Regional Board revising its committee opera...

By LYNN JOFFE
The Regional Board of Education District No. 1 voted Tuesday night to approve a preamble to board policy on first reading and reassign committee chairmen and members.

The preamble revises the current board system of operation through committees. "The committees will study issues referred to them and then report back to the full Board of Education for board action," according to the introductory statement.

After the committees complete issue studies, a written report is to be made to the board.

The different committees under which we function have perimeters under which they function. But there has been some overlap," member David Hart said. "We felt there was too close a bond between some of these things. We want to give the board the freedom to decide when there is overlapping."

Board member Joseph Vitale pointed out that "there is hardly a school activity that doesn't come under the scope of the business committee."

Board President Stephen Marcinko outlined his reasons for the committee reassignments in which committees and committee chairmen will function on an annual rotational system. According to him, most board members were in favor of the rotational system in a survey sent to them.

Local schools prepare to open doors Monday

As Labor Day officially closes the summer season, so September opens the new school year. Due to the Jewish holidays today and tomorrow, the opening of schools has been scheduled for Monday at which time students in grades kindergarten through eight will attend a full day session.

The school district has announced the following admittance and dismissal schedules for the 1983-84 school year:

Kindergarten through fourth grade students of the James Caldwell and Thelma L. Sandmeier schools will hear the first bell at 8:40 a.m. The morning session will run from 8:45 to 11:50; and the afternoon session from 12:50 to 3:40 p.m.

Fifth through eighth graders of the Florence M. Gaudinier School are scheduled for classes from 8:20 a.m. to 3:40 p.m.

New Jersey students starting an returning to school this week will find a program in their schools' curriculum which will be new to some, familiar to others, but now mandatory from pre-kindergarten right through 12th grade.

The program, called "Family Life Education," was adopted as a health course requirement by the State Board of Education after a careful study conducted in 1980 and will be implemented in all schools starting this fall.

In announcing the new courses, Commissioner Saul Cooperman said that the "board committee studied all facets of the problem for eight months, and subsequently solicited and demonstrated that the majority of New Jersey citizens fully support the concept."

"In communities throughout the state," Cooperman explained, "school board members, parents, teachers, mental and physical health experts and interested citizens have been hard at work preparing for this moment by developing detailed curriculums and selecting instructional materials which suit the needs of their communities and children."

Citing state health statistics that showed some 4,100 cases of venereal disease in 12 to 18 year old New Jersey adolescents and 7,000 school-girl pregnancies last year, the commissioner said, "we must prepare youngsters to function effectively in contemporary society. This is a responsibility that should be shared by the home, community, religious institutions and the schools."

Lesser gains 'Who's Who' honor

Dr. Bernard Lesser of Garden Oval has been named to the 19th edition of Who's Who in the East for his "contribution to the betterment of society."

Lesser, who serves in a top level government management position, is currently the Internal Revenue Service's Examination Division Chief in the State of New Jersey.

He has earned national recognition through awards for his outstanding achievements. Included in those awards were the following: a citation from then-President Richard Nixon for youth work, particularly in the area of drug abuse; the 1981 Treasury Department's National Equal Employment Opportunity award of the year; a special award from the Secretary of the Department of the Treasury in 1969 for fostering mutual understanding and exchange of information among various religious and ethnic programs for disadvantaged youth; and the Regional Commissioner's Award (RHS) for development of an outstanding integrity program in 1980.

Local youngsters comply with a new moped law

Clifford W. Snedeker, director of the New Jersey Division of Motor Vehicles, recently reminded all moped owners that they must have their motorized bicycles titled, registered and displaying a license plate by Tuesday if they want to continue operating them on public roadways.

"Before the titling and registration requirements became effective on June 13, we had received various estimates that there were anywhere from 70,000 to 100,000 mopeds in New Jersey," Snedeker said. "However, through the end of July, we had titled and registered only about 10,000. So it seems many individuals are planning to wait until the last minute to comply. This could prove to be a mistake."

According to Springfield Juvenile Detective Edward Kisch, there have been virtually no problems with township youngsters complying with the newer moped laws. "The moped problem in Springfield has been nonexistent. With the licensing of drivers, requiring them to wear helmets and the licensing of the moped itself, the accidents that had been happening have been greatly reduced."

