NJEA files suit on asbestos Springfield named along with 156 school districts

By VICKI VREELAND
In a move to protect its members from the long-range effects of asbestos exposure, the New Jersey Education Association has filed a lawsuit against the state Department of Education and 156 New Jersey school districts, including Springfield, who have worked in schools where friable asbestos has been detected.

The suit, which was filed Sept. 25, calls for the establishment of a trust fund to cover the costs of periodic medical check-ups for affected employees.

The defendants named in the suit are districts that have been identified by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency or the N.J. Department of Education as having friable asbestos in the schools. The NJEA said more districts could be named.

Asbestos, a fibrous mineral material most commonly used as insulation in pipes and furnaces, has been linked to lung cancer and other respiratory disorders.

According to Edith Fulton, president of the NJEA, the suit was filed because many schools "have proven to be potentially hazardous places to work. We know that friable asbestos is a carcinogen, and we know that it has been present in many school buildings for years. Those who have worked in these buildings deserve some assurance of at least diagnostic care."

The suit also names 125 "John Doe" corporations which were involved in the mining, manufacture, retailing, distribution, installation or removal of asbestos.

Fulton said the removal projects in about 300 schools this summer "made protective action even more crucial." Apparently, the shoddy workmanship in some districts created an even greater hazard, as asbestos was released into the environment. Support personnel, in particular, were often working in schools where the asbestos removal was going on, and some were even involved in the removal itself. Protection for these employees is certainly called for.

"We have no problem with a fund being set up," said Cynthia Jahn, an attorney for the N.J. School Boards Association. "However," she continued, "we do not feel that the districts are liable because they did not willfully withhold any information from the teachers and employees."

"We feel the manufacturers are better able to afford a medical surveillance fund," Jahn said. She added that the NJSBA School Boards Association could not act as counsel to individual school boards. According to Jahn, a meeting will be set up for school boards who are interested in discussing common defenses.

Fulton said the NJEA has also filed a petition with the state Department of Education for it to initiate action requiring school districts to remove asbestos.

Presently, neither organization, the EPA or the N.J. Department of Education, requires school districts to remove asbestos.

Leonard DiGiovanni, Board of Education secretary and business administrator, federal law requires districts to identify asbestos in their facilities and notify employees and parents of its presence.

If a district chooses to remove asbestos, the state Department of Education requires plans, submitted by a state-certified architect. If the project's cost is projected at over $20,000, only state-approved firms may be contracted.

Springfield's asbestos removal was conducted by Guardian, Inc., Freehold, in December at Florence M. Gaudineer School, cost $6,145, however, DiGiovanni said it was a state-certified firm.

Fulton said the NJEA "cannot ignore the potential long range effects of past exposure. As with any carcinogen, the effects of exposure suit responds to the heads of those who have been working in potentially dangerous environments."

Yale Greenspoon, Springfield school board attorney, said Monday that he had not been served with the suit, which has been filed on the behalf of approximately 140 school employees in Springfield. Greenspoon said the Board of Education will decide if the district will join the other school districts named in the litigation, or be represented individually.

According to Greenspoon, in most class action suits, one or two attorneys assume the role of lead counsel. He called the suit "somewhat unique."

Pappas faces charge of assault filed by wife

A simple assault complaint has been filed against Harry Pappas of Springfield, a Democratic candidate for freeholder, by his wife, Union County Register Joanne Rajoppi.

Rajoppi's complaint alleges that the incident occurred Aug. 23. After being filed in Springfield Municipal Court, the case was transferred to Somerset County when Municipal Judge Malcolm Bohrod disqualified himself from hearing it.

Bohrod said he disqualified himself because he is a friend of both parties.

Pappas denies the charge and called it an "empty complaint." "It was done to embarrass me and my campaign," Pappas said.

He added that the couple are involved in divorce proceedings.

initiated by his wife in July, in which the major issued being battled is custody of their twosons.

"She is doing everything under the suit to help her in her case," Pappas said.

Rajoppi, a former Springfield mayor who was elected county register last November, declined comment on the matter.

"In addition to being a candidate for freeholder, Pappas is assistant chairman of the National Democratic Party."

The penalty for an individual convicted of a simple assault charge, which comes under the heading of a Disorderly Persons offense, is a maximum jail sentence of six months.

The case, which will be heard in the Family Division of the Somerset County Superior Court, was originally scheduled for Sept. 21. It was postponed to allow for additional testimony and is expected to be heard in October.

According to Pappas, "It should be resolved shortly."

Cop case stirs anger GOP and Dems trade jabs on promotion

By VICKI VREELAND
Last week's action by the Township Committee to table a proposal to promote an officer to sergeant in the Police Department has all parties involved — the governing body, a patrolman who sought the promotion, and the Policemen's Benevolent Association — crying they will seek legal action. It has also become an issue in this fall's local election campaign.

At the committee meeting Sept. 25, a move to promote Detective William Chisholm, the top scorer in the two-part exam, to sergeant was tabled by the Republican majority 3-2.

Mayor Philip Feintuch, who is one of the committee's three Republicans with Committeewoman Joanne Tedesco, said he intends to delay the promotion until he reviews the scoring process used by the N.J. Police Chiefs Association which administered the exams.

