Acting super named School board taps DiGiovanni for position

By KENNETH SCHANKLER

Pledging to serve all facets of the Springfield educational community to the best of his abilities, Board of Education Secretary Dr. Leonard DiGiovanni has been given the title of acting superintendent of schools.

DiGiovanni, who was appointed at a special board meeting Dec. 18, will retain the job of board secretary. He replaces Dr. Fred Baruchin. Baruchin cited "philosophical differences" in resigning Dec. 9.

Baruchin's resignation came after several weeks of negotiations between himself and the board. He was given a 7 percent salary increase for 1985-86 and $25,000 toward a buyout of pension credit earned in New York State which will be applied to his New Jersey pension.

The board also paid $2,250 in legal fees for the attorney who represented Baruchin in the negotiations. Baruchin's resignation will take effect July 1, 1985, following an 18-month paid leave of absence, but he will leave the district as of Tuesday.

DiGiovanni will become acting superintendent Jan. 1. He will be paid a $500 a month stipend while acting as superintendent, in addition to his present annual salary of about $40,000.

DiGiovanni has 31 years experience in education, including five-and-a-half years as Springfield board secretary. He has served "in practically every facet" of education, including as a superintendent, principal and adjunct professor of education, during his career.

DiGiovanni said he was eager to take on the responsibilities of the superintendent's office.

"I look forward to a smooth transition to the new duties and responsibilities and for a productive and cooperative relationship with the board, the staff and the community," DiGiovanni said.

"I will keep uppermost in my mind," DiGiovanni said, "what the bottom line is all about—namely, the best educational interests of all Springfield students."

The board has already begun advertising for a permanent replacement for Baruchin, who is leaving Springfield after 14 years.

The search for a new superintendent is expected to take several months, with candidates from both inside and outside the Springfield district expected to be considered, according to board member Ned Sambur.

Springfield sees new faces and places in '85

Editor's note: The following is part of a two-part review of the major events of 1985 in Springfield. Part one will focus on events in the township in general. Part 2 next week will review events involving the Springfield Board of Education.

By KENNETH SCHANKLER

The drafting of a zoning ordinance to allow the construction of a planned-unit development, the opening of municipal ten center and recycling facilities, the election of two new members to the Township Committee, the resignation of Recreation Director Joseph Rapuano and the setting of numerous safety violations at the local police headquarters were among the major events in Springfield in 1985.

As 1985 draws to a close, the Township Committee is preparing to approve its new zoning ordinance. Included in the new code is a provision that will allow the construction of a planned-unit development on a 50-acre tract near Route 22 and Springfield Avenue.

The development, to be built by Arden Associates, will have about 300 residential units as well as several hundred thousand feet of office space and commercial development.

Mayor Edward Fanning has opposed the construction of a PUD in Springfield, particularly on the present proposed site.

The township, however, faced little choice but to allow that type of development once the tract was rezoned for PUD from industrial last year.

Fanning has expressed a preference for industrial development in that area—"I don't know why they rezoned that thing in the first place," Fanning said last fall as the final draft of the ordinance was being readied.

The mayor, however, and Township Committeeman William Cleri have said the township could be risking a costly lawsuit if it changed the zoning of the proposed site again.

The amended zoning ordinance is now scheduled to be introduced by the Township Committee early in 1986, with a formal application to the Planning Board from Arden Associates expected to follow shortly thereafter.

Over the summer, the long-discussed recycling center and a teen center finally began.

The teen center now operates out of two rooms at the former Raymond Chisholm School building, having opened its doors in July. The program features video games, a pool table and a number of other activities on two-day-per-week schedule.

The recycling center, opened in July at the township garage, has been accepting recyclable paper, aluminum and glass on a daily basis.

The expansion of both programs is being investigated by the township.

Both became campaign issues in the 1985 Township Committee elections, with Republican candidates Jeffrey Katz and Jo-Ann Peiper saying the two facilities were not being run properly.

The Recreation Department, which runs the teen center, had also been the subject of controversy, with several members of the Recreation Committee complaining that there was a lack of communication with director Rapuano.

Members of the Recreation Committee were upset that Rapuano never attended their meetings. Rapuano had been excused from the meetings because of personal problems.

The situation came to a head in November, with Rapuano, citing personal reasons, resigning and taking a position with United Parcel Service.

Theresa Herkele was named acting recreation director while the Township Committee debated the future course of the department.

Outgoing Committeeman Phillip Feintuch said a part-time director should be considered.

While the political makeup of the Township Committee will not change in 1986, there will be two new faces on the Springfield governing body.

Katz and Peiper defeated Democrats Mickey Herzlinger and Pat Murphy in November to maintain the 3-2 Democratic majority on the committee.

The two new Republicans will take the place of fellow party members Phillip Feintuch and Joanne Tedesco, neither of whom sought re-election.

Feintuch, in particular, cited his frustration with being unable to achieve his goals for the township. Among his proposals that were shot down by the Democratic majority were the hiring of a full-time business administrator. Feintuch claimed he mentioned his proposal at every meeting, while the Democrats said he never brought it up.

Tedesco, meanwhile, had been widely criticized for her lack of attendance at township committee meetings.

The two new Republican candidates had based their campaign on platform outlined at the beginning of their candidacy. They had also criticized the condition of certain township facilities; among them the local Police Department.

The department, part of the municipal complex on Mountain Avenue, was closed in April by the state Department of Labor's Occupational-Hazard Administration for numerous safety violations.

Among the hazardous conditions found by OSHA was a stairway railing in need of immediate repair, floor tiles in poor condition, peeling paint, a lack of proper fire escapes, carbon monoxide fumes and exposed asbestos.

In September, the committee approved plans for the expansion and renovation of the police headquarters and municipal building.

This expansion is expected to begin early in 1986, with the project expected to take one year to complete.

The township in 1985, like many other municipalities, has experienced a shortage of volunteers, in particular for its First Aid Squad.

By July, the number of qualified, available members had dwindled to a point where the Rescu Squad was able to serve only two days a week during the hours of 6 a. m. and 6 p. m.

Squad member Shelley Wolfe, noting that other hours were covered at least adequately, led a drive to secure new members for the squad.

The drive included sending speakers to various organization air town and door-to-door solicitation. By the end of the year, coverage was available every day of the week but Tuesday.

New membership enlisted during the drive will assure adequate coverage 24 hours a day within six months, according to Wolfe.

The year ended with the resolution of one court matter, a suit brought by denied police patrolman applicant Dennis DeNezza, who claimed he was unfairly rejected for the job on the basis of a psychological evaluation.

Township Attorney Anthony D'Alesio, in a case heard by Union County Superior Court Judge Milton Feller, said the applicant gave unusual reasons for wanting to be a policeman.

DeNezza, in testimony before Feller in early December, cited the opportunity for career advancement that was offered to policemen.

DeNezza said it was a career he could enter with his limited education.

In another court matter, the trial of Hanna Ghanem, a Palestinian immigrant arrested in 1984 for the 1982 murder of Springfield resident Sylvia Kravitzberg, is set to begin Jan. 6.

In July, the Baltusrol Golf Club played host to the Women's Open Golf Championship, which was won by Kathy Baker.

Officials don't want a 'rerun' of Route 22 with completed 78

By JOHN WARGACKI & KENNETH SCHANKLER

Currently, Route 22 serves as the only major east-west highway in Union County that runs from New York to western New Jersey. With the state's overwhelming level of local and cross-state traffic, motorists who frequent the highway and business owners who've set up shop there anxiously await the completion of Interstate 78 next year.

A five-mile link of I-78, running from Springfield to Summit and connecting Union County with western New Jersey and eastern Pennsylvania, is due to be finished by June.