According to Kisch, about 30 teenagers between the ages of 15 and 17 own and are licensed to operate mopeds.

Still, Tuesday is D-day for those youngsters who have not obtained the correct licensing. After Tuesday, police around the state will be directed to ticket the operator of any moped that fails to display a special New Jersey moped license plate. The plates are an off-white color with blue lettering and say "Moped" across the top.

Anyone who fails to meet the requirements will be subject to fines of up to $100 for each violation, Snedeker said.

The title, registration and license plate requirements became effective on June 13. However, anyone owning or buying a moped before that date was given 90 days to comply with the law. "That 90 days ends on Tuesday," Snedeker said, "so moped operators only have a few days left to meet the requirement, since our agencies are clearing out mopeds."

Since few individuals who acquired mopeds prior to June 13 have a manufacturer's statement of origin, a bill of sale or any other valid proof of ownership, the Division of Motor Vehicles will accept a sworn affidavit from the applicant attesting to his or her ownership. That convenience will only be available during the 90-day grace period ending Tuesday.

The affidavit must contain the year, make, vehicle identification number, or the business name and address of the dealer, the name and address of the owner and a statement indicating that the vehicle is in fact a moped.

GOP supports Citron, Drucker

SPRINGFIELD—Republican Township Committee candidates Ron Citron and Greg Drucker see themselves as "complementary additions to a governing body which derives its excellence from the diversity of its members."

A governing body can only be as good as its individual members," said Drucker, who is a partner member of Jon Springer and Associates, industrial psychologists. Drucker recently submitted a organizational investigation of the Springfield Board of Education, as contracted by the Board and Kean College/Springer.

Having received a BA in psychology from Kean College where he was a member of Psi Chi National Honor Society (3.7), Lambda Alpha Sigma Liberal Arts and Science Honor Society (4.0) and was a recipient of the Academic Achievement Award (average 4.0, 1982-1983), Drucker is working on two masters degrees, one from Rutgers in industrial relations and human resources, and the other from Kean College in behavioral science and organizational psychology.

In my awareness of the necessary steps in the investigative process, which guarantees the electorate that when I vote on an issue, I've taken the trouble to seek out the voter feels."

Dems pick campaign managers

SPRINGFIELD—Democratic candidates for the Springfield Township Committee, incumbents Bill Cieri and Stanley Kaish, recently announced their campaign managers for their bid for re-election to the Township Committee: Nat Stokes, Bob Wetelchek, and Richard Monticello were named by the Democratic ticket as campaign managers, as Cieri and Kaish hope to keep the two-party system of government alive this November in the local elections.

Stokes and his wife, Estelle, are 25 year residents of Springfield. Stokes has spent a nine-year tenure as a Township Committeeman, as well as presiding as mayor of Springfield for two terms. Wetelchek, a local real estate broker and attorney, has resided in Springfield for 20 years with his wife, Beverlee. He has spent 12 years on the Township Committee, as well as serving three terms as mayor. Richard Monticello, who has lived in town with his wife, Mary, for over 25 years, is active in the Boy Scout Program, Little League, and has served as campaign manager for Cieri and Kaish during their last two successful bids for Township Committee posts.

Additional information on the event may be obtained by calling 467-9067, or by contacting Bruce Pitman at 686-7020.

SPRINGFIELD—The Summit Area YMCA is about to begin its 88th year of continuous service to the community. Registration is now in progress for the first seven week cycle of classes, which will begin next week.

Class offerings for youth include an extensive aquatic schedule of after-school swimming lessons available for boys and girls of all ages and levels of ability, and Senior Lifesaving certification and scuba diving courses for older teenagers.

Sports instruction will be offered in soccer, basketball, kickball, floor hockey, track and field, and gymnastics, including apparatus and trampoline, classes in self-defense and karate.

The Y is offering a Colonial Arts and Crafts which will include quilting, making wooden toys, colonial cooking etc. The Y is also pleased offering for girls, ages 5-9, an opportunity to take ballet classes from Elizabeth Kurylo, a former dancer with the Ballet Russe, and the Mercer Cunningham company who now resides in Summit.