MAYOR NOT SATISFIED
Feintuch said when he attempted to get the exams, he was told that it was not the association's policy to release them.

Feintuch, who sat in during six of the eight sessions when the police candidates took their oral exams, was not satisfied that the questions asked were relevant to a sergeant's responsibilities.

Feintuch said much of the oral interview was comprised of questions concerning the applicant's attendance and discipline record, along with questions on educational background. The mayor believes those general questions were ignored.

"That is criteria established by the examiners," Feintuch said. The mayor contended that the exam should have been more concerned with questions about the sergeant position.

He has authorized Jay Kloud, township attorney, to write the association and request the scores. If they are withheld, the mayor, an attorney with a private practice, plans to initiate legal action.

"The testing body was acting as an agent of the town, and as our agent, we are entitled to receive the information," Feintuch said. "There is no test in the United States that you are not entitled to see the results of. If the tests reflect they were scored upon the proper criteria, then I have no problem with them."

On the other hand, if he believes they were scored unfairly, Feintuch intends to recommend "setting the exam aside" and administering a new one.

If the test is invalidated, Feintuch said he is not seeking to undo the past, but "to end errors in the exam."

PBA President Peter Davis said his organization has contacted an attorney "because we don't know how long" it will be before the mayor receives the exam results and makes a decision on their validity.

The PBA charged last week that "politics" was the reason for the postponement of the promotion. According to Davis, Feintuch did not challenge the exam until the results were in. The PBA alleges that Feintuch is attacking the exam because Patrolman Daniel Madding, his former campaign manager, failed the oral portion of the test.

Feintuch "unequivocally" denies the statement. Committeewoman Stanley Kaish believes there is "strong circumstantial evidence" for there to be an "appearance" that the committee's action was "politically inspired."

"On the practical side," Kaish said, "if they (the Republicans) were worried about the exam, they should have voiced their concerns before the results were known."

He said he also believes it would be unfair to change the exam "at this point" because it was accepted for promotions in the past.

Tedesco and Cieri were unavailable for comment. According to Feintuch, the governing body received a letter from Madding's attorney giving it notice that the patrolman will pursue legal action concerning the exam.

Madding was unavailable for comment.

CAMPAIGN ISSUE

Feintuch has called the postponement of the sergeant promotion, "a policy issue, not a political issue," however, Edward Fanning, Democratic candidate for township committee, charged this week that "the Republican majority played politics when making promotions." Fanning criticized the Republicans on the governing body in general and Ruocco, who he is trying to unseat, in particular.

"This testing process is used all over the state," said Fanning. "If these years' exams were all their experience, are satisfied that the test picks people who become effective sergeants, who are Mr. Ruocco and his cronies to say it doesn't? Particularly, why did they suddenly become dissatisfied with the test only after the results showed their man to have failed?"

"In the past, Ruocco voted to promote many people on the basis of identical tests from the same agency," Fanning continued. "I single out Ruocco because I am running against him. It is too bad we can't replace the lot of them at once."

"True," Ruocco replied to Fanning's comment that the incumbent has voted to approve past applicants based on results from the same test, "however, no one ever observed the exams. We always took them at face value."

Ruocco said the appointment was tabled because the mayor asked for time to review the exams. He added that he would not comment further until a later date, "because the situation tends to have personnel problems and litigation."

Fanning said that he was upset by the "injustice" of the "politically inspired action on the police test."

"These people are meddling with the Police Department for pure politics," Fanning charged. "There are also important appointments which must be made in town this January. If I am defeated in November, every one of these appointments will be made by a Republican township committee that has demonstrated its political opportunism. I am not sure the people of Springfield want to trust them to do that."

OTHER CONCERNS
According to Feintuch, reviewing the sergeant's exam is not his only concern about the Police Department. He said he has asked Police Chief George Parsell, on more than one occasion, to formulate a set of rules and regulations for the department, but has not received them.

Parsell said the township committee was "not happy" with the set of regulations he provided last month and is currently working on providing additional information to the committee.

"The Police Department is a high priority of mine," Feintuch said. "However, I'm dealing with people who do not respond. Whenever I get involved in the department, the cry of politics goes up. This is a policy issue, not a political one. If any department should be non-political, it is the Police Department."

"I'm doing what I am charged to do," Feintuch, who also serves as police commissioner, said. "I am trying to upgrade the department. There are unsolved murders, thefts, and break-ins and entries, and problems with drugs and alcohol in town that are not being properly investigated," Feintuch said.

"That is strictly his opinion," Parsell responded.

Tentative contact OK'd

The Springfield Board of Education expects shortly to have its faculty functioning in all capacities, after reaching a tentative contract agreement with the Springfield Education Association Monday.