Most motorists who use Route 22 to travel across the state, are looking forward to having access to an alternate road. Others, who use Route 22 to reach businesses along the highway, anticipate the transfer of interstate truck and car traffic that I-78 promises to bring.

Most store and business owners on Route 22 said only a small percentage of their customers come from passing traffic and agreed that most of their business relies on faithful patrons. Therefore, if I-78 can alleviate Route 22's heavy congestion, the owners feel that patrons will be more inclined to come out and their businesses will prosper.

The hopes of travelers and entrepreneurs for lighter traffic and more business on 22; of course depends upon I-78 having its expected impact. What will prevent I-78 from becoming just another highway in the state were named by numbers one through 15, and in 1977 and 1983, certain highway designations were changed. Route 22, however, doesn't appear to be one of them.

Linthurst said that many establishments could have been in place before the road was even built, and the ones that are there today were simply built through the years.

The median of the highway, which extends from Union to Mountalnside, is not only occupied by several businesses, but has also become a traffic hazard with U-turns that create backups and accidents.

Linthurst said that such a median is similar to traffic circles, which seemed to be a good idea when traffic was lighter, but have now become extremely dangerous, especially at peak traffic hours.

"Back then the medians weren't considered dangerous," Linthurst said. "Today they're a real mess."

He said that while it's impossible to know for certain how the median on Route 22 actually developed, he noted that in many cases the lanes of road were built "around" existing stores and in time, a center median developed.

Even with the rise of new buildings over the years, many current store owners now occupy structures that were around long before they got there.

Some business owners, like Bill Aquila of the Mountalnside Tennis Club, recall when their buildings were built.

"The original builder was Norm

Morton," Aquila said. "The place was constructed as a health club in 1976 but before that, the lot, I believe, was vacant."

Other owners who now occupy older establishments, however, can't always remember how their place got there.

Nick Dedas, who co-manages the Plaza Diner in Union with his brother, Peter, said they bought the diner in 1975, but the building was there long before that.

"We came to this country 35 years ago," Dedas noted. "I know the place was here years before that."

Even though Route 22 is already jammed with business establishments, municipalities continue to try to regulate any new construction.

Tom Strapp, engineer for the Township of Union, said that the current township zoning laws only allow for particular types of proposed structures to be built.

In the case of a regular, one-story, single-unit building, for instance, Strapp said the builder must submit his site plans to the township Planning Board for approval.

Route 22 in Springfield is a mixture of zones, including highway commercial, general industrial and multi-family residential.

There is also a 50-acre tract zoned for a planned-unit development (PUD), which is owned by a developer named Arden Associates.

The developer has announced preliminary plans for a 300-unit project, which will include housing, offices and commercial development.

Township officials, Mayor Edward Fanning among them, have said the Route 22 corridor is better suited as an industrial zone.

Participating merchants and the township are primarily a residential community, with single-family residential zones sprinkled with restricted-commercial, limited-industrial and office-building zones.

Borough residents have long been sensitive of their town's appearance and the retention of the single-family character of the community was one of the considerations in the recent rejection of a 16-unit townhouse development proposed for a lot near The Woods single-family development.

As a result, the appearance of Route 22 is unlikely to change in Mountalnside to a great extent.

Linthurst said any fears that I-78 will become another Route 22 should be put to rest and not just because I-78 is listed as a non-access highway.

"The federal government will not allow it and neither will the state," Linthurst said. "The Transportation Department can never allow a highway to develop like Route 22 again."

First baby contest begins

At midnight Tuesday, the 1984 "Diaper Derby" gets underway.

It is the annual contest sponsored by the Springfield Leader, in conjunction with local merchants, which offers an array of prizes to the first baby born to Springfield parents in the new year.

Participating merchants and the prizes they are offering are: Berkeley Federal Savings and Loan Association; a $50 savings bond; Headquarter's Hair; a free haircut for the mother or father; Palmer Video; a one-year bronze membership; Park Drugs; a vaporizer; Kay's Hardware; a $10 gift certificate; Springfield Florist; a plant; Howard Savings Bank; a $25 savings account; and Springfield Carvel, a free deluxe dinner cake.

Rules of the contest:

- All entrants must be residents of Springfield.
- Entries must be received at our office, 1291 Stuyvesant Ave., Union (666-7000), no later than 5 p.m. Friday, Jan. 5.
- The first baby born after the stroke of midnight Dec. 31 will be declared the winner, provided the contest entry is received by the deadline and the birth is substantiated by a birth certificate, physician or other official records acceptable to the judges.
- Once the deadline is past, entries—sent for babies born between 11:59 p.m. and midnight—will not be accepted.
- Entrants must agree that pictures of the baby and parents be published in this newspaper to announce the winner.
- In the event no baby is entered by Jan. 5, the contest will be extended to the following Monday.
- The decision for the judges will be final.

THE RAHWAY THEATER lobby on Irving Street in Rahway has been partially restored and will reopen soon as the Union County Arts Center. Robert Engelman, the retired president of Spiegel Incorporated, the Chicago mail order firm, and son of Barney Engelman, who built the Rahway Theater in the late 1920's, recently donated an additional $7,000 to the fund to convert the elegant former vaudeville theater to a county arts center. Engelman visited the theater last year and upon seeing the work done pledged $12,500. The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders has granted Rahway Landmarks exclusive use of the name 'Union County Arts Center' for the restored Rahway Theatre. Plans are being laid for the commencement of a fund drive to raise $1 million dollars in 1986 to complete the restoration already in progress.

Police salaries on meeting agenda

A 1986 police salary ordinance, incorporating 7 percent pay raises in accordance with the terms of a contract settlement reached earlier this year, was approved by the Springfield Township Committee Monday.

The ordinance, which was introduced at the governing body's Dec. 10 meeting, calls for first class patrolmen to receive $29,379 annually; second class patrolmen, $28,640; third class patrolmen, $28,869; probationary patrolmen, $21,785; and detectives, $28,259. For two positions, third class patrolman and special service patrolman, the annual salary is set at $25,188 and $11 to $15 per hour, respectively, for those hired after May 15, 1985.

Under the terms of the contract between the Police and the Benevolent Association and the township, which was ratified in June, the patrolmen also receive a longevity payment based on their time on the force. The terms are 2 percent of the annual salary for those with five years on the force, 4 percent for 10 years, 6 percent for 15 years and 8 percent for 20 years and 10 percent for 30 years in the department.

The patrolmen are also eligible for salary additions based on completion of a minimum of 30 college credits or an associate of arts degree or higher. The additions are $330 for 30 credits, $440 for 40, $550 for 50, $660 for 60, and $770 for 68 credits completed or an associate of arts degree, whichever is lesser. To receive the additions, patrolmen must attain at least a grade of C in the course, which must be accredited by the State Law Enforcement Planning Agency or Law Enforcement Education Program. The salary ordinance is effective until Dec. 31, 1986.

In other business, the committee approved the introduction of an ordinance banning parking on a portion of Mountain Avenue. Parking would be banned along the east side of Mountain Avenue for 196 feet beginning at the southerly rail of the railroad crossing between Waverly and Tooker avenues to the northerly side of Waverly Avenue and along the west side of Mountain Avenue from the same starting point to the northerly side of a parking lot entrance directly opposite Waverly Avenue to Douglas Ford.

The committee also awarded a bid for the purchase of a "high-cube" van for the Office of Emergency Management. Douglas Ford, Summit, for $18,444.

A resolution was also approved designating the Middle Department Inspection Agency as fire sub-code agency for one year.

The Township Committee is scheduled to hold its reorganization meeting, which will include the swearing-in of new committee members Jeffrey Katz and JoAnne Pieper and the election of the mayor for 1986, Wednesday, New Year's Day, at 1 p.m.