Pre-school children can sign up for a variety of activities geared to their abilities. The one to three year olds can learn to swim or exercise with a little assistance from their parents in Aqu

Blood drive set

MOUNTAINSIDE—New Jersey Blood Services, the state's largest processor and distributor of blood and blood components, in cooperation with the American Red Cross will mark its 10th year of service to New Jersey residents this month.

The Westfield-MountainSide Chapter of the American Red Cross, in conjunction with the 10th anniversary, has announced a blood drive to be held at the Chapter House at 31 Elm St., Westfield, on Tuesday, from 2 to 7:30 p.m. Donors may call the Red Cross at 232-7099 to make an appointment for blood donation or those interested donors may simply walk in.

As the American Red Cross blood program for central and northern New Jersey, New Jersey Blood Services expects to collect, process and distribute almost 80,000 pints of blood in 1983. Any help will be greatly appreciated.

Registrations under way for rec programs

Registrations are under way for a variety of sports programs sponsored by the MountainSide Recreation Commission for the fall.

Men's basketball is scheduled to begin Wednesday at Deerfield School. The gym will be open from 8 to 10 p.m. on Wednesdays throughout the year, but will be closed when there are school programs and during school holidays.

The women's volleyball program is scheduled to meet Monday evenings from 8 to 10 p.m. at Deerfield School beginning Monday. This program will also meet throughout the school year.

The MountainSide-Springfield Soccer League kicks off the season on Sept. 24. Boys and girls from both towns will play together on teams in the Upper Division (grades 6-8) and the Middle Division (grades 3-5).

Practices and games are scheduled for Saturday and Sunday afternoons. The registration fee is $5 per person, and sign-ups are being accepted at the Recreation Office through Sept. 15.

The adult aerobic dance program is scheduled to begin on Monday evening at the Vail-Deane School. The 10-week course will meet on Monday and Wednesday evenings from 7:00 to 9:30 p.m. and is under the direction of the Rogers Dance Studio. The registration fee is $50 per person.

For additional information on any of these programs, contact the Recreation Office at 232-0015.

TENNIS CHAMP—Top-seeded Bland Eng (left) of Springfield, who is coached by his mother, Susie (center), accepts championship trophy from tournament director Bob Smith for winning the recent 20th annual Essex County Youth Tennis Singles Championships, boys 12 and under division. Eng dropped only one game in four matches at Brookdale Park, Montclair, en route to the final where he disposed of his opponent, 6-3, 6-2.

Soccer rec program is forming

The Springfield recreation soccer program, run each fall for Springfield boys and girls in grades 1 through 8, also will be open this year to children from MountainSide.

The program includes an upper league for grades 6-8, a lower league for grades 3-5, and an instructional clinic for children in grades 1 and 2.

A registration session for children wishing to play in the program will be held Thursday, Sept. 15, at the Sarah Bailey Recreation Center from 6 to 8 p.m. MountainSide children may sign up through the borough's recreation department.

Application forms will be available in each town. Play is scheduled to start on Sept. 24 and will continue with practices and games on both Saturday and Sunday each week through mid-November.

The soccer program, although a part of the Springfield's recreation program, has always been run by volunteers. This year, an organizing committee consisting of Mary Ann Pabat, Tony Macias, Frank Scheinmann and Saul Grohs has been working with the recreation departments of both towns.

Additional volunteers are needed to assist with coaching and for other jobs. Anyone interested should contact a committee member or their town recreation director. An important meeting for coaches and other volunteers will be held at 8 p.m., Tuesday, at Sarah Bailey Recreation Center in Springfield.

CBS all-stars play hospital 9

CBS-TV anchorman Jim Jensen, whose All-Star softball team played a game to benefit Children's Specialized Hospital in MountainSide at the recent Westfield Chamber of Commerce Fun Day, will revisit the area Friday, Sept. 23 to play the hospital's men's softball team.

The night game will be played at the Springfield Municipal Pool Softball Field at 8 p.m. Admission will be $3 and all proceeds will benefit Children's Specialized.

"If the fans enjoyed the game in Westfield," said hospital Executive Director Richard Ahlfeld, "they'll want to be among the first to buy tickets to see Jim Jensen pitch under the lights."

