburban Conference and all-Union County selection at safety, was one of the biggest reasons for the success of Dayton's Bulldogs during the 1980 high school football season.

All he did in 1980 was make 11 interceptions, the top total in Union County, and run back 30 punts for 488 yards in that punt return yardage

Center for Women offers ideas, advice

The Kean College Campus Center for Women has ended the year with a record of service to hundreds of persons.

2 aid in study of budget cuts

Rebecca Andrade and Dell Raudelunas are among those who have been named to serve on a committee to deal with the impact of the federal budget cuts on the state Department of Human Services.

The group will serve as an advisory unit to the human services commissioner in a review of the social service delivery system. Andrade is the executive director of the Essex County Department of Citizen Services. Raudelunas is the executive director of the New Jersey Association for Mental Health.

Entrance exams set at Gill-St. Bernard's

Gill-St. Bernard's School will hold entrance examinations for its lower, middle and upper schools Wednesday, July 8, and Aug. 18 at 1:30 p.m. in Stronghold on the school's Claremont Road, Bernardsville, campus.

Information on applications, testing reservations and campus tours is available by calling 234-1611.

Located in the bookstore building, the center has attracted women young and old. Discussion groups have sprung up, countless referrals are made for career guidance and personal counseling, and reading matter is provided on topics such as battered women and sexism in the workplace.

The center also sponsors WomanTalk, the free public weekly series of presentations by experts on cancer, world hunger, stress reduction and environmental hazards. Hundreds of women and men have attended WomanTalk throughout the year.

Ann Gross Linehan of Maplewood, who has more than 10 years of experience in human services and supervision, is the center's coordinator. Linda Zamer, a graduate assistant at Kean, was given responsibilities that included the weekly discussion group for the non-traditional woman student. Linehan describes the function of the center as specific but not formal.

"We exist to fill in the gaps, and we're finding that the cross-section of people using the center is increasing drastically," Linehan adds. "As one example, Linda's group dealing with independence and assertiveness comprises four women who are single parents."

According to the coordinator, the strictly part-time operation of the center will continue to provide service through resource files "because we've become a clearinghouse of information, and it's been well appreciated."

IHS Class of 1972 to hold reunion

Members of Irvington High School class of 1972 are being sought for a reunion. Al Joy, head of the committee, said the group is seeking help from classmates interested in planning the event, as well as current addresses of 1972 graduates.

Anyone with information about grads or for more details on the reunion, contact Joy at 373-3200 or Mitch Axelrod at 575-6284.

Stone collages being shown

Work by the late Lee Gatch, acquired by the Newark Museum after the artist's 1972 retrospective, are on exhibit at the museum through Sept. 21.

Gatch (1902-1968) lived in Lambertville with his wife, artist Elsie Riggs, for more than 30 years. His innovative "stone collages" incorporate stones from Lambertville and neighboring quarries along the Delaware River.

Pearl C. Thurlow, the Newark Museum's curator of painting and sculpture, says, "The artist's work combines an abstraction closely related to natural forms and a personal symbolism which has been linked to that of Arthur Dove, Karl Knaths and Morris Graves as well as to the French symbolists of the turn of the century."

Included in the exhibition will be the oils "Fish Market" (ca. 1951), "The Lamb" (1957), the stone collages "Angel Stone" (1967) and "Fossil Tablet" (1962) and two collages acquired in the 1960s, "Jurassic Flower" and "Pueblo Strata."

The Newark Museum, located at 49 Washington St., is open every day from noon to 5 p.m. Admission is free.

The selection of Joseph Beninato as feast director of the St. Rocco Festival has been announced by James P. All, president of the American Italian Cultural Society of Union County.

The St. Rocco Festival will be open Aug. 7 at O'Brien Field in the Peterstown section of Elizabeth, and close on Aug. 17. The field is between Second and Third Avenues and Christine and South Seventh Streets.

Assisting Beninato will be Thomas De Stefano, field supervisor; Charles Slango, assistant field supervisor; Peter Crincoli, treasurer; Lilian Ulliano, assistant treasurer; Jean Harrigan, office manager; Mary De Stefano, assistant office manager; Rocco J. Gallo, entertainment chairman; Rita Dowzycki and Marlin Nocera, Beauty Pageant cocktail women, and Martha Nocera and Howard Freund, publicity and public relations.

The feast will open with a gala ceremony on Aug. 7 and close with elaborate fireworks on Aug. 16.