Under the terms of the contract between the Police and the Benevolent Association and the township, which was ratified in June, the patrolmen also receive a longevity payment based on their time on the force. The terms are 2 percent of the annual salary for those with five years on

B'nai B'rith to honor Mountainside couple

The Westfield-Mountainside-Scotch Plains Lodge of B'nai B'rith will honor Herbert and Betty Seidel on Sunday, January 19, 1986, for their many years of outstanding service to the community.

The Seidels will be feted during a B'nai B'rith National Youth Services Appeal Brunch at the Westwood restaurant in Garwood, New Jersey. This year the program will focus on the Hilliel Foundation which constitutes the largest Jewish campus organization in the world, saving the lives of over 400,000 Jewish students and faculty.

Herbert Seidel is President of Reisen-Soldat Hardwood Company of Union, New Jersey. He attended Syracuse University and earned Bachelors and masters Degrees from the school's College of Forestry. He is a director of both the Alumni Association and the Endowment Foundation.

Seidel, who is a charter member of the honoring lodge, has served in many key roles for the Jewish Community. He has been Secretary of the Jewish Federation of Central New Jersey and a member of its Executive Board. At present he is a member of the Board of Directors. Earlier in his career he was a co-chairman of the local Israel Bond Drive and chairman of the Westfield-Mountainside United Jewish Appeal. His untiring efforts in raising the spirit of involvement and commitment level of the small blossoming Jewish Community of the 60's and the 70's were of vital importance in the development of the active Jewish environment of today.

His enthusiasm, energy and accomplishments are well known in Mountainside. He is a former Chairman of the Mountainside Overland Hospital fund drive, and was also President and Director of the Community Fund Drive. He has served in similar capacities for the Temple Emanuel and is currently working with the Temple Outreach Committee.

The Seidels have been residents of Mountainside and members of Temple Emanuel of Westfield for many years. They have two children whose impressive career directions reflect the commitment of their parents.

School alternative offered

An alternative to the traditional school day at the David Breairey Regional High School, Kenilworth, is the Cooperative Office Education program. Business students are allowed to attend school during the morning hours, taking subjects related to their field of office education and then leave school before lunch and practice these skills in a beneficial part-time job.

Arthur J. Balaban coordinates the job program which provides practical experience for high school students hoping to follow a career in the secretarial and clerical fields.

Students who qualify for this program must be at least 16 years of age, a business education senior in high school, who is willing and able to profit from the training for his or her chosen profession, and willing to work a minimum of 15 hours a week.

The school is responsible for having a vocational coordinator who screens, selects and recommends students for a particular job, observes the student regularly on the job, discusses the student's progress with the employer to find improvements the students need to make to perform more efficiently and make sure employers provide the training and guidance so students can perform their job more efficiently.

Students are graded on initiative and responsibility. The students must follow the dress code and any other employee qualification standards. The award is given for past experience. The job usually leads to a well-paying job with fringe benefits.

Torrisi is graduate

Josephine Torrisi of Springfield is among new graduates of the Capri Institute of Hair Design in Kenilworth.

Completion of the Capri program prepares the graduate to take the New Jersey State Board of Beauty Culture Examination.

Torrisi will continue her association with Haircutters in Short Hills, where she was employed while a student in Capri's cosmetology program.

The student benefits from this type of program because it utilized school work by putting what has been learned in school to practical use. The program helps the student to successfully enter into the business world, develop proper attitudes toward work, receive experience with proper supervision, and earn money while learning. The students use the skills which have been mastered in school in a related business type of environment. The job provides employees with an incentive for success on the job since school credit is received for work experience.

The responsibilities of the employers who participate in the program are to provide a work situation for the student, to interview and select students for their training and guidance so students can perform their job more efficiently.

Students are graded on initiative and responsibility. The students must follow the dress code and any other employee qualification standards. The award is given for past experience. The job usually leads to a well-paying job with fringe benefits.

Temple honored

Temple Sha'arey Shalom, Springfield, has been honored with the Irving Jay Fain Certificate for its social action program.

The award was presented to the temple by Albert Vorspan at the recent UAHC Biennial. Rabbi Joshua Goldstein, religious leader of Temple Sha'arey Shalom, and John Schlagel, Social Action chairman, said, "The Temple Social Action Programs have branched out in several directions over the past few years."

It also sponsored a Laotian family in Springfield several years ago. The temple was also an active participant in Project Moses—sending aid to Ethiopian Jews. The congregation also maintains a food basket which distributes food to the needy and "reaches out" to communities from local community leaders.

Vitamin & Nutrition News
Mood Vitamin
Studies have shown that birth control pills can decrease vitamin B6 (pyridoxine) levels and may cause depression in some women. Recently a Columbia University psychiatrist reported that the production of monoamines that transmit nerve impulses, believe people suffering from some kinds of depression are deficient in these monoamines.
The New York investigator has advised other physicians to consider the possibility of vitamin B6 deficiency in patients coming to them for depression. Other vitamin levels should also be investigated to determine if a low B6 level is part of a larger picture of multiple vitamin deficiencies.

High spirits

New Year's Eve is fast approaching, the end of the year, as well as the end of the 1985 holiday season. Many will celebrate it with a flourish. Unfortunately, these celebrations have the potential of making the end of the year a tragedy.

No other holiday is more closely associated with alcohol. TV advertisements hawk several brands of champagne for party-goers to indulge in as the last hours of 1985 fade into memory. Restaurants advertise New Year's Eve dinners that feature free alcohol along with the obligatory party hats and noisemakers.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, last holiday season, more than 4,000 people were killed in traffic related accidents on U.S. roads. More than half — about 57 percent — of these fatalities were associated with alcohol.

In New Jersey at least, there is hope that the effects of alcohol won't be quite as ravaging this year. During 1985, there has been an increased public awareness of the dangers of drinking and driving. In addition, the state now has a law requiring the use of seat belts in passenger vehicles. This New Year's, New York State has a minimum drinking age law of 21, the same as New Jersey's, which should help halt the flow of teenagers flocking to Manhattan to drink.

Despite these hopeful signals, everyone should continue to be wary when traveling Tuesday night. Even if you haven't had anything to drink, the "other guy" on the road could be too intoxicated to drive responsibly, so drive defensively.

There is good advice for those who have had too much to drink at a party — spend the night, ride home with a friend or call a cab.

One need not be high, however, to be high spirited this New Year's Eve. A little caution will go a long way toward assuring the enjoyment of the New Year's Eves yet to come.

Letter to the editor
Descendant grateful for information

Editor's note: The following is a letter sent to Vera Strzymewicz of Independence, Wis. by a descendant of the Krueger family.

I have received over 30 letters in response to my letter which appeared in a daily newspaper, but I can assure you none of them were as completely fascinating and full of such wonderful memories as yours of Nov. 16. I was really touched with your description of the Krueger family, and your father and brothers employment in that old establishment. Your letter gave me perhaps more than any other in feeling and experience as a contribution to the genealogical research I am conducting on my maternal grandfather, Judge Krueger. I am most grateful to you.

My brother and I lived with Judge Krueger in Allenhurst, N.J., during the summer of 1923 after the death of our mother. Of course we often visited him too when he lived in Newark in the mansion he built on the corner of High and Court, and indeed we were born across the street, at No. 404. Your description of him (as came from your father) fits right into my opinion of this self-made man who came from a humble family in Germany when he was 16 years old, and ended at the age of 89 as a man who did nothing but good and useful things for Newark and its people.