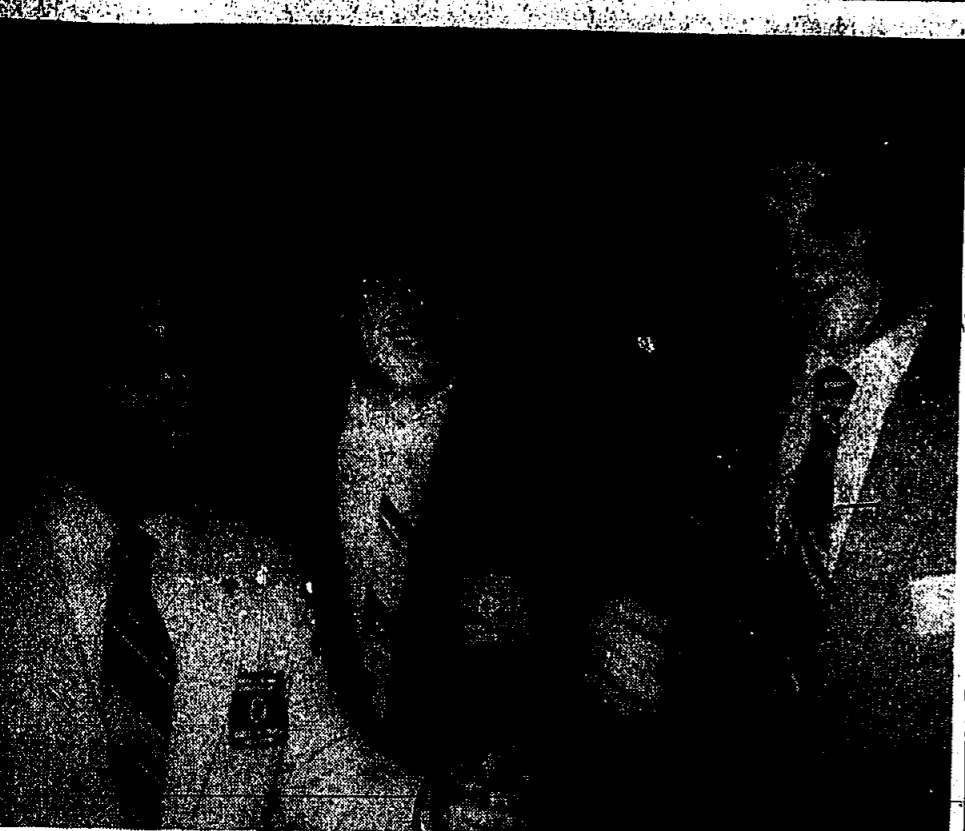

The board released the following statement:

"The Springfield Board of Education reached a tentative agreement with the Springfield Education Association on a contract for the 1984-85 and 1985-86 school years. Details of the contract will be released after final wording has been agreed to by both parties.

"The Board of Education anticipates that as of Tuesday, the teachers will resume their regular duties."

On the campaign trail

REP. MATTHEW RINALDO (R-7th District) has been endorsed in his bid for re-election by the League of Conservation Voters. "As a senior member of the House Energy and Commerce Committee, Rinaldo has been an important ally on a wide variety of pollution issues," said League Director Marion Edey. "He's proven to be strongly committed to protecting our vital resources from contamination."

An analysis of 14 key environmental votes for 1983 found that House Republicans voted to protect the environment 31 percent of the time, on average, Edey said. Rinaldo received a score of 79 percent. Edey added, "Rinaldo has urged Congress, the Environmental Protection Agency, and President Reagan to confront an issue vital to New Jersey—the problem of toxic waste. Congressmen have strengthened Superfund and he pushed for the Republican Party to back the bill at its August convention. Superfund is designed to clean up hazardous waste dumps. New Jersey has 65 sites on the Superfund national priority list."

Rinaldo has sponsored legislation which would permit the use of Superfund money to include the cleanup of hazardous substances which have leaked from buried containers, and he has lobbied EPA to stop the dumping of raw sewage into the New York harbor, Edey said.

THE REPUBLICAN CANDIDATES for Union County Board of Freeholders, Edward J. Slomkowski of Union Township, Alan Augustine of Scotch Plains,

Robert Gonor of Linden and G. Richard Melgran of Plainfield, charged that the 43 percent salary increase which the board voted for itself over the past two years is "outrageous and exorbitant." "This greedy salary grab of my opponent is just the sort of action that makes people lose confidence in government. I am proud that Freeholder Augustine voted against this 43 percent increase every time," said Melgran.

Gonor said the freholder increase is far higher than that given to the hard-working, full-time county employees and creates an unhealthy double standard for county government. "A major feature of the plan is that it would simplify the tax law so that taxpayers will know in advance how much in taxes they should pay, and would be sure that their neighbors in similar circumstances would pay roughly the same amount, Bradley said."

SEN. BILL BRADLEY (D-N.J.) said that, while he supports the Democratic ticket of Walter Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro in the presidential election, he opposes Mondale's plan to raise taxes. "The senator, who is running for his second term, called instead for implementation of his Fair Tax plan, which he said would lower tax rates and close loopholes. "I started many years ago to look into this issue, and I saw that tax rates were too high," Bradley said. "I want to work and come up with

Broader equality policy OK'd

VICKI VERRELAND, The Union County Regional Board of Education approved two new policies Tuesday in an effort to ensure equality in education for students and in employment practices for teachers. The policies, "School and Classroom Practices" and "Equality in Education," recommended by the Policy Committee, were approved unanimously. Superintendent Donald Merachnik said the "Equality in Education" policy's emphasis on sexual equality was revised to make it "broader." The new policy states that a student or employee cannot be discriminated against in an education program or activity, or in employment, because of "race, color, creed, religion, sex, ancestry, national origin, social or economic status, or handicapping condition."