Old-fashioned 'town meeting' packs them in

By PHILIP HARTMAN
It was a scene reminiscent of pre-electronic media days when New Jersey Senator Bill Bradley conducted a "town meeting" in Union County last Thursday.

The room at the Cranford Town Hall was jam-packed as Bradley arrived at 3 p.m., fresh from a tour of Environmental Protection Agency facilities in Edison, where he had called for more federal funds to support operations at the site.

Bradley answered questions for more than one hour at the town meeting, which was one of a series he has held throughout the state since he was elected senator in 1978. His purpose, he said, was to "listen to concerns" and become "better able to do the job you have elected me to do."

The bulk of discussion centered on nuclear armament, petroleum reserves and conservation, urban blight, taxes, toxic waste clean-up, state recreational lands and overall government waste.

On nuclear armaments, Bradley said that he is concerned that modern weapons have become "more sophisticated and dangerous" and called for a "nuclear build-down." He argued for the United States to halt the program that in December is scheduled to deploy Pershing 1 cruise missiles in Europe.

"Tests show the Pershings are not accurate" and have other problems, he said.

He also called for a reduction in the number of intermediate range missiles aimed at NATO countries in Europe, along with a reduction in strategic missiles based in the Soviet Union and aimed at the United States. And to further reduce defense spending, Bradley said he would also eliminate the MX missile, the B-1 bomber, which he called outdated, and keep 13 nuclear aircraft carriers instead of 14.

The senator said that he is pushing for increased stockpiling of oil reserves, kept in salt domes in Louisiana, to fend off future oil crises akin to those in 1973-74, 1979 and 1980. Bradley is a member of the congressional Energy Committee.

"It is a hedge against the possibility we might have yet have another oil supply disruption," said Bradley, who added that his goal is to have 3.75 million gallons, or 200 days' worth of oil, stockpiled to run the nation's auto's and industry in an emergency. Bradley called for a federal mandate to reserve 220,000 to 300,000 barrels per day. He characterized a U.S. without oil stockpiles as being "like an individual who doesn't have a savings account."

As for the blight on urban areas in the U.S., and in particular several major cities in New Jersey, Bradley said he has "no easy answer, but I happen to think our urban areas do have a future."

Bradley described the problem as a circle, with an eroding tax base giving way to declining services, forcing people to leave, which further erodes the tax base.

Solutions, he said, include expansion on "sufficient land in the urban environment" for manufacturing jobs coinciding with government subsidized programs to train skilled workers; the use of technology in solid waste conversion to provide less expensive energy for industry; support of an "urban enterprise zone" creating an area where businesses would receive tax incentives and follow less stringent regulations; a "maximum investment in education" in urban areas; and a "voucher system" with area community colleges for the private and government sectors to partly pay for skills training among the "hard core pockets of unemployed."

On income tax, Bradley responded that he favors a basic 14 percent rate with a progressive surtax that would raise taxes to a maximum 30 percent of a family's gross income. Under Bradley's system, "14 percent applies to about 80 percent of the citizens," said the senator.

Calling the basic rate a "fairer and simpler way" and in the "general interest" of all citizens, Bradley added that "I see no reason why it couldn't be

ANATOMY LESSON—Lynn Czarniecki, clinical nurse specialist at Children's Specialized Hospital, Mountainside, explains the anatomy and physiology of the respiratory system to parents of children with asthma at the hospital.

Police recruits ready to begin training course

The 48th session of the Union County Police Basic Training Academy for law enforcement recruits will open tomorrow at the Cranford campus of Union County College, it was announced by Dr. John B. Wolf, academy director.

The academy, which is operated jointly by the Union County Police Chief's Academy and the college, provides basic training for new recruits in law enforcement agencies in Union County.

Training at the academy has been a legal requirement for new police officers in New Jersey since 1966. The 12-week basic program includes the study of such topics as administration of justice; patrol practices; group behavior; physical skills, investigations, highway safety, fingerprinting, interviewing techniques, crime scene sketches and traffic control.

Take a deep breath: new program starts

Parents of children with asthma or other long-term breathing problems can register for the next family respiratory care course at Children's Specialized Hospital, Mountainside.