I am proud of my heritage, and my respect is one of simple interest in the lives and activities of my forebearers. Judge Krueger had 19 children with two wives (my mother was No. 12), and how he found time to handle all that large family plus his business will always be a mystery to me. He was a very great man in many ways, as you so aptly described. They just don't make them like that anymore.

And thanks too for the interesting clippings you sent with your letter. I have a lot of work cut out for me for a long time to come. Again my expression of appreciation for your lovely and most interesting letter.

State using creative preservation plan

By HELEN C. FENSKO

In rapidly developing Ocean County there are 251 acres of Pine Barrens landscape that contain pine and oak forest, an abandoned cranberry bog and sand trails that provide habitat for the endangered Pine Barrens tree frog, the northern pine snake and the cork snake. It is one of those natural areas that provided habitats for a variety of plants and wildlife, including many rare and endangered species, that are rapidly disappearing. In this constantly growing state, the state-sponsored program called the New Jersey Natural Lands Trust, and the generosity of the Amoco Minerals Company, that tract of land will remain unspoiled and undeveloped. There are 10 other similarly donated land tracts across the state that have been preserved in a similar fashion through the trust.

With rising land values, it is becoming more difficult to acquire land for preservation. Since 1961, the state has been able to purchase land at fair market value for recreation, wildlife management, parks, forests and natural areas using funds voters approved through five Green Acres Bond issues. But such funding is limited and other means had to be found. The creative method being used through the trust is private contribution.

The Legislature created the Natural Lands Trust in 1968 to provide a vehicle within state government for preserving land in its natural state through donation. Although the trust has been in existence since 1969, this past year has been its most successful — land holdings were increased by 56 percent. To date, the trust has acquired 11 donations of land totaling 1,618 acres valued in excess of $2 million.

The big advantage to New Jersey provided by the trust is that lands with unusual or unique natural features can be saved with little cost to taxpayers. The Amoco Minerals contribution, for example, if purchased by the state at fair market value as required might have cost more than $500,000. But as a donation to the Natural Lands Trust, the property was obtained for preservation for only the administrative handling costs of about $145 an acre, and Amoco Minerals was able to take a tax benefit.

The trust is unique among conservation organizations because it

Year-end tax planning for 'yuppies'

First came yuppie books. Then came yuppie haircuts. There's even a dog sold in pet shops that's being touted as the "yuppy-puppy." Since America discovered yuppies in 1984, yuppie-mania has spawned a smorgasbord of products and fads for the Young Urban Professional.

Now, topping all the clever yuppie gimmicks by applying some practical financial advice, the New Jersey Society of Certified Public Accountants (CPAs) has come up with a year-end tax planning strategy for yuppies. For financially strapped young professionals, it may provide some needed tax savings.

Despite the hoopla and hype surrounding them, the celebrated yuppies remain in the financial doghouse. Although they are being singled out in books, advertising campaigns and the media, many are financially troubled. The sharp competition for high-paying jobs, the high cost of living in or near a big city and the bigger loan requirements for college are dogging America's newest generation of professionals.

The yuppie year-end tax strategy is based upon a common tax technique known as "bunching." Bunching can be used by all taxpayers, but yuppies — more than others — will frequently find the strategy helpful. That's because many young professionals are in the $25,000 to $35,000 income range. Many people at that income level have some limited deductions, but not enough to itemize. By bunching deductions into 1985, you can itemize and cut a tax bill this year. Then, claim the zero bracket amount (formerly known as the standard deduction) in the following year. According to the CPAs, you can net a handsome tax savings.

Let's see how this might apply to a typical young professional. Such a person might have $800 in interest deductions for college loan repayments. If he or she purchased a car with borrowed money, additional interest deductions — say, for $600 — may also be claimed. In many instances, state income taxes may be levied or a state sales tax on a car could bring an additional $1,000 deduction on a federal return. These limited deductions ($800 plus $600 plus $1,000) would total $2,400. To itemize, however, a single taxpayer in 1985 would need more than $2,300 in deductions, which is the current zero bracket amount. This is where bunching deductions, becomes helpful.

A taxpayer who is at or near the zero bracket amount may be able to accelerate certain deductible expenses into 1985 before the year-ends. Perhaps there are expenses that can be speeded to break through the zero bracket amount. The young professional may want to pay for dues to a professional organization or alumni association before the year ends. Maybe you can pay 1985 dues in 1985. In addition, payments for subscriptions to job-related and investment-related periodicals can have some limited deductions. A wife, for instance, may be able to pay for a three-year subscription to a medical journal before Dec. 31. The year 1985 will pay in 1986 for a bank deposit box can also be advanced into 1985, by the way.

Another bunching technique calls for lumping two years of charitable benefits from being part of both the public and the private sectors. As a public agency, it has the permanency of state government, but is autonomous and can act quickly and independently. The trust operates with a small appropriation from the state and administrative support through the Office of Natural Lands Management. The trust's strong ties with the private sector are through its board of trustees who donate their time and talents. Through them, the trust gains innovative ideas, vital contacts and good communications and suggestions from private conservation efforts. The trust also participates in a network of private government and non-profit conservation organizations that meet periodically to discuss projects, exchange information and consider new ideas for land preservation.

A great aspect of the trust program is that you can get involved. You can donate land, of course, and gain a tax write-off. Some people are able to do that and are encouraged to consider the possibilities. Others can help to protect and manage lands that have been donated. The trust has a volunteer supported program, the Preservation Cooperative. Each preserve will be managed by a committee of neighbors, special interest groups, and/or interested citizens. The committee is responsible for sign posting, litter pick-up, general maintenance, environmental inventories, visitor control, photo-photography of the natural features and regular reporting to the board of trustees.

The first area to be "volunteer managed" was the Crooked Swamp Caves Preserve in Sussex County. The 18 acres are within rolling farmland and wooded hills which overlook a township-owned and managed Great Blue Heron Pond. There are numerous rock outcroppings and a limestone ridge that contains eight caves creating a cave network of 1,250 feet long in the state. Members of the Northern New Jersey and Central New Jersey Grotto Clubs formed a committee to manage the preserve. For safety, they limit access to individuals with sufficient caving experience and also accompany caves on their explorations. This group has a personal interest in the land and in preserving the cave system. Certainly, they have been doing an excellent job of managing.

If you are interested in participating in the Preserve Cooperative, or wish information on land donation, call the Natural Lands Trust Office in Trenton at 1-609-684-1339.

Programs bolster economy

New Jersey Economic Development Authority programs helped bolster the state's economy by stimulating $440 million in private investments in the first nine months of 1985, Borden R. Putnam, Authority chairman and state commerce commissioner, has reported.

The amount represents a 55 percent increase over last year's figure of $284 million for the same period. This year's activity has thus far created almost 10,000 permanent jobs and 12,000 construction jobs within the state.

"Encouraging business expansion, promoting the establishment of new industry, and creating jobs in the state is what the Authority's financial assistance programs do," said Putnam, "and the success of these programs is reflected in the ongoing growth of New Jersey's economy."

The authority is authorized to issue $1.1 billion in industrial development bonds (IDB) financing in 1985 to industrial, commercial and other business projects which provide employment and tax rates in the state.