Ruocco cites responsiveness to people

SPRINGFIELD—William A. Ruocco, Republican candidate for reelection to the Springfield Township Committee cited his responsiveness to people's needs as top priorities for his elected official. Crime Watch tip

How to keep children safe

SPRINGFIELD—The following is the crime prevention tip from the Springfield Police Department for the month of October. Every community has problems with child molesters. Unfortunately, it is very hard for a police department to catch this type of person due to the age of the victims. The victims are usually young children from elementary schools who have not been properly instructed by their parents on what to watch for and how to avoid the child molester.

Newest stamp is not a dog

SPRINGFIELD—The United States Postal Service released a new stamp last week dedicated to Crime Prevention Month, being observed this month. According to Springfield Postmaster Janet Hardison, the 20-cent crime prevention stamp features a portrait of McGruff, the Crime Watch dog, dressed in his familiar trench coat. "October is also National Stamp Collecting Month and the stamp is expected to attract the attention of an estimated 22 million stamp collectors in the United States."

Light needed

Ever have the power go out at home and have no flashlight? The result can be bruised shins and skinned knees.

A nation lacking a free flow of information is a lot like a darkened house. The bruised shins that result from stumbling around in this darkness represent lost freedom.

Ever hear of a news blackout? Without newspapers and the First Amendment guarantee of free speech, citizens are kept in the dark about information that is essential for a democracy. Are elected officials acting in the public interest? How is the tax dollar spent? What is the impact of legislation on everyday life?

Newspapers provide the light — information — and that is why the theme of National Newspaper Week this week, "Newspapers: Lighting Freedom's Way," is so appropriate. Shedding light on the relationship between government and its citizens is a newspaper's primary function.

There is a constant struggle to keep the light aglow. In the last year, the Reagan administration has done its best to spread the darkness. During the invasion of Grenada a year ago, correspondents were not allowed to accompany U.S. forces into combat — a dubious first in American history. In the controversial National Security Decision Directive 84, the president required more than 275,000 people to sign censorship and polygraph examination agreements to stop government "leaks." According to the General Accounting Office, more than 3 million people, including civilian, military and government contractors' employees, are covered by these government publication review and censorship agreements.

Newspapers aren't alone in this struggle. They have a strong ally — the most important part of a newspaper — you, the reader. Without your support of newspapers, freedom's light grows dim and could flicker out altogether.

Letters to the editor

Not political

In the Sept. 20, 1984 edition of the Leader, Edward Fanning's campaign press release was misleading, and I feel compelled to write so that the facts will be known to all concerned.

Mr. Fanning wishes to politicize the high-rise issue, couple it with the shopping center controversy of the recent past and make it appear that these two situations were subject to the ever present "Republican-Democrat tug-of-war." Mr. Fanning even threw in the Walton School issue for good measure, just in case any reader might still be indifferent. None of these situations are intertwined, nor are they "Republican-Democrat issues."

During the period I was on the Board of Adjustment, I voted for the construction of the high-rise project, as did Ronald Citron, Ruth Goldstein and Alan Siegel. Mr. Citron and I are Republicans. Chairman Siegel and Mrs. Goldstein are Democrats. However, the four of us voted for this project because we believed it would have been good for the town. The three dissenting votes were cast because these members did not agree. It was that simple. There was never even a hint of partisanship on this matter, or any matter which came before the Board of Adjustment during my tenure.

Meeting over. Rights trampled. We're sad and we're angry.

Debate 'stifled'

Debate is the soul of democratic government. At the last Township Committee meeting, for the first time in our history, debate was stifled. The mayor had just finished a statement that was extremely lengthy, highly critical and partially true. When we rose to reply, Mr. Tuocco moved for adjournment and Tedesco seconded. Motion to adjourn passed 3-2.

ALAN AUGUSTINE

Union County's freeholders: the '84 race

Holding elected office is nothing new for Alan M. Augustine. The Republican incumbent, who is seeking his second term on the Union County Board of Freeholders, has been a member of the Scotch Plains governing body since 1971. A resident of that community for 22 years, Augustine has also served his township both as mayor and deputy mayor. He is presently a councilman.

In seeking re-election, Augustine's emphasis is on efficiency in county government and services. The county must make the county's health care system more efficient, Augustine believes, in order to meet the needs of the fastest growing segment of the county's population — those 50 years old and above.

For this reason, Augustine said, he recognizes the need to expand Runnells Hospital's elderly care capability. He is, however, against the proposal to sell any land at the present Runnells site.

"We must expand the home health care system in concert with construction of a new facility," Augustine said. Home health care for those who currently receive long-term care in a nursing home, he believes, could ease the burden on the county's facility. Such expansion would also offer those requiring long-term care the choice of remaining at home.

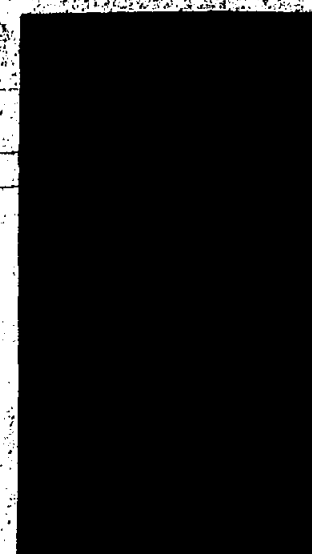

"There is a bright future for Runnells," he said. "There is a future for it," which appeared unlikely earlier this year. "In 20-25 years, medical professionals, business and the general public will be committed to the development of the expansion proposal." With such professionals on the panel, Augustine said, "a great deal of misinformation" about the situation at Runnells would not have occurred.