The program, conducted in cooperation with the American Lung Association of Central New Jersey, will be held weekly from 7 to 8:30 p.m. every Tuesday beginning Sept. 20 and continuing through Oct. 25. It is part of the Respiratory Education and Support Program (RESP).

To provide for individualized attention, registration will be limited to 10 families. The RESP service augments the medical treatment plan of the family physician and all participants must be referred by their physician.

During the sessions, emphasis is placed on education and better family management of the breathing problems encountered by the child to increase the parent's knowledge about their child's specific problem, causes and home care.

The RESP service is available to parents whose children have asthma, bronchopulmonary dysplasia, bronchiectasis, chronic upper airway obstruction and congenital birth defects.

Parents can meet and talk with other parents experiencing similar problems; and the youngsters have an opportunity to share their feelings with their peers and the professionals who conduct the sessions.

The service also is designed to increase the school-aged child's tolerance of physical activity by exercises which involve swimming in the hospital's indoor heated pool, playing volleyball and other games.

Further information about entry into the program is available by calling 233-3720 and asking for RESP information.

A 'marketing' campaign brings in freshmen

A local "marketing" campaign has been credited with pushing freshman enrollment at Kean College of New Jersey up 29 percent over last year's figures — to 899 from the 691 of a year ago.

In addition to the upsurge in admissions, Scholastic Aptitude Test scores for the freshmen continued their climb, up 18 points this year and a total of 50 points in the past two years.

The Kean increase runs counter to national demographic trends which show a steady decline in the number of 18-22 year old traditional students, according to Nathan Weiss, president.

"This substantial increase in numbers and test scores is a positive trend that we hope will continue as the college meets its challenge," he said.

Kean's freshman upswing was a result of a marketing campaign targeting local students, according to Brian Lewis of Scotch Plains, admissions director.

Lewis said this is the first phase of a five-year plan to beef up admissions and attract higher-scoring SAT students. The second phase will see revitalized publications resulting in better communications to bring even more information to the prospective students, Lewis said.

"More students have visited the Kean campus and have discovered quality programs, attractive grounds and prices they can afford right in their own backyard," Lewis said.

He added, "I am pleased with the overwhelmingly favorable initial results of the campaign." He also noted that admissions of transfer students "appears to be slightly above last year."

Journalism course slated

"Headlines and Deadlines: Today's Journalism" is the title of a new course to be offered by Union County College's Division of Continuing Education during the fall semester.

The 10-session non-credit course will meet on Wednesdays from 8:15 to 10:15 p.m. beginning Sept. 21. Designed to familiarize participants with the intricacies of day-to-day news writing and reporting, the course will also enable students to sharpen writing skills.

In addition to completing occasional writing assignments, students will critique newspapers, magazines and other media with the assistance of the instructor. The course will also include several group discussions led by working journalists.

Herb Ditzel III, a writer and journalist, will teach the course. Ditzel, a public relations coordinator for the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, Chronicle, the New York Times, Associated Press, Ganfolt News Service and other publications. He is a contributing writer and former full-time reporter for the Courier-News in Bridgewater.

Ditzel received a first place feature writing award recently from the New Jersey Press Association, and in 1980 he won an award for responsible journalism. Registration information may be obtained by calling UCC, 276-2600, extension 206 or 238.

 bipartisan in nature. If accepted, he added that he would tend to agree with a flat 10 percent rate but said that it might not raise enough revenues for the federal government.

Bradley said that "we face tough choices" for toxic waste clean up. "We have been previously pushing pollution around and not getting rid of it. Much is deposited in landfills in New Jersey and around the country." The result, he said, is a toxic waste problem.

Resource recovery - recycling garbage for useable materials and burning others for energy - is an "integrated approach" to remove pollution, he said. "The point is to recover materials at their source," said Bradley.

He added that toxic waste can be removed only by incineration and sludge or other materials cannot be dumped into water systems. "But it's a very tough question of where you put the incineration," added Bradley.

With regard to recreational lands, Bradley responded that New Jersey has a "unique resource managed in a unique way by the federal and state government - the Pinelands."

He also noted that, in the state, "25 percent of the land is wilderness."

