Of course, we are sad to see Senese go. He will be missed at Dayton - as an English teacher and as a coach. But it is an important step for Senese and a decision made with his wife and the expected arrival of their first child in mind.

There is little more that Senese can accomplish at Dayton; there is even less that he has to prove. In four years, he took a football program that was considered one of the biggest lokes in the state — failing to win in 19 games at one point — and turned it into a winner.

The fact that the Bulldogs advanced all the way to the North Jersey, Section II, Group II championship game this season and were beaten 7-6 by Hackettstown is secondary. What is certainly more important is Senese's off-the-field

Senese - and his talented assistant coaches - taught the Bulldogs enough X's and O's to make them competitive with their opponents. He taught them enough about school pride, self-pride and dedication to make them winners — in fact,

And when the 8-3 Buildogs trudged off the field that cold December day in Hackettstown, Senese Insisted that his players march off in double file, heads held high. It was a class move by a class coach.

No one can be bitter about Senese's departure. He stuck with his kids from their freshman to senior seasons and he left after the best football season in many years at Dayton. He leaves the Bulldog football program as strong as it ever

It will be difficult for Dayton's football players and fans to_ adjust to a new coach and, possibly, a new system. They grew to appreciate the Senese system and they saw, firsthand, that it worked. And worked well. And they saw Seriese work very hard to improve Dayton's