The county's solid waste disposal problem can be solved, said Augustine, but he acknowledges it will be difficult. He said he is hopeful that the proposal to build a resource recovery plant in Rahway comes to fruition. In the final analysis, however, it will be up to that community's residents, he said.

"We have the machinery in motion" for the long term solution of solid waste, he said. He said he hopes that "in the interim," the county will still be able to use the ILR landfill in Middlesex County. Finding alternative disposal sites for its solid waste, such as Ocean

Political profiles

Editor's note: The following are part of a series of profiles that will appear in this newspaper of candidates for office in the November election. This week, two of the candidates for the three three-year terms at stake this year on the Union County Board of Freeholders. They, and other freeholder candidates, were asked to address two subjects of major importance during the interviews — the proposed nursing care facility at John E. Runnells Hospital in Berkeley Heights and the question of solid waste disposal. The election will take place on Nov. 6.

HARRY PAPPAS

Union County's freeholders: the '84 race

County, "is a very difficult thing to do on a cost-benefit basis," he said. "Once all the smoke clears," he said referring to the present court action on the question of who will be allowed to use the ILR landfill, "maybe the state is going to dictate where solid waste will be disposed."

"The county has a responsibility to do a lot more education" on solid waste, said the freeholder. Through education, the county can better inform its residents on the seriousness of the problem and the tough choices that will have to be made, explained Augustine.

Another concern of Augustine is the cost of providing county services. "The county is responsible for 31 percent of the average tax bill. We have to take a long hard look at alternate funding. We already have a hiring freeze in effect, but more must be done."

During his term, Augustine served as the vice chairman of the freeholder board. He is a former member of the Union County Board of Social Services, and former chairman of the Union County Fiscal Affairs Committee.

As a freeholder, Augustine is a member of the Environmental Health Advisory Board, Shade Tree Advisory Board, Mosquito Control Advisory Board and the Board of School Estimate-Vocational School. He is also a member of the Policy Committee and the Committee on Inter-Governmental Cooperation and Legislative Affairs.

Augustine's community and business organizations include the Scotch Plains-Fanwood Lodge 2182, BPOE. He was also a former member of the Rotary Club of Scotch Plains and the National Schools Committee of Lafayette College. He is past president of the Union County Automobile Dealers Association and past president of the New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Auto Trade Association.

A graduate of Lafayette College, Easton, Pa., with a degree in economics, Augustine also attended Columbia University's School of Business. He was also a member of the transition team during the merger of the Union County Technical Institute and Union College into Union County College two years ago. He is on the UCC Board of Governors.

Augustine is executive director, Dealer Affairs, for Subaru Distributors Corp., Orangeburg, N.Y. He and his wife, Jean, are the parents of three children — Linda, Wendy and Alan Jr.

recovery plant is about three years away, Pappas said. He urged the state to take this into consideration and to review "existing policy" on its mandate to the counties to develop their own programs. "Union County is sincere" in moving toward a solution of the solid waste crisis, the state should extend its deadlines, he said.

Owners of the ILR landfill in Edison, where many Union County municipalities dump their garbage, have additional acreage that could be used, Pappas said. He urged the state to grant Union County "a breather of six or 12 or 18 months" by making the extra landfill site available.

Turning to another major problem facing the county — the future of the county-operated John E. Runnells Hospital at Berkeley Heights — he called the institution "one of the greatest assets that we have in Union County."

"It's something that must be maintained 100 percent," he said. He urged that the county maintain all the services now headquartered there, from alcoholism treatment to juvenile aid.

Pappas said he would agree to a proposal to build additional nursing care facilities at the site as long as "we don't overlook any existing space that can be used."

On the issue of costs, he said that, as a freeholder, he wants the chance to work on the county's $110 million budget.

While serving as county purchasing agent from 1973 to 1977, he said, he saved the taxpayers $500,000. He did this by such measures as requiring three verbal quotations on purchases of over $500 and three written quotations on purchases of over $500; ordering the repair of broken equipment, so that it could be used in place of proposed new equipment; and auctioning off surplus equipment.

In addition to his involvement in politics and government at the county level, Pappas has been assistant chairman and assistant treasurer of the Democratic National Committee and active in gubernatorial and presidential campaigns for more than 15 years.

He also has been active in civic programs, including a stint as vice president of the New Jersey State Opera Company, member of the New Jersey Board of Directors of the National Jewish Hospital of Denver and special events chairman of the Retarded Children's Association of New Jersey.

PRESIDENTIAL MEETING—Pietro Petino Jr. of Springfield shakes hands with President Ronald Reagan on a recent visit to Washington, D.C. The student represented Delbarton School at the Secondary School Recognition Awards ceremony. Looking on is the Rev. Giles P. Hayes, Delbarton headmaster; and John Facciani, president of the Delbarton eighth grade.