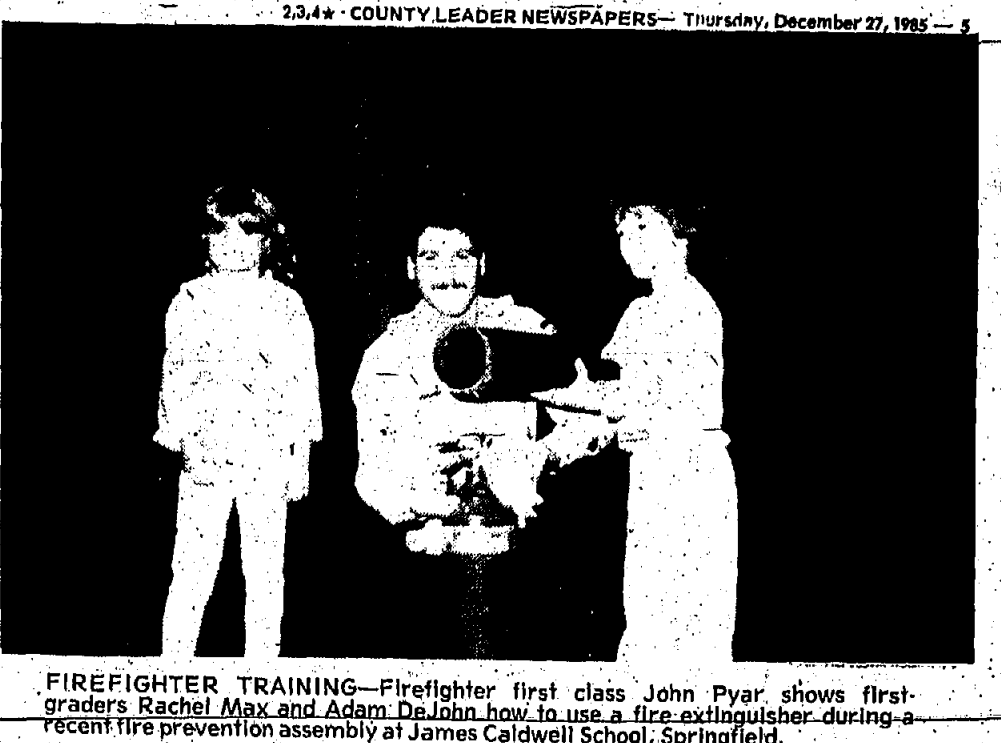

During the nine-month period, the authority issued $718 million tax-exempt industrial development bonds.

The large jump in volume can be attributed to pending tax legislation in Washington which would negatively impact the Industrial Development Bond Program. Many applicants are trying to secure financings before such changes take place," according to the authority's executive director, James J. Hughes Jr.

"However," he added, "recent signs in Washington indicate that there will be an Industrial Development Bond Program in at least the near future, although it may be somewhat reduced."

The IDB program has served as an attractive form of funding for businesses that cannot afford the conventional cost of financing. Industrial Development Bonds have enabled industry to remain competitive by providing low-cost financing for the construction of new facilities and the expansion of existing ones. Businesses also are able to increase efficiency and productivity by using the financing to purchase new equipment.

The authority also issued $3.3 million in direct loans and $3.6 million in loan guarantees to 20 businesses during the first nine months of 1985. For the same period in 1984, the authority issued $2.2 million in direct loans and $2.8 million in loan guarantees. The financings support credit worthy businesses that are unable to obtain conventional financing on their own. This funding is targeted for areas of high unemployment and low income.

Winter weather can be especially risky for senior citizens

The sudden arrival of cold weather can be particularly dangerous—especially to senior citizens—warned Ellen Bloom of Springfield, Director of the Union County Division of Consumer Affairs.

"We all try to conserve costs by turning down our thermostats but conditions that are tolerable for a younger person may be dangerous for the elderly," she said.

Hypothermia is a condition marked by an abnormally low internal body temperature, typically 90 F. (32 C) or under. Studies have proven 10 percent of the population over 65 may be at risk.

Those most especially affected are: people who live alone, those who do not shiver or react normally to cold, folks who do not move around easily, and someone taking medication which may prevent the body from normal temperature regulation.

Family or friends may notice abnormal behavior—indicating that the person is not thinking clearly. "You should know an older person who is taking drugs to treat anxiety depression or seizures such as chlorpromazine or phenothiazines, they should be warned to pay particular attention to sufficient warmth," said Bloom.

Other signs to look for are a change in appearance, uncontrollable shivering or stiff muscles, prior incidents of hypothermia, lack of coordination, sluggishness, low indoor temperature, slow—and sometimes irregular—heartbeat; slurred speech—a slow, very slow breathing, weak pulse, low blood pressure, confusion, disorientation or drowsiness perhaps causing coma.

The lower the body temperature, the more likely that the victim will be unconscious. Coma is very probable if the body temperature is 90 F. (32 C) or under.

What to do:

The victim must be rewarmed, carefully, or else he or she will be chilled. A doctor must be called or an ambulance. While awaiting the arrival of help, prevent further heat loss by wrapping the victim in a warm blanket (thermal or electric); using hot water bottles or electric heating pads (preferably on the victim's abdomen, but never on a high setting); and, if the victim is conscious, give him or her small quantities of warm food and drink (but nothing alcoholic).

If these methods are not available, you can use your own body heat to help keep the victim warm. Lie close to the person, being careful not to rub the victim, or her too young. Rubbing the person's limbs, for example, can worsen the condition," said Bloom.

If the victim is unconscious, lower the head and raise the feet to prevent shock and guard against accidental choking.

"Although we know that continued exposure to even mild cold can be a deadly threat to many elderly, we still do not understand hypothermia itself. We have no sure way to tell who is susceptible. We do not understand the defects in the body which allow some elderly to hypothermia, particularly in victims who appear well protected. We still need to learn the best way to treat accidental hypothermia in the elderly and distribute this information to physicians, nurses, and paramedics," Bloom said.

"At present, to protect the old from accidental hypothermia as best as possible, we would teach physicians and emergency medical personnel how to recognize and treat the condition. We also must encourage the elderly themselves to find out if they are at risk and to protect themselves warm in even mildly cold environments. Future advances in our understanding, treatment and ultimate prevention of accidental hypothermia will derive from scientific research on this condition and on other health problems of the elderly."

The Union County Division of Consumer Affairs warns our citizens in their golden years to be particularly aware of these dangers and to always dress appropriately for cold weather—indoors and out.

"While the utility companies are allowed to shut off service to customers who do not pay their bills, senior residential customers may be protected from shut offs during the winter months. Protection exists until March 15, but may be extended if winter conditions continue beyond that. If you receive benefits from any of the following assistance programs and make a good faith effort to pay your bills, they will not shut off your service during the protection period."

"They will not shut off your service as long as you are making a good faith effort to pay your bills. If you are eligible for protection and are contacted by them for an overdue balance on your bill, you will also be required to make good faith payments toward the outstanding amount."

"If you and the utility company are unable to agree on a monthly payment arrangement, the BPU may be asked to decide your case. You may call the BPU for a final decision toll free at 1-800-824-0241.

"When you receive shut-off protection, the BPU also requires that you have a free 'seal-up' performed on your home or apartment 'seal-ups' are weather-proofing procedures. If you are responsible for the seal-up, you will have a time for your free 'seal-up.' For more information on the 'seal-up,' call toll free 1-800-221-0364.

White named energy winner

Patrick White, director of the Union County Department of Public Works, was named recently by the U.S. Department of Energy as a winner in the second annual National Awards Program for Energy Innovation, according to John S. Herrington, secretary of Energy.

The awards are given for programs or projects that use energy in an "efficient and innovative way," Herrington said.

White was cited for implementing the Shared Energy Savings Program at John E. Runnells Hospital of Union County, Berkeley Heights.

Under the program, a private contractor purchases, installs, maintains and owns any energy saving device installed, and in turn receives a percentage of the energy savings and a tax-credit on the depreciation of the equipment.

Runnells Hospital receives free use of the equipment and also shares in the savings under the five-year program that began in May 1983.

For the first four years, Runnells receives 80 percent of the savings and the private contractor, which is Natin Energy Management Corp. of Colorado, the remaining 20 percent. The fifth year, Runnells will receive 100 percent of the savings.