The senator added that New Jersey this year received $2.5 million in federal funds to replenish the beaches on Sandy Hook.

Firm lists plans for open house

The Columbia Organization, which will observe its 45th anniversary in October, has invited more than 250 builders and architects to an open house Monday at its Branchburg facility. The Columbia Organization consists of Columbia Lumber and Millwork Co., with yards in Springfield and Branchburg, and Component Technology, Branchburg.

Jacob Goldman started Columbia Lumber in a six-car garage in Newark in 1938, selling millwork only. He opened his Springfield yard in 1959. With this move, Columbia expanded into dimensional lumber, mason materials and other building supplies.

Columbia opened a new yard in 1965 in Branchburg. The Springfield location became the headquarters for the millwork operation, including the manufacture of prehung door units and a custom millwork shop, while Branchburg handled dimensional lumber. Also in 1965, the Columbia Organization diversified into the truss manufacturing business under the name of Branchburg Truss Co.

Sold to a public corporation in 1970, Branchburg Truss was reacquired by the Columbia Organization in 1975 and renamed Component Technology.

In 1981, the Springfield yard was redesigned to accommodate a full line building supply center.

Classes slated in astronomy

"Introduction to Astronomy" will be offered at Union County College for the 16th consecutive year this fall. It was announced by Dr. Leonard T. Kreisman of Westfield, vice president for academic affairs.

The eight-session basic astronomy course for adults will be taught by members of Amateur Astronomers, Inc., which operates the Sperry Observatory jointly with Union County College. Classes will meet Mondays, 8 to 9 p.m., beginning Sept. 19.

"Introduction to Astronomy" is designed to acquaint the novice with the universe, motions and physical characteristics of planets, comets, meteors and stars, current cosmological theories, and man's exploration of space. There will be observing in the dome rooms of the Sperry Observatory on the Cranford campus on clear evenings following the lectures.

Since the basic astronomy course was first offered in 1967, more than 2,000 adults have taken this opportunity to learn more about the universe, Kreisman said. Tuition is $20.

County presents century-old map to college

An 1856 colored 5 1/2 x 5 1/2 foot map of the United States has been presented by Union County to Union County College in Cranford.

"It is most fitting to receive such a valuable gift of historical value as we are initiating the observance of our 50th anniversary as a college serving Union County residents," Dr. Saul Orkin, UCC president, said.

Dr. Orkin and County Clerk Walter Halpin of Fanwood, in whose office files the map was found in 1976, agreed that a college campus is an appropriate setting for what they described as this "historical treasure."

"It was hung in the rotunda of the Union County Court House in Elizabeth since 1977, but people were always rubbing by, and few persons took the time to study the map. In an educational institution, students, faculty and the interested citizens in the community can observe and study the map and its wealth of information," Halpin said.

Orkin predicted that there will be widespread interest in the dated map because of its rarity as a historical document. "It will be a priceless teaching instrument because it portrays the United States as it was in that period of our country's history," he said.

Among the map's array of 125-year old facts are: populations of each county in the U.S. according to the census of 1850; distance tables from major cities and ports for both land and sea routes (New York to San Francisco was 5,249 miles via the Panama Canal or 4,480 miles via the proposed railroad across Tehama); lengths of rivers, heights of mountains, Indian territories, global populations of America, Europe and all the continents, and the population of New Jersey's 20 counties. Union County was not established at that time, but Essex County had a population of 73,350 and Morris County had 30,158 inhabitants.

Cape May County had the smallest number of residents, with 6,433 listed. There were 31 states admitted to the Union by 1856.

The map was found in the bicentennial year of 1976 behind the files in the archives of the county clerk's office. With the permission of George Albanese, the county manager at that time, the map was restored and framed by Swain's Art Store in Plainfield. Numerous styles of printing are used on the map, which is entitled "Mitchell's New National Map," published by S. Augustus Mitchell, Philadelphia.

Disc & Data

By Mill Hammer

Pick of the LPs, "City Kids," by Spyro Gyra (MCA Records).

With the last release from Spyro Gyra we questioned the members' ability to be "incognito" and indeed found that it was impossible. It has been nearly a year since the release of the album Incognito, and it has been on the charts all this time. And, while they're still high on the jazz charts here comes the release of their new album, "City Kids."