Couple senses deja-vu on golden anniversary

MOUNTAINSIDE—Who said "You can't go home again?" Just ask Kurt and Frieda Grangert. The couple recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at Halfway House Restaurant, Route 22. What's so special? The Halfway House was the scene of their wedding reception when the two first exchanged vows on Sept. 23, 1934.

Married in the Redeemer Lutheran Church, Westfield, the couple, who reside in South Plainfield, were beckoned back to the Halfway House Sept. 23. The special "deja-vu" anniversary celebration was planned by their two daughters, Irene Mitchell of Murray Hill and Lorraine David of Somerville. The Grangerts also have five grandchildren and one great-grandchild, Mitchell said.

According to the restaurant's owner, Mick Mastakas, the Grangerts celebrated with about 20 guests, and — albeit from a distance — the first family.

Mitchell said that President Ronald and first lady Nancy Reagan sent the Grangerts a certificate of congratulations after being notified of the anniversary by David.

"It was a real special dinner," Mitchell said. "They're real special people."

Town student meets Reagan

SPRINGFIELD—Pietro Petino Jr., president of Delbarton's Student Council, attended the Secondary School Recognition Awards in Washington, D.C. representing Delbarton School recently.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Pietro Petino of Springfield, the student represented Delbarton at the reception of the Exemplary Private School Awards made to 28 private schools in the nation by United States Secretary of Education Terrel H. Bell.

Prior to the reception of the award, Petino met privately with President Ronald Reagan. He was joined in this private meeting, and in representing the Morristown school, with John Facciani, the president of Delbarton School's eighth grade, and the Rev. Giles P. Hayes, headmaster of Delbarton.

The Exemplary School Award for private schools received by Delbarton was funded as part of the National Secondary School Recognition Project by the Department of Education during the school year 1983-84. One of 6,000 private schools in the nation, Delbarton became one of 400 nominees and 125 semi-finalists to be awarded the award.

On June 15, Robert Smith, a director of the Council for Private Education in Washington, announced that Delbarton was identified as one of the 28 private independent school winners and one of the 33 provincial secondary school winners. Earlier, Secretary Bell identified 150 public school winners nationally.

Petino and Delbarton's other representatives arrived in Washington D.C. Aug. 26 for the first of two days of ceremonies for the school's honor of exemplary. The ceremonies included a major speech on education by the National Commission on Excellence, representatives of Congress, national leaders in education, and they included a major speech on education by President Reagan.

Novel leads off talks

SPRINGFIELD—Umberto Eco's novel, "The Name of the Rose," will lead off the 1984 list of books to be discussed at the Springfield Public Library. The first monthly meeting will be held Tuesday, at 8 p.m., in the library meeting room.

The book is a detective story set in a Benedictine monastery in northern Italy in 1327. The characters are mostly monks and other churchmen involved in a series of bizarre murders that take place in the monastery. The solution is finally reached by a visiting Franciscan monk, William of Baskerville, and the tale is told many years later by his disciple, Adso.

Although the author is an eminent Italian scholar, "The Name of the Rose" is his first work of fiction. It collected the two top literary prizes in Italy and was a bestseller in both Europe and the United States in the early '80s.

One reviewer called the book a blend of philosophical novel, detective story, and historical novel, and said it "succeeds in being amusing and ambitious at the same time."

The discussion is free and open to the public. Paperback copies may be purchased at the library reference desk.

Scouts set cookie drive

SPRINGFIELD—"Cookie money can take us to Radio City Music Hall..." "Cookie Money can help us take our parents to the zoo..." "Our cookie money can be used for sashes, pins, and handbooks..." "With your help, our cookie money will take us to Camp Hoover..."

Springfield's Girl Scout troops are getting up for an exciting year, and the many girls involved are planning trips, badge work, camps, service projects and other favorite activities.

These plans are closely linked to the success of the Girl Scout Cookie Sale, as it is the primary source of funds for troop programs and for the Washington Rock Girl Scout Council's support to troops.

Local Girl Scouts will be taking orders for cookies now through Oct. 14 as part of the Washington Rock Council's fall sale. The Girl Scouts will be going door to door to ask for orders. The cookies sell for $2 per package and each box sold represents a $1.26 contribution to Girl Scouting.

LANGUAGE HOT LINE—Dalia Pau, a Hispanic resident of Elizabeth, talks on the phone with her English tutor volunteer. The project is sponsored by the Union County Regional High School District No. 1 and Catholic Community Services of Elizabeth, and funded by a federal grant under the Job Training Partnership Act.

Phone is learning tool

Sixteen Hispanic and Haitian residents of Union County are learning English over the telephone in the classroom, thanks to a federal grant and the services of Union County Regional High School District No. 1 and Catholic Community Services of Elizabeth.

The "Each-One-Phone-One" project, taught by John Coymen, a former Glen Ridge English teacher, puts the language students in touch with English-only speaking volunteers.

"It's important that the students hear someone other than just read copybooks each week and respond to it in a classroom setting. The 15-minute exercises reinforce classroom activities."

Other projects conducted by the Union County Regional District include: nurses, aide training at Elizabeth General Hospital and food service training at David Brewster Regional High School, Kenilworth.

The $18,685 grant to the school district was provided under the Job Training Partnership Act.