"The projected savings are $276,000 per year," White said. "And right now we are on target with our projection, which will total $1,365,000 over the five years."

Schering files Federal complaint

Schering Corp. recently filed suit in the Federal District Court of New Jersey in Newark, charging a manufacturer of generic drugs with "unfair competition" by supplying pharmaceutical products to retail outlets in packaging that Schering alleges is confusing similar to its own packaging graphics.

Schering alleges that the product packages simulate its "Chlor-Trimeton" allergy labels, as well as other over-the-counter products made by Schering.

The defendant named in the civil action is Genetek Corporation of Cincinnati.

Schering is seeking both a preliminary and a permanent injunction prohibiting Genetek from continuing to supply allergy labels and other products in packaging that simulates the packaging of Schering, or from otherwise competing unfairly with Schering.

The complaint also seeks triple damages, the recovery of defendant's profits from the sale of the products complained of, and an award of attorney's fees and legal expenses.

ELLIE ROSS CONSULTANT

HUMMEL DISTRIBUTORS—A quiet facade hides the stream of activity that goes on behind the doors at Hummel's. The Union company handles average jobs of distributing 10,000 to 50,000 pieces of mail.

Hummel's delivers the goods

The Hummel Mail and Printing Distributing Corporation hasn't been in business for more than 100 years because it knows how to stuff an envelope. Herbert Hummel Jr., the owner of the company, believes it has expanded and profited because it strives for customer satisfaction.

Hummel's prints and distributes newsletters, flyers, price lists, brochures and a score of other items in the metropolitan area.

"Anyone can stuff an envelope," Hummel tells his employees, "it's the fringe items that make the difference." He knows that the most persuasive literature or advertisements will not make a difference unless they are timely when they reach the reader.

When Henry Hummel, Herb's grandfather, began distributing circulars by hand in Newark in 1884, he had no idea he was establishing a tradition of service. In the early 1920s, Herbert Sr. took over where his dad left off, but he now had the advantage of using automobiles in the business. When he picked up the reins, Herb Sr. traded the horse and buggy team for delivery trucks.

"Although a mature business, Hummel's didn't move to its present location at 650 Springfield Road, Union, until June. The original Newark operation moved to Hillside, where it operated for 20 years. When his father retired, in the early 1960s, Herb Jr. stepped in and expanded the company to include on-site printing. He also decided to modernize the hand-delivery business to mail delivery.

Herb Jr. was exposed to the family business all his life, but remembers he was about 10 when he started paying attention. He was eager to get started in the operation and "make money."

MVC wrestling squads look to improve on '84-'85 marks

Crace, Yee, back to lead Panthers, Dawgs

By MIKE MARON

For any coach, the difficult part of having a great season is the challenge of trying to match those accomplishments the next year. In wrestling, the challenge is to develop individual talents and watch as the younger wrestles through the county, district, region and state tournaments. In the Mountain Valley Conference last season, Roselle Park, Brainerley and Dayton High Schools each had a fine season. Each had some great individual wrestlers.

Can the coaches fill those open coaches' spots?

Leaving the heavyweight legacy behind was Brainerley's Tony Siragusa, who recently finished his first football season at Pitt. Last year, Siragusa left a trail of bodies on the mat enroute to a 26-0 record (23 by pin) and a state championship. In the Region 3 finals, he pinned Dayton's Tom Verducci, another fine wrestler who has since graduated. In a mere 30 seconds, Siragusa rolled to the state crown at Princeton.

The coaches of each school — the Bulldogs' Rick Iacono and the Bears' Ron Ferrara — have young squads coming back. Each coach, however, has hope and there is still plenty of talent remaining.

Here's the season outlook for each team:

ROSELLE PARK

How can the Panthers improve on last season's 12-0 dual meet mark, sending four wrestlers to the regional semifinals (two of which won championships) and a 15th place ranking in the state in the Can team match last year's output?

The Panthers were a veteran team a year ago, but graduation has since made them "sophomore young," Appello said. Gone are Jamie Sington, a regional champion at 188, Paul Fazio, the runner-up at 170, and Mike Antonucci, a regional semifinalist at heavyweight. Each was a District 10 champion. The holdover champ is senior Frank Appello, who made it to the quarterfinals in Princeton. Appello sings the praises of his copartner.

"It's hard coming out of football

(Crace was a standout running back and linebacker for the Panthers) but Frank is a hard worker. He's self-motivated," Appello said.

Crace will wrestle at 135-pounds again this year and should be a strong candidate to win the district and regionals again. But on his way to the state, he'll have to overcome John Welch of Ridge, the state champion at 129, and Ralph Sorrentino of Scotch Plains and Frank Genova of Cranford, who last year met for the 129-pound title in Region 3. Each may wrestle at 135 this season.

As for the rest of the team, the Panthers are very solid in the lower weight classes. Scott Toy at 101, Bob Kinney at 108 and Mark Cassell at 115 combined for 45 wins last year on the varsity level. Each has advanced one weight class this season and Anthony Gallicchio takes over at 101.

Sophomore Joe Brady occupies the 129-pound position for the Panthers after winning a preseason wrestle-off. Crace is at 135.

The Panthers are inexperienced in the upper ranges where only Gene Mirabella returns. After wrestling

JIMMY YEE (right), a District 12 and Region 3 champion at 101 pounds last year, will provide leadership to an inexperienced Dayton wrestling squad again this season.

At 144 and winning 15 matches a year ago, the junior co-captain has blossomed to the 188-pound class. Although just a junior, Mirabella is a seasoned performer now in his third year. The tourney has the No. 1 and 3 teams in New York and the No. 1 team in Long Island and participating so the coach will find out early what his team is made of.

"We have our work cut out for us," Iacono said. "We are not as experienced as we were last year."

With the Bulldogs in the same division as powerful Ridge and Governor Livingston Iacono said the Panthers don't see us being competitive changes but everyone else (on our schedule) is beatable.

The Dawgs' leading returning wrestler is mighty-mite 98-pounder Jimmy Yee, who won the District 12 and Region 3 titles at 101 last year.

One of the finest wrestlers in the history of the school, Yee is the first wrestler in Iacono's 12-year coaching stint to make it to Princeton as a junior. "He's an outstanding wrestler," said Iacono. "Other varsity returnees are Juniors Terry Roberts (112) and John Lynch (128) and seniors Art (Continued on page 15)

Irvington's Olsson closing in on dream

By IRON BISHOP

This story is about dreams — those fulfilled, and those as yet unrealized. And those, sadly, that may never be realized, though not for lack of trying. It's refreshing to meet a student-athlete who, during his college career, has placed the emphasis on "student," particularly when most of us perceive college athletes as diva-like luminaries who glide through college without cracking a book or attending a class.

Fortunately, there are those athletes who realize that while professional sports may turn out to be lucrative, the odds against carving out a successful career are often insurmountable. They come to grips with their limitations and lay a foundation that they can fall back on if a professional sports career doesn't materialize.

In Danny Olsson's case, the foundation has been formed from a solid education.

The 25-year-old Irvington resident wasn't what sports writers call a "bonus baby." He didn't sign out of college for a huge amount of money. He hasn't yet been subjected to the limelight's often blinding glare. He hasn't made an immediate impact in the world of professional baseball.

But he intends to.

After a blistering senior year at Montclair State College, Olsson pitched that season for the "Big Red Sox" of the "Big Red Sox" in Burlington, Iowa.

Not exactly your basic Cinderella story. He's not — at least not yet — a "cornerstone," or a "franchise player." He's a hard-working player whose unadorned zeal for baseball is tempered by the knowledge that while a career in professional sports might be lucrative, the road leading toward it is perilous. Out of necessity, he has his priorities in order.