Produced, as always, by Spyro Gyra's Jay Beckenstein and Richard Calandra, "City Kids" also features production assistance on two cuts from the group's master of the keyboards, Tom Schumann. Schumann really comes into his own on his album, not only as a performer and writer, but as a producer as well.

Making his debut on this album is Spyro Gyra's newest member, bass player Kim Stone on the title track, "City Kids" has something to offer for everyone's tastes from the urban contemporary dance sound of the title cut, to the smooth and mellow "Silver Linings," to the strong jazz of "Conversations."

There also is a track written especially for the lead vocalist of Spyro Gyra Jay saxophone entitled, "A Balad."

It is the material that Beckenstein credits as the key to Spyro Gyra's success.

"A band's sound is defined by the writing more than anything else, which is why Spyro Gyra always sounds like Spyro Gyra even though the players themselves may sometimes change. We incorporate a lot of improvisation into everything we do while adhering to the composer's wishes and keeping the improvisation within the boundaries set by the writer."

Two comedies are scheduled on NJPT stage

Two comedies have been scheduled by the New Jersey Public Theater (NJPT), 118 South Ave., E., Cranford.

The first is "A Couple White Chicks Sitting Around Talking," will open Sept. 9 at 8:30 p.m. It will run for five weekends, Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30. It will end its run Oct. 8. The play will be directed by Gary P. Cohen, former artistic director of NJPT and will star Lisa Cohen and Carol Kaplan.

An adult comedy, "Sexual Perversity in Chicago," by David Mamet, will open Sept. 15 and run for four Thursdays to Oct. 6 at 8 p.m.

The play will be directed by Richard Dominick, artistic director of NJPT, and will star Judy Paragovics, Gary Bihler, Robert Vaccaro and Lydia Jennings. Additional information on the plays can be obtained by calling 272-5704.

Kingston Trio set

The Kingston Trio will headline the Playboy Cabaret in Atlantic City Sept. 9 and Saturday. The group made its professional debut 25 years ago. Sharing the stage with the Trio will be comedians Jackie Gayle and Bill Hesketh and the Playboy Orchestra.

An open house slated Sept. 27 by the Singers

The Celebration Singers will hold an annual open house Sept. 27 in Cranford United Methodist Church, 201 E. Lincoln Ave., Room 8, Cranford, beginning at 7:30 p.m. It was announced that all voice sections are open, and men and women are invited to attend. Refreshments will be served.

The chorus of 30 mixed voices is under the direction of Tony Giedelski and accompanied by Mary Beth Krupinski of Linden. The group follows the teachings of Fred Waring and Robert Shaw.

Two formal concerts are presented each season, and performances are given from September through June at fund-raisers, in hospitals and senior citizens centers.

The group's record, "Great Day," will be released in the near future. The Singers originated about 50 years ago as the Esso Chorists.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 241-3954 or 687-1099 after 5 p.m.

Auditions set for symphony

Auditions for prospective members of the Westfield Symphony Orchestra have been scheduled for this month.

The symphony has planned a five-concert series for the new season. Paul Kueter will open the season Oct. 23 with a performance of Chopin's "Piano Concerto in E Minor," Beethoven's "Egmont Overture" and Dvorak's "Symphony No. 9, From the New World."

Rehearsals will begin next month. The symphony is seeking "qualified amateur musicians for positions in all sections. Additional information can be obtained by calling Catherine Schwartz, manager, at 232-8065.

'Piaf' musical opens Monday

Edith Piaf, legendary female vocalist, known as the tortured "little sparrow" of "Pigalle," will be recreated by Juliette Koka in "Juliette Koka Sings Piaf" Monday at 8 p.m. for one performance only at the New Jersey Shakespeare Festival, Drew University, Madison.

This will be part of the Monday Night Special Series at the New Jersey Shakespeare Festival.

Other Monday Night specials will include drummer, composer and band leader Chico Hamilton, Sept. 19; the Jose Molina Ballet Espanoles, Sept. 26, and the New Jersey Ballet Co., Oct. 3.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 377-4487.