DENTAL DIALOGUE BRUSHING CAN BE ELECTRIC

Q. My 8 yr. old daughter wants an electric toothbrush. Should I buy her one?

A. It doesn't really do a better job of cleaning, but children sometimes find an electric toothbrush more fun to use than a conventional one. It can be an effective gimmick to encourage your child to brush more than she normally would. A word of warning however, your child must learn good brushing habits, and use it or the novelty wears off and she will stop brushing.

Available to clean the chrome or the bathroom tiles.

Rebecca's forecast

OCT. 4-18
ARIES (3/21-4/20)—Many will find themselves working overtime this week as new ideas are hatched. Both personal and professional relationships are intensified and you will find that joining forces with others is more productive. Later, personal matters could reach an explosive climax. Curb your tongue.
Taurus (4/21-5/21)—Iron out difficulties in work or health matters early in this period, accept invitations and make travel arrangements for the months ahead. Later, responsibilities mount. Gossip is unreliable for the most part. "Catch up" with neglected chores. Make time for children's needs.
GEMINI (5/22-6/21)—Many will find emotions and feelings will see-saw this week; keep this in mind before you make long range plans. Romance highlights much of this week. Pay attention to your instincts and avoid arguments with family members. Later, a change of address or living arrangements is possible.

CANCER (6/22-7/23)—The turning point in an off and on dilemma involving home, family or employment issues is sure to be felt by many during this week and important decisions are the likely result. Later, those at a distance assume importance. Make time to re-evaluate long term relationships.
LEO (7/24-8/23)—Local travel dealings with relatives or neighbors and communications are all highlighted this week. Expect good news, about a work situation. Children's interests will be the topic of conversation for many. Later, in-decisions for the future. Later, everyday dealings can be annoying; stick to the tried and true. Enlightening meetings are likely.

AGITTARIUS (11/23-12/21)—The social theme dominates the early period, an after-work gathering, is possible and new friendships tap hidden qualities. Travel plans may be on the agenda for business or family reasons. Later, don't be afraid to push past projects, improve or update your ideas. Others are receptive.
CAPRICORN (12/22-1/20)—The more confidential you keep things, the better off you will be this week. Career, community matters and property issues may be uppermost in your mind; took into new opportunities. Elders may present real concerns. Later, look for favors from influential corners and sign papers.

AQUARIUS (1/21-2/19)—Fortunate benefits are soon to emerge. Behind-the-scenes activity will favor work or health interests and a financial windfall may be in the future for some. Later, be careful in dealing with in-laws or neighbors, you may be fanning the wrong fire. Properly interests generate activity.
PISCES (2/20-3/20)—The early part of this week may see you catching up with personal, health or work matters. Dependents become more demanding and news from a distance may take you by surprise. Later, groups or organizations will be beneficial. Talk to those in the know and think twice before you splurge.

2 health clubs merged

AJ's Nautilus Center and the Plaza Health Club have merged to form the Plaza Health and Racquet Club, according to manager Andrew Jacober.

"We combined the two facilities to create a total fitness center where we could offer the fullest range of activities possible and serve everyone's fitness needs, completely," said Jacober, known as A.J., former owner/manager of AJ's Nautilus Center at Plaza.

"The club looks like a whole new place," he continued. "Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent on major construction, renovation, redecorating and brand new state-of-the-art equipment."

"We've installed a cushioned and banked running track and we've built the area's largest fitness center. We've got a 28-station Nautilus setup, Olympic free weights, universal equipment, a brand new aerobics center, plenty of racquetball and tennis courts, a suntan solarium, a whirlpool, lifecycles and lots of other activities."

Campaign starts

The United Way of Union County has kicked off its annual fundraising drive with Stephen Dedman, manager of Exxon Chemical Americas and this year's campaign chairman, announcing a record-setting goal of $5,065,000.

The funds raised during the campaign will help 61 agencies which provide social, health, therapeutic, and recreational programs.

'Know the contractor,' consumers told

The Union County Division of Consumer Affairs reports a sharp rise in the number of complaints received in the past few months about home improvement contractors. Many of these complaints allege poor workmanship, long delays between the start and satisfactory completion of a job, and difficulty in getting some contractors to return to correct problems under warranty, according to Ellen Bloom, director.

"Home improvements are often expensive, and you may have to live with the results for a long time, so don't rush into anything. Shop around before committing yourself. The first rule of thumb for consumers is: know your contractor," Bloom said.

"Your best reference is a personal acquaintance who has had good work done by a contractor at a fair price. Be wary of door-to-door solicitations. If you don't know anyone who has used the services of a particular contractor, ask for a list of local customers, and go see the work yourself. Don't rely solely on phone recommendations or advertisements. A little legwork will be well worth the trouble," adds Bloom.

She said those planning home repairs can call the Consumer Hotline at 688-9295 to find out if any complaints have been lodged against a particular contractor, and, if so, how these complaints were resolved.

"Once you have gotten familiar with a contractor's work and decided to hire him, you should know that New Jersey law requires the contractor to provide you with a written contract for all home improvement work that costs more than $25. This law, which was passed with the full support of the National Association of the Remodeling Industry, says that your contract must include the following information:

"The legal name and business address of the seller and, if applicable, of his authorized sales representative or agent. An answering service phone number or post office box address is not sufficient.