Olsson recently spoke to a group of athletes about the value of education at an open gym sponsored by the Irvington Recreation Department.

"The main reason I came to talk to the kids is that they're having problems in school. Back when I played, it (going to school) was no big deal," Olsson said.

"A lot of them are looking for a career in sports," he said. But Olsson warned the students that, with very few exceptions, "you can't get drafted out of Irvington High School. Scouts would have a reason to come to a high school. College is the place where you're going to be seen."

But after uninspiring freshman and sophomore seasons at Montclair State, Olsson was in danger of never being seen.

Really, it's a matter of timing. Olsson had only feeling control of his "out" pitch, the knuckle-curve. "I wasn't concentrating," he said. "I would strike somebody out, then walk somebody, then strike somebody out."

DAN OLSSON speaks to Irvington youngsters at a recent open gym about the value of an education.

'Tis the season to be jolly and safe

'Tis the season to be jolly — a house full of decorations, wrapped packages and merry children and guests mean fun — and, a lot of preparation and added responsibility for Mom and Dad.

The New Jersey State Safety Council says that part of this responsibility is planning decorations, gifts and holiday parties that are not only enjoyable, but safe so that accidents, especially fires, don't spoil the holiday fun. Christmas trees, lighted candles, arrangements of evergreen sprigs — traditional decorations which spread the holiday atmosphere all through the house — can also spread the horror of fire.

A common source of Christmas fires is the traditional tree — to see that your tree doesn't become a fire hazard, the Council recommends that you buy a fresh tree with resilient needles that don't drop off when handled. Cut the trunk off diagonally — a little above the original cut. Place the tree in a stand that contains water or wet sand. Be sure that the base is sturdy enough not to tip and wet electrical wires.

When trimming the tree with electrical lights, check for worn insulation, broken plugs, loose bulb sockets and keep extension cords short and out of the way of traffic to prevent tripping.

The popular metallic tree should never have electric lights attached to them. There is too great a possibility that the tree can become electrically charged. Use a color wheel with lights focused on the tree.

Another reported source of home fires during Christmas is the fireplace, which is too often used to burn gift wrapping and twigs from the decorations. Result — a flying spark from an unattended fireplace starts a fire.

Most important, says the Council, do not cover light bulbs with paper or combustible materials, special lamps or colored gelatin-type covers that are fire resistant are sold for this purpose.

AAI to hold a party for Halley viewers

Union County College and Amateur Astronomers, Inc., has invited young people — those who are likely to live to 2061 at least — to attend a Halley's Twice Party on Jan. 3, 4, and 5 from 4:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the College's Cranford Campus.

The Halley's Twice Party is intended to provide an opportunity for senior citizens who saw Halley's Comet in 1910 to view it again and an opportunity for young people to see it now and perhaps again in 2061. "We invite all young people and all senior citizens and their relatives and friends to be special guests at our Halley's Twice Party," Frank Birbauer, president of Amateur Astronomers, Inc., said, but all members of the community are also invited to the day Halley event.

Birbauer said members of Amateur Astronomers, Inc., will set up dozens of telescopes at Union County College's Cranford Campus to provide an opportunity for all visitors to see Comet Halley.

Announcements of the Halley's Twice Party have been sent to all elementary schools and to all Parent-Teacher Associations in Union County, Birbauer said.

As part of each evening's Halley celebration, guests also will have the opportunity to visit the William Miller Sperry Observatory which houses 24-inch reflector and 10-inch refractor telescopes. The Sperry Observatory is operated jointly by Amateur Astronomers, Inc. and Union County College.

"We know where to locate the comet, as it approaches Earth," Birbauer said, "because we have seen it before from the Observatory. But the quality of observation will depend on weather factors and how bright the comet actually is in our area in January," Birbauer added.

For current information on these and other Halley-related activities, individuals can dial 276-STAR, the 24-hour Observatory Hot Line.

As she introduces the new games to the group, Vivian Phillips engages each member individually. She exudes warmth and concern as she encourages each woman to squeeze the soft ball with her hands and then toss it to exercise her shoulders and arms. The activities break the silence with an occasional smile or reminiscence about the past.

"As a recreational therapist at the Home for Aged Women in Elizabeth, Phillips who lives in Cranford plans activities, books, guest speakers; organizes outings, and gives the women something to look forward to."

"One of the fundamental things you learn in gerontology is to develop relationships," Phillips said. "People mostly need respect, caring and warmth...we all need that."

"Gerontology wasn't always her specialty. When she began her studies at Union County College in 1961, Vivian Phillips had no idea of a career direction. Beginning her college education in her late forties she felt unsure as to where she could fit in.

"I took all kinds of courses. Then I heard about the Gerontology Program and became interested," she said.

"I felt comfortable and welcomed into the program. UCC looks at the student and recognizes where the student is at," she said. "I feel very fortunate to have taken the Gerontology Program at Union."

"When you say you're a gerontology student from Union County College, it stands very well. You're almost guaranteed the job," Phillips said. "I got this job through the College...I wouldn't feel as confident without the background."

"The Program alerts you to different situations and teaches you how to deal with them. It's not enough to be a warm, caring person. You need the schooling," she said.

While at UCC, Vivian Phillips was an honors student and received an academic scholarship. She was involved with the part-time student government, where she organized activity programs. Phillips is now continuing her college studies at Kean College, Union.

Feeling a sense of loss after her children were grown and away at college, Vivian Phillips decided to begin her college career at UCC.

"I had to find someone...I had a lot to offer," she said.

The mother of two describes herself as having nurtured her life. "This job is an extension of that."

Describing her role as dealing more with the psychological part of a person, Phillips strives to get the women talking. She coordinates programs that will stir reactions and get them involved.

She makes a special effort to include the infirmed women who reside at the home.

"We have to stimulate them — get them involved. That's where I've gotten my greatest rewards," she said.

Halleymania time

Halley's Comet mania is with us, and Amateur Astronomers, Inc. and Union County College have the data to prove it.

"The public seems to be caught up in the mystery of comets and Halley's Comet in particular," Frank Birbauer of Chester, president of Amateur Astronomers, Inc., said.

The number of telephone calls to AAI's Astronomy Hot Line, 276-STAR, has increased tenfold in recent weeks. The club's membership of 300 has increased by nearly 20 percent. And requests for speakers is five times greater than usual.

Halley's Comet is now visible in this area in the early evening. The Comet, however, is still a rather faint object and particularly difficult to view because of the light pollution in the New York Metropolitan area, Birbauer said.

The "mania" is being fed by extensive media coverage, especially on television, and by hunters who are attempting to cash in on the Comet's first visit in 78 years.

Halley's Comet apparently is the best known and most popular object in the skies and one of the most mysterious, Birbauer explained.

"We get calls daily requesting information about the Comet and their frequency is increasing," Betty Cagle of Westfield, a UCC public information assistant, said. "Many of the questions we can answer, but most of them we refer to members of Amateur Astronomers."

There have been so many calls that a system has been set up so they are referred to a number of people like Birbauer: Barry Malpas of Warren, AAI vice president; Roger Tullith of Mountainside, a long-time member and leader of Eclipse Trips, and George Chaplenko of Edison, chairman of the group's Education Committee.

Up-to-the-minute information about Halley's Comet and current activities at the Sperry Observatory can be obtained from the AAI Hot Line, 276-STAR.

Winter is stressful for shrubs

Winter is a stressful time for broadleaf evergreen shrubs in the garden. Rhododendrons, azaleas, hollies, andromedas and mountain laurels all need special care if they are to survive the winter without damage.