"A full and clear description of the work to be done and materials to be used, including all pertinent information about principal products, fixtures, and building materials (such as manufacturer's name, model number, model year, etc.).

"The total price to be paid by the buyer, including finance charges. If the contract is for time and materials, the hourly labor rate and all terms and conditions must be stated.

"The dates or time period on or within the work is to begin and be completed.

"A description of any mortgage or security interest to be taken in connection with the financing or sale of the home improvement.

With A Little Luck, This Could Be Your Ticket To Tokyo.

In the 20 years since we opened the first Benihana, people all over America have discovered the delights of our Japanese hibachi cooking. And now we'd like to say "Thank You" in the best way we know:

Offering you a chance to discover the delights of Japan. If you're one of the three lucky grand-prize winners in our 20th anniversary sweepstakes, you'll win a week for two in Tokyo.

You'll fly the friendly skies of United Airlines. Spend six nights at the beautiful Marunouchi Hotel in the heart of Downtown Tokyo.

And even have a chance to dine at one of the best restaurants in Tokyo. Benihana. Of course, not winning a grand prize doesn't mean that you'll necessarily be left out in the cold.

Because the three first-prize winners will spend four days on an exciting Eastern Cruise Lines Bahamas Supercruise for two. You could also win one of three sets of custom-made golf clubs by Taylor Made, the company that introduced the Metalwood Club.

Or a portfolio of twelve Dong Kingman prints of favorite American cities, each one hand-signed by the artist. And 20 people in each of our participating restaurants will win dinner for two at you guessed it, Benihana.

But even if you don't win, we'll do our best to see that you go away happy.

We'll cook you a steak right at your table, and just the way you like it. We'll serve you fresh sea food and chicken, sizzling and juicy.

And dazzle you with knife work that will give you an urge to do something with your own two hands. Applaud.

So come to Benihana in your neighborhood. If you're lucky, your after-dinner treat could be a trip to our old neighborhood.

BENIHANA
 THE JAPANESE STEAKHOUSE

Official rules available at participating Benihana locations. Sweepstakes begins Oct. 1, 1984. Ends at 11:59 p.m. on the date of the final drawing. Produced by L.A. SFC Morris Impulse Inc. 9133

By MILT HAMMER
Pick Of The LPs, "Righteous Anger," by Van Stephenson (MCA Records).

"What I'm doing is totally modern rock and roll music," Van Stephenson is not the type to mince words and, in keeping with that trait, his description of his music is right on the money.

For while this talented singer-songwriter hails from a wide variety of musical influences and experiences, his debut album for MCA Records, "Righteous Anger," is right in tune with what's happening with mainstream rock music in the 1980s.

Produced by Richard Landis (Juice Newton, Red "Lamatic Fringe" Rider), "Righteous Anger" is a mainstream collection of driving guitar rock and pop, whose songs Van co-wrote with such capsule tunesmiths as Jan Buckingham, Dave Robbins and Phil Brown. Songs like "Modern Day Delilah" and "What The Big Girls Do" are darkly shaded stories which, in Stephenson's creative hands, stretch beyond the preconceived notions of popular music.

"People have always had the attitude that you can be a serious songwriter or a fun loving rock and roller but not both," explains Stephenson. "But on this album, I think I've proven it is possible to be both. A lot of my songs deal with the serious sides of emotions like love and personal struggles. But I've always maintained that the message can get through in any kind of music, even flat out, fun time rock and roll. I hope that this album proves my point."

Stephenson, an Ohio native, moved to Nashville at age 10 where he was bitten at a relatively early age by the Beaties bug.

"The Beatles were a big influence on me from the word go," recalls Stephenson. "I started growing my hair and went out and bought a guitar. I had the bug. I wanted to rock and roll."

Stephenson played in a number of garage bands and jammed in 'Steam Bath' continues run

"Steam Bath," a comedy by Bruce Jay Friedman, will continue to run at the New Jersey Public Theater, Cranford, tomorrow and Saturday evenings at 8:30 through Saturday October 6.

The play stars Robert Vaccaro, NJPT's artistic director. "Steam Bath" is directed by Gary A. Blhier.

VAN STEPHENSON

formally throughout his high school years. After graduation, he began to discover and hone his songwriting skills while playing regularly in clubs in the states of Tennessee, Florida and Oklahoma.

Stephenson's rapidly maturing songwriting skills came to the attention of House Of Gold Publishing House where, he was hired as an in-house songwriter. During the ensuing years, Stephenson also headed up bands that did two tours of Scandinavian countries.

Stephenson released his first album, "China Girl," on an independent label, Handshake, which spawned a rather sizable chart single, "You've Got A Good Love Coming," in 1980. Stephenson alternated touring and songwriting during the next three years before signing with MCA Records in 1983.

"This is an honest album," says Stephenson in assessing the merits of his debut disc. "It deals with real emotions while still coming across as a rock and roll good time."

The theater is a non-profit regional theater located at 118 South Avenue, East in Cranford. Further information can be obtained by calling 272-9704.

'Two by Two' play to open on Oct. 12

It will play Oct. 13 at 8 p.m., Oct. 14 at 3 p.m., Oct. 19 and 20 at 8 p.m., and Oct. 21 at 7 p.m.

Bill Kaufman will direct. Additional information can be obtained by calling 368-1849.