Cold damages shrubs in two ways. First, it can cause leaves to dry out. This occurs because roots in frozen soil cannot absorb water to supply the leaves. Signs of this damage are brown around the edges of leaves and mid-veins. This browning becomes most apparent in May and

June. Second, leaves can be frozen to death. Fortunately, this only occurs

of December:
 1. Water the shrubs thoroughly.
 2. Apply 3 to 4 inches of mulch around the base of the shrub. (Be sure to pull it back slightly from the trunk to allow the bark to harden.)
 3. Protect the leaves from the drying effects of wind and sun with either a burlap screen or an anti-desiccant. Anti-desiccant is a liquid plastic that coats the leaves and prevents moisture loss.

By following the above steps your shrubs will make it through the winter trouble free.

Tree seedlings offered

The Department of Environmental Protection's Division of Parks and Forestry is accepting orders for 700,000 quality tree seedlings which will be available for the 1986 early spring planting season.

Any public or private landowner in New Jersey owning a minimum of five acres may purchase and plant the seedlings for reforestation or conservation purposes. The minimum initial order is for 1,000 trees and not less than 250 of any one species. Seedlings may not be dug, potted, or sold as nursery stock or for other purposes.

Seedlings are expected to be ready for pick-up between March and April 15 at the N.J. Forest Tree Nursery in Jackson Township or at seven other pick-up points throughout the state.

'Jewel of the Nile' is funny, fun: a gem of a movie

Good, old-fashioned romantic nonsense involving adults has been in dangerously short supply in the movies in recent years. Joan Wilder (Kathleen Turner) and Jack Colter (Michael Douglas), the heroes of "Romancing the Stone" and now "Jewel of the Nile," are trying very hard, and spending incredible amounts of money, to reverse that trend.

And they're succeeding. "Jewel of the Nile" is funny, fun, gorgeous to look at, and has two very appealing leads. For the most part, the film looks like the real thing, but a closer examination reveals flaws such as the lack of a coherent plot and some overdone and overacting scenes.

For instance, the opening fantasy sequence of a scene in the new romance novel Joan is writing is totally misguided. The movie's true opening is on Jack's yacht in the Mediterranean, as the two of them are sailing around the world. They are arguing. Joan wants to go back to New York, saying, "Beautiful ports, great parties, excitement, adventure...how much romance can one girl stand?"

Jack wants to go on to Greece. Joan then hooks up with an Arab potentate who is also a romance novel fan. He insists that Joan write his story as he becomes leader of his people.

Here is where the plot gets so murky it seems as if they were making it up as they went along. Omar, the potentate, (Spiros Rocca) is going to convince some Arabs that he is the "Jewel of the Nile," a sort of god-like figure, thereby uniting the "tribes of the Nile?" and then he's going to wage war on the rest of the Middle East, or something like that.

However, understanding the plot, which is impossible, isn't really the point. The romance between Jack and Joan is the point. Ms. Turner is spirited and sexy and warm, with sparkling eyes and an easy smile. Douglas is square-jawed and tanned, and comes across as a Bud-guzzling, regular guy, who just wants to hang out on his boat and stay out of trouble.

Screening room

By STEPHEN KOLOZSVARY

But Omar, that swine, kidnaps Joan and blows up Jack's boat, and Jack springs into action. They escape Omar with the real Jewel of the Nile in tow, a timid, bespectacled holy man (Amyr Eisenberg), who is the cutest thing ever and has magical power to boot.

Some of the dumber scenes ensue such as when the three of them steal Omar's fighter jet and drive around an expensively constructed town, destroying everything in sight. The scene seems about a half hour long, and it's completely pointless.

Another clunker is the finale. Jack and Joan try to break-up Omar's Nuremberg-style rally, where he is proclaiming himself the redeemer. Without going into detail, I would have rather seen more of Jack and Joan and less destruction of sets.

On the side, Danny DeVito is very funny as he reprises his role of the perennially aversive Jewel thief who always ends up with the short end of the stick. Also, the film's constant use of juggling is good. All the good-guy Arzoo juggle, and it makes for an interesting visual effect.

If you can ignore the unintelligible plot and concentrate on Jack and Joan, I recommend this film. Although it's flawed, it's still fun to look at, and sometimes costume jewelry can be as much fun as the real thing.

NJSO gift offered

"A Night at the Symphony," the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra's popular gift item, once again is being offered through the NJSO box office. This decorative gift booklet contains a coupon redeemable for two top price tickets to any one of 22 concerts statewide by the Garden State's leading musical ensemble. The 16-page book features drawings by award-winning artist Kenneth Allison, and complete descriptions of the guest soloists, conductors and programs for concerts in Newark, Englewood, Red Bank and Trenton.

A $35 value, "A Night at the Symphony" is available for only $18.95. It can be ordered by calling 1-800-ALLEGRO (in N.J.) or 624-8203 and is available through April 1986. Highlights of the concerts available to "A Night at the Symphony" buyers include performances by pianists Andre Watts and Andre-Michel Schub, cellist Lynn Harrell, violinist Elmar Oliveira, soprano Ellen Shade, and the Pro-Arts Chorus. Conductors are George Manahan and Hugh Wolf, newly appointed music director of the NJSO. Concerts take place at Newark Symphony Hall, John Harms Englewood Plaza, Monmouth Arts Center in Red Bank, and Trenton War Memorial.

The NJSO box office at 1300 ALLEGRO or 624-8203 is open Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Information also can be obtained by writing to NJSO Box Office, 213 Washington St., Newark, 07101.

'Paper' art on display

Diane Price's handmade paper works of art will be on display in the Member's Gallery, the Summit Art Center, 68 Elm St., Summit through Jan. 16.

Price has been making handmade paper since 1981 when she began studying the medium as an art form at Montclair State College. She had attended the Rhode Island School of Design and Parsons School of Design before receiving a B.A. from Montclair State.

Price does not use the paper as a support for painting or drawing but manipulates the paper pulp so that it becomes the art object. She combines the papermaking processes that have been in use for almost 2000 years with her own innovative techniques. In her work colored pulps are layered, textured, or delicately webbed. Close inspection reveals imaginative additives and other visual surprises. Exploring the varied and mysterious qualities of the paper has led Price to develop her own lace paper techniques.

Her handmade paper wall pieces, bookworks, and cast paper pieces have been included in regional and national paper exhibitions as well as various juried competitions where they have won many awards.

DAVID MC CALLUM will star in "Run For Your Wife," an English farce, which will open at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, Jan. 8 and run through Feb. 9. McCallum, who is best known for his role in television's "Man From U.N.C.L.E.," has appeared in films and in television plays. Additional information can be obtained by calling 376-4343.

'Holly' continuing

The New Jersey Public Theater will continue its holiday production, "The Holly and the Ivy," by Wyngard Browne, through Saturday, at 118 South Ave., E., Cranford. The play marks the return to New Jersey theater of director William L. Black, one of the developers of Celebration Playhouse and co-founder of NJPT.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 272-5704.

Rebecca's forecast

For week of Dec. 27 through Jan. 2 ARIES (12/21-1/20) The holiday spirit catches up with you this week. Parties and gatherings are sure to be on the agenda. Is someone feeling you or are you feeling yourself? Later, expect more emphasis on career, community and domestic matters in coming weeks; changes are likely in any of these areas.

TALOUS (12/21-5/21) The coming week restores peace and offers new harmony to your important alliances. Roguette relationships thrive and communications improve. Later, social, creative and children's interests dominate and happenings at a distance soon prove important to many. Career expansion continues.

GEMINI (5/22-6/21) Many can look forward to a more favorable financial trend early in the week. Long-suspected communications finally arrive and troubled alliances become more strained. Later in this week, you may feel crowded by limitations.
